James W. Rideout Passes Away

James W. Rideout, a well known South Quincy resident, died at his home on Payne street, Sunday, after an illness of several months duration. During his early life he was in the florist's business in Boston, but after being burned out in 1872 he gave up that business, and commenced the manufacture of boots and shoes, which he continued for fifteen years. He was at one time superintendent of Public Burial places and of late years has been caretaker at the birthplace of John Quincy Adams for the Quincy Historical Society. His last illness was due to a shock of paralysis. He was 74 years of age and leaves a son, Warren H. Rideout, with whom he lived. He was a member of Rural lodge A. F. & A. M., and St. Stephens Royal Arch chapter. A Masonic funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon.

CLEVER WORK

Inspector McKay Successful In Running Down Quincy Burglar

There is little doubt but Inspector McKay captured the right man when he arrested Hartnett for the robbery of the Department store. This morning while in the cage at the court room he was positively indetified by Daniel Lane, as the man he saw on Granite street the Sunday morning of the break.

Mr. Lane, who is a track walker employed by the Old Colony street railroad, came down Granite street that morning in the vicinity of 4 o'clock. As he came along a man came out from the rear of the Greenleaf block and spoke to him about the weather, asking him if he thought it would rain.

At that time Mr. Lane thought the man was one employed in a stable, but after he heard of the break he changed his opinion.

This morning when he visited the court room the cage was full of prisoners, and Mr. Lane without hesitation picked out Hartnett as the man who spoke to him that Sunday morning.

Hartnett denied that he was in Quinand says that he has not been out of Boston for five months. If he is the man that Mr. Lane saw, however, and there seems to be no doubt about it, he must have remained in the store until he thought the coast would be clear for him to escape without apprehension.

A man answering to the name of Michael Hartnett, who is known by the alias "Lawrence Mickey," was arrested in Boston on Saturday afternoon, and turned over to Inspector McKay, by whom he was wanted for robbing the Quincy Department store of $800 on the night of Saturday, March 14.

Hartnett, the police believe is one of the men who did the job which was the boldest break ever made in this vicinity. The fact that the store had been entered, the safe blown open and the money taken was not discovered until noon the next day, Sunday.

Hartnett is one of the nine men rounded up by Post Office Inspector

INSPECTOR McKAY.

Jennings of this city several weeks ago for complicity in post office robberies, but no evidence could be found against him and he was set free.

Inspector Jennings says, however, that Hartnett is a petty thief and yeggman, and has done time in Essex county.

A few days after the robbery Inspector McKay secured photographs of the nine yeggmen, and has since been on the watch for Hartnett.

Chief Watts assigned Inspector Burr and Smith to assist him, and the three have spent much time on the street on the look out for him.

The photographs were brought to Quincy and shown the clerks at the department store, and Hartnett's picture was picked out from the bunch of nine as a man who had been in the store the Saturday previous to the break. One of the clerks remembered the man as the one who asked to be shown some packing cases kept in the back of the store.

They were hot on his trail several times, but he managed to elude them. One day last week they entered a south end restaurant two minutes after Hartnett had left. Saturday the man wanted was spotted, and promptly placed under arrest, and turned over to Inspector McKay, who later brought him to Quincy.

Hartnett was arraigned in court this morning.

Assault with Knife At Houghs Neck

Maurice R. Higgins, aged 41 years, residing at 549 East Third street, South Boston, was arrested Sunday morning for assault on his wife Charlotte Higgins with a knife. The assault took place at the residence of J. L. Harvey, at Houghs Neck, where Mrs. Higgins was employed as a housekeeper. It is claimed that Higgins cut his wife five times with a knife, as a result of which she was taken to the City Hospital, although not considered in a dangerous condition.

Higgins came from Boston on the 6.30 train Sunday morning and went directly to Houghs Neck, where Mrs. Higgins and her two sons were. He quarrelled with her soon after his arrival, and then it is alleged that he struck her repeatedly with a pocket knife. Mrs. Higgins screamed, and he ran from the house, pursued by Mr. Harvey, Bert Harvey and Philip Catarius. Higgins ran up the short street leading to Sea street. Neil J. Regan who stood on Sea street saw him coming and shouted to the pursuers that Higgins had a knife in his hand and to look out for it.

Higgins then turned and ran back toward the beach, where he was grabbed by Mr. Regan, who held him while the others tied him with a rope. As he ran back he closed the knife and placed it in his pocket.

Meanwhile a telephone call had been sent to the police station and the wagon was sent down. Dr Jones was also notified and started for the scene in his fast automobile, taking Officer Milford with him.

Dr. Jones found two cuts on Mrs. Higgins forehead, two or three inches long, and three smaller cuts in the hair. After dressing the wounds he ordered her removal to the City Hospital. On the way to the hospital Mrs. Higgins said that she had but recently come from a hospital, where she had been from the effects of a beating her husband had given her. She wanted Higgins held until she was able to appear in court against him.

Higgins told the officers that he was employed as a teamster by the Grueby Faience Tile Co., at South Boston. He said that he came to Quincy to induce his wife to return. He said that she had been away from home for a month, and that he and his fourteen year old son had been living with his aunt. He had been married fifteen years, and he made several uncomplimentary remarks about his wife.

He was arraigned in court for assault with a dangerous weapon on his wife.

Cup Races.

Thus far only one challenge has been received by the Corinthian Yacht Club for the Quincy challenge cup, although other clubs have until May 15 in which to challenge. It looks as if the Manchester Yacht Club's challenger would stand a good chance of winning back the cup unless some member of the club comes to the front and builds a new boat. As there are to be races again in 1909 between the American and German sonder craft, a new boat built for racing for the Quincy cup could be well tuned up and in good shape for the trials for the selection of a defender to meet the Germans. No doubt a number of sonder boats will be built when the formal announcement of the coming of the German boats is sent forth, so therefore, those who intend to build in that event could hardly do better than build now and defend the Quincy challenge cup. The new Boardman boat, built for C. H. W. Foster, is said to be a well turned craft, that should be especially good in light and moderate breezes.—Herald.

Hearty Welcome

Rev. D. M. Wilson of Northfield, who preached at the Wollaston Unitarian church Sunday morning was greeted by a crowded house, although it was a rainy day. It was while Mr. Wilson was pastor at the First church at Quincy that he organized the Wollaston church, and he is therefore regarded as the father of the church. Services were first held in Russell's hall, now I. O. O. F. hall. Mr. Wilson spoke of the early days of the church, the growth since, and the fraternal spirit. He was pleased with the fine welcome given.

WOULD TAKE CONTRACT

G. B. Bates Makes Proposition to City Relative to Abolishing Crossing

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I see by the Daily Ledger that Mayor Shea has issued a hurried call of the City Council, to see what action the Council will take in reference to his communication asking for an appropriation of ($5,000) five thousand dollars, for expert engineers on grade crossings.

As a heavy tax-payer of Quincy I wish to enter any protest against the passage of this order, and pray that the City Council will defer immediate action at this time, and not pass it in any form, for the following reasons.

Firstly—It is entirely uncalled for, and unnecessary at this time; for at the last public hearing on grade crossings it was most decidedly voted down, "on George H. Brown's motion that it be the sense of this meeting that the Mayor be authorized to petition the Council for an appropriation of $1000 for expert engineers."

The public is waiting for another public meeting. I believe this is a great public question. We should first find out and know what we are going to do, and then if necessary make an appropriation.

Secondly—I believe ($5,000) five thousand dollars for expert engineers is decidedly excessive; for that amount of money would go a long way (if judiciously expended) toward the city's proportionate cost in this controversy.

Thirdly—I will agree to take the contract and accept this amount of ($5,000) five thousand dollars asked by the Mayor as the entire cost to the city as its legal proportion of ten per cent of the entire cost of the following work. The R. R. to pay me 65 per cent and the State to pay me 25 per cent.

I will do all the excavating; build all side retaining walls runnings parrallel with the railroad tracks; build a sub-station until the depot is complete; commencing about 400 feet north of Dimmock street and continuing to Granite street according to City plans No. 32, known as the "Depression or Bates plans."

Furthermore, I will agree to take the contract for the amount to be decided by the special commission for what an over-head public bridge will cost at Saville street with the railroad tracks at the present grade, and location including all land and property damages that would be caused by such a bridge on Saville street. I would transfer this amount of cost and would agree under contract to build as good a bridge over the railroad tracks depressed at Granite street and pay all property damages on Granite street; or I may have the option to purchase all property claimed to be damaged on Granite street (under the depressed proposition) for its assessed valuation.

Further I will take the special commission's award of the cost of a new railroad bridge over Granite street at the present grade and location of the railroad tracks and transfer that amount of cost, and build a beautiful bridge next to the depot at Savil street with a four per cent grade to Hancock street, without any further expense or trouble to the city so far as Savil street and Granite street are concerned.

Yours very respectfully,
G. B. Bates.

New Yacht.

A Boston paper reports that Swasey, Raymond & Page have designed a 33-foot cabin semi-cruiser for L. M. Witherell, which will be used on the Taunton river and Narragansett bay. The boat will be driven by a 25-horse-power engine, and her lines show a smart looking craft. She is building at Baker yacht basin, Quincy.

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

Ice formed last night.

Easter two weeks from Sunday.

A new moon April 1—no April fool.

Tomorrow will be the last day of March.

A clear sky this morning—cool and invigorating.

The street watering car will go into service April 15.

The annual reports of the School Committee and Superintendent of Schools are out.

Miss Lela Belle Smith has returned to Middleboro to resume her duties as teacher after a week's rest.

The public schools of the city will close on Friday of next week for the spring vacation. They will reopen Tuesday, April 21.

The new electric crane at the South Quincy freight yard is practically ready for use. The driveways into the yard have not been completed however. Everything will be in operation this week.

Miss Irene Pitts celebrated her seventh birthday anniversary Saturday afternoon by entertaining a number of her playmates at her home on Hancock street. There were the usual party games and refreshments.

A special meeting of the City Council will be held tonight to draw jurors, to act on the order granting permission to the Citizens' Gas Light Co. to lay mains, and on the order appropriating money for expert advice on abolition of grade crossings.

General Passenger Agent.

A. B. Smith, formerly of Quincy, has been appointed general passenger agent of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., and will assume the office April 1. George L. Connor, passenger traffic manager and A. C. Kendall, general passenger agent of the New Haven railroad, will retire on a pension, having served the requisite number of years to entitle them to this consideration. These offices will be consolidated under the title of general passenger agent and A. B. Smith will be appointed to this position, with headquarters in the South station, Boston. He will have jurisdiction over the entire passenger service of the New Haven system, including the New England navigation company.

Mr. Smith was born in Boston, educated at Adams academy, Quincy. His first railroad service was performed under C. F. Perkins on the Chicago Burlington & Quincy railroad, which has trained so many New England men. From the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy he went to the Northern Pacific, where he was assistant general passenger agent, and a few years ago came to the New Haven company, where he held a position as traffic manager of the New Haven's trolley lines.

HUNTER IS DEFIANT

Prepared to Have Courts Define Rights of Free Speech

HE DEPLORES BOMB OUTRAGE

Man Who Had Missile Suffers Frightful Injuries, While Companion Is Killed--Socialists Deny Connection With Would-Be Slayer

New York, March 30.—Robert Hunter, the sociologist, declared last night that he was not only at Saturday's demonstration by the unemployed in Union square, which ended in a bomb explosion, but that had opportunity offered he would have addressed the crowd in defiance of police prohibition and so brought about a test in the courts of the right of free speech.

It had been advertised that Hunter would address the meeting, but in the excitement that followed the action of the police in driving the crowds from the square he was lost sight of and it was not until yesterday that it was generally known that the settlement worker was prepared to carry out his part of the program, even if it led to his arrest.

Hunter's position in the whole matter was set forth in a statement over his signature given to The Associated Press. The writer deplores the "outrage," as he calls the attempt to throw the bomb, and refers to its author as a fanatic who has injured the cause of the unemployed. Hunter says that until he arrived at the square he was ignorant of the fact that speechmaking had been forbidden. He learned this of the police and then determined to speak in order that the right of peaceful assembly and free speech might be legally passed upon. He adds that he had no chance to be heard, for presently the police "charged the crowd with incredible brutality."

Hunter describes his own escape from under a horse's hoofs, tells how he was dragged by officers from the steps of a building from which he had hoped to speak, and how what was intended to be a peaceful assembly in furtherance of aid for the unemployed was broken up in a way that he thought "could not be duplicated outside of Russia."

Sunday proved a busy day for the police and the Socialists who were responsible for Saturday's demonstration. There was no act of violence or disturbance, but the police were busy looking up the record of the bomb-maker and others under arrest, while the Socialists were as active in repudiating sympathy with the outrage and knowledge of the perpetrator.

Selig Sliverstein, in whose hand the bomb exploded just as he was about to hurl it at Captain Miles O'Reilly and his squad of twenty men, is still alive at Bellevue hospital. Though the explosion tore off his right hand, temporarily blinded him and caused frightful bodily injuries, he may survive. As yet he cannot see, but the sight of one eye may be restored.

Seven men arrested after the bomb explosion were arraigned in court yesterday. Of the number six called themselves Russians. One of them was an American. The foreigners were held in $3000 bail each for further examination, while the American was held without bail. They are charged with taking part in a riot. The police examined a half dozen persons, including S. Yanofsky, editor of Frie Arbeiter Stimme. All declared that they had advocated peace in the adjustment of industrial disputes.

The general committee of the local Socialist party met yesterday and set forth its side of the affair. It contends that the meeting was made up of law-abiding persons and it accuses the police of inciting the people to riot. Many statements were issued by individuals, all deploring the act of violence and all taking the police to task.

Inspector Schmittberger, who had charge of the handling of the crowds in Union square before and after the bomb explosion, said last night:

"I gave no clubbing orders to any of my men and I am positive none of my mounted men drew their clubs while scattering the crowd. That is a story out of the whole cloth. While I believe something ought to be done, and that quickly, to curb the anarchistic tendencies of some of these people, I do not, and never did, advocate the wholesale clubbing of innocent bystanders to effect the dispersal of crowds that collect."

The body of Ignatz Hildebrand, the only one killed by the bomb explosion and the man who stood by Silverstein at the time, was given to his wife and taken to Orange, N. J., for burial. Mrs. Hildebrand said that her husband owned several tailor shops here, but more recently he was interested in a grocery store in Roseville, N. J. He had been in this country thirty years.

The police did not make much progress with Silverstein, who, though able to talk, would not discuss his act. He appeared indifferent to his fate.

Mitchell's Health Undermined

Indianapolis, March 30.—After ten years' leadership of the United Mine Workers of America, John Mitchell will retire tomorrow from the head of that organization and will be succeeded by Thomas L. Lewis of Ohio. Mitchell will devote his time to regaining his health, which has given way under the strain of office.

A RESULT OF ARSON

Police Seeking Firebug Responsible For Loss of Three Lives

Milford, Mass., March 30.—Detective Molt and Building Inspector Adams, both of the district police, accompanied by Chief Maher of the Milford fire department and Clerk Pond of the district court, have begun a thorough inquiry into the cause of the two fires in Milford on Friday night in which three persons lost their lives and two others were badly burned. It is expected that arrests will soon follow the investigation.

Molt states that both fires were of incendiary origin and that it is possible that the same person or persons set fire to both buildings, as they were near together on the same street. The fire in the six-tenement block, Molt says, was started in the basement at the rear of the building under a flight of stairs, and probably also lighted at the front end of the building, at the foot of another flight of stairs.

The inspection yesterday showed that the fire crept from both ends toward the middle of the building, where it ran through the main hallway, thus shutting off the means of escape of the victims. Adams states that the report that lives were sacrificed because the building was not provided with proper exits is untrue, and that the law had been fully complied with in that respect. The fact that the fire was set at both ends of the building made the use of the exits impossible.

The dead are Miss Lydia Bates, 22 years old; Mrs. Jennie M. G. Cobb, and her 3-year-old son, James.

Held on Charge of Arson

Boston, March 30.—Frank Mellay of Milford, aged 26, was arrested here after a hard tussle and is locked up, charged with arson. It is alleged that Mellay is responsible for the fire in Milford Friday night in which three lives were lost. He was stopping in a house on Fountain street when found by the police last night and made a desperate attempt to escape.

No Light on Mullins Murder

Arlington, Mass., March 30.—The mystery of the murder of Miss Annie Mullins, whose body was found with deep knife gashes in the throat, lying on the edge of a gravel pit in a field here, remains unsolved. The police of neighboring cities are assisting the Arlington officers in the search for the unknown man who was seen talking to Miss Mullins Friday evening at the door of the residence in Cambridge where she was employed as a domestic.

Highwaymen Got a Dollar

South Norwalk, Conn., March 30.—Two highwaymen held up Samuel Kessler, a Hebrew rabbi, and Herman Freedman, a butcher of the same faith, as they were driving in a carriage late at night, demanded money, secured a dollar, and on the rabbi showing fight with a butcher knife, opened on them with revolvers, one shot striking Kessler in the hand. The occupants of the carriage then whipped up the horse and drove to this city.

Embezzlement Is Charged

Hartford, March 30.—Lucius B. Norton, president of the National Mercantile company, was arrested on a warrant charging embezzlement. Bonds were fixed at $10,000, which were furnished. The National Mercantile company, of which Norton was treasurer as well as president, went into the hands of a receiver about three weeks ago, as a result of a complaint made by C. F. King of Boston.

Good Reports From Guild

Boston, March 30.—Only reports of a decidedly favorable nature come from the Marlboro street residence of Governor Guild. Visitors give even more favorable accounts of the governor's condition than do his doctors. While the physicians will not admit that the governor is as yet out of danger, the impression is gaining ground that unless unlooked for complications arise he will recover his health.

Was Leader In Labor Circles

Lynn, Mass., March 30.—Napoleon Woods, who was a leader in labor circles in Lynn for many years, and was one of the pioneers in the organization of turn shoe workers, died suddenly last night, aged 74 years. He was one of the principals in the conduct of an extensive strike of shoe workers in 1860. In recent years he had devoted himself to his trade, that of a turn worker.

Boston Firemen Injured

Boston, March 30.—Three alarms were rung in today for a fire in the business block numbered 90 to 96 Purchase street and 421 to 431 Atlantic avenue, occupied mainly by dealers in paints and oils and a storage company. Three firemen were blown from a ladder by an explosion and were taken to the city hospital suffering from injuries. The loss may reach $100,000.

Charged With Smuggling

Augusta, Me., March 30.—Peter D. Lefevre of Vanceboro, for twenty-five years a conductor of the Canadian Pacific railway, was arraigned here on the charge of smuggling clothing, chinaware and moccasins over the Canadian boundary line. A continuance was granted until April 3 on account of the absence of two witnesses. Lefevre gave bail.

Three Deaths From Explosion

South Deerfield, Mass., March 30.—A tank used for supplying gas to houses and stores in this village exploded, killing John H. Ockington, aged 65, manager of the gas plant, and Nelson Boaman, aged 20. James Stoddard, 60 years old, employed as a laborer at the plant, received injuries from which he died some hours later.

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

AT a Probate Court holden at Brookline in and for said County of Norfolk, on the twenty-fifth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eight.

On the petition of Joseph Dorman Eaton of Quincy, in said County, praying by his father and next friend that his name may be changed to that of Joseph Jordan Eaton, public notice having been given according to the order of Court, that all persons might appear and show cause, if any they had, why the same should not be granted, and it appearing that the reason given therefore is sufficient, and consistent with the public interest, and being satisfactory to the Court, and no objection being made.

It is decreed that his name be changed, as prayed for, to that of Joseph Jordan Eaton which name he shall hereafter bear, and which shall be his legal name, and that he give public notice of said change by publishing this decree once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger a newspaper published in Quincy and make return to this Court under oath that such notice has been given.

Would Now Be Pleased to Receive Hill as Ambassador

THE SENTIMENT IN AMERICA

It Leads German Foreign Office to Make an Official Declaration--Aims to Close Incident In Manner Satisfactory to People of United States

Berlin, March 30.—Emperor William, having been fully advised about the attitude of President Roosevelt and the feeling of the American public regarding his alleged refusal to receive David J. Hill as American ambassador to Germany in succession to Charlemagne Tower, has recalled all the expressions of disapproval he recently sent to President Roosevelt and would be pleased to receive Hill as ambassador.

The emperor has caused this information to be communicated to President Roosevelt. The German foreign office has sent to The Associated Press the following official declaration on the subject:

"The notices which have appeared hitherto in the foreign press in regard to the Hill affair have originated in the erroneous impression that it was intended by Berlin to recall the approval given here last autumn to Hill's appointment. This has never been thought of. It is true that doubts subsequently arose to whether Hill would feel himself comfortable in the post of American ambassador to Berlin, but these doubts have been removed, so that nothing stands in the way of Hill's nomination to the Berlin embassy and he will be welcome in Berlin now, as he would have been before, or as any other unobjectionable representative would be who should be named by President Roosevelt.

"It is to be stated emphatically that throughout the whole incident the ambassador, Mr. Tower, has not swerved for one instant from the straight line of absolutely loyal and honorable conduct, both toward his own government and the imperial German government."

For the last forty-eight hours Baron Von Sternburg, the German ambassador at Washington, has been in the closest touch with the foreign office and has cabled fully concerning the matter. He described the need of a speedy arrangement of the affair and President Roosevelt's difficulties in meeting the emperor's inclination and furthermore, the unpleasant effect the whole controversy was having upon American public opinion.

The German foreign office since Saturday morning has sent a number of lengthy dispatches to the emperor at Venice, through Baron Jenisch, the representative of the foreign office, who is with the emperor.

As soon as a definite statement of the emperor's wishes was received by Foreign Secretary Von Schoen, the secretary and Ambassador Tower had a long conference at the foreign office, at which the entire subject was gone over. On the conclusion of the conference Von Schoen cabled the foregoing statement to the German ambassador at Washington and complete additional explanations. Ambassador Tower also cabled to the state department the fullest details of what had been done.

The aim of the German foreign office is to close the incident in a manner satisfactory to the president and the people of the United States. At first the foreign office, which is sensitive on any question relating to the emperor, was inclined to believe that a general denial of the statement that the emperor had declined to receive Hill as American ambassador might quiet the situation, pending a leisurely settlement. But it was evident from Von Sternburg's dispatches on Friday and Saturday that public opinion, as well as the American government, required some adequate and definite solution.

It is certain that if Hill comes to Berlin as the American ambassador he will be most cordially welcomed and will be given every attention by the emperor and the German government. It is thought in Berlin that the emperor's original purpose was merely to show friendly solicitude concerning American representation.

May Hasten Tower's Departure

Washington, March 30.—Probably the immediate effect of the change of front at Berlin will be to bring about a change in the American representation at the embassy at a much earlier date than was contemplated. Mr. Tower had signified a desire to relinquish his post next August, and it would not be surprising if, in view of these later developments, the change should occur much sooner.

There has never been the slightest doubt in diplomatic circles here of the accuracy of the first announcement that Hill was not fully acceptable to Emperor William, who is known to be of a warm, impulsive and sympathetic temperament, and it was readily understood that he could permit his feeling of personal friendship for Tower and his wife to sway him to the extent of being ready to look with disfavor upon their displacement.

WATER RATES

Milton Makes A Reduction But Has Very Low Maximum

When the annual water bills are distributed next week, says the Milton Record, householders in Milton will find that the water commissioners have made good the prediction contained in their annual report that on the first of April they would again be able to reduce the price of water. The minimum prices of the new bills are $14 for premises with more than one fixture and $7 for premises of only one fixture. The reductions are respectively $1 and 50 cents.

A year ago the price was reduced from $16 to $15 and from $8 to $7.50. No change is made in the amount of water allowed.

At the $14 rate the allowance is 4,800 cubic feet or 35,904 gallons, which amounts to about three barrels of water a day. At the $7 rate the allowance is 2,400 cubic feet or 17,952 gallons.

The charges for water used in excess of the allowance remain the same. The reduction is made possible by various causes among them economical local administration and the new law which puts the larger part of the cost on a basis of consumption.

On the records of the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage board Milton still holds the place of honor among the eighteen cities and towns in the district as the lowest per capita per day consumer of water. According to a statement from the board that was received recently by Superintendent Heffernan of the water department, Milton's per capita per day consumption during the month of February was only 36 gallons, eight lower than Malden, which was the second smallest water user. Milton's average for February was ten gallons less than the town's average for the year 1907.

Other small users of water, figured on a per capita per day basis, were Watertown, 53; Lexington, 56; Belmont, 57, and Swampscott, 69.

Boston used the largest amount of water during February, its per capita per day figure being 179. Chelsea was second with 120, Stoneham used 116 and Winthrop 110.

The effect of the introduction of the meter system in Melrose appears in the drop of the per capita per day consumption from 118 gallons during 1907 to 102 gallons in February.

During the month of February, Milton used a total of 271,100 gallons of water a day ,against 291,000 for the corresponding month last year.

The Daily Ledger notes that Quincy is not among the heavy consumers, or among the small consumers which are chiefly residential towns. Boston's per capita is on the increase, but under the new law her assessment was less in 1907.

The new rate of Milton would cost Quincy families who use 60,000 gallons per year (the Quincy minimum) more than they now pay ,as $14 for 35,904 gallons is equivalent to over $22 for 60,000 gallons.

It is very probable that most of the Milton water takers are charged for excess water, so that after all their water rates are not less than Quincy, except those who scrimp.

FIFTY-EIGHT MINERS KILLED

Brave Men Who Went to Rescue Comrades Perished In Explosion

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 30.—A carefully prepared list of the missing as a result of the two explosions in a mine of the Union Pacific Coal company contains fifty-eight names. Before further attempt at recovering the dead can be made the fire in the tenth level, which was the direct cause of the two explosions, must be extinguished. The explosions were due to gases and coal dust.

The first explosion killed eighteen miners, including a superintendent and three bosses. The second explosion occurred five hours later, costing the lives of forty rescuers, including State Mine Inspector Elie.

The names of the men killed in the first explosion are shown on the company's books, but those of the rescuers are not known, as no record was kept of those who volunteered for this dangerous work.

The wildest excitement prevails in Hanna and at the mine, where hundreds of persons are congregated, including widows, children and other relatives of the victims. Men, women and children are running about wringing their hands and crying.

Fire started in the colliery a week ago. Since that time attempts at regular intervals have been made to extinguish the blaze. Superintendent Briggs, with seventeen experienced hands, went into the mine to fight the fire, which finally reached the gas, a terrific explosion resulting.

In a few minutes many men volunteered to enter the mine to rescue any possible survivors. After a long struggle the volunteers got well into the mine. Those on the surface had begun to expect results from the interpid daring of the rescuers, but the camp was soon startled by a second explosion that partly shut off the shaft of the mine. The victims were all below the tenth level and it is likely the flames have consumed the corpses.

Campaign of Murder

Telluride, Col., March 30.—As a result of an attempt to murder General Wells, general manager of the Smuggler-Union mines at Pandora, Sheriff Fitzpatrick is taking precaution to guard the jail in which Steve Adams, charged with the assassination of Arthur L. Collins, Wells' predecessor, as mine manager, is confined. The feeling against Adams is becoming more bitter every day. He is supposed to represent the element among the miners that believes in violence against mineowners.

Policeman Commits Murder

Philadelphia, March 30.—George Eells, aged 60, shot and instantly killed Mrs. Mary Andress, a neighbor, and probably fatally injured Ella Paschall, his alleged common-law wife, and Kate Jewel, a niece of Mrs. Andress. Domestic troubles are said to have been responsible for the tragedy. Eells is a policeman with a record of twenty-three years' continuous service. Eells was arrested by a brother officer. He said he was not sorry for what he had done.

Political Situation In Portugal

Lisbon, March 30.—The elections which are soon to be held are beginning to excite some interest, the various parties being busily engaged in organizing for the campaign. The loyalist press invites its adherents to support the government because under the present circumstances it represents law and order. Bernadino Machado, the Republican leader, declares the horror of the tragedy of Feb. 1 will soon wear off and that discontent will return.

Japan's Mission In Korea

Tokio, March 30.—General Okazaki, commanding the Japanese troops in Korea, returned to Tokio today. In an interview with The Associated Press he said: "The people of Korea are beginning to understand Japan's beneficent intentions. We shall actively pursue the remaining insurgents, who are merely robbers and murderers undeserving of sympathy."

Murder and Robbery on Train

Newton, Kan., March 30.—Two robbers murdered O. A. Bailey, an express messenger, in the express car of a train between Florence and Newton, robbed both the local and through safes, taking at least $1000 and some jewelry, and escaped. There was no evidence of any struggle. The probability is that the murder was committed while Bailey was asleep.

Cruiser Damaged by Grounding

Washington, March 30.—A dispatch from Commander Hood of the cruiser Tacoma says that that vessel ran aground while entering the harbor of Willemstad, Curacao. The Tacoma was soon pulled off and has been ordered to sail for Norfolk navy yard for repairs.

CAREFULLY PLANNED

Burglars Blew Up Safe In Third Story of Building

SECURED A VALUABLE HAUL

First Broke into Nearby Building and Gained Access to Scene of Operation by Placing a Ladder Across a Six-Foot Alley

Woonsocket, R. I., March 30.—Professional safe-blowers, armed with nitro-glycerine, vaseline and soap, blew a safe in the third story office of the J. M. McCarthy Dry Goods company on Main street and secured $2000 in money, three check books and valuable papers, and effected their escape without leaving a clue behind.

The work of the burglars was most sensational. They entered a block adjoining that of the dry goods house, walked up to the third floor and forced an entrance to the tailor shop of T. Buckley. Opening the window of the shop, they placed a ladder across the six-foot alley which divided the building from that of the dry goods house, rested it on the window of the office of McCarthy and, climbing across, forced the window of the McCarthy office.

Three stories above the street and safely back from the front of the building the men took their time at the work, apparently, and drilled many holes about the combination on the office safe. After the holes were bored nitroglycerine was introduced and held in place by vaseline and the cracks about the door were tamped with soap.

The charge being exploded, the burglars found the proceeds of the Saturday sales easily available and secured nearly $2000 in bills and coin and took the check books and some other papers of special value to the owner. Returning by the way they came the men gathered up fine clothes, valued at $150, from the tailor shop and made their escape.

The burglary was not made known until late Sunday, when Charles Buckley, son of T. Buckley, entered his father's shop and discovered the place had been entered and robbed. Looking across the alley, he discovered the open window in the McCarthy store and saw the damage which had been done there. The police were notified and completed the investigation.

Detectives have been placed on the case and the matter will be followed up closely. The McCarthy firm is covered by burglar insurance and Boston detectives will take up the case in connection with the local authorities.

Gillette Pays Death Penalty

Auburn, N. Y., March 30.—Chester Gillette was executed in the electric chair this morning at Auburn prison for the murder of Grace Brown in Big Moose lake in 1906. The news that Governor Hughes finally declined to interfere to stay the execution was received here late last night and was communicated to Gillette, who heard the words that took away his only hope for life with the same stoicism and indifference that has marked his conduct during and since his trial.

May Resort to Politics

Boston, March 30.—The issues between the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad and the men of the mechanical trades employed by the road over the introduction of the piecework and bonus system will be made a state issue, according to Thomas L. Wilson, international vice president of the Machinists' union, who presented the union's side of the controversy before a mass meeting of the New Haven road employes here last night.

Red Flags Were Prohibited

Paris, March 30.—The body of the late Gregory Gerschunin, the Russian terrorist leader, who died recently in Switzerland, was buried yesterday in Mont Parnasse cemetery in a grave purchased by Russian exiles in Paris. Four thousand persons followed the hearse. A large force of police preserved order and prevented the display of red flags and the singing of revolutionary songs.

Move of Porto Rican Labor

San Juan, P. R., March 30.—Delegates of 110 unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, in convention here, adopted a resolution looking to the establishment of a corporative organization to be capitalized at $10,000, to compete with the building contractors. Funds will be raised for this purpose by imposing a tax of 1 cent daily on 4000 members for ten months.

Troops Guard Mining Town

Juneau, Alaska, March 30.—Company F. Tenth infantry, arrived at Treadwell on the army steamer Peterson, with orders to aid the local marshals. The arrival of the troops was unexpected. A number of arrests of miners for carrying revolvers have been made. A peace committee of the union is keeping a strict patrol of the town.

Mass Sung by Chinese Priest

New York, March 30.—The first high mass ever sung in this country by a Chinese priest was celebrated yesterday in the Church of Our Lady of Grace, in Hoboken, by Rev. Peter Chang, who came here from Europe last week. Nearly 3000 persons attended the services. Father Chang was born thirty years ago in China.

WHITNEY'S PREFERENCE

Bay State Democratic Leader Comes Out For Johnson

Boston, March 30.—The Post says: Commenting on the canvass made by The Post regarding the choice of a presidential candidate as between William J. Bryan and Governor Johnson, Henry M. Whitney, the former candidate for governor on the Democratic ticket last fall, came out unequivocably yesterday in favor of the nomination of Johnson.

This creates no little havoc among the leaders of the Bryan movement, especially in view of the fact that when Bryan was last in Boston, about a year ago, he and Whitney had many private conferences. It was then judged that Whitney was an 18-carat Bryan man, although he did not say so officially.

In The Post canvass Bryan had a majority of 19 over Johnson, although of all the cards received, 216, Bryan fell short of a plurality of the votes. These facts were called to the attention of Whitney last night, and without any hesitation he dictated the following statement:

"In my opinion Governor Johnson is the best man that the Democrats can apparently nominate, as is evident from the report of the Boston Post."

Fresh Conspiracy In Hayti

Port Au Prince, March 30.—A fresh conspiracy against the government has been discovered in this city. The leader of the plot, General Larraque, former chief of cavalry, took refuge yesterday afternoon in the French legation with two other officers. The police have set a careful watch on all the legations to intercept other conspirators. The palace guards have been doubled. The United States cruiser Des Moines and the gunboats Marietta and Paducah are now at Port Au Prince.

Actor Kills Actress and Self

St. Paul, March 30.—William D. Trainor, 30 years old, a vaudeville actor, and Mrs. William P. Pryor, an actress, 35 years old, were found shot to death in their apartments at the Clarendon hotel. A letter found in the room was full of promises and had been sent by Trainor to Mrs. Pryor before she left her husband. A supposed quarrel and business reverses, the police believe, caused Trainor to shoot Mrs. Pryor and himself.

Doctor Saw Real Halo

Paris, March 30.—As a sequel to the recent discovery of M. Dumas, an eminent French savant, that the "odor of sanctity" is a scientific fact, Dr. Fere of the Bicetre hospital has just published a treatise in which he proves that the halo ordinarily attributed to saints actually exists in nature. The patient, a prey to an overwhelming emotion, suddenly had not only his head but his hands surrounded by a peculiar orange light.

Steamer Badly Battered

Boston, March 30.—Four days overdue in a voyage from Havana, steamer Russian Prince was towed into port, having been buffeted by heavy seas which caused considerable damage aboard ship and crippled so as to be unable to proceed while off Boston light by an explosion in the boiler room which came near causing the death of a fireman. The steamer carried 750,000 gallons of molasses.

Gompers Calls For Protest

New York, March 30.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor has urged organized labor in this city to protest against the recent court decisions unfavorable to labor and to adopt resolutions calling upon representatives in congress to vote for the amendment to the Sherman law exempting the labor unions from the provisions of the law.

Denunciation of Roosevelt

Chicago, March 30.—W. D. Haywood, for many years secretary of the Western Federation of Miners, yesterday denounced President Roosevelt, Governor Gooding of Idaho and other public officers at a mass meeting of Socialists. Resolutions were adopted protesting against the use of troops in the strike of miners in Alaska.

Large National Bank Reopens

Kansas City, March 30.—With its credit restored, with $6,000,000 in cash and exchange with which to pay a deposit account of $12,000,000, and with financiers of national prominence in charge, the National Bank of Commerce reopened today, four months after it was closed by the comptroller of the currency.

Noted Temperance Worker Dead

Somerville, Mass., March 30.—Mrs. Eliza T. Hill, for many years prominent in the work of the Women's Christian Temperance Union and as a member of the society of King's Daughters, died last night at her home here of an organic disease. She was 68 years old. Mrs. Hill was formerly active in the woman suffrage movement.

To Leave Supreme Bench

New York, March 30.—Justice Leventritt of the supreme court has tendered his resignation, to take effect May 1. Leventritt is to return to the active practice of law. He took his seat on Jan. 1, 1899, and his term did not expire for five years.

Ice Leaves the Kennebec

Bath, Me., March 30.—The Kennebec river has opened to navigation from Augusta to the sea. This is the earliest the ice has left for years. The date a year ago was April 15.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

March came in like a lion. Will it go out like a lamb?

The annual meeting of the Granite City club be held April 11.

The monthly dinner of the Knockers' club is scheduled for this week.

The gypsy moth seekers were all over Atlantic Monday clipping all suspicious nests from the trees.

Saturday, Sept. 5, has been selected as the date for the open race of the Squantum Yacht club.

Money deposited at the Quincy Savings bank on or before April 7, will draw interest from April 1.

Peter T. Fallon is rushing work on his bridge across Town river, and says it will be completed within the time limit.

Mrs Lydia C. Holtman, who has been passing the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Eckert, at Newport News, Va., arrived home on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gassett, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Hall of Newbury avenue, have returned to Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Rev. D. M. Wilson of Northfield, who preached at the Wollaston Unitarian church Sunday morning was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Litchfield.

It is expected that the street railway will commence work on its double track location on Hancock street and is extending its line to the Fore River this week.

The cake and candy sale given in Memorial church last week was a financial success and was followed by an original concert given by the young people.

Charles Bankart of Webster street has purchased a house in Highland, Mass., and will soon take up his residence in his new quarters. Mr. and Mrs. Bankart have been very popular during their stay in Atlantic.

To drive away the blues, or if you are happy and wish to increase that happiness, spend an evening this week at the Scenic enjoying the very funny moving pictures, and listening to high-class vocalists in the best illustrated songs.

The closing exercises of the Y. M. C. A. Evening school will be held tonight at the Association building. H. G. Smith, manager of the Fore River Company, will make the address. Certificates for work done will be presented to students.

Ex-Commodore Sawyer of the Squantum Yacht club has sold the prize wining yacht Eleanor to Frank Hughes of New Jersey. Mr. Hughes will take the Eleanor to his summer home at Falmouth Heights, and race her at Buzzards Bay this summer.

"Under the Canopy," by J. C. Dunn of Quincy, was finely rendered at the Union Congregational church, South Weymouth, on Sunday by Miss Ethel Shaw, accompanied on the organ by Prof. Wrigley. The harmony was magnificent. This is one of the grandest solos ever writen.

Representatives from Quincy were present Sunday at the meeting of the Boston journeymen horseshoers.

The extra attraction at the Scenic this week is the Sillbers, high-class vocal duet, in selections from Il Trovatore and others.

Diphtheria is reported to be on the increase in South Braintree. There are now nearly fifty cases. Most of the cases are in families supplied by one milkman.

Mrs. Henry Shaw (Emma Stenzel) went abroad with her husband in January last and has made considerable of a tour of foreign lands. She will return home the first of April.

Again Quincy is outside the Metropoliton district. This city is not included in the sixteen telephone exchanges where the Massachusetts Highway Commission recommend that telephone talks be cut from ten to five cents.

Rev. Eber E. Craig preached a farewell sermon on Sunday at Bethany Congregational church, from the text "The Pilgrimage of Christian Souls." He said he would carry away many pleasant memories of his work in Quincy as assistant pastor and superintendent of the Bible school. He leaves this week for Edgartown.

Quincy was represented in the annual entertainment of the Boston Federation of Young Peoples' Religious Unions at Whiton hall, Dorchester on Saturday evening by Miss Minnie Hardwick, who gave a reading which was most favorably received. She read with most delicate shading of the light and the sympathetic, receiving a hearty encore as well as congratulations after the entertainment. Dancing followed the entertainment, Weston's orchestra of Wollaston furnishing the music.

South Quincy Assault Case

Chief Burrell placed Hannah Hanson and Ethel Mason under arrest Sunday for assault on Hans Hanson. Hanson does not live with his wife, but she has an arrangement to see the children. Saturday night Mrs. Hanson and the Mason woman came to Hanson's house on Trafford street and asked to see the children.

According to Hanson's story the women came into the house and used bad language, and he ordered them out. At the same time he pushed them out of the door. As he did so Mrs. Hanson fell over some rugs. The two women then went into the yard and the Mason woman picked up the rake and struck him over the head, and his wife followed by giving him a blow on the nose.

In court the Mason woman testified that Hanson struck his wife in the back, and that he took her by the throat and threw her on the floor and stepped on her. Then she interfered and was also struck. Mrs. Hanson testified that her husband struck her first.

Busy Day at Court

There was a large amount of business before the district court this morning, and long before the hour for the court to come in, the court room was crowded. Every available seat in the spectators room was taken and the prisoners' cage was full. In the corridor and on the stairs was a large crowd anxious to get in. There was such a jam that those having business with the court were unable to get into the building at all. Then it was that Court Officer Marden got busy, and all who could not find seats were forced into the street. They moved slow, however, and it was only under threats of arrest that the room was cleared.

Horse Sense and Streets.

The following communication appeared in the Boston Record on Saturday:

To the Editor of the Record: Your remarks about the absence of watering carts was most timely. I went from dust-stricken Boston to Quincy on a business trip and found the streets there cool-looking and wet. City watering carts were doing a summer day business. I asked a city official how it was done, since the watering schedule does not go into effect till April 15. He said city employees were paid so much a day, the city owned horses and watering carts, and it was just as easy to allow a city employee to earn his day's pay driving a watering cart as it was to make him dig all day. A little application of horse sense gave Quincy clean streets, while Boston sniffed tuberculi-loaded dust. L. A. P.

Mrs. C. H. Winslow.

Mrs. Ellen F. Winslow, widow of Mr. Charles H. Winslow, passed away early this morning at her home on Edwards street, aged 69 years. Mrs. Winslow was a most excellent woman and for many years had been an active worker in the Universalist church. Some weeks ago she sustained a shock of paralysis, since which time she has been confined to her bed. She leaves three sons: Charles A. of Canton, W. Austin of Brockton and Harry E. of Quincy.

Governor Guild As an Example

Rev. E. W. Hunt spoke before a large audience in Porter hall, Boston, Sunday, on "The Simplicity of Religious Healing." In the course of his talk, as an example the power of mind over matters, which represents an important element in the questions of religious healing, he cited as a vivid illustration the progressive improvement of Gov. Guild. He said:

"A week ago, the people of the state were deeply moved with feelings of the gravest anxiety; today they are rejoicing in the extended hope of a possible recovery. There can be no doubt that the splendid power of mind possessed by Gov. Guild has greatly aided the skill of the physicians in making possible the improvement in which we are all rejoicing. One of the greatest and most wonderful powers of the mind is its search for truth. The desire of the healthy mind for truth is insatiable."

Engineers' Strike Is Expected

A dispatch from Barre, Vt., states that the engineers' union has made a settlement with granite manufacturers on the old basis for a term of three years.

There is no sign of a settlement in Quincy with the engineers, whose demand was an increase of the minimum wage from $17 to $20 per week. A strike is expected on Wednesday, April 1.

At Rockport the engineers are still out on a strike. The bosses seek a renewal of the old contract for three years, but the men desire an increase in wages if that is insisted upon.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

Commander B. T. Walling, general inspector of equipment on the Atlantic coast, with headquarters at Washington, has been ordered to the works of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company at Quincy, to continue his duties in connection with the Birmingham.

The torpedo boat flotilla arrived at Acapulco, on the west coast of Mexico on Saturday.

At Lawrence on Saturday the Fore River association football team won from the Methuens by the score of 6 to 3. Three of the goals were made by Fleming and one each by Smith, J. McDonald and D. McDonald.

Boys Meeting.

The boys meeting at the Y. M. C. A., Sunday was a great success, though there was not a great crowd. The boys who attended the Lynn State Conference were the speakers, in fact they furnished nearly the entire program. Chester Gurney, presided. Three violins and piano furnished the music in connection with the song service. J. Barraja Frauenfelder rendered three vocal selections which added much to the service. The speakers were Lee Brooks, Stanley Sherman, Everett Rhodes and Albert Coffin. They brought to the boys a strong message from the Conference, the motto of which was "Be a Friend."

Serious Charge.

Chester Brown, aged 18 years, employed by Luigi Restelli as a bookkeeper, was arrested Saturday afternoon on a warrant charging him with the larceny of money from Restelli through raised checks. He was arraigned in court, and the case continued.

Protest on Merger.

Charles H. Hanscom and Harry Marr of the Central Labor Union, and Domenic Alessandro, Italian organizer of Quincy, entered a protest against the Merger and a demand for a referendum on it if the Legislature acted favorably, at the meeting of the executive board of the State branch A. F. of L. on Sunday in Boston.

Whist at Wollaston.

The Wolaston Whist club held its final meeting of the season Saturday evening, and J. T. Fuller and C. E. Parker were the winners. The score:

C. E. Barker and J. T. Fuller	plus 6 2-3
V. S. Brokaw and A. B. Hillman,	plus 3 1-3
J. H. Slade and C. B. Hoxie,	plus 2 2-3
E. E. Hoxie and G. R. Thompson,	plus 2-3
A. C. Littlefield and J. J. Henry,	minus 3 1-3
H. A. Stevens and R. T. Anthony,	minus 4 2-3
J. A. Hamilton and J. Y. Hamilton	minus 5 1-3

—Several cases of diphtheria and scarlet fever are reported at Neponset.

Get Well Free.

Have You Had the Medicine That Will Positively Cure You of Your Ill and Which is Given Away Absolutely Free at the Store of Clyde T. Cox? If Not, Waste No Time. Call at once.

We announced a few days ago that we would give away 1000 packages of ELBA HOME REMEDIES, at the at the store of CLYDE T. COX. This well-known druggist has been besieged by hundreds of sufferers who are desirous of restoration to health. The number of packages that are to be distributed free are going fast. If you are ill, don't waste time. Join the throng already on the road that leads to health and happiness. It won't cost you a cent.

OUR REASON FOR THIS FREE DISTRIBUTION: Is to prove the efficacy of Elba Home Remedies. We know positively that each of these remedies will cure the ill for which it is intended. So great is our faith that we are willing at an enormous expense to prove our convictions by giving absolutely free to all in this city who are suffering a full size package of the remedy their ill requires.

HOW TO GET A PACKAGE: Look over the list of the Elba Home Remedies printed below. If you find one among them for the ill from which you are suffering, fill out the coupon and present it at the store of Clyde T. Cox. In return for the same you will be given at our expense one full size package of Elba Home Remedies that will positively cure you.

BECAUSE OF THE MERITS OF ELBA HOME REMEDIES WE PROFIT IN THE END: Simply because Elba Home Remedies are bona-fide pharmaceutical preparations that are the discoveries of eminent physicians and will positively cure, we are enabled to make the astounding offer that we are now extending to the public.

A single package proves the efficacy of these wonderful preparations. When you have become convinced that they actually have merit and did you good, we have accomplished our purpose. The intelligent thinking public will forever after buy and recommend Elba Home Remedies. The bread which we thus cast upon the waters, at an enormous expense will thus come back to us in the future, and Elba Home Remedies will have the proud distinction of relieving more suffering in this city than any other remedies.

ELBA HOME REMEDIES ARE NOT "CURE-ALS." Bear this in mind. Each Elba Home Remedy is a prescription discovered and used daily in his practice by a specialist.

All are intended to cure and each positively accomplishes that which it is intended to do in every instance namely, cure one disease only. The remedy that is intended for liver troubles will not cure catarrh and should not be taken for anything but a disordered liver. This is logical. This is the reason why physicians recommend and endorse these preparations.

Besides being special cures for individual ills, Elba Home Remedies differ from patent medicines and "shotgun" prescriptions in the fact that the formula of each is printed in full and plainly on the package. You know exactly what you are taking. You can show it to your doctor and he will recognize the fact that it is a wonderful and beneficial combination of curative properties.

OUR REASONS FOR BEING SO CANDID: At an expense of thousands of dollars and much time we have collected a wonderful set of prescriptions that will cure certain ills. We publish the formula of each one of the Elba Home Remedies on the package. You can have our prescription put up by any druggist if you care to do so. You can also talk to your own physician about the efficacy of the preparation. We believe this is a wise course to take because it secures your confidence and because we have an enormous factory and buy the drugs, barks and herbs of which the Elba Home Remedies are composed in huge quantities, we are enabled to compound them in a more economical scientific manner than it would be possible for any individual druggist to so do in preparing a single prescription, What is more, on account of the wholesale manner in which we conduct our business we are enabled to put these remedies up at a less expense to you than any druggist would be able to fill a single prescription.

Please don't wait; the number of free packages we propose to distribute, will soon be gone. Accept our invitation. Call at once. Fill out the coupon below, get the remedy which you believe you need for the ill from which you are now suffering. Do this much and you will ever afterwards be a friend of ELBA HOME Remedies.

AGAINST EXPERTS

Minority of City Council Prevent Passage Of the Order

A sharp and interesting debate on the order appropriating money permitting the Mayor to employ expert engineers on the abolitions of grade crossings, characterized the special meeting of the City Council Monday evening, and prolonged the session until after 9 o'clock. There were but three items in the call and the first two were quickly transacted. Councilmen Bishop and Moir were absent.

President Hobbs read the call.

JURORS.

The Mayor, City Clerk and Councilman McGilvray drew the following jurors:

Grand Jurors,—John Harkins.

Traverse Jurors—Michael Batts, James F. Edwards, Charles A. Furbush, William L. Peck, Howard D. Spear, Stephen B. Little.

GAS MAINS.

Order number 64 granting permission to the Citizens' Gas Light Co., to lay mains took its second reading, and upon motion of Councilman Ferguson the rules were suspended.

Councilman Gilson wanted a little light. This was a valuable franchise and was a serious question. This company had acquired the rights of the old company and he desired to know if there were any streets in this order in which mains had been laid by the old company.

Councilman Ferguson replied that as far as he knew these were all new locations.

Councilman Gilson then asked of the Commissioner if all permits granted in other years had been laid, to which the Commissioner replied all but a very small portion.

Councilman Gilson then enquired if the Commissioner could compel the Gas Co., to lay mains in streets that he was resurfacing, to which the commissioner replied he had no authority to do so.

Councilman Gilson then desired to offer an amendment that there should be no second location on the same streets and asked that the amendment be adopted and that he be allowed to submit his amendment in writing later in the evening.

The President ruled that the amendment must be presented at the present time in writing.

The order was passed, Councilman Gilson alone voting no.

GRADE CROSSINGS.

The Finance Committee reported a substitute order for the $5,000 one, appropriating $1,500 for an expert engineer to advise as to the best plan for abolishing the grade crossings.

The report was accepted.

Councilman Bryant was called to the chair.

President Hobbs taking the floor moved to strike out the enacting clause of the order. He believed an expert should be employed, but thought the Mayor had sufficient money. No City Engineer had been appointed this year, and this money which was accumulating could be used by transfer. He did not believe in borrowing money for current expenses.

Councilman Walsh opposed. The Finance committee went into this matter thoroughly. It was important that we should have an expert.

Councilman Whiton favored the motion. A motion made at one of the public hearings, to ask for $1,000 for an expert, was voted down. He believed the Mayor, Commissioner and City Solicitor had brains enough without employing an expert. This Commission is to look out for the best interests of the community. The public hearings held have been a farce.

Councilman Teasdale hoped amendment would not prevail. Railroad has the best of engineers. We need an expert that can figure. It would save the city.

Councilman Broughton favored the amendment. He wanted the Council to take a stand on the question.

Councilman Whiton—The Commission will do just as the railroad wants, no matter how many experts we have.

Councilman Gelotte opposed amendment. It was shown in the committee meeting that it was most important to have expert advice.

Councilman Falconer favored the appropriation. It was absolutely necessary to have an expert.

Councilman Walsh thought it strange, after the unanimous report of the committee. It was shown then an expert was absolutely necessary.

Councilman Whiton—If we do have an expert it will not prevent these pet plans being presented.

Councilman Cherrington wanted to hear from the Mayor.

Mayor Shea said he believed it for the best interests of the city to have a consulting engineer. It was a good thing to have a man who could tell us what is what and be able to give estimates. We need an expert and in my opinion we should have this money. I should not be expected to find a City Engineer at $1200 per year to compete with the high salaried railroad engineers.

Councilman Hobbs—My only difference with the Mayor is, where the money is coming from. Did not believe in borrowing money for current expenses when we already have money that is available. If the Mayor says he is to appoint a City Engineer that would be different. When that amount is used he can come to the Council for more if he needs it.

Councilman Walsh without an expert man likely to have to pay thirty per cent. instead of ten per cent.

In reply to a question by Councilman Whiton, as to the duties of the Commission, City Solicitor McAnarney said it was to consider plans brought

Granite Manufacturers Refuse to Accept Work of Council Claiming Illegality

A long and important meeting of the Granite Manufacturers' Association was held Monday evening, at which the recent decision of the National Executive Board relative to the Quincy situation was discussed. The matters submitted to this board were the four questions upon which the two local committees were unable to agree.

The principal of these questions was in regard to the open shop. The finding of the National executive committee on the four questions was against the Quincy Association, and in the opinion of the Quincy manufacturers they were stung.

The council met in Boston last week, and after a session lasting 36 hours the council in every case decided in favor of the cutters. This decision makes it impossible for the manufacturers to employ any cutter who is not a member of the union. In the first place, the manufacturers claim if this is lived up to, they would be liable to a suit for damages by refusing employment to a man simply because he was not a member of the union.

The council that met in Boston was composed of William S. Alexander of Barre, Vt., Charles H. Rogers of Rockport, and James Gourley of Westerly. Mr. Gourley was ill and he sent his son in law D. L. McLarren to represent the manufacturers. The cutters were represented on the council by James Duncan, A. C. Smith and Thomas Johnson.

It was voted before deliberations were commenced that a majority vote should rule. In every case it is claimed Mr. Alexander voted with the cutters, and therefore the Quincy Association was out generaled at every point.

The Quincy manufacturers claim that the finding is not binding, the claim being made from the fact that Mr. Alexander had no authority to set on the board. They claim that Mr. Alexander is not a member of the national executive committee, and not even a member of the manufacturers' association, and therefore his vote was invalid.

After a long discussion, the manufacturers voted that it be the sense of the meeting that the settlement is illegal, and that the dispute be referred to the local executive committee of the association to determine if the decision of the executive council is binding.

After the meeting of the association the executive committee went into executive session with its legal counsel, and another lengthy meeting was held. Just what transpired is not given out. While it is not thought that the local association will withdraw from the national association, it is thought that they will not accept the decision of the executive council, and that a lockout will be declared.

This morning the situation in Quincy did not look as rosy as it did, and the indications are that there may be trouble.

Many of the local manufacturers believe that Mr. Alexander acting for the Barre manufacturers took the opportunity that was presented to get back at the Quincy association.

Popular Engineer.

"Pete" Horrigan, engineer at the A. M. Dean & Co's. granite plant at South Quincy, is popular with the fifty odd employees, and Monday noon they attested the regard in which they hold him by pleasantly surprising him in the engine room. Every department of the trade was represented, from office help to tool boy. They took possession of "Pete's" quarters and at first he thought that they were to turn some trick on him.

"Pete" is never aggressive, but he didn't know just what to do, until Daniel Scully stepped from the crowd and in a few well chosen remarks presented him with a valuable meerschaum pipe in case.

It was up to him to respond, and it was some little time before he could get himself together. When he recovered the power of speech he was profuse in his thanks for the generosity of his brother employes.

FAKE STORY

Belief of Many Relative to Alleged Robbery And Shooting

According to the story he told himself Monday night, David Larribee, aged 21 years, residing at Germantown, was held up on Wharf street near the street railway power house, last night, robbed of $43, and shot twice, one shot taking effect in his leg, and the other passing through his hat.

Larribee's story is that he started for home from the Fore River about 11 o'clock, walking toward the power station, where he was to take a boat and row across the river to Germantown. While on Wharf street, near Sheppard's coal wharf, two men jumped from behind a barn and grabbed him. While one held him the other took $43 from his poskets. They then told Larribee to face about and go home.

He turned about to see if the men had gone, and to get a look at them. As he did so, one of them turned and fired a shot at him, which passed through the fleshy part of the calf of his leg. This staggered him and Larribee fell. As he did so a second shot rang out the bullet passing through his hat.

After firing the shots the men ran toward the Quincy Point bridge, and disappeared toward Weymouth.

William Knapp, who was on Washington street, heard the shots and ran in the direction from which they came. He found Larribee and assisted him to the office of Dr. Middleton. The doctor was not at home, and Dr. Whiton was called. Then Dr. Middleton came and dressed the wound and Larribee was taken home.

Officer Thorne notified Chief Burrell, who called up the police of Weymouth and Hingham to look out for the men. Later, he and Officer Goodhue drove through Weymouth.

Larrbee could give but little discription of the men, other than they were large men, and were dressed in dark clothes and wore caps.

This morning an investigation of the spot where the alleged shooting took place was made and the revolver believed to be that from which the shots were fired was found buried in the sand. Leading from that was a trail of blood to the spot where Larribee was found.

Larribee still sticks to his story told Monday night, but there are many who have doubts about it, and think he could throw more light on the subject if he would.

The general impression about the vicinity is that Larribee did all the shooting himself, first blowing a hole through his hat and firing the second shot into the ground and that the bullet struck a stone, rebounded and entered his leg.

"ARGUMENT OF FEAR"

Only One Remaining Against Home Rule For Ireland

REDMOND'S MOTION ADOPTED

Victory For Nationalist Leader After Long Debate In House of Commons, In Which Acting Premier Asquith Defines His Position

London, March 31.—The house of commons last night, after a lengthy debate on the question of home rule for Ireland, adopted, by a vote of 313 to 157, a resolution moved by John E. Redmond, the Nationalist leader, that "in the opinion of this house a solution of this problem can only be attained by giving the Irish people legislative and executive control of all purely Irish affairs," after it had been amended by adding the words "all subject to the supreme authority of the imperial parliament."

It was known beforehand that the debate could have but an academic interest, because the government already had pledged that there would be no deal in the matter of home rule until it had been given a mandate at the general election. But the debate was made notable through the strong declaration of Chancellor Asquith, which was all the weightier because made at the moment Asquith was actually assuming the premiership.

In moving the resolution, Redmond put the home rule issue in uncompromising fashion. He declared that an overwhelming majority of the present house of commons always had professed their belief that the concession of home rule was the only solution of the Irish problem and that every member of the present government, at one time or another, had given public pledges to this same effect. He now proposed to put them on record and free the hands of the Liberal party and the government at the next elections, so as to make sure that there would be no repetition of the gratuitous pledges made by so many of the members at the last election not to introduce home rule during the life of the present parliament.

The only argument remaining against home rule, Redmond continued, was an argument of fear. It is said, he declared, that Ireland is disloyal; so was Canada in 1837 and so was General Botha until the Transvaal was given self-government. Redmond, in conclusion, asked the house to give Ireland what had been given the Frenchmen of Quebec and the Dutchmen of the Transvaal and thus close the blackest chapter in the history of the empire.

Chief Secretary for Ireland Birrell came out squarely in support of home rule, and declared there was not a man in the house of commons but knew that sooner or later there would be a very substantial modification in relations between Great Britain and Ireland. The imperial parliament, Birrell said, had not time to attend to the needs of Ireland; there were scores of vital measures requiring immediate and constant attention unless they were going to allow "something like hell" to prevail in Ireland. If the Nationalists should bring their proposals clearly before the people at the next general elections, Birrell said he believed the English electorate would rally to their help in solving the problem.

Mr. Balfour, in a brief speech, had accused his opponents of speaking with two meanings, a radical meaning and a nationalist meaning. He asked how it was conceivably possible to carry out great Irish reforms with British money except by a British parliament, and ironically challenged Asquith to clear up this ambiguity.

Amid ironical Unionist laughter, Asquith rose and said that never in his life had he felt less embarrassed. For over twenty years he himself and his colleagues had steadily and consistently advocated self-government for Ireland's purely local affairs. He held that opinion now as strongly as ever.

He could not, however, support Redmond's motion in its present form, because he found in it no explicit recognition of imperial supremacy, and, further, because no parliament would be justified in embarking on such a task unless the matter first had been submitted to the electorate. It would be a gross and inexcusable violation of their promises to do so in the lifetime of the present parliament. As far as the present parliament was concerned, he said, they had exhausted their powers in regard to the problem of Irish government in the Irish council's bill last year.

Timothy Healy closed the debate, declaring that Asquith was mistaken if he supposed he would commend himself to the Irish nation by his speech.

Earl Percy, on behalf of the Unionists, moved an amendment declaring the house to be unalterably opposed to the creation of an Irish parliament with a responsible executive, but the amendment was rejected.

Want Borough President Removed

Albany, March 31.—Charges against President Bermal of the borough of Queens, city of New York, have been filed with Governor Hughes by taxpayers of Queens borough. The charges allege "misconduct in office, incompetency, neglect, waste and violation of law in the administration of his office during the years 1906, 1907 and a portion of 1908." The petition asks for Bermal's removal.

Hard Times at Fitchburg

Fitchburg, Mass., March 31.—The works of the Iver Johnson Arms and Cycle company reduced their running time yesterday to five days a week. The company has 800 persons in its employ. With a general cutdown in cotton mill wages here yesterday, the reduction at the Boston and Maine shops, the slackness at machine shops, the paper mill curtailment and the curtailment of time at the woolen mills, business in Fitchburg is the dullest known for many years.

Minister's Certificate Surrendered

South Norwalk, Conn., March 31.—The council of the Fairfield County Baptist association convened in this city and heard charges of conduct unbecoming a minister preferred against Rev. Frank C. Brown and also, it is stated, Brown's confession of the truthfulness of the charges. By the unanimous vote of the council the hand of fellowship was withdrawn and Brown's certificate of ordination surrendered.

Young Wood Gatherers Killed

Provincetown, Mass., March 31.—Venturing inside the tottering walls of the half-burned Centenary Methodist Episcopal church in search of firewood, Joseph Oliver, aged 15, and Joseph Holmes, aged 12, were knocked down and killed when a portion of the ruins fell. Joseph Prada was badly cut about the head. It is believed that Prada will recover. No one else was hurt.

Wage Cut Not Favorably Received

Boston, March 31.—Employes of the Boston and Maine railroad state that the international brotherhoods and unions of trainmen are opposed to the acceptance by Boston and Maine engine and trainhands of a 5 percent cut in wages, on the ground that other railroads would follow the precedent set by asking the men to accept a reduction until July 1.

Knocked About by Gales

Boston, March 31.—After knocking about the coast for two weeks in an effort to beat into the harbor against adverse gales, the Norwegian bark Turist was towed into port and reported the loss of one man on Feb. 12. The Turist left Pasages, Spain, Feb. 8 in ballast and was expected here three weeks ago. She will load lumber for Buenos Ayres.

Bond Increased by Request

Boston, March 31.—The Preachers' Aid society of the New England Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church has increased the treasurer's bond to $20,000. Treasurer Dennis says that he made the request in view of the society's previous experience when Treasurer Allen, who, when unbonded, absconded with the permanent funds and annual contributions.

Says He Was Refused Food

New Haven, March 31.—The writ in the suit of Philip Thorne, a negro member of the Yale junior class, against a local restaurant keeper, in which the allegation is that he was refused food, has been returned and assignment made for trial of the case. Thorne says he is bringing the suit to determine his rights as a negro.

Guild Holding His Ground

Boston, March 31.—Governor Guild has passed another favorable day. He is resting comfortably and appears to hold his ground well. Unless there should be a change for the worse there will be only two bulletins issued daily hereafter.

Failure of Hotel Proprietors

Boston, March 31.—William F. Taylor and Mrs. Catherine F. Taylor, proprietors of the Hotel Tivoli, 558 Washington street, have filed a petition in bankruptcy. The liabilities are estimated at $21,500.

Ten Percent Wage Reduction

Warren, R. I., March 31.—Notices of a 10 percent reduction in wages, affecting 1900 hands, have been posted in the cotton manufacturing mills of the Warren, Cutler and Parker mills.

As to the Worm.

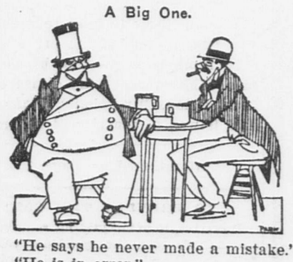
They tell us that the worm will turn
If by untoward events put to it,
Strike back at those who bruise its neck,
But did you ever see one do it,
Or any man that you have known?
Did ever yet a worm pursue him
And catch him in a block or two
And hand him what was coming to him?

Investigate and you will find
The whole thing is a superstition.
The worm may turn when on a hook,
But that's not of its own volition.
Of course it squirms around a bit,
But still the man who was discerning
Would know that antics of that sort
Could not be classified as turning.

'Tis true sometimes the human worm
May throw his left leg o'er the traces,
But mostly, when things don't go right,
He takes it out in making faces,
And as a very general thing
The turning of this lowly brother
When one cheek gets a stinging rap
Consists in turning up the other.

No; worms are not inclined to turn.
That is the nature of the creatures,
Although a man may tread on them
And to a jelly mash their features.
The only turning that they do,
If nothing happens, by and by,
Is, when they are the proper breed,
They turn into a butterfly.

A Big One.



"He says he never made a mistake."
"He is in error."
"Think so?"
"I know it; did it when he bragged about it."

A VETO ON GOSSIPS

Statement From White House Concerning the Hill Incident

NO OBJECTION FROM KAISER

Recognizes Diplomat's Fitness For Position of Ambassador and Will Welcome Him to Berlin--Rewards Are Not For Millionaires Alone

Washington, March 31.—With a view to bringing to a close the gossip connected with reported disapproval in Berlin of the appointment of David J. Hill as ambassador and terminating the incident, Baron Von Sternburg, the German ambassador, called at the White House last night, by appointment, to see President Roosevelt and Secretary Root. Assistant Secretary Bacon also was present. At the conclusion of the conference the following statement was given out:

"In addition to the communication already made public from the German foreign office, the German ambassador has also conveyed to the American government the assurance of the emperor that there has never been any change in his attitude towards Mr. Hill and his cordial willingness to welcome Mr. Hill to Berlin. The emperor's favorable opinion of Mr. Hill was communicated to the Washington administration last November, and his attitude has never changed since.

"Apparently some remarks in a casual conversation have been distorted by gossip and exaggerated by rumor so as to give a totally erroneous impression of the whole matter. The two governments have never shared this misunderstanding. The design of the president and the secretary of state in choosing Mr. Hill was to choose the man who, of all the men in the diplomatic service, was best fitted for this particular position—a position of the very first office in honor and responsibility, and one to which, therefore, it was deemed well to send a skilled diplomat, a student, a speaker, an author on international law, a learned German scholar, who had served with signal ability as assistant secretary of state under John Hay, and as foreign minister in two successive posts, the last of which he had rendered marked service in connection with The Hague peace conference. This purpose is, and always has been, fully appreciated by the emperor personally, and in Germany at large."

The nomination of Hill as ambassador to Germany will be sent to the senate today. No time has been fixed for the retirement of Ambassador Tower, but it is expected Hill will succeed him some time in May.

It is stated that the purpose of the administration has been to make it evident that the great diplomatic positions are not to be treated as positions to be held only by millionaires, but, so far as possible, as rewards for faithful service to the public in other positions. Thus the last four ambassadors appointed, Messrs. Riddle to Russia, Dudley to Brazil, O'Brien to Japan, and Hill to Germany, have all been men of moderate means, who in previous positions of lesser rank had shown especial fitness for the performance of the duties of the higher posts to which they were appointed.

The administration has been particularly anxious to have it made evident in the case of Hill, as in the case of the others mentioned, that the possession of merely moderate means was no bar to preferment to the highest position, and it is because of this feeling that it so deeply regrets the failure of congress to provide proper official residences for the ambassadors abroad.

It is stated that this failure militates directly in favor of the man of great wealth and against the man of smaller means, and both permits and causes such violent contrasts in the scale of expenditure of successive incumbents of the same office and fosters just such gossip and trouble as occurred in the present instance.

Feared For Our "Prestige"

Berlin, March 31.—The Vissische Zeitung publishes what it terms an explanation from an authoritative source of the "doubts" that arose in official quarters regarding the appointment of Hill to Berlin. "These doubts had nothing to do with Hill's personality," the paper says. "They arose solely from the purely external circumstance that Hill did not possess sufficient financial means to assume a position here in keeping with the rank of the United States as a world power."

The opinion was that America's prestige in Germany, the paper affirms, would suffer were not its ambassador in Berlin in a position to assert externally the high rank which his country holds among the nations.

No Objection From Kaiser

Venice, March 31.—Emperor William, before leaving for Corfu last night, said that a satisfactory settlement would be reached in connection with the appointment of David J. Hill as American ambassador to Berlin, as he had no personal objection to him.

A Far-Reaching "Whisper"

London, March 31.—All the London papers are now in possession of the latest phase of the Hill incident, but for the most part they refrain from comment. The Daily News, however, says that the emperor's whisper carries farther than the thunders of other men.

PECULIAR PROPERTIES OF NEW MEDICINE

Cooper Preparation Attracts Widespread Attention by Expelling Internal Parasites.

The interest created in leading cities during the past year by young Mr. Cooper with his new preparation, is largely accounted for by a peculiar quality possessed by this medicine, which he calls his New Discovery.

Mr. Cooper believes that internal parasites, or tapeworms, are responsible for much ill health, and it is an undoubted fact that his medicine has expelled immense numbers of these creatures in various cities visited by him. The young man also believes that stomach trouble is the main cause of all ill health. He claims that few can have poor health with a good digestion. He further claims that his New Discovery medicine does nothing but tone up the stomach, yet it not only expels the parasites, but relieves many other ailments not as a rule associated with stomach trouble.

Little Jessie Birdsall, daughter of Mrs. Ida Birdsall, living at 2138 Carroll Avenue, Chicago, is among many relieved of a large parasite by Mr. Cooper's preparation during his stay in that city. In speaking of the matter to Mr. Cooper, the mother said: "My child Jessie, who is fourteen years old, has been suffering with this trouble for over seven years. Until this morning we did not know what the trouble was. She was extremely nervous; the least little thing would upset her; her tongue was coated, and at times she would have a good appetite, then again could not bear the sight of food; she was restless at night, had a bad breath, especially when she got up of mornings. We tried everything to relieve her, but met with no success. We were just on the point of giving up trying anything else, when we began to read of Cooper's New Discovery. Several days ago we purchased this medicine. Jessie has been using it regularly, and this morning this parasite left her system. I don't wonder that she has always felt bad, and nothing we would give her seemed to relieve her. Now that she is relieved of this tapeworm I feel sure that she will grow better each day, and enjoy perfect health. Mr. Cooper, your medicine is worth a thousand times more than you charge for it. I know of a number of people troubled the same way as Jessie has been, and I certainly expect to tell them personally to try your medicine."

We would advise anyone who has been troubled for some time with general poor health to try this great medicine. We are agent for it in this city.

APOLOGY BY FORAKER

Follows His Introduction of Sensational Paper In Senate

PRINTED, THEN SUPPRESSED

Reflection Upon Integrity of Vice President and Members of Both Branches of Congress In "Loot and Ruin of Fur Seal Herd"

Washington, March 31.—Senator Foraker yesterday obtained leave to withdraw from the senate files a paper introduced by him on Wednesday last and printed as a public document, and the order yesterday carried with it the suppression of all the printed copies of the paper. The sensational character of the document still would be unknown had it not been for the fact that several copies were given out before it was suppressed.

The paper was prepared by Henry W. Elliott of Lakewood, O., and purported to be "The official record of the loot and ruin of the fur seal herd of Alaska."

It was stated in chronological order, beginning with 1868 and continuing up to the present time. It was written in longhand, closely spaced and difficult to read. Professor Elliott had submitted records of pelagic sealing several times and they had always been printed as public documents. Therefore when Foraker was asked to have the alleged "official record" printed he made the request in the usual form, and did not take the trouble to read it. Yesterday he made apologies to Vice President Fairbanks and several senators.

The paper was found to reflect upon the integrity of the presiding officer of the senate and upon members of the senate and house and other government officials. It transgressed one of the established, though unwritten, rules of both houses of congress, and caused a sensation of no small magnitude.

Passing over thirty years of the "official record" Elliott dealt with the work of the Anglo-American high joint commission in connection with the sealing question and told of an argument made by Fairbanks in opposition to a sealing bill before the senate committee on foreign relations in 1902-03, when he was a member of the committee. This paragraph is taken from the report:

"Mr. Elliott secures on Feb. 2, 1903, the passage of the bill in the house, but on Feb. 17 in the senate foreign relations committee Senator Fairbanks deliberately tells the committee that this bill is not needed; that the fur seal question has been all agreed upon in the high joint commission, and only waits the formal publication by that commission when it reassembles; he assures the committee that this reconvention of the commission is to take place soon after March 4, 1903. This statement of Senator Fairbanks was an untruth in every respect—a square and wholesale fabrication on his part to defeat the pending bill. Under the circumstances his colleagues could not dispute his false report, therefore they took no action on this bill, at his request."

The "official record" refers in a disparaging manner to the part taken by the late Secretary of State Hay in regard to the sealing question, and charges that legislation was bitterly opposed by the land and sea butchers of the fur seal herd, who had suborned certain senators, congressmen and department officials.

It refers also to the "extended trip of inspection over Alaska" made by Senators Dillingham, Nelson, Burnham and Patterson, and mentions the fact that no legislation was accomplished. Fault is found also with the fact that Secretary Root and Assistant Secretary Bacon had done "absolutely nothing," although fully informed that a plan of mutual concession and joint control by the United States and Canada could be "successfully negotiated in six weeks' time."

Nearly 250,000 Miners Will Be Idle

Indianapolis, March 31.—The union miners in most of the coal fields of the country will lay down their picks and shovels tonight. Almost 250,000 of them will stop work. The mining contracts under which they are now working expire at midnight tonight. Technically, the miners will go out on strike, but in reality they stop work because the operators, except in Indiana and Illinois, show no intention of meeting and treating with them, though no question of wage or principle is at stake.

Bullets Pierced Hearts of Two

Cleveland, March 31.—Detectives are searching for a missing revolver upon which may hang the solution of the mystery surrounding the tragic death of Carl Bernthaler, 58 years of age, and Miss Lena Ziechmann, 30 years old. The bodies of the man and woman, with their hearts pierced by revolver bullets, were found in Dundas woods, just east of the city. Many theories as to motives for the supposed double murder have been discussed, but no damaging evidence has been discovered.

Death Viewed With Suspicion

New Milford, Conn., March 31.—Daniel Wheaton, a business man, 59 years old, was found dead in his room under circumstances which officials considered warranted calling on the coroner to investigate. There were no traces of a struggle in the room. Wheaton was a widower and is survived by one son.

ROOSEVELT SENTIMENT

Bryan Thinks That Democratic Party Should Benefit by It

Kansas City, March 31.—Democrats from all parts of Missouri, to the number of 2000, attended a dollar banquet here under the auspices of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Missouri. W. J. Bryan and Judson Harmon were the guests of honor and principal speakers. Some 15,000 persons thronged Convention hall as auditors and cheered the speakers.

Mr. Bryan's opening statement, that "we have yet to begin the campaign of 1908 and to present those principles and policies which ought to appeal to progressive Republicans as well as to traditional Democrats," was the keynote of his speech. In giving his approval of Senator LaFollette as the Republican candidate for president, Bryan said: "If the president had picked out LaFollette, a real reformer, and if the Republican party had rallied to LaFollette's support, it could have compelled the confidence of reform Republicans."

Mr. Bryan said that, without the support of the administration, Mr. Taft would scarcely have a state in the convention, and, with the president's support, he is having an up-hill fight. Taft's superiority over his colleagues was due, he said, not to his positive virtues, but to the fact that none of the rest of them had any reform tendencies whatever. Bryan said that the Roosevelt sentiment was strong in the Mississippi and the Missouri valleys, and argued that the Democratic ticket was entitled to the support of this sentiment in the coming campaign.

Pinchot Under Fire

Washington, March 31.—Charges of a serious nature against Gifford Pinchot, chief of the forestry bureau, were made in the house during the consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill. Mr. Smith (Cal.) accused him of entering into a secret understanding with the city of Los Angeles with the view to securing to the city valuable water rights as against the interests of private parties having prior claims. Mr. Mondell (Wyo.) denounced him for, as he charged, illegally paying the expenses of forest officials in attending conventions in which the government had no part, and also of spending government money to boost his bureau in the newspapers.

Gillette Confessed to Murder

Auburn, N. Y., March 31.—After an electric current of 1800 volts had been shot through his body, Chester Gillette, the murderer of his sweetheart, Grace Brown, was officially declared dead. Only one contact was necessary to snuff out life. Gillette made a confession to his spiritual advisers. This much is contained in a statement that the clergymen gave out after the electrocution. This reads as follows: "Because our relationship with Chester Gillette was privileged we do not deem it wise to make a detailed statement, and simply wish to say that no legal mistake was made in his electrocution."

Young Wanderer Found

Chatham, N. B., March 31.—After wandering on the ice of the Miramichi river for nearly three days and two nights and at last found dazed, with feet and hands frozen, Willie Smith, 13 years old, was found on Portage Island, an uninhabited place, where he had been stumbling around in a circle for hours. Smith got lost while on a fishing trip with two other boys. It is thought he will recover.

Combined Gospel and Medicine

Chatham, N. B., March 31.—Rev. William H. Morrisey, for more than thirty years Roman Catholic priest at Bartibegue, five miles from here, died last evening after an illness of many months. He was born in Halifax 68 years ago. He had studied medicine and sufferers came from as far as Vancouver to receive aid, which he furnished gratuitously.

Wanted Wife to Die With Him

Philadelphia, March 31.—After vainly trying to induce his wife to join him in a suicide pact, Henry Blair of this city committed suicide by drowning. To insure death he tied a rope around his neck to which he fastened a stone and then jumped into a quarry pool. Blair had been ill for several months and unable to work.

Inhuman Treatment Alleged

San Juan, P. R., March 31.—The federal grand jury returned an indictment against Captain Worley, master of the United States collier Abaranda, charging him with inhuman treatment of his men at sea, in violation of the federal statutes. A large number of the Abaranda's crew are held as witnesses in the case.

Prize Fighter Slashed With Axe

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 31.—Arthur Thompson, a negro prize fighter, while asleep in his home was mortally wounded by George Harper, a negro, with an axe. Many great gashes were cut in his body, neck and head. Harper is alleged to have been under the influence of cocaine when he attacked his friend.

NEWS IN BRIEF

SWUNG IN A CIRCLE

Blakeley Punctured by Torpedo Fired From Her Own Tube

Pensacola, Fla., March 31.—As a result of being struck by a Whitehead torpedo, fired from one of her own tubes, the torpedo boat Blakeley, which has been engaged in target practice off this port, has a large jagged hole just below her waterline on her port side. The Blakeley has been put in drydock and a board of inquiry named to investigate the accident.

The commander of the Blakeley refuses to discuss the occurrence. It is learned, however, that the torpedo boat was on the target range about four miles from the navy yard engaged in practice. A torpedo had been prepared for a range of 4000 yards and fired.

It seems that it had only gone about 100 yards, when it suddenly swerved, and after making a complete circle came directly toward the Blakeley. Seeing that the torpedo would strike the torpedo boat, full steam ahead was ordered, but the Blakeley failed to get out of the way of the torpedo, which struck on the port side aft, about one foot below the water line.

Freedom DependsUpon Temperance

Skowhegan, Me., March 31.—With the promise from the court that the charges against him would not be pressed if he refrained from intemperate habits, Dr. Joseph B. Twaddelle, who is under indictment for two alleged attempts upon the life of his brother-in-law, Fred Knight, was released in the supreme court on his personal recognizance in the sum of $1000. Twaddelle was pronounced insane last year by insane hospital authorities. The action of Judge Spear is said to have been based on the belief that intemperance was responsible for Twaddelle's condition.

Silverstein an Anarchist

New York, March 31.—Efforts of the police to connect Selig Silverstein, the Union square bombthrower, with the group of anarchists have been successful, but thus far they have been unable to prove that his sensational crime of Saturday was furthered in any way by these associates. These developments followed the arrest of Alexander Berkman, the anarchist leader, but their attempt to show that Berkman had in any direct way incited the bomb throwing was futile. In the absence of any definite charge, Magistrate Droege released Berkman on his own parole.

Sixty-Two Killed In Coal Mine

Hanna, Wyo., March 31.—None of the victims of Saturday's two explosions in a mine of the Union Pacific Coal company have been recovered except the five corpses blown from the shaft by the explosions of dust and gas. The condition of these bodies preclude the possibility that any of the men in the mine survived the second explosion. An official list of the known victims of the disaster contains sixty-two names. It is believed by some that probably ten others also met death in the mine. The entrances of the mine have been sealed to smother the fire.

Hayti Rounding Up Conspirators

Port Au Prince, March 31.—Numerous arrests were made here of officers suspected of complicity in the latest conspiracy, of which General Larraque, chief of the cavalry, was alleged to be the leader. Squads of soldiers are continuing their search of houses in quest of fugiives. Five officers, including Larraque, have taken refuge in the French legation, and one officer is in the German legation.

Result of Domestic Quarrel

New York, March 31.—Edward F. Randall, an expert accountant, who had a home in the exclusive Bedford section of Brooklyn, shot and, it is believed, fatally wounded his wife and then killed himself last night. Randall was 56 years of age and Mrs. Randall is 41. They had no children. The nature of the quarrel that led to the shooting is not known.

Warning to Postmasters

Washington, March 31.—Following the receipt of telegrams from citizens of Gloucester, Mass., complaining of the alleged political activity of Postmaster Brown of Gloucester, Postmaster General Meyer has forwarded a letter to Brown, calling his attention to the department circular relative to political activity in the federal service.

Lumbermen to Fight Sentence

Toledo, March 31.—The convicted lumbermen whose sentence to imprisonment by common pleas court for conspiracy in restraint of trade was affirmed by the circuit court will apply for leave to file a petition in error in the supreme court. There is doubt if such application will be allowed.

Dismissal of Big Suit

Winchester, Ky., March 31.—The suit of M. P. Rehorn, state auditor's agent, against the Burley Tobacco society for back taxes on one billion pounds of tobacco, valued at $100,000,000, was tried before Judge Evans and dismissed. Evans decided that Rehorn failed to make a case.

Killed Daughter--Fatally Beat Wife

Huntington, W. Va., March 31.—George Conrad, a farmer of Wayne, killed his 6-year-old daughter by beating her with a poker and fatally injured his wife with the same weapon. Jealousy is assigned as the cause. Conrad escaped.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Manager Donovan of the Scenic, announced to the audience last night that vaudeville will be resumed at that house commencing next Monday, April 6. The full program will be found in the Ledger the latter part of this week.

Everybody seemed to be very much pleased, and showed their appreciation by repeated applause, when it was announced by the Scenic management last night, that vaudeville would be resumed next Monday, April 6.

But two telephone exchanges in the Boston division had a higher percentage for February than the Quincy exchange of which W. C. Crane is manager and Miss Katherine C. Walsh the chief operator. The Quincy exchange has for several months been classed among those having excellent service.

The Copeland Club gave a banquet Monday evening at Farnum's hall to the men who assisted them at their recent minstrel show. President Joseph A. Monahan presided and the program included solos and addresses. The menu was a good one and was served by Martin of Boston.

Governor Improving.

At 10 A. M. it was bulletined that Gov. Guild continues to improve.

Who Will Add Another Ten?

The movement for a soldiers' monument in Quincy is already attracting attention outside the state, as the following letter from A. R. Baxter, a former resident of Quincy, will show:

Editors Quincy Daily Ledger:

I have been following with great interest the articles in your paper concerning the proposed new Soldiers' Monument for Quincy. I have not seen any notice to whom subscription should be sent. Will you please enter my subscription, as a former Quincy boy, for $10.00 payable at such a time as sufficient funds shall have been subscribed to ensure the success of the enterprise. I wish I could make the subscription ten times as large.

Yours very truly,
A. R. Baxter.

Certificates For Y. M. C. A. Students

The closing exercises of the Y. M. C. A. evening school were held Monday evening. Forty of the students and teachers gathered at eight o'clock on the main floor of the building, and examined the exhibit on the walls of the alcove room. This exhibit is the best the association has had, and is well worth seeing, it is open to the public.

The exercises in the hall were presided over by George H. Brown, chairman of the educational committee. Mr. Brown spoke briefly of the year's work, giving the following statistics. 75 different students have been enrolled in the school during the year, 11 courses taught, the total attendance has been 1132, or 73 3-5 per cent. of the enrollment for the entire 40 nights. The expense of teachers and advertising was $296.00 and the receipts from tuition fees $249.00.

H. G. Smith, general manager of the Fore River Company, spoke at length upon the need and desirability of industrial or vocational training. He stated that to be a good mechanic a man must have pride of the trade, industry, accuracy, self reliance, quickness and foresight. These things he believed the association school to be emphasizing directly or indirectly. Mr. Smith complimented the students on the good showing made as evidenced by the display of their work.

After brief remarks by General Secretary Gay, telling of the great fraternity and educational movement to which all members of the school are alied, President Chase was introduced and awarded certificates to the following students:

The Parkway May Be Completed

A dispatch from the State House to the Daily Ledger this noon says:

The Committee on Metropolitan affairs has reported favorably on all the petitions for boulevard construction, the vote of the committee being 8 to 7.

The appropriation this year will be $165,000, and it is expected a like sum will be appropriated every year for fifteen years to carry out the plans of the Commission.

One of the bills directs the Metropolitan Park Commission to construct a roadway in the Quincy Shore Reservation from the present ending to Hancock street and to improve the shores of Quincy bay at an expenditure of $30,000.

Another bill authorizes and directs the Commission to complete the construction of the Furnace brook parkway from Adams street to the Quincy Shore reservation and authorizes an expenditure of $225,000.

Still another bill authorizes the Commission to construct a boulevard from Mattapan to Pauls bridge at an expenditure of $300,000.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

Each and every month since the battleship North Dakota was started, the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. has made a gain in the progress of her construction over her sister ship Delaware being built at the works of the Newport News Shipbuilding Co., Newport, News, Va. At the present time the North Dakota is nearly twice as far ahead with regard to the degree of completion as her sister ship is, and with reference to time this means somewhere in the vicinity of about six months.

This is a most extraordinary accomplishment and reflects much credit on the management of the company. Manager Smith is leaving no stone unturned in his effort to deliver the greatest fighting-ship in the world to the government ahead of contract time. The progress thus for made is an example of the fact that the Fore River company is the most thoroughly equipped and most up-to-date shipbuilding concern in the country, and that Quincy is second to none in building ships in the United States.

On March 1, 1908, the North Dakota was 21.40 per cent, complete, as against 12.77 per cent, for the Delaware. These figures show that during the month of February, in which there were but 24 working days, the North Dakota progressed 3.90 per cent, against 3.57 per cent on the Delaware, making a gain of .33 per cent for the month in favor of the Quincy warship. Although this may seem small in comparison to the substantial gains made in previous months, still at the same time was remarkable, considering the bad weather encountered during the month for outside work.

Shipbuilders at home and aboard are watching the progress being made on the battleship North Dakota, and government officials of the United States and of foreign countries are sitting up and taking notice. President Bowles has made the statement that his company could construct a first-class battleship in one-half the time now allowed, and he stands ready to make good his statement whenever the government is willing to pay the difference in cost made necessary in shortening the contract time of construction.

The following table shows the degree of completion of the North Dakota and Delaware at specified periods:

	No Dakota	Delaware
Nov. 1, 1907,	4.23	2.33
Dec. 1, 1907,	7.84	5.08
Jan. 1, 1908,	12.70	7.05
Feb. 1, 1908,	17.50	9.20
Mar. 1, 1908,	21.40	12.77

G. A. R. Veteran.

Ex-Officer John M. Field retired four years ago, after thirty years' duty as a Boston guardian, died suddenly on Sunday in the home of his daughter, Mrs. James Kennedy, Norfolk Downs, where he had made his abode since his wife's decease the past year. Mr. Field was a soldier from Minnesota during the war for the Union, and was a member of Post 26, G. A. R., when he died. Surviving him are five daughters: Mrs. James Kennedy, Mrs. Mary Harde of Wollaston, Mrs. Sidney Sherman of Sharon, Mrs. William Parsons of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Charles A. Stecher of No. 86 Botolph street, Atlantic.

City Council Meeting

before them; to get all the information given by men competent, qualified and capable to give information, and to determine which is the better way of abolishing the crossings. It will consider the evidence put before it. If our plan comes with expert evidence it follows that it will be considered. Before the last hearing he had a conference with commissioners and the agreement for continuance was that the Mayor might ask the Council for money to employ an expert.

Councilman Freeman—The question in a nutshell is whether it is advisable to employ an expert. If we should save over $15,000 by the employment of one the city would be the gainer. If city saves over $15,000 it would gain. He felt the order should pass.

AMENDMENT LOST.

The amendment by Councilman Hobbs was then put and defeated. Vote doubted. On rising vote the amendment was lost, 5 voting yes, and 14 no.

The order then took its second reading and the rules were suspended.

Councilman Gilson was called to the chair.

Councilman Abele moved to amend so as to read two expert engineers instead of one.

Councilman Bryant moved to amend so as to read "expert engineers advice."

Councilman Whiton moved a recess of five minutes.

The amendment of Councilman Bryant was voted.

Councilman Bryant—Quincy is up against a proposition. Up against a railroad which is paying $10,000 or $12,000 a year for engineers. When they submit a plan it is up to the Mayor. We do not want pet ideas of land schemers. The railroad will not consider the city is poor. The contract will be awarded the railroad. They will do the figuring and soak the city. The city wants an expert to compete with them. A man who knows the cost.

Councilman Broughton asked several questions of Councilman Bryant, who gracefully replied.

Councilman Whiton—The citizens have expressed themselves against expert engineers. How do we know the engineer will porduce anything remarkable.

Councilman Hobbs—If the Mayor says he intends to appoint a City Engineer I am ready to pass the order. If he does not, should vote against it.

Councilman Hogan—It is very evident he (Hobbs) wants some friends of his appointed City Engineer. Believed we ought to have someone who knows what he is talking about on this grade crossing question.

The order was then put on its final passage and failed to receive the necessary two-thirds vote.

The vote was as follows:—

YES—Abele, Bryant, Cantfill, Carey, Curtis, Falconer, Ferguson, Freeman, Gelotte, Hogan, McGilvray, Oakes, Teasdale, Walsh—14.

NO—Beal, Bean, Broughton, Cherrington, Hobbs, Whiton—6.

NOT VOTING—Acting President Gilson.

ABSENT—Bishop, Moir.

IF MOTHERS ONLY KNEW
When children are cross, irritable and peevish it does not signify that they have bad tempers; it shows that there is something wrong with the child which it is not able to explain, and which the mother—If She Only Knew—could easily and quickly cure. Mothers, study your child's symptoms; if cross, peevish, nervous, grits the teeth, wets the bed, picks the nose, has variable appetite or bowels, suffers with wind-colic or headache, is irritable and restless, has furred tongue or offensive breath, you may be sure that child is troubled with worms, which cause nearly all the ills of childhood.
Don't delay—disease comes suddenly—a few doses of the wonderful old-time remedy—will give your children that vigorous health which is so important to their future happiness. Dr. True's Elixir expels the worms, if there are any—if not it acts as a gentle laxative and tonic. It cleans out all waste matter from the stomach and bowels, tones and strengthens the entire system of adults as well as children. Dr. True's Elixir is a safe, pure, vegetable tonic and has been the standard household remedy for fifty-five long years.
DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

BIGNEY WINS

All the Quincy Delegates for The Colonel and Secretary Taft

The Republican caucuses Tuesday night were not largely attended due largely to the fact that outside of Ward One there were no contests. In this ward there was a contest for the State delegation, a double list being in nomination.

The polls were open from 7 to 9 o'clock and while none of the delegations are pledged, it is understood that the State delegation is for Col. Sidney O. Bigney of Attleboro.

The result of the Ward One vote for State delegates was as follows, those marked with a * being elected:

*George E. Adams	31
*Eben W. Sheppard	25
*Everett C. Bumpus	24
Charles H. Johnson	20
Clarence Burgin	18
Arthur E. Baxter	16

The Congressional delegates elected are Dexter E. Wadsworth, Charles H. Johnson, Horace F. Spear.

The delegates elected in the other wards of the city were:

WARD TWO.

State—Percy H. Holman and Rollin H. Newcomb.

Congressional—Eugene C. Hultman and Edwin W. Newcomb.

WARD THREE.

In Ward Three stickers bearing the name of Thomas C. Smith were used, and he received 39 votes. The regular nominees, however, were elected receiving 54, 59 and 62 votes respectively.

State—Alfred O. Diack and Harry S. Nicol.

Congressional—George Prout and John R. Nelson.

WARD FOUR.

State—Edward J. Sandberg and William H. Teasdale.

Congressional—Charles Owen and Louis K. Badger.

WARD FIVE.

State—Arthur Russell, Thomas Lacey, Edward E. Jameson and Felix Favorite.

Congressional—Charles M. Bryant, Richard R. Freeman, Sidney F. Copeland and John H. Johnson.

WARD SIX.

State—Charles J. Hendrie and John Vogler.

Congressional—Louis F. R. Langelier and Franklin J. Stocker.

April First In Local History

Many of the notable events of Quincy happened on the first day of April as will be seen below. There are probably several other events which might be included but cannot be recalled at this time:

1795—First postmaster of Quincy commissioned, Richard Cranch.
1797—Eighty-five pound voted by Quincy for schooling for year.
1803—Blue Hill turnpike indicted.
1823—Dr. Ebenezer Woodward, Quincy's benefactor began practice in Quincy.
1836—Samuel H. Spear became postmaster of Quincy.
1844—Hancock cemetery enlarged to the south.
1844—Rev. S. A. Davis called to Universalist church.
1872—Rev. G. W. Whitney settled at Universalist church.
1866—Baptist society dedicated hall at Quincy Point, society formed.
1874—Rev. Charles H. Rowe assumed pastorate of Wollaston Baptist church.
1872—District court of Eastern Norfolk established at Quincy.
1875—Thomas Crane, donor of Crane Memorial hall died in New York.
1855—Miss Julia Underwood one of present teachers began teaching at Coddington school.
1857—Miss Emeline A. Newcomb one of present teachers began teaching at Willard school.

Masonic Funeral

The funeral of James W. Rideout was held Tuesday afternoon from his late residence on Payne street, and was attended by many friends including a delegation from Rural lodge of Masons. The services were conducted by Rev. N. J. Sproul of the Water street Presbyterian church. His service was followed by the Masonic burial service. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Milton Unpledged

Milton Republicans elected the following delegates:

State unpledged. J. B. Baxter, Roger Wolcott, James H. Perkins and Frederick P. Hall.

Congressional, John Swift, William B. Thurber, Ernest Libbey and A. A. Hibbard.

ENGINEERS ARE OUT

And Tie-Up Of Granite Industry Is Now Threatened

The steam engineers employed in the granite industry went out on a strike this morning. Report says that 108 men in all are out. The engineers asked for an increase in the minimum wages from $16 to $20 per week. Up to the present time the manufacturers and engineers have failed to reach an agreement.

The cutters are still at work although not the full complement of men. About one-third of the usual force it is estimated.

The manufacturers have a good run of orders on hand, but there is a scarcity of rough stock because quarrymen are out, and it is for the lack of this that men are being laid off.

It is thought that the strike of the engineers will be of short duration and that an agreement will soon be reached.

Addition Wanted To The Lincolu

A regular meeting of the School Committee was held Tuesday evening, all members being present.

Alex Shirley was elected janitor of the Washington school.

It was voted to ask the City Council for a four-room addition to the Lincoln school. The sense of the committee was that the additional rooms should be built at the rear of the present building with a corridor connecting with the main building.

The financial statement to date was as follows:

	Appropriation.	Expended.	Balance.
Salaries	$106,930.00	$30,958.85	$75,971.15

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

Henry R. Curwen, representative of the Fore River company at the steel mills, in Pennsylvania, is in town enjoying a few days' vacation.

A complete set of blue-prints of all drawings used in connection with construction of the five steamships for the Brunswick S. S. Co., is being made in the blue-print division of the hull drafting department.

The Marine Review, a New York magazine, in its issue of March 26, contains a special article by our correspondent, George H. Corliss.

The Pennsylvania pilots have agreed to take five apprentices to learn the business and have so signified to the commissioners of navigation. It is some considerable time since an apprentice has been given this opportunity.

The United States naval collier Caesar, which has been fitting out at the New York navy yard for the job of transporting the submarine torpedo boats Plunger and Porpoise to Cavite, P. I., has gone from the New York navy yard to Barford, R. I., for steam coal. After the Caesar finishes coaling, she will return to New York where the two submarines will be put aboard her, then she will proceed at once to the Philippines by way of the straits of Magellan.

A Washington dispatch of Monday to the Transcript says: If the naval scout cruiser Salem, under construction at Quincy, Mass., is completed in time, the Navy Department will undoubtedly have that vessel and the sister ships Birmingham and Chester join the battleship fleet. This could be done so as to have the new scouts, which have by far the largest steaming radius of any American warships, reach the fleet by the time they arrive in Australian waters and make the remainder of the homeward trip with Admiral Sperry's comand by way of Suez. This arrangement would afford the best possible opportunity of determining the relative endurance and sustained speed of these cruisers, The ships will be put through their paces, in any event, but it is appreciated by the naval authorities that there would be distinct benefits derived by the long trip under such conditions that would probably surpass any of the demands destined to be imposed in time of war. But the Salem may not be ready for trial for two months, and by the time the vessel is accepted it may be too late to send the ships to Australia. It is still possible that the department may conclude to order the scouts to join the fleet in the Mediterranean.

Frank N. Loveland, a draughtsman at the Fore River, died Tuesday at St. Margaret's hospital, Boston, aged 28 years.

No Evidence In Burglary Case

The case against Michael Hartnett the man who it is alleged burglarized the Quincy Department store March 14, was dismissed when the case was called in court this morning.

One of the strongest points in the case against Hartnett was supposed to be the testimony of Daniel Lane.

Lane is the track walker, who met a man coming from the rear of the Greenleaf block on the morning of the burglary. When Hartnett was in the cage at the district court on Monday, Lane readily identified Hartnett as the man he had met the morning of the burglary. This morning Lane came into court and took back water, saying that he could not swear Hartnett was the man he saw. As the police had no other evidence to connect Hartnett with the break the case was dismissed for want of prosecution.

Pierian Quartette At Wollaston

Ray F. Weston treated the people of Wollaston to a very fine concert on Tuesday evening, when he presented the Pierian String Quartette of Harvard College and two soloists. Mr. Weston is leader of the quartet, but made no announcement of the fact. His instrument is the viola, and W. A. Fotch, 1st violin; S. A. Alter, 2d violin; J. P. Gaskell, cello; completed the quartet, and they were assisted by W. W. Parshley, flute. The quartet gave two numbers, the first by Beethoven, and the other a group by Garstin, Hammond and Strickland, which called forth a hearty encore. The quintet number was also very good. The tenor solos by Bruce Hobbs and the violin numbers by W. A. Fotch were enjoyed, and the organ numbers of William E. Weston were so good that the audience called for another. The organ is probably the best in the city and Mr. Weston brought out beautiful tones with artistic touch. Miss M. A. Gall and W. E. Weston were accompanists of the evening. Four young ladies acted as ushers.

The Men's Club Of Atlantic

There was an increased attendance at the meeting of the Men's club of Atlantic on Tuesday evening and several were elected to membership. The total is now 53, and there is considerable enthusiasm.

The speaker of the evening was J. L. Rand the Boston manager of the Associated Press, who told of the humors and hardships of newspaper gathering. It was a very instructive and entertaining talk, and very much appreciated by all. Light refreshments followed.

The next and final meeting of the season will be the ladies' night on April 28, when Representative Robert Luce of Somerville will be the speaker.

IS STRONG FOR TAFT

Bay State Republicans' Preference Shown In Caucuses

VICTORY FOR CRANE FORCES

Had Contended That Delegates to National Convention Be Unpledged and Uninstructed--Lodge Wins an Important Fight In Boston

Boston, April 1.—The Republican caucuses all over the state yesterday resulted in a sweeping victory for the policy advanced by Senator Crane that the Massachusetts delegation be unpledged and uninstructed.

But this result was accompanied by the election of an overwhelming majority of men who are claimed for Taft, both to district and state conventions, thus making probable the sending of a very pronounced Taft delegation, but there is still the influence and personality of Crane to cope with.

This morning it appears that the only district in the state where it is absolutely certain that there will be delegates instructed flatly for Taft is in one of the three hotly contested districts, that is the Sixth district, the home of Congressman Gardner, where the Crane men had a valiant fight for uninstructed delegates.

In the Third district there was a big victory for the Crane men, who easily captured delegates enough to ensure the election of Winslow and Whitin, both of whom are non-committal and opposed to the instructing of delegates.

The Third district is the home of the people of Secretary Taft, and while the Taft men were not confident that they could carry the district against the Crane men, yet the fact that delegates openly favoring the nomination of the secretary could not be elected in the old home place of Taft was regarded as a feature of the Massachusetts situation of sufficient importance to make it of national importance.

In the Second district, which is Crane territory, the Crane men did their work rapidly and well. The two non-committal delegates simply swamped the Taft men.

On the other hand, a fight of national importance was carried on in the heart of the Lodge territory, ward 11, Boston, which was swept into the Taft column in the face of one of the most powerful combinations of men prominent in the business and financial circles of the state.

The supporters of Taft secured for him at least fifteen of the thirty-two members of the Massachusetts delegation to Chicago. Of the seventeen other delegates eleven will go to the convention unpledged for any candidate, while the caucuses did not determine who the other six delegates will be.

The Taft supporters won a notable victory in the Sixth district and were fortunate in not having their candidate for delegate opposed in the Fifth, Seventh, Ninth and Twelfth districts. They also won one delegate in each of the Fourth, Tenth, Eleventh and Fourteenth districts. The Taft people will also have at least one of the delegates-at-large, making fifteen in all.

The unpledged sentiment also won a decisive victory in the Second district, where the Taft delegates were defeated, and scored another victory in the Third disrict. Their delegates were unopposed in the First and Thirteenth districts, while two delegates-at-large and one of the delegates in the Fourth district will also go to Chicago unpledged, making eleven in all.

The Taft leaders claim a clear majority of the delegation, while the unpledged faction express themselves as satisfied with the result. No other candidate for president was mentioned either in the campaign or in the caucuses.

Watson For the Presidency

St. Louis, April 1.—If the present plans of its sponsors prevail, out of the convention which is to be called here tomorrow in the name of the People's party will come an organization which its originators declare must be sharply reckoned with in the coming presidential campaign. Unless present plans miscarry, Thomas Watson of Georgia, the standard-bearer of the Populist party in 1904, will be nominated for president.

"Bryan Volunteers" Growing

Lincoln, April 1.—Democratic editors of Nebraska were the guests last night at an informal dinner tendered by W. J. Bryan. Secretary Gruenther of the Bryan volunteers reported that eighty-two local clubs had been started. The central body of volunteers, which covers the entire state, now comprises 582 members.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889
The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.
Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.
The Secretary, Timothy Reed, Adams St Quincy, or the Treasurer, Richard D. Chase, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)
The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.
Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.
The Treasurer, William F. Cummings, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, Ernest G. Gay, will be happy to answer inquiries.

"MALICIOUS LIES"

Head of Electric Boat Company Denies Lilley's Charges

Washington, April 1.—Isaac L. Rice, president of the Electric Boat company, yesterday made a sweeping denial of the charges preferred by Representative Lilley before the special committee of the house that is investigating those charges. He denounced several of the statements as malicious lies and said that others were too absurd to answer.

Rice testified that he had been approached by agents of the Lake Boat company with propositions for the Electric Boat company to buy out the Lake Boat company, the negotiations to be contingent upon the stopping of the investigation. Those who approached Rice, according to his testimony, were U. G. Brown and C. R. Flint, both of New York, but Rice said he did not know beyond Brown's statement that the latter was an agent of the Lake company.

When asked how the present investigation was to be stopped Rice said that Brown said it could be stopped by United States Senator Bulkeley.

England Has Territorial Army

London, April 1.—With the stroke of midnight, Great Britain's volunteer army became a thing of the past after an existence of forty-nine years, and a territorial army reigns in its stead. The volunteer forces throughout the country celebrated their "last post" at their respective headquarters by dinners and other celebrations. As midnight struck there were stirring scenes as to who would be the first to enlist in the new body, many hundreds being thus recruited.

Marshal Fails to Land His Man

New York, April 1.—An unsuccessful attempt was made by a United States marshal at the New York navy yard to take into custody Captain Worley, formerly commander of the auxiliary United States naval vessel Abarenda, who was indicted by a grand jury at San Juan, P. R., on a charge of treating his crew in an inhuman manner while at sea. Worley had obtained a 90 days' leave of absence on the ground that he was physically incapacitated for service.

Morse Scores a Point

New York, April 1.—Judge Holt has sustained the demurrer interposed in the interest of Charles W. Morse in the involuntary bankruptcy petition filed against him by Receiver Hanna of the National Bank of North America and two former employes of the institution. The demurrer entered by counsel for Morse denied that Morse was insolvent and that Receiver Hanna and the two former employes of the National Bank of North America were creditors.

Gyroscope Failed to Work

Pensacola, Fla., April 1.—The board of inquiry appointed to investigate the accident to the torpedo boat Blakeley, which was badly damaged by a Whitehead torpedo fired from one of its tubes, concluded its inquiry and its findings have been forwarded to Washington. It is stated that the gyroscope of the torpedo which controls the rudder failed to work, allowing the torpedo to circle and strike the vessel.

Death of Joe Howard

New York, April 1.—After an illness of almost a year, Joseph Howard, Jr., one of the most prominent newspaper men in the country, died last night. He was 74 years old. Howard had been in the newspaper business all his life and "Howard's column" was for a long time one of his best newspaper features.

Charged With Counterfeiting

New York, April 1.—Joseph Giordani, former agent in New York of the Haytien revolutionary party, and H. G. Thomas, until recently general manager of the Hamilton Bank Note company, are on trial in the United States circuit court, charged with counterfeiting paper notes of the republic of Hayti.

250,000 MINERS IDLE

Work Suspended Until Wage Settlement Is Reached

DIFFERENCES ARE SLIGHT

Workers In Bituminous Fields Want Unit Rules, or Interstate Agreement Restored--Relations Between Opposition Interests Are Friendly

Indianapolis, April 1.—Two hundred and fifty thousand picks dropped from the hands of as many bituminous coal miners of the United States last evening, not to be used again until a wage settlement has been reached and a scale adopted between the members of the United Mine Workers of America and the coal operators of the various fields.

The situation, however, does not indicate a prolonged strike. An open winter and industrial depression have left a large stock of coal on hand, and the differences between miners and operators are very slight. It is practically agreed that the present wage scale will be continued, but some policies in connection with the change last night in the national officers of the miners' organization and local differences between operators and miners have resulted in temporary suspension of work until a new wage scale is agreed to either by districts or individual mines.

Until two years ago the bituminous coal mining wage of the country was based upon the agreement reached in the central competitive field, consisting of Illinois, Ohio, Indiana and western Pennsylvania, and considered as a unit. This unit system was broken two years ago, when President Mitchell signed a scale with Pittsburg operators, who agreed to pay the scale demanded after operators of the other three states had refused and the miners won their fight in consequence. Operators signed the scale individually throughout the country.

Since that time the miners have tried to get back the unit rule, or interstate agreement, but operators of western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois, after negotiations lasting all the past winter, have refused to meet in interstate convention with the miners. As a last resort Mitchell called the miners in national convention and district settlements were authorized, with the present wage scale as a minimum. Failing to agree by districts, miners were authorized to sign the present scale with operators individually.

Vice President Lewis, who succeeded President Mitchell today, is endeavoring to revive the interstate unit rule. In the meantime district joint meetings are being held in the various states.

Central Pennsylvania and the block coal district of Indiana (Clay county) are the only two districts that have signed up. Indiana operators and miners, in session at Terre Haute, are adjusting their small differences and have decided to continue at work pending a settlement. There will be no strike in this state.

The Illinois district meeting at Springfield has not reached an agreement, but the relations between the opposition interests are friendly. Western Pennsylvania has not reached an agreement and the mines will close down, throwing out of work 30,000 men. Ohio mines will close also, as no agreement has been reached.

The southwest district, consisting of Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas, are holding a meeting in Kansas City, and it is said the miners will be idle for a time. Thirty-five thousand miners are affected. The miners of the Kanawha field in West Virginia are holding their joint meeting at Huntington and, while no agreement has been reached, one is expected. The New River, Pocahontas and Fairmont fields are non-union and are not affected.

West Virginia and Kentucky miners and operators will continue operations, it is believed, pending a settlement.

President Lewis of the miners' national organization says he will make no move for several days. He wishes negotiations now in progress in the various districts to reach some kind of conclusion before he begins to work out his plans. He is still in the hope of reinstating the joint relations between the operators of Indiana, Ohio, western Pennsylvania and Illinois, and the indications are that he will call an interstate joint conference within the next two weeks. He will not convene the new national executive board for at least a week.

Plans of Battleship Fleet

Washington, April 1.—The battleships Maine and Alabama will be detached from the Atlantic fleet and will be replaced by the Nebraska and Wisconsin. The Maine and Alabama will return to the Atlantic coast of the United States. The hospital ship Relief will accompany the battleship fleet on its trip around the world. The third torpedo boat flotilla is not to go with the battleships.

Opening of Bids Delayed

Washington, April 1.—At the direction of Secretary Taft, the isthmian canal commission has again postponed from April 13 to May 1 the time for opening bids for furnishing the commission with 4,500,000 barrels of Portland cement, presumably to await action on pending legislation regarding shipments of canal supplies in American bottoms.

DIPLOMACY HAS ENDED

Reproofs Now Necessary In Our Dealings With Venezuela

Washington, April 1.—The correspondence between America and Venezuela respecting pending American claims against the latter country was submitted to the senate yesterday and is almost certain to create a profound impression. The vast mass of material which Secretary Root has placed before congress makes it evident that the negotiations have reached a critical phase.

The president's realization of that fact is shown by his transmission of the matter to the senate without any comment regarding the correspondence. Root's strong presentation of the American case is sufficient to instantly enlist the attention of congress. All of the correspondence and documents were referred to the senate committee on foreign relations.

The United States government has done no more than propose that all of the questions be submitted to the arbitration of an impartial tribunal before which the rights and wrongs of both parties can be fully presented and considered. This the Venezuelan government flatly refuses to do, at which point procedure by diplomacy seems to end.

Prince Wants to Wed Anna

New York, April 1.—Prince Helie de Sagan announced last night that he will sail for France on April 9 and that Mme. Anna Gould and her children will return to Europe just as soon as she recovers from an attack of bronchitis. The prince asserted that Mme. Gould had engaged personal counsel to look after her interest in the fortune of Jay Gould. Legal advice had been received, he asserted, which held that the codicil in the latter's will relative to depriving any of his children who should marry without the consent of the majority of the executors of the estate of one-half their shares would not withstand an attack in the courts. For the first time, too, the prince declared himself a formal suitor for the hand of Mme. Gould.

Pinchot's Bureau Under Fire

Washington, April 1.—After having undergone many changes, the paragraph of the agricultural appropriation bill relating to the bureau of forestry was finally passed by the house of representatives. Attacks on the bureau continued and embraced charges that the bureau had created timber monopolies in favor of large corporations, illegally assumed jurisdiction over water rights belonging to the western states and juggled with figures in order to obtain large appropriations from congress.

Indictments Against Vidaver

New York, April 1.—The grand jury handed down two indictments against former Special Deputy Attorney General Vidaver, charging him with attempting to extort money from former President Montgomery of the Hamilton bank. Vidaver has had several hearings in the police court in connection with the charges made against him and is out under $5000 cash bail.

A Bucket Shop Conviction

Washington, April 1.—Percy Wade, a member of a brokerage firm, who has been on trial here on the charge of setting up a gaming table, the case being regarded as a test one in the prosecution of alleged bucket shops, was found guilty by a jury in the criminal court. He was released on bail, pending an appeal to the court of appeals of the District of Columbia.

Used Gasoline to Start Fire

Chattanooga, April 1.—James F. Barnes, a newspaper reporter, and his 3-year-old daughter died as a result of burns received in a gasoline explosion. Barnes mistook a can of gasoline for one of coal oil and was beginning to light a fire in a stove when the explosion occurred.

American Car Off For Alaska

Seattle, April 1.—The American car in the New York-to-Paris race was put on board steamship Santa Clara today, bound for Valdez, Alaska. From there the car will proceed over the trail to the interior of Alaska, traveling down the valley of the Yukon to Cape Nome.

May Have Been Drinking

St. John, April 1.—The body of Frank Nowlan of this city was found in a sitting posture and resting against a tree in a patch of woods near here. It was frozen, indicating that death was due to exposure. It is said Nowlan had been drinking.

DEATH NEAR AT HAND

Anarchist Silverstein Cannot Rececover From His Injuries

THE UNION SQUARE TRAGEDY

Police Gather Evidence Too Important to Divulge at Present--Mayor and Comptroller of New York Threatened With Death

New York, April 1.—Selig Silverstein, in whose hands the dynamite bomb prematurely exploded as he was preparing to throw it at the police during the Union square demonstration last Saturday, is dying, and the physicians at Bellevue hospital state that the bomb thrower will not live twenty-four hours.

Cerebral meningitis has developed from the fearful wounds made by a piece of the exploding missile and paralysis of the lower limbs is fast setting in. Silverstein is delirious and there is little likelihood that the coroner will succeed in obtaining any statement from the man.

Silverstein's vitality has been a cause of wonderment to physicians and there was strong hope that he would survive. A piece of the exploding bomb blew out his left eye and penetrated his brain, and for several hours it was believed he would die, notwithstanding the efforts to save him. Silverstein rallied and apparently was recovering when cerebral meningitis set in last night.

Further evidence has been unearthed by the police in connection with the bomb-throwing tragedy which is of such important nature that when Alexander Berkman, treasurer of the Anarchists' Federated union, was arraigned in court yesterday on an affidavit charging him with advising the Union square meeting, Detective Werzanski told Magistrate Droege that he would not divulge the evidence to the court at the present time. The magistrate held Berkman in $500 bail for examination on Friday afternoon. Bail was furnished. Berkman, before his arraignment, denied that anarchists had anything to do with the bomb throwing. He said:

"I don't believe that Silverstein threw that bomb. The police are trying to fasten the crime on him, believing that he will not recover sufficiently to refute what they say. There was no anarchist plot in the bomb throwing. If there was the police will never find it out. They are manufacturing evidence to satisfy the public mind and are distorting facts and conditions."

Of the six men arrested as suspects immediately after the throwing of the bomb on Saturday, four were discharged in court yesterday. Walter Uppit was held to await the action of the immigration authorities and George Robinson was remanded to the coroner.

Comptroller Metz received an unsigned letter last evening in which the writer declared that Saturday's bomb-throwing "demonstrates the commencement of battle between the city officials and the unemployed," and that unless Mayor McClellan and the comptroller provide money for new subways so that there will be work to be done they will suffer death.

Brownsville Bills Killed

Washington, April 1.—The five Democratic members of the senate committee on military affairs succeeded in defeating both the Warner and the Foraker bills for the restoration to duty of negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth infantry who were discharged without honor because of the affray at Brownsville, Tex. The success of the minority was accomplished by voting as a unit against the divided majority. The effect will be to cause both bills to be reported adversely.

Snake River Dam Controversy

Washington, April 1.—Nearly the entire session of the senate yesterday was consumed in consideration of a bill to permit the building of a dam on the Snake river, Wash., and an adjournment was only reached after Mr. Heyburn announced that he would not permit a vote to be taken. Mr. Teller made a speech in disapprobation of the executive encroachment.

$3,500,000 Contract Revoked

Havana, April 1.—The Cienfuegos local council voted unanimously to annul the contract for an aqueduct awarded to Hugh T. Reilly, involving the sum of $3,500,000. Governor Magoon will probably refer the matter to the Washington authorities. The Cienfuegos council claims that the contract had been fraudulently obtained.

French Legation Shelters Refugees

Port Au Prince, April 1.—Three more officers suspected of complicity in the recent conspiracy have taken refuge in the French legation. Squads of soldiers are continuing their search for other suspects.

Rejected by Austria

Vienna, April 1.—The Neue Frie Presse announces that Austria has definitely rejected Great Britain's proposal for the appointment of a governor general of Macedonia.

Hill's Name Goes to Senate

Washington, April 1.—The president sent to the senate the nomination of David J. Hill to be ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to Germany.

EDITORIAL.

Six of the 21 members at the meeting of the City Council on Monday evening decided that it was best to tie the Mayor's hands so that the city's case could not be intelligently presented to the special commissioners who are considering the abolition of the grade crossings in Quincy. These gentlemen are:

Arthur C. Beal, Ward Six.
Charles L. Bean, Ward Five.
James Broughton, Ward Five.
C. E. Cherrington, Ward Six.
Ralph W. Hobbs, Ward Six.
Joseph L. Whiton, Jr., Ward One.

The N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. has presented plans for both Savil and Water streets, which are objectionable to the people at large, as expressed at the citizens' meetings. Yet the railroad has prepared detailed plans with estimates of the cost, etc., and is ready to present a strong case before the commission with able lawyers, a corps of skilled engineers, and available funds. The railroad agents have had experience in other cities where they have abolished grade crossings, while Quincy and its representatives are entirely without experience in the line.

Probably no plan will be seriously considered by the commission unless presented in detail with estimate of cost, etc. Therefore it devolves upon the representatives of the city to present a comprehensive plan of its own, if it is to make a remonstrance against the railroad plans. Unless a better plan can be presented the railroad plan will undoubtedly be accepted.

Accident At New Coddington

John Crowley, one of the workmen employed on the new Coddington school building, was seriously injured shortly after 2 o'clock this noon.

One of the guy wires of the derrick parted and the main boom in falling struck him on the head. Medical Examiner Jones, who was called ordered his removal to the City Hospital where he was taken in the police ambulance.

Crowley is about 40 years of age, married, and resides on Bates avenue.

Birthday Anniversary.

Mrs. Dexter Ramsdall of Billings street celebrated her 74th birthday on Sunday and was generously remembered by loving tributes personally presented and many glad wishes for continued health and prosperity sent by mail. Mrs. Ramsdall has lived to round out her seventy-fourth year with youthful vigor and comeliness still maintained. She is respected and loved by residents of Atlantic who joined last Sunday in wishing her many happy birthdays.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

April.

Were you April fooled.

Beautiful spring morning.

Quincy court, M. C. O. F., holds its annual ball May 1.

The Tri-Phi club met Tuesday evening with Miss Mary Brown.

Mrs. Charles Treadway of Billlings road visited friends in Randolph on Monday.

Work was commenced Tuesday building the extension of Crescent street, through land of Dr. Ash to Copeland street.

Theta Sigma club met Monday evening in their club rooms at the Downs. A picnic luncheon and dancing were enjoyed.

It was reported to the police this morning that thieves had entered a house building on Hancock street, Wollaston, during the night, and carried away a lot of carpenters' tools.

Richard Forest, one of the motormen on the West Quincy line of electrics, who has been off duty on account of illness for several weeks, resumed his work this morning.

A meeting of the Managers of the Woodward Institute was held on Tuesday, but the only business transacted was in relation to having the lawn fixed up and the driveway resurfaced.

Dr. Jeffrey R. Brackett of Boston, the noted philanthropist, will be the speaker this afternoon at the Woman's Guild of Christ church. He was a former member of Christ church, and resided then in the mansion now used as the Women's clubhouse.

Representative Coombs voted in favor and Representative Hultman against the motion to substitute the Cohen resolve for the adverse report which was defeated on Monday 95 to 94. On Tuesday reconsideration was defeated by a wider margin, Coombs voting yes and Hultman no.

A sale has been in progress this week at hotel Oxford, Boston, by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Fairbanks association to raise funds to renovate and keep in repair the old Fairbanks house, a familiar landmark at Dedham. Mrs. Willard E. Dow of Braintree is treasurer of the auxiliary.

Loyal Temperance Legion holds its next regular meeting in Protection hall, Johnson building on Saturday afternoon at half past two,, when it is hoped all members will be present and also new names added to the list of fifty as many new features are to be given at this time.

The many friends of Henry Kolseth of Walker street are interested in learning his condition from day to day since his long illness. Mr. Kolseth has shown little change either for better or for worse during the last few days except that he has suffered less pain.

Music Hall, Atlantic, is rapidly being bought up for the cantata of The Jolly Farmers, to be given by the choir of the Atlantic M. E. church. There are to be three special artists, a reader and two soloists. Elaborate preparations have been made for this event and success in every detail is anticipated.

Officer James W. Murray, the day guardian in City Square, was missed from his beat on Sunday. Inquiry showed that he was celebrating his fiftieth birthday anniversary in a quiet manner at his home at Houghs Neck. Jim cut a cake his better half made for him, and had a fine time with young Jim.

Someone suggests Merrymount Park for the proposed Soldiers' monument. The park is bound to improve each year with state boulevards, cultivation of trees, good roadways, etc. Probably the location could be had for the asking and it would be quieter and less expensive than in the centre of our growing city.

Several neighboring lodges were represented at the meeting of Mt. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows Tuesday evening. The third degree was worked on several candidates in a manner that bought many complimentary words for the degree staff. After the work Frank W. Flowers the degree master was presented with a Past Chief Patriarch's collar. Refreshments were served.

A recently formed quartet is the Bostonia Ladies' quartet with May Belle Dadmun, first soprano; Emma Schufeldt Moore, second soprano; Alice Gertrude Coe, first alto; Dorothy Mc Targart Miller, second alto and Marion C. Whiton, accompanist. The Dorchester Beacon says of a recent concert by the quartet: A delightful and interesting evening was given by prominent soloists with wide experience in ensemble work. The varied program was of high class music and the voices blended perfectly." The quartet is booking spring engagements as well as for next season.

AMONG THE CLUBS

Mothers' Association has an evening meeting tonight at Bethany chapel and men are especially invited to attend and hear Mr. Warren F. Spalding talk on "A new view of the Bay Boy." A silver collection is to be taken in aid of Mr. Spalding's work.

Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, hold their April meeting on Monday afternoon, the sixth, with Mrs. Charles Wilson of 257 Granite street with Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Francis F. Brewer and Mrs. Antoinette Paige as hostesses.

The New England Associate Alliance will hold a conference and rally in Hartford, Conn., Thursday, April 9. At 11.15 A. M. the welcome from Dr. Sunderland will be followed by a discussion of work with reports. Luncheon will be served at the Allyn House, fifty cents per person. At the afternoon session Miss Emma C. Low and others will discuss "Present Opportunity." The New York League unites with New England in this meeting. Those who wish to be entertained over night will apply to Mrs. H. J. Hill, 181 Sisson avenue, Hartford, on or before Saturday, April 4. Reduced railroad rates are offered between Boston and Hartford to those who go and return the same day on the specified trains; namely, 8.01 A. M. from Boston and 5.03 P. M. from Hartford. All who plan to take these trains will notify Mrs. C. S. Atherton, 82 Ruthven street, Roxbury, Mass., on or before April 4.

Mrs. Florence Evans of Dorchester gives the second lecture Thursday afternoon at Bethany chapel, in her series under the auspices of the Mothers' Association, taking for her subject "Ideals for Young Children."

The April meeting of the Day Nursery association will be held on Tuesday afternoon, April 7, at half past two at the clubhouse of the Quincy Women's club, Presidents hill.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

The regular monthly meeting of the executive board will be held Thursday morning at ten sharp at the club house, when a large attendance is desired. Millinery classes under the Arts and Crafts committee are meeting regularly on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. N. G. Nickerson has been doing good work toward raising a fund for the Visiting Nursing work by the collection of old rubber. Barrels and boxes have been placed in all sections of the city in which to deposit rubber and housekeepers and club members are asked to assist by saving old rubbers, hose, water bottles, etc., as every little counts. A barrel will also be placed at the clubhouse which should be filled on club afternoons.

The waiting list is growing, new names being proposed and approved at each board meeting. To join the with ones name must be porposed in writing, endorsed by two members besides the proposer. After the name is acted upon by the executive board if there is no vacancy the name is placed on the waiting list, from which list the names are taken in the order in which they are received as vacancies occur.

Annual dues are now being paid in to the treasurer, Mrs. N. S. Hunting, the fee being due after March first, and must be paid before the annual meeting to retain membership.

The program committee is putting in considerable work on next year's program. Each chairman will be given one afternoon instead of two and the program committee will provide for the other five or six afternoons. Besides a fine dramatic by club members, and a mystery afternoon, it is expected there will be lectures by Mr. Edward Howard Griggs and other notables. Plans and dates are not given out yet for publication, but the club is assured of an unusually good season of entertainments next year.

The Education committee has plans well underway for the annual Children's Festival on Saturday afternoon, April 25, at Quincy Music hall. There will as usual be an entertainment participated in by the school children and booths for the sale of May baskets, ice cream, candy, etc. Club members are asked to make Maybaskets and to help as the money raised supports the summer vacation schools at the club house, where sewing, sloyd, and other things are taught. Prizes are given each year for sewing and sloyd work, also for vegetable and flower gardens.

Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead who speaks to the club on April 14th under the auspices of the Education committee, is chairman of the Peace department of the National Council of Women and a director of the American Peace society. She has been a delegate to several international peace congresses. Mrs. Mead has lectured this season to the students at Ann Harbor, Chicago and Pennsylvania universities, Swarthmore, Bryn Mawr, Wellesley, Mount Holyoke and other colleges.

The club is preparing to keep open house during the biennial of the National Federation in Boston in June. The convention opens in Symphony hall, Back Bay, on June 21st. Nearly 2,500 Massachusetts club women are interested and formed in committees ready for service. Some 350 young women gowned in white will act as guides at the stations. Then there are committees on baggage, registration, credentials, tickets, badges, hotels, hospitality, programs, receptions, excursions, etc.

NEIGHBORING.

There has been a free tuberculosis exhibit recently under the management of the Walpole Association with the cooperation of Norwood. On March 27 there was a mother's meeting Mrs. Wade of Quincy speaking on "Foods for Consumptives." In the evening there was a public meeting. March 28th an afternoon meeting was held for children and a junior league organized, and in the evening a meeting was held for men and older boys. Sunday evening a union meeting was held and Monday afternoon a Women's club meeting. It is thought considerable good was accomplished by the exhibits and meetings.

The Somerville Woman's club has voted to join the General Federation of Women's clubs. One of the members made an earnest plea in support of the movement. She stated that twenty-three bills had been introduced into the different states of the union on the subject of abolishing child labor, and for this work alone the General federation should receive the co-operation of every club throughout the country.

The Pennsylvania state federation of woman's clubs is eager to urge upon other state federations the advisability of a municipal house cleaning day. This is designed to be a day on which citizens shall attempt to beautify the grounds around their homes, to remove rubbish and plant pretty vines. The plan is that all school children should be given a half holiday to aid in the work. The municipal cleaning day, I hear, has been tried by the club women in Chicago, and is considered by them a great success. City house cleaning should be one of the many things discussed at the biennial in June.

The spring meeting of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs will be held at Hudson, April 28, by invitation of the woman's club of that town. Although the programme is not fully arranged it is announced that Mr. Edward Bigelow will speak on "Nature Study" and that Mrs. May Wright Sewall will also be one of the speakers.

Thursday afternoon the regular lecture of the Ladies' Physiological Institute of Boston gives way for an entertainment, reception and tea to presidents and secretaries of neighboring clubs. Mrs. Isabelle Davis of Quincy will read from Eugene Field's poems with appropriate music.

Mrs. Eliza Trask Hill, a noted temperance worker and club woman died on Sunday at her home in Somerville. She was a great-granddaughter of Col. Josiah Quincy of Quincy. Mrs. Hill will be mourned by a wide circle of friends and also by many to whom she has been more than a friend for she was an indefatigable worker among working girls and in finding work for discharged prisoners.

Too Risky

Ask your doctor if he does not think it would be wise for you to keep a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house.

"A hard chill, pain through the chest, difficult breathing." If this should be your experience, send for your doctor. It may be pneumonia! To doctor yourself would be too risky. If your doctor cannot come at once, give Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. When he comes, tell him exactly what you have done.

Faith Preacher Who Cures the Sick

Schlatter, the faith preacher, who has recently made cures at Taunton and Brockton, arrived in town this morning and is registered at Hotel Greenleaf. He will preach on Sunday at 3 and 7 o'clock at Protection hall in the Johnson building.

He tells the Daily Ledger that all the sick will be healed free by faith in God. Admission will be free. He invites all the sick to call at his office at Hotel Greenleaf. He also agrees to foretell all future events while in a trance.

His real name is Rev. Charles McLean, born in New York in 1846, and he claims to be a Presbyterian minister and a licensed physician and surgeon of Boston.

In appearance, he is an old man of medium height, with long, flowing, white beard, reaching nearly to his waist. His eyes are deep-set and small keen and quick to notice. He dresses rather shabby, claiming that though he has had millions of dollars offered him, he is following in the footsteps of Christ, caring nothing for money or fine linen. Despite his age he is erect in his carriage, and walks with the firm elastic step of youth. He showed the reporter two rows of sound white teeth that were never touched by a dentist.

Schlatter has never used tobacco nor liquor in his life, and is unmarried. He believes that the man who gives himself up to God and the good of mankind cannot conscientiously marry. He eats but little, claiming that the 40 days and 40 nights spent in the Colorado desert were spent without taking any food whatever. He says five cents a day will buy enough food for anyone who has faith.

Among the miracles which this prophet and healer claims to have performed are the healing of John A. Dowie and A. B. Simpson, the former having suffered with blindness. Both these men had nearly the same power, he says, that he himself possesses.

He claims to have predicted the death of President McKinley, one year and a half before the bullet of an assassin laid low that noble executive. He also predicted the death of Queen Victoria, and says that King Edward Victoria, and says that Kink Edward's reign will be short. In speaking of affairs in this country Schlatter predicts that William F. Taft will be the next President of the United States, and that the country will be prosperous under his administration.

At the meetings Sunday afternoon and evening Schlatter hopes to effect his wonderful cures, and will predict future events.

Organization of Fresh Air Camp

The friends of a new enterprise, a Fresh Air Camp, met Tuesday evening and adopted the following constitution:

Article I—The name of this organization shall be the Fresh Air Camp Association of Quincy and Weymouth.

Article II—The object of this organization is to provide rest, recreation and vacation privileges, irrespective of creed or nationality, to all people of Quincy and Weymouth.

Article III—The officers of the organization shall be a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, and an advisory board of eight of which the president, vice president, secretary and treasurer shall be members.

Article IV—Membership. Any person, on the payment of $1 or more, becomes a member of the Fresh Air Camp Association of Quincy and Weymouth.

The following officers have been appointed:

President—Rev. A. R. Atwood.

Vice President—Frank E. Parlin.

Secretary and Treasurer—C. H. Johnson.

Advisory Board—Rev. E. C. Butler, (chairman), G. W. Gragg, Rev. W. S. Perkins, T. B. Pollard and Joseph White.

Twelve acres with shore privileges have been secured in North Weymouth within a 5 cent trolley fare of all points of Quincy and Weymouth, where a house and several tents will offer to all rest and recreation, seven days of the week, during July. Further information concerning the Fresh Air Camp Association will be gladly furnished by the secretary and treasurer, C. H. Johnson, to whom checks may be made payable or money sent by those wishing to join or willing to assist the Fresh Air Camp Association.

Whist Tournament

A fraction of one per cent. only separated the three high men at the weekly whist tournament of the Granite City club on Wednesday evening. Nine tables were in play, and so close were the scores that it required careful figuring to determine the winners. Then it was found that Dr. C. W. Garey had secured 69.83, H. P. Fitton 69.80, and James T. Penniman 69.50. There were also several who secured over 60 per cent., and of course some small scores. Refreshments were served after the whist. Next Wednesday evening the whist tournament will be omitted as the club members will then enjoy their annual banquet, and the performance at the Hippodrome. Another tournament will be held Wednesday, April 15.

Mrs. Edmund Pope Ninety-five.

Born in 1813 during the second war with England, and growing up as it were with the fully fledged republic, Mrs. Edmund Pope celebrated her ninety-fifth birthday on the 13th of March, at the home of one of her daughters, Mrs. Henry B. Martin of Milton. It was amid the assembled love bearers, children, grandchildren and the third generation, bestowing flowers and gifts, and with affectionate messages from California and less remote parts, and all so delightfully appreciated by Mrs. Pope that when little Junior Tower, her great-grandchild, skipped lightly about to the music on the great occasion, she stepped briskly to the side of the little one and obeyed her heart's injunction, to dance and be glad. It was a memorable event. A recent article in the Daily Ledger which announced Mrs. Pope's approaching birthday was read with intense interest by the dear lady, without glasses.

INDOOR MEET

The First Held At New Gymnasium At the Quincy High School

The first indoor meet at the High school gymnasium was held Wednesday afternoon, and was witnessed by an attendance of about 200. The meet was participated in by the classes of '08, '09, '10 '11, and three 1907 men who are taking post graduate courses. Murray of '07, was high man on individual points, with a score of 11. The class of '08, carried off the honors with a total of 31 points.

The points scored by the other classes were; '07, 18 points; '11, 11 points; '09, 7 points; and '10, one point.

The officers of the meet were Tupper, starter; Pierce, general manager; Gourlie, scorer; Cole Roche, Holbrook and Nolan, floor managers.

The result of the several events follows

20-yard dash—won by H. Prout, '11; Walker, '08, second; Murray, '07, third. Time 2 4 5 seconds.

Putting twelve-pound-shot—won by Claflin '08; Prout, '11, second; Bates '10, third. Distance, 40 feet, 3 inches.

Standing broad jump—by Murray, '07; Howe, '08, second; Hull '07, third. Distance, 9 feet, 9 1-2 inches.

Running high jump—won by Howe, '08; Poland, 09, second; Ryan, '08, third. Distance, 5 feet 1 inch.

Three standing jumps—won by Murray, '07; Howe, '08 second; Murphy, '07 third. Distance, 27 feet 10 inches.

Potato race—won by Howe, '08; A. Marsh, '09, second; Blake, '08, third. Time 31 1-5 seconds.

Sack race—won by Walker, '08; Prout, '11, second; H. Marsh, '09, third. No time taken.

The last event was a class relay race and was won by the class of '08.

Last Night's Fire

The alarm from Box 136 at 9.12 Wednesday evening was for a fire in a house on Water street owned by James F. Kelley, and occupied by Richard Reed. The fire was in a closet up stairs and did a damage of $50. On Monday, March 23, the department was called to a fire in the same tenement which was also in a closet.

Gov. Guild Has Rallied

A dispatch to the Daily Ledger this noon reads: Gov. Guild appears to have rallied from his bad turn. Three physicians were in consultation at his bedside for over an hour this morning. After the consultation they issued the following bulletin:

"Gov. Guild passed a most comfortable night. His general condition was better this morning."

Sudden Death.

Mrs. Orace W. Allen of Monatiquot avenue, Braintree, died suddenly on Wednesday evening. Mrs. Allen had been in better physical health than usual for the past two weeks. Wednesday she spent the afternoon with her daughter Mrs. C. F. White, after which she attended the supper and entertainment at the First Congregational church. She was in good spirits during the evening. A carriage had been ordered to take her home, but at 8.30 she started to walk. She had reached Mr. Carson's residence on Hollis avenue, where she walked to the foot of the front steps.

The Rev. Mr. Simms coming from the church shortly after saw her sink from the lower step to the ground. On going to her rescue he found life extinct. Dr. Gould the family physician was immediately summoned, who said that she had probably died with little or no suffering.

Mr. Allen has been for many years a leather dealer. Mrs. Allen leaves one son Dr. Fred Allen, and two daughters, Mrs. Helen Allen Hunt and Mrs. C. Frank White. Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon.

Rubbers Stolen.

Some days ago a large box was placed outside the store of W. G. Shaw and an invitation given to the general public to deposit their old rubbers. These were to be sold and the proceeds used by the Quincy Women's club to help pay the salary of the visiting nurse. Quite a collection was gathered but Wednesday morning they had disappeared. It is thought that some accommodating junk man gathered them in.

Funeral of Mrs. Winslow.

The funeral of Mrs. Ellen F. Winslow was held Wednesday afternoon from the Universalist church, where she had long been an attendant and faithful worker. The services were of a simple nature and were conducted by Dr. W. S. Perkins the pastor. Mrs. Emma S. Moore sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Sometime you will understand." There were many beautiful flowers. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston.

CRADE CROSSINGS

Discussed Pro and Con at Regular Meeting Board of Trade

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trade was held Wednesday evening and was largely attended. Two applications for membership were received and both were elected.

The banquet committee reported expenditures of $252.05, and receipts of $237.00. Voted, that the balance be taken from the treasury.

Representative Hultman reported that he was unable to obtain a map of Massachusetts at the State House, but he had purchased one elswhere and took pleasure in presenting it to the Board of Trade. A vote of thanks was extended.

The greater part of the evening was devoted to an informal discussion of the plans for the abolition of the grade crossings, in which several gentlemen took part.

E. W. Branch first reported as the representative of the board on the Mayor's committee. He said the committee had two meetings. At the first it was decided to present to the commissioners the Board of Trade plan for Water street, and a modification of the Bates plan for Saville street. Opportunity, however, was not offered at the hearing held. The committee desired to get further light and voted to endorse a special appropriation by the City Council. Favored $2,500, but the Council had defeated the order which called for only $1,500.

G. B. Bates closely questioned Mr. Branch, referred to the Mayor's committee as a board of strategy, and opposed experts. Thought there was a move to sidetrack his plans.

Mr. Bates later presented large blue prints of his plans for Savil street, one a map of the locality, and the other showing profiles with overhead bridges at Dimmock street, Savil street and Granite street. He explained the plans, and estimated the cost at $50,000.

Engineer Branch claimed the estimate was much too small. He asked if provisions had been made for changes in the sewerage system, and was told no. Would be a problem if railroad was lowered at both Savil and Dimmock streets.

Ex-Mayor Thompson, John McDonnell, John R. Richards, T. L. Williams, Charles C. Foster and others asked questions and took part in the discussion.

Mr. Branch wanted to hear from the lawyers present whether under the petition such a radical change could be made at Granite street, carrying the street over the railroad instead of beneath.

No lawyers responded, but by request ex-Mayor Thompson spoke at length, showing that he had given the problem considerable thought. He considered that inasmuch as Savil and Water streets were so near together that all the intervening streets should be included. He hoped citizens would get together on a plan. The curve of the railroad at Granite street was very dangerous and should be flattened. We ought to have positive figures on the cost of the Bates' plan before presenting it. The changes at Newton which extended three miles and involved 16 bridges, cost upwards of $2,000,000. We must provide for sewers, water pipes, drainage, etc. The city was not the only party at interest. Would work out plan so that Upland road and Irving place would connect making a thoroughfare from Granite street to Wollaston. Further discussion and more public meetings were wanted. Knew of no personal interests outside of G. B. Bates. Opposed closing of Water or Savil streets. Quincy was growing and must look to the future. Had faith in commission, but must work to secure the best possible.

Upon motion of ex-Representative Sandberg it was voted that a special meeting be held by the Board of Trade on the subject before the adjourned hearing of the commission.

Adjourned at 10.20.

Knockers Dine On April First

The monthly dinner of that unique organization known as the Knockers club was held Wednesday, and proved to be fully as enjoyable as any of the previous dinners. As usual the dinner was served at Thompson's restaurant. It was the first of April, and April fool jokes were expected, but most of the diners were in doubts as to where they would come in. They found out, however, when they cut into what appeared to be a chicken pie. Individual pies were served and it needed but a mouth full for several of the party to see where the joke came in. The inside of the well-browned crust did not contain chicken, but combination of articles including lemon peel, cotton wool and beans, mixed with which was a cooked batter. It looked all right at first but when tasted was different.

The menu included soup, cucumbers, tomatoes, olives, lettuce, potatoes, lobster, tenderloin of beef, and lamb with mushroon sauce, rolls, coffee, lemon pie, ice cream, cake, toasted crackers, roquefort cheese and cigars.

Sergt. Barry of the Police department was expected to be present, but the nearness of April 1 may have accounted for his absence. The president received a mighty cigar, and a poem which was a parody on a former well known man about Quincy who now lives in Randolph as far as known.

On May 15, all of the little Knockers will be bidden to help the big Knocker celebrate his birthday anniversary, and there is sure to be something doing.

FOR YOUR SUNDAY DINNER
try the following delightful desert:
1-2 cup English Walnut meats.
1-2 doz. figs, cut up fine.
1 10c. package JELL-O, any flavor.
Dissolve the JELL-O in a pint of boiling water. When cool and just commencing to thicken stir in the figs and nuts. Serve with Whipped Cream. Delicious. The walnuts, figs and JELL-O can be bought at any good grocery. This makes enough dessert for a large family and is very economical.

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

A white mantle covered the ground at sunrise but the snow soon changed to rain.

The Pioneer whist club met Wednesday evening with Mrs. Edgar James at Rawson road.

The city editor of the Daily Ledger now has a telephone at his residence, Quincy 166—3.

Importanr amendments to the bylaws are to be considered at the meeting of Rural lodge this week.

The Norfolk Downs Bridge whist club met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Lovely on Freeman street.

R. J. Snell a former teacher among the monntain whites, now a student at Harvard, is to speak next Sunday Evening, April 5, at the Point church.

Rev. Carl H. Raupach, pastor of the West Quincy M. E. church will review Sunday morning the church year, and will address the children at the Sunday school.

Plans are being made by the Quincy Congregational Union for a meeting of men from the seven Congregational churches of Quincy, to be held at Bethany Tuesday evening, April 7, at 7.45. The general topic of "Congregationalism in Quincy" is to be presented by fifteen able speakers in three-minute addresses.

Surprise Party.

Monday night a large party of girls and boys gathered at the home of Michael Sullivan on John street, Atlantic, to give him a surprise. There were about 100 in the party, coming from Quincy, Wollaston, Norfolk Downs, Atlantic, West Quincy, Rockland and Roxbury. During the evening "Mike" was presented with a handsome signet ring, and he quickly responded by thanking them all and hoped they would enjoy the evening. Songs were sung and games were played and then they all gathered around the table for refreshments.

HAYTI'S LATEST PLOT

Government Busily Engaged In Running Down Leaders

FRENCH MINISTER ALARMED

Fears That Troops May Attack Legation In Which Refugees Are Asylumned--Paris Hears That Complete Anarchy Reigns In Port au Prince

Port Au Prince, April 2.—The spirit of uncertainty and of unrest still prevails in Port au Prince. The recent abortive attempt at a second uprising here, in which General Larraque, chief of the cavalry, and several other army officers are alleged to have been implicated, has given the government a cause for making searches in all quarters of the city, in the hope of finding others they suspect of being involved in the plot.

The French minister to Hayti, M. Carteron, has recently shown considerable alarm concerning the action the Haytien government may take against the refugees now asylumned in the French legation. Some of the refugees themselves state that the minister has advised them to procure pistols and as much ammunition as possible, so that they may be prepared to defend their lives. According to the refugees, Carteron declared to them that he was unable to guarantee protection in the event of an attack upon the legation by government troops.

The French minister, when asked with regard to this statement, declined to deny or affirm it, but he did say that he had made a representation of the case to M. Borno, the minister of state, pointing out to him the French contention that the giving of sanctuary to the refugees was an absolutely legitimate proceeding.

It is generally believed here that the alarm of the French minister is unfounded. Up to the present the government's attitude has been a conciliatory one, and it seems to be its intention not to offer the slightest excuse for foreign intervention.

There are rumors here that summary executions continue in nearby country districts. For a long time past the government has had a large number of so-called political prisoners in hand, and it is reported that almost nightly some of these are taken from the prisons, transported to the country districts, not very remote from the city, and shot. This the government denies.

The French cruiser d'Estrees has not returned here from the Island of St. Thomas, to which she took the refugees from Gonaives. The German cruiser Bremen has returned from Kingston, and the United States cruiser Des Moines and gunboat Marietta are still here. The gunboat Eagle left two days ago, and the gunboat Paducah sailed for Guantanamo yesterday, where she will coal, later returning to Port au Prince.

"In State of Anarchy"

Paris, April 2.—A special dispatch from Port au Prince says that complete anarchy prevails there. A dispute is said to have arisen between General Coicou, chief of the military district of Port au Prince, and Camille Gabriel, nephew of President Nord, as to their respective power in coping with the situation. The dispatch adds that American warships are preparing to land troops.

Another dispatch from Port au Prince states that executions by the government still continue there. Among others shot yesterday, says the dispatch, was Arsene Chevry, a writer and poet. The French legation has made preparations to resist an attack.

Killed Officer In Self Defense

San Juan, P. R., April 2.—Alexander Dixon, a carpenter on the United States collier Abarenda, was acquitted of the murder of Chief Officer Welchert. A jury brought in a verdict of self-defense. Witnesses testified at the trial that Welchert had treated the prisoner in a brutal manner. During a quarrel Dixon swung at Welchert with an axe and completely severed his head.

Sailors Laid Up With Mumps

Philadelphia, April 2.—The new battleship Idaho was placed in commission by the government at League Island, though nearly half of the crew of 732 men assigned for duty on the vessel were absent because of an epidemic of mumps at the navy yard. Captain Diehl is in command. The ship will sail for the West Indies in about ten days.

To Fight For Woman Suffrage

New York, April 2.—Lady Cook, who, before her marriage to the late Sir Francis Cook, was Miss Tennessee Claflin of this city, arrived from England on steamer Oceanic and will wage another campaign in the interests of woman's suffrage, of which she has long been an advocate.

Vidaver Pleads Not Guilty

New York, April 2.—Nathan Vidaver, formerly one of Attorney General Jackson's special deputies, pleaded not guilty to two indictments filed against him by the grand jury, which charge him with attempted extortion. His bail was continued at $5000.

Blizzard in Minnesota

Crookston, Minn., April 2.—The entire Red river valley is in the grip of the worst blizzard of the winter. A foot of snow has fallen.

MINERS' WAGE AGREEMENT

It May Be Reached at a Meeting Called by President Lewis

Indianapolis, April 2.—The first official act of President Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America, in assuming office yesterday, was to send telegraphic invitations to the principal operators of the central competitive field, consisting of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, to attend a meeting in Indianapolis on April 6 with representatives of the miners to make an effort to agree upon a call for an interstate wage convention, and, if necessary, to decide upon a general resumption of mining operations in the field.

The telegrams were in the form of a question asking the operators whether they would be willing to attend such a meeting. Lewis says he has received a number of answers, the most of which are favorable to the move, but he has not yet received enough to determine the result. He is confident, however, that the move will result in a resumption of work, the rehabilitation of the interstate movement in this field, and, in consequence, the rehabilitation of the interstate movement in the southwest field and the outlying districts.

Ohio and Indiana operators have accepted the invitation. The result will lie in the hands of the western Pennsylvania and Illinois operators.

Won't Give Out Result of Vote

Boston, April 2.—President Tuttle of the Boston and Maine railroad has received the official answers of the various brotherhoods on their vote as to voluntarily accepting a cutdown of 5 percent in wages until July 1. Tuttle refused to state what the vote of the men was and the brotherhoods would give out no statement, but it is understood that the vote resulted almost in a deadlock as to the acceptance of the plan of the railroad officials.

New Tax Considered Excessive

Fall River, Mass., April 2.—The Weavers' union of this city, the largest textile union in the country, last night voted to withdraw from the United Textile Workers of America, the national organization composed of 163 unions. The weavers object to a per capita tax of 15 cents after May 1, which was recently decided upon by a convention of textile workers. The tax is now 10 cents.

Spinners Vote to Accept Cut

New Bedford, Mass., April 2.—The spinners met last night and discussed the conference report that the manufacturers would not change their minds about the 10 percent reduction. After a discussion it was voted by a small margin to accept the cut for the present, but much dissatisfaction was expressed at the low wages to be received.

Boston Granite Cutters Out

Boston, April 2.—A strike of granite cutters within the city limits of Boston was inaugurated when 150 men employed in twelve shops went out on strike. They demand an increase of nearly 2 cents an hour in pay.

People's Party Won't Name Bryan

St. Louis, April 2.—Admirers of W. J. Bryan among the delegates to the national convention of the People's party made earnest efforts to have the convention postpone nominations until after the Democratic convention at Denver, to see whether Bryan be nominated for president by the Democrats, but the Bryan supporters were defeated at every turn. Bryan's supporters will carry their proposal to the convention as a last resort.

Senator on the Rampage

Little Rock, April 2.—United States Senator Jeff Davis was fined $25 in police court here for disturbing the peace. Davis was in court. Witnesses testified that Davis ran to his office after having been assaulted by Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Helm, got a revolver and returned to the scene looking for Helm. Witnesses also testified that Davis cursed much. Davis charged a cowardly attempt had been made to murder him.

Convicts to Build Highways

Washington, April 2.—Convicts serving sentences at hard labor in the penitentiary at Culebra, in the Panama canal zone, are to be set to work on highway construction between Gatun and Mount Hope. Because of the increasing number of such convicts, it has been found impossible to utilize their services near the penitentiary.

German Machine Far In Rear

Seattle, April 2.—The American automobile in the New York-to-Paris race was hoisted aboard the steamship Santa Clara yesterday and sailed for Valdez, Alaska. The Italian car passed Santa Barbara, Cal., yesterday afternoon for San Francisco. The French car passed Rhyolite, Nev., yesterday and the German machine is in Evanston, Wyo.

Will Cut Out Foot Washing

Vienna, April 2.—As a measure of precaution on account of ill-health Emperor Francis Joseph will abstain from taking part in the holy week ceremonies, which include the washing of the feet of the poor.

Cody Has Nervous Breakdown

Chicago, April 2.—Colonel William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) is seriously ill at the Stratford hotel. He is suffering from a general nervous breakdown, caused largely by a recent attack of the grip.

SUES FOR A DIVORCE

Mrs. Alfred Vanderbilt Has Papers Filed at New York

APPOINTMENT OF REFEREE

Couple Married In 1901 and Have One Child--Plaintiff Left Newport Home a Short Time Ago, Taking Much of the Furnishings With Her

New York, April 2.—Within an hour after he had sailed for Europe yesterday, Alfred G. Vanderbilt was made the defendant in the suit filed with the supreme court by his wife, Ellen French Vanderbilt. The nature of the action was not immediately disclosed and counsel for the plaintiff refused last night to state whether Mrs. Vanderbilt sought a divorce or legal separation from her husband. Justice O'Gorman, before whom the proceedings were instituted, appointed David McClure as referee to hear testimony and report findings and recommendations to the court.

It was learned late last night from an official in the county courthouse, who saw the papers in the case, that Mrs. Vanderbilt's action is one for absolute divorce.

Chandler P. Anderson, Vanderbilt's personal counsel, who was seeff in regard to the suit, said: "You see I am in no position to talk of the affairs of my client." When Anderson was informed that it had been learned that the action was one for absolute divorce, he said: "I cannot talk."

Had secrecy for the time being been wished the action of counsel could not have been better timed. The offices of the county clerk are closed at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Only a few moments before that hour the comparing clerk received the papers. By the time that that official was through with them it was too late for the papers to be officially recorded yesterday. They were placed in a safe and will be formally entered today.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was Ellen French, daughter of the late Francis O. French, president of the Manhattan Trust company and director of many railroads. Her mother has been abroad for several years, but is returning for the nuptials of her granddaughter, Miss Pauline L. French, and Samuel Wagstaff, which will be solemnized at Newport. Ellen, or as she is more generally known, Elsie French, married Alfred G. Vanderbilt on Jan. 11, 1901. A year later their only child, William H., was born.

Mr. Vanderbilt, as the second son of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, inherited something like $60,000,000. He has been regarded as the head of the family since the estrangement following the marriage of Cornelius, the eldest son, to Miss Grace Wilson.

Vanderbilt sailed yesterday afternoon on the Mauretania, upon which vessel his cousin, the Duchess of Marlborough, also was a passenger. The duchess had been the guest recently of her mother, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont. Seen just before the Mauretania left her pier, Vanderbilt declined to discuss the report that a separation from his wife was imminent. A half-hour later Mrs. Vanderbilt's attorneys appeared before Justice O'Gorman.

The domestic affairs of Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt have engaged public attention since March 24, when Mrs. Vanderbilt, accompanied by her son and her maids, left Oakland Farm, near Newport, R. I., and went to the home of her brother, Amos T. French, at Tuxedo Park, this state. Much of the furnishings at the Newport home have been shipped to Tuxedo. The French cottage at Tuxedo has been put in shape, it is said, for continued occupancy. Vanderbilt, while here recently, has had apartments at the Plaza hotel. Neither Vanderbilt nor his wife would discuss the reports that gained circulation after her removal from Newport.

At Tuxedo last night it was said that Mrs. Vanderbilt had left for New York. It was reported that she would spend some time with her attorneys here, but whether she remained in the city for the night is not known. At the Plaza hotel it was said that communications sent to the Vanderbilt apartments remained unanswered.

Claims of Presidential Candidates

Boston, April 2.—The relative eligibility of Hughes, Bryan and Taft for the nomination for the presidency of the United States was presented before the Twentieth Century club last night. The claims of Hughes were presented by A. E. Pillsbury, the claims of Bryan by G. F. Williams and the claims of Taft by J. J. Myers. Edwin D. Mead, who presided, declared that there was no partisanship in the meeting.

No Criticism of Hay

Cleveland, April 2.—Professor Henry W. Elliott, in a signed statement, declares that, contrary to published reports, there was no criticism of the acts of the late Secretary of State Hay in his report on the seal question, which was recently printed by order of the United States senate and later withdrawn.

Great Snowstorm In Manitoba

Winnipeg, Man., April 2.—A great snowstorm is general all over the west and traffic is blocked for the first time this season on several railway lines. Many settlers and their effects from the United States are tied up and considerable hardship prevails.

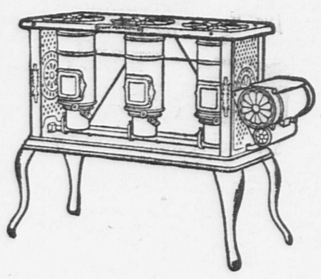
Put This Stove in Your Kitchen



It is wonderfully convenient to do kitchen work on a stove that's ready at the instant wanted, and out of the way the moment you're done. Such a stove is the New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove. By using it you avoid the continuous overpowering heat of a coal fire and cook with comfort, even in dog-days. The

NEW PERFECTION

is so constructed that it cannot add perceptibly to the heat of a room; the flame being directed up a retaining chimney to the stove top where it is needed for cooking. You can see that a stove sending out heat in but one direction would be preferable on a hot day to a stove radiating heat in all directions. The "New Perfection" keeps a kitchen uniformly comfortable. Three sizes, fully warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

THE KAISER'S LETTER

Supposed Correspondence With Tweedmouth Made Public

"GOVERNOR OF DRAIN PIPES"

Accused of Rekindling Distrust Instead of Allaying It "Like Me and You"--Shows No Attempt to Influence British Naval Policy

Berlin, April 2.—The publication in a Munich journal which is issued twice a month of what it claims to be a copy of the letter which Emperor William sent to Lord Tweedmouth, first lord of the British admiralty, which created a sensation both in Germany and in England, and a letter from Lord Tweedmouth in reply has caused considerable commotion in Berlin.

The impression prevails in well-informed circles that both letters are authentic. The paper does not explain how the letters came into its possession. As reproduced, the emperor's letter appears quite harmless in character. It was called out through a published letter of Lord Esher, who is a member of the entourage of King Edward, in which he said:

"There is not a man in Germany, from the emperor downward, who would not welcome the fall of Sir John Fisher." Sir John Fisher is senior naval lord of the British admiralty.

In referring to this statement, according to the letter as published, the emperor says: "Instead of allaying distrust like me and you, he rekindles it, and that at the fireside of gentlemen of the Maritime League, which had already shown no lack of distrust. You know yourself, my dear lord, that I am the last person to take delight in the difficulties of the Sea Lord, and you know how I think about German machinations against Tirpitz." Admiral Von Tirpitz is secretary of the German admiralty.

"Our sea power," continues the emperor, "is one-fifth yours. One-fifth! Do you know what that means? It means that Germany can never take the offensive at sea, only she is not disposed to neglect the duty of defensive and self-preservation.

"The political doctrine that says the two circles of Germany and Great Britain must cut across each other is wrong. Nowhere are they political; always are they economical. The economical tendency of same enlargement must, between intelligent peoples, never be exploited in any other way except in the form of peaceful rivalry."

Referring to his visit to London last November and an address which he made at a reception given in his honor at the Guildhall, he said: "This time, as well as sixteen years ago, I said in the Guildhall that I honestly wished to maintain peace and friendship with England, and the wishes of the German nation are the same as my own.

"I must close. M. Cambon of the French embassy is waiting to hand me an album upon the boundary regulations between the German Cameroons and the French Congo. I close with the knowledge that between us two such misunderstandings as have happened to Lord Esher are impossible. It would be a good thing if, before he occupies himself with naval politics and before he attributes intentions which do not exist to others, he would think how he might possibly induce the drain pipes at Windsor to produce a normal ventilation."

In his reply Lord Tweedmouth thanks the emperor for his gratifying confidence and says that it is certainly true with him, and with the great majority of his countrymen, that a misunderstanding of his majesty's intentions is out of the question. "The era of misunderstanding," says Tweedmouth, "is closed. It is closed in consequence of the impressions left behind by the days of November."

He remarks jestingly that he has no occasion to feel ill will towards "the governor of the drain pipes at Windsor, whose business it is to produce pure ventilation," for he continues, "to his mishap I am indebted for your majesty's autographic letter."

Trying to Check Family Breach

New York, April 2.—Evidence is forthcoming that efforts are being made to check a family breach occasioned by Mme. Anna Gould's reported determination to accept the hand of Prince Helie de Sagan. Last night Edwin Gould and his wife visited Mme. Gould in her apartments at the Hotel St. Regis, where she is suffering from bronchitis. Other relatives evinced their concern by repeated telephone inquiries.

Two Cases of Suicide

Meriden, Conn., April 2.—Frank B. Leard, 43 years old, took his life while at work in a local factory by taking potassium cyanide. Mrs. R. M. Colburn, a widow, 55 years old, hanged herself in the attic of her home. Leard is said to have been despondent and Mrs. Colburn a sufferer from melancholia.

Present Wage Scale Will Continue

Washington, April 2.—Messrs. Knapp and Neill, the mediators between the Southern railway officials and their employes, have reached an agreement by which the present wage scale on the Southern railway for all the organizations concerned will be continued until July 1 next.

HOOSIERS FOR FAIRBANKS

Platform Embodies His Views and Instructs Delegates

Indianapolis, April 2.—Indiana Republicans, in state convention, cleared the way for the adoption of a platform, the selection of delegates-at-large and the nomination of a state ticket today.

Vice President Fairbanks, in a letter read before the convention, outlined his views on tariff revision, suggesting that such changes as may be desirable should be made after the presidential election this fall and before the present congress adjourns next spring.

The vice president's views were incorporated in the platform, which the committee on resolutions finished last night. The platform also contains a vigorous endorsement of Fairbanks as Indiana's choice for presidential candidate and instructions to the national delegates to vote and work for his nomination at Chicago.

Other planks include a demand for a law against child labor, recommendations for a national bureau of mines, for allowing to defendants notice and hearing before injunctions are granted, for national health laws, for currency reform, without naming any particular bill; for a law supplementing the present state liquor laws, and for a more general primary election law and for an inheritance tax law.

The platform also endorses President Roosevelt, waterways improvements and economic administration of national affairs, especially of the army and navy.

Not Ready to Become Territory

Washington, April 2.—Governor Hoggatt of Alaska presented to the house committee on territories argument against a bill to provide a territorial form of government for Alaska. He said that Alaska's total white population, scattered over a vast area, does not exceed 30,000 persons; that until the natural isolation of Alaska's communities one from another is overcome by transportation facilities the best form of government is that by courts, which now obtains. Delegate Cale of Alaska, the author of the bill, spoke in its support.

Pinchot Defends Himself

Washington, April 2.—In view of the allegation against him on the floor of the house, Chief Pinchot of the forestry bureau has addressed a letter to Mr. Pollard, a member of the committee, in which he denies that either the forest service or himself ever paid a cent to any newspaper or magazine to advertise the bureau's work; denies that either his bureau or himself ever instigated or procured attacks on public men, and denies the misuse of public funds.

Headed Off by Detectives

Cherbourg, April 2.—Detectives arrested Alexandro Giometto, an Italian railroad official, while he was in the act of boarding steamer Teutonic, for New York. Giometto is charged with the robbery of $93,200 from a railroad station. Gold to the amount of $30,800 and $14,800 in banknotes were found in his possession. He was accompanied by a young woman with whom, it is alleged, he was eloping to the United States, having abandoned his family in poverty.

Suspension Bridge Gave Way

Bluefield, W. Va., April 2.—Three men were drowned at Rock by the collapse of a suspension bridge spanning Blue Stone river. They were standing on the bridge with five other persons watching the rushing current, when the bridge gave way, precipitating the entire eight into the river. Five were washed down stream to a point where the river had overflowed its banks and were lodged in trees and bushes, from which they were rescued.

Employers' Liability Bill Ready

Washington, April 2.—The house judiciary committee has cleared the way for a speedy report of the employers' liability bill. Final amendments were agreed to, and in its new form the bill will be reported to the house tomorrow with the recommendation that it pass. The present plan is to put the bill through the house next Monday under suspension of the rules.

New York's Anti-Gambling Bills

Albany, April 2.—The senate last night, by a vote of 26 to 23 in committee of the whole, voted to strike from the first of the anti-race track gambling bills the amendment deferring its taking effect until Sept. 1. This restores the bill to the form desired by Governor Hughes and its introducers. It now reads so as to "take effect immediately."

Local Option Bill Killed

Albany, April 2.—The city local option bill was practically killed for the session by the assembly committee on excise, which defeated a motion to report the bill. The bill would have extended to cities the privilege now enjoyed throughout the state of local elections as to permitting traffic in liquor.

TOOK COURSE OF THIEVERY

Pair of Fagin School Graduates Caught by Boston Inspector

Boston, April 2.—A strange tale of a school in New York where boys are taught to pick pockets, reading like a page out of Fagin's exploits in Dickens' "Oliver Twist," was told to the police yesterday by two young boys, who were taken to police headquarters by Inspector Knox, and who are alleged to have attempted to loot a bag belonging to Mrs. Ida Green. They gave their names as Louis Pearlstein, 14 years old, and Samuel Goldstein, 11 years old, both of New York.

According to the police, the boys say they were taught at a school on Delancy street, New York, where all sorts of thievery was included in the curriculum. As pay, the boys said, they handed over all their loot to the man who taught them everything from stealing fine lace handkerchiefs to purloining purses and watches from pockets.

Both boys looked like children of respectable parents, being well dressed and wearing knee breeches. Three pocketbooks were found on them, which the police took to mean that their schooling had not been in vain.

The boys said they were told that Boston was "an easy town," so they came over here yesterday, getting to work at once.

Inspector Knox caught them searching the handbag of Mrs. Green. They were taken to headquarters, but as they were juveniles they could not be arrested and were turned over to the probation officer.

Tight Squeeze In Speed Trial

Rockland, Me., April 2.—Facing adverse conditions in the way of head wind and heavy seas, the armored cruiser Montana won a slender victory on the Rockland trial course. Her fastest mile, which was made with the tide in her favor, was at the rate of 22.86 knots an hour, but the average of her five runs at top speed was 22.035. This gives but a small margin over contract requirements from the builders, the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company.

Not Connected With Murder

Boston, April 2.—Satisfied that the ravings of Thomas Dickson, or Davis, as he also called himself, of Malden, who was arrested Tuesday night at the North station by Officer Colbert for strange mutterings about the murder of Annie Mullins, were due to the effect of alcohol and that the man was in no way connected with the crime, Chief Urquhart of the Arlington police last night consented to his release.

Money Order Blanks Stolen

Boston, April 2.—Postoffice officials announce that 157 money order blanks were stolen from sub-station No. 97 by two strangers. At sub-station No. 41 rubber stamps used on money orders and registered letters were stolen. The blanks can be filled out for amounts as great as $100 each, and the officials fear that the thieves will circulate the orders by turning them in to merchants for goods.

Bank Loses Two Officers by Death

North Attleboro, Mass., April 2.—While the directors of the Attleboro Savings bank were passing resolutions on the death of William H. Pond, who was a trustee of the bank, and were making arrangements for attending his funeral, a telegram was received announcing the death in Florida of Charles E. Bliss, vice president of the bank. He was 71 years old.

Peace Movement Growing

Boston, April 2.—The board of directors of the American Peace society has voted to recommend to the annual meeting of the society, to be held in Boston on May 18, that branch societies be formed in local centres and by states throughout the country. This policy is stated to be due to the growth of interest in the movement for peace and arbitration.

Figured In Fearful Disaster

Providence, April 2.—All that is left of the steamer General Slocum arrived in this port as the barge Maryland, with 1250 tons of coal. In June, 1904, the General Slocum left her pier in the East river loaded with about 1800 passengers. Before the craft had gone three miles fire was discovered and over 1000 persons met their death.

To Have New County Buildings

Plymouth, Mass., April 2.—The county commissioners have received from the estate of Albert C. Chandler a deed for farm land where a new jail, house of correction and other county buildings are to be erected. It is proposed to have part of the work done by prisoners from the present jail.

Foster Heads Pilgrim Fathers

Boston, April 2.—The twenty-ninth annual meeting of the supreme colony, United Order of Pilgrim Fathers, was held in this city, with 250 present. The supreme secretary reported there were 19,129 members in the state. Edwin O. Foster of Salem was elected supreme governor.

Disposed of Counterfeit Money

Boston, April 2.—John P. Simms of Lowell was found guilty of passing counterfeit money by a jury in the United States district court. The authorities found molds and sand in the cellar of Simms' house. Simms will be sentenced next Tuesday.

Financial Agent Bankrupt

Boston, April 2.—In the United States district court, Cardenio F. King, formerly a financial agent in New York and Boston, was declared bankrupt and Emery B. Gibbs was appointed referee by Judge Dodge. The whereabouts of King are unknown.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

No 60 degree temperature this week.

Mayor Shea is out of town for a few days.

Note the bargains of M. O'Keefe for Friday and Saturday.

The City Council Committee on Licenses will meet tonight.

Two new summer houses are being built at the foot of Edison park on the marsh.

The Citizens' Gas Light Co. report many orders for connections for gas stoves.

Carlson & Nelson are offering lots near the seashore at Squantum Park for desirable summer residences.

Irma, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vinton Pierce of Wilton, N. H., is dangerously ill of plural pneumonia.

Franklin Curtis was one of the clerks at the custom house to receive the increase in salary announced Wednesday.

Mrs. John Lennon and two children of Marlboro, who have been visiting relatives in Quincy, return home today.

The Ladies' Aid met Monday at the home of Mrs. P. H. Holman, South street, to plan for the anniversary supper of April 10.

Word has been received of the death on Wednesday, at Taunton, of Loring Newcomb, a former well known resident at Quincy Point.

There have been so many cases of rabbies among dogs that the Board of Health will ask the City Council to enforce the dog muzzling law.

Col. Edward Anderson read a paper on "The Indians in our Civil War" before the Loyal Legions at the American house, Boston, on Wednesday evening.

Work on the new Coddington school building is progressing favorably. The excavating for the cellar is about completed. A derrick has been raised and considerable of the granite for the foundation walls is on the ground. Work has also been commenced laying the wall.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Doble of South street are anxiously waiting to hear from their daughter, Mrs. John H. Leavell, whose residence is now in Mexico City. She wrote the day before the earthquake, but no intelligence has since been received. Press reports, however, say no one was hurt in Mexico City.

Former and present members of the Point church and parish, who plan to attend the supper and post prandial addresses at the church, anniversary day, April 10th, are asked to send their names to Mrs. Rollin Newcomb or Mrs. Holman, that preparations may be made beforehand for all who wish to attend.

First Church Sunday school and friends are invited to the chapel on Friday, April 3, at 4 o'clock, to listen to a talk illustrated by the stereopticon on the work of the Morgan Memorial by the superintendent of that mission, Rev. J. Helms. At the close the superintendent of the school, Mr. C. H. Johnson, will speak on the Fresh Air Camp.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

The steamship Altamaha, built at the Fore River for the Brunswick S. S. Co., will soon leave the yard for New York where she will be put in commission. The Altamaha is the fifth steamship built at these works for the Brunswick S. S. Co., and although completed some time ago with the exception of her trial she has been moored in the Fore River basin the greater part of the winter on account of the decided falling off in freight traffic between New York and southern ports.

The Brunswick Steamship Co. announces a new semi-weekly service between New York and Brunswick, Ga., to be inaugurated April 1. Five newly-constructed 3,000-ton steel steamers, built by the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., will fill the service. sailings to be on Wednesdays and Saturdays from both ports. The Brunswick Steamship Co. has hitherto maintained irregular sailings between New York and Brunswick, but has now decided to supplant this with the new service.

A derrick casting has been machined for Connors Brothers Co.

Two cast iron propellors have been made for the Brunswick Steamship Co.

Coddington Accident May Result Fatally

Reports from the City Hospital this morning are that the condition of John Crowley, who was injured by the falling derrick at the Coddington school yard on Wednesday, is unchanged. He is still unconscious, and in a precarious condition. Mr. Crowley is a brother of Dennis F. Crowley, the contractor, and the latter stood near by when the derrick fell. It struck the unfortunate man a glancing blow on the head, and as he fell back he was caught in the arms of his brother. Willing hands assisted him to the Builders' shanty that had been erected on the lot, and Dr. Jones and Dr. Hunting were soon on the spot. The police ambulance was called and he was removed to the City Hospital.

At Work at Milford

A dispatch from Milford, N. H., says the trouble with the quarrymen has been settled, and that the men have returned to work. About 200 men are employed.

Preventative Work Is Necessary

Mr. Warren F. Spalding, secretary of the Massachusetts Prison Association, spoke to the Mothers' Association at Bethany Chapel, Wednesday evening, on "The New View of the Bad Boy." He began with a reference to the old view of the juvenile offender, that he was a criminal, as much so as the adult offender, and that all legal processes should be the same. He was complained of for committing a crime, was "arraigned," "convicted" and "punished" as a criminal. The record was a criminal record and could not be effaced.

One of the results of considering him a criminal was that large numbers of children were sent to jail—372 between 12 and 17, in a single year, to the Suffolk county jail, with adults. Many of the offences were very petty.

The new view is embodied in new legislation. The offence is not ignored, but the proceedings are not criminal. The boy is charged with being a "delinquent child," a condition and not an offence. He is not "convicted," but "adjudged to be delinquent." The record involves no stigma. The powers of the court are substantially the same as under the old law, but the purposes is reclamation and not punishment.

The new method naturally leds to a study of the causes of juvenile crime, for the juvenile offender is a product. Mr. Spalding enumerated some of the causes, prominent among them being had homes, bad parents and bad environment. Lack of facilities and opportunities for play constitute another cause. We violate the laws of a boy's nature and then wonder that he violates our laws. A playground is better and cheaper than a policeman in preventing juvenile crime.

The new law does not merely provide a new way of doing an old thing, it provides for something entirely new—for reclamation, rather than punishment. A boy may be restrained from doing the wrong he wants to do by fear of punishment, but that to be effective must be constant, which is impossible. The only way to prevent a bad boy from doing bad things is to so change his character, that he will not want to do them. The new law aims to do this.

New powers are given. Instead of a fine for larceny, he is to make restitution. No boy who has committed an offence against the person or property should be released by the court until restitution or reparation has been made. They are far more effective than fines; they teach him the rights of property. Parents may be held responsible for the delinquency of their children.

But the most effective feature of the new law is found in the opportunity it gives for friendly supervision. When punishment was the aim, the private citizen could do little. It was the work of the courts. But with reclamation as the aim there is work for volunteer helpers. The Western courts are far ahead of ours. They utilize friendly visitors as they are used in charity work, but the work can be undertaken only by trained workers who are ready to undertake the supervision of probationers. They must watch over him rather than watch him; get into friendly relations with him and win his confidence. The personal touch of a good man or woman is the only power that will transform a bad boy.

Too much is expected of the court. It gets the boy after the great trinity of preventive forces have failed—the home, the church and the school. More preventive work is necessary. The great need of a city like Quincy is a juvenile improvement association, made up of the best women and men who can be found. Its first business should be to study the whole question of local juvenile crime, the places where it originates and its causes. Then and not until then will it be able to devise and apply remedies. Such an association, ready to supply trained volunteers for the care of probationers, can be of great value to the court. It can help the bad boy by supplying his one great need, a decent, helpful friend.

Mr. Spalding related many incidents illustrating the methods of using the new legislation, and the results secured.

He also answered several questions asked by those in the audience.

About 150 were present and showed deep interest in the subject discussed. Mrs. W. H. Doble, the president of the Mothers' Association, presided, and by request reviewed the history of the association which was organized in 1863.

A pleasing part of the program of the evening were the solos by Miss Winnetta Lamson, who was accompanied by Mrs. Jennie Hocking Hunt. Her first group included: "My lassie" by Mrs. Beach; "Love in May" by Horatio Parker; and "The Danza" by Chadwick. Group two included these selections by Horatio Parker: "Once I loved a maiden fair" and "The lark now leaves his watery nest."

Inspection By Board of Health

The Board of Health put on their war paint Thursday afternoon and went on a tour about the city. First they visited the Fore River Shipbuilding plant and inspected the sanitary conditions.

From there they visited the Syrian boarding houses that they inspected a few nights ago, to see if their orders in regard to thinning out the number of beds in rooms had been carried out. In some cases they had, and in some they had not. These latter places were made to to understand that the Board meant business.

The next section visited was the Italian fruit peddlers at South Quincy. Many Italians have been in the habit of keeping bananas in sleeping rooms. This is against the rules of the Board of Health. As far as this was concerned the board found but little violation, as none of the fruit men had many bananas on hand. These places will be called upon again as soon as the next ship load of bananas arrives.

Up to the present time the Board of Health seems to be very much alive.

Quincy Mutual Is Prosperous

The 57th annual meeting of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company was held on Wednesday, when all the officers were reelected. The financial statement was very gratifying as it showed a gain where most of the insurance companies have lost because of the depression in stocks. The report shows a gain of about $16,000 in the cash fund, and about $11,000 in the surplus for the year.

It was the first annual meeting that President Charles A. Howland has missed during the fifty years that he has been connected with the company, having been confined to the house with a severe cold for two weeks.

The directors elect are: George W. Morton, Thomas Curtis, Charles A. Howland, Theophilus King, Charles H. Porter, Henry M. Faxon and Charles A. Howland, Jr., of Quincy, and Charles G. Hathaway of Plymouth.

The officers are:

President—Charles A. Howland.
Vice President—C. A. Howland, Jr.
Secretary—William H. Fay.
Assistant Secretary—James F. Young.

The cash fund of the company is now $730,697.73, and the total liabilities $262,623.31. The amount at risk is $33,468,106.00. The losses of the year were $44,842.09.

Condition Critical.

There has been but little change in the condition of John Crowley, the man injured at the Coddington school yard on Wednesday. He has not regained consciousness and but slight hopes are entertained for his recovery.

Thursday afternoon an operation was performed by a surgeon from Boston, and a clot of blood was found on the brain. No work has been done on the foundation of the building since the time of the accident.

Rural Lodge Is Flourishing

When Rural lodge of Masons was about to move into its new apartments five years ago, it was thought necessary to increase the annual dues to $6, but the beautiful and commodious quarters have proved so attractive, and the reputation of the lodge has won the confidence of so many, that the membership has increased very rapidly, and now numbers about 325. The annual dues and the fees for degrees have been in excess of the requirements of the lodge, so that at the communication this week it was decided to restore the old dues of $5 per year. The bylaws were also amended to provide that the fee for degrees shall be $50, and that life membership may be obtained for $75. Steps were also taken to establish a permanent fund and the appointment of trustees.

New members are being elected at each meeting, and two special communications will be held this month for work.

At the close of the meeting a banquet was served by Bro. Henry P. Furnald, which gave good satisfaction. It included croquettes and peas, potato salad, ice cream and cake, coffee and cigars. Some members told of their visits to other lodges, and it is the intention to make more of these banquets in the future, introducing music and other entertainment.

Rural lodge has also taken steps to assist in establishing a Masonic Home in Massachusetts. There are now 53,000 Masons in the state, and it is hoped that a fund of $250,000 can be raised. The grand master, the chairman of the general committee, and the chairman of the finance committee will be trustees of the fund. All contributions will be voluntary.

Brooks Adams on Lack of Constraint

"The most salient characteristic of our community is the failure within it of the principle of unity or the inability of our society as a unit to constrain its members for the common good. Whether we note the dissolution of the family tie through divorce and the consequent weakening of parental authority, or the immunity of the homicide and the embezzler, or the recklessness of life shown by the railway corporation, the mine owner and the automobilist, or the temper of mixed despotism and insubordination manifested by the trade union, or the helplessness of municipalities, in the clutch of plunderers, or the paralysis of legislation by the interference of the judiciary or the disrepute into which representatives assembles have fallen all the world over, or the spread of anarchism, we reach the conclusion that society as a unit is acting upon individuals with lessening energy."—Brooks Adams in address at Boston University.

Probate Court.

Judge Flint held probate court for Norfolk county at Dedham on Wednesday and transacted the following business:

Wills allowed of Robert B. Leuchars of Brookline, Hannah W. Wilder of Brookline, Michael Mulvehill of Westwood, Mary Cronin of Stoughton, Elizabeth J. Hartshorn of Needham, Nancy Bradbury of Quincy, William C. Cowan of Hyde Park, Louisa M. Fletcher of Franklin, Henry D. Noyes of Hyde Park, Nicholas Lanergan of Medway.

Administrations granted on the estates of William C. Ulman of Brookline, Mary E. Morton of Foxboro, Mary Effie Palmer of Hyde Park, John Hollinshead of Braintree, George H. Tucker of Sharon, Warren N. King of Franklin, Joseph Goodrich of Brookline, Adeline Alden of Dedham, Geo. E. Jones of Needham, Wallace S. Rice of Wollaston, and Dr. Vesta D. Miller of Needham.

Edward B. Marsh was appointed conservator of the property of Lucy M. Jillson of Quincy.

Heavy Fines In Smelt Cases

Catching smelts, or having them in your possession during the closed season, is expensive. This fact was made apparent to three Weymouth men this morning at the district court, when fines aggregating $2186 were imposed. The three men were arrested at East Weymouth on the night of March 28, by the deputy officers of the Fish and Game commission, viz: Patrick Haniford, Parker Rogers and John W. Curtis.

The law provides a penalty of $1 per smelt. Haniford had 1017 smelts and was fined $1,017; Rogers had 590 smelts, and was fined $590; while Curtis who had 579 smelts, was fined $579. All three appealed and recognized for the superior court.

Big Increase In Use of Gas

A statement of the net earnings of the subsidiary companies of the Massachusetts Gas Company issued March 19, shows that in percentage of increase in gas outputs for February, the Citizens of Quincy was much the largest. It was over 42 plus per cent., against 11 plus for the Boston Consolidated, 16 plus for the Chelsea Gas Company, and 18 plus for the East Boston company. The gas output in Quincy has more than doubled since July 1, 1906, as will be seen by these figures which show a large percentage of increase than in Boston, East Boston or Chelsea. They are for the eight months ending March 1, 1908, and for the eight months ending March 1, 1907:

	1908.	1907.
Boston Consolidated Gas	10.42	11.51
Chelsea Gas	15.96	27.14
East Boston Gas	24.48	18.56
Citizens, Quincy	51.13	55.13

CAUSE AND CURE OF APPENDICITIS

THE SIMPLE REMEDY THAT EFFECTS THE CURE

Professor Blanchard of the French Academy of Medicine has spent a great amount of time studying that dread disease—Appendicitis. In company with Professor Metchnikoff, he has carefully examined numerous cases, and both have reached the conclusion that the cure is not the knife. In more than forty cases the symptoms of Appendicitis disappeared after the patients had been treated for worms.

There are, no doubt, many persons suffering from worms who are erroneously attributing their trouble to some other cause. A few doses of Dr. True's Elixir are sufficient in most cases for the complete expulsion of the worms.

The presence of these parasites is easily recognized by the following symptoms:—Indigestion; foul tongue; offensive breath; variable appetite; hard and full belly with occasional gripings an i pains about the navel; heavy, dull eyes; itching of the nose; short dry cough; grinding of the teeth; starting during sleep; slow and frequent fever; in children—convulsions and bed wetting.

Dr. True's Elixir will not only expel the worms, but will build up the whole system as well.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR THE OLD FAMILY REMEDY

has been in constant use for more than half a century. Even though no worms may be present, Dr. True's Elixir prevents their growth and is an invaluable remedy for the relief of stomach ills. Its marvelous tonic qualities brings back a feeble and impaired digestion; purifies and enriches the blood; quickly regulates a disordered liver.

Dr. True's Elixir is used and endorsed by physicians and hospitals all over the country. Read what Mrs. Joy says of Dr. True's Elixir:—

CENTRE ABINGTON, MASS.

DR. TRUE:—"I wish to inform you of the success I have had in using one bottle of your Elixir. I gave it to my children, and after the third dose one of them passed a long round worm. I also wish to say it is one of the safest and best medicines to have in the house for children. I would not be without it now." Sincerely yours,

Mrs. Henry C. Joy.

Dr. True's Elixir is sold by druggists everywhere at 35c, 50c, and $1.00 a bottle. An interesting and instructive booklet entitled "Children and Their Diseases" will be sent free to all who apply for it, by simply addressing Dr. J. F. True & Co., Auburn, Me. We have a special treatment for tape-worm. Send for free book.

AS MAJORITY WILLS

Payne Says Business of the House Will Go Through

THE FILIBUSTER DENOUNCED

Begun In Earnest by Democrats, Who Adopt Obstructive Tactics to Prevent Business Being Done--Meet With Defeat After Long Sitting

Washington, April 3.—Formal notice was served on the Democrats in the house of representatives late yesterday by Mr. Payne of New York, leader of the majority, that from that time on the Republicans will lock horns with the Democrats and carry through the majority's program notwithstanding the attempt of the minority, under the leadership of Mr. Williams of Mississippi, to dictate the character of legislation to be enacted.

Immediately undertaking to carry this schedule into effect, he forced the latest sitting of the session. Both sides were able to keep their members in their seats, and it soon became evident that the Democratic filibuster was on in earnest and that the Republicans were determined at least to test the sincerity of their opponents.

After the passage of the agricultural appropriation bill the Democrats began obstructive tactics to prevent any business being done. After several measures had been refused consideration by reason of these tactics, Mr. Payne called up the resolution to refer to the several committees the president's recent message to congress.

Observing that the Democrats were preparing to block its consideration unless ample time was given for general debate, Payne asserted that "because of the hypocrisy of those on the other side," meaning the Democrats, no general debate would be allowed.

Mr. Payne denounced the Democratic filibuster which was begun last Monday in pursuance of the notice given by Williams a week ago, and characterized Williams' action as "puerile." The Democrats, he contended, were in no position to lay down a program for the Republicans. "The majority," he said, "have charge of the business of the house and the business will go through just as the majority decides it shall go through."

Discussing the president's message, Payne asserted that there never was any doubt about a new employers' liability law being enacted this session. He gave notice that in future he would object to all Democratic requests for unanimous consent or for time to speak.

After forcing thirteen rollcalls and exhausting their parliamentary resources in employment of dilatory tactics, the Democrats in the house found themselves worsted in the struggle. The majority side at 10:09 o'clock carried a motion to adjourn by a vote of 121 to 81.

Fusillade In Courtroom

Terre Haute, Ind., April 3.—Having been found guilty on a charge of arson, Henry D. McDonald, in the circuit courtroom, drew a revolver and shot and killed Chief of Detectives Dwyer, seriously wounded three other officers and a bystander, and was himself seriously wounded. McDonald had been tried for dynamiting stores and a church in Sandford. While McDonald was held to be a desperate man, he had been permitted his liberty during the trial. The police department has been active in the case and several officers were in court to hear the verdict.

Ferryboat Damaged by Steamer

New York, April 3.—Ferryboat Maine, plying the East River, was run into near the Brooklyn shore last night by a sound steamer. The upper-works of the ferryboat were wrecked and she is said to have sustained some damage below the waterline. She steamed under own power to a repair yard, where her frightened passengers were put ashore. The steamboat was apparently undamaged.

To Test "Hollow Earth" Theory

Albany, April 3.—The Reed Hollow Earth Exploring club of New York has filed a certificate of incorporation with the secretary of state. The club is organized to explore the Arctic and Antarctic region "to the end that the truth or falsity of the proposition or theory advanced by William R. Reed that the earth is a hollow sphere may be established with absolute certainty."

Agricultural Bill Passed

Washington, April 3.—Carrying a total of $11,508,806, the agricultural appropriation bill was passed by the house of representatives. It had been under discussion for nine days and from the time its consideration began until the very end its provisions were attacked at every turn, with the result that it underwent many changes.

RUN DOWN BY CRUISER

British Torpedo Boat Destroyer Sunk and Many Men Drowned

Portsmouth, Eng., April 4.—During night maneuvers in the channel the cruiser Berwick ran down the torpedo boat destroyer Tiger and several men were drowned.

The Tiger was cut in half and speedily sank. Boats from the Berwick and the cruiser Gladiator picked up twenty-two men, one of whom died of his injuries. It is believed that the Tiger had a crew of forty-five men, and that all the others were drowned.

Bomb In Tenement House

New York, April 3.—By the explosion of a bomb in a hallway of a tenement house in East Twelfth street three men were injured, though not fatally, fifteen Italian families were terror-stricken and the walls, ceilings and flooring of the house were wrecked. One of the injured, Emmanuelo Sportaro, is the owner of the house. Two Italians were arrested on suspicion of complicity in the crime. Sportaro declares that he received a letter demanding $5000 and saying that if he did not accede to the demand he would be killed.

Big Cut In Steerage Rates

New York, April 3.—By a sharp reduction in steerage rates, announced by the North German Lloyd Steamship company, it is expected that another rate war between the trans-Atlantic lines will be precipitated. The new tariffs are effective immediately and are as follows: To Genoa and Naples, $15; to Palermo and Messina, $18; to Milan and Leghorn, $16.75; to Gibraltar, $11; to Piraeus, $22; to Alexandria, $25; to Jaffa, $27, and to Beirut, $29.

Testimony Does Not Agree

New York, April 3.—The minutes of the grand jury which inquired into Attorney General Jackson's connection with the receivership of the Hamilton bank will be submitted to Governor Hughes and to the legislature. This was decided by Judge Foster after hearing arguments on a presentment handed up by the grand jury, which declared there was a conflict in the testimony and requested the court to send the minutes to Albany.

Fooled Press and Public

Berlin, April 3.—But three Berlin newspapers reproduced the alleged text of the letters exchanged between Emperor William and Lord Tweedmouth, which appeared in a Munich magazine. The article was widely published in the provinces, however, and it was also printed in Vienna. The editor of the Munich periodical which published the alleged letters admits that they were intended as an April fool joke.

Troops Fired on Rioters

Rome, April 3.—During the funeral of a workman a number of roughs who were following the hearse created serious disorders. Troops were called out and barred the passage of the procession. The rioters attempted to force their way through the ranks of the troops and stoned the soldiers, who were obliged to fire, killing three of the rioters and wounding fifteen, four of whom were mortally injured.

For Promotion of Peace

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, April 3.—The Honduras committee of the Central American Fraternity, which was provided for by the recent peace congress at Washington, was organized here yesterday. The fraternity has for its purpose the promotion of peace and acts of union and better understanding between the Central American republics.

Evidence of Brutal Murder

New York, April 3.—A murder was uncovered in a field near Flushing, L. I., when the body of an unidentified Italian was found literally cut to pieces. There were numerous stab wounds on the body, the throat had been cut and the left ear was missing. Besides, the face of the man had been kicked and trampled upon and badly disfigured.

Revolutionist Stays In Prison

St. Petersburg, April 3.—The government has refused the request of the wife of Nicholas Tschaikovsky of the Russian revolutionists for permission to take her husband from the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul to a hospital. She was willing that he either be released on bail or that she herself pay the expenses of a guard.

Amnesty For Political Offenders

Paris, April 3.—The chamber of deputies adopted the amnesty bill by a vote of 497 to 5. This bill grants amnesty to those who committed political offenses in 1907 in connection with the winegrowers' revolt in the south of France, except in cases of anti-patriotism, anti-military activity or insubordination.

Anti-Gambling Bills Halt

Albany, April 3.—The bills intended to abolish gambling at race tracks in this state have gone over until next Wednesday, when they will be a special order on final passage in the senate. This arrangement was made after a day of intermittent skirmishing, most of it of a parliamentary character.

A Thirty-Six Story Building

New York, April 3.—Plans for another sky-scraping building to be erected on the lower end of Manhattan island, facing on West and Washington streets, are announced. The new structure is to be 36 stories and 445 feet in height. It will be equipped with 30 elevators and will cost $4,600,000.

THE POPULIST TICKET

Bryan Men Want It Held Up Until After July 7

GREAT BOLT IS THREATENED

Delegates From Minnesota, Georgia and Other States May Walk Out--Indiana Republicans Instruct Delegates to Work For Fairbanks

St. Louis, April 3.—The Nebraska delegation, which is trying to effect a postponement of the Populst national convention in the interests of W. J. Bryan made no progress yesterday and neither did the convention except as to speeches. After two sessions were held, at the conclusion of which permanent organization had not been effected, the convention adjourned until today.

Admirers of Bryan will continue their efforts to have the convention postponed until after the national Democratic convention meets in Denver on July 7.

The first contest came at the afternoon session. A. M. Walling of Nebraska vigorously protested against the manner in which the members of the committee on credentials were chosen. He said no man had any right to serve on that committee or to hold a seat on the convention unless he could show proper credentials. Walling averred that many of the delegates were self-appointed, and had no credentials, and he was voted down.

But the Nebraska delegates are determined and they say they will bolt if the convention attempts to place a ticket in the field now. Walling said last night:

"Nebraska is in earnest about this matter, and we shall bolt if the convention attempts to nominate Thomas E. Watson or any one else. We are not alone, for we have assurances that Minnesota, Georgia, and possibly Michigan and Kansas will walk out when we do."

WATSON FOR GOVERNOR

Indiana Republicans Want Fairbanks Nominated For President

Indianapolis, April 3.—The Indiana Republican state convention adopted a platform, endorsed Vice President Fairbanks and instructed the thirty state delegates to the national convention at Chicago to vote and to work for his nomination for the presidency, and then nominated a full state ticket, headed by James E. Watson of Rushville, for governor.

The contest for nomination for governor was keen, and it took five ballots to decide it. Mention of President Roosevelt, Vice President Fairbanks, Senators Beveridge and Hemenway and Governor Hanly caused enthusiasm among the delegates.

The platform includes a plank written by Fairbanks, insisting on revision of the tariff by a session of congress to be called in November after the fall elections. Other planks favor child labor laws, a state local option law with the county as a unit, economy in public expenditures, especially respecting the army and navy; a modification of the financial system, complete regulation of capitalistic combinations and the creation of a bureau of mines and mining.

Taft Talks to Ohio People

Columbus, O., April 3.—William H. Taft rounded out a busy day by speaking last night at the annual dinner of the Columbus Board of Trade. He conferred with A. I. Vorys, manager of his canvass for the presidential nomination, and other Republican leaders of the state. The Board of Trade dinner was attended by about 1200 diners. Taft's subject was "The Army of the United States."

Bryan Cancels an Engagement

Des Moines, April 3.—William J. Bryan has withdrawn his acceptance of the invitation of the New York Democratic club to attend a banquet to be given on April 13. In view of the discussion which arose as to whether the invitation meant he was to make a speech or merely to be present, Bryan said that he felt it would be embarrassing both to the club and to himself to be present.

Admiral Evans In Doctors' Hands

Paso Robles, Cal., April 3.—Rear Admiral Evans has begun treatment at the hot springs here for rheumatism and stomach trouble. He was wheeled to the baths in a chair. He said last evening that he felt refreshed. He has planned to take a bath and treatment every morning, spending the rest of the day in the sun as much as possible.

Expelled From Cotton Exchange

New Orleans, April 3.—The expulsion of Gussoni & Co., cotton brokers and exporters, from the New Orleans Cotton Exchange was announced publicly and officially on the floor of the exchange. No other reason than that the bylaws of the exchange had been violated was given.

Run Closes Savings Bank

Toledo, April 3.—The doors of the Broadway Savings bank were closed because of a run on it by excited depositors. The bank is a creditor of A. L. Irish, who filed a petition in bankruptcy for nearly $500,000. Deposits of the closed bank amount to $220,000.

PRESSURE UPON CONGRESS

Charge That Submarine Boat Companies Harass Members

Washington, April 3.—That an attorney of the Electric Boat company was pressing and "bearing down" upon a member of congress with reference to submarine boat legislation was the charge made before the special committee of the house of representatives investigating the charges against the Electric Boat company.

The charge was made by Frank L. Edinborough of Bay City, Mich., a state senator and formerly the private secretary of Congressman Loud of that state, who is a member of the house committee on naval affairs. Edinborough testified that the attorney was W. D. Gordon and that the member of congress whom he was harassing was Loud.

Mr. Edinborough was not a willing witness, and at first refused to answer certain questions, on the ground that they were confidential, owing to the fact that he was the private secretary of Loud, but Loud released him from such obligations and he told his story.

Mr. Edinborough produced an anonymous letter which he said he received in Bay City on Feb. 12 from Washington, saying that Loud voted for "the $1,476,000 graft in the naval committee;" that a story was in circulation that the Holland company management got a prominent attorney to become a candidate for congress against Loud, and that Loud finally agreed to vote for the submarine bill on condition that the attorney withdraw as a candidate.

Alleged Dealer In Bogus Checks

Chicago, April 3.—Howard E. Dunn, 33 years old, surrendered to the police here, saying that he was wanted in Boston on charges of passing alleged worthless checks. He protested innocence of the charges. Dunn had an unendorsed check for $25,000 drawn on a New York bank, made payable to Dunn and signed by "A. Sabey." Dunn said that the check was worthless and was given to him by a man he met in Chicago.

Boston, April 3.—Howard E. Dunn is wanted in Boston on several charges of passing worthless checks.

Plucky Man Loses His Life

St. Louis, April 3.—While pinioned under wreckage caused by a rear-end railroad collision, and while steam from a broken engine pipe was pouring into his face, Horace A. McKittrick, a stock breeder, directed the amputation of his leg and furnished a dull jackknife with which the work was done by Rev. R. C. Allen, but it failed of its purpose, for McKittrick died lated. Four others were injured in the wreck, which occurred near Spanish Lake, where a passenger train ran into the rear of a freight train.

No Yellow Fever In Cuba

Havana, April 3.—In connection with the establishment of a quarantine against Cuba by the United States, Governor Magoon has received twenty-six reports from army surgeons in different parts of the island, stating that there is no yellow fever in their territory and no need of quarantine. Magoon sent the reports to Washington in support of his protest against the action of the United States marine hospital service.

Minister Charged With Graft

St. Petersburg, April 3.—The Rech publishes a vicious attack upon M. Pavloff, former Russian minister to Korea, accusing him of extensive financial irregularities in connection with the provisioning of Port Arthur and the evacuation of that place by the Russian soldiers after the war. A commission has been investigating the matter since the war, but up till now the results of that investigation have not been published.

In Behalf of Wilfley

New York, April 3.—The judiciary committee of the house of representatives is asked to refrain from casting aspersions upon the judicial character and methods of Judge Wilfley of Shanghai, in a letter sent by the executive committee of the American Asiatic association. It urges the committee not to approve the portions of the report of the sub-committee which reflect upon Wilfley.

Nearly Fifty Miles of Ice

North Sydney, C. B., April 3.—A heavy body of drift ice, extending for nearly fifty miles, has been driven out of the Gulf of St. Lawrence by the recent gales and is now moving seaward in the track of ocean steamers. The passage of the ice fields indicates the early opening of navigation to gulf and St. Lawrence river ports.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Richard C. Hale, aged 67, was fatally burned at Newburyport, Mass., by the explosion of an oil stove. He had just started the fire when the stove exploded, throwing the burning oil over his body.

Benjamin C. Porter, the portrait painter, died at his home in New York. He had been ill a year. Porter was born in Melrose, Mass., in 1843.

Mrs. Margaret Harrop, aged 70, died at Providence from burns. She was smoking a pipe, sitting on the edge of her bed, when a spark set fire to her night clothing.

King Alfonso has decided to take an active part in the fetes to be celebrated in May in commemoration of the septennary of the birth of King James, the Conqueror of Aragon.

In a fit of despondency, Arthur Hale of Byfield, Mass., blew his brains out with a revolver. He was 36 years old.

UNIQUE POINT RAISED

It Has to Do With Settlement of Missing Financier's Estate

Boston, April 3.—A new point has arisen in the now famous C. F. King case, as to what extent King loaned his money. Yesterday it was rumored that he loaned a considerable sum to a prominent attorney, and also that he loaned to two women who wished to buy stock in the Alton Manufacturing company at Sandwich. So far as the first case is concerned, it could not be verified, while in the latter the names of the women could not be obtained.

In the case of the two women, about $2000 is involved, and was loaned them on the stock they bought in the glass factory. The point involved is whether or not the loan to them can be counted as an asset of King in the settlement of his estate.

In the hands of Inspector McGarr there are upwards of forty cases where fraud and conspiracy are alleged. Referee Gibbs has received notification that King has been adjudicated a bankrupt, and in turn has notified Charles A. McDonough to prepare a schedule of the creditors.

In Augusta, Me., two equity petitions have been entered with the county clerk against King and the National Mercantile company. It is understood that the suits brought in Maine are to protect suits in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Shot Her Old Sweetheart

Proctor, Vt., April 3.—Declaring that he no longer must live apart from her, Louise Enginge shot and severely wounded her former sweetheart, Joseph Tarkasei, at the latter's home here. Miss Enginge and Tarkasei came together to this country from Hungary some years ago. She is 23 years old and has been employed as a domestic in New York city. Tarkasei became separated from the girl after their arrival in this country and he came to Proctor, where he now has a wife and two children. He is 27 years old.

Stole Leather From Freight Car

Boston, April 3.—William Wilson, who was arrested in St. Louis and brought here, charged with the larceny of 433 rolls of leather from a freight car, valued at $3651, was sentenced to serve two years in the house of correction. The railroad officials and consignee did not know of their loss until the authorities at St. Louis notified the local police of the recovery of the property and the capture of Wilson.

Factories on Short Time

New Haven, April 3.—Official returns made to the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company from their agents in the factory regions of southern New England, covered by the system, show that while a very large proportion of the factories still continue open, they are running on considerably reduced hours, and many of them also with reduced wages.

Restored to His Office

Exeter, N. H., April 3.—The police commissioners have voted to reinstate Charles G. Gooch as superintendent of police. Although the charges against Gooch were not made public by the commission, it is understood that there was a conflict of orders between him and the police board, which consists of three members.

Fell From Masthead to Deck

Chatham, Mass., April 3.—While schooner Stella D. Kaplan was coming down past Handerchief shoals Oscar Larcen, one of the crew, 20 years of age, who was working at the spanker masthead, fell to the deck and was instantly killed. The body was brought ashore and taken to the local undertaker's.

Ice Jam Upset Lighthouse

Burlington, Vt., April 3.—During a high wind the ice went out of Burlington harbor and the jam upset the lighthouse at the end of the Burlington breakwater. The lighthouse was a wooden structure supported by a crib of logs and was tilted by the ice to an angle of 45 degrees from the perpendicular.

New Bedford Carders Accept Cut

New Bedford, Mass., April 3.—The Carders' union last night voted to accept a wage reduction of 10 percent on April 13. The spinners accepted the cut Wednesday night and tonight the Weavers' union will vote on the question. The general feeling is that there will be no general strike.

Strike of Springfield Painters

Springfield, Mass., April 3.—Following a refusal of the master painters to grant Saturday half-holidays, with pay for a full week, the journeymen painters in practically all the shops in the city have quit work. Thirty-three of the bosses have declared for the "open shop."

Closed For Indefinite Period

Providence, April 3.—A notice has been posted in the Providence plant of the Joseph Banigan Rubber company, informing the operatives that the factory will be closed indefinitely and that in the future the goods will be manufactured in Woonsocket.

Reported Invasion of Panama

Panama, April 3.—Advices just received here report that Colombian troops on March 26 invaded the town of Jurado, on the frontier of Panama and Colombia, taking possession of the place, which has always been under Panama's jurisdiction. No resistance was offered to the Colombians, as Jurado was guarded by only five Panaman policemen. There is no telegraph communication between that town and Panama, and confirmation of the report of its invasion is not possible at present.

AS SUCCESSFUL EAST AS IN THE WEST

Cooper's Theories Are Being Rapidly Accepted by Eastern People.

L. T. Cooper, whose theory that the human stomach is the cause of most ill health and who created a furore in Chicago, St. Louis and other western cities, is meeting with the same remarkable success with his medicine throughout the east. Cooper has convinced an immense number of people that his theory is sound and his medicine will do what he claims.

Perhaps the most interesting features of the discussion this young man is causing, are the statements made by responsible people who have taken his medicines and have become enthusiastic converts to his beliefs.

Among statements of this character, the following, by Mr. August Wittmer, 1049 Rockwell Court, Chicago, is characteristic of the widespread faith in Cooper, which has grown up in a comparatively short time. Mr. Wittmer says: "I wouldn't take $1,000 and be in the condition I was three weeks ago. I was practically an invalid for fourteen years and think I had about all of the diseases known. My stomach was weak, and at times I would have an enormous appetite, and then again none at all. Pie and cake made me sick, and I almost always had a sickening feeling in my stomach. I was nervous, and for weeks at a time could not sleep, and then again could sleep eighteen hours at a stretch. Sleep, however, seemed to do me no good, and I would awake tired and more exhausted than when I went to bed.

"I was constipated, had pains in my back, and flutterings and pains in my heart. I was unable to work with any regularity, and took no interest in anything. I tried all kinds of medicines and doctors, but none benefited me. I had no energy and no ambition, and had about concluded to give up when the Cooper medicine was recommended. Thanks to it, my health seems completely restored and I feel like a new man."

Cooper medicines have created the greatest sensation of anything of the kind ever before introduced.

We sell them, and will be glad to explain the nature of them to our callers.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Miss Annie Peters of Brookline is the guest of Miss Lisabelle Linnell of Davis street.

Friends are sorry to hear of the protracted illness of Mr. Welch of Rawson road.

The topic of the evening prayer meeting at Memorial church will be "Go-up Possess."

Fred J. Gross of Auburn, Maine, visited his mother Mrs. Fred A. Gross at West Elm avenue on Tuesday.

John Adams chapter, Junior Sons and Daughters of the Revolution, will present dramatics at Colonial hall, Tuesday evening, April 21.

E. E. Hoxie and F. L. James were partners at the Thursday evening play of the American Whist club and made one of the best scores.

The Easter decorations in the show windows of George W. Jones' store in City Square look very handsome and are attracting a good deal of attention.

Captain and Mrs. Elisha Atkins of Bromfield street, who have been cruising in Captain Atkins' vessel the past two months, were called home by the death of Mrs. Atkins' sister. They have the sympathy of friends.

Illustrated Easter articles will appear in the Saturday eight-page Daily Ledger, including a poem by Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale. Easter programs of the churches should be sent to the Daily Ledger early next week.

Automobile owners desiring a phamphlet containing the list of licensed automobiles for the year 1908 may obtain one free of cost by applying to Alfred LaBrecque. He has 200 or more to give away.

The Greater Boston movement will be discussed at the dinner of the Metropolitan Improvement League, which will be held at the Hotel Brunswick April 9. Plans for the federation of the city of Boston and its suburbs will be brought forward.

The International examinations were held Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A. in connection with the association evening school. Nine men participated in Mechanical drawing, three in elementary and six in the advanced subjects. These examinations are held in conformity with other associations the country over at the same hour and date.

Burglars In Hardware Store

The hardware store of William Westland on Hancock street was burglarized last night and carpenters tools to the value of $12 taken. The parties gained entrance to the store by smashing one of the windows in the alley way between the Jenness block and that occupied by Mr. Westland.

Wanted for Robbery.

Vincenzo Decerlio was arrested by Inspector McKay this morning at the bakery at 69 Water street. He is about 20 years of age and was arrested by request of officers from Station 1, Boston. He was locked up awaiting the arrival of an officer from Boston. He was wanted for alleged highway robbery.

Jolly Farmers Sing at Atlantic

There was a large gathering in Atlantic Music hall Thursday evening to see "The Jolly Farmers" and hear their good old songs on the old New England farm. The pleasing cantata was given by the choir of the Atlantic M. E. church under the direction of Mr. Herbert Cassidy, assisted by Miss Marguerite Holbrook, soprano, Dr. F. E. Dawes, tenor and Mr. W. M. Gilbert, reader. Mrs. Keeler was accompanist.

Preceeding the play was a short musical and elocutional program. Miss Holbrook rendered her songs sweetly and easily and her selections were well chosen. Dr. Dawes was also obliged to respond to encores, and his final song "The old United States" met with patriotic enthusiasm.

The readings by Mr. Gilbert were a treat. His voice is melodious and distinct and his humorous smile captured the audience as only a reader with magnetism of presence can do. His readings were all in the mirthful vein and from first to last he was entertaining and exceptionally popular.

The cantata was in four scenes, which were naturally staged. The acting was well done by all participants. Mr. Cassidy deserves praise in the chorus work, especially for the singing was harmonious and snappy and the voices were well blended.

The men's songs by Mr. H. O. Cassidy, 1st tenor, Mr. J. A. Jwicker, 2d tenor, Mr. H. B. Cassidy, 1st bass and Mr. S. M. Brown, 2d bass, received many encores. In the few solo parts by Mr. Brown his voice had a "morish" sound and the audience would have liked to hear him at greater length.

The members of the household, Mrs. Keeler and the Misses A. E. and J. Barber, Miss Stewart and Miss Dutton rendered their "To the Kitchen" very realistically. Miss Julia Barber's "Goodnight" song at the close of the program was prettily sung.

Mr. Fred B. Hall the "chore boy," was without doubt the hit of the evening. He had many songs and each one was better than the preceding one. His natural stage talent, his original methods of producing laughter amused the audience continually to the exclusion of everything else, and Mr. Hall who prated of his love of pie, deserves a whole mince one and he ought to have a hot one at that.

It was nearly 10.45 when the final curtain fell ,and the appreciative clapping was long and loud. The farmers were jolly to the last, and rounded their evening by the serving of cake and ices to all who took part in the program.

Young Men Are Wanted

Editors of Daily Ledger:

We have in Quincy almost 1874 young men of christian parentage and training, looking about them, wondering like a young man of old "what must I do to be saved from social annihilation in the present industrial age?"

These 1874 Quincy young men of training and tack and talent, desiring to make their lives tell for what is really worth while, would do well to ponder weigh and inwardly digest the following table showing the total net gain for each of the past five years, in all denominations.

	Ministers,	Churches,	Communicants
1903	1,707	3,276	889,734
1904	3,136	2,624	898,857
1905	2,654	4,112	794,580
1906	4,201	1,902	931,740
1907	2,301	4,214	627,546

The net gains in all denominations in 1907 were 2,301 ministers, and 4,214 churches. That is, last year the new churches gained were 4,214, while the men going into the ministry were only 2,301. Many of these 2,301 took the places of the aged, retiring or deceased; leaving probably over 4000 churches to the less than 1000 net ministerial gain.

As the supply and demand of ministers effects the salary of the same, it indicates that ministerial salaries are on the rise because of a decreasing supply of available ministers. And as most churches are now giving to their ministers, a living wage, and as the indications point to an increase, the matter of "a poorly and underpaid profession," need not longer trouble the 1874 young men of our city.

Most every other avenue of usefulness and service seems overcrowded; here is an open apportunity to the young men of Quincy, to be of social and spiritual assistance to the kingdom.

—The period of incubation is shortest among the humming birds, which is ten days.

Board of Health Should Be Alert

Editors of Daily Ledger:

Quincy is much alarmed over the spread of diphtheria in Braintree, especially since it is said that most of the cases are in families supplied by one milkman. Now some of Quincy's milk comes from Braintree. Physicians tell us that milk carries the germs of diseases very readily. Many readers of the Daily Ledger will recall that last August, a list was given of the Quincy milk-men, whose places of business were then inspected and less than 25 per cent were favorably passed upon. Does not the present alarm over the spread of diphtheria, call for vigorous effort on the part of our Board of Health?

Our Commissioner has taken the precaution to shut off the water from our public fountains to prevent the spread of glanders; ought not our Board of Health to be equally alert over the present danger to human beings? What has ever been done about those Quincy milk-men's places the board did not approve of? What is being done today, concerning the standard of quality and the purity or impurity of the milk brought into Quincy? Housekeeper.

MILTON.

The experience party at the East Milton Congregational church last Saturday was largely attended. In the afternoon there was a cake and candy sale, and in the evening an entertainment.

The exhibition of oil paintings by Charles W. Hudson opened in the art gallery of the Milton Public Library this week. The paintings will be on exhibition some weeks.

Floyd, the magic king, gave a pleasing entertainment at Ellsworth hall on Thursday evening.

Chief of Police Pierce was a guest at the Knockers club dinner at Quincy this week.

The entertainment of the Thursday Evening club will be resumed immediately after Easter. The club has some good things booked for the balance of the season.

Offensive Sign Boards.

There is an increasing agitation against bill-boards, and the American Civic Association of Philadelphia is leading the fight. It is contended that no man has a right to thrust these glaring signs upon the attention of people whether they are willing or not, any more than he has to create an evil odor on his premises to offend one's sense of smell. Richard Watson Gilder, editor of the Century Magazine, puts the case thus strongly:

As I went yesterday to my office in this city I passed one of the most beautiful of modern buildings, a savings bank built recently of white marble in the classical style. It is a pleasure to look upon this noble and restful structure. And it is a pain, and an anger to have to take in, at the same glance, an enormous liquor sign, high in the air beyond and above it. What is the use of building exquisite structures, if any tasteless and remorseless trader can come along with his glaring, dominating appeals for your money, and utterly spoil the effect. It is as if at a symphony concert, venders of soap should be allowed to go up and down the aisles and bawl their wares.

A similar experience accompanied my railroad trip on the same day over one of the lines between New York and Philadelphia—where now and again a loud array of advertising signs spoiled the effect of the rich, otherwise harmonious landscape.

One of these days the people of a commercial community will appreciate the fact that, to put it commercially, beauty is a valuable asset, as well "as a joy forever;" and then the advertisement fiend will not be allowed to go up and down the land destroying views, which means destroying values —values that belong to the entire population, and that no individual has the right to ruin.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

The submarine investigation by Congress, a creation of George L. Lilley, a representative from the State of Connecticut, whose intention it was to have only the affairs of the Electric Boat Company investigated, has now taken a turn in another direction. Silas L. Berger, former president of the Berger Sub-surface Torpedo Boat Company, and now consulting engineer of that company, testified yesterday before the House special submarine boat investigation committee. Mr. Berger said he had been informed that the pending naval appropriation bill contained an appropriation of $445,000 for sub-surface boats, which had been prepared by Representative Thompson, the only member of the committee with whom he was acquainted, and he added that Representative Littlefield had also introduced a bill in his company's behalf.

IN INDIANS' BEHALF

Sweeping Charges Are Made Before Senate Committee

NOTED MEN ARE INVOLVED

Indians Are Compelled to Eat Meat of Diseased Cattle and Sheep and Are Thrown Into Jail If They Protest--Testimony of Mrs. Grey

Washington, April 2.—Mrs. Helen P. Grey, the newspaper writer, who was arrested last summer because of her connection with the protests of Crow Indians against the manner in which the government agents managed the Crow reservation in Montana, resumed her statement yesterday before the senate committee on Indian affairs.

That some of the members of the committee were impressed by the character of the charges which Mrs. Grey said were susceptible of proof was evident from the character of the cross-examination. It is not unlikely that a general investigation will be ordered. During her testimony Secretary Garfield, who is involved in her sweeping charges, was present.

Mrs. Grey, in describing her experiences, told about the six times she was arrested and about an alleged attempt by Indian Agent Reynolds to "trump up a charge of insanity" against her. She then said that Mr. Garfield, when in Billings, Mont., told the chief of police that she was a "dangerous blackmailer and adventurer."

"That statement is without any foundation whatever," declared Garfield.

Mrs. Grey responded that the chief of police would testify to the contrary.

Mrs. Grey said that Garfield was in Billings, which is near the Crow reservation, while many of the indignities against her were committed, and he could not have been ignorant of what was going on. She said that Indians were constantly mistreated, and that when they were thrown into jail that act constituted the whole legal procedure; that no charges were brought and the time of incarceration depended upon the will of the Indian agent. She also charged that the children at the government reservation school were also mistreated. In her own case she declared that charges were brought against her on the sixth arrest.

Previous to that proceeding she was put in jail over night and that ended the matter. Once, she said, Agent Reynolds had threatened to incarcerate her with an Indian, but that the feeling was such that he did not dare to carry out his purpose.

Passing on to the alleged mismanagement of Indian affairs, Mrs. Grey said it was current report that Senator Carter was part owner of Charles Bear's sheep. She had testified previously that Bear, through influence with the agent, pastured about 125,000 sheep on the reservation, while paying for 35,000 head.

"Why do you not investigate this matter before bringing such charges against Senator Carter?" asked Senator Dixon.

"How far would you have me go?" demanded Mrs. Grey. "I was arrested six times for making investigations."

Mrs. Grey said that while Mr. Dalby, former secretary to Garfield, was investigating the conditions on the reservation, he was told at one of the Indian councils at Gordon that the Indians knew they were eating lumpy-jaw cattle and sheep that had died of diseases, but that it was "either eat that or starve."

Mrs. Grey broke down in reciting the alleged wrongs perpetrated upon the Indians and with a voice trembling with emotion, she almost sobbed: "Sheep that die by disease is what the Indians get. The white man gets their land and the live sheep."

Proceeding, Mrs. Grey said that the Indians were absolutely helpless; that if they protested they were thrown into jail. She said she "could not see how senators can have this thing put up to them and pass it by."

She declared that protests to the Indian office had been made without number and that invariably they resulted in bringing punishment upon the Indians, owing to the fact that complaints were always sent back to the agent, at whose mercy the Indians were.

Mrs. Grey said that once she was decoyed to a hotel, where plans had been made to arrest her, but that she saw through the plans and wrote a telegram to President Roosevelt that she was to be arrested and asked Major Reynolds to send it. It developed that the telegram was sent.

"Did you not at the same time send telegrams to a number of newspapers, asking them if they did not want sensational articles about your arrest?" asked Senator Dixon.

"How did you know about those telegrams?" demanded Mrs. Grey.

"I am not on the stand," replied the senator.

"Well," said Mrs. Grey, "those telegrams were stolen from my handbag when I was arrested. That is one of the things I want investigated.

"They were not sent," said the witness, "and were not intended to be sent. They were written as bluffs and intended to fall into other hands in order to prevent my arrest."

A statement was made by M. K. Sniffen, secretary of the Indian Rights association, in corroboration to a large extent of Mrs. Grey's testimony.

The Social Realm

Just a waving of slight shadows
O'er the land,
Just a piping of high voices
From the blue:
Have you seen it—you and you—
Seen that waving of slight shadows o'er the land?
Have you heard it from the blue—
Heard that piping of high voices from the blue?
Have you felt it, through and through—
You, too—
That light waving of slight shadow o'er the land,
That faint piping of high voices from the blue?

Dr. John A. Gordon and Capt. Howes of the Sailors' Snug Harbor returned yesterday from a round trip on the Southern Pacific steamships which ply between New York and New Orleans. Both are enthusiastic over the trip which requires five days each way and a stop of two full days in the Crescent City. It was their good fortune to be passengers on the Momus, of which genial John S. Boyd is captain, a 10,000 ship which sails as majestically as an ocean liner and is superior to many. The weather was favorable, and everything was enjoyable.

The series of dancing parties which were given at Brasee hall last week by Mrs. John Johnson were for the benefit of Miss Myra Otis a Wollaston teacher. Both Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Elizabeth Sayward, who assisted her, deserve much credit for making the parties such a success socially and financially. The Friday evening party for the young people was matronized by Mrs. Frank E. Parlin, Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Adelaide Armstrong, Miss Clara Thayer. The matrons for the children's party on Saturday afternoon were Miss Lora Hunt, Miss Dora Start, Miss Clara Thayer. Saturday evening was for the adults and managed by Messrs. Johnson, Boyce and Follett. Wilson's orchestra furnished the music.

Fred L. Burr of Atlantic was married on Thursday, March 26, to Miss Marion Lisle Irving, of Eastport, Me., formerly of Stoneham, Mass. The wedding was quietly solemnized at the home of Mr. Burr's mother at 37 Webster street. Rev. B. F. Crawford of the Atlantic M. E. church officiated. Mr. Burr is well known in Ward six. He is prosperously situated in business and exceedingly popular. Sincere congratulations are extended to him and to his bride for a happy future.

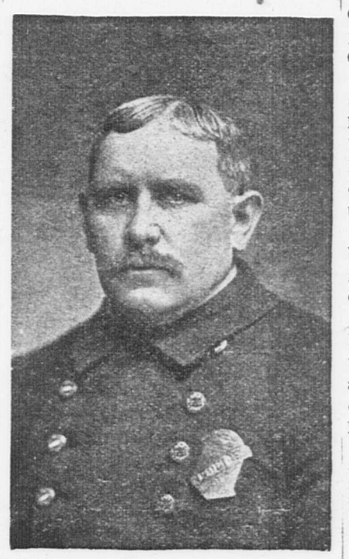
The Looker-on in the Boston Record of April third says of Mrs. Isabelle Davis of Quincy who read at a club meeting the day before a paper on the life and poetry of Eugene Field: "She has one of the most musical voices I ever heard. Her reading of the poet's songs brought out all the music and singing quality of the poems and was enjoyed by everyone present."

POLICE SHAKE UP

All But Five Of Patrolmen Are Shifted To New Routes

The anticipated shake up in the Police department came last night. It was announced to the men in a general order from Chief Burrell at roll call. It was the biggest transfer the department has ever made. Of the day and night men all but five are shifted to new beats.



Chief Burrell says the shifts are not because of anything that has happened recently, but for the good of the service. During the past few weeks he has gone over the situation with Mayor Shea and it is believed that the changes will benifit the whole city

The Mayor and Chief will insist that more attention be given the sidewalk loafers, especially those who congregate in store doorways in the vicinity of midnight and create disturbances on side streets. There will also be a more rigid enforcement of the liquor laws.

The most important change is taking Officer Goodhue from the day beat at South and West Quincy, and assigning him to special duty in citizen's dress, making him an acting inspector.

Officer Hinchon who has been doing night duty at West Quincy gets a day berth being assigned to the South and West Quincy beat that has been covered by Officer Goodhue.

Officer Murray is retained on the day beat is City Square. The only other officers who are not changed are Officers Broberg, Curtin, Riley and Donovan.

The changes are as follows: Officer Larkin who has been doing day duty in the Fore River district takes the day beat at Atlantic relieving Officer Lyons who goes to the Fore River district.

Officer Milford who has had the night City Square beat since the death of Officer Kelliher goes back to his old beat on Adams street, and Officer Bishop comes from the upper part of the Quincy Point district to City Square.

Officer Crooker who has covered upper Hancock street between the hours of 11 P. M. and 8 A. M., has been transferred to the night beat at Brewers corner, and Officer Doran comes from the Edwards Hill district to the upper Hancock beat.

Reserve officer Dinneen, who has been doing duty on Adams street, goes to West Quincy taking the beat covered by Officer Hinchon.

Officer Olson who has been at Houghs Neck for several years goes to the upper Quincy Point district, and officer Thorne goes from the lower Quincy Point district to Houghs Neck.

Officer Bowton goes from the Atlantic beat to the lower end of Quincy Point, and Reserve Officer Duffy goes on regular duty at Atlantic.

The changes in the day beats went into effect this morning, and on the night beats tonight.

Officer Goodhue, who is promoted to acting inspector, is a most efficient officer, having earned the title of being "Johnny on the spot" in several important cases. He has done night duty at Wollaston, South Quincy and in City Square. A year ago he was taken from City Square, and assigned to day duty at South and West Quincy, this shift being a promotion. His advent at South Quincy soon resulted in several liquor raids and convictions, as well as the breaking up of the crap shooting gang that gathered on street corners on Sundays.

IT GOES TO WATSON

Georgia Man Nominated For President by Populists

NEBRASKANS FALL INTO PIT

Bolt the Convention After Answering a "Couple of Questions" Concerning Bryan--Minnesota "Delegation" of One Man Follows Suit

St. Louis, April 4.—For President of of the United States, Thomas E. Watson of Georgia; for vice president of the United States, Samuel Williams of Indiana.

The foregoing ticket was nominated by the People's party convention after two stormy sessions, during which the Nebraska and Minnesota delegations bolted because they could not bring about a postponement of the convention until after nominations had been made by the Democratic national convention, so that the People's party might nominate William J. Bryan for president, should he be defeated at the Democratic convention.

The Nebraska men fought desperately to the last, and when Jay W. Forrest of Albany mounted the platform to place Watson in nomination, they withdrew from the convention, followed by the Minnesota delegation, which consisted of one man. If Bryan is nominated at Denver, the men who walked out of yesterday's convention say that they and the Populists of Nebraska will support him to a man. After adopting a platform, the convention finally adjourned.

At the morning session the Nebraska men filibustered so cleverly that several times they had the convention much tangled up. They fought long and hard to have Temporary Chairman Coxey of Ohio made permanent chairman, because they believed that they could confuse him and stave off the nominations. They were defeated, however, and George A. Hennecker of Jersey City was made permanent chairman. Hennecker was not in sympathy with the Bryan supporters. He vigorously answered the Nebraskans when they attacked him.

The downfall of Nebraska came suddenly in the afternoon, and into a pit they themselves had digged the delegates from Nebraska tumbled. They were filibustering in a cheerful fashion when J. W. Parker of Louisville begged leave to ask a "couple of questions" of Nebraska.

Parker desired to know if the Nebraskans were working for the nomination of Bryan. They said they were not. He then read from Bryan's paper a plank from the platform of the Nebraska Populist state convention, endorsing Bryan, and wanted to know whether they stood by it. The Nebraskans were in a corner. They parried the question, but Parker insisted on a categorical answer. One delegate insisted that a "reporter on Bryan's paper had made a mistake, just like reporters are always doing."

The Nebraska delegates finally admitted that they favored Bryan. From that instant Bryan's cause in the convention was lost and it was only a few minutes until the delegates from his state had bolted the convention.

Debate on the proposal to postpone the convention and the discussion of the phraseology of the money plank in the platform consumed the greater part of the day. The discussion of the money plank was long, but all the oratory went for naught, because the plank adopted was that recommended by the resolutions committee at the opening of the debate.

Mr. Watson did not attend the convention, but Williams returned thanks to the convention in a brief speech.

NOT ENTITLED TO VOTE

Watson Places Negroes on Par With Indians and Chinamen

Jacksonville, Fla., April 4.—Thomas E. Watson spent yesterday in Jacksonville and news of his nomination as the Populist candidate for the presidency was carried to him by an Associated Press correspondent. When asked if he would accept the nomination Watson said:

"Not having been officially advised of the action of the convention, I think it would be rather premature for me to say that I will accept the nomination. I have read the outline of the platform and I will not make any positive statement as to acceptance until I reach my home at Thomson, Ga., for which point I leave tonight."

Mr. Watson then went on to explain his advocacy of Governor Smith of Georgia during the recent gubernatorial campaign in that state. He said that he joined Smith in his effort to eliminate the negro from politics and he informed the governor that his co-operation was solely for that purpose.

"I stated plainly," said Watson, "that after succeeding in that effort I would feel at liberty to go my way and Smith could go his. I do not believe that the negro should have any more political rights than the Indian or the Chinaman in this country. With the negro eliminated from politics the states of the south will again be in a position where their wishes will have to be respected and catered to by the dominant political parties."

Watson said that he realized that there has been a great falling away from the Populist party in recent years,

The Scrap Book

Well Suited.

Do you think your daughter and I are suited to each other, madam?" asked the prospective bridegroom.

"Oh, splendidly! Haven't you a very fine loud voice, and isn't Mary dreadfully hard of hearing?"

CONCENTRATION.

The man who seeks one thing in life, and but one,
May hope to achieve it before life is done.
But he who seeks all things wherever he goes
Only reaps from the hopes which around him he sows
A harvest of barren regrets, and the worm
That creeps on in the dust to the definite term
Of its creeping existence and sees nothing more
Than the path it pursues till its creeping is o'er
In its limited vision is happier far
Than the half sage, whose course, fixed by no friendly star,
Is by each star distracted in turn and who knows
Each will still be as distant wherever he goes.

—Owen Meredith.

Too Much of a Good Thing.

"I've got the very thing you want," said the stableman to a ruralist in search of a horse; "a thoroughgoing road horse. Five years old, sound as a quail, $175 cash down, and he goes ten miles without stopping."

The purchaser threw his hands skyward.

"Not for me," he said; "not for me. I vouldn't gif you 5 cents for him. I live eight miles out in de country, and I'd haf to walk back two miles."

His Sense of Justice.

The small grandson of Governor Cummins of Iowa is not permitted to eat doughnuts, but when visiting in the kitchen of a neighboring relative the cook presented him with one of these delicacies, and he ate it with perfect enjoyment.

All would have gone well had not an overpowering sense of his obligations mastered the culprit. Curious investigations were the natural outcome when he said his usual prayer that night and then hesitantly added this brief but incriminating petition:

"And—and please bless Aunt Cora's hired girl."—Lippincott's.

Not What He Came For.

A small boy was fishing Sunday and accidentally tumbled into the creek. As an old man on the bank was helping him out he said, "How did you come to fall in the river, my little man?"

"I didn't come to fall in the river. I came to fish."—Ladies' Home Journal.

An Optimistic View.

A farmer was anxious that his son should become a minister, and for this laudable end he sent him to college for four years. To his great disappointment, the youth balked at the ministry and set himself up as a horse trader. The old farmer told his grief to a neighbor, who, however, took a more optimistic view.

"Oh, I wouldn't feel badly about that," he said. "As a hoss trader Bill will probably lead more men to repentance than he ever would have as a preacher."

Observing Regulations.

A new national guardsman was on sentry duty one night during his first encampment when a friend brought him a pie from the canteen. As he sat on the grass eating the pie the major sauntered up in undress. The sentry, not recognizing him, did not salute, and the major stopped and said:

"What's that you have there?"

"Pie," said the sentry good naturedly. "Apple pie. Have a bit?"

"Do you know who I am?"

"No," said the sentry, "unless you're the major's groom."

"Guess again."

"The barber from the village?"

"No."

"Maybe"—here the sentry laughed—"maybe you're the major himself?"

"That's right. I am the major," was the stern reply.

The sentry scrambled to his feet.

"Good gracious!" he exclaimed. "Hold the pie, will you, while I present arms!"

Hogs and Time.

A northerner riding through West Virginia came up with a mountaineer leisurely driving a herd of pigs.

"Where are you driving the pigs to?" asked the rider.

"Out to pasture to fatten 'em a bit."

"Isn't it pretty slow work to fatten them on grass? Up where I came from we pen them up and feed them on corn. It saves a lot of time."

"Hell! What's time to a hawg?"—Everybody's.

Epigrams by Andrew Carnegie.

Wealth lessens rather than increases human happiness. Millionaires who laugh are rare.

To educate the people is the foundation of all true progress. They'll do the rest themselves.

I never was miserable. I don't see how any man can be if he does what he feels to be right.

"To save and to serve, not to maim and destroy," that will be the text of the hero by and by.

The only sure way to keep "the submerged tenth" from drowning is to teach them to swim for themselves.

Old age should be spent not in "making mickle mair," but in making good use of what has been acquired.

There is no heritage like being born poor. The leaders and teachers of this nation came from the poor.

I would rather be grandson to one who could teach me to make shoes than the descendant of thirty worthless dukes.

I believe in true democracy. When the people are really interested in anything their voice will be heard at the polls.

This republic is immortal. No matter what trouble it goes through, it will weather it without having its foundations shaken.

If you stand near a good thing, plunge well into it. Fear is old womanish; it has kept untold millions from making fortunes.

I think I am the greatest optimist ever born. Were I to choose a motto it should be, "All is well since all grows better."

I object to the term philanthropist when applied to myself. I have always understood it to mean a man with more money than brains.

I do not believe in the socialistic idea of municipal ownership, but a proper municipal ownership is as certain as that I am alive.

Poverty develops us. It makes us work our hardest. It brings out the best in us. But bravery must go hand in hand with adversity else we are doomed.

I never worry about whether or no I am to be forgotten after death. I'll put my wealth to the best use as I see it, and time will tell whether I have exercised a wise discretion.

Had Missed It.

"What are you crying for, my poor little boy?" said a man to a crying boy.

"Pa fell downstairs."

"Don't take on so, my boy. He'll get better soon."

"That isn't it. Sister saw him fall all the way. I never saw nuffen."

His Time Limit.

A girl got on a Cleveland street car carrying one of those muffs the size of an ordinary hassock. She had only one hand in the muff. A young man sitting next to her took advantage of the opportunity to slip his hand into the unoccupied end of the muff.

The girl turned upon him severely. "I could have you arrested for such a familiarity," said she, "but I'm from Boston, and I propose to keep calm. Now, I'll just give you ten minutes to let go of my hand."

In the Game All Right.

While walking along the street a gentleman noticed a group of boys apparently playing a game.

"Well, boys, what are you at today?" he asked.

A bright youngster looked up and said:

"Why, don't you know, sir? This is the latest game out!"

"Oh! What do you call it?"

"Automobile, sir."

"Automobile! Why, how do you play it?"

"Well, you see, sir, I'm the driver."

"Yes."

"And this here fellow," pointing to his neighbor, "he's the horn, and this fellow is the hamper, and those two boys over there are the passengers." And so on he described the duties of the happy youngsters.

With a kindly salutation the gentleman passed on. About ten paces away, sitting on the curb, he saw a little chap with a very forlorn countenance, so he stopped and said:

"Well, my little man, why don't you join in the game with those other boys?"

"Please, sir, I am in it; I'm the smell!"

Qualified For Promotion.

Strolling about his camp in the Philippines one day, the colonel came upon one of his officers fondling a monkey.

"Colonel," said the officer, "this is the most remarkable monkey I ever saw. Why, he can take a stick and go through the manual of arms almost as well as one of the soldiers!"

"Sh!" cautioned the colonel, glancing about in great alarm. "Don't tell anybody. Supposing the war department heard of it! They'd make him a brigadier general!"—Everybody's.

Rash Rogers' Experience.

Poultney Bigelow, author and journalist, has a chicken farm.

"I hope we succeed with the farm. I hope our experience won't too closely resemble that of my old friend, Horatio Rogers," said Mr. Bigelow.

"Rash Rogers lived in the suburbs. On the suburban train one morning he said to me, with a sour laugh:

"'I've got something nobody else has got, Mr. Bigelow.'

"'Have you, Rash?' said I. 'What is it?'

"'Well,' said Rogers, 'I bought a fifty dollar incubator last month, put $15 worth of eggs in it and hatched out a bluebottle fly.'

"He frowned, then sighed.

"'Yes,' he said, 'I've got the only sixty-five dollar bluebottle fly in the world.'"

A Literal Result.

A little girl was asked to write a sentence containing the words "bitter end" and after some effort produced the following: "Our neighbor's dog chased my kitty, and as she ran under the porch he bit her end."—Lippincott's.

The Witty Scientist.

"Now, if there is any scientific question that any of my friends would like to ask, I beg of them not to hesitate. I shall be only too happy to answer any inquiry in my power," said the scientist condescendingly at the lecture's end.

An old lady in spectacles that gave her a severe, stern look rose and said:

"Why do wet tea leaves kill roaches?"

"Because, madam, when a roach comes across a wet tea leaf he says, 'Hello, here's a blanket,' and wraps himself up in it, catches cold and dies," said the unruffled professor quickly.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

BASEBALL IS COSTLY.

Millions Spent Annually In Maintaining Our National Game.

TRAVEL EXPENSES BIG ITEMS

Major League Clubs Devote Huge Sums to Car Fare Alone—Great Pastime Now One of the Country's Big Industries.

When the cry of "Play ball!" is heard shortly in eight of the American and National league circuits other sports will have to take a back seat. Baseball has become the nation's greatest sport, and the game today is one of the country's big industries.

There are more than thirty leagues in addition to the big organizations,

WILLIAM GLEASON, VETERAN INFIELDER OF THE PHILADELPHIA NATIONALS.

and they do business on fairly broad lines. It is conservative to say that fully $12,000,000 will be spent before the various pennant races are concluded. The big leagues of course spend the greater part of that, there is no doubt. They employ the best players at salaries that would look good on the pay envelopes of some bank cashiers. They occupy plots of ground in cities where land is dealt out by the square foot, travel thousands of miles on the best railroads in the country and stop at hotels that millionaires make their headquarters.

An idea of the expense of running a ball club may be gleaned from the traveling the National and American league clubs will have to do this year. American league teams will travel 95,772 miles and the Nationals 92,465 miles in order to fill out their scheduled championship dates. At 2 cents per mile and at the average of eighteen men to each team, the sum of $67,765.32 will be paid the railroads alone, and that does not include Pullmans, meals on trains or hotel expenses. It is likely that each club will spend in Pullmans during the year close to $2,000 and in hotels nearly $6,000.

The following tables give an excellent idea of the expense of running a ball club and show to the public that all is not "velvet" that the magnate stands on and why he does all he can to give his patrons the best baseball team he can procure.

BILL BRADLEY, FAMOUS THIRD BASEMAN OF THE CLEVELAND AMERICANS.

[Bill Bradley, the third baseman of the Cleveland Americans, by many is considered to be a second Larry Lajoie, although, of course, these infielders always are on opposite sides of the pivotal second bag during the play. Bradley is tall, has a habit of facing the pitcher much as does his manager, Lajoie, and the twirlers say he picks out about the same kind of balls to hit at that Lajoie does.]

MULLINS MURDER MYSTERY

Suspect Answering Description of Man Wanted Taken Into Custody

Arlington, Mass., April 4.—Early this morning a suspect in the Annie Mullins murder case was brought into the Arlington police station by Chief Urquhart. The man was taken into custody in South Boston late last night and brought to Arlington in the chief's automobile. Accompanying Urquhart on his trip to South Boston and back were Inspector Hooley, Private Detective Edwards and Officer Neilan.

Chief Urquhart refused to give out the name of the suspect or to state in what particular locality of South Boston the man had been found. Urquhart gave out a statement that a party who had not previously come forward had communicated with him by telephone and furnished him with a description of a man claimed to have been seen with Mullins on the night of the murder. The chief stated that the officers were looking for the man described, but would not say the suspect taken into custody this morning was the man wanted.

Ready For Final Burial

Boston, April 4.—The body of Walter F. Baker, who was believed to have been murdered in Bogota, N. J., which was disinterred in Forest Hills cemetery recently and taken to New Jersey for an inquest, was brought back to Boston last night and taken to undertaking rooms. It is expected the body will be buried in the family lot here tomorrow.

Won't Enforce Piece Work System

New Haven, April 4.—It was definitely announced last night that the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company had decided that the existing scale of wages should continue and that the piece-work rule would not be enforced. There will probably be, however, a reduction in the working forces of the shops.

Mourned Loss of Housekeeper

Canaan, N. H., April 4.—John Williams, 70 years old, shot and instantly killed himself in his room at a hotel here. Williams had no relatives. He had come here recently from Hanover. It is supposed that the death of his housekeeper, who had cared for him many years, led to despondency.

First Reduction In Thirty Years

East Greenwich, R. I., April 4.—The management of the Elizabeth mills at East Greenwich and Hillsgrove announce a reduction of 9 percent in wages. About 400 operatives will be affected. The mills manufacture yarn. The reduction will be the first they have made in thirty years.

No Comment on Wage Question

New Bedford, Mass., April 4.—At a meeting of the Weavers' union last night the report of the delegates to the conference with the manufacturers was made and accepted without comment, the meeting not even taking a vote to accept the cutdown in wages.

Alleged Confession of Shooting

Waterbury, Conn., April 4.—August McClusky, a railroad fireman, arrested in connection with the shooting and killing of James Meehan, a railroad flagman, is said to have confessed to having fired the fatal shots.

No Evidence Against Beckman

New York, April 4.—Alexander Berkman, the anarchist who was taken into custody after the Union square bomb throwing, was discharged in court yesterday. The police said they had been unable to get any evidence to connect Berkman with the affair. In discharging Berkman, Magistrate Droege said: "You must remember that the police as well as the public at large look upon an anarchist as little better than a burglar; therefore, you can't keep out of trouble."

Will Discuss Congo Measures

Brussels, April 4.—In presenting to the chamber of deputies the report of the commission on the colonial bill, Premier Scholaert announced that the government was willing that the colonial bill and the Congo independent state annexation treaty be discussed simultaneously. The chamber then fixed upon April 15 as the date for discussion of the measures.

Methodists Call on Cannon

Washington, April 4.—Two hundred ministers, delegates to the Baltimore conference of the Methodist Episcopal church being held in this city, called on Speaker Cannon at the Capitol to pay their respects. They went away with Cannon's assurance that the world is growing better day by day, and that they are doing their part to make it so.

Evelyn Thaw Sues Hotel Man

New York, April 4.—Papers have been served on Manager Regan of the Hotel Knickerbocker in a suit brought by Mrs. Evelyn Thaw to recover $50,000 damages for alleged injuries to her feelings by stories that she and E. R. Thomas had been asked to leave the hotel grill room. Regan has turned the papers over to his counsel.

To Fatten Carnegie Foundations

New York, April 4.—Announcement is made that Andrew Carnegie will add $5,000,000 to the fund of the Carnegie Foundation, or whatever sum may be necessary, to include as pension beneficiaries eligible professors of state universities. No provision was made for this class of educators in the original gift.

Zero Weather In the Catskills

Kingston, N. Y., April 4.—Cold weather prevails throughout the Catskill mountain region and snow fell at many places yesterday. Thermometers registered two degrees below zero at Hunter and Tannersville.

Life—An Easter Poem
By Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale.

THAT is what we try for, hope for and pray for—
That we may think more, feel more, love more and be more;
That we may have life more abundantly, as He said.
Nothing—nothing helps in this seeking as the sight of it—
The brook which is alive again,
The saxifrage which is alive,
The pussy willow, the crocus,
The snowdrop, the violet,
The bluebird, the butterfly.

EDWARD EVERETT HALE.

GRETCHEN'S SURPRISE PARTY

How a German Housemaid Made a Whole Family Happy.

A German housemaid, very fond of her mistress' little children and wishing to add a bit of homely cheer to their Eastertide, decided to follow a quaint and pretty custom observed in many of the provinces of Germany. Early on Easter morning, before one of the family was astir, she stole out on the lawn and hid little nests, which she had secretly made during her spare hours, under shrubs, trees, behind vines and flowerpots and in every conceivable corner of the yard. In these nests, fashioned of straw, twigs and twine, she placed the freshest of eggs, which were to be cooked for Easter breakfast, and the cooking was to be done out of doors in a kettle placed over a rude campfire for the purpose.

When the family came downstairs the German maid told them that the Easter rabbits had been in the grounds the previous night and that if the children would hunt about the yard they would find fresh eggs for breakfast left there for them by the snow white rabbits.

Eagerly the little ones, accompanied by their parents, who were as full of happy anticipation as the children, ran into the grounds about the house hunting for the eggs the rabbits had brought. Screams of delight and joyous laughter followed the finding of the nests, which were quickly robbed of their contents. Then to the steaming big kettle they all hurried, carrying eggs in hats and aprons, and the German maid, no less happy than the children, superintended the boiling of the eggs, which were taken piping hot to the dining room, where the rest of the breakfast awaited the family.—Chicago Record-Herald.

EASTER, THE GREAT SUNRISE

The Resurrection of Jesus Daybreak of Immortality.

Seek him who maketh the seven stars and Orion and turneth the shadow of death into morning.—Amos.

The words of the poet-prophet, written 3,000 years ago, span like an arch of light our great festival. They unseal the lips of song and hearts of worship. The pageantry of an oriental morning prefigures the splendor of the great sunrise that comes forth from the shadows. The daybreak in the east finds its historical analogue in the dawn of eternal life out of the night of death on the first Easter morning. The resurrection of Jesus from the grave is held before us like the panels of a spring dawn. Nature is God's great workshop overhung with patterns. The sculptor carries the fashion of his work in the model to completion in polished granite or marble. With the dawn and attending stars for a model the infinite artist carries the art of life up into the matchless glory of the morning. In earlier days there had been glimpses of the great thought of immortality, faint gleams on the far horizon of the night. When Christ arose, the day broke over the whole world and upon men of every time, race and condition. That sublime awakening gave a new meaning to history, a new value to life, a new vision of the future. The first Easter morning was the daybreak of immortality, the dawning of the light of hope and faith and joy, never again to fade out of the skies.—Rev. D. H. Muller, D. D.

Via Crucis.

One of the most peculiar of continental celebrations of Easter is that which for centuries has been practiced by the monks of Ronoevaux. As day breaks on the morning of Good Friday a long procession of the monks files out through the gateway of the abbey, each bearing on his back an enormous and heavy cross by way of annual penance and in imitation of what they consider to have been one of the severest forms of Christ's physical suffering. Through hamlets and villages this pathetic procession makes its way in spite of the trembling knees and aching muscles, while the villagers, with bare and bowed heads, do homage to the cross. That their penance may lack nothing of severity, these monks strike into the country, choosing the steepest and roughest paths.—Metropolitan Magazine.

Easter Eggs In Ancient Rome.

The ancient Romans indulged in various games with eggs in honor of Castor and Pollux, who were said to have been hatched from an egg of the swan sweetheart of Jupiter.

PIMPLES

"I tried all kinds of blood remedies which failed to do me any good but I have found the right thing at last. My face was full of pimples and blackheads. After taking Cascarets they all left. I am continuing the use of them and recommending them to my friends. I feel fine when I rise in the morning. Hope to have a chance to recommend Cascarets."

OLD NEW ENGLAND CHURCH.

Dr. Hardy gives tomorrow evening at Bethany church the fourth illustrated address on Religious Life and Customs in Old New England. Owing to the storm a fortnight ago a portion of the address was omitted, and the photographs of the old Bay Psalm Book a book now worth its weight in gold; the famous "Vinegar Bible" and other interesting subjects will be shown and explained.

County Endeavorers.

The annual convention of the Christian Endeavors of Norfolk county will be held in the Bethany Congregational church, Quincy, on Monday, April 20, Patriots' Day. There will be three sessions, morning, afternoon, and evening. At the morning session the juniors will hold a rally, Rev. George E. Kenngott speaking. In the afternoon Mr. George E. Copeland and Miss Margaret M. Slattery will conduct a "question box." The speakers in the evening will be Mr. William Moody and Rev. John Reid.

Boston Water Rates.

A Boston paper says the city council water committee has prepared a report for presentation at the city council meeting, Tuesday night, recommending that the price of water to manufacturers be increased 25 per cent, and that the minimum price for meter service to holders be reduced from $10 per year to $6 per year. Also that the city purchase all house meters now in use.

Granite City Banquet.

Monk's orchestra has been engaged for the annual banquet of the Granite City club, that is to be held at the Quincy House Boston next Wednesday evening, and has arranged an attractive program of popular airs for that occasion. The selections will include the following:

Merry Widow Waltzes.
Afraid to come home in the dark.
Much obliged to you.
Dreaming.
Every little bit added to what you have, makes a little bit more.
Experience.
Selections from the Red Mill.
If I only knew just what to do.
Santiago Flynn.

Accident to Aged Citizen.

William Glover of South Quincy, one of the oldest residents of the city, was knocked down by a team on School street at the corner of Franklin street yesterday afternoon. Mr. Glover was crossing the street, when a buggy in which were two young men approached at a rapid gait. Mr. Glover was knocked down and sustained a dislocated shoulder. The young men stopped and carried him to the office of Dr. Reardon.

Postmaster-General Meyer has issued an order doing away altogether with the postmarking of postal cards at the office of address. This action is taken on account of the complaints that have been received at the post-office department on account of postmarks placed on the message side and on the picture side of postcards.

The Norfolk Superior Court, civil sitting without juries, will come in before Judge Lawton at the Court House, at Dedham, next Monday morning. The trial list contains 58 cases—11 for naturalization, four motions, eight law and two equity actions, and 20 uncontested and 13 contested divorce libels.

What Shall We Have for Dessert?

Try JELL-O, the dainty, appetizing, economical dessert. Can be prepared instantly—simply add boiling water and serve when cool. Flavored just right; sweetened just right; perfect in every way. A 10c. package makes enough dessert for a large family. All grocers sell it. Don't accept substitutes. JELL-O complies with all Pure Food Laws. 7 flavors:—Lemon, Orange, Raspberry, Strawberry, Chocolate, Cherry, Peach.

A Great Loss To Atlantic

Henry S. Kolseth of Walker street passed away Friday afternoon after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Kolseth was born in Christiania, Norway, August 7, 1841, and came to this country just before the Civil war. He married Alma Stevens of Corinth, Vt., and was for sometime a resident of Cambridge. He was a soldier in the 42d Massachusetts Volunteers where his splendid height and bearing were worthily conspicuous.

He was at one time connected with the southern division of the Boston & Maine railroad, and later master mechanic of the Old Colony railroad. For the past 20 years he has been the inghouse Air Brake Co.

He was a member of St. Pauls lodge, A. F. & A. M., St. Matthew chapter, and St. Omer commandery. K. T.

Two years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Kolseth visited Norway and Mr. Kolseth's boyhood home, where a sister survives him. His brother is at present in Massachusetts.

No man in Atlantic can claim a wider circle of friends, and since his residence in Ward Six Mr. Kolseth has proved himself a man a great social character and sincere goodfellowship. He is survived by a wife and son.

A Masonic funeral will be held on Monday at 87 Walker street at 2 P. M.

The Committee May Meet Tonight

Something is likely to happen Monday which may mean the ending of the strike of the steam engineers. The granite manufacturers employing engineers held a meeting last evening, but refuse to give out what transpired. From other sources, however, it is reported that the employers decided to give the striking engineers until next Monday to return to work at the old bill of prices.

There are 108 men out on a strike, and it is reported that the employers have received 107 applications from men who desire to fill the vacant positions. Report has it that unless the striking engineers return to work by Monday their places will be filled.

It is said on good authority that the engineers are better paid in Quincy than in any other place in New England.

From another source this morning it was learned that there would probably be a meeting of the committees representing the two organizations tonight and that the chances were very favorable of an agreement being reached.

STRONG SPEAKERS.

The Makaria Fraternity of Bethany church, have been fortunate enough to secure for their speakers on Sunday, Messrs. Currier and Slater, the catcher and veteran pitcher respectively of the Harvard base-ball team. Both these young men are strong speakers and an interesting and instructive talk is assured all those who attend this meeting. Subject: "Base-ball."

The Makaria Fraternity meets every Sunday at 12 o'clock ,and closes at 1 o'clock sharp, and all young men over 16 years of age are cordially invited to come to this and the following meetings of the Fraternity. A pleasant and helpful hour is assured all those who come.

CARD OF THANKS.

W. G. Riepke of 114 Liberty street desires to express his appreciation of the many kindnesses extended to him in his sudden bereavement. The expressions of grief show that many will miss her who has gone and cherish her memory. For the beautiful floral offerings he would extend deep-felt thanks.

Accident at Coddington Fatal

John Crowley, the workman injured at the Coddington school yard on Wednesday, by being struck by a falling derrick, died at the City Hospital early this morning, not having regained consciousness. From the first it was known that his condition was serious, and Thursday an operation was performed, hoping by that to save his life. The surgeons found a clot of blood on the brain and an injury to the back of his head, and gave but slight hope of his recovery.

Mr. Crowley was a brother of the contractor, who stood but a few feet away at the time of the accident and who also had a narrow escape from being struck. Mr. Crowley was about 40 years of age and leaves a widow and six children.

Was President of C. E. Society

A large circle of young people will be grieved to learn of the death of Henry Taylor of 130 Elm street, on Friday afternoon in his 25th year. He was a promising salesman in the employ of Brown, Durrell & Co., of Boston. He was a member of Bethany Congregational church, and was serving his second year as president of the Christian Endeavor Society in which he was much interested.

A year or more ago he became a member of Rural lodge of Masons. He was a young man of exemplary character, and popular with many.

His father was the late George W. Taylor, and he leaves a mother; a sister, Mrs. James F. Young; and three brothers, George A., Ernest and Clifford. Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon.

Vaudeville Monday At the Scenic

The Scenic Temple is to resume vaudeville commencing next Monday, and the management has secured a most excellent program, as will be seen by the following number:—Gus Bruno, polite entertainer, who is a top-notcher as a comedian, monologuist and all-round fun producer; Miss Dot Davenport, a most fascinating singing and dancing soubrette; and Mons. Adolph Adams, "The Man With Many Faces," who is an absolute master of the art of mimicry. Miss Helen LeMar, a sweet-voiced singer, will render the illustrated ballads, and the moving picture part of the entertainment in itself will be enough to drive all dull cares away. Don't forget to tell your friends.

LABORERS' UNION.

Building laborers of this city affiliated with the Building Laborers' National Protective Union of New England held a meeting last night for the betterment of conditions in general. Regarding some new buildings which are to be erected in this city in the near future they hope that union laborers, citizens and tax payers of Quincy will be recognized.

—Lenten services are being held in the Unitarian churches in Boston as follows: Wednesdays at noon at Kings chapel; Wednesdays at five o'clock at the Arlington Street church; Thursdays at half-past four in First church corner Berkeley and Marlborough streets; Saturdays from 12.10 at 12.40 at Second church, Copley square, Rev. Mr. Van Ness.

The last of the social teas at the Unitarian building, Beacon street, Boston, will be on Monday afternoon, April sixth, from four until five, when Mrs. Frank E. Sweetser and Mrs. Henry Ware will pour. Unitarians in Boston and the suburbs have found these weekly social gatherings very enjoyable. On April 13th, children's day, will be observed and a good time is assured the o ung folks.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, Timothy Reed, Adams St Quincy, or the Treasurer, Richard D. Chase, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, William F. Cummings, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, Ernest G. Gay, will be happy to answer inquiries.

BRAINTREE.

Owing to the order of the Board of Health the Public Schools of Braintree will not open April 6th, as announced but will open, unless otherwise ordered, Monday, April 13th.

Mrs. A. H. Johnson has returned to Hyde Park, after a sickness of four months at the home of her sister, Miss Abbie Arnold. Although she has practically recovered from pneumonia she is still an invalid from the effects of a violent fall which occurred on Pearl street last August.

William E. Tracey, proprietor of the Brunswick hotel, returned Tuesday from a short business and pleasure trip. He visited Wilmington, Artesia, Castle Haynes, Chadburn and Pinehurst, N. C., Lynchburgh, Va., and Washington, D. C. He was quite favorably impressed with each place he visited.

Many locomotive engineers have been to New Haven, Conn., to pass the regular examinations of their eyes. Formerly their eyes were tested in Boston.

Arnold Brothers & Prescott have sold a tract of land on Cleveland avenue to Miss A. Josephine Lang of Dorchester, who will build at once. George H. Holbrook has the contract.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Arnold of Middle street observed the fortieth anniversary of their marriage last Sunday. Immediate relatives were present. The happy couple were presented with pinks and roses.

Gordon M. Keating has bought a house lot on Cedar street, will erect at once a family residence. It will be built by the day under the supervision of his father Albert Keating of Quincy.

Miss Helen Bailey has returned to Bridgemater Normal school after spending a short vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Bailey of Ash street.

The Thayer Sunday school class were entertained at the home of Mrs. Thomas Simms, Hollis avenue, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Lane of Vine street have returned from their visit to Mt. Vernon, New York.

The Washington whist club was pleasantly entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Willard Morrison, Adams street on Tuesday evening.

Professor Sewall formerly of Thayer Academy was in town Wednesday.

It is rumored that Mr. Jordon, of the Up-to-date market on Commercial street, has purchased the corner lot opposite the East Braintree station on Commercial street of Mr. T. A. Watson and will erect a block there in the near future.

Mr. P. T. Litchfield of 19 Liberty street has been transferred to another locality by the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., we are informed and is moving away this week.

Miss Alice Crane, librarian of North Plymouth, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan J. Crane of Quincy avenue, the last of this week. Miss Bullard the kindergarten teacher at the cordage works, Plymouth, came with her.

George Mellin has moved to Quincy, where he will make his home with his sister.

George H. Burkhart has moved to New Hampshire. Gardner Barker will occupy the house vacated by him on Shaw street, owned by Lois F. Bates.

Allen Penniman and Lois F. Bates have been drawn to serve as jurors at the April term of the Superior court at Dedham criminal term.

Thayer academy and the public schools will not reopen until Monday, April 13.

The next meeting of The Jonas Perkins School Association will be held in the hall of the Jonas Perkins school on Thursday evening, April ninth, at eight o'clock.

The subscription papers now out for the support of the White Sox are increasing in volumne every day. Already over thirty dollars have been subscribed, and together with the club's thirty dollars, we are well on the way to the one hundred mark.

The Penniman School Association desires to announce that the farcial entertainment which was advertised to be given in the school building on Tuesday evening, April 7th, will be indefinitely postponed, owing to the school building being closed on account of diphtheria. When conditions become favorable for holding the entertainment due notice will be given, and the tickets already sold will remain good.

Mrs. Hewes of Quincy, who has been caring for Mrs. C. O. Miller of Liberty street the past three months, has returned to her home.

WEYMOUTH.

The drama "The Corner Stone" given at Lincoln hall, Weymouth, last Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Y. P. C. U. of the Universalist church was the finest presented in this vicinity by amateurs for years and the success of the play was in a large share due to the excellent work of Joseph W. Blanchard of this village who took the part of a Dutch policeman to perfection. Grafton McKenney of Braintree who took one of the leading parts with but a few days notice, taking the place of one who dropped from the cast, distinguished himself by his excellent acting of the part of "Bud."

Dr. Oliver G. Tinkham of the Boston Lying-in hospital is enjoying a few days rest this week at his home on Front street, Weymouth.

Mrs. G. W. Tinkham entertained a few friends with whist on Tuesday evening at her home on Front street.

The friends of Mr. W. C. Mason are glad to know that he has recovered from his recent attack of grip and is at his post as assistant stage manager at the Boston Theatre.

Mrs. E. C. Richards of Washington street is recovering from an attack of grip.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Nash, accompanied by Miss Alice, have gone to Gardiner, Me., for a week.

Miss Mildred Smith, a teacher in a seminary in New Hampshire is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Smith.

Water has been shut off from all the public fountains owing to the prevalence of glanders among horses.

Miss Ethel Keene has accepted a position at Mechanicsville, Maine.

Oscar A. Tower has gone to Somerville, where he will remain a month with his sister, Mrs. Annice Stetson.

Louis F. Bates has been drawn to serve on the jury at Dedham, and Asa K. Binney has been drawn for grand jury.

A very successful invitation dance was held March 28 at Pythian hall, Weymouth, with an attendance of sixty. William Baldwin and Edwin Hunt furnished excellent music.

"OPEN DOOR" POLICY

United States Will Insist Upon Its Being Carried Out

NOTICE SERVED ON RUSSIA

She Has Already Violated the Treaty of Portsmouth and Exceeded Her Authority In Manchuria--Our Position In the Matter

Washington, April 4.—Baron Rosen the Russian ambassador, consulted Secretary Root yesterday, and Russia's authority in Manchuria is understood to have been the subject of consideration.

It has developed that the position taken by United States Consul Fisher at Harbin, under instructions from the Washington government, to decline to recognize the authority of the director of the Chinese Eastern railway in the municipal government there, is the first indication the American government has given of the course likely to be followed by it in the maintenance of the "open door" doctrine announced as a permanent principle by the late Secretary Hay.

That the American government will have little difficulty in maintaining the position it has taken is made evident from the view of a basis of Russia's assertion of jurisdiction over the Chinese Eastern railway zone. This basis is a contract entered into by the Chinese government and the Russo-Chinese bank in 1898. Many of the principal features of this contract have been made the subject of protest since by China.

For instance, the director of the road was to be appointed by China and to reside in Pekin. This provision has never been complied with. The director of the road is a Russian and resides at Harbin.

As further establishing Russia's true position in Manchuria, the treaty of Portsmouth, which ended the war between Russia and Japan, is most explicit in terms. In this treaty the two powers agree "to completely and simultaneously evacuate Manchuria" with the exception of the leased portion of the Liao Tung peninsula, "to entirely and completely restore to the exclusive administration of China all parts of Manchuria now occupied by Russian and Japanese troops or which are under their control with the exception of the above mentioned territory."

And again, in the same treaty: "The imperial government of Russia declares that it has no territorial advantage or preferential or exclusive concessions in Manchuria of such a nature as to impair the sovereignty of China, or which are incompatible with the principle of equal opportunity."

Notwithstanding these stipulations, the director of the Chinese Eastern railway, in the month of February last, promulgated two edicts, one of which assumes to regulate to the minutest detail the transaction of all business within the railroad zone, and the other provides severe penalties against any criticism of the railroad administration, either in the press or by agitators or in public gatherings.

The commercial regulations make it necessary for all persons wishing to engage in business of any character to procure a license of the director of the road, for which a fee is charged. Penalties of fines and imprisonment are provided for a violation of the edict.

It is readily understood that the refusal of the American consul to recognize this Russian railroad administration, which assumes to regulate all things within the railroad zone, including Harbin, should be made the subject of inquiry. However, it is believed that the position of the American government will be maintained until the basis of Russia's authority warrants a recognition of her jurisdiction in Manchuria.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Visit Ended

New Orleans, April 4.—Mrs. Roosevelt and her party left here last night in a special car for Washington. Mrs. Roosevelt was free from troublesome attention of any sort while in this city, even the photographers respecting her wish for privacy. The boys went on a night coon hunt on the gulf coast. No coons were caught, but the hunt was enlivened by the humor of the negro guides who led the expedition.

American Killed In Turkey

Washington, April 4.—Ambassador Leishman, at Constantinople, reports the death of B. Warkentine, president of the Kansas state bank of Newton, Kan. The banker was shot by a Syrian while on a train traveling from Damascus. The Syrian was arrested and explained that he was examining his pistol and that the shooting was purely accidental.

Visitors From the Orient

San Francisco, April 4.—Among the passengers of the steamship Mongolia, which arrived last night from the Orient, was the Asahi party, composed of fifty-seven Japanese, representing numerous trades and professions. The party will leave for the east tomorrow and will make stops at Salt Lake, Chicago, Boston and Washington.

"Infernal Machine" Man Sentenced

Raleigh, April 4.—Hardin Germany, 21 years old, was sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary for sending an "infernal machine" to Senator Cone, a wealthy manufacturer of Greensboro. Germany was convicted on the charge of secret assault with intent to kill.

HACKENSCHMIDT QUITS

Gotch Wins Wrestling Championship of the World

Chicago, April 4.—George Hackenschmidt quit in his match with Frank Gotch for the catch-as-catch-can wrestling championship of the world, giving the title to the Iowa man by default.

Gotch's defense puzzled Hackenschmidt. After an hour and three-quarters of fruitless attempts to get a hold, he straightened up and looked at his opponent, with disgust written on every feature. He asked Referee Smith to call it a draw, but Smith told the wrestlers to keep on.

After more than two hours of unavailing tugging and desperate scrambling, the Russian said to Gotch: "I'll give you the match." Referee Smith at once declared Gotch the winner.

The match served mainly to show that Gotch has a defensive system which is hard to break down. For an hour and forty-five minutes he eluded every attempt of the Russian to fasten a grip on him. Gotch side-stepped, roughed his man's features with his knuckles, butted him under the chin and generally worsted Hackenschmidt until the foreigner was at a loss how to proceed.

But when, in the clinch that finally came, Gotch slammed his opponent down on the mat and came within an ace of getting a toe hold, and followed this up with lifting Hackenschmidt clear of the mat and throwing him on his shoulders with great force, the European was broken. The lines deepened in his face, the hoots of the crowd hurt his feelings and after considering the matter for a few seconds, he decided that it was time to quit.

Few of the spectators but were willing to give Gotch full credit for his victory. The Iowa farmer was in better condition, was quicker and trickier and showed a better knowledge of the game.

Panama Should Heed Warning

Washington, April 4.—While the United States has guaranteed the independence of the republic of Panama, it has not guaranteed her independence of all obligations as a sovereign nation in her dealings with other nations. The reported invasion by Colombia of the frontier town of Jurado is looked upon as inevitable warning to Panama to awaken to the necessity of becoming an active party to diplomatic negotiations for the amicable adjustment of numerous open questions pending between herself and Colombia and Costa Rica.

Afraid to Return to Russia

New York, April 4.—United States immigration authorities have arrested Walter Uppit, a young Russian, who was arrested by the police last Saturday immediately after the bomb explosion in Union square. He will be taken before a board of special inquiry and questioned regarding his alleged anarchistic connections, with a view to his deportation if he is unable to clear himself of suspicion. Uppit says that he is a Russian revolutionist and insists that, if he is sent back to Russia, he will be executed.

Retired Naval Surgeon Killed

Norristown, Pa., April 4.—Dr. John C. Spencer, a retired surgeon of the United States navy, was killed in a runaway accident here, and his daughter, Mrs. Herbert Von Slotzenberg, and Miss Mary Sullivan, a nurse, were injured. The horse became frightened and flung the carriage over an embankment. Three sons of Spear are in the United States navy.

Stork Keeps Busy In New York

New York, April 4.—A baby born in New York every four minutes. This, according to figures just made public by Dr. Darlington, health commissioner, is the record that has been made in the five boroughs for the first three months of 1908. From Jan. 1 to April 1 the births in New York reported to the health department were 32,655.

Sealers Have Not Reported

St. Johns, April 4.—Owners of steamers which left port twenty-four days ago on the annual spring seal-hunting cruise say that the outlook is unfavorable. Usually the first laden ship returns within eighteen or twenty days, bringing news of the other vessels.

Telephone Company In Debt

Newark, N. J., April 4.—Vice Chancellor Howell decided that the United States Independent Telephone company, capitalized at $50,000,000, is insolvent and advised that a receiver be selected. There is a judgment of $16,000,000 against the company.

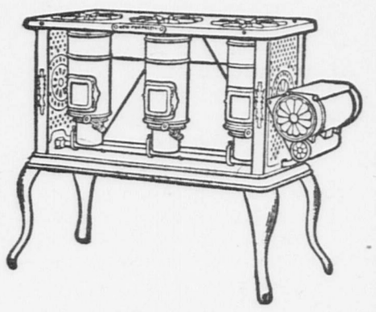
You Will Need an Oil Stove



When warm days and the kitchen fire make cooking a burden—then is the time to try a New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove.

Marvelous how this stove does away with kitchen discomforts—how cool it keeps the room in comparison with conditions when the coal fire was burning. The quick concentrated heat of the

Her Easter Joy

A Story by ESTHER JOYCE.

Copyright, 1907, by Mary McKeon.

MISS AMY CARTER leaned back in the dull shadows of the boarding house parlor and watched the girl at the piano. The girl had a true but quite untrained voice, and she sang in commonplace, soulless fashion the air of a four part sacred song.

"Wasn't it shivery and grand where the bass took up the tune?"

The girl's hands came down on the keys with a crash. She had not dreamed that Miss Amy had come into the room. Most of the boarders did not come downstairs until the tea bell had rung. Miss Amy was almost as startled as the girl. She had been in the house five weeks and never exchanged a word with any one save the landlady.

"Were you at St. Augustine's this afternoon?" inquired the girl, swinging around on the piano stool.

"Oh, yes," replied Miss Amy simply. "I've been there every Sunday since I heard you sang there in the choir."

"I'm sure it is awfully kind of you to say so. I don't do much, you know, just one of the chorus, but it's $1.50 per, and you meet real nice people too. I'd have joined the Musical league, too, only you've got to report for every rehearsal or lose your tickets for the last concert."

MR. WESTON STUDIED HER CURIOUSLY.

Miss Amy sat like one entranced. Here was a girl who did not simply buy admission tickets and listen to others. She was in it all, in the world of music from which Miss Amy had always been excluded by the iron key, marked duty.

"How—how do you manage to get into a choir or a league or anything of that sort?"

The girl felt flattered as she looked into Miss Amy's kindling face.

"Oh, they're always looking for good sight readers with fresh, clear voices in the big choirs. Sometimes you get paid—sometimes you don't. I didn't get anything last year. But the easiest way to get in is to take lessons from the choirmaster—private lessons. Then Mr. Weston will put you in the choir to jolly you along, whether you can sing or not. You're new to New York, and you wouldn't believe the graft"—

The clang of the supper bell drowned the latter part of the sentence, and the girl rose abruptly. Miss Amy followed her down to the dining room, but scarcely knew what was spread before them. What mattered food or drink or sordid landladies or gossiping boarders when she had found the key to her paradise at last? Perhaps it was graft—perhaps the girl spoke thoughtlessly.

The next morning very early Miss Amy went shopping. She told the milliner she wanted a brown hat to match her suit. "No, not a toque like she had on; something younger," and she described quite accurately the hat which the girl had worn to church the afternoon before.

"I'll wear this," she said, "and you can send the old one home."

Next she went to the nearest drug store and studied the directory. "Weston, Albert, singing teacher, 421 West —— street."

And as she left the drug store she spied a florist's window, and she stopped for a bouquet of violets. Then again she hesitated. The crisis of this her new life was at hand. She allowed three cars to pass, and then, with firmly compressed lips, she signaled for a hansom. At the boarding house every one said that in New York one must keep up appearances. Perhaps if he thought she could afford to ride in hansoms he would overlook her vocal deficiencies.

Albert Weston, worn by his struggles with an indifferent pupil, was standing at the window of his studio when the hansom drew up before the building and the brown, wrenlike figure stepped cautiously from the vehicle and shot a questioning glance up the brownstone front.

"I'm glad I took the hansom," commented Miss Amy as she mounted the steps. This was life! An absurd thrill swept over her and brought a delicate and most becoming blush to her face.

Mr. Weston studied her curiously, hands deep in his pockets, when she asked almost timidly the privilege of studying with him. Prices, hours, everything seemed secondary to the fear that he might not accept her as a pupil. He tried her voice, paced the room a few moments and then said gravely:

"Yes, I will take you as a pupil, but I want to be quite frank with you. You will never be a great singer. You have a sweet, harmless, drawing room voice, but I don't want you to go into the work with any idea of being a grand opera singer in time. You have begun—too late for that."

Again the delicate flush mounted to her face.

"I understand all that—it is just for my own pleasure. I—I could not study sooner. It is just for the joy of being able to sing for myself."

He stopped short in his nervous walk and looked at her. Such simplicity, such humility, such lack of ambition, almost staggered him.

"Perhaps some time—when my voice is a little stronger—you might, that is, if it would be quite right, you might let me join your choir at St. Augustine's?"

"First vacancy there is," he assented heartily. "What our congregation likes is a number of sweet, correct voices. By the time some one gets tired of rehearsals or marries or moves away I'll have your voice placed and be glad to take you on."

And so commenced the musical career of Miss Amy Carter, aged thirty-one, residence a second class boarding house; occupation, spending the small inheritance which had come to her suddenly after a life of narrow drudgery and unrelieved sacrifice. At first her lessons opened and closed with almost monosyllabic conversation, but in time the musician delved beneath the surface and found the heart which for years had almost starved for music. It had been born in her, she thought, but there had been work to do, so heavy that her hands had grown too rough and stiff to play the old fashioned organ. There were two invalids to nurse when the village choir would have been glad of her services. And so she counted her love as dead and buried until the inheritance had come, and then—

"Well," she said, with a whimsical smile, "I thought I'd come to New York and hear the best of music while the money lasted. I would have a taste of real life—what I have heard people call the joy of living."

Weston smiled to himself. She called this seeing life! And, indeed, these days she was quite in a flutter of excitement all the time. Weston had tickets he could not use for this concert and that. Matinees came just when he had pupils, and it was a shame to waste the tickets. He was tremendously diverted by this delicate, flower-like woman, who felt that she was indulging in a mad orgy of music. He learned to look forward with keen interest to her comments on the concerts she attended. Self played so small a part in her enjoyment. It was always not how she felt, but how the music affected the audience, and gradually he discovered that she had a decided gift of criticism which was developing under his guidance.

Something he knew, too, that his pupil of thirty-one had not discovered. Under the magic of indulging the one great longing of her lifetime she was cheating old Father Time, turning pages back and not forward. The faint color was always in her cheeks these days, and the voice, rising in her birdlike throat, was fresh as a girl's, lilting like a lark's in flowered meadows.

And, watching her development, the tired man began to wonder what had come over him. He saw his work in a new light. The weight of drudgery slipped from his shoulders. The sense of wasted effort yielded to the infectious happiness of his buoyant pupil.

And so dawned Easter morning over St. Augustine's. Outside the doors the mob of sightseers swayed while the regular parishioners claimed first right to pews. Then came the inrush of strangers; the organist took his place, Mr. Weston raised his hand, and the band of white robed men and women filed into the choir loft. Out to the waiting multitude rolled the waves of perfectly balanced harmonies—a hundred voices admirably selected, thought the congregation, and yet to the man who had trained them there came but a single voice. Her face was uplifted, her eyes dewy and tender, as with flutelike clearness the wonderful words reached him above the heads of the other singers:

"The strife is o'er, the battle done;
The victory of life is won;
The song of triumph has begun—
Alleluia, alleluia, alleluia!"

To the man it came not as a paean of triumph, but a message of peace, and she had shown him the way!

He wanted to tell her now—this minute! The service stretched ahead of him interminably.

"Alleluia, alleluia!"

His glance caught and held hers. A startled expression flashed over her face. The flutelike tones faltered and died away. The absorbed singers on either side did not note that her hand trembled, and her face, paling, turned from the leader to the banks of Easter lilies. Perhaps it was their perfume—something seemed to smother the sound in her throat. Then, as if fascinated, her glance traveled back to meet his, and the tender gravity in his face steadied her. She raised her book, the color came back into her face, and as her voice floated out to him in the final "Alleluia" he knew that his heart's message had reached her, and that was her answer.

HER VOICE FLOATED OUT TO HIM.

China's Easter Rabbit.

One day, says a Chinese legend, the great god Buddha was very hungry. There were no restaurants in the neighborhood. A little rabbit perceived the god's plight and, hopping up to him, said:

"Eat me, O Buddha!"

Touched by such unselfish devotion, the god transported bunny to the moon, where he still sits in the top of a tree pounding in a mortar the herbs that go to make up the water of life.

At the spring feast in China ever since that time people give each other moon shaped cakes stamped with the image of a rabbit.

JACQUES CONVICTED

Youth Found Guilty of the Murder of Miss Eddy

UNDISTURBED OVER VERDICT

Jury Asks That He Receive All the Mercy Possible--Struck Woman Down In Lonely Spot and Robbed Her of Her Pay Envelope

Providence, April 4.—Guilty of murder was the verdict returned by the jury in the superior court last night in the case of Earl V. Jacques, charged with the murder of Miss Mary Eddy, a mill worker, in Greenville, on Jan. 3. Miss Eddy's pay envelope, containing $13.13, was missing from her person, and robbery was ascribed as the motive of the killing. The penalty for murder in Rhode Island is life imprisonment.

After the verdict of the jury had been declared, Edward E. Trowbridge, the foreman of the jury, stated to the court that the jury wished him to request that all the mercy possible be shown to the defendant in the sentence.

The verdict was given after the jury had deliberated over five hours. The trial of the case was begun on Monday of this week. The respondent received the verdict calmly, giving no sign of emotion. His attorneys announced that a motion for a new trial would be made within the seven days allowed by law. Sentence will be imposed later.

The murder of Miss Mary Eddy, who was about 50 years of age, was committed on the night of Jan. 3. That was payday in the Greenville woolen mill and Miss Eddy was on her way home from work with her pay envelope for the week, containing $13.13, concealed in her stocking. In an unfrequented place not far from her home she was struck over the head from behind with a club and fatally injured, dying within an hour.

After an investigation, in which the town authorities and police inspectors of Providence took part, Jacques was placed under arrest on Jan. 18. It was alleged that Jacques had made a confession to two detectives of Providence, in which he declared that on the night of Jan. 3 he secured a dye stick from a pile behind the Greenville woolen mill, and following Miss Eddy along the lonely road toward her home, struck her down and robbed her of her pay envelope. According to testimony introduced in the trial by the prosecution, Jacques repeated his confession ten times after he had made it to the Providence detectives.

The defense asserted that Jacques made the confession under pressure and threats after he had become wearied from a long examination by the detectives, and that he was entirely innocent of the crime. Jacques is 19 years old and a son of Leon F. Jacques of Greenville.

Christian Ministers Needed

New York, April 4.—Lack of real, old-fashioned revival spirit and a great dearth of candidates for the ministry were noted and deplored by Rev. Dr. J. A. Palmer at the New York Methodist Episcopal conference. "Whoever enters the Christian ministry thinking of what he can get out of it makes a great mistake," said Palmer, "but he who goes into it for what he can put into it will find it the noblest of callings."

Police Block Anarchists

Paterson, N. J., April 4.—Having been barred by the local authorities from every hall in the city, anarchists were frustrated last night in their attempt to hold in the office of La Questione Sociale a meeting to protest against the suppression of that publication. Despite the protests of the publisher and his adherents, the room was speedily cleared by a guard of police. No arrests were made.

Stevens' Slayer In Court

San Francisco, April 4.—Having been charged with the murder of Durham W. Stevens, I. W. Chang appeared for preliminary examination before Police Judge Conlan. Nothing new developed at the hearing, but Assistant District Attorney Black promises startling charges when his chief witness is put on the stand. The case will be resumed Monday.

Concerned In House Burning

Norwalk, O., April 4.—Mrs. Martha J. Campbell, former Women's Christian Temperance Union president and Sunday school superintendent, was convicted of aiding and abetting Miss Lea Mather in the burning of Miss Mather's dwelling house in Steuben and was sentenced to eight months in prison and to pay the cost of the prosecution.

Riot Results In Strike

Rome, April 4.—The city yesterday bore the aspect of a holiday, owing to a general strike of workmen as a protest against the killing by the troops of three rioters and the wounding of fifteen others on Thursday. No serious incidents occurred. Eight hundred tourists who were annoyed by the strikers left the city.

Mounted Police Not Organized

Madrid, April 4.—The foreign office announces that the native police in the interior of Morocco and in the ports of that country allotted to Spain under the Algeciras convention are now working satisfactorily, but that the mounted sections of the force have not yet been organized.

FILIBUSTER CONTINUES

Democrats Continue Dilatory Tactics, Despite Republican Threats

Washington, April 4.—When the house of representatives adjourned late yesterday the breach between the majority and the minority parties was, if anything, wider than ever. The leaders of both sides arrived on the scene early, apparently none the worse for the parliamentary struggle of the night before.

The Democrats at once resumed dilatory tactics and kept them up throughout the day, notwithstanding the committee on rules brought in a rule applying cloture to general debate on the District of Columbia appropriation bill, which was in order for consideration. The rule was adopted amid great disorder and only after the Democrats had exhausted every parliamentary means to obstruct its final disposition.

In presenting the rule, Mr. Dalzell repeated the threat of Payne that during the remainder of the session the Democrats would find themselves out in the cold. Mr. Williams defiantly announced that he was not to be intimidated. He exhorted his Democratic colleagues to stand together and to apply all the power of which the minority was possessed to force the Republicans to act.

The two hours allowed by the rule for general debate on the district bill having been consumed, the house adjourned after 6 o'clock, but only after the Democrats had forced a rollcall.

Was Noted as a Poet

Berne, April 4.—James J. Roche, the American consul at Berne, died here after a long illness. He was appointed to Berne in April, 1907. Previous to that he was American consul at Genoa. Roche will be better remembered as an Irish-American poet of distinction than as a diplomat. In Boston he was widely known as a writer and editor. Roche was both the intimate friend and biographer of John B. O'Reilly, whom he succeeded as editor of the Boston Pilot. He was born in 1847 in Ireland.

Bomb Throwing Is Threatened

New York, April 4.—Members of the Produce Exchange are considerably worried over a threatening "Black Hand" letter. Written in Italian, in a clear hand and with good diction, the letter said that unless $1000 was placed in Market Field street, near Broad street, a bomb would be hurled into the exchange some time during the coming week. The Produce Exchange has closed the gallery to the public, as have the Stock, Cotton and Consolidated Exchanges.

Loud Made a Promise

Washington, April 4.—The most interesting development yesterday before the special house submarine boat investigating committee was the production of another anonymous letter charging that an attorney of the Electric Boat company was brought as a candidate for congress against Congressman Loud of Michigan, but was withdrawn upon Loud's promise to vote for submarines. The letter was mailed from this city to the Detroit Free Press.

Miners and Operators to Meet

Indianapolis, April 4.—President Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America states that there will be a joint convention between the miners and operators of the districts of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois for the purpose of rehabilitating the interstate wage agreement in the central competitive field. It is upon the wage scale in this field that the scales in other fields are based.

May Give Wife $10,000,000

New York, April 4.—The report is current that Alfred G. Vanderbilt, whose is suing him for divorce, has agreed to settle on her the sum of $10,000,000. The hearing before the referee in the divorce proceedings is being pushed with the utmost speed and secrecy. It is learned that Vanderbilt will make absolutely no defense to the evidence that his wife offers.

To Minimize Work on Sunday

Washington, April 4.—The president has directed that Sunday work in the departments here be restricted to that which is of an emergency character or which is recognized as being absolutely necessary to the public interest and welfare. Accordingly Postmaster General Meyer has issued an order intended to minimize Sunday work in the postoffice department.

Bannerman to Relinquish Office

London, April 4.—The prospects for the recovery of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman seem brighter now than a week ago. The prime minister has acquainted his colleagues with his desire to be relieved of office and a public announcement of his resignation may be expected any day.

Trust Lumber Men Fined

Toledo, April 4.—The twenty wealthy lumbermen of Toledo found guilty of conspiracy in restraint of trade under the Valentine anti-trust law were resented by Judge Kumler. The sentences were fines ranging from $500 to $1000, and in no instance was a jail sentence given.

Moderate Business Improvement

New York, April 4.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that while the volume of business is still much below normal, moderate improvement is constantly noted, although the rate of progress is very different in the leading centers of trade.

AN ELECTION PRIMER

Pertinent Points About Our Election Machinery For New Voters and Old

THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

When did the Democratic party first appear in national politics?

Under its present name the party first appeared in 1828, when Andrew Jackson was elected president as the party candidate. The Democratic party, however, so far as its chief principles go, dates from the beginning of the republic.

Who is regarded as the party's founder?

Thomas Jefferson. When the constitution of the United States was under discussion in convention the opposing theories of Thomas Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton constituted the principal difference of opinion. Jefferson and his adherents leaned far toward local self government, while Hamilton and his faction stood for a strong centralized government. In after years the Jeffersonian theories became crystallized into what was called at first the Republican party, later the Republican-Democratic party and finally the Democratic party.

The present Republican party, then, is entirely distinct from the one of Jefferson's time?

Entirely so. It is descended, through the Whig party, from the Hamiltonian or Federalist party, which took the opposite view to that of Jefferson.

What presidents has the Democracy elected?

Thomas Jefferson twice, James Madison twice, James Monroe twice, John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson twice, Martin Van Buren, James K. Polk, Franklin Pierce, James Buchanan, Grover Cleveland twice.

What is the Democratic party's position as to tariff?

It stands for a low tariff or a tariff for revenue only.

TO AID UNEMPLOYED

Plan Suggested For Providing Means of Livelihood.

GOVERNMENT HELP DESIRED.

Secretary Wilson to Be Asked to Take the Initiative In Establishing Experimental Farm Where Idle Workmen Can Be Taught Farming—Views of an Educator.

The question of securing work for the great armies of the unemployed of the large cities, it is stated, is to be brought squarely before Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture within a short time with the recommendation that he do all in his power to have the federal government establish an experimental farm. Seth Farnsworth of Chicago, who has interested himself in the case of the unemployed, went to Washington and is preparing to place before the secretary of agriculture many reasons why he should see that the government back the effort to solve the problem of the idle men of the cities.

Together with Rev. John Ellis, who is also in Washington representing the recent St. Louis convention of idle men who are looking to the government to do something to aid them, Mr. Farnsworth hopes to interest the officials of the country, from the president down, in the project. The administration, it is stated, is concerned over conditions existing in many sections of the country, notably in the large cities, and intends, it is stated, to address itself to the task of investigating the problem. In this way it is hoped much of the distress among the workingmen of the country may be greatly relieved.

"What we want to do in this country to alleviate the situation is to educate the idle workingman in the pursuit of agriculture," said Mr. Farnsworth recently to a reporter of the Washington Star.

"You hear much throughout the country of farmers who cannot get farm hands. From these stories one would suppose that all a workingman of the cities would have to do would be to call upon the farmer and offer his services in order to secure employment. But in the case of those skilled in machinery or other of the trades this cannot be true.

"They know nothing of agriculture and when they apply to the farmer are turned away because they know nothing of the work of the farm."

Mr. Farnsworth then explained that the government should at once establish a farm where honest workingmen out of employment may be able to come and receive instructions in the art of husbandry and in several months be able to go forth into the world qualified to take up the work in the fields until they may again take up their regular vocations in life.

For a starting point in this effort to establish a farm for the extension of this proposed high class agricultural education Mr. Farnsworth calls attention to the 500 acre tract of land owned by the department of agriculture in Alexandria county, Va., which tract, he says, is an ideal location for an inauguration of the work to solve the question of helping the unemployed.

When the question was discussed with Mr. Timothy Healy, president of the International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen, he expressed great interest in the idea. Solving the problem of the unemployed is taking up much of the time of the labor leaders in New York at this time, according to Mr. Healy, and in his estimation they will gladly welcome any effort on the part of the government of the United States to alleviate the situation.

Mr. James L. Feeney, president of the Bookbinders' union, was one of the local labor leaders whom Rev. John Ellis and Mr. Farnsworth conferred with the other day. He was also impressed with the idea that the proposed school for the unemployed, if it could be successfully carried out, would go a long way toward helping to solve the problem of the idle workmen. Mr. Feeney explained that he stood with Mr. Healy in support of any effort that will go toward advancing the interests of the laboring men.

His attention was also called to a recent statement from E. A. Sutherland, who has charge of the National Agricultural and Normal institute at Madison, Tenn. In his statement Mr. Sutherland says: "Our experience has been good. We are making steady progress, and those things that were experiments two years ago are now demonstrated facts. We do not need to walk by faith concerning them. I am satisfied that the coming school will have to adapt itself to the principles that underlie the education where the entire man is trained.

"Schools that continue to adhere to the old ideas will share the same fate that has been experienced by men and institutions that refuse to recognize necessary reforms. Self supporting schools will turn out a class of men who will be superior in every respect to those who are trained in a school that does not appreciate practical education."

Rev. John Ellis, national secretary of the unemployed at St. Louis, the other night talked as follows of the proposed plan to establish the school: "After a thorough discussion of the plan with Mr. Farnsworth I approve of the work, first, because it will afford an industrial opportunity to many men. In the second place, a little scientific knowledge of agriculture will soon quicken the interest and enthusiasm of men of the city type of mind for farm and country life. Thirdly, it would transform unskilled men into a trained class of agricultural workers who would be hailed with delight by the farmers and who would probably try to become farm owners themselves. In the fourth place, it would save the American 'living wage' standard from destruction at the hands of a vast army of unorganized and unemployed men.

"The self supporting agricultural school plan near cities will tend to correct the city habit and wake a love for agricultural life not only among this class, but also among clerks, factory folks, struggling professional men and others who are forced out of employment."

NEW RAILROAD SIGNALS.

German Device to Catch Engineer's Attention on Approaching Signals.

Germany recently has been having its share of the same epidemic of railroad disasters which aroused the American public a year ago, and the large number of accidents which were traced to the failure of engine drivers to see signals has caused the Prussian railway administration to adopt a new signal apparatus. The feature of the new system lies in the warning given the engineer that he is approaching a signal about 110 yards before the signal itself is actually reached, says the New York Times. This is accomplished by the use of an electric cab signal system which rouses the driver's attention by ringing a bell and exposing a white slide directly before his eyes in the cab. With his attention thus stimulated the driver will have no excuse for running by a signal in a fog. This combination of outside and inside apparatus does away with the objection railroad men have made to signal devices before the engineer's eyes in the cab, which they believed would tend to make him pay less attention to the line of road stretching before him. Watching from the locomotive is absolutely necessary for the safety of the train and would gradually be left unperformed if attention was distracted entirely to the little signal apparatus in the cab.

The apparatus now used in Prussia on several railroads is as follows: At a fixed distance from the signal post two parallel iron bars with a small space between them are mounted along the track for several yards. There is attached to the locomotive an arm which carries a bristly broom made of pliable copper wires. The passage of this broom between the iron bars produces a contact which is intense and free from concussion. An electrical action follows upon the mechanism in the cab, a bell sounds and a white slide replaces a red. The sign remains plainly visible to the eye until the engineer presses a button. He knows definitely that a signal is to be expected and if he cannot clearly make out the order intended will stop the train.

ARDENT LEAP YEAR WOOER.

Girl Offers Happiness In Full Weight and Generous Measure.

The first feminine proposal of marriage under the license which leap year allows has been received by O. B. Warren, a young clerk of York, Pa. He is holding it under consideration. The letter which he received from an admiring young woman at Manchester, Pa., reads:

Dear Sir—Having seen you several times and having heard that you were unmarried, I have taken the opportunity that leap year offers to girls to ask for your hand. I want to make you happy, to bring sunshine into your lonely life, also add unceasing pleasure to my own. Now, I sincerely hope you will not treat this as a mere joke, but take pity on us girls, who are just as lonely as yourself. I am positive that I can make you quite happy, also hope that you will not be so selfish as to refuse my proposal. Awaiting an early reply, I remain impatiently,

MISS ——.

Mr. Warren gallantly refuses to reveal the name of his fair petitioner.

A Big Gain.

[Edison has invented a hundred mile battery that will enable automobiles to dispense with gasoline and chauffeurs.]

To call the man a wizard isn't any sort of flattery.
"A public benefactor" sounds almighty weak and slim.
He's done a lot already, but this automatic battery
Makes any past achievement by comparison seem dim.
I haven't any chauffeur. My appreciative attitude
Is not due to the circumstance of owning a machine,
But all the same my heart is overflowing with its gratitude,
For, heavens, how I've suffered with that smell of gasoline!

I know that men whose patience and forbearance touch sublimity
Have knit their brows in something that amounted to a frown
And uttered words betraying quite a loss of equanimity
When running out of petrol about twenty miles from town.
I've heard, too, that some chauffeurs have a way of most disdainfully
Regarding their employers—that, in fact, they're pretty mean.
I think that things like that affect a motorist quite painfully,
But I'll be glad of freedom from the smell of gasoline.

A trolley car can move me with an adequate celerity.
I have no taste for touring, which is funny, I suppose.
A trip upon the train, too, is a tax on my temerity,
But that infernal odor is an insult to my nose.
So when I say I'm thankful it is not the common platitude.
This boon I do regard with an appreciation keen.
I say again my heart is overflowing with its gratitude.
If anything disgusts me it's the smell of gasoline.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The full board of the Harbor and Land commission is to view Quincy bay and shore on Monday.

Mr. Arthur Stanley has leased one of the Loring houses on Willow street and will take possession in April.

Nine members of the Quincy Alliance attended the Neighborhood meeting of the Wollaston Alliance on Wednesday.

The next meeting of the Quincy Day Nursery association will be held at the Women's club house, Presidents hill, on Tuesday afternoon April 7th at three o'clock.

William H. Goodwin an engineer formerly of Quincy died yesterday at Providence, R. I., aged 51 years. His body will be brought to Quincy for burial Tuesday.

Fragment society of First church holds its last meeting for this season on Wednesday April 8th in the church parlor. It will be an all day meeting with the usual box luncheon at noon.

The cake and candy sale on Saturday afternoon by the Junior Alliance of First church was very successful, netting $21.24, which will be used for flowers for the Sunday services and for distribution among the sick of the parish.

Last Saturday evening Mrs. William B. Nichols addressed the Junior Alliance of First church on "Cheerful Letter" work and as a result four members will become regular correspondents and one consented to take a pupil. The next meeting of the Alliance will be on Saturday evening April 11th at half past seven in the church parlor.

The nineteenth semi-annual convention of the Norfolk county association of King's Daughters and Sons will be held Thursday April 9th in the Unitarian church at Sharon. Trains leave South station, Boston at 10.15 and 12.15 Mrs. Frank S. Davis, president of the Quincy union will respond to the welcome and Mrs. Alice Prescott Saxe of Wollaston, county treasurer will give a report. Prominent speakers will address both sessions.

It looks as though there was to be considerable building in Quincy centre this season. Mr. Perry Lawton's house on President's hill is well along toward completion and work has commenced on the same street for Mr. D. E. Wadsworth's new house. Two or three houses are to be erected right away on Bigelow street. Russell park is also to have a large new house soon. Great changes are being made in the Barker estate with new roads and houses. A large tract of land on Spear street has been opened up this spring suitable for esidential purposes.

AFTERNOON FIRE.

The alarm from Box 171 on Union street shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon was for a grass fire at Bigelow Park off South Walnut street.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

A new low-pressure valve stem connection is being made at the shipyard for the Old Colony Street Railway Co.

In the hull drafting department a new set of blue prints have been made showing the electric wiring layout complete; also a complete set of blue prints covering every drawing made of the steamship terminals at Brunswick, Ga., which the Fore River company constructed for the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic R. R. Co.

M. M. Cannon C. E., is spending a few days in this city, having made a hurried trip from the South on business connected with the final settlement of the A. B. & A. R. R. Co., with the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., on the Brunswick, Ga., steamship and railroad terminal contract.

A new black border has just been painted on the four smoke stacks of the U. S. S. Birmingham (scout cruiser.)

WHAT ABOUT A COOK-STOVE?

Now that summer time and "dog-days" are just head, everybody who "summers" at home, is considering how to simplify things and get the most comfort out of an uncomfortable situation.

We interview the ice-man; order thin clothes; plan to ease up here and relax there; but more than likely forget the one most important item in the whole hot-weather scheme—some means of doing the family cooking without the insufferable heat of a coal fire in the kitchen.

Everyone with experience knows how tiresome it is to stay in a stuffy room to prepare a meal, let alone the doing of a big baking. But everyone doesn't know how very easy it is to change a hot kitchen to a cool one, and o better cooking at the same time Just add to your list of summer conveniences a New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove and you've done all that any one can do to lessen hot weather discomfort.

Wouldn't it be fine of a summer morning to step in the tkichen, put on the kettle, broil the steak, bake the muffins, filter the coffee, and give the breakfast call in one-fourth the time you'd take to do it all on a coal stove?

And wouldn't it be fine to be as cool when the breakfast was prepared as when you first entered the kitchen?

People who have tried it say that the New Perfection Oil Stove actually does everything in the line of cooking and domestic service without overheating the room or the worker. Undoubtedly the reason is to be found in the blue flame principle on which the stove works.

A cylindircal chimney concentrates the heat at the stove top and in this way prevents surface radiation as in a coal or wood stove.

It is easy to see that this lessens very much the matter of personal discomfort in summer housekeeping.

So don't forget the New Perfection Oil Stove in your summer plans and you will have a comfortable kitchen and the best cook-stove in the world.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

BOSTON THEATRE.

No production of the present season at the Boston theatre has so fully shown the great resources of Manager Morison's organization as the presentation of Wilson Barrett's freat drama "The Sign of the Cross." It is not surprising that no manager of a stock company has ever before attempted a performance of this play for the demand it makes both upon the players and the stage equipment of such an organization are far beyond those usually available. The ten great scenes incidental to the production have all been built and painted from the original designs made under the supervision of the author, the costuming is strictly accurate, and the regular company has been added to both in the way of individual players and auxiliaries so that fully 150 people are engaged in the production.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

There are few more popular actors with New Englanders than Richard Golden. He has recently produced a new sketch in vaudeville and it has made one of the hits of the season. It is a dramatization by Clay M. Greene of Holman F. Day's beautiful story, "Squire Bill," under the title of "A Case of Divorce," and in it Golden has a character that ranks with "Uncle Jed." A real American comedienne who sings real American songs—such a personage is Irene Franklin. Her songs are all of the character type, the characters ranging from a German servant-girl to a twelve year old "kid," with one called "Expression" as her cleverest effort.

THE ORPHEUM.

One of the best all round vaudeville bills of the season is offered at the Orpheum theatre, the week of April 6th, and will include such star features as Charles Fletcher, recognized as one of the greatest impersonators now on the stage. He will present his latest impersonations, "An Evening With Mansfield." Mr. Fletcher has been successful in his long years of study, presenting characters which made Mansfield famous, with all the attention to detail all the mannerisms and all those little peculiarities of voice and feature that so impressed the work of the famous actor on the minds of the public. Another good feature of this bill, one that will appeal to old and young alike is Coin's Dogs, one of the most remarkable troupes of trained canines ever placed before the public.

Tremont Theatre.

Still the crowds gather at the Tremont theatre where "The Man of the Hour," that "strong, gripping, vital play by George Broadhurst," is now in its eleventh week of phenomenal success with no let-up in the size of the audiences or any lessening in the long line of purchasers of tickets in advance. This comedy-drama has had a wonderful run, but its prosperity is no surprise to those who have seen it, for it has a theme that deeply interests all good citizens and even bad ones, if such there be, and the gentler sex, as well as the sex supposed to be stronger. Every moment there is something going on to keep the atention and ensnare the senses, andw hen all is done there is a deep satisfaction with it all, so that the spectator goes away and quickly tells the good news to all his friends and these friends in turn do like wise. So after all there is no cause for wonder at the play's progress and popularity. It will be seen nowhere else in New England this season.

Activity in the Makaria Fraternity

The Makaria Fraternity of Bethany church had the pleasure of listening on Sunday to one of the best talks on base-ball that was ever given in the Makaria rooms.

The chief speakers were Messrs. Currier and Slater, both of the Harvard base-ball team. These men are enthusiastic admirers of the popular game, and gave a very interesting talk.

Mr. Slater, who is the pitcher of the Harvard nine, spoke about the spirit of co-operation and subordination derived from base ball. He said that the enthusiasm gained in base ball helped to carry a person through many a hard place in life.

Mr. Currier, the catcher of the Harvard base ball team, spoke of the earnest manly fellows that are made from base ball, and how the effort and determination to overcome a competitive team counts all through life. Both men spoke earnestly and well, and the Harvard team is indeed fortunate in having two such men.

Next Sunday the chief speaker will be Charles W. Ganzel, the old star catcher of the Boston Nationals, and for five years coach of Williams College base ball team.

The Fraternity will hold its annual ladies' night on Wednesday, April 8. After a short concert, refreshments will be served, after which games will be indulged in. Tickets, which are free may be had from any member of the fraternity.

Legislative Committee Here

The Legislative Committee on Harbors and Public Lands were in town today. The committee accompanied by Representatives Hultman and Coombs arrived at Wollaston about 10 o'clock and went directly to Wollaston beach. From there a special car was taken to the Fore River shipyard. From the Fore River the party goes to Hingham.

It was the intention of the committee to visit Hingham first and take in Quincy on the way back to Boston. Representative Hultman, however, however, desired that they should visit Wollaston beach at low water that they might better see the channel improvements needed. For this reason the visit to Quincy was made this morning.

At the Fore River the party were shown over the plant and were greatly interested in what they saw at this busy hive of industry. They were particularly interested in the battleship North Dakota under construction, and the turbine engines building in the machine shop for the Japanese navy.

Funeral of John Crowley.

The funeral of John Crowley, who died from injuries received by a falling derrick at the Coddington school yard last week was held this morning from St. Mary's church. The services were very largely attended, Division 4 A. O. H. of which he was a member being present in a body. Mass was celebrated by Rev. William Duffy. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery. There were many beautiful tributes.

Health Doctrine.

Rev. E. W. Hunt's subject in Boston on Sunday was "The Philosophy of Religious Healing," and he took his stand on what he declared were the four great affirmations, namely: First, God is heaven. Second, health is a natural quality of the soul. Third, the body is the expression of the life of the soul. Fourth, the soul's life can be controlled and directed through the power of thought. He said in part: "Health may be chosen and the choice be made real. The soul and its power of health can be controlled by the power of thought. Keeping healthy is not only a privilege, but a duty. Health can be attained by thought, desire and work."

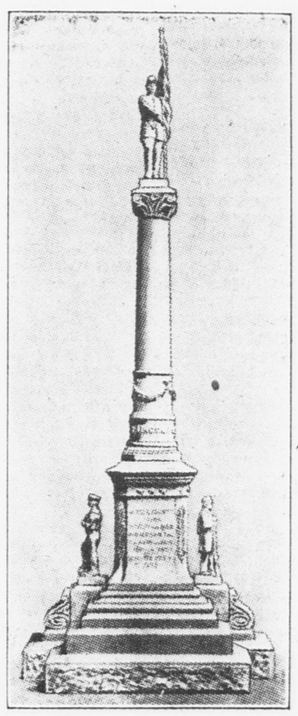
$10,000 SOLDIERS' MONUNENT

Which Would Look Well If Erected in City Square or Vicinity



The accompanying cut represents the Mercer County soldiers and sailors' monument to be erected at Trenton, N. J. It is being built by the Alexander McDonald Company of which A. R. Baxter, a Quincy man, is manager, and could be erected in Quincy for $10,000. Mr. Baxter writes:

This monument stands 50 feet high and the three figures are of United States standard cast bronze, the granite being of light Barre, all hammered. The contract price for this monument complete was $12,500.00, and we were required to make full size models of all the moulding and carving, and also to make full-size new models for each of the three figures.

The two figures at the bottom are 6 feet high, while the color-guard at the top is 8 feet, the flag extending 4 feet more, making the total height 12 feet. These three figures are three of the most graceful, perfectly proportioned and correctly detailed figures ever used on a Soldiers' Monument. No pains, time nor money was spared to bring them up as near to perfection as possible.

A monument of this general style would look well, I think, in front of the entrance to Mt. Wollaston cemetery, and as we have all the full-size models on hand we could erect same at a cost of not over $10,000 complete.

If, however, the plot at the corner of Washington and Coddington streets could be secured I think it would be far more sightly, and should then recommend the Exedra form of monument. I hardly suppose a non-resident of Quincy could get a chance at this anyway, but I certainly would like to put it up.

Their Sixty-Seventh Marriage Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Ross of Stoneham reached on Saturday the 67th anniversary of their marriage. Mrs. Ross was born in Quincy Nov. 27, 1821, while her parents were living at the birthplace of President John Quincy Adams now standing on Franklin street. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Field. The anniversary was observed at the home of their only daughter, Mrs. William H. Marden of Mt. Pleasant street, and the venerable couple received informally.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross have been residents of Stoneham since 1865. Prior to that time for many years Mr. Ross was employed at the Chickering piano factory in Boston. They have two grandchildren, William C. Marden of Stoneham and Mrs. Carrie Richardson of Springfield, and two great-grandchildren, daughters, of Mrs. Richardson.

Mr. Ross was born in Bakersfield, Vt., Aug. 28, 1817. He is now afflicted with blindness, and although he regrets that this prohibits him from enjoying the unfolding of bud and blossom and the exquisite coloring of the flowers in his garden, where he has spent many happy hours, he is far from being depressed.

The Cost Per 1000 Gallons of Water Supplied To the City

From the annual statement of the City Auditor and City Treasurer the Daily Ledger learns that the total cost of the water supply of Quincy for the year 1907 was $124,006,14, divided as follows:

THE COST.

Water maintenance,	$10,609.00
Water interest,	26,879.00
Maturing debt,	36,500.00
Metropolitan assessments:
For sinking fund,	11,933.59
For interest,	29,211.10
For maintenance,	8,882.45
Total,	$124,006.14

From the Metropolitan Water Board the Daily Ledger learns that the number of gallons of water supplied to Quincy during the year 1907 was 1,093,885,000 gallons.

Dividing the cost of $124,006.14, by 1,093,885 the number of 1,000 gallons supplied, and the cost per 1,000 gallons in 1907 was over 11 cents, of 11.34 cents.

The daily average consumption in Quincy in 1907 was 2,996,900, against 3,021,800 in 1906, and 3,050,100 in 1905, showing a more economical use of water in the city.

It should be noted that the city is not able to sell all the water bought because of leakage, so that to make a profit the city should demand at least 15 cents per 1000 gallons sold.

The customer who uses 60,000 gallons per year at meter rates now pays $13 per year, or 30 cents per 1000 gallons. How about the manufacturers?

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

Rather cool on Sunday.

Mayor Shea returned today from a brief business trip to New York.

The regular meeting of Corps 103, W. R. C. will be held tomorrow afternoon.

This is the season for grass fires and alarms may be expected at any time.

Probate court for Norfolk county will be held in Quincy on Wednesday morning.

The annual meeting of the Granite City club will be held on Saturday evening.

The City Council Committees on Streets and Licenses will meet tonight before the Council meeting.

Edward R. Hall of Davis street will take part in the annual Technology show to be held late this month.

Theta Sigma club will hold a theatre party Wednesday evening to enjoy the grand opera at the Boston theatre:

The rain Sunday night laid the dust nicely, and there was great need of it, for the streets were getting very dusty.

A very pleasing social was held Saturday evening at the Park and Downs Congregational church. Many were present.

David Larabee of Germantown still adheres to the story that he was robbed and shot at Quincy Point one night last week.

The Saturday edition of the Daily Ledger was quickly exhausted, the office being unable to supply the demand although over 2000 copies were printed.

The alarm from box 63 at 1.37 Sunday noon was for a fire in a large stack of salt hay in a lot on Walnut street, Atlantic. It is thought that the fire was caused by smokers. The hay was quickly thrown over, so that there was practically no loss.

About 30 members of the class of 1907 of the Massachusetts Fields school attended a reunion held at Poland hall Friday evening, April 3. Principal C. Ralph Taylor and Miss Ruth Taylor were among those present. Dancing and games were enjoyed until a late hour. Refreshment were served.

We have the stock, tools, machinery, and "know how" to do your Optical work promptly and satisfactory. We repair the frames, grind lenses, match the broken ones or test the eye. C. F. Pettengill, 1391 Hancock street, Quincy.

Organist's Discovery Prevents the Blowing Up of a Church

PLANS FOR GAS EXPLOSION

Fire Had Already Started at Base of Organ, Underneath the Platform of Which a Gaspipe Had Been Disconnected--Culprit Is Unknown

Bath, Me., April 6.—An attempt to blow up the Universalist church in this town was prevented shortly before the time for the commencement of the morning services yesterday by the timely discovery of Miss Mary Morse, the organist. Gas escaping from a disconnected pipe under the platform upon which the organ rested and a lighted lamp placed under the organ so as to cause a fire and resulting explosion, were the means employed in the attempt to wreck the edifice.

As neither the church nor its pastor, Rev. A. B. Hervey, are known to have any enemies, the Bath police tried to get into communication with George Tucker of Winthrop, Mass., who repaired the organ two weeks ago, in the hope that he might give some clue to someone who from a spirit of revenge toward Tucker might have tried to destroy the work which he had just completed.

A choir rehearsal was held in the church Saturday night and everything was left in order, so far as known. When Miss Morse entered the church Sunday morning shortly before the services were to commence, she noticed that the gas lamp which she had left on the organ Saturday night was missing. She also detected a strong odor of gas, and looking down towards the base of the organ she saw flames.

She called Janitor Curtis, who quickly put out the flames with a few buckets of water. Underneath the organ Curtis located the missing lamp which had been taken from the organ shelf. The flames from this lamp had set fire to the base of the organ, which was blazing briskly when discovered by the organist. Curtis also found that a gas pipe underneath the organ platform had been disconnected and the space already filled with gas. In a few moments more, it is believed, there would have been sufficient gas to have become ignited by the blazing organ, causing an explosion of sufficient force to have wrecked not only the organ but the church as well.

Upon searching for some trace of the person who had attempted the destruction of the church, a side door, which had been fastened merely by a brace on the inside, was found open, and it is presumed that the culprit had left the church in that way. As no signs of a forced entrance to the building were found, it is presumed that the miscreant had gained access to the church Saturday night, when it was opened for choir rehearsal, and concealed himself until after the singers had left.

It is believed that the lamp was lighted under the organ a few hours before Miss Morse found it, as the flames had not gained much headway. Fortunately the working part of the organ was not seriously damaged and after the church had been aired the services were held as usual, with Miss Morse at the organ.

A basket of shavings was found underneath the organ and near the lamp. This basket, it was said, had been removed from the workroom used by Tucker while he was repairing the organ.

Someone Tampered With Organ

Winthrop, Mass., April 6.—George Tucker was seen at his home here last night and informed of the attempt to blow up the Universalist church organ at Bath, Me., which he was recently engaged in repairing. Tucker said that he could not conceive of anyone who would make such an attempt. He declared, however, that each time when he had gone to repair the organ he had found that it had apparently been deliberately tampered with and that on one or two occasions his tools had been taken while he was at work repairing the organ.

Will Stimulate Irish Trade

London, April 6.—The correspondence is published here between John P. Boland, Nationalist M. P., and President Roosevelt. The state department at Washington accedes to Boland's request to publish the statistics of Ireland's trade with the United States separately. Boland says the president's prompt attention will serve as a valuable stimulus to Irish trade.

Will Not Influence Elections

Albany, April 5.—Governor Hughes has definitely declined to accede to the wish of many of the Republican organ leaders that he indicate his preference as to the "big four" delegates-at-large to the Republican national convention. He reiterates his former declarations in favor of leaving all matters pertaining to the presidential nomination to the convention of the party.

Policemen Alleged Thieves

Philadelphia, April 6.—Harry Rothenberger, aged 19, who was arrested, charged with larceny, declares that he was aided and abetted in a number of robberies in the wholesale district by four policemen, John Kelly, C. M. Luckenbill, A. R. Sithens and J. W. Strab. They were arrested. The accused all deny the allegations of the young man.

HIS SANITY QUESTIONED

Arrest of Man Suspected of Having Committed Arson

Winthrop, Mass., April 6.—James Flanagan of this town, 49 years old, is under arrest, charged with arson on account of a fire which burned four shore cottages and one wing of Crest hall, a large hotel. Flanagan will probably be given an examination to determine his mental condition.

Only one of the cottages was occupied, but the hotel contained about forty guests, who were compelled to flee in their night clothing. Everybody got out safely and no one was injured, though several found their exit by the stairways almost completely blocked by fire and smoke. One woman, a domestic employed in the hotel, was carried out unconscious.

The fire started in the unoccupied cottage owned by Alvin C. Norcross, and situated next to Crest hall. It was discovered at 2:45 a. m. Sunday when Flanagan, the man who was afterward placed under arrest for starting the blaze, ran to the fire engine house and gave the alarm. When the firemen reached the scene, the Norcross cottage was enveloped in flames, and a brisk wind carried the fire to the other cottages and to the hotel before it could be subdued.

On account of certain acts which the police regarded as suspicious and because of conflicting statements which he is alleged to have made, Flanagan was locked up pending an investigation as to his sanity. The loss by the fire is $18,000.

A Mullins Murder Suspect

Biddeford, Me., April 6.—A man giving the name of John M. Dailey, aged 37, claiming a home in Lynn, Mass., is held by Chief of Police Harmon on suspicion of having some knowledge of the Annie Mullins murder case at Arlington, Mass. Chief of Police Urquhart of Arlington, Mass., will arrive here today. The attenton of Harmon was attracted to the man by a similarity of his appearance with the description of the man with a caste in his eye, prominently mentioned in connection with the Mullins case.

Mare Used Hoofs on Intruder

Worcester, Mass., April 6.—A fall in the dark in the barn of J. J. Degnan, into which he had crept to sleep, may cost Joseph Harrington, aged 50, his life. When discovered his nose was hanging by a shred, his face was kicked into an unrecognizable pulp and he had concussion of the brain. Harrington had fallen from the stairs leading to the loft directly under the feet of a big truck mare, who had stamped and kicked him into insensibility.

Will Deport Alien Paupers

Boston, April 6.—Taking advantage of the cut in steerage rates from New York and Boston to Italian ports, the state of Massachusetts is to send home a number of aliens who have become a public charge. This week the first company will be started back to their native land. Probably the majority will be selected from Italian families that have been receiving financial help from outdoor relief departments in the large cities.

Still Loved by Old Sweetheart

Rutland, Vt., April 6.—Joseph Farkasdi, the Proctor resident who was shot twice by Miss Louise Enyinge of New York because, as a married man and the father of a family, he did not relish the attention of the young woman, who was formerly his sweetheart, is thought to have a fair chance of recovery. Miss Enyinge is 20 years old and Farkasdi 29. They are said to have been lovers in Hungary, their native land.

Forest Fire Fighter Killed

Clinton, Mass., April 6.—John Dugan of Bolton, aged 30, was burned to death while fighting a forest fire that burned about 100 acres of timber land in portions of Bolton, Lancaster and Clinton, causing a monetary loss of several hundred dollars. The fire was one of five widely scattered forest fires that the Clinton firemen had been called to fight and is believed to have been of incendiary origin.

Ice Fields Check Shipping

Bangor, Me., April 6.—Although the Penobscot river from Bangor to the sea is free of ice, no vessels have as yet arrived here and none is expected for several days. A fleet carrying about 12,000 tons of coal is detained in Fort Point cove, waiting the departure of heavy ice fields from above Bangor, the passing down of which would make navigation dangerous.

Trolley Car Struck Woman

Boston, April 6.—Marjorie McFlynn aged 65 years and single, was struck and instantly killed by a trolley car in Brighton late last night. The motorman and conductor declared the accident was caused by the sudden appearance of the woman on the track and also to the fact that an arc light near the scene had gone out, making it difficult to see the woman.

Colonel Battell's Generosity

Middlebury, Vt., April 6.—Colonel Joseph Battell, who some time ago gave the United States department of agriculture 350 acres of land in Weybridge, where extensive experiments in the breeding of Morgan horses are being carried on, has purchased 100 acres of land adjoining the government farm and will deed this also to the government.

Encouraging Report on Guild

Boston, April 6.—The news from the sick chamber of Governor Guild is of an encouraging nature, indicating that, while no marked change has taken place, his condition has somewhat improved.

IN PECULIAR SITUATION

Great Britain Without Either a Premier or a Ministry

London, April 6.—The resignation of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the prime minister, was officially announced last night. According to the court circular he resigned on the urgent recommendation of his medical advisers.

As the constitution of the country provides no automatic successor, because it rests with the king to choose a new head of the government, and, in accordance with custom and precedent, the whole cabinet resigns with the premier, no step to appoint a ministry can be taken until Herbert H. Asquith, the chancellor of the exchequer, who has been summoned to Biarritz for the purpose, has seen the king.

The position of the country is quite unprecedented, there being no previous example of a change occurring in the premiership while the sovereign was abroad. On this account the course of procedure to be followed is open to some doubt.

Although long anticipated, the actual announcement of the premier's resignation had not been looked for for some days yet, and comes somewhat as a surprise to the country. Bannerman's condition had shown some slight improvement recently, and his resignation was not due to any sudden impairment of his physical condition.

Political Booms Hit Washington

Washington, April 6.—Supporters of George Gray of Delaware for the Democratic nomination for president have established headquarters in Washington and today they actively entered upon a campaign on behalf of the Delaware statesman. The presidential boom of John A. Johnson was launched upon the capital and congress when, to every Washington correspondent and Democratic congressman, was handed a special delivery circular letter mailed directly from the headquarters of the Minnesota governor in Chicago.

The Manchurian Muddle

St. Petersburg, April 6.—The Russian government is considering the issuance of a statement formally recognizing China's sovereignty in Manchuria, insofar as is consistent with the purely administrative rights of Russia in the ralroad zone. This is thought to be the best way out of the Harbin difficulty, which has been brought to an issue by the refusal of Mr. Fisher, American consul at Harbin, to recognize the Russian administration of that territory.

Rumors of Decapitations

Port au Prince, April 6.—Arrests of suspected conspirators continue, though it is impossible to say how many persons have actually been placed behind prison bars during the past few weeks. Rumors are current that the government is substituting decapitation for shooting. Additional refugees have sought safety in the French and German legations, where the accommodations are now becoming somewhat overcrowded.

Steamer Had Rough Voyage

Halifax, April 6.—Battered by furious gales all the way across the Atlantic, and with her decks continually swept by mountainous seas, steamer Virginian, from Liverpool, arrived here with the British mails and 1500 passengers, most of them British immigrants going to points in the Canadian west. The passengers were a happy lot when the steamer tied up at the pier.

Pope Clement's Bust Found

Rome, April 6.—The bronze bust of Pope Clement VIII, which was stolen from the Villa Aldobrandini on March 20, has been recovered. The bust, which weighs fully 500 pounds, was found by the police buried about half a mile from the villa. It was the evident intention of the thieves to keep it in concealment until an opportunity should be afforded to ship it abroad.

Bought an Ear From Pauper

Paris, April 6.—A young woman at Lille had a very deformed ear and was compelled to keep it constantly covered by her hair or a bandage. She called on a surgeon. A pauper was found willing to part with his well-shaped ear for a consideration, and now the young woman sports a fine, rosy-looking ear, as natural as if it had never belonged to another person.

Warrants Served on Baseball Men

McAlester, Okla., April 6.—At the close of a ball game here yesterday between the New York National league team and the Muskogee Western league team, the sheriff served warrants on all the participants for violating the Sunday law. Bonds were provided and the New York men were allowed to continue their journey.

Wanted In Russia

Halifax, April 6.—Karrlo Falmarikalke, aged 33, of Finland, was arrested here on the arrival of steamer Virginian on a charge of embezzlement. He was on his way to Toronto. He will be held pending instructions from the Russian government as to his extradition.

RIOTERS SHOT DOWN

Made an Attack Upon Troops In Streets of Lisbon

RESULT OF THE ELECTIONS

Republicans Increase Representation In Parliament From Two to Twenty --Claim Sufficient Strength to Wage Open War Against Old Regime

Lisbon, April 6.—The elections here yesterday were followed last night by serious rioting, which was only put down by most vigorous action on the part of the police and the troops. The rioting broke out in different parts of the city, as though by a preconcerted plan.

Troops which had been patrolling and others that had been held in reserve were immediately ordered into action and they repeatedly charged the mobs that in places filled the streets, but without effect. The rioters used clubs, stones and whatever other weapon was at hand, and finally the troops were obliged to fire upon them, killing and wounding a number of them.

This determined action on the part of the authorities seemed to have the desired effect, and the mobs were soon dispersed. At a late hour most of the Republican voters had gone to their homes, but bands of youths continued to demonstrate before the churches. They confined their disorders, however, to shouting.

With the exception of minor disorders at Anjos and Alcantara the elections passed off quietly throughout the country, so far as present advices indicate. In this city there was much hooting and deriding the police, but the latter did not hesitate to scatter the crowds with a strong arm.

The ballot boxes, according to the traditional custom, were installed in the churches, and the voting, due to the agitation throughout the country and the active campaign of the Republicans, probably was the heaviest in Portugal's history. The large vote cast and the great number of candidates make the count slow.

In a general way the elections turned out as planned by the parties in control. The Republicans, who had but two seats in the dissolved parliament, increased their representation to possibly twenty. In Lisbon they swept the populous sections of the city, but gerrymanders offset in a measure this advantage. The Republican leaders are raising the cry of "fraud." They insist that while government pressure seemingly was relaxed, the old electoral machinery was in full operation, because of the fear on the part of the government of a great Republican movement, and therefore the elections do not represent in any way the sentiment of the country.

As the suffrage is limited to those who can read and write, or who pay certain direct taxes, the Republicans contend that it was an easy matter for the authorities to manipulate the register list against the Republican partisans among the masses, 80 percent of whom are illiterate. Nevertheless, leaders like Machado, Almeida and Cunha say that the seats they won give them sufficient strength to wage open war against the old regime as soon as parliament reassembles.

The Monarchists apparently are satisfied with the result of the election, saying that the extravagant claims of the Republicans are utterly disproved.

Auto Tour Abruptly Ends

Munich, April 6.—An adventurous automobile tour which was planned from Frankfort to India, the machine carrying Rudolph Zabel, an author of Berlin, and his wife and chauffeur, was started yesterday. Not far along in the journey the automobile collided with a tree and was totally wrecked. Frau Zabel had her jaw broken and the chauffeur's arm was broken. Zabel sustained a severe shock.

Evans Is Improving

Paso Roubes Hot Springs, Cal., April 6.—Rear Admiral Evans was strong enough yesterday to take a two-hour carriage ride through the hills surrounding the springs. Yesterday the admiral took his first mud bath since his arrival. This was followed by massage treatment for an hour. He not only enjoyed the experience, but declared himself as benefited by the treatment.

Duke of Abruzzi In Rome

Rome, April 6.—The Duke of the Abruzzi arrived here yesterday and went to the Quirinal, where he was greeted by the royal family. He had a long talk with the king, but the result of the meeting has not been learned. All the papers published the picture of Miss Elkins.

Old Volcano Starts Up

Naples, April 6.—Salfatara, a semi-extinct volcano near Pozzuoli, has opened a new crater 250 feet from the ancient one. It is emitting a voluminous column of sulpurous gases. The activity of Solfatara always is supposed to coincide with the inactivity of Vesuvius.

Tourist Relieved of His Money

San Francisco, April 6.—F. S. Royster, a business man of Norfolk, who has been touring the Orient and who was a passenger on the steamship Mongolia, was robbed, after landing here, of $6000 in Bank of England notes, his railroad ticket and $150 in gold.

BAN ON AUTOMOBILES

None Will Be Allowed Within Province of Prince Edward Island

Charlottetown, P. E. I., April 6.—On the ground that the operation of automobiles constitutes a menace to public safety, the Prince Edward Island legislature has voted a resolution favoring the complete exclusion of motor cars from the province, and a bill carrying this resolution into effect will be introduced and passed at the present session, the members of both political parties being in accord on the question.

Previous to the passage of the resolution the matter of operating automobiles was threshed out thoroughly at several committee hearings. It was pointed that the country is thickly settled, and the railroad system, although passing through the principal towns, does not touch at many busy country districts. It is necessary for hundreds of farmers to drive from place to place every week.

At the present time there are only nine automobiles in the province, although during the summer season this number is swelled somewhat by tourists from the United States. The motor cars are so few, however, and are so rarely seen in the country districts that horses do not become accustomed to them.

Combinations Are Necessary

Chicago, April 6.—Secretary of War Taft, in an address before the Order of Railway Conductors, said: "Men who control capital, as well as men who work for wages, must combine. Combinations of capital within the bounds of the law are necessary for business expediency and for cost reduction. And because of these combinations among employers, the laboring men must combine also in order to obtain that independence to which they are entitled."

Settling Vexatious Questions

Washington, April 6.—What is regarded as satisfactory progress is being made in the negotiations between Secretary Root and Ambassador Bryce in embracing in treaties the basis of settlement of the various questions which have existed for some time between the United States and Canada. It is believed that several such treaties will be transmitted to the senate for its approval at the present session of congress.

Burglar Sends Back Money

Middletown, N. Y., April 6.—A year ago the store of A. T. Strangeway at Bovina Centre was robbed, but the burglars only got a small amount of money. A daughter of the proprietor has just received a letter containing $25, which, the writer says, he borrowed from the store a year ago. He says he is in much better circumstances now, and expressed thanks for the use of the money.

Two Negroes Lynched

Wesson, Miss., April 6.—John Burr, a young negro, was lynched near here for the murder of a 12-year-old white boy.

Mobile, Ala., April 6.—Walter Clayton, a negro, who was serving time at the stockade of a lumber company for manslaughter, criminally assaulted Mrs. Joseph White, aged 20 years, and was lynched by a mob of twenty-five men outside the limits of Bay Minette.

Killed While Trying to Save Mother

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 6.—In an effort to save the life of her mother, 7-year-old Loretta Carney of Kingston received injuries of which she died. The mother is not expected to recover. Mrs. Carney tripped and fell while carrying a lighted lamp. The burning oil saturated her clothes. The child was attracted by the mother's shrieks and managed to drag her out of the house.

Roosevelts Return to Washington

Washington, April 6.—Mrs. Roosevelt and party returned to Washington yesterday from a long trip through the south. The party left here on March 26 and included Mrs. Roosevelt, Ethel Roosevelt, Kermit, Quentin, and Archie, the three younger sons; Miss Hagner, Mrs. Roosevelt's secretary; Miss Landon and Captain Lee, the president's military aide.

Mother Sues For Girl's Bath

Utica, N. Y., April 6.—Because John E. Vincent, principal of the high school at Canastota, gave permission to one of the young women under him to scrub Jennie Betringer, one of the pupils, in a bathtub and put clean clothing on her, Jennie's mother has sued him for $1000. She alleges assault and brings the action as guardian of her daughter.

Korean Insurgents Active

Tokio, April 6.—Advices from Seoul say that insurgents are showing increased activity in the neighborhood of Seoul, several minor fights having occurred lately. The insurgent element has been encouraged by the attitude of certain members of the Korean court.

Maine Vital Statistics

Augusta, Me., April 6.—The number of births in Maine the past year was 15,878, an increase of 584; the number of marriages was 6498, an increase of 234 over the preceding year, and the number of deaths were 11,427, against 11,381 for the preceding year.

Absconded With $400,000

Madrid, April 6.—One of the principal tax collectors of the province of Almeria has fled from the country, having, it is charged, embezzled $400,000 of the public funds.

A New Joy Lighted Up Their Faces

New York, April 5. Some remarkable demonstrations were given in public today by L. T. Cooper, who is introducing for the first time in New York the preparations which created a sensation in other cities recently visited by him.

Cooper is a remarkable character, with peculiar and original ideas, and the announcement of his coming to New York created widespread interest.

As a consequence, when it was learned that he would appear in public, the place selected for his head quarters was crowded, some coming merely to get a glimpse of the man himself, others to test his skill in overcoming disease. As nearly as could be learned the facts in regard to the demonstration were these:

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the young man agreed to show what one of his remedies would do for deafness, and agreed to make any one present who was afflicted with deafness hear again in less than three minutes.

There were many deaf people present and about a dozen of these were given the demonstration, consisting of a single application of one of the Cooper preparations.

The hearing of these people was then tested after an interval of between two and three minutes. The test consisted of questions put to them in an ordinary conversational tone at distances varying from five to ten feet.

The results were remarkable in the extreme. Some of these people who were treated had been deaf for a number of years. When the first question was asked, a look of amazement would spread over their faces and they would forget to answer the question. As the questions were repeated the surprised look would give way to one of delight. Many were so affected that they burst into tears and were scarcely able to answer the question.

At the request of Mr. Cooper, questions were put to them by their friends, or by various spectators, in an ordinary tone of voice, and the questions were readily answered.

In giving an account of these demonstrations, Mr. Cooper said:

"There is nothing miraculous about it. The remedy is only effective in cases of deafness induced by a catarrhal condition. Such cases can, as you see, be relieved at once. It does not follow that a man deaf from birth can be made to hear in three minutes, or for that matter, in three years.

"The preparation used it not the one with which I accomplish most, as my New Discovery, as it is called, and to which I owe my success, is for the treatment of all forms of stomach trouble and the general breaking down of the system that follows in the wake of diseases of this character.

"The stomach is the seat of a great many troubles; for instance, my remedy will relieve thousands of people of rheumatism in this city, simply by getting the stomach in working order."

Many people seen who were present at this demonstration assert positively that Cooper undoubtedly made these deaf people hear again.

New Library at Belleview Florida

A copy of the Ocala Weekly Star of Ocala, Florida, for March 27, has been received, and devotes over four columns to the dedication of the new Public Library building at Belleview. It was in 1886 that the Belleview Library Association was organized and Prof. George Gary Bush, formerly of Quincy, was the first president, continuing in the position for eleven successive years. His widow is the present president, and on the day of the dedication presented to the association the library of her husband.

Mrs. F. F. Wendell in her historical paper said in part: "We never can cease to regret that so pure and helpful a life was taken thus early to the larger, more beautiful life beyond, but I am very glad to state today that his fine library, he so much enjoyed and loved, and during all the years from boyhood to the last of life, he was enlarging and improving, has been presented by Mrs. Bush to the library association. I can but hope that as these books are being read by the boys and girls, the men and women of our town, that something of Prof. Bush's love for books and desire for a higher education may come into their hearts, and thus the influence of his cultured, refined, pure spirit may live on in the years to come."

The Star says the building is the most unique and handsome structure of its kind in the state of Florida, and we have our doubts if a more sightly structure of its kind exists in the Union. The peculiarity of its construction consists of the fact that its walls are constructed of Florida stones found in the fields near the town, material that no one thought of until a winter visitor, an architect and builder of no mean ability, Mr. W. M. Cowles, of Bridgeport, Conn., who become interested in Belleview and its library association, suggested those stone for walls. Then it was he was asked to draft plans, which he cheerfully did, giving the cost of the structure, which ordinarily would have been $1,500 or $1,600, but was reduced to an actual expenditure of $500 or $600, including voluntary contributions by its large hearted promoters.

Des Moines Opposed To Des Moines Plan

The "Des Moines plan" of a city government by commission, which has been as much praised as if it had long been an established success, has but just been launched by the first election thereunder, last Monday, of a commission of five. Reports indicate that there were two tickets in field, the difference between them, oddly enough, being in the "plan" itself. One ticket was committed to the plan, the other was opposed to it. The voters opposed to the plan won by more than 3,500 in a total vote of about 14,000. The voters of Des Moines were therefore unwilling to trust the new form of local government to its friends. The "Des Moines plan" is as problematical as ever. It has met with some unfair criticism, for a commission, viewed as a representation body elected at large, is not an un-American institution. Still, the plan is calculated to loosen the grip of the people on the purse strings.—Editorial in Brookline Chronicle.

NORFOLK ss. PROBATE COURT.

TO the heirs-at-law, next-of-kin, creditors and all other persons interested in the estate of late of Quincy, in said County, deceased intestate:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased, to William F. Donaher of Quincy, without giving a surety on his bond

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Dedham, in said County of Norfolk, on the fifteenth day of April, A. D. 1908, at ten o'clock in the forenoon to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And the petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in Quincy, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court.

Witness, James H. Flint, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twent-first day of March, A. D. 1908.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

D. E. Wadsworth & Co. are showing stylish Easter suits.

Ezra Miller of Portsmouth is the gnest of H. L. Mason of Willow street.

Louis Bouchard of Water street is selling wall paper at wholesale and retail.

James B. Whiting of 199 Quincy avenue passed away Sunday in his 64th year.

Money deposited before April 7th at the Quincy Savings bank will draw interest.

H. R. Benn has reopened the shop formerly occupied by Tirrell & Sons for carriage painting.

The Citizens' Gas Light Co., commenced work this morning laying its mains to Houghs Neck.

The classified advertisements on the last page are of unusual interest just now. Prompt returns are reported.

Tomorrow is the time limit for deposits at the Quincy Savings Banks to draw interest this quarter.

Miss Mollie Brown of Wollaston has been elected one of the class day officers at Radcliffe college. She will be the prophet.

Twenty-eight sales of real estate in Quincy were reported in the Daily Ledger of Saturday. A big record for one week.

Day Nursery Association Meeting for April at the Women's clubhouse, Goffe street, on Tuesday afternoon at half past two.

Professor Wrigley has removed to 24 Coddington street where he can receive pupils for piano, organ, voice and harmony.

A special and important meeting of the Woman's Guild of Christ church will be held on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 at the parish house.

Miss Hazel Jones led the prayer meeting of the Park and Downs Congregational church Sunday evening. Her subject was "Accepted by God."

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Drew came from Littleton today to attend the funeral of Henry Taylor. Mr. Taylor had spent several summers at their camps at Littleton.

It now takes a whole column of the Saturday eight-page Daily Ledger to announce the Sunday church services. Some churches are not represented then, although the Ledger makes no charge.

It is impossible that another order appropriating money for expenses in connection with the abolition of grade crossing may be introduced in the City Council tonight.

The "Wonder Clock" in the window of Berry Bros. store is receiving a great deal of attention. The question the people are trying to solve is what makes the hands go.

The Ladies' Aid association of the Universalist church have planned a number of entertainments, the proceeds to go to repairing the church. On Wednesday evening, April 8th, a parlor social will be given at the residence of Mrs. Frank Hobart, 22 Mill street. Readings and amusements during the evening; candy and ice cream for sale.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Gow regret very much Mr. Gow's transference to Norfolk, Virginia. Since coming to Quincy a few years ago they have made many friends by whom they will be missed.

Schlatter, the faith preacher, lectured at Protection hall Sunday afternoon and evening. An audiance of about fifty were present in the afternoon and half as many in the evening. Four patients were treated in the afternoon. He will leave Quincy on Wednesday.

Pay for Spanish War Veterans

Atty. Gen. Malone has received a telegram from Washington, says the Boston Advertiser, that the U. S. comptroller has allowed his appeal from the auditor's decision, and has increased by $100,000 the account to the Massachusetts soldiers who took part in the Spanish war, making a total of $155,389, all of which goes to the rank and file. The officers were given an award some time ago.

Atty. Gen. Malone advises all soldiers not to assign their claims. He has a plan by which they can get their money soon, without expense.

The contract between Malone's methods of obtaining war-claims without expense to the state, and the method by which Agent Cotton was paid over $100,000 is great.

Vespers at Braintree.

Several from Quincy attended the vesper service at the All Souls' church at Braintree on Sunday. Mrs. Jennie Hocking Hunt of Quincy, the organist, was assisted by Miss Helen Drinkwater, soprano; Miss H. Ellis, contralto: Mr. Frederick L. Mahn, violinist; and Mr. Ralph Smalley, celloist, Mr. Mahn and Mr. Smalley are members of the Boston Symphony orchestra. The following selections were beautifully rendered:

Prelude—(organ, violin and cello) "Fervaal" Vincent d'Indy
Soprano solo with violin obligato—"Prayer" Rotoli
Interlude,—(organ, violin and cello) "Serenade" Pitt'l
Offertory—(cello solo) "Andante Religioso" Goltermann
Postlude—"Andante" Tachner

Rev. Frederick R. Griffin's subject was "Religion and Health" and he said religion is health. That health was possible where one was normal in all things.

The Mexico Earthquake.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Doble have heard from their daughter at Mexico City. The earthquake was an experience she does not care for a second time as considerable damage was done in the city, A dispatch from the city April 3 says:The Chilpancingo district of the State of Guerrero and a portion of the mountain districts of the State of Oaxaca continue to be shaken by earthquake shocks of slight intensity, according to despatches received at the Government central observatory here. It is stated that there has been no cessation of the disturbance since the severe shock occurred several days ago, and that these later tremors have caused many damaged walls to fall. There are many smaller mountain towns from which no news as yet has been received. They are situated in a very rough region one hundred to two hundred miles from the nearest telegraph and railroad. The severe shocks on March 26 caused a swell in the ocean, and much damage was done by the overflow along the Pacific coast for a distance of about two hundred miles. At Acapulco the low lands adjucent to the town were flooded. Loud subterranean noises accompanied the shocks at that place.

Hold Another Conference Tonight

A meeting of the committees representing the employers of steam engineers and granite manufacturers was held Saturday night at which the differences in the bill of prices was discussed.

It is reported that the employers told the engineers' committee that the only terms for settlement they would consider would be the present bill of prices for a term of three years.

The engineers' committee were not authorized to settle on this basis, and the meeting adjourned.

A meeting of the manufacturers will be held tonight, at which time the committee will make its report.

It is reported that the employers have applications from non-union engineers for the positions filled by the 108 striking engineers.

It is also reported that if the strikere refuse to sign a bill on the terms proposed, that their places will be filled by non-union men.

Disappearance At Braintree

The Quincy Police have been requested to look out for a young lady aged about 30 years, who disappeared from Braintree on Sunday morning.

The young lady has been at the home of Irving E. White on Commercial street. The young lady was in San Francisco at the time of the earthquake and never fully recovered from the shock.

Sunday afternoon about 2.30 she left the house to walk about the yard. That was the last seen of her. At 10.30 Sunday night the police were notified, and the fire department was called out to search for her. The searching party under the charge of Officer Lorning and Engineer Whitmarsh searched until late Sunday night, but no trace of the missing woman could be found. This morning the fire department was again called out, and a systematic search is being made.

The family of the young lady are not anxious about her, believing that she will turn up all right. They say that she had a horror of being in a sanitarium, and upon learning she was in such a home she probably left for Boston.

Brooks' Statue Of Seward

That Quincy has talent to design a soldiers' monument or statuary is shown by the following in the Boston Transcript:

"Richard Brooks of Quincy has completed his clay model for the portrait statue of William H. Seward, which is to be cast in bronze and set up at Seattle next summer in the exposition grounds. The figure is heroic size and standing. It is expected that the bronze will be ready for unveiling in the opening week of the Seattle Exposition. The people of Washington selected Seward for special distinction because of the statesmanship which half a century ago foresaw the importance of the Northwest and the Pacific trade, and more especially, of course, because Seward negotiated the treaty by which the United States acquired the great Territory of Alaska from Russia. The commission for the Seward statue was awarded to Mr. Brooks because the Seattle committee had seen his fine statue of Charles Carroll in Baltimore. Mr. Brooks is now in New York. He is the author of the Cass statue in Boston.

Long in Service.

There are ten ministers in the New England Methodist conference who have preached over fifty years, and are still in service, viz: Rev. William J. Heath of Wollaston; Rev. Lewis B. Bates of East Boston; Rev. G. S. Chadbourne of South Framingham; Rev. Varnum A. Cooper, the agent of the conference; Rev. Samuel L. Gracey of China, Rev. John W. Lindsay of Boston University; Rev. W. F. Warren of Boston Universtiy; Rev. M. E. Wright of Gloucester; Rev. Amos B. Kendig the evangelist; and Rev. G. W. Mansfield of Lynn.

There are also seven who have retired.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

An order has been issued from the Navy department transferring Commander John L. Gow, inspector of machinery for the Navy department at the works of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, to duty as head of the steam engineering department at the Norfolk, Va., navy yard. Commander Gow will leave Quincy April 20, and will report at Norfolk April 26.

Commander E. Theiss will be transferred from New York to duty as inspector of machinery at the Fore River beginning April 20, to fill the position made vacant by the transfer of Commander Gow.

A steel forging is being made at the shipyard for the Boston Gear Works.

Two nickle steel shafts are being forged and rough machined at the shipyard for the General Electric Company.

The Navy orders report that the torpedo boat destroyers Lawrence, Whipple, Hopkins, Stewart, Hull, Truxtum and Arethusa have sailed from Acapulico for Magdalena bay.

The steamship Creole built at Quincy arived at New Orleans, April 3, on schedule time.

Assaulted on Street.

Bianco Zirillio, aged 28 years, of 41 Penn street, is at the City Hospital suffering from a stab wound in the stomach.

According to the story he told the police,which is borne out by witnesses, he stood on Liberty street shortly after 10 o'clock Sunday night, when without warning a man come running up to him and stabbed him in the stomach.

The man who did the stabbing he declares to have been Andrew Menghi, aged about 25 years, who boards on Penn street.

Zirilio was taken to the office of Dr. McLennan, who ordered him removed to the City Hospital.

The police are on the look out for the man who is alleged did the stabbing. Shortly after the stabbing Officer Curtin held up an Italian, who was probably the man who did the deed. At that time the police had not been notified of the affair, and as the officer knew of nothing that the man was wanted for he was allowed to depart. It was an hour after before the police were notified.

Maloney and James P. Flannigan. All reported however were granted. All members were present.

WATER RATES.

Mayor Shea forwarded a communication from Commissioner Bainbridge relative to water rates and meters. As to rates, the Commissioner said they would be found on Page 11 of the rules and regulations, copies of which were given to all councilmen. Definite results as to reductions in rates could not be reported as yet. All manufacturing places had been metered and a definite plan for meters was being carried out. Placed on file.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Commissioner relative to water rates paid by the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. The Commissioner said that in 1907 the Fore River used 89,773,902 gallons which they paid for in the following manner: For all construction work out to the city mains and the connections therewith; for the cost and installation of meters, and they assumed the cost of maintenance on the above work. They paid in cash $7,181.91. No specific agreement had been made for 1908. Placed on file.

MORE SEWERS.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Commissioner recommending an appropriation of $35,000 for main sewer. To Committee on Water Supply.

SURFACE DRAINAGE.

The Mayor in a communication recommended an appropriation of $3,000 for surface drainage. Referred to Committee on Streets.

The Commissioner in a communication said the poles mentioned in an order granting location to the Electric Light Co., had not been located. Placed on file.

APPOINTMENTS.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing John C. Ballou, Alfred La Breque and James Brennan as constables, and James H. Starr as special constable at the Ward Two playground. Confirmed.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing Maurice I. Gatcomb as sealer of weights and measures, and Francis Abele, Jr., as Inspector of Animals. Confirmed.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing Walter L. Jackson a weigher of coal. Confirmed.

PARK SHELTER.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Park Commissioners asking for the erection of a new shelter at Merrymount Park. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

WOULD CONFINE DOGS.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Inspector of Animals relative to the prevalence of rabies among dogs and requesting that all dogs be confined on their owners' premises for the period of six weeks. Referred to Executive Department.

PETITION.

The Trustees of the City Hospital asked for the privilege of placing a

The Mayor Requested to Procure Plans For Four Rooms

Y branch in the house drain to connect the new laundry building with the sewer to drain the basement or boiler room floor of surface water. Referred to Executive department.

A petition was received for the acceptance of Phillips street, Ward Five. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Petitions were received from the New England Telephone Co., for attachments on Grand View avenue, South Central avenue, and Old Colony street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Bryant asked the City Solicitor if attachments could be granted under that form of petition.

City Solicitor McAnarney did not think them in proper form.

A petition for lights on Wayland and Cushing streets was referred to the Committee on Streets.

A petition for the acceptance of Fairmount way was referred to the Committee on Streets.

A petition for a fire alarm box on Rogers street was referred to the Committee on Fire Department.

A large number of applications for minor licenses were received and referred. That of A. G. Olney for an Auctioneer's license was laid on the table until later when it was granted.

REPORTS.

The Committee on Finance reported no legislation necessary on the Communication from the City Treasurer relative to increasing the rate of interest on the order for $6,000 for house connections with the sewer.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass on the order appropri-

EXPRESS LICENSES.

The Committee on Licenses reported order granting permits to transport liquor to the following expressmen:—Samuel F. Barker, Boston and Houghs Neck Steamboat Co., New York and Boston, C. L. Hazelton. Bruce & Myatt, W. B. Gerry, Boston & Quincy, Andrew S. Isaacson, John J. Maloney, Ferguson & DiPanfilio and James P. Flannigan.

Councilman Gilson hoped the order would be divided and moved to lay on the table. Motion lost.

Councilman Bryant moved and it was voted to act upon the names separately.

The first to meet with opposition was that of the Houghs Neck Steamboat Co.

Councilman Bryant asked if this was a legal express, and Councilman Falconer replied yes.

Councilman Walsh favored. The company had been in business four or five years.

Councilman Bryant—The Houghs Neck people ask us to stop the club nuisance, and now we are asked to license a summer express. He moved to lay on the table.

Councilman Walsh opposed.

Councilman Bryant wanted to ask the Chief of Police about company.

Councilman Cherrington opposed. We had the Chief before the committee. He was not opposed to this company.

Councilman Teasdale—There is no question about this being a legal express.

Councilman Hogan was opposed to granting permits to men who did not belong in Quincy.

The motion to lay on the table was lost 10 voting yes and 11 no.

The license was then granted 13 voting yes and 8 no.

The permit of J. J. Maloney was the next to be debated.

Councilman Falconer opposed, saying he was an out of town man.

Councilman Cherrington favored as he has always done a great amount of business in Quincy.

Councilman Bryant opposed and was questioning Councilman Cherrington, when Councilman Whiton raised the point of order that his questioning was out of order.

The chair ruled Councilman Bryant in order.

Councilman Whiton appealed from the chair, but the Council sustained ruling.

Councilman Moir raised point of order that Councilman Bryant was not speaking to the point but generalizing.

The chair ruled point not well taken.

Councilman Hogan opposed. We should not go outside of Quincy.

Councilman Moir favored.

Councilman Whiton hoped permit would be granted. He would not be so narrow as to confine to our own city.

Councilman Hogan—We should curtail and confine to our own city.

Councilman Falconer opposed. He did not want to grant permits to parties outside of Quincy.

Councilman Cherrington—If law is wrong we should go to legislature and have it changed. He did not believe in cutting off a man because he did a small business and giving it to a large corporation.

A recess of five minutes was taken.

Councilman Moir asked City Solicitor about expressmen's books.

City Solicitor McAnarney replied in brief that the expressman must keep a book and the team delivering must have a book.

Councilman Bryant moved to lay on the table. Motion lost.

Chief Burrell came in at this point and was asked a number of questions about Maloney's express.

The permit was then granted.

The permit of James P. Flannigan was discussed at length.

In reply to questions, Chief Burrell said Flannigan had been convicted in 1904 and 1905. Last year he had no license, but turned his liquor business over to another man.

Councilman Walsh favored. He has been doing a legitimate business.

Councilman Bryant—This man has violated the law by not having books properly marked and by legal sale. Is it not easier to look after five licenses than 15?

Councilman Cherrington favored.

Councilman Whiton favored. If we cut down the number it means just so

Prominent in C. E. Societies

The funeral of Mr. Henry Taylor was held Monday afternoon from his mother's home at 130 Elm street and was largely attended. Young people predominated, representing Bethany Congregational church and several of the Christian Endeavor Societies of the city. Many of these organizations sent floral tributes, so that there was a beautiful display which banked the whole side of the parlor where the body was placed.

Rev. Dr. Hardy officiated and spoke very highly of the young man; particularly of his christian character, and work for the church and the Christian Endeavor. Although in his 25th year he had united with the church ten years ago, and the pastor knew of no young man in the church who would be missed more.

During the services three favorite Christian Endeavor hymns were sung by a mixed quartette which included Mme. Morey, Mrs. F. W. Moore, Miss Bertha Carlson and Mr. Whyte. The selections were: "Light after darkness," "Bye and bye" and "They that sleep."

The burial was in the family lot at Randolph where his father was laid 15 months ago. The bearers were four loyal young friends, Melville P., Henry P. and Carle R. Hayward and Charles H. Scammell.

Quincy Boys Won.

On Saturday last Quincy boys scored another victory against the boys of Somerville Y. M. C. A. in an athletic meet. There were twenty-nine prizes offered, seventeen of them came to Quincy. The score by points was: Quincy, 39; Somerville, 25. H. Trask won first in three events—15 yd. dash, potato race, and broad jump. Other Quincy boys who won honors were W. Cranshaw, W. Manning, R. Grant, G. Jennings, W. Hall and H. Sutermeister. About 20 Quincy boys enjoyed a swim in the pool after the races.

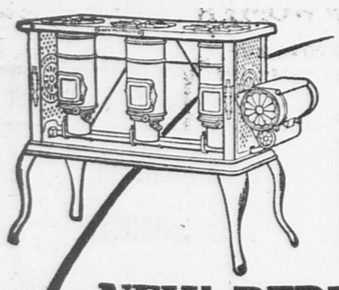
Hot Stove—Cool Kitchen



How do you expect to endure the broiling days of summer if you prepare all the food over a glowing coal fire?

You need a "New Perfection" Oil Stove that will do the cooking without cooking the cook. It concentrates plenty of heat under the pot and diffuses little or none through the room. Therefore, when working with the

NEW PERFECTION

the kitchen actually seems as comfortable as you could wish it to be.

This, in itself, is wonderful, but, more than that, the "New Perfection" Oil Stove does perfectly everything that any stove can do. It is an ideal all-round cook-stove. Made in three sizes, and fully warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

The Rayo Lamp a substantial, strongly made and handsome lamp. Burns for hours with a strong, mellow light. Just what you need for evening reading or to light the dining-room. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

Volunteer Crew From Steamer Performed Dangerous Feat

RESCUED EXHAUSTED CREW

Four Trips Necessary to Take Thirty-Five Men From Distressed Barkentine, Which Foundered Soon After the Task Was Completed

Portland, Me., April 7.—A thrilling rescue of thirty-five men from their sinking craft was accomplished by the Dominion line steamer Turcoman, which arrived at this port from Bristol, Eng., five days behind time. The Turcoman brought the crew of the barkentine Bearn et Bretagne of St. Bervan, France, which foundered in mid-ocean after she had been dismasted.

The Turcoman encountered strong head winds and terrific seas throughout the greater part of the voyage. On the morning of March 27 the lookout sighted a barkentine flying signals of distress. The foremast had been carried away and the other two appeared to be in danger of crashing overboard.

Although the wind was blowing a gale and the sea was running at a tremendous height the captain of the steamer decided to heave to and attempt the rescue of those on board the barkentine. The steamer approached as near as she could and hailed the distressed vessel, which proved to be the Bearn et Bretagne, bound from St. Bervan for St. Pierre, Miq. There were thirty-five men on board, nearly all of whom were fishermen.

The barkentine had sprung aleak, and for two days the crew had fruitlessly worked the pumps to keep the craft free. The water constantly gained on them in the gale and, to add to the difficulties, a heavy gust of wind carried the foremast overboard.

The Turcoman's captain called for volunteers and Chief Officer Williams and four men put off in a boat. Before the small boat reached the side of the barkentine the gale carried away the main and mizzenmast. The crash of wreckage from aloft struck two of the barkentine's crew, who were slightly injured.

After considerable difficulty the steamer's boats reached the side of the barkentine and the entire crew of the fisherman were eventually transferred to the steamer. The Turcoman's boat made four trips and each time the Frenchmen had to be hoisted on board the steamer by means of a rope fastened around their bodies. The crew of the French vessel were in an exhausted condition and could do little to help themselves, on account of the many hours spent at the pumps without rest or sleep. A short time after the rescue the Bearn et Bretagne foundered.

The shipwrecked men were taken in charge at this port by the French consul, who made arrangements with the consul general in New York to forward them to that city by steamer. From New York they will be sent either to France or to St. Pierre.

The Bearn et Bretagne was built ten years ago and registered 600 tons. She was on her way to join the French fishing fleet on the Grand Banks.

Bryan Banquet Blocked

Denver, April 7.—William J. Bryan addressed a large crowd last night in the El Jebel temple banquet hall. Everything was in readiness to serve the banquet when the waiters who had been engaged became involved in a dispute with the caterer and went on a strike. After parleying for an hour or more this portion of the affair was abandoned and, without having eaten, the speech-making began. Bryan devoted considerable attention to the tariff views of Secretary Taft and Vice President Fairbanks.

No Pressure Upon Loud

Washington, April 7.—In the investigation of charges against the Electric Boat company being conducted by the special house committee Representative Loud of Michigan denied a statement to the effect that he was annoyed because a representative of the Electric Boat company was "bearing down" on him in his district on the question of submarines. Loud denied that any influence had been brought to bear on him to vote for submarine boats.

Minister Forced Out by Duma

St. Petersburg, April 7.—The duma has scored a victory of sweeping importance in forcing the retirement of M. Alexeieff, vice minister of commerce and director of the department of commercial navigation. The budget commission threatened to report against the budget of this ministry unless Alexieff was removed.

Changes Needed In Schools

St. John, April 7.—Reports submitted to the common council by an inspection committee shows that material defects exist in all the city public school buildings. The committee recommends sweeping changes. It also says improvements are necessary in the general public hospital and several theatres.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.
Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

STORIES DO NOT AGREE

Police Make Another Arrest In the Mullins Murder Case

Boston, April 7.—Bert Smalley, aged 28, who was found at a Portland street sales stable, was taken to Arlington and questioned at great length as to his possible knowledge of the murder of Annie Mullins, who was mysteriously killed in that town March 27.

After the examination Smalley was not released, the police deciding to hold him for the present, but without preferring a formal charge against him. The police claim that Smalley's stories do not agree in all particulars, and say that his movements and habits will be investigated further.

Smalley has a cast in one eye, and admits that he was in Bedford, a small town ten miles from Arlington, two nights before the tragedy. He acknowledges that he was in a drug store in Bedford, but denies that he inquired where Annie Mullins lived. A drug clerk last week reported that a man "with a cast in his eye" asked about Annie Mullins last week. The Boston police say that Smalley said that he knew the Mullins girl, but Smalley denied later that he knew her.

John M. Daly, who was held at Biddeford, Me., was released yesterday. The Arlington police found that he knew nothing of the case.

Heflin's Victim In Bad Condition

Washington, April 7.—Thomas McCreery, accidentally shot by Congressman Heflin of Alabama a few days ago, is in a serious condition. He was operated on for lockjaw as the only hope of saving his life. McCreery was among the bystanders when Heflin, after an altercation with a negro named Lundy on a Pennsylvania avenue street car, threw his antagonist off the car and fired at him twice through a window. One of the bullets hit Lundy in the neck and the other lodged in McCreery's leg.

Old Man Was Jealous of Girl

Pittsburg, April 7.—Jealous of Dorothy Yost, 17 years old, Samuel L. Gardner, aged 59, a prominent civil engineer, shot the girl through the heart, causing instant death, and then fired a bullet into his mouth, dying three hours later. Gardner was married and had several grown children. Gardner became enraged because Miss Yost had been seen in the company of a young man. His infatuation was of long standing.

Middies Want to Join Army

Washington, April 7.—Secretary Metcalf has declined to accept the resignations of two midshipmen who have not finished their tour of sea duty necessary before final graduation at Annapolis and two others who are still at Annapolis. Two of these men desired to resign to enter the coast artillery of the army. An official of the department said: "We are tired of educating men at Annapolis for the army."

Sues Standard Oil For Damages

Findlay, O., April 7.—Standard Oil prosecutions here have been given a new impetus, Attorney Cline appearing to take the depositions in the $100,000 damage suit of George H. Phelps against the Standard Oil company. Phelps is an independent producer and claims he has lost $100,000 by reason of the Standard's control of the market.

Methodists Lift the Lid

New York, April 7.—The New York conference of the Methodist Episcopal church adopted a resolution recommending to the general conference that paragraph 248 of the church discipline, which advises against danging, cardplaying ,theatre going, etc., be eliminated. Only seven delegates recorded their votes against the resolution.

Asquith Off to See King

London, April 7.—Chancellor of the Exchequer Asquith, who has been summoned by King Edward to Biarritz, has started for that place to see the king, whose absence at a time when it was foreseen that Premier Campbell-Bannerman's illness must lead almost inevitably to a cabinet crisis provokes criticism in the English papers.

Postal Negotiations Ended

Pekin, April 7.—The Chinese foreign board has rejected the proposals made by Japan with regard to a reciprocal postal arrangement in Manchuria, on the ground that such an arrangement would contravene China's sovereign rights. This practically brings to an end the negotiations between the two countries on this matter.

Army Appropriation Bill Passed

Washington, April 7.—The army bill, carrying an appropriation of almost $100,000,000, was passed by the senate practically as reported from the committee on military affairs. The bill materially increases the pay of officers and enlisted men of the army.

Slightly Over Requirements

Washington, April 7.—On her speed trial of four hours, the armored cruiser Montana made, approximately 22.26 knots. This is .26 knots in excess of her contract requirements. On her 24-hour endurance trial the cruiser made a speed of 20.48 knots.

Quarantine Against Cuba

Washington, April 7.—The marine hospital and public health service has made the Havana district a "clean city," so far as yellow fever is concerned, but all of Cuba outside of that district is quarantined against.

HEALTH In Childhood

means health in later years. As the child builds the adult shall be. Weakly, neglected children do not grow to vigorous man and womanhood. Childhood complaints yield easily to proper treatment—but they do not correct themselves. The weak stomach, pallid complexion, listless bearing, irritable temper, disturbed sleep, speak plainly of the ailments common to children, most of which have their origin in disordered stomach and bowels.
The greatest safeguard to children's health is

Dr. True's Elixir

For indigestion, irritability, constipation, poor appetite, peevishness, fevers, stomach and liver troubles and worms it is unequalled. Parents of two generations have relied upon it. It restores sound, vigorous health when nothing else will. First it removes the cause, then aids nature to repair the damage; builds anew the waste, enriches the blood and sends a glow of health and vigor to every organ and tissue of the body. Littlefield Votes Against the Employers' Liability Bill

IS PASSED BY THE HOUSE

Much More Sweeping Than Senate Measure, and a Compromise May Be Agreed Upon--Williams and Payne Indulge In Warm Debate

Washington, April 7.—With only one vote recorded against it, that of Mr. Littlefield of Maine, the house of representatives, under suspension of the rules, passed the Sterling employers' liability bill, after forty minutes' debate.

In brief, the bill establishes the doctrine that the railroad companies engaged in interstate commerce are liable for personal injuries received by employes in the service of such carriers. It abolishes the strict common law rule of liability which bars a recovery for the personal injury or death of an employe occasioned by the negligence of a fellow servant. It also relaxes the common law rule which makes contributory negligence a defense to claims for such injuries.

A provision, however, diminishes the amount of the recovery in the same degree that the negligence of the injured one contributed to the injury. The bill further makes each party responsible for his own negligence and requires each to bear the burden thereof.

The bill, as passed by the house, was transmitted to the senate later in the day and, on motion of Senator Dolliver, was laid on the table subject to being called up at any time. Dolliver explained that the bill is quite similar to the measure reported to the senate from the committee on education and labor. Dolliver probably will move to substitute the senate measure for the house bill, and after the senate acts will then leave to conferees the task of agreeing upon a compromise measure.

The house bill is much more sweeping than the senate bill, as it applies to all "common carriers," while the senate bill applies only to "common carriers by railroad."

In the debate Mr. Williams (Miss.) said he welcomed "the opportunity to illustrate to the country how quickly and how rapidly we can join in passing remedial legislation." The Democrats applauded the statement. Continuing, Williams said the Democrats would be glad to be furnished with more like it, "and to repeat the illustration as each remedial bill is furnished to the house. It was," he said, "the first encouragement in some time."

Mr. Payne denounced the Democrats for delaying by a half an hour the passage of the bill by forcing a rollcall on the approval of the journal. "The gentleman from Mississippi," (Williams) he said, "seemed to think he will make the country believe that because every time he says 'I say this to the house and to the country,' he can make the country believe that the way to facilitate legislation is by useless demand for rollcalls and delay in performing the functions of the house and passing the supply bills that must be passed."

He declared that Williams had no more to do with the bringing about of the report from the committee or the consideration of the measure than the boys on the street. "And," he added, "we will go on with the legislation of this country and the majority will decide in their own time and without any let or hindrance from the gentleman from Mississippi and the voting trust which, it is reported, he organized last Saturday to stop legislation."

The bill passed by a viva voce vote, but in order that members might be recorded the yeas and nays were ordered.

Thieving Policemen Arraigned

Philadelphia, April 7.—The four policemen of this city and two civilians who were charged with robbing a number of business places in the centre of the city were arraigned for a hearing and all were committed to prison without bail for trial. Two of the accused policemen have confessed complicity in the robberies and goods of almost every description, alleged to have been stolen, were recovered from the homes of the four patrolmen.

Booming Boycott Against Japan

Canton, April 7.—The boycott against the Japanese, arising out of the trouble between Japan and China over the seizure and release of the Tatsu Maru, is spreading rapidly. Mass meetings are being held with the object of impressing upon the Chinese the necessity of making the boycott of Japanese products and manufactures as far-reaching as possible.

Battleship Coal Arrives at 'Frisco

San Francisco, April 7.—Since Saturday four British colliers, carrying over 25,000 tons of coal for the battleships from the Atlantic, have arrived at this port. All four of the vessels are from the east and form the first division of a fleet of colliers chartered by the United States government to carry coal to San Francisco.

To Talk Over Marriage Plans

Rome, April 7.—The Duke of the Abruzzi will have another conference with the king today relative to the arranging of a marriage engagement with Miss Katherine Elkins. It would seem as though things were going as the duke would wish and that the king's consent will not be withheld.

REYNOLDS IS CAPTURED

Federal Officials Charge Promoter With Wildcat Finance

Boston, April 7.—Through the arrest of Henry D. Reynolds, formerly president of the Reynolds Alaska Development company, in New York yesterday, Postoffice Inspector Letherman claims he will expose another system of wildcat finance whereby physicians and teachers of standing all over the country have lost over $1,000,000.

Reynolds was secretly indicted last month by the federal grand jury at Boston on a charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud. The fraud charged by the government is that Reynolds misrepresented the earnings of the copper mines of the company and paid 6 percent dividends on preferred stock by taking it out of the capital stock, when the mines were not earning dividends at all.

Before Reynolds started exploiting Alaskan mining properties, he published a medical journal of excellent repute. Although it attained a wide circulation, the paper, it is said, never was a paying venture.

It afforded Reynolds, however, a fine clientele for his investment schemes, and through this medical paper Reynolds is alleged to have succeeded in getting many physicians of repute all over the country to invest in his mining properties.

Compromise Offer to Strikers

Barre, Vt., April 7.—A compromise proposition made by the quarry owners to the quarrymen is thought to afford some hope of an early settlement of the strike which began on March 1, affecting between 4000 and 5000 men in Barre, Montpelier and neighboring places. The quarry workers' demand, as distinguished from the cutters, was for 27 cents an hour in place of the former scale of 25 cents an hour. The quarry owners have now offered the men 26 cents an hour. There is a feeling here that the compromise will probably be accepted.

Strike of Women Closes Mills

Saco, Me., April 7.—On account of a strike of sixty women employed as quillers in the York mills the entire plant was closed down last night for an indefinite time. The concern employs 2800 operatives. A cutdown went into effect in the mills yesterday. In most of the departments the decrease in wages amounts to about 7 percent, but the quillers, who were employed in filling bobbins for looms, found that their pay was cut 20 percent.

King Creditors Bring Suit

Boston, April 7.—Seven suits seeking to recover $25,235 were filed yesterday in the superior court against C. F. King, the missing financial agent and broker of this city, who has been declared a bankrupt. The plaintiffs allege that they gave money to King to invest and that he did not invest the money, and that the representations he made about the stock and other securities in which he had interest were false.

Important Banking Change

Boston, April 7.—The National Bank of the Republic, for many years one of the leading national banks of this city, has transferred its business and assets for liquidation to the National Shawmut bank, the largest national bank in New England. The change went into effect this morning, when the business of the National Bank of the Republic begun to be transacted through the Shawmut.

Dead Man's Pockets Cut Out

Boston, April 7.—With his pockets cut away and with evidences that his clothing and room had been ransacked, the body of Guiseppi Cotraldo, aged 75, was found in a basement room in the North End last night. The police were unable to decide what caused Cotraldo's death and think that he had been robbed. Cotraldo was single.

Big Repair Shops Close

New Haven, April 7.—The Spring street shops of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company at this place were closed yesterday and hereafter all repair work will be done at the Readville (Mass.) shops. The shops here, when they were running with a full force, employed 800 men.

Overdue Steamer Reaches Port

Boston, April 7.—A series of terrific storms for nearly the whole voyage was reported by steamer Bostonian, from Manchester, Eng. The Bostonian was due here April 1. The Bostonian carried coal in her bunkers for the return trip, but was obliged to draw on 150 tons of this to reach port.

Delay In Return of Walker

Hartford, April 7.—Attorney Eggleston has received information through the state department at Washington to the effect that the return from Mexican territory of William F. Walker, absconding treasurer of the Savings Bank of New Britain, will be delayed about two months longer.

Murder Charge Against Rivet

Lowell, Mass., April 7.—Probable cause was found by Judge Hadley in the local police court in the case of Napoleon Rivet, charged with the murder of Joseph Gailloux on the night of Feb. 29 last. Rivet was committed to jail without bail.

Pops Not on Kansas Ballot

Topeka, April 7.—The Populist party in Kansas will not be able to get representation on the primary election ballots or on the ballot of the next general election. Secretary of State Denton said: "I have not included the Populist party in the sample ballot I am making up. The only way they can get back into recognition as a political organization is to reorganize. They have too few voters."

Tales Prove True Not Fictitious

New York, April 6. This city is at present in the midst of an excitement beyond anything that it has experienced in recent years.

Old and young, rich and poor, all seem to have become beside themselves over an individual who was a stranger to New York until a few days ago.

The man who has created all this turmoil is L. T. Cooper, of Dayton, Ohio, who is at present introducing his preparations in this city for the first time.

Cooper is a man about thirty years of age who has acquired a fortune within the past two years by the sale of some preparations of which he is the owner.

Reports from other cities that preceded the young man here were of the most startling nature, many of the leading dailies going so far as to state that he had cured in public places deafness of years' standing with one of his preparations. Physicians generally contradicted this statement, claiming the thing to be impossible, but the facts seemed to bear out the statement that Cooper actually did so.

In consequence people flocked to him by thousands, and his preparations sold like wildfire.

Many of these stories were regarded as fictitious in New York, and until Cooper actually reached this city little attention was paid to them. Hardly had the young man arrived, however, than he began demonstrations, as he calls them, in public, and daily met people afflicted with deafness, and with a single application of one of his preparations actually made deaf people hear again.

One of those treated a day or two ago, in answer to a question by a reporter, said:

"Yes, it is true that my hearing has been restored by Mr. Cooper. I have been deaf for twenty years, and it seems so wonderfully strange to be able to hear again that I have not yet become accustomed to the change. In years past I had been to leading specialists both in this country and in Europe, who had failed to help me, and I had long ago given up all hope.

"When Mr. Cooper came to New York I went to him but I really did not think he could do anything for me. However, I now hear perfectly, and you can publish the news to the world if you want to, for I think others ought to know about this man Cooper and what he is doing. I do not know how to thank him enough for what he has done for me."

Statements of this character have been made by others, and it seems to be an established fact that Cooper's work is genuine.

THE SILVERSTEIN BOMB

Thrower Tells How It Was Made and What Caused Accident

New York, April 7.—The bomb thrown by Selig Silverstein in Union Square part a week ago last Saturday, following the dispersal by the police of a meeting of New York's unemployed, was made from a brass top of a bedstead. This statement was made by Silverstein to an attendant at the hospital, where the bomb thrower lies hovering between life and death, and is the first information Silverstein has given since he committed his desperate act.

"I made the bomb from the top of a bedstead," Silverstein is reported to have said. "It was a round brass ball and hollow. I bought a quarter of a pound of nails, broke them in half and put them in the ball. I put nitroglycerine on top of them and on top of the nitro-glycerine I put some gunpowder. When I got to the park I saw a policeman who had beaten me. I put a fuse in the bomb and walked over to the fountain. I had a lighted cigaret in my hand and I tried to touch off the fuse, but in my excitement I put the cigaret in the wrong hole, causing the explosion.

Silverstein said that he did not know the man near him who was killed, but declared that he knew Alexander Berkman and Emma Goldman. He also said the Union square bomb was the second he had made, but declined to tell when the first one was made or the use to which it was put.

Taft Thinks Bryan Inconsistent

Omaha, April 7.—Secretary of War Taft, in a speech here last night, replied to the recent utterances of W. J. Bryan when he criticised the action of the McKinley and Roosevelt administrations for their policy in the Philippines. Taft said that Bryan was not consistent in his utterances, because he had been the means, in a large degree, of bringing about the signing of the treaty of Paris, whereby the Philippines came under the control of the United States, and he is now criticising the action of the administration because of its efforts to teach the Filipinos the art of self-government.

A Desperate Fellow

Montreal, April 7.—For five hours John Smith, a book agent, kept at bay a large posse of the Montreal police force and a detachment of the fire brigade, killing one constable, wounding another and Chief Detective Carpenter before he was finally shot. Constables Focoult and Shea were sent with a warrant for the arrest of Smith. Without a word of warning Smith opened fire. When the police then rushed the place Smith was found lying on his bed. He had been hit in three places, but none of the wounds appear to be mortal.

Says He Was Drugged and Robbed

Springfield, O., April 7.—Contending that he is an official interpreter for the court of King Edward and that he was sent to this country ten months ago on important business for the British government, Robert H. Clemming told the police that he had been drugged and robbed on his way from Detroit to this city. He said that the clothing had been stripped from him and another suit put on him instead. Clemming says he speaks fourteen languages and seventeen dialects. He is as black as a negro.

New Governors In Cuba

Havana, April 7.—Governor Magoon has received the resignations, which he requested, from all the provincial governors and has appointed in their places Captain Dougherty for Santiago, Major Clark, Camaguey; Captain Wittenmeyer, Matanzas; Major Foltz, Havana; Captain Read, Pinar del Rio. All the governors resigned gracefully, with the exception of Silva of Camaguey.

Government Allegations Denied

Salt Lake City, April 7.—Answers of the defendant in the suit of the United States against the Union Pacific, E. H. Harriman et al, for dissolution of the so-called Harriman system were filed in the federal court here. The answers make general denials of the allegations of consolidation for the purpose of restraint of competition and monopolizing trade and commerce.

Alleged Wife Murderer Caught

Ossining, N. Y., April 7.—Charles Miller, who is wanted in Ansonia, Conn., on a charge of wife murder, was arrested at Pleasantville, N. Y. He agreed to go to Connecticut without awaiting extradition papers and started for Ansonia in the custody of an Ansonia officer.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The mild weather today is a reminder of spring.

Commissioner Bainbridge has an automobile with which he goes about the city.

Dr. E. E. Davis of Chestnut street has gone on a vacation to be away until May 1.

The anthem "How Manifold are Thy Works," was well rendered by the Point choir on Sunday.

Mme. Morey was the week end guest of Mrs. Howard D. Fowler of Phillips street.

Mrs. Clinton Jones and daughter Ruth of Wollaston have gone to Georgia, for several months.

Miss Elenor Crane of South street sung the offertory solo, "Come unto me," at the Point church on Sunday.

Brighten up things with a little paint from the stock of Nathan Ames. It will cheer you up at the same time.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Carman will hold a dance in Electa hall, Johnson building, Thursday evening, April 9.

Mr. and Mrs. George Snow of Popes Hill are guests of Mrs. Snow's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Coles of Faxon road.

Alfred J. Brooks, naval architect at Fore River Shipbuilding Company has moved from Merrymount avenue to 899 Hancock street.

The street watering schedule goes into effect April 15. The streets added this year will be covered by making the carts do a little more work.

The Sunday school class taught by William French secures the banner for April, it being the banner-class in attendance, during March at the Point church.

Mrs. Francis Williams of Alleyne terrace, a resident of Quincy for many years, died this morning in her 83d year. Funeral services will be held Thursday.

Work has been commenced building a section of the main sewer, on Farrington street, and until completed street car passengers will have to transfer from car to car.

The Park Sewing club met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Clarence Cousins of Beach street. The social hours were pleasantly spent. After refreshments, the club went for a short tramp. As soon as warm weather comes the club will meet at the Wollaston beach, where they have rented a bathhouse and recreation bungalow for the summer.

The preacher at the last Wednesday evening service in Lent, at Christ's church, tomorrow is the Rev. Howard Key Barstow, Rector of St. Stephen's church, Cohasset. Mrs. Emma Shufelt Moore will sing a solo.

much more business for those who get permits.

Councilman Walsh favored. He did not believe limiting the number of permits cut down the amount of liquor brought into the city.

Councilman Falconer opposed. He did not see why we should be so solicitous of the saloon on wheels. If we give an unlimited number we are not giving proper respect to the citizens of Quincy.

Chief Burrell—The past year has been the cleanest year we ever had. He thought transportation had been curtailed and those having permits had tried to keep within the law.

The roll call was requested.

Councilman Whiton did not propose to have anybody tell him who he was to vote for. If there is a man who will change his vote simply because of roll call he is not fit to be here. You want one man in Ward Three to have a monopoly.

On roll call the permit was granted 14 voting yes, and 7 no as follows:—

YES—Abele, Bean, Cantfill, Carey, Cherrington, Ferguson, Gelotte, Gilson, McGilvray, Moir, Oakes, Teasdale, Walsh, Whiton—14.

NO—Beal, Bishop, Bryant, Curtis, Falconer, Freeman, Hogan—7.

ABSENT—Broughton.

NOT VOTING—President Hobbs.

Councilman Bryant moved to reconsider vote on permit of the Houghs Neck Steamboat Co.

Motion lost, 8 voting yes and 11 no.

STREET WATERING.

The Committee on Streets recommended that the street watering order be amended by adding the following streets: Taylor street from Brook street to North Central avenue; Liberty street, Pleasant street, Penn street, Common street from Cross to Copeland street, Cross street from Crescent to Common street, Sea street from Babcock street to Dunhams store.

Report and amendment accepted, rules suspended and order passed.

POLLING PLACES.

Councilman Whiton presented a communication from the Democratic City Committee giving notice of its caucuses April 22. Laid on the table until later when an order was offered designating the polling places.

Councilman Whiton offered an order for the Committee on Public Buildings to secure plans for a four-room school building at Houghs Neck.

In reply to a question the City Solicitor said the securing of plans was an executive function.

Order ruled not in order.

Councilman Falconer offered an order amending the ordinance relative to granting pool room licenses, so as to provide that screens, or no other obstruction shall be placed in the windows of pool rooms so as to obstruct a view from the outside. Referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

Councilman Gilson offered an order amending the Building Ordinance so as to provide that the Inspector of Buildings shall be the inspector in charge of all buildings constructed by the city where an inspector is necessary and to receive for such work the sum of $3 per day in addition to his salary as Inspector of Buildings. Referred to Committee on Ordinance.

Councilman Gelotte offered an order appropriating $850 for street lighting at Houghs Neck. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Bryant moved reference be withdrawn, and it be referred to the Executive.

Motion lost, 5 voting yes, and 10 no.

Councilman Moir offered a resolve that no peddlers license be granted to any person not a resident or citizen of Quincy. Adopted.

Upon motion of Councilman Ferguson the order granting the Electric Light Co. a location for poles was taken from the table and after some discussion was passed.

Councilman Bean offered an order for $1,200 for drains on Elm avenue, Kemper, Willow and Marlboro streets and Huntington square. To Committee on Streets.

Councilman Ferguson offered an amendment to the junk license ordinance which provided no license to collet junk should be granted except to citizens or registered voters of Quincy. To Ordinance Committee.

Councilman Bryant moved, and it was voted, that the Mayor be requested to have all heads of departments attend meetings of the Council in compliance with the City Charter.

Councilman Gilson moved the original Coddington school order be taken from the table. Voted.

He moved indefinite postponement. Voted. Motion reconsidered. The question was on ordering to a second reading. The Council refused to order to a second reading.

Upon motion of Councilman Falconer the rules were suspended, and it was voted when the Council adjourned it be until Tuesday, April 22.

Adjourned at 10.50 until April 22.

Granite City Club Banquet

All the arrangements for the annual banquet and Hippodrome party of the Grantie City club on Wednesday evening have been completed. The party will leave Quincy on the 4.19 train to which will be attached a special car for their use. On arrival in Boston a special car will be in waiting to take the party to the Quincy House, and after the banquet to the Hippodrome, and later back to the Terminal station. A special car will also be attached to the 11.27 train from Boston.

The dinner will be served at 6 o'clock prompt, as the party must leave the hotel at 7. 30 in order to arrive at the Hippodrome in season. Monk's orchestra will furnish music during the banquet. The party will number about seventy and a good time is assured to all.

With Masonic Honors.

The funeral services for Henry S. Kolseth were held with Masonic honors Monday afternoon at his late home on Walker street. A deluge of exquisite flowers spoke eloquently of the esteem in which Mr. Kolseth was held by his host of friends. The service was short and impressive, the Knights standing with drawn swords and uncovered heads as each one present stepped forward to pay a last tribute to their late friend and neighbor.

The services were conducted by Rev. Henry A. Coolidge, and were followed by the Masonic burial service which was rendered by St. Omer Commandery.

During the services the Bethooven quartette sang, "Lead kindly light," "Beautiful isle of somewhere," "Nearer My God to Thee," and "Passing out of the shadow."

The interment was at Manchester, N. H.

Vaudeville Resumed At the Scenic

The Scenic resumed vaudeville last evening, and the excellent program arranged by the management drew an immense throng, which packed the house to the doors long before the time of commencement. The moving pictures were varied and interesting, including the latest subjects, one beautifully colored film known as "The whimsical people," being especially worthy of mention. Miss Helen LeMar, who sings the illustrated ballads, has a sweet contralto voice, particularly well adapted to illustrated songs, and the two numbers rendered by her last evening were enthusiastically received by the audience, which seemed to enjoy every line of the ballads.

Included in the vaudeville acts are Dot Davenport, a petite and fascinating soubrette, whose singing and dancing never fails to charm an audience. She sings one catchy song, "Yes You Do," which made a decided hit. Adolph Adams, known as the "Man with Many Faces," and who is an absolute master of the art of mimicry, gave several impersonations of great men past and present, by aid of facial expression and make-up which is not only very amusing but most instructive as well. Gus Bruno, a polite entertainer, convulsed the audience with laughter by his funny stories and jokes, his witty sayings and perfect dialect. As an all-round, top-notch comedian Gus has them all beaten for fun-making and driving away dull cares.

MEN'S MEETING

Congregational Union Representing Seven Churches

Last evening was a red-letter event in Quincy Congregationalism, when delegates from the seven Congregational parishes met in Bethany to hear information concerning Congregationalism in the city of Quincy.

The opening address of welcome, stating the object of the meeting was made by Rev. Dr. Hardy. "Congregationalism as I see It" was discussed by three speakers. Mr. C. Ralph Taylor said in part "Congregationalism stands for liberalism. Our watchword is freedom. But we must also have fellowship. In points of doctrine we do not say "you must believe so and so, but you may believe so and so, if you wish."

Deacon R. D. Chase told why he was a congregationalist, and said in part, while Massachusetts has one seventh of all the Congregationalists in the United States yet we are not advocating a Congregational syndicate but the most efficient way of advancing the kingdom of God.

Mr. T. B. Pollard, in speaking of what Congregationalism stands for, said: "I am a Congregationalist by choice; it stands for an intelligent faith, an educated and trained ministry, and the spiritual life. It avoids sensationalism yet should show enterprise and enthusiasm.

The numerical strength of Quincy congregationalism was shown by charts and figures prepared by Rev. A. R. Atwood, who indicated that more than half of the protestant population of Quincy was congregational.

Deacon E. W. Branch stated that in the Quincy Congregational Sunday Schools, exclusive of the Home department, there were 1600 pupils enrolled.

Mr. Carle Hayward, speaking of the C. E. societies connected with Congregational churches in our city, told of 200 Juniors, 148 Intermediates, 300 adult C. E. members.

Mr. W. H. Hull told of the Wollaston Congregational Men's club, of its founding four years ago and its present membership of 45.

Mr. E. I. Beal told of the Bethany Brotherhood and said that the church was founded by men; its early workers were men; and that religion was a man's business and he needed the church.

Mr. W. F. Cummings told of the Atlantic Men's club for any man whether a Congregationalist or not, and said they now had a membership of 53.

Rev. H. A. Coolidge had gathered statistics concerning the prayer-meeting, and said one man in every four in our Congregational churches attended this mid-week service.

Rev. Lillback spoke for the Finns, and a message was received from the Swedes; both of these churches are doing splendid work at South and West Quincy and growing rapidly.

Dr. Sherman and Fred Barnard, speaking of "gathering the unchurched" said we need to emphasize the worth of cottage prayer-meetings, and the need of church members doing personal work.

The closing statement was made by Rev. Mr. Hardy. At nearly 10 o'clock the delegates separated, pronouncing the evening a great success and realizing as never before, the strength and future prospects of Congregationalism in Quincy.

The officers of the Quincy Congregational Union are: Rev. Dr. Hardy, president; Rev. A. R. Atwood, vice president; Rev. H. G. Megathlin, secretary.

The program of the Union was arranged by Rev. A. R. Atwood, Dr. Sherman and Rev. H. C. Coolidge.

Plans are being made to hold similar services in other parts of Quincy. In the early fall it is possible that a Union banquet and ladies' night, with speakers from our city and vicinity will be announced.

An Agreement Reported at Barre

A dispatch from Montpelier, Vt., says that the granite strike is practically over, the committee of the manufacturers and cutters having agreed.

The basis of settlement is for a term of three years, at a scale of 37 1-2 cents per hour for the first year, 38 cents for the second year, and 38 3-4 cents an hour for the third year, with Saturday half-holidays during June, July, August and September. All the other points in dispute, which included weekly payments of wages, a piece scale, shop conditions and the matter of hiring apprentices, had been previously settled by the committees and accepted by the two bodies.

This settlement in Barre will no doubt be ratified by the unions at Williamstown, Montpelier, Northfield and Waterbury.

Masonic Temple At Wollaston

Wollaston Masonic lodge took the first step at its meeting Tuesday night toward the erection of a Masonic temple, when a committee was appointed to report as to the lot selected for the site on Newport avenue.

AMONG THE CLUBS

Who Is They?

Why don't they keep the streets a little cleaner?
You ask with deep annoyance not undue.
Why don't they keep the parks a little greener?
(Did you ever stop to think that they means you?)

How long will they permit this graft and stealing?
Why don't they see the courts are clean and true?
Why will they wink at crooked public dealing?
(Did you ever stop to think that they means you?)

Why don't they stop this miserable child labor?
And wake the S. P. C. A. up a few?
While thus you gently knock your unknown neighbor,
(Did you ever stop to think that they means you?)

BY STUART DUNLAP.

If every club member took to heart the above poem and did her share of work how much good would be accomplished in the community. Many women's clubs talks of big things to accomplish but no one goes ahead and does it, each waiting for the other.

By invitation of Mrs. William B. Rice of Adams street the Hospital Aid association will hold an all day sewing meeting and box luncheon at her home on Wednesday, April 15. This extra meeting is to finish articles for the little sale to be held after Easter in First Church chapel when there will also be a sale of rugs from Morgan Memorial. Hearty cooperation is desired as two worthy charities will thus be aided.

The Duchess of Marlboro at the meeting of the Playground Association of America in New York on April first, said: "This Playground Association is rendering superb service to the country for it is insuring to its future citizens the fine physique and alert minds we associate with Americans. I should like, in passing, to pay a tribute to the executive capability of the American woman. One cannot but admire the way they manage their various hospitals and charitable institutions. If American women can do so much and do it so well, why is it that a greater number do not interest themselves in philanthropic and educational work? I believe that it is as I have said, because the sense of our personal obligation to the community has not yet been fully developed."

Instead of the meeting of the Alliance in First church parlor for Monday afternoon as announced on the year's program the meeting for April 13th will be a "Neighborhood Meeting" when Senorita Carolina Huidobro will speak on "The women of Chili and Argentine Republic in the Peace Movement." A full attendance is desired to welcome visiting delegates. Members of the Alliance will please note change of date of Neighborhood meeting from the 27th to Monday, April 13, in First Church chapel at three o'clock.

At the meeting of the Wolaston Alliance next Wednesday afternoon in the vestry of the Unitarian church Mr. Louis P. Nash will speak on Young People in the Church." The season closes May 6th with the annual business meeting, reports, etc.

In the course of lectures in Bethany chapel under the auspices of the Mothers' Association, Mrs. Florence Evans will give her third lecture on Thursday afternoon, April 16th, taking for her subject "Purity Lessons." There are two lectures more in the course.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

It has been decided to make the next meeting of the Quincy Women's club on April 14th a public meeting and any one interested in the good work of the club is cordially invited to be present. The meeting is in charge of the Education committee, Mrs. C. R. Safford, chairman. Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead will speak on "Patriotism: the new Internationalism." Mrs. Mead is a prominent lecturer, well-known for her work in the Peace department of the National Council of Women. She is also a director of the American Peace society and a delegate to the International Peace congresses. She firmly believes in arbitration and less war, with its loss of life and enormous expense. This will be the fourth public meeting this season.

The long waiting list of those anxious to become club members is growing rapidly and there is perhaps urgent need of enlarging the club to 400 to accommodate all. As the annual dues are now due and it is a requirement of membership that they shall be paid before the annual meeting in May it is possible there may be some vacancies which will allow the admittance of some from the waiting list. Any desirous of joining the club should get their names in now that they may be acted upon this year. The name has to be presented by letter to the corresponding secretary Mrs. F. H. Bishop by a member of the club endorsed by two other members.

Members are assured an entertaining program for club afternoons next year, the program committee having already put in several hours' work in arranging the afternoons. Each chairman will provide one afternoon instead of two as in the past which will give more variety to the program.

An especially pleasing afternoon will be that devoted to dramatics the parts to be taken by club members. There will also be another home talent afternoon of a very varied

New Climax as a Result of Conferences at Washington

NO INSTRUCTED DELEGATES

Lodge Joins Crane, and Bates Withdraws as a Candidate--Victory For Anti-Instructionists In the Effort to Preserve Harmony

Boston, April 8.—Senator Lodge will not press the passage of resolutions of preference for Secretary Taft at the forthcoming Republican convention in Massachusetts. Ex-Governor John L. Bates has withdrawn as a candidate for delegate-at-large, thus insuring the choice of Long and Bigney, rival candidates for the fourth place on the "big four" delegation

JOHN L. BATES.

These developments, which are claimed by Lodge and Bates to be due simply to a desire for party harmony, are regarded by political leaders both here and in Washington as a tactical victory for Senator Crane and the anti-instruction forces.

Manager Powers of the Taft campaign in Massachusetts was taken completely by surprise. He declared that it was a deal between the two Massachusetts senators to prevent the embarrassment of Long. They preferred, he said, to sacrifice Bates.

The new situation is the result of many conferences in Washington, and it was intended to prevent a clash in the Massachusetts convention. In view of a statement given out by Congressman Gardner, it is not so certain that this result has been accomplished. Gardner says he is very sorry that Lodge, his father-in-law, has taken a position against Taft resolutions, and expresses the hope that he will not oppose them actively. "His assistance," he says, "would be valuable in our effort to carry resolutions, but under the circumstances we must get along the best we can without co-operation of either senator."

Mr. Lodge said that "in the interests of party and of cordial union and harmony among Republicans, it will be better and wiser if no resolutions which express a preference for Taft are offered or passed."

Positions Made Known

Washington, April 8.—Senator Lodge and Representative Gardner of Massachusetts, who is Lodge's son-in-law, have issued formal statements relative to the approaching Massachusetts Republican state convention in which they take opposite views as to the propriety of any expression by the committee on the subject of Taft's candidacy for the presidency. Lodge reiterates his well-known views in support of Taft, but says that upon the whole he considers as undesirable any expression in the interest of any candidates. On the other hand, Gardner takes the position that the delegates of the state convention should be permitted to express their views to the extent of declaring their preference for Taft as a presidential candidate.

Taft Resolutions Defeated

Dover, Del., April 7.—The Republican state convention met and elected a full delegation to the national convention at Chicago. The delegates were not instructed. The only show of a contest was over resolutions directing the national delegates to support Taft for the presidential nomination. It was defeated overwhelmingly by a viva voce vote. The platform endorses the administration of President Roosevelt and the state administration and favors a revision of the tariff.

Strong Hughes Sentiment

New York, April 8.—Conventions were held in each assembly district in Manhattan and the Bronx last night by the Republican party for the purpose of electing delegates and alternates from each district to attend the Republican state convention, which will occur on April 11. The results show that twenty-three of the thirty-five conventions instructed their delegates for Governor Hughes for president.

Delegates Instructed For Bryan

Mitchell, S. D., April 8.—The Democratic state convention met here, elected eight delegates to the national convention and instructed them to vote for W. J. Bryan for the presidential nomination.

ACCEPT EMPLOYERS' OFFER

Vermont Granite Cutters to Return Under Compromise Scale

Barre, Vt., April 8.—The strike of granite cutters of Barre and Montpelier, which began March 1, was settled when the cutters at a mass meeting voted to accept the compromise terms arranged by a committee of conference. It is expected that the differences between the manufacturers and quarrymen will be adjusted in a few days, so that the quarries may be started up in all departments next Monday. Between 4000 and 5000 men have been concerned in the six weeks' strike.

Under the compromise agreement the cutters are to receive 37½ cents an hour minimum wages for the first year of a three-year contract, 38 cents for the second year and 38 3-4 cents for the third year. Under the agreement which came to an end when the strike began the cutters received 37½ cents an hour. Their demand was for 40 cents. The agreement, in addition to fixing the wages, provides for weekly payments and Saturday half-holidays in the months of June, July, August and September.

The quarrymen have also received a compromise proposition from the manufacturers and will vote on the matter at a meeting this afternoon.

Consolidation of Railroads

New Haven, April 8.—The consolidation of the Milford and Woonsocket Railroad company and the Milford, Franklin and Providence railroad with the New England railroad is understood here to be another preliminary step to the merger of the New England railroad and its branches with the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company.

Loomfixers Accept Reduction

New Bedford, Mass., April 8.—The Loomfixers' union voted last night in favor of accepting the wage reduction recently ordered by the Manufacturers' association. Resolutions were adopted, however, condemning the manufacturers most strongly for the wage cut. The union voted to double its dues so as to be prepared to make a resistance in case of a further cut in wages.

Smalley Proved Innocence

Boston, April 8.—Albert Smalley of Boston, who was detained in custody of the police in connection with the investigation of the death of Annie Mullins, was released at Arlington. After a thorough examination Smalley proved to the satisfaction of the police officials that he was in no way connected with the death of the woman.

Guild's Improvement Continues

Boston, April 8.—Governor Guild's physicians report that their patient passed a very good night and his improvement continues. If the condition of the governor continues to show improvement it is probable that the number of bulletins issued by the physicians will be reduced to one daily.

Non-Union Men In Quarries

Quincy, Mass., April 8.—Non-union engineers will be put to work in place of the 107 quarry engineers who went on strike a week ago. The cutters and polishers, whose differences with the manufacturers were settled some weeks ago, will continue to work.

Passed Counterfeit Quarter

Boston, March 8.—John P. Sims of Lowell, who was tried and found guilty of passing a counterfeit 25-cent piece in payment for drinks at a Lowell hotel, was sentenced to eighteen months in jail by Judge Dodge in the United States district court.

Bank Directors Must Settle

Yarmouth, N. S., April 8.—The full bench of the Nova Scotia supreme court has given a decision that the directors of the defunct Bank of Yarmouth are personally liable to the shareholders for a portion, at least, of the losses by the failure of the bank, and an order was granted that they make restitution. The bank's downfall was caused largely by loans to a firm of shoe manufacturers, which became financially embarrassed.

Daring Trio of Bank Robbers

St. Catherine, Ont., April 8.—Three men gained access to the Imperial bank in St. Davids and attempted to break open a safe. The first explosion roused the village and while the whole population was held at bay by two of the robbers with revolvers, the third man lighted another fuse and tried vainly to get the door of the safe open. Finally they drove off, two of them covering the villagers with their guns.

Lisbon an Armed Camp

Lisbon, April 8.—Unawed by the strong military force with which the city has swarmed since the election rioting Sunday evening and the heavy arrivals of troops from the provinces, the population of Lisbon made fresh demonstrations last evening. Two hundred arrests were made. Artillery has been mounted in the squares and the Monarchist newspaper offices are especially strongly guarded.

No Bill Against American Ice

New York, April 8.—The special grand jury investigating the American Ice company filed a presentment in the supreme court that sufficient evidence for returning indictments against either the American Ice company or its president, Wesley M. Oler, had not been found.

Miss Mullins' Body Buried

St. Johns, April 8.—The body of Annie Mullins, who was murdered at Arlington, Mass., was interred yesterday in the Roman Catholic cemetery. When the body arrived here an immense crowd was at the railroad station and followed the hearse to the Mullins home.

Quincy Built Battleships to Visit San Diego, San Pedro, Santa Barbara and San Francisco.

Several gala days are ahead for the seacoast towns of California and these towns are making elaborate plans. Secretary Metcalf announces this schedule: The fleet will sail sail from Magdalena Bay on Saturday April 11. The following Tuesday at 2 P. M., it will drop anchor at San Diego bay, where it will remain until 6 A. M. Saturday, April 18. Each night the "Big Sixteen" will be illuminated, and each day the ships will put on full dress. At San Pedro Bay, which will be reached in the afternoon of Saturday the 18th, the fleet will divide. The first division will remain at San Pedro while the second will go to Long Beach, the third to Santa Monica and the fourth to Redonlo, small places adjacent to Los Angeles. These visits will occupy the fleet until the 25th, when they will leave for Santa Barbara, where they will arrive on the same day and remain until the last day of April. Santa Cruz will be the next show place, reached on May 1, for a four days' stay and two-days later, May 6, the grand triumphal entry to San Francisco harbor will be made and preparations begun for the review, which is to take place two days later with Secretary Metcalf's flag at the mast head of the Yorktown, as the receiving ship. The schedule of dates, it is explained, is subject to change if rendered necessary by unforeseen circumstances, such as fog, etc.

SETTLED OUT ...OF COURT.

[Original.]

Rufus Choate Timberton was a very eminent lawyer. He had so much business to attend to that he could do little himself but take up cases that had been prepared for him by his large staff of assistants. It was necessary that he should have every detail carefully placed before him. His position might be compared to that of a railroad train running on automatic switches. Anything wrong in a mechanical detail may wreck the train; anything wrong in Mr. Timberton's data might wreck his case.

It was natural, then, that he should exact great care from his assistants. Any one of them failing to keep him, as it were, running on the right track was instantly discharged. But they had all been with him a long while and had become so used to their duties that there never was nut or bolt of the office machinery misplaced.

Mr. Timberton was one morning in court attending to a divorce case. He did not take divorce cases as a rule, but in this one his client was very rich and his fee was to be enormous. Both the husband and wife were in court. Mr. Timberton always instructed his clients to blind obedience to his methods, and whatever he did or said in the courtroom was to be accepted without question as a part of his scheme. His assistant, Mr. Pinkey, who had prepared the present case for him, was in court and sat beside his chief with a bundle of papers before him. Mr. Pinkey was a lean man of twenty-seven who looked anywhere from thirty to fifty. Mr. Timberton was addressing the court.

"It is stated in the plea," he said, "that this woman has rendered the man's life a burden. We shall show how she neglected her home, turned her children over to nurses and spent her time among the fashionable multimillionaires who are the money power of this republican country and would gladly, if they could, turn it over to a monarch of their own choosing. At evening, when her hardworking husband came to his home, what did he find? A wife to meet him at the door with a smile of welcome and a connubial kiss? No. She was either driving in the park or losing his hard earned money in some palace where our commercial aristocracy gamble at the game of bridge."

That Mr. Pinkey feared something had gone wrong with the office posting system was evident from the fact that he dived into the papers before him, pulled out one and hastily examined it.

"There is nothing," continued the speaker, "so beautiful as the home. The good book tells us that our Maker created man in his own image. And what is the family but a miniature of the immortal father and his mortal children? When a woman"—

Mr. Timberton was interrupted by a pull at his coat sleeve. He paid no attention to it. In a few moments he was interrupted by another pull. Glancing down angrily, he saw Mr. Pinkey looking up at him with dismay, holding a paper for his chief to see and pointing with his finger to a certain place. The learned lawyer saw at once that he had made a mistake. His assistant had not made it. He had made it himself. He had been retained by the wife whom he was holding up as a violator of domestic comfort.

If there is one faculty that goes to make up greatness it is resource. Mr. Timberton took time only to abuse his assistant in a whisper for not before calling his attention to his error; then he turned serene and faced the court.

"In these days of legal chicanery," he went on, "it behooves one intrusted with a client's interests to forestall those tricky methods that are resorted to by unscrupulous attorneys. I have preferred to state the case against my client myself. What I have told you about this much abused, long suffering woman will be told by her husband's attorney. But how will it be told? By placing even a worse construction than I have placed on it. He will put upon her the popular obliquy of riches. Who owned these millions but the man who is suing one whom I shall show by competent witnesses to be a virtuous, a domestic wife and mother? You will be told of the iniquity of bridge whist, but you will not be told that my client does not know the game. You will have the sacredness of the family held up before you, but instead of being told that the breach has been made in this case by this profligate man whose sins cry out against him they will be laid at the door of his faithful wife."

At this juncture the husband cast a glance at his wife, and at the same moment the wife cast a glance at the husband. Her lips broke into a smile, which was reflected on his. They were a wealthy young couple who had found the bridge between romance and married life quite as difficult to pass as most couples, if not more so. Mr. Timberton saw both smiles, and his rare genius found still another field.

"My experience," he continued, "in this case, your honor, before it came to trial convinced me that it was one to be settled out of court. In conducting it I have adopted the reductio ad absurdum argument, which in English means reducing to an absurdity. I have shown both the plaintiff and the defendant how shallow are the reasons that may be brought forth on either side. I have given those of my distinguished opponent as well as my own. I now move an adjournment of the case, during which the parties may confer with a view to a settlement."

The case was settled out of court.

A NEW FITCH DRAMA

"Girls," Work of Expert Writer on Fair Sex.

AUTHOR'S FIFTIETH PLAY.

A Story of Three New York Bachelor Girls Who Finally Succumb to Matrimony — Bertha Kalich Produces "Marta of the Lowlands."

[From Our New York Dramatic Correspondent.]

Clyde Fitch has written a new drama on a subject that is very familiar to him. The topic is girls, and the title of his play is "Girls." The play, recently produced at Daly's theater, is based on a drama by Hugo Holtz.

It is interesting to note as an evidence of Mr. Fitch's activity that "Girls" is the fiftieth play he has written.

In the play Mr. Fitch undertakes to discuss in his own way the proposition of femininity in the primitive stages of independence.

The author is a past master of the art of depicting feminine foibles, which is possibly one reason why he chooses to treat this serious subject humorously, knowing well that no argument since the days of Adam and Eve has in the least affected the psychology of the sex.

Mr. Fitch brings three young girls to a studio apartment in New York, who resolve among themselves that men are distinctly disadvantageous appendages, without which they can well afford to fight their own battles. One is secretary to a law firm, another is a stenographer, and a third is a stage-struck maiden. After complications the girls go the way their hearts dictate and, naturally enough, to the very men they had always affected to despise. The first and last scenes are laid in the girls' studio, while the second act shows a law office, where two of the girls are employed. As usual in Fitch plays, there is a surprise scene.

For the purpose of "Girls" they all lose their positions, and we find them back in their studio, just where they had started in the beginning, a little less sure of their independence and with the germ of love planted.

Mr. Fitch has been kind to the girls, for instead of permitting the curtain to fall with them unhappy he lets us see the right man in the right place, taking charge of the girls, who, after all, are just like the rest of their sex, ready to succumb when the man comes along.

Bertha Kalich has begun an engagement at the Garden theater in Harrison Grey Fiske's production of Angel Guimera's Spanish drama, "Marta of the Lowlands," a play that for the past three seasons has been held for Mme. Kalich by Mr. Fiske.

"Marta of the Lowlands" was originally written for Maria Guerrero, Spain's greatest actress, by Guimera, a Catalonian playwright, whose successes have established him as the foremost dramatist of Spain. Guimera is the leader of the Progressive party in Barcelona and the editor of the most vigorous party organ.

"Maria of the Lowlands" was successfully produced at the Manhattan theater several years ago by Mr. Fiske.

Franz Lehar, composer of the wonderfully successful operetta "The Merry Widow," is the only living millionaire whose fortune has come in the form of music royalties. And his whole pile has been made from one piece in less than three years.

ROBERT BUTLER.

TROTTERS AND PACERS.

The lineup for 1908 looks very encouraging for a great light harness year.

Miss Pratt, 2:17¼, the dam of The Leading Lady (2), 2:16¼, has been booked to Tregangle, 2:09¼.

There will be no more three heats, every heat a race, contests at Detroit. Three in five, with five heats the limit, has been decided upon.

John Minneley of Meadville, Pa., who bred and raised Morning Star, 2:04¾, has a full brother to the famous pacer in Thorne Hal, now a three-year-old.

But Croke, 2:15½, one of the few remaining sons of George Wilkes, 2:22, died recently at Canton, O. He was foaled in 1880 and consequently was twenty-seven years old. It is said that at one time an offer of $33,000 was refused for him.

SKERRETT'S ADMISSION

Published Matter Regarded by the Government as Secret

Washington, April 8.—The navy department, and not the Electric Boat company, was virtually under investigation yesterday by the special house committee inquiring into charges preferred against that company by Representative Lilley. The question as to whether the company had used illegitimate means to promote legislation in its favor was forgotten in the admissions made by a witness to the effect that he had secured extracts of reports made to the navy department supposed to be confidential.

The witness was Robert G. Skerrett of New York, formerly employed in the navy department, and at one time the European representative of the Lake Torpedo Boat company. He stated frankly that while in the employ of the Lake company he received ananymously extracts from reports made to the navy department and that he used these extracts in technical articles prepared for publication in magazines.

Questioned as to their source, he replied that he did not know from whom they came and that he had accepted them as correct and used them in his articles. The climax of Skerrett's testimony came when he was asked by Chairman Boutell if he did not consider that his action in publishing information which the United States government regarded as secret was "highly dishonorable."

His reply was: "No, I think it was indiscreet."

Democrats Talk of Cowardice

Washington, April 8.—Following the failure of the Democratic members of the house committee on election of the president, vice president and representatives in congress to force action by that committee on the bill to compel the publication of campaign contributions, high words were passed, the meeting broke up and an organized movement is now on foot on the Democratic side of the house to openly charge the Republicans with cowardice.

Again Returned to Office

Milwaukee, April 8.—Davis S. Rose, Democrat, was elected mayor of Milwaukee by a plurality of about 3000 over Emil Seidel, Social Democrat. Thomas J. Pringle, the Republican candidate, ran over 1000 behind Seidel. Rose's election makes him mayor of Milwaukee for the fifth time. He was defeated two years ago by Mayor Booker, after being victorious four times in succession.

More Tobacco Beds Destroyed

Huntington, W. Va., April 8.—Night riders rode into Scottown, O., opposite this city, and destroyed the tobacco beds of Ned Shockley and Henry K. Darnell.

Vevay, Ind., April 8.—Night riders burned the tobacco barns and beds of Stephen Ryan near here and left a note threatening to hang him if he replanted his tobacco.

England Wants Brazil's Warships

London, April 8.—Interest has been aroused in naval circles by the report that the British admiralty is considering the purchase of two battleships building here for Brazil. It is certain that Great Britain will buy these vessels rather than see them fall into the hands of another European power.

Throws Up the Mayoralty

Mattoon, Ills., April 8.—Lewis L. Lehman, mayor of Mattoon, has resigned the mayoralty because the anti-saloon forces triumphed at the elections yesterday. Lehman is president of the First National bank and a trustee of the University of Illinois.

Fined For Granting Rebates

New York, April 8.—The Great Northern Railway company was convicted of granting rebates to the American Sugar Refining company before Judge Holt in the United States circuit court and fined $5000. The trial lasted only two days.

Cruiser Ends Journey From Pacific

Norfolk, April 8.—Cruiser Chicago, bearing a homeward-bound pennant flying from her main-top, passed the Virginia capes, thus completing her long journey from the Pacific coast. She proceeded into Hampton Roads.

Tillman Goes to Sanitarium

Atlanta, April 8.—Senator Tillman of South Carolina arrived here yesterday and went immediately to a sanitarium, where he will remain under treatment for several weeks. His condition is said to be satisfactory.

FIGHTING AT LISBON

Had Its Inception In Dispute Over Counting of Ballots

SEVEN PERSONS ARE KILLED

A Hundred Persons Are Wounded, Soldiers Firing Upon Relief Guard by Mistake--Desperate Hand-to-Hand Battle In the Darkness

Lisbon, April 7.—Seven persons were shot to death and a hundred others wounded by soldiers Sunday evening after the voting in the elections in this city had ended.

The rioting was widespread, and such was the confusion arising in the violent conflict between the populace and the municipal guard that the guardsmen, mistaking infantrymen who had been called out to suppress the mob, fired a volley into their ranks, mortally wounding three of the soldiers.

The night was one of terror for Lisbon, which seemed suddenly aflame with seething revolt. Bands of men ran wildly through the streets, brandishing weapons, while the sharp crack of rifles was heard in various sections of the city. Thousands of the most peaceable citizens fled to their homes, just as they did on the night after the assassination of King Carlos and the crown prince.

The principal rioting was the result of a dispute between the Republicans and the Monarchists regarding the counting of votes. The Republicans, who had been fearing fraud at the various Lisbon places, made a determined stand for their rights at St. Dominque's church, which is located in the center of the city, a district that is practically the stronghold of Republicanism.

Both the Republicans and the Monarchists kept a sharp watch throughout the day. As the voters were following the ancient custom of voting in the churches, they filed steadily into historic St. Dominiques and deposited their ballots in the official voting boxes.

When the polls closed the Monarchist election officers declared it was too late to count the votes and proposed to keep the list in the church and count them on the morrow. The Republican tellers refused to assent to this, insisting upon an immediate count, to be followed by the sealing of the boxes.

The differences between the officials spread to the crowds that filled the church and in a moment blows were struck and then a general fight followed. Suddenly the municipal guard arrived and cleared the edifice of the struggling combatants at the point of the bayonet.

In the meantime the crowd outside of the church had been greatly augmented, and the guardsmen's appearance at the doors after they had forced the people into the streets was the signal for a shower of stones, under which they were forced to retreat to the interior of the edifice. As they retired they fired a volley from their rifles, bringing down several of the rioters. The mob steadily increased and shouts and imprecations and cries of anger were heard on every side. The rioters armed themselves anew and soon the edifice was literally surrounded and besieged by a maddened mob.

The guardsmen fired intermittently through the doorways, but the volleys were feeble and ineffectual. Eventually the commanding officer placed a detail on the balcony over the main portal, from which point of vantage the guardsmen fired repeatedly into the surging populace, wounding a large number. Still the mob did not give way, but only attacked the church the more furiously in an attempt to reach the guard. Several of the guardsmen were wounded, but they were replaced on the balcony by others, and for three hours the fight continued. Then three companies of infantry and a troop of cavalry, with one battery, appeared, driving all before them.

By this time night had fallen and there ensued in the darkness a desperate and uncertain hand-to-hand encounter between the soldiers and the rioters. The latter now numbered thousands. They wrenched paving stones from the streets and rushed into nearby houses, where they snatched all sorts of missiles, which they hurled at the troops. Some of the rioters were armed with revolvers which they did not hesitate to use.

Just as the soldiers reached the square fronting the church the guard on the balcony fired a volley directly into the ranks of the infantrymen and three of the latter fell, mortally wounded. In the confusion and darkness the guardsmen had mistaken them for a band of rioters.

Before the superior forces of charging infantry and cavalry, the crowd slowly fell back. Seven persons were found to have been slain and the wounded were strewn everywhere. Among these were several children who had been trampled under the hoofs of the horses.

Jackson Case Reaches Albany

Albany, April 7.—Both houses of the legislature last night received and ordered printed the presentment of the grand jury of the county of New York and the testimony taken before that body relative to Attorney General Jackson, which, at the request of the grand jury and by order of Presiding Judge Foster, was sent to the governor, the senate and the assembly.

CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace Of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

BIRTHPLACES OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Admission charged.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural momuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb, reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of the old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponsit river.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS.

which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams, also the old town hearse. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock cemetery across the street from First church contains many old stones. Among the old graves are those of Henry Adams, founder of the Adams family who died Oct. 5, 1646; Rev. William Thompson, 1st pastor over the Braintree church who died Dec. 10, 1666; Rev. Henry Flint who died Oct. 11, 1668; Rev. John Hancock father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744 and many other notable people.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy, Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Owned by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting feature. Open free to the public on Saturdays, from 11 A. M. until 4 P. M. Other days admission charged

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the Indian Tisquantum.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

The Breaking of The China Pig

Mr. and Mrs. E. Frank Mitchell entertained a few of their many friends on Tuesday evening at their home on Pleasant street. The occasion was the breaking of a china pig into which they had been dropping their odd change for the past few months.

The decoration of the rooms were in harmony with the occasion, and Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell were assisted in entertaining by their daughters Miss Marion and Miss Helen Mitchell.

During the early evening there was whist and other games, for which souvenirs in keeping with the occasion were given.

Then came the breaking of the pig. His pigship, whose sides seemed to bulge out with money, was brought forth gaily decorated in scarlet ribbon and placed on a table ready for cracking.

Guesses as to his weight, and the amount he contained, were made and recorded, then a hole was knocked in his side, and out rolled the pennies, nickels, dimes and quarters. When counted they figured up to quite a snug sum.

Souvenirs were given those who came nearest the weight and amount.

The evening was one full of fun, and each lady as she bid her host and hostess good night received a china pig bank, in which to deposit their husbands odd change after the new Easter hat had been paid for.

A pleasing lunch was served during the evening.

Fresh Air Camp.

Dr. W. H. Greene, a prominent Boston physician, in an article on "Health" in the "Fristate Tourist" of April says: "It was a wise old physician who prescribed as a relief from long-standing diseases a change of scene. Sunlight and fresh air are nature's cures for all the ills that flesh is heir to." The Fresh Air Camp Association of Quincy, is to try to provide a change of scenery, sunlight and fresh air, for all persons of our city, who, free of charge, are invited to enjoy the rest and recreation offered by the Fresh Air Camp during July.

Well Known in Holbrook.

Henry Wales Paine, one of the most respected residents of Holbrook, died Monday night at his home in that town as a result of blood poisoning, from which he had been suffering only a few days. He was seventy-three years of age, and was born in South Braintree, a son of the late Clark and Jerusha Wilde Paine. When he was six years of age his parents moved to Holbrook, then East Randolph. During his early life young Paine attended the public schools, and later for many years was employed as a shoe cutter. In later years he has been janitor of the Town Hall building and also sexton of the Winthrop Congregational church. In addition to this he has filled a position on the board of health for several years. For upward of seventeen years he has also been the town's undertaker and director. On Sept. 17, 1862, Mr. Paine married Miss Jennie E. Merrick of Chesterfield, N. H., who died a few years ago.

NON-UNION

The Granite Manufacturers May Fill the Strikers' Places

It was reported this morning that some of the quarry firms have begun to fill the places made vacant by the striking engineers and quarrymen, and that is a few cases quarries were being operated. No general effort, however, has been made by the manufacturers to operate their plants with non-union men.

The general impression however seems to be that all the differences between the men and manufacturers will be settled within a few days.

The cutting yards are being operated throughout the city, but with reduced force on account of the scarcity of stock.

The position taken by the Manufacturers' Association in regard to the finding of the National Board on the disputed points in Quincy is fully set forth in the following vote, a copy of which has this week been forwarded to the National Association and the Granite Cutters' Union:

We recommend that the following be sent to the National Association of the Granite Industry of the United States, and the Granite Cutters' International Association, namely:

At a meeting of our Association held March 30th, 1908, it was unanimously voted:

That we repudiate all action and so called decisions arrived at by the alleged Joint Council as rendered under date of March 25th, 1908, and we offer the following reasons for our action.

First. The parties acting in behalf of the said National Association were not all executive officers of said Association as provided in the joint agreement between said organizations signed June 27th, 1907.

Second. Said alleged Joint Council assumed the right and attempted to decide and pass upon matters not referred to it, and with which it had no authority to deal.

Third. The decision of said alleged Joint Council as to some of the matters passed upon by it if accepted by our Association might compel us to become parties to methods of adjusting trade and labor difficulties and also differences between Labor Unions and Non-Union men, which we are advised would be illegal and involve us in litigation; and further, the acceptance by us of the findings of said alleged Joint Council would commit us to the recognition of certain claims on the part of said organization, as matters of right which we are advised could not be lawfully enforced and their attempted enforcement would make our members liable to suits for damages.

M E Conference.

Rev. W. J. Heath and A. N. Murray will represent the Wollaston M. E. church at the New England conference to be held in Worcester commencing April 8. Much interest is being taken at this time in the membership of this conference on account of the election of 12 delegates to the general conference of the Methodist church to be held in Baltimore in June. A general conference is held only once in four years and all bishops are elected by this conference, which makes the place of delegate much sought after. It is expected Rev. Heath will be returned to the Wollaston charge for another year.

John T. Cain of Standish avenue has accepted a position as foreman with Arthur Cavanagh, contractor, who is building a State road in the Rockport district of Gloucester.

The Sunshine club of St. Chrysostom's church are hustling around selling good photographs of the interior of the church. The rector allows them to have half of the money for their Easter mite boxes.

Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg and the vestry of St. Chrysostom's church have sent Mr. William D. Purdon of Berlin street a letter of hearty thanks and sincere appreciation on helping to reduce the church mortgage. Mr. Purdon gave his services as sexton for one year which ended last month which means thirty-six stars added to the mortgage chart.

Reservoir park on Third hill is an attractive spot at this season. The view on a clear day takes in a wide and varied panorama. The trees are not yet in leaf, and one is surprised to see the number of houses at the north between Beale street and the Neponset river.

The nineteenth semi-annual convention of the Norfolk County association of King's Daughters and Sons, will be held at Sharon on Thursday. Trains leave South station, Boston, at 10.15 and 12.15. character. Then there is always the fine musicale by the Music committee, and Prof. Edward Howard Griggs is to lecture on Oct. 28th. It is hoped to secure another well known lecturer, and Mrs. Mary L. Wade of Wollaston for an afternoon talk, which together with the afternoons arranged by the several chairmen of committee should result in a fine program for 1908-09.

Mrs. N. S. Hunting(club treasurer has all the membership tickets ready for next year and is prepared to receive dues at any time, especially at the next two club meetings. The new cards are buff.

An extra meeting is to be held on Tuesday afternoon April 21st at three o'clock under the auspices of the Arts and Crafts committee. It will be for club members and the public is also cordially invited. Mrs. Overholser of Wellesley Hills, chairman of the Arts and Crafts department of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's clubs will give a half hour's talk and there will be music followed by an exhibit of the work of eight clubs including the well known one at Deerfield. It is said to be an unusually fine exhibit of arts and crafts and it will not be exhibited anywhere else south of Boston this season, so that lovers of beautiful handiwork should not fail to attend. The club house will be open until half past five so that all may be accommodated.

ADAMS CHAPTER, D. R.

A most delightful spring meeting of Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution was held on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Wilson, Granite street, with Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Francis F. Brewer and Mrs. Antoinette Paige as the hostesses.

During the business meeting the treasurer reported a balance of about one hundred dollars in the treasury. Announcement was made of an entertainment to be given by the Junior society in aid of the restoration of the Paul Revere house in Boston. The entertainment will be a play by the young people to be given on Tuesday evening, April 21st, at Colonial hall. Members of Adams chapter will assist by buying tickets and attending the play. The state society is to hold a whist party at hotel Tuileries, Boston, on Wednesday afternoon, April 22d, also for the Paul Revere house fund. Members are invited to attend. To still further help along in the work members of Adams chapter are asked each to contribute fifty cents or more toward the fund for the Paul Revere room, the money to be handed to the chapter treasurer at the May meeting.

The May meeting will be at the John Adams birthplace with Braintree members, Mrs. Dyer, Mrs. Wilde and Mrs. Sprague as hostesses. In June, Randolph members will be the hostesses and also there will be an outing at Hingham when the chapter will be entertained by Mrs. Stoddard. The chapter is having a very pleasant series of meetings.

After the business meeting an interesting paper was read by Mrs. Paige on "A Story of the 19th of April," which was timely as we are approaching that holiday. Mrs. George H. Brown gave an amusing recitation "Lapse of Memory" and the program closed with the singing of America.

During the social hour the hostesses served refreshments from a daintily appointed table in the dining room. The ices and fruit punch were refreshing, the day being warm and springlike.

NEIGHBORING.

Old Colong club of Weymouth is to give "Little Lord Fauntleroy" at Foggs opera house, South Weymouth, on Saturday afternoon, April 11th, for the benefit of its charity fund.

The Abington Woman's club held its tenth anniversary on March 27th with a social reception followed by a banquet and addresses.

Saturday's Boston Transcript has this to say of federated clubs and general federation. "There are a few common fundamental social needs today. The whole country could be moved from its social head to its social feet if all the clubs at the same time took one only of the matters in hand and set the elaborate machinery of the federation in motion for one definite end. It is time that some of the florid programmes were cut out and expert advice and competent instruction given to all women in the country where they could take advantage of them. To this end the propaganda now flowing in many directions should be turned into the one channel, for a time at least, until the returning flood of blessedness demonstrates that one thorough reform has been accomplished."

Several neighboring clubs are having their annual children's parties for the children of club members.

The Philergians of Braintree had a chafing dish demonstration lecture by Miss Maria Daniels on Tuesday afternoon under the auspices of the Woman's Exchange. Owing to the interest in and the nature of the entertainment it had to be limited to club members who each came prepared with spoon, fork and napkin.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

A return bowling match between the engine draftsmen and the draftsmen of the hull department was rolled Monday evening at the Weymouth Landing bowling alleys, under the leadership of Captains' MacDonald and Kennedy. The hull draftsmen were the victors by 90 pins:

Great Britain is seriously considering the purchase of the two large warships which are at the present time under construction in England for the navy of Brazil. This is due to the fact that Great Britain is in fear that Brazil might dispose of them to some other European power.

In an address before the House during the debate on the naval bill. Capt. Hobson of Santiago and Merrimac fame, representative from Alabama, pointed out the fact that the national defences of the country on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts are entirely inadequate, and in view of Japan's ambitions to control the Pacific, he urges the buildings of 10 battleships a year for many years to come.

The buyers of steel through-out the country are making demands on the United States steel corporation for a reduction of 10 per cent in the price of finished steel products.

The torpedo boat destroyers now at Magdalena bay will have about three weeks of gun and torpedo practice and will then proceed to San Francisco in time to participate in the grand naval review of May 8. It has been practically decided by the Navy Department that the destroyers will remain on the Pacific coast and will not accompany the battleship fleet on its world cruise.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM P. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

A CRUISER IN PURSUIT

Gloucester Skipper Set Sail In Defiance of Court

ALLEGED MISUSE OF TRAWLS

Three Captains Tried to Get Away, but Two Were Driven Back by Storm and Paid Fines--Fishery Dispute Referred to Washington

St. Johns, April 8.—At the request of the magistrate at Channel, a port near Cape Ray, the colonial government has ordered the cruiser Fiona to apprehend the Gloucester, Mass., schooner Arethusa and place Captain Morrisey under arrest on a charge of violating the Newfoundland laws, which prohibit the use of bull polls (trawls) within three miles of the shore.

Captain Spinney of the schooner Athlete and Captain Rudolph of the schooner Harry W. Nickerson, both of Gloucester, were convicted of the same offense and fined $100 each, which they paid under protest. The dispute has been referred to the authorities at Washington by Congressman Gardner of the Gloucester district and will probably be carried to London.

Last Saturday morning Captains Spinney, Rudolph and Morrisey were summoned by legal process to appear before the magistrate at Channel on Monday on charges of violating the colonial laws. A writ was served on each captain, but all three ignored the document and, setting sail, proceeded to sea Monday forenoon in defiance of the court's order.

During the afternoon the Harry A. Nickerson and Athlete encountered a heavy ice field which extended for miles. The ice was driven in along the coast before a high wind and endangered the two vessels, which were forced to return to port. The Arethusa, which got away first, was able to get clear of the ice pack and escape.

When the Nickerson and Athlete dropped anchor in the harbor the magistrate issued warrants for the arrest of Captains Spinney and Rudolph. Both commanders submitted to arrest and were placed on trial. They were convicted of a breach of the fishery regulations and ordered to pay a fine of $100 each or spend two months in jail. The fines were paid under protest.

The magistrate issued a warrant for the arrest of the captain of the Arethusa and communicated with the colonial authorities, who ordered the cruiser Fiona to search for the defaulting vessel.

The Americans claim the right to fish with trawls on the southwestern coast under the treaty of 1818, which allows them to fish upon equal terms with Newfoundland fishermen. They also claim that they are protected by the temporary agreement known as the modus vivendi until all the matters in dispute are adjudicated by The Hague tribunal, to which the fisheries question will shortly be submitted.

The colonial laws forbid the use of the trawl even by Newfoundland fishermen, and the government holds that Americans are bound by these regulations, which, it says, do not conflict with the treaty of 1818.

Unless some understanding is reached within a short time the Newfoundland fishing season will be a poor one for them, the American captains claim, as they are equipped for trawl fishing only, and the fleet is awaiting the outcome of the representations made at Washington.

Not Intended to Deceive

New York, April 8.—The case of Joseph Gordoni, charged with counterfeiting notes of the Haytien republic, is in the hands of the jury in the United States circuit court. The defense of Gordoni was that the alleged counterfeits were not intended to deceive any one, but are issued in good faith to serve as the money of the provisional government in Hayti.

Sealers Lose Two Steamers

St. Johns, April 8.—The steamer Adventure has arrived in port and reports an unfavorable season for the sealing fleet. Steamers Panther and Walrus were crushed in the ice and went to the bottom. The crews escaped on the ice floes and were eventually able to reach other vessels of the fleet. Four other steamers were badly crushed by ice floes.

For Protection of Children

Washington, April 8.—The house of representatives unanimously adopted an amendment to the District of Columbia appropriation bill requiring that all outside doors of school buildings shall open outward and that they shall be kept unlocked every school day for one-half hour before and after school hours.

To Suppress Immoral Shows

Paris, April 8.—The public prosecutor has opened an investigation into the alleged practice of certain theatres permitting immoral exhibitions on the stage. In connection with the investigation the managers of the theatres, as well as a number of women, will be summoned to appear before the court.

Indiana Congressman Dead

Washington, April 8.—Official announcement of the death of Congressman Brick of Indiana was made in the house of representatives and resolutions of regret were adopted. The senate also was notified of the death of Brick.

BAY STATE HAS FIRST AMERICAN LINEN MILL.

Mechanical and Chemical Process That Saves Time, Labor and Money Puts New Industry on Profit Making Basis.

With the announcement that a process of linen making has been discovered adaptable to American conditions keen interest is manifested in the details of the process by which it is expected that a large part of the $20,000,000 now spent abroad for linens will be kept at home. The Mudge process controlled by the Oxford Linen mills, whose first plant is being equipped at North Brookfield, Mass., is as follows:

The flax straw is fed into a machine that removes the seed and passes the straw to a set of fluted rollers, which, after breaking it, discharge it into revolving drums equipped with scutching and hackling machinery. In these drums the shive, or woody portion, is loosened from the fiber, which is now ready, after a final cleaning, to be passed into the tubs for the secret chemical treatment that removes the gums and bleaches the fiber to a pure white.

This process takes only a day to produce results that require sixteen weeks by European methods. Not only is a vast amount of time and labor saved, but the new process yields almost twice as much fiber as the old from a given amount of straw, saves the seed, converts the shive into paper pulp and employs the tow for the making of "savoil," a linen machinery waste, and "oxolint," an absorbent linen for surgical purposes.

With the great economies made possible by this process and using a raw material that costs only a third as much as cotton in the making of fabrics that sell for much higher prices than cottons command, large profits are counted upon in this first successful effort at linen making in the United States, for the process has passed the experimental stage.

EQUAL PAY FOR WOMEN?

The Single Woman's Demand For the Married Man's Wage a New Feature of the Suffrage Movement.

With the admission by the New York women school teachers that they are not working merely for an increase of pay, but for equalization of salaries as between men and women, it is realized that the equal pay movement has become an important feature of the woman suffrage propaganda. This demand for equal pay by the teachers has been taken up by the aggressive suffragettes, who see in it an opportunity to enlist indifferent sisters in the cause.

Nothing less than the equalization of the salaries of single women up to the wage of the married men will satisfy the teachers. That 80 per cent of men teachers are the heads of families and that 60 per cent are aiding other relatives in no way abates the women's demands, nor are they dismayed by the fact that for well settled economic reasons stenographers and other women workers receive less pay than men.

What a concession to the equal pay demand would entail in the way of increased taxation is shown by the fact that it would cost New York city alone over $9,000,000 a year to equalize its school teachers' salaries.

This is only one of the factors that led the superintendent of New York schools to state that "neither by any received economic theory nor by the analogy of any practice in any walk of life can it be regarded as sound policy to determine the salaries of the great majority (women) of the teaching force by the salaries paid to a comparatively few (men) who are employed for special purposes."

Free School Luncheons.

In England the problem of feeding insufficiently nourished school children has become so acute that many municipalities have been compelled to supply free breakfasts at least to thousands of public school pupils. The Salvation Army abandoned its work in this field for awhile, but the need was so great that it had to take it up again, and last year it supplied over 350,000 breakfasts to children at a charge of half a cent each.

In looking for a food that would be cheap and at the same time sufficiently nourishing the experts employed recommended a breakfast consisting of a currant roll weighing six ounces and a mug of cocoa. This decision confirms the conclusions of some of the world's leading diet specialists that currants are one of the most nourishing and wholesome and at the same time one of the cheapest food products.

Dried Currant Pie.

Some day when you wish a new dessert try a dried currant pie. This recipe was originated by a woman one year when fresh fruit was scarce. It proved a great success and was so delicious that it was called for many times afterward. Carefully pick over and wash one pound of currants. When the currants are ready for use pour cold water over them and drain it off just before putting them into a pan lined with pie crust. Cover the fruit with bits of currant, grape or apple jelly, cover the top crust and place in the oven. The heat in baking makes the currants swell up like fresh fruit and melts the jelly into a delicious fruit sirup, thus making a very agreeable substitute for a fresh fruit pie.

Although the plans of the new telegraph company, the Telepost, are being carried on without an undue amount of publicity that might increase the opposition of the old companies, good progress is being made, and the establishment between several of the larger cities of wire service at 25 cents for twenty-five words may be looked for at an early day.

FIRST SMOKELESS TUNNEL.

Turbine Fans Supply Half a Million Feet of Pure Air Every Minute In Passageway to Washington's New Union Terminal.

Pennsylvania railroad engineers have shown how tunnels may be so perfectly ventilated that passengers suffer no annoyance whatever from smoke and gas. This has been accomplished in the tunnel through which trains pass to and from the new Washington Union terminal.

The problem was to devise some means by which the smoke from one train could be whisked out of the tunnel before another train entered. As the underground passageway to the terminal is in almost constant use, this called for some means of supplying an enormous volume of fresh air in quick time.

Along both sides of the tunnel are located ventilating ducts with cross air passages under the tracks. About 300 feet from the terminal portal of the tunnel two "Sirocco" turbine fans were installed to force air through these ducts at the rate of 260,000 cubic feet of air per minute. These fans blow the air out of the tunnel at the rate of over half a million cubic feet of air per minute, and in less time than it takes to tell it fresh air has been supplied through the entire length of the tunnel.

The fans are of peculiar design. They are only 120 inches in diameter, with sixty-four narrow, slightly cupped blades running parallel around the circumference. It is these blades that deliver 260,000 cubic feet of air for every 145 revolutions of the fan drum. Engineers say that here is found the solution of the problem of subway ventilation in cities and also of the problem of mine ventilation, for which the "Sirocco" fans are now almost exclusively used in the deep, gaseous coal workings of Great Britain.

TO IMPROVE THE SCHOOLS.

Cannot Do This by Equalizing Salaries, President Eliot Says.

President Eliot of Harvard has made this statement on the subject of teachers' salaries and other educational issues:

"I have not been able to see the expediency of paying women teachers and men teachers in the public schools equal salaries. The women are, as a rule, only temporary teachers; the men, on the other hand, ought to be and usually are candidates for permanent employment during their lives. If these two sets of employees are paid the same salaries, either the women will get too much or the men will get too little.

"I should suppose that the effect would be to diminish the number of men who would go into the service, and that it would also postpone the adoption of the most needed improvement in the public schools—namely, the reduction of the number of pupils placed in charge of one teacher.

"Perhaps the action of the labor unions concerning the wages of women would be suggestive in this case. They insist, you know, that in any given trade—as the compositor's, for example—women must be paid the same wages as men. Their object is not to benefit women, but to keep them out of the trade, and it is to be observed that they usually attain their object by this device—at least in some measure."

MILITARY EXPENSES

Hale Sounds a Warning Against Increasing the Army

IT WOULD COST $200,000,000

Declares Philippines a "Pestilence" and Says Navy Is Now and Will Continue to Be Useless--Burkett Professes to See a Rap at Taft

Washington, April 8.—A warning against increasing expenditures for the military establishment of the United States was sounded in the senate by Senator Hale, chairman of the committee on naval affairs, and his alarm was taken up and repeated by other senators.

The discussion was based on a signed article printed in the Washington Post yesterday, saying in effect that Secretary Taft favored a reorganization and an enlargement of the army that would bring it up to 125,000 men. The immediate occasion for Hale's speech was the passage on Monday of the army appropriation bill, carrying nearly $100,000,000, and he used it as showing the tendency of the times.

Moving to reconsider the vote by which the army bill was passed, Hale said senafors did not realize that 70 percent of the revenues of the government were today expended for what has been termed the needs of present, past and future wars.

"What is going on," continued Hale, "without senators or the country being aware of it, are the enormous increases of the military establishment to the prejudice of all other appropriations and claims. We cannot get consideration of other bills because, as everybody knows, the revenues are waning and we are likely to be confronted with a deficit, and in not many months ahead we shall be found spending more money than comes into the treasury from the existing and ordinary sources. We cannot pass the omnibus appropriation bill, which has thousands of items that ought to be paid as much as a note at hand; we are to have no river and harbor bill because it is a peace bill; we can have no public building bill because the military expenses are mounting so rapidly that we cannot afford these items that are for peace."

Mr. Hale recapitulated appreprialions for military purposes and said every item represented great appropriations for the future. There had, he said, been an increase of $2,000,000 in the appropriations for the army and about the same increase for the navy. This, he said, did not represent the "enormous increase" for the navy, as only two instead of four battleships are provided for.

"When you build up a navy," he declared, "you only begin to spend money. You commit the country to repairs and maintenance, making necessary an increasing appropriation, and if you go on we are going to have a naval appropriation in three or four years that will amount to $150,000,000 annually."

Mr. Hale declared that the general staff of the army say the army must be doubled. "That," he said, "is the opinion of the chief of the general staff, who is the head of the operating part of the army, with authority during the prolonged, frequent and necessary absences of the secretary of war.

"If this program is carried out," continued Hale, "we will have an army costing $200,000,000, and nothing short of that will satisfy the army. I hope, moreover, the secretary of war shall not be called upon to make this enormous expenditure. I still have on my mind a residium of hope that that alleged program for army enlargement is not to be carried out and that the secretary of war has not a program for such expenditures of funds drawn from all the people. I wish to call attention to this distinctive feature of the enormous increases of the military establishment of the government to the prejudice and hurt of appropriations that are peaceful."

Mr. Hale spoke of the Philippines as a "pestilence" which had contributed to the policy of military expansion. He said the general staff would not now abandon any "rickety post" because of this proposed military expansion. The army looked upon the government's revenues as a great reservoir for appropriations and the naval officers, with a few exceptions, had the same idea. The navy today, he said, was the second navy of the world, and yet naval men wanted it doubled. The navy was now and would continue to be useless.

Senator Clapp said he was in favor of stopping the enlargement of the military establishments at once and hoped the motion to reconsider would be pressed. Mr. Aldrich hoped that the utterances of Hale would have the careful attention of members of the majority.

Mr. Hale said a conflict between this country and another was practically impossible. He would have no more soldiers, and he characterized war talk as "sheer nonsense."

Senator Hale left the chamber and Senator Frye, in his colleague's behalf, moved to lay the motion to reconsider on the table.

Senator Burkett criticised this action as an unwarranted method of "criticising a man now attracting attention in this country. He charged the Maine senator with failing to exercise good faith in presenting his motion to reconsider, which was, he said, shown by the motion of his colleague to with draw.

"It comes with poor grace for the senator to criticise the secretary for something for which he was not responsible," said Burkett, "and if the motion was made in good faith, it should not be withdrawn. If the bill was wrong, the senator from Maine owes it to himself and to this body to persist in his motion to secure reconsideration and show its defects. The withdrawal of the motion shows that he never intended to press it, but that he meant merely to make it an opportunity to get up here and lambaste the secretary."

Senator Frye defended his colleague against the charges of bad faith, but refused to recede, and the motion to lay on the table was carried.

Contrary to Will of Cubans

Havana, April 8.—The newspaper Cuba, commenting on the removal of the provincial governors and the appointment of Americans to take their places, says that under the first intervention the Americans, having control of all the electoral machinery, put President Palma into office, contrary to the will of the Cubans, who desired Maso as president. The paper states that the Americans have now taken possession of the governments and councils for the purpose of putting Zayas into office.

Sick Men From Battleship Fleet

San Francisco, April 8.—Direct from Magdalena bay, the hospital ship Relief, in command of Surgeon Stokes, completed her first voyage when she dropped anchor in this harbor. Stokes said: "We have at present a number of patients who are to be operated on for appendicitis, others suffering from tuberculosis, and fifteen insane. In all 150 sick from the battleship fleet are now being cared for on board, and, if necessary, we could accommodate fifty more."

Arizona Has Earthquakes

Douglas, Ariz., April 8.—Three distinct earthquake shocks were felt here. The first was at 9 o'clock at night, the second two hours later and the third and most severe at 3 o'clock in the morning. The district between Fronteoras and Douglas appeared to be the centre of the earthquake. Houses in Douglas trembled noticeably during the last shock and the town of Fronteeras was thrown into a panic. No damage is known to have been done by the quake.

Bankers Oppose Aldrich Bill

New York, April 8.—A circular letter to all the members of the clearing house section of the American Bankers' association was sent out from here by President Blum of the clearing house section of the association, urging opposition to the Aldrich bill. The letter declares it to be the consensus of opinion among bankers that the bill will work a serious injury to the business interests of the country.

Wiping Out Illinois Saloons

Chicago, April 8.—In the local option elections held in eighty-four counties of Illinois, outside of the city of Chicago, twenty counties became absolutely anti-saloon territory and approximately 1500, or about one-half of the total number of saloons in that territory, were voted out of business. Most of the larger cities of the state, however, voted in favor of licensing saloons.

Eminent Scientist Visiting Us

New York, April 8.—Dr. Robert Koch, the bacteriologist who achieved world-fame through the discovery of the tubercle bacillus, has arrived here from Germany. After more than thirty years of arduous and continuous scientific labor, he is to take a year's rest. His coming to America has created much interest in scientific circles of this country.

Checking Use of Opium

Pekin, April 8.—The throne has issued an edict appropriating 90,000 taels for the creation of an opium board at Pekin. It shall be the duty of this board to examine all metropolitan officials in the matter of their use of this drug; to certify all men who do not smoke opium, and to arraign all those who do indulge in the practice.

Not to Marry at Present

New York, April 8.—Mme. Anna Gould authorizes the statement to be made that she has no intention of marrying at present and that she is not now engaged to anyone. Prince de Sagan, it is said, may defer his departure for Europe for a week or so. He announced recently that he would sail for France on April 9.

Deal Involving $45,000,000

San Francisco, April 8.—A deal which will practically place all the gas, electric light and power companies of central and northern California in a company to be controlled by Standard Oil interests, has recently been consummated here and in the east. The deal amounts to $45,000,000 in the aggregate.

Baker Case Is Shelved

Hackensack, N. J., April 8.—In charging the grand jury here, Justice Parker did not refer in any way to the death of Walter F. Baker last fall in Bogota, N. J., which was the subject recently of a coroner's inquest. It is believed the case will not be presented to the grand jury.

EASTER SUNDAY IN ROME.

Magnificent Ceremonies In St. Peter's Commemorate the Risen Christ.

In Rome, as might be expected, Easter Sunday is celebrated with elaborate ceremonies. The day is ushered in by the firing of cannon from the castle of St. Angelo, and about 7 o'clock carriages with ladies and gentlemen are beginning to pour toward St. Peter's. That magnificent basilica is richly decorated for the occasion, the altars are freshly ornamented, and the lights around the tomb and figure of St. Peter are blazing after their temporary extinction.

According to usage, the pope officiates this day at mass in St. Peter's, and he does so with every imposing accessory that can be devised. From a hall in the adjoining palace of the Vatican he is borne into the church under circumstances of the utmost splendor. Seated in his sedia gestatoria, his vestments blaze with gold. On his head he wears the tiara, a tall, round gilded cap representing a triple crown, which is understood to signify spiritual power, temporal power and the union of both. Beside him are borne the flabelli, or large fans, composed of ostrich feathers, in which are set the eye-like parts of peacocks' feathers, to signify the eyes of vigilance of the church. Over him is borne a silk canopy richly fringed. After officiating at mass at the high altar the pope is, with the same ceremony and to the sound of music, borne back through the crowded church to the balcony over the central doorway. There, rising from his chair of state and environed by his principal officers, he pronounces a benediction, with indulgence and absolution. This is the most imposing of all the ceremonies at Rome at this season. On the evening of Easter Sunday the dome and other exterior parts of St. Peter's are beautifully illuminated with lamps.—New York Herald.

BAD BUNNY'S PUNISHMENT.

African Legend Tells Why the Rabbit Has a Hare Lip.

The rabbit, which, as every one knows, lays beautiful colored candy eggs at Eastertime, does not do so in America alone, but all over the world. Bunny has been associated with Easter, the resurrection and spring feasts from time immemorial.

Several well authenticated stories are extant to account for this. One hails from South Africa. According to African legend, many centuries old, the rabbit once lived in the moon. You can see his shape on its surface still if you use enough imagination. The moon once said to the rabbit:

"Our lord the moon sends you word that even as I die each month and rise again, so shall they die and rise again."

Now, bunny was possessed of a somewhat weird sense of humor, combined with a leaning toward atheism, so he gave the earth folk the following message:

"Our lord the moon sends you word that even as he shall die and shall not rise again, so shall you die and rise no more."

The rabbit went back to the moon after delivering this word of hope and repeated the joke. The moon, in anger at such disobedience, snatched up a hatchet and cut the rabbit's lip open. Bunny fled in fear to the earth and hid in a hole. He has been timid ever since.

If you doubt the truth of this veracious tale, examine the mouth of the next rabbit you see. You will find his upper lip is still split. Isn't that good enough evidence for any one?—New York World.

NOVEL EASTER FAVORS.

Rabbits and Chickens Easily Made Out of Peanuts.

Do you want to make peanut rabbits or chicks for Easter greetings? If so, it is very easily done.

For the rabbit's ears and tail use little pointed bits of paper, which can be glued on. Sometimes you will find the rabbit already has a tail, and you will not need to supply one. The rabbit will stand up very easily after you have given him his feet because there are four of them. The feet and the eyes are made just as they are made for peanut people.

The little chicks need only feet and eyes, but as they have only two feet they will not stand as easily as the rabbits. To make them stand take a small square piece of a visiting card an inch or less square, and when you give the chick his feet push them up first through the card. This will give him a firm foundation to stand upon, and you can either send him this way, or, if you wish, you can paste this piece of card to a larger piece or to the bottom of the box you send him in. If you are careful you can put him inside of an eggshell.—New York Herald.

"Easter Hare Pie Scramble."

In Leicestershire, in England, there is a custom still in vogue called "the Easter hare pie scramble." So many years ago that everybody has forgotten it a certain plat of ground was given to the rector of the parish perpetually on the condition that each year on Easter Monday he and his successors should contribute two hare or rabbit pies and a quantity of ale to be scrambled for by the villagers. As late as 1892 the "hare pie scramble" was observed as a great festival, all the villagers turning out to march in procession behind the men carrying the hare pies, cut up into fragments. When they reached a spot known traditionally as "Hare Pie bank" the sacks were emptied and all the crowd engaged in a fight or scramble for the pies, which were supposed to guarantee good luck to the possessor for the ensuing year.—Denver Republican.

THE PRESS TO BLAME

Mexico Suspicious of Intentions of United States

FEARS LOSS OF TERRITORY

Unauthorized Newspaper Stories Create a Situation Which American Officials Are Unable to Cope With, Though Chargeable to the Nation

Washington, April 6.—While the official relations between the United States and Mexico were never more cordial than now, and while there is nothing in the material interests or desires of either republic which conflicts in the slightest degree with those of the other, officials of the American state department have become suddenly aware of the existence and rapid growth of a public sentiment in Mexico of distrust and suspicion of Americans and American intentions respecting territory.

This condition is made more exasperating, but none the less harmful, coming from the fact that it is entirely groundless and, the officials declare, has for its basis nothing but irresponsible newspaper gossip and criticism. Such, for instance, is a lurid description of Magdalena bay, where the fleet has just concluded target practice, with a hint that the location and natural surroundings are ideal for a naval rendezvous and target practice station, and that place ought to be bought from Mexico.

Just such comments as these, printed without official inspiration or sanction, and wholly misrepresenting actual conditions, are believed by American officials to be entirely responsible for the distrust rapidly developing in Mexico.

The officials also assert that southern and western papers have indulged in what is regarded here as unnecessary criticism relating to the extradition of criminals, have magnified labor troubles in Mexico, and have made irritating comments regarding the control of the Colorado river as a boundary stream.

The serious effect of this accumulation of adverse observations has been brought home to the American administration in frank statements from the Mexican authorities. Added to this, and perhaps the only thing which is complained of officially by Mexico, is the seeming security and asylum afforded here to persons regarded in Mexico as conspirators and revolutionary agitators. The representation is made that such persons come to the United States and inaugurate a propaganda against Mexico, print literature for circulation there and undertake the preliminary steps toward revolution.

In answer to this complaint, the state department has pointed out that it was vigorous and successful in putting a stop to the operation to just such a plot recently attempted in St. Louis, and that it is ready to repeat the operation whenever a similar situation may exist.

Knowing the cordiality and sincerity of official relations between the two governments, the lack of desire for any portion of Mexican territory, and the vigilance which is being exercised against harboring Mexican revolutionary propagandists, American officials feel the more keenly their lack of ability to cope with a situation entirely out of official control, but the none the less chargeable to the nation.

Attention is called to the fact that the comment that has been indulged in by the American press has found its way into and has been repeated in Mexico, where the construction placed on it has engendered a feeling decidedly hurtful. If allowed to continue, most disastrous results are predicted. Officials cognizant of the situation are entirely devoid of any authority to remedy the evil, and are endeavoring as best they may to counteract the harmful effect of what has been thoughtlessly said by a presentation of its utter lack of responsibility.

Debt Ridden Church Strikes Oil

Butler, Pa., April 6.—No services could be held in the Reformed church at Petersville yesterday because the congregation, having gone into oil prospecting, struck a gusher Saturday night on the church lot, fifty feet from the building. The flow came in so strong that a large force had to be kept at work to care for the oil. The lucky strike is a godsend to the struggling congregation, which is in debt for its property.

Ready to Vote on Prohibition

Chicago, April 6.—Pastors of churches throughout Illinois generally united yesterday in advocating the abolition of the saloon, which question will be decided by 1200 townships tomorrow. In practically every township in the state the liquor interests held mass meetings at which speakers set forth the disadvantages of prohibition.

Property could be divided to good advantage; the demand for houses in this neighborhood exceeding the supply. One-half the purchase price can remain on mortgage at 5 per cent.

RIGHT ON HANCOCK STREET,

10 Room House and Stable with 17,374 feet of land which could be improved and has a prospective value which far exceeds the present price. Near to station and electric cars. Mortgage arranged to suit.

11 ROOM HOUSE,

Independence Avenue, with good lot of land. House has all improvements. A part can be let to small family. Near station and electrics, and will be sold low. A good business, proposition.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Juvenile session of the district court tomorrow.

The street railway is filling in the land east of its car barn for an addition.

Watering carts would not be out of place today, as the streets are very dusty.

The class of 1909 of Woodward Institute will give a reception on Friday evening, May 1.

The John Hancock school beat the Willard school on Tuesday in their first game of the base ball series, by a score of one to nothing.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Carman will hold a dance in Electa hall, Johnson building, Thursday evening, April 9.

The special car for the members of the Granite City club tonight will be attached to the train leaving Quincy at 4.59. The dinner will be served at 6 o'clock sharp at the Quincy House.

At the meeting of Unity club of Wollaston on Friday evening at the Unitarian vestry, Miss Elizabeth Thayer will be in charge of the program. Papers will be given by Mrs. George G. Saville and Miss Thayer reviewing recent pictures and clever advertising and Mr. O. A. Toetfert will speak on modern views in photography and arts and crafts movement.

TODAY'S COURT.

Edward Clancey was sentenced to three months in the house of correction for larceny from George W. Rackham at Quincy. Sentence suspended.

BUY SQUANTUM PARK
SHORE LOTS NOW.

While they can be had at less than one-half the value. Buy for speculation, or for home comfort, where the blue waves joyfully bring new life and refresh our tired minds from the buzzing cities. Thousands of dollars will be spent the coming season in street improvements; houses will grow up like mushrooms, in this beautiful park, from where you can have a clear view of the wide ocean, as well as Boston harbor, Winthrop, Revere, Blue Hills, Quincy, Hull and Nantasket. If you wish to have an ideal home, here is YOUR opportunity. Only 20 minutes ride from South Station. Speculators can never invest their money in a safer and a more profitable business than to buy one or more lots in SQUANTUM PARK. Office on the land. Take Squantum car from Neponset Bridge or Atlantic Station.

They Took the Advice.

Last week the Daily Ledger suggested "Advertise now houses to let," and "Advertise now real estate for sale." Many took the advice and crowded the "Classified Ad columns" in the Saturday eight-page Daily Ledger.

AS A RESULT

Many of these Houses have been rented, and some estates have been sold.

Remonstrate Against Action of Council

A meeting of the Citizens' Association was held Wednesday evening at the rooms of the Granite Manufacturers Association.

Notice was given that Admiral Chadwick would address the members at their next meeting on "The Newport System of City Government."

The report of the Committee on Homes for Wage Earners was taken up and debated at length. Plans were presented by the Committee for houses to rent from $9 to $15 per month, and it is hoped that arrangements can be made to have some of these houses built.

F. F. Crane presented a report from the Committee on Waterways, and it was voted to have the Association join the National Harbors and Rivers Congress.

The balance of the evening was devoted to discussion of the grade crossing matters. The following vote was passed by the Association:

Voted—That the Citizens' Association remonstrate against the action of the City Council in refusing to make an appropriation for obtaining expert advice on the abolition of grade crossings, and urges them to make a sufficient appropriation for that purpose.

Voted—That a copy of this remonstrance be sent to the City Council and to the Mayor of Quincy.

Divorce Court.

Rosa D'Eramo was granted a decree nisi on Wednesday in the Norfolk Superior court in her petition for divorce from Louis D'Eramo of Quincy, for cruel and abusive treatment.

Nettie A. Moir of Quincy obtained a decree nisi against William H. Moir for desertion.

Edith G. Butler of South Braintree was granted a decree nisi from Robert V. Butler for cruel and abusive treatment. She was given the right to resume her maiden name, Edith G. Hodges.

There were jury waived hearings on eight other cases from other parts of Norfolk county.

PROSPEROUS CHURCH

First Presbyterian Well Organized And Gaining Along All Lines

The annual meeting of the First Presbyterian Church of Water street, was held Wednesday evening. Though the night was stormy a large gathering assembled to hear of the work of the various organizations during the twelve months gone. The meeting was a most enthusiastic one, and as society after society reported, it was found that in every case the work had been progressive and well sustained. The treasurer of each society reported all bills and obligations met and a balance in the treasury.

Notwithstanding the hard times of the past six months, the treasurer of the corporation reported that all obligations had been met and there remained a balance of some $40 in his hands. The receipts for the year were over $4000.

The pastor reported that there had been sent from the various societies to the missionary enterprises of the denomination $403. There had been dispensed in the way of charity in the city amongst the poor, $378.

The reports of the Sunday School showed a prosperous condition. The number on the roll, not including the cradle roll, is 429. There is a home department with 161 members.

The Y. P. S. C. E. has grown during the past year, and has now a membership of 63, the largest in the East Norfolk district. This organization contributed some $45 to home and foreign missions during the year, and aided to the extent of $120 in home church affairs.

The Ladies' Aid society reported their receipts for the year to have been $725.

The Manse committee reported that the enterprise which the church had committed to them four years ago, when they were appointed to look into the matter of providing a suitable home for their pastor, had been accomplished. The house has been built and paid for, and by a unanimous vote of the congregation given to the pastor for his free use last October.

The Brotherhood reported a membership of 60. The Ladies' Missionary society had raised $115 for home and foreign missions, and work among the colored people in the South.

A very interesting feature of the meeting was the report of the "Go-To-Church-Band," which is an organization of children whose object is to get the children to attend the preaching services on Sundays. There are over 100 members of this band. Their attendance at church is registered on a card which is punched as they enter the church. That this plan is successful is attested by the fact that during the past year, 9122 attendances have been registered, 5148 at the morning services, and 3974 at the evening. The average number of children at the morning service for the year, rain or shine, has been 99, and at the evening, 75. In other words, the average number of children attending the morning and evening services for the year, per Sabbath, has been 175. Five—Annie Jenkins, William Michael, Melvin Chalmers, Charles Bishop and Walter Morrison—have attended every service, morning and evening during the past two years.

The pastor reported for the session, that during the past twelve months 45 have been added to the communicant roll of the church, 21 of these on confession of their faith, and 24 by letter, making the total number of members now to be in the neighborhood of 400.

Before adjourning the question of repairing the present church edifice or of building a new church was raised, but as the hour was late it was decided to leave this matter for future consideration. The congregation has outgrown its present quarters and there is need that the old be enlarged, or that a more modern and commodious structure be erected.

Altogether it was a most encouraging meeting and the members of the First Presbyterian church take up the work of another year with courage and great hopefulness.

ANNUAL BANQUET

Granite City Club Dines At Popular Boston Hotel

The annual dinner and theatre party of the Granite City club was held Wednesday evening. The affair was attended by upwards of seventy of the members and their friends. The evening proved to be one of pleasure for all, from the time they left their homes until the 11.27 train reached Quincy.

The majority of the party left Quincy in a special car attached to the 4.59 train. The members, whose business is in Boston, joining them at the hotel. On arriving in Boston a special car was in waiting to take them to the Quincy House, landing the party at the door.

The march to the dining hall was at 6 o'clock and was led by President Garey, who escorted Mayor Shea. The tables were laid in the form of a horse shoe, emblematical of good luck.

The menu which was a pleasing one was as follows:

Bluepoints on Deep Shell
Mock Turtle Soup
Sliced Tomatoes Celery Olives
Boiled Chicken Halibut, Lobster Sauce
Hollandaise Potatoes
Roast Vermont Turkey, Cranberry Sauce
Hubbard Squash String Beans
Mashed Potatoes
Roman Punch.
Chicken Croquettes with Peas
Fried Bananas, glace au Rhum
Frozen pudding Harlequin Ice Cream
Assorted Cake
American and Roquefort Cheese
Toasted Crackers
Black Coffee

During the dinner Monk's orchestra rendered all the popular airs. As the catchy music was played the club vocalists got in their work, and the hall resounded with musical notes. The musical program included "The merry widow," "Harrigan," "Afraid to come home in the dark," "Much obliged to you," "Dreaming," "Every little bit added to what you have makes a little bit more," and many others of a like character.

There was no speech making, the members confining themselves strictly to the business of eating.

The dinner was over at 7.30, and fifteen minutes later the party were again aboard the special car bound for the Hippodrome. Seats had been reserved for the party in the arena and they filled three rows of seats.

Leaving the Hippodrome the special car was found in waiting, and shortly before 11 o'clock they were being whisked toward the South Terminal, when they arrived in season to take the 11.27 train for home, and in time for the West Quincy people to take the branch train.

There was a special car attached to the 11.27 train and the party arrived in Quincy safe and sound shortly before midnight, most of the party probably reaching their homes before the thunder shower.

Airth—Hall.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Hall at South Quincy was the scene of a quiet wedding Wednesday evening, when Miss Jennie Hall, the sister of Mr. Hall, was married to Mr. Charles Airth of Stansted Junc. Quebec, by Rev. A. M. Thompson. The bride was becomingly dressed in white silk poplin with val lace. A reception was held immediately after the ceremony to members and friends of the family. The bride and groom will leave on April 10 for their future home in Canada. Hearty congratulations are extended.

Inquest Finding In Auto Case

Judge Avery rendered his finding this morning on the death of Daniel Delaney, who was killed by an automobile on Granite avenue, East Milton, on the night of Dec. 25. The findings say that on the night in question an automobile owned and driven by Harry L. Rice was coming along Granite avenue at a rate of speed not exceeding 15 miles an hour. The streets were muddy and that Mr. Delaney crossed in front of the machine. That he probably slipped and fell against one of the lamps, was pushed along twenty feet, fell, and was crushed by a part of the steering gear. In conclusion, the finding says: The evidence failed to indicate that anyone was guilty of criminal negligence.

Ladies Night of Makaria Fraternity

The third annual ladies' night of the Makaria Fraternity on Wednesday evening in Bethany chapel was the most successful in the history of this wideawake organization of christian young men, about 160 being present. For the first hour games were the attraction under the direction of "Vare" King, and he put so much life into these that he enthused everyone, and a jolly good time resulted. Mr. King always has something new in the way of games, but there were some of the popular old ones like jogalong, and how do you like your neighbor?

During the games there was music by the Makaria Fraternity orchestra of seven pieces which was much appreciated.

An entertainment followed which included pleasing piano selections by Herman Ulrich, popular readings by Mrs. Isabelle Davis, sweet solos by Miss Abbie Penley and humorous readings by Vare King.

When the young people were invited to the basement, they found the dining room very attractive in the Makaria colors red and blue enlivened with white. The large M K flag was on the wall at the rear of the head table; the electric lights were enclosed in large white lanterns labelled M K; there were festoons of red and blue, and on the head table three large fruit stands prettily decorated. Delicious ices, rich home-made cake, and fruit were served. The orchestra furnished music during refreshments.

At the head table were: President Miller, Rev. and Mrs. E. N. Hardy, Mrs. Charles Lingley of Grafton, Mr. and Mrs. Ganzel, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gay, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brooks, Vare King, Mrs. W. E. Burke, Charles Howard, Miss Murray, George Thomas, Miss Thomas, F. F. Prescott, and Young Davis, the base ball mascot.

President Miller reviewed the history of the association in brief, stating that sixteen years ago it started as a Bible school class with Miss Zayma King (now Mrs. W. E. Burke) as teacher. After eight years Vare King became teacher. Today the average attendance of the class at Bible school was 40, and numbered 53 on Sunday last.

Other speakers were Vare King; Harry Brooks, who presented Rev. E. E. Craig a framed picture of Christ; Rev. E. E. Craig, who thanked the association for the gift, and extended congratulations; Rev. Dr. Hardy, the pastor, who looked with pride on the organization; and Charles Howard who spoke for the base ball team.

President Miller extended an invitation to all young men to join the Makaria Association.

Missing Woman Found.

The young woman missing from East Braintree since Sunday was located on Wednesday at North Weymouth. She walked into the home of John Bittencourt on North street and was detained until the police were notified. It is reported that she spent Sunday night on board the steamer Cape Cod at the Baker basin at Quincy Point, and the balance of the time in a swamp or low land, probably near Rose Cliff. Her parents had been searching for her in Weymouth that day, and immediately responded when notified she had been located. They dislike very much the publicity, saying the young woman has had similar experiences since the earthquake at San Francisco, being in that city at the time.

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

Even the hurdy gurdies are "Afraid to go home in the dark."

A good smart shower last night, with thunder and lightning.

Quincy will be well represented by delegates and prominent Republicans at the ante-convention gathering at the American House, Boston, this evening. State convention tomorrow.

The first day of the anniversary celebration of the Quincy Point church comes tomorrow, with a meeting at 3 P. M., banquet at 6, and evening meeting at 7.45.

Less than fifty more days of school before the summer vacation. The graduation of the Grammar schools will be held Friday, June 19, and of the High school Wednesday, June 24.

Why didn't you give me a chance to get into the real estate edition of the Daily Ledger on Wednesday? This was the complaint of a real estate man today. Every day is a good day, my friends. There is always a chance.

Go early to get good seats. The Seniors of the Quincy High school will present amateur dramatics tomorrow evening in the new school hall, entitled "A forced friendship" and "Just for fun." A pleasing entertainment is assured.

A SEVEN-MILE SWIM

Crew of Two of Water Boat Were Rescued Barely In Time

Portland, Me., April 9.—With a heavy sea running and their steamer disabled, the captain and engineer of the water tug Ben Hur jumped overboard with only one life preserver between them and swam seven miles to the life saving station.

Steamer Ben Hur, Albert Perry and Engineer Thompson, left Portland harbor with water for the lightship, about fourteen miles from this city. When they had been out but a short time the tubes blew out of the boiler and with no steam and night settling it began to look desperate for the two men.

A northwest storm began shortly after, and for hours the boat was not only at the mercy of the terrible sea that was running, but directly in the path of navigation.

After five hours of being tossed about and storm-beaten and expecting any minute to go to the bottom, Perry decided to swim ashore. Guided by the fog whistle at the Two Lights, Cape Elizabeth, the men swam as best they could, impeded as they were by heavy clothing and blinding snow.

How long they were in the water they do not know, but when they had given up all hope, and were about to relinquish their hold upon the life preserver, they were seen and picked by the night patrol of the Cape Elizabeth life saving station.

Big Majority For No License

Boston, April 9.—With 17 of the 33 cities in the state voting against the sale of liquor by a total majority of 13,375 and a majority of 4614 in the towns, the no-license vote throughout Massachusetts exxceeded that for license by 17,989, according to the returns compiled by the Massachusetts No-License league. This, they declare, is, with the exception of the year 1893, the greatest sweep in the history of the state. Twenty-three towns changed from license to no-license, while 13 towns made the opposite shift in their vote.

Quarrymen Holding Out

Barre, Vt., April 9.—The negotiations for the settlement of the strike of quarrymen, cutters and other workmen employed by the granite manufacturers here and in Montpelier, received a temporary setback when the quarrymen in mass meeting declined to accept the report of the conference committee. The quarrymen objected to the part of the committee's report fixing the rate of wages at 26 cents an hour. Their demand is for 28 cents an hour.

Cannot Sell Mining Property

Portland, Me., April 9.—A temporary injunction restraining E. W. Burt and J. L. Rice of Boston from disposing of the property of the Columbus Gold Mining company was granted in the supreme court. The company is said to have property valued at $50,000 in Montana. The plaintiff avers that Burt and Rice have conspired to acquire the mining property for much less than its real value.

Killed Friend by Accident

Boston, April 9.—John R. Raymond, 17 years old, and John T. Sylvester, aged 18, were practicing speed in drawing revolvers at Raymond's home, when Raymond's revolver was discharged and Sylvester was instantly killed, the bullet passing through his heart. Raymond was arrested on a charge of manslaughter, but the shooting is believed to have been wholly accidental.

Word From Explorer Rice

Boston, April 9.—Dr. Hamilton Rice, the wealthy Boston physician, who, it was feared, had met death in his explorations into the interior of South America, has cabled from Manaos, a city on the Amazon, that he has arrived safe and is well. The cablegram contains nothing more than this. Manaos is a city of 6000 inhabitants, about 1000 miles from the mouth of the Amazon.

Convicted of Manslaughter

Providence, April 9.—Antonio Rozzo, aged 23, charged with the murder by stabbing to death of Matalo De Marco, was found guilty by the jury of manslaughter. The stabbing occurred in front of a saloon. Rozzo claimed that he stabbed De Marco in self-defense. Sentence was deferred.

Evans Will Not Rejoin Fleet

Paso Robles, Cal., April 9.—Rear Admiral Evans will not rejoin the battleship fleet or participate in any of the functions and celebrations in the ports of Southern California. He is beginning to realize that he cannot recover his health in a few days or weeks. Although his improvement has been marked, he is still far from strong.

Magoon's Offer to Cubans

Havana, April 9.—Governor Magoon has addressed a letter to the Cubans offering to replace the army officers whom he appointed a few days ago as governors of the various provinces, if the three political parties can unite in agreeing on suitable men for the positions. The newspapers express various opinions on this offer.

Fishermen Far From Home

New York, April 9.—The twenty-eight shipwrecked fishermen from the French schooner Campagne, who were picked up in mid-ocean, were brought to this city by steamer Volturno, from Rotterdam and Halifax. The shipwrecked men will be sent to France by the French consul.

Havana Feels Business Depression

Havana, April 9.—The earnings of the United Railways of Havana for the month of March were $55,000 less than for the same month in 1907. The falling off for the fiscal year is nearly $1,000,000 as compared with the fiscal year 1906-7.

Making Converts of Gotham Skeptics

New York, April 8. The excitement incident to the remarkable work that is being acomplished in this city by L. T. Cooper, of Dayton, Ohio, continues unabated. Many cases of deafness of years' standing have been relieved by the young man, and his fame has spread far and wide. As a result his headquarters are crowded daily with people coming from all parts of the city and from the surrounding towns within a radius of twenty-five miles.

There seems to be considerable skepticism at first as to Cooper's ability to do as he claimed, but this feeling is rapidly giving way to one of confidence, in view of the fact that the work he has so far done has been clearly proven to be genuine.

In addition to his work in relieving deafness, Cooper advanced the theory that stomach trouble was the foundation of nine out of ten diseases, and claimed to have a preparation that would restore the stomach to working order ,and thus get rid of such troubles as rheumatism and affections of the kidneys and liver in about two weeks' time.

This statement seems to have been borne out by the remarkable results obtained through the use ofthis preparation, and now all Gotham is apparently mad over the young man.

His headquarters resemble a veritable stampede. Thousands of people are visiting him each day, and the druggists are selling his medicines in enormous quantities.

What seems to make Cooper still more popular in the fact that he practices extensive charitable work, and has already dispensed a small fortune among the poor of this city.

How long the tremendous interest in Cooper will last it is hard to estimate. At present there seems to be no sign of a let-up. Physicians claim it to be a fad that will die out as soon as Cooper leaves.

In justice to him, however, it must be said that he already seems to have accomplished a great deal for the sick of this city with his preparations.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

There will be a hotly contested football game in the New England league series between the Fore Rivers and the Fall River Rovers on Saturday afternoon, at the grounds of the Fore River team on Washington street. As the admission fee of 15 cents is very small, it is expected that a large crowd will be in attendance when the game is called at 3 o'clock. This game is to be the tit bit of the season, as the winners will in all probability win the $100 medals at stake. Each player in the winning team of this present series of the New England league will receive a championship medal.

The many friends of Officer Larkin, who in the shipyard number into the hundreds, were very sorry to loose such a faithful and efficient officer from the shipyard district by the shake-up in the police department.

Before the submarine investigating committee Tuesday it developed that a Robert G. Skerrett of New York, a naval architect in the employ of the Lake company had obtained many secrets in an under-handed way through a leak in the Navy department, and had freely discussed these secrets with represetatives of foreign governments. It also developed that this man Skerrett came into possession of the Navy department secrets through no other channel than the Lake Submarine Torpedo Boat Co.

Mr. Skerrett was asked by the chairman of the committee if it was not his duty as an American to help the government to preserve as confidential whatever the government wished to have so considered, and if his attitude had not been highly dishonorable and disloyal. Mr. Skerrett said the secrets in question were sent him and he discussed them with naval officers at the Hague, while he was there in the interest of the Lake company, and that the information was forwarded to him from Washington by way of the Lake Boat Company's office in Bridgeport, Conn.

SENATORS IN TIE VOTE

Failure of New York Assembly to Prohibit Race Track Gambling

Albany, April 9.—The vote of Senator Cassidy, a Republican, created a tie vote of 25 to 25 and defeated, for the time at least, the two Agnew-Hart bills embodying the recommendation of Governor Hughes that the legal protection be abolished which, since 1895, has protected public gambling at race tracks, while it is a felony elsewhere in the state.

Later Lieutenant Governor Chanler, in the chair, cast his vote to break the tie upon a parliamentary motion, which, but for him, would have resulted in killing the bills for the balance of the session, and saved the killing for another vote at the discretion of their introducer, Senator Agnew, at any time when the order of business permits him to call up the matter. The importance of this bit of subsidiary procedure may prove to be very great, and if by any means the friends of the bills can gain a vote from the opposition and at the same time hold the twenty-five they had yesterday, they might yet pass the bills and send them to the governor.

Governor Hughes made no secret of his disappointment at the result of the day's battle. He would not intimate what measures he would adopt in the premises, but that he regards the matter as far from settled he made clear by the following statement given out from the executive chamber:

"It is impossible to believe that the people will permit the plain mandate of the constitution to be ignored. The contest has not ended. It has only begun. It will continue until the will of the people has been obeyed."

Planning American Intervention

Port au Prince, April 9.—There is reason to believe that measures are now being taken in this city to force, if possible, the intervention of the United States. At the moment apparent tranquility prevails, but there is good authority for the statement that hostility against the present Haytien government is growing more intense. It is stated that advantage will be taken of the presence in the harbor of the United States warships to make an armed demonstration, not in the expectation of overthrowing the government, but in the hope of precipitating a landing of marines, and, following this, American intervention.

Jail Delivery Interrupted

Murphysboro, Ills., April 9.—Miss Zora Hanson, 17 years old, daughter of Sheriff Hanson, interrupted a midnight jail delivery during a storm. She was awakened by the storm and, glancing out of the window, saw prisoners climbing down past her window. She seized the feet of a man and held on while she screamed to her parents. Her mother went to her assistance and held on to the prisoner while Sheriff Hanson rushed into the cell room and prevented seven other prisoners from leaving. Six prisoners had already escaped through a window from which a bar had been pried.

Actors Win Damage Suit

New York, April 9.—Henrietta L. Morrison and her husband, Charles P. Morrison, were engaged by Hurtig & Seamon, proprietors of a burlesque theatre, for a season in a musical comedy, under a contract which provided that they were to receive $8950. At the end of three months the manager directed Mrs. Morrison to make certain changes in her costume which would necessitate her appearance on the stage in tights. When she refused, she and her husband were discharged. They brought suit for a breach of contract and a jury awarded them damages of $4700.

American Boys the Smartest

London, April 9.—Former President Preece of the Institution of Civil Engineers, in a paper which he read before the Royal Society of Arts on "Technical Education In America," said it would be difficult, if not impossible, to make a just comparison of the methods of technical education in England and America. The American boy, he said, possesses the energy and smartness of a new race; the European boy mentally is two years behind him.

Great Majority of "Dry" Townships

Chicago, April 9.—As a result of Tuesday's local option elections, 36 counties out of 102 in the state are now entirely anti-saloon territory, while 19 others are anti-saloon with the exception of one township in each. The total number of "dry" townships in the state, including those which held elections last November, is now 1028, and the total of "wet" townships is 323.

DAY TO LAST A WEEK

Power to Declare a "Recess" Given to Speaker Cannon

NO ROLLCALL IS NECESSARY

Republicans Willing to Assume Responsibility Charged to Them by Democrats, Who Claim Credit For Forcing Important Measures

Washington, April 9.—After a debate which consumed a large part of the day, in which the leaders on both sides participated and in which there were many sharp passages, though in perfect good nature, the house passed a new rule enabling the speaker to declare a recess at 5 o'clock every day for the remainder of the week without a rollcall. Notwithstanding the rigid rules already in force the Democrats forced five rollcalls on the rule.

The debate was participated in by Messrs. De Armond and Williams, Democrats, and Messrs. Sherman and Dalzell on behalf of the Republicans.

Beginning the controversy, De Armond said that evidently it had become offensive to the Republicans to have a rollcall, notwithstanding the requirement of the Constitution. He attributed their reluctance to a desire not to be found on record. He admitted that adoption of the rule would demonstrate that the Republicans could pass any bill they desired to pass, but urged that it would place squarely upon them the responsibility for all failures to legislate.

Mr. Sherman responded that the Republicans were entirely willing to assume entire responsibility. "The Republican party," he said, "has always been ready to accept full responsibility when it has been in power, which is in striking contrast to the Democratic party, which, even when it is in power, has lacked the courage to carry out its declared policies."

Mr. Williams claimed credit for forcing the Republican majority to a vote on many important measures. He made reply to Dalzell's recent speech, which had been calculated, he said, to cause him to grow angry, but he did not propose to lose his temper simply because the Republican leaders did not want him and the president to legislate. "But," he said, "we will legislate; we shall get a free wood pulp bill, but we won't get a campaign fund publicity bill because of the near approach of the elections, when you want contributions."

Mr. Dalzell denounced the filibuster as "not only unseemly, but unjustifiable and indefensible." He declared no limitation had been put upon debate and asserted that business is further advanced now than at the same period in the last congress.

As if to divest the Democrats of every vestige of any powers left to them, Dalzell subsequently had passed another bill which the Republicans put through by sheer force of number. The rule provided that hereafter that a general appropriation bill that has been considered and amended in committee of the whole house shall be put on its passage under suspension of the rules, and that a majority and not a two-thirds vote shall carry the bill through. The object of the rule is to prevent the Democrats securing rollcalls on motions for separate votes on amendments.

LaFollette Far In the Lead

Milwaukee, April 9.—Delegates-at-large who will support Robert M. La Follette for the presidential nomination at the Republican national convention were chosen at the state primary election by a large majority over the slate put up by the supporters of William H. Taft. While returns are not complete, enough have been received to ensure the election of La Follette delegates from nine out of the eleven districts.

Roy Cannot Be Extradited

Paris, April 9.—The ministry of justice, to which the foreign office turned over the request of the United States for the extradition of Paul L. Roy, a Frenchman who has been accused by his wife of killing her brother at Newington, N. H., has decided that no law exists in this country under which Roy can be given over to the American authorities, but it rules that Roy can be prosecuted in France.

Presidential Veto Sustained

Washington, April 9.—By a vote of 257 to 0, the house sustained President Roosevelt's veto of the bill transferring Commander White from the retired to the active list of the navy. The president gave as a reason for his action that the transfer would not be for the best interests of the service.

Asquith Is Made Premier

Biarritz, April 9.—Herbert H. Asquith is receiving many congratulations on his appointment as premier. It is understood that some details as to the personnel of the cabinet remain to be settled in London. Asquith declined to divulge anything with regard to the new cabinet.

Train Kills Five Women

Chicago, April 9.—Five women, while returning from a funeral, were killed when the carriage in which they were riding was struck by an electric train at Maywood, a suburb. The driver of the carriage was probably fatally injured.

GOT SEVEN YEARS EACH

Four Thieving Policemen Feel the Heavy Hand of the Law

Philadelphia, April 9.—Quick justice was meted out here to the four policemen who were arrested on Saturday on robbing stores and warehouses on their beats in the wholesale district. Indicted early in the day on charges of "entering without breaking, with intent to commit a felony," "larceny," "receiving stolen goods," and "conspiracy," the accused pleaded guilty and were sentenced to serve seven years each in the Eastern penitentiary. The convicted policemen are J. M. Straub, John Kelly, C. M. Luckenbill and A. R. Sithens.

With them in the conspiracy to rob were Harry Rothenberger, aged 19, whose arrest on a charge of larceny unearthed the plot, and W. A. Frost, a plumber, in whose place the men divided the proceeds of the robberies. Frost and Rothenberger, who were indicted with the policemen, pleaded guilty and were also sentenced, Frost being sent to the penitentiary for four years, while Rothenberger was committed to a reformatory.

The four policemen were scathingly denounced in court when Judge Kinsey imposed sentence.

Not an Illegal Combination

Sandusky, O., April 9.—The onus of being an illegal combination in restraint of trade was removed from the National Association of Master Plumbers of the United States, when an order of dismissal at the cost of the plaintiffs was entered in the suit instituted by Attorney General Monnett on behalf of Hoehlein & Bertsch, plumbers. This firm sought $25,000 damages, averring that the object of the association was the restriction of manufacture of plumbing supplies as well as the advancing of prices.

Boston-Key West Inland Waterway

Washington, April 9.—The project of a great inland waterway from Boston to Key West, Fla., was again discussed with President Roosevelt, members of the house from states interested being present. About a week ago a bill was introduced in the house providing for a survey for an inland waterway from Boston to Beaufort, N. C. It is now proposed to amend the bill recently introduced so as to provide for a survey of the entire Atlantic coast as far as Key West.

For Inspection of Barges

Washington, April 9.—During the past two years sixty large sea-going barges have been lost, involving the deaths of 49 persons out of 192 on board. There are only about 450 sea-going barges, and the exceptional mortality rate has led to the introduction of a bill in congress for the inspection of such barges, many of which are old ships and barks, dismantled, laden with coal and towed in long strings along the coast.

Escaped From Prison to See Family

New York, April 9.—Having enjoyed a taste of liberty, Joseph Lasala, a convict, is back in Sing Sing, from which place he escaped Monday night. Heavily manacled, Lasala accepted the situation philosophically, declaring that he went back to prison with better grace now that the purpose of his escape, a visit to his wife and infant son, had been accomplished. Lasala was captured here last evening.

Fatal Automobile Crash

Yonkers, N. Y., April 9.—Edward J. Downing, proprietor of the Hotel Abbottsford of Irvington, was instantly killed in a collision between his automobile and a trolley car. The automobile was being driven by George Kelleher, a chauffeur, who disappeared after the accident. The motorman was cut and bruised. The front platform of the car was demolished and the automobile was wrecked.

Smuggled Woman Over Border

Winnipeg, Man., April 9.—Herbert Wright, a Canadian customs officer at Emerson, Man., was arrested at Noyes, Minn., at the point of a revolver by a United States immigration officer on a charge of having smuggled into the United States May French, who had been denied admission to the United States two weeks ago. He was taken to Crookston for trial.

Two Soldiers Assassinated

Lisbon, April 9.—Two soldiers were assassinated yesterday while standing near the Necessidades palace. The soldiers, who wore civilian clothes, were shot and killed by a small group of men who suddenly sprang at them with drawn revolvers. By the time the police arrived on the scene the assassins had made their escape.

Order Regarding Postage Stamps

Washington, April 9.—Postmaster General Meyer has issued an order permitting the perforation of United States postage stamps for the purpose of identification only. It is aimed to protect large users of stamps against theft. Certain restrictions as to size and method of perforation are contained in the order.

Old Insurance Official Resigns

New York, April 9.—Alexander E. Orr, who for many years was a director and for a time president of the New York Life Insurance company, retired as a director of the company at the annual meeting. Orr gave his advanced age and the state of his health as the reason for his withdrawal.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The Democratic Committee will meet Friday evening to arrange for the caucuses.

A supper of the Bethany Brotherhood is announced for next Monday evening.

Work is being rushed this week on the foundation for the new Coddington school building.

The Junior Endeavorers of Bethany church will have a candy sale on Saturday from 2 to 5.

Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Craig are moving to Martha's Vineyard, where Mr. Craig has accepted a pastorate.

A festival by the Mission Band will be held in the vestry of the Wollaston Congregational church, Saturday, April 25.

Rev. A. E. Lysell will close his pastorate at the Swedish Baptist church on Easter Sunday, having resigned to accept a pastorate at Comfort, Minn.

Mr. and Mrs. Wa'' F. Carman will hold a dance in Electa hall, Johnson building, Thursday evening, April 9.

The Women's Auxiliary of Y. M. C. A. will hold an all-day sewing meeting Friday from ten to four at Association hall. This meeting is to prepare for a birthday party to be given later, and a large attendance is desired. Business meeting at three o'clock.

The Shakespeare club will have a treat April 23, when they will attend the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and listen to an instructive address amid most eloquent environment. The club are putting the finishing touches to their musicale which will be given privately the latter part of April.

Vetoes Expected From the Mayor

The general impression seems to prevail that Mayor Shea will veto some of the liquor transportation permits granted by the City Council on Monday night. These permits after being approved by the Mayor must go back to the City Council for signatures. The law provides that they must be signed by the Mayor and a majority of the Council.

Should the Mayor veto any of the permits granted, and the permit passed over the veto, the Mayor would still be in command of the situation by refusing to sign the permit, and without his signature it would be useless.

Atlantic Pastorate.

Last Sunday, Rev. B. F. Crawford closed his year's pastorate with the Atlantic M. E. church. He has gone to Worcester to attend the annual conference now in session in that city. During the year, Rev. Mr. Crawford has received into the church, either in full membership or on probation, thirty-four persons, and all departments of church work show an increasing interest, especially in the Sunday school, the membership of which has nearly doubled. It was the desire of the quarterly conference to have Mr. Crawford return another year.

Singing Evangelist At Swedish Baptist

Rev. A. J. Freeman, the famous blind evangelist, and his daughter Esther are crowding the Swedish Baptist church every evening. They are assisted by the pastor, Rev. A. E. Lysell and Rev. Ernest A. Logerstrom, the State evangelist. Mr. Freeman has been the leader of several great revivals especially in the West. About the first of January he came to New England and has been equally successful at Worcester and other places.

Miss Freeman plays the mandolin and sings, and father and daughter also sing duetts. The addresses are short.

The meetings opened on Tuesday evening and will be continued every evening until further notice. On Sunday at 3.30 a union service will be held at the Swedish Congregational church on Garfield street at 3.30, being assisted by the pastor of the church.

Mr. Freeman became blind about thirteen years ago, and became despondent. But for his conversion to Christ he would have taken his own life.

Appropriation Bill For New Navy

The Washington dispatch of April 8 to the Herald says: The naval appropriation bill authorizing the construction of two, instead of four, battleships and eight, instead of four, submarine torpedo boats, and carrying a total appropriation of $103,967,518 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1909, was reported to the House today by Chairman Foss of the committee on naval affairs.

Representative Hobson of Alabama submitted a minority report recommending that provision be made in the bill for four- first-class battleships instead of two.

The report shows that there are in course of building seven battleships, four armored cruisers, three scout cruisers, five torpedo boat destroyers, four submarine torpedo boats, two colliers and two sea-going tugs.

The committee recommends the construction of two first class battleships, to cost, exclusive of armor and armament, not exceeding $6,000,000 each; 10 torpedo boat destroyers of the highest speed, and to cost, exclusive of armament, not to exceed $800,000 each; eight submarine torpedo boats, to cost not more than $3,500,000; one sub-surface torpedo boat at a cost not to exceed $400,000, and two small vessels of like type, not to exceed in cost $22,500 each—a total authorization of $23,945,000, which will be increased $7,000,000 by the cost of arming and equipping the two battleships.

The naval construction programs of the other great powers for the coming year are given as follows:

Great Britain—Three battleships of the Dreadnought type, one fast unarmored cruiser, five ocean-going destroyers, 12 first-class torpedo boats, 12 submarines—$39,418,650.

France—Five destroyers, 10 submarines—$18,696,346.

Germany—Two battleships, one armored cruiser, two scout cruisers, 12 destroyers and several submarines—$30,575,860.

Japan—$17,965,793 for construction and repair, including the restoration of Russian warships taken as prizes.

The relative positions of the powers in naval strength is shown to be as follows.

Ships built—Great Britain, United States, France, Germany, Japan, Russia, Italy, Austria.

Ships built and building—Great Britain, France, United States, Germany, Japan, Russia, Italy, Austria.

Poverty Party.

Poverty was displayed to its full extent on Wednesday evening by the fifty or more couples who attended the poverty party held by the Pine Tree Club. The affair was held at Colonial hall, and those present, as far as possible, were gowned to represent poverty. Dancing was the main feature of the evening, and a jolly time they had. Those in charge were Peter F. Carlin, Jed Gleason, Mrs. E. Frank Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Chase and G. M. Brown.

Long-Sought Man Killer Reveals His Identity to Court

CRIME COMMITTED IN 1882

Case of "Rum, Love and Politics" Recalled by Removal of Stigma of Manslaughter Indictment Against Man Whose New Name Is Secret

Kingston, N. Y., April 9.—In some western city, the name of which is scrupulously guarded, lives a prominent and respected citizen from whom the supreme court of New York removed the stigma of an indictment which, returned twenty-six years ago, charged John Taylor with the death of Thomas Murray.

The present home of Taylor and the name under which he has since lived, married and risen to the head of a big mercantile establishment, are known to but three men here and his secret will be kept. Taylor's identity was made known by him to the court after a search for him that had covered two continents and occupied several years had been abandoned.

Throwing himself upon the mercy of the prosecution, Taylor invited an inquiry into his life for the last quarter of a century. This was made and proved so satisfactory that former Supreme Court Justice Clearwater, who, as district attorney, secured the indictment of Taylor, declared that it would be gross injustice to reveal the man's new name.

Justice Howard of Troy, sitting in the supreme court, dismissed the indictment against Taylor yesterday, after it had been shown that all possible witnesses against the defendant were dead. Justice Clearwater, who had personally investigated the case, and present District Attorney Cunningham gave their sanction to the action of the court. Howard, Clearwater and Cunningham only have knowledge of the facts in the case.

Justice Clearwater said: "The killing of Murray was a case of love, rum and politics. Only manslaughter was charged, and this could not be proven now. Taylor has made a new home and won an honored name. He is at the head of a big manufacturing establishment in the west, has a wife and six children, all ignorant of his early misfortune. His character is above reproach and it would be an outrage to revive the story now."

The killing of Murray and the subsequent pursuit of Taylor created great interest. Murray was killed at Port Ewen on an election day upon which there had been nearly a riot at the polls. Taylor and Murray belonged to opposing political parties and loved the same girl. On election day they first quarreled at the polling place and later fought on the street. A brick with which Murray's skull was cracked is still preserved in the office of the district attorney. Several days later Murray died and Taylor fled.

In 1882 a grand jury indicted Taylor for manslaughter in the first degree and a systematic search for him was instituted. Taylor was traced to Pennsylvania, where it was alleged he had allied himself with the Molly Maguires. He escaped from the country, but was located eventually at the home of his mother in Ireland. He was apprehended, but there was some trouble in securing his extradition and he again escaped.

Later Taylor returned to America and settled in the west. He was prosperous, but lived always in the fear that he would be recognized. Recently he determined to clear his name. He communicated with the officials here, who had long before given up hope of his arrest, and yesterday's dismissal of the indictment resulted.

Killed by Wayward Son

New York, April 9.—Because his mother, Susan Carlin, had sent him to various reformatory institutions in which he had been a prisoner for many years, Bernard Carlin shot and instantly killed her at her home in Brooklyn. Young Carlin had just been released from a reformatory to which he had been sentenced for stealing a horse and wagon. He was arrested after the shooting.

Was Jealous of His Bride

New York, April 9.—Without warning or apparent motive, Albert Heiser, a baker, at the dinner table last night, fired two shots at his young bride and then killed himself by sending a bullet through his brain. Mrs. Heiser is not expected to recover. She told the police that her husband had been jealous of her, but could not say why he had attempted to take her life.

Noted Newspaper Man Dead

New York, April 9.—Langdon Smith, newspaper man, war correspondent, poet and one of the best known special writers in New York, died last night of malignant erysipelas at his home in Brooklyn, aged 50 years. More than a score of years ago Smith was known as one of the most expert telegraphers in the world. He was born in Kentucky.

Going After Crippled Steamer

St. Johns, April 9.—Sealing steamer Adventure, which arrived Tuesday night, will sail north again as soon as she can be unloaded, to go in search of the sealer Virginia Lake, which has been reported as leaking very badly and in danger of foundering.

Barre Quarrymen Are Holding Out

According to dispatches the Barre granite manufacturers are fast settling their differences with the union. Following close upon the settlement Monday with the cutters, came a settlement with the engineers and tool sharpeners. The cutters' agreement is for three years, the scale to be $3 per day of eight hours the first year; $3.04 the second year and $3.10 the third year.

The quarrymen have not as yet reached an agreement.

The William A. Bradford Co., well known plumbers, are now located at their new rooms on Chestnut street corner of Maple street, where they are on the street floor and have a fine show room.

Quincy was represented among the students at the tenth anniversary on Tuesday evening of the Evening Law school of the Boston Y. M. C. A. Judge Dunbar presided and George W. Hopkins was toastmaster. Ex-Gov. Bates and others spoke.

TAFT RESOLUTIONS

Ohioan's Adherents Expect to Carry Them In Bay State

BATTLE WILL BE HARD FOUGHT

Chairman Meyer's Address Eulogizes Roosevelt's Administration and Points Out Benefits to the Nation Due to His Efforts

Boston, April 10.—The machinery of the Republican state convention was set in motion today at 10:30 by Chairman Doty of the Republican state committee. Postmaster General Meyer is the presiding officer. The secretaries of the convention are: A. P. Langtry, Henry F. Ripley and Charles S. Groves.

Hoping and praying that Senators Lodge and Crane and Congressman Gardner might come to an understanding, the committee on resolutions wrestled all day long in the committee room at Republican headquarters yesterday and finally adjourned for a final meeting today.

GEORGE VON L. MEYER.

It is announced that Congressman Gardner has determined to stand by his guns, and that some sort of preferential resolutions will have to be presented in order to keep the Gardner men from overrunning the convention and sending both United States senators down to defeat.

Arthur D. Hill of Boston, who was one of those who made a hard fight for the Taft delegation in the Eleventh district, is, as is also Gardner, one of the most enthusiastic Taft men in the state, and declares that he will fight until the last for the resolutions.

Chairman Smith of the resolutions committee is a Crane man. While not opposed to preferential resolutions, it is said that from the first his attitude has been somewhat in discouragement of them.

Congressman Gardner, ill at his aparments at the Touraine, sent word that he was with Taft, first, last and always, and sent word to his father-in-law, Senator Lodge, that he was to have Taft resolutions of instructions introduced, and defied his leader and relative to oppose them. The latter sent back word that he would not oppose the introduction of Taft resolutions.

Determined Policy of Taft Men

The Taft men got together. All pretence of temporizing was cast to the four winds and they settled down for a definite and determined policy. Arthur D. Hill was selected as the man to introduce the resolutions.

They will be seconded by Sidney O. Bigney, who will be selected as a delegate. Taft badges are on almost every breast.

The temper of the convention was reflected in the attitude of the delegates. Unless the resolutions go through the delegates will take matters into their own hands, demand that they have a voice in the matter and insist on voicing their demands through the adoption of the resolutions.

When the smoke of battle has cleared away William H. Taft will probably be endorsed and an ironclad resolution of instruction adopted. Senator Crane, though battling to the end, has seen the last hopeful signs of successful resistance swept away, and feels that defeat is in the air.

Not only is there to be a fierce fight against resolutions, but there will be a bitter contest for alternates to the national convention. The Taft slate includes Senator Schuster of Douglas, Senator Shaw of Manchester, Ralph Gillett of Westfield and Frank E. Dunbar of Lowell. Opposed to this slate are Charles M. W. Williams, who is endorsed by the negro faction antagonistic to Taft, Charles Morse of Marlboro, George H. Wallace of Fitchburg, and Ralph Gillette of Westfield, who is on both sidevbgkqj vbgkqj vbvb vbvb on both slates and assured of election.

The delegates-at-large will be: Senator Lodge, Senator Crane, Ex-Governor Long and Sidney O. Bigney.

Address of Chairman Meyer

In formally opening the convention Chairman Meyer dwelt on the nation's growth and what had been accomplished under Republican administration in the last eleven years. The United States became a world power, he said, largely through the efforts of President Roosevelt as an executive. The present industrial depression and the causes that led to it were referred to, as was the position of the federal government in reference to questions now confronting the country. Continuing Mr. Meyer said:

We have passed through a monetary crisis of late; but we should remember that since the Civil war the country has experienced two great financial crises, namely, in 1873 and in 1893, and in each instance it recovered the lost ground and then advanced to still greater heights of success and prosperity.

The financial disturbances of 1907 are now recognized as due to credit conditions among several nations which were favorable to crises.

In our country distrust was first engendered by the revelations as to the methods employed in some great life insurance companies in New York State, and later was increased by the facts brought to light through the New York public utilities commission. The enormous money requirements of the railroads and industrial enterprises, and the stupendous demand for money caused by the wide-spread extravagance on the part of municipalities and individuals living beyond their means demonstrated the insufficiency of unemployed money.

Yet there are those who blame the administration for their losses and refuse to acknowledge the real causes which brought about the disturbed financial conditions. They prefer to believe their troubles to be due to the struggle between the national administration and certain powerful combinations commonly known as trusts that have managed by illegal methods to drive their competitors to the wall, thus destroying competition, monopolizing trade, and eventually enabling them to demand discriminating rates from railroads by threatening the withdrawal of their products.

It has been the purpose of the president to make these combinations realize, no matter how powerful or prominent those associated with them may be, that the laws must be obeyed by all. As a distinguished senator has said: "The efficacy of all law lies in the integrity and persistence of its enforcement."

Government Supervision of Railroads

The Republican party is unalterably opposed to government ownership of railroads, but it favors government supervision, and I venture to predict that when that is realized, instead of its being a disadvantage to our railroads, it will prove a great benefit. The fact that an issue of bonds or stock has been authorized by the national government will at once insure a ready market for those securities in the most conservative financial circles of Europe—which they have not had heretofore. In other words, government sanction will prove to be as beneficial to those securities as the printed guarantee required by the government under the pure food law has been to our food products.

Who in Massachusetts would dare to take the responsibility for the abolishment of the board of railroad commissioners, or who would now advocate that quasi-public corporations issue securities in our state without supervision? What the national administration is attempting to do is to follow the example of Massachusetts by adopting laws which will give federal supervision in the issuance of bonds and stocks by our railroads doing an interstate business. The president's policies have been maligned, misinterpreted, misrepresented; yet the people believe in him because his actions stand for righteousness.

President Roosevelt in a special message has recommended to congress the importance of making preparation at this session through a committee or commission for gathering at once necessary and practical information looking to the revision of the tariff in order that the subject shall receive efficient and proper consideration by congress.

The laws regarding the prevention of monopolies and the improvement of labor conditions, Mr. Meyer further declared, must be perfected. He said our relations with foreign countries are on a satisfactory footing, and told what had been accomplished in the Philippines under the direction of the secretary of war. The position occupied by the United States among nations was touched upon by Mr. Meyer, who continued:

What Roosevelt Has Done

There was one man only who had the courage and diplomatic tact to step in between Russia and Japan and bring about a peace honorable to both nations, and that man was Theodore Roosevelt. Humanity owes him an everlasting debt of gratitude for saving the lives of hundreds of thousands of men and preventing suffering beyond description. Later the President's influence was felt diplomatically at Algeciras in the conference which brought about an understanding over a question which at one time threatened the peace of Europe.

His altruistic efforts and unceasing energies at home have resulted in far-reaching benefits to the nation, namely:

The revision of our immigration laws with a view to excluding anarchists and persons of low moral tendencies.

The giving of greater powers to the interstate commerce commission.

The increasing of our forest reserves.

The withdrawal from entry of coal lands.

The reclamation of arid lands in the west.

The construction of the Panama canal, with the certainty of completion within a few years—which was augmented by the personal visit of the president.

A splendid upbuilding of our navy guaranteeing peace.

The ordering of our war ships around Cape Horn, establishing their efficiency as a unit.

The establishment of the consular service on a business basis, thus removing it from the domain of partisan politics.

The extension of the rural free delivery from 6,000 routes in 1901 to approximately 39,000 in 1907, accommodating fifteen millions of people.

The enactment of pure food legislation.

The fixing of the hours of labor of employes of railroads engaged in interstate commerce.

But what will go down to history is the stand taken by President Roosevelt for righteousness and respect for the majesty of the law and its enforcement without fear or favor to the individual or corporation; he stands for equal justice to rich man and poor man, big man and small man, wholly without regard to his creed, his birthplace, his color or the section of the country in which he dwells.

Praise For Massachusetts

The Republican Party of the State of Massachusetts points with pride to its long list of distinguished governors and other statesmen who have taken a prominent part in shaping the destinies of the nation—in the supreme court of the United States, in the halls of congress, and in the cabinets of Presidents Grant, Hayes and McKinley.

"At this moment all citizens of Massachusetts, irrespective of party, are full of hope for the recovery of their Governor in his brave and magnificent struggle for life. Throughout his illness he has shown the same characteristics of faith, patience and courage as have marked his honorable career as a public man. I wish to take this occasion to voice the sentiment of this convention by extending sympathy and love not only to our governor but to the wife who watches and cares unceasingly by his bedside.

The laws of this state have often been taken as models for adoption in other states, and lead in the advancement of reform.

Our schools maintain the highest standard. Our credit is of the best, and our bonds, even in London, the financial center of the world, rank with the consols of great nations. During the Civil war Massachusetts did not avail herself of scrip, but paid her interest and principal, not in a depreciated currency, but in gold coin. May she always maintain in all her transactions the high standard which she has invariably shown, especially during the trying years of the Civil war!

Problem For People to Decide

The issue before the people this coming autumn is not whether we shall return to the conditions and methods of a few years ago, of uncontrolled railroads and unrestricted trusts—because there will be and can be no backward step—but whether the problems that confront us shall be worked out by the party of free silver, which means the depreciated dollar; the party that stands for government ownership of railroads and its accompanying evils, with its stupendous increase of Government employes; the party of promises without fulfilment; the party that believes in state jurisdiction rather than in federal; or whether these questions shall be solved by the Republican Party, the party of experience, the party with definite purposes and successful achievement, the party that believes in federal supervision of railroads and securities, and in the enforcement of the laws on the statute books without favor.

This is the problem which the people must decide next November—which party, under the leadership of the parties as they now are, they will choose to work out their salvation; and we appeal to all upright and independent citizens, whatever their party affiliations in the past, to support in the present the one party which has both the announced purpose and the assured power to correct the evils of which there is just complaint, while preserving the good which it would be an even worse evil to destroy.

With an ever-abiding faith in the people in whom Lincoln never failed to believe, I have every confidence that they will choose the party that has been tried and not found wanting; the party that has had experience; the party whose leaders have led the country to the heights of its present success and advancement in government for the people and by the people, and which will continue the policies of righteousness laid down by the president, when he hands over the reins of government to his Republican successor next March.

LATEST!

NON-COMMITTAL

A majority of the delegates are for Taft, but the convention did not commit itself.

The committee on resolutions reported that a resolution had been presented pledging the delegates to Taft, but the majority of the committee agreed that it would be unwise to endorse resolutions in favor of any particular candidate.

While a majority of the committee are for Taft, all agree that it would be unwise to mix in, as it would lead to a contest that would tend to disrupt the party.

For these reasons the majority of the committee join in the decision not to present resolutions favoring anyone.

PLATFORM PLANKS.

The main planks in the platform adopted at the Republican State convention today are:

For the nomination of Gov. Guild as Vice President.

It believes in the principles of protection laid down by the party in 1861.

It urges Congress for legislation in favor of the merchant marine.

CONVENTION NOTES.

At the State convention the Norfolk county ballot committee included Everett C. Bumpus and E. J. Sandberg of Quincy, A. F. Bemis of Brookline, H. E. Britton of Stoughton and Asa P. French of Randolph.

A large representation of the Quincy Republicans were at the American House, Boston, Thursday night for the "night before" convention. Most of the regularly elected delegates from Quincy were there, but also many others, including President William M. Chase and Secretary Langelier of the City Committee, Representative Hultman, ex-Representative Sandberg, ex-Councilman Piper, President Hobbs of the City Council, Postmaster Hammond, Councilmen Ferguson and Teasdale, Charles Owen, George E. Adams, Daniel McGrath, John R. Nelson and many others. It is estimated that fully 1000 assembled, and it was the most enthusiastic gathering of Republicans for years. There was music, parades, cheers for Taft and Bigney, songs, badges, buttons, etc., etc.

WORMS

Unsuspected Worms are the cause of numerous little things that go wrong with children. When a child is sick you rarely think that its sickness is caused by worms, yet worms, either directly or indirectly, are the cause of three quarters of all the ills of childhood. Children, and often-times adults feel out of sorts, are irritable, feel listless and unrefreshed in the morning; suffer with indigestion, have a variable appetite, foul tongue, offensive breath; hard and full belly, with occasional gripings and pains about the navel; eyes heavy, and dull; itching of the nose; short, dry cough; grinding of the teeth; slow fever; and often in children, convulsions—in the majority of cases the cause of all the trouble is worms though you may not suspect their presence.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

a pure vegetable compound, has been the standard household remedy since 1857; it never fails to expel not only worms but all waste matter, leaving the blood rich and pure, the stomach sweet, the bowels regular and the whole system strong and healthy.

The mother who gives her children Dr. True's Elixir regularly is wise, because it not only increases the appetite, acts as a preventative of coughs, cold, fever and worms but gives rugged, robust health.

Sold by all Druggists. Price 35c, 50c and $1.00.

ATTITUDE OF FISHER

Recognizes No Authority Other Than That of China

RUSSIA RECEIVES NOTICE

Our Government In No Way Involved In Negotiations Between Nations Respecting Administration of a Certain Portion of Manchuria

Washington, April 10.—The Russian government has been put in possession of the views of the American state department respecting the administration of that portion of Harbin, Manchuria, controlled by the Chinese Eastern Railway company, and brought into question by the attitude of American Consul General Fisher in maintaining that he is accredited exclusively to China, and consequently unable to recognize any other authority in Harbin.

These views, which have been embodied in a note prepared by Secretary Root and transmitted to St. Petersburg through Baron Rosen, the Russian ambassador, make it clear that the attitude Fisher has maintained is entirely consistent with, and not prejudicial to, the relations which exist between China and the railroad company.

It is stated that no new instructions will go to Fisher as a result of the negotiations between St. Petersburg and Washington, and that the position of the American government remains precisely as heretofore. On this point emphasis is given the statement that the American government is in no way involved nor has it taken any position with respect to the relations between the Chinese and Russian governments, or China and the railroad company. It is conceded that any such questions are primarily and exclusively the subject of negotiation between Russia and China, that the duty of this government is simply to abide by announced results of such negotiations, as it is endeavoring to do in the present instance.

That the question of administering the municipal government of Harbin is one which can be worked out satisfactorily is the opinion of officials here conversant with the many problems involved It is also an expressed opinion of American officials that too great importance has been attached to the negotiations which have been under way recently, especially in view of the expressed belief that nothing has grown out of these negotiations that can in the slightest degree becloud the relations between this government and others concerned.

From other information obtainable it is evident that the basic question is one which will receive ultimate adjustment through negotiations between St. Petersburg and Pekin.

Australia Fears Jap Aggression

London, April 10.—Australia's apprehension of possible aggression by Japan was voiced at the meeting in London of the Australasian Chamber of Commerce by Thomas Price, premier of South Australia. Price emphasized the necessity of Great Britain showing a more tangible proof of her interest in the colonies and expressed his approval in strong terms of the proposal to raise a numerous federal citizen army in Australia.

Murderer Attempted Suicide

Pittsburg, April 10.—W. F. Reiss, proprietor of a meat market at Economy, was found in his home unconscious and apparently dying from a bullet wound, while his wife lay dead in bed, also the victim of a bullet. Reiss confessed, it is alleged, that he fired the two shots during an altercation. A formal charge of murder was placed against him and a policeman is now on guard at his bedside in a hospital.

Orders to Recruiting Officers

Washington, April 10.—To present military service in its most attractive light and in that way encourage enlistments in the army, Chief of Staff Bell has directed that all officers and enlisted men employed in the recruiting service must wear their nicest military apparel, either the dress uniform, or the white uniform, according to the season.

"Quiet Prevails" In Hayti

Washington, April 10.—Mr. Leger, Haytien minister, received a cablegram from his government stating once more that quiet prevails throughout the country. Leger contends that the persistent disquieting news cabled from Port au Prince comes from persons who are trying to pretend that peace does not exist in the country.

Not Interested In Gas Deal

New York, April 10.—At the offices of the Standard Oil company it is denied that Standard Oil interests have obtained control of the Pacific Gas and Electric company. Referring to reports from San Francisco that such a deal had been made, President Archbold of the Standard Oil company made an absolute denial.

Virginia Lake In Port

St. Johns, April 10.—The sealing steamer Virginia Lake, which it was feared would sink before she reached the harbor, arrived here after a severe experience among the ice fields. The steamer had 200 men on board. The steamer Adventure was preparing to go to the Virginia Lake's assistance when she came into port.

Greater New York With Hughes

New York, April 10.—A practically solid Hughes delegation to Chicago was chosen in Greater New York last night. Of the eighteen congressional district conventions, thirteen instructed their delegates to "vote for Governor Hughes for the presidential nomination until he is nominated or his name is withdrawn." Two other delegations were instructed to "work and vote for Hughes." Three conventions failed to instruct their delegates.

Out For Gray's Nomination

Philadelphia, April 10.—The boom of United States Judge George Gray of Delaware for the Democratic presidential nomination was launched in Pennsylvania by the organization of the "George Gray League" at a meeting in this city. An executive committee was named and resolutions were adopted pledging the support of the members to use every honorable means to secure the nomination of Gray at the Denver convention.

Prefers Taft to Hughes

Albany, April 10.—State Committeeman Barnes of this county, in a statement sent by him to the Twenty-Third congressional district Republican convention in acceptance of election as a delegate to the Republican national convention, declared that he would not vote at Chicago for the nomination of Governor Hughes, whose political course he sharply criticised. He made it plain that his preference is for Taft.

Race of Trans-Atlantic Liners

New York, April 10.—After an exciting race of over 2887 miles which began in Queenstown harbor the Teutonic of the White Star line and the Caronia of the Cunard line arrived here, the Teutonic outstripping the Caronia by one hour and twenty-six minutes. The steamships were never more than ten miles apart, leading alternately. The race furnished the passengers with exceptional amusement during the passage.

Democrats Forced a Quorum

Washington, April 10.—Three times yesterday in the house the Democrats caught the Republicans "napping" and forced them to produce a quorum. On one other occasion a vote by tellers disclosed the absence of a quorum, but Speaker Cannon summarily applied the Reed rule and declared a quorum present. Notwithstanding repeated roll-calls, progress was made in the transaction of public business. The house took a recess until today.

Against Union Policy

Cleveland, April 10.—The "open shop" policy will be adhered to by vessel owners in the operation of boats upon the Great Lakes this season. A stand of this character in dealing with organized labor was unanimously agreed to at the annual meeting of the Lake Carriers' association here. The rule will be put into operation at once and will affect upwards of 40,000 men.

Big Schooner Is Doomed

New York, April 10.—Leaking badly and with seven feet of water in her hold, the five-masted schooner George A. Hudson lies high on the beach on the Long Island coast, with slight chance of ever being pulled off. Captain Gardner and his crew of eighteen men are aboard the schooner. The Hudson is of 2258 gross tons and 266 feet long.

An Anti-Anarchist Message

Washington, April 10.—An appeal to congress to prohibit the circulation of anarchistic literature was embodied in a short message sent by President Roosevelt to the Capitol. Together with the message was a report from Attorney General Bonaparte, reviewing the legal aspects of the matter.

Went Into Streets Naked

Fort William, Ont., April 10.—Doukhobors began parading naked on the streets here yesterday. About forty cast off their clothing, but only fifteen reached the streets. The police arrested them, taking them to the station in closed carriages, where they were held for trial.

Millers Want Tariff Change

Chicago, April 10.—A resolution was adopted by members of the Millers' National Federation, in convention here, to petition congress to amend the tariff law so as to admit Canadian wheat billed for foreign countries free of duty. The memorial will be forwarded to Washington.

Receiver For Telephone Company

Newark, N. J., April 10.—Vice Chancellor Howell has appointed Frederick T. Johnson as receiver of the United States Independent Telephone company, which was recently declared insolvent. The company is incorporated for $50,000,000.

TO CAPTURE PALACE

Original Intention of Republican Plotters In Portugal

DETAILS OF THE CONSPIRACY

Premier Became Aware of Its Existence and Immediately Had Some of Leaders Arrested--Assassination of King and Crown Prince Resulted

Paris, April 10.—The Temps publishes a history obtained, it says, from an inside source, of a Republican plot in Portugal, confirming the existence, prior to the assassination of King Carlos and the crown prince, of a veritable revolutionary organization, in which, it says, all the Republican leaders except Bernardino Machado were involved. New and interesting details are given in the article concerning the distribution of arms and bombs, and the support in the army which the revolutionists had obtained.

The plan of the organization was to take the palace by assault, to capture the king and members of the royal family and to hold them as hostages while a coup d'etat was being effected. A blunder on the part of one of the conspirators placed some threads of the plot in the possession of Premier Franco, who immediately dispatched police forces to the headquarters of the plotters, resulting in the arrest of Almeida, Chagahs and a half a dozen other leaders.

This occurred about the middle of January last, when the police surprised the conspirators in session and later found large stores of revolvers, bombs and ammunition. This precipitated matters in Lisbon and a few days later another uprising was checked before it began.

The final coup was planned for Jan. 29, when a provisional government was to be proclaimed, but Franco succeeded in foiling the conspirators. Senors Brava, Costa and Moniz, other leaders in the movement, were trapped in the national library as they were awaiting the signal, and were placed under arrest. Senhor Alpoim alone escaped.

Franco, then believing it to be a question of life or death for him, hurried the minister of justice to Villa Vicosa to obtain the consent of the king to the famous decree giving the premier absolute power to crush the government's enemies. This meant death, banishment or exile for the Republican conspirators.

It was too late for collective action and, according to The Temps, the individual revolutionary group at once decreed the king's assassination, selecting Buica and his confederates to execute the order. After King Manuel's accession the government decided to draw a veil over the murders, as a serious investigation "would compromise too many persons and parties."

The Temps' informant is pessimistic over the future. He says that the sole occupation of the leaders of the Regenerators and Progressists since they resumed power has been to remain quiet and divide the spoils. Now, he adds, having had a division half and half, their electoral machine has turned out sixty-two Regenerators and fifty-nine Progressists.

Cruisers to Leave Port au Prince

Port au Prince, April 10.—The British cruiser Cressy will depart from Port au Prince on Saturday next and will be followed two days later by the German cruiser Bremen. With the departure of the two cruisers only the American warships, the cruiser Des Moines and the gunboats Marietta and Paducah, will be left on guard.

Senate Passes Liability Bill

Washington, April 10.—The employer's liability bill recently passed by the house of representatives was passed by the senate without amendment, so that it is ready to go to the president for his approval. The scope of the bill is limited to common carriage by railroad.

Two Women Diamond Robbers

Salt Lake City, April 10.—The jewelry store of Boyd Park was robbed by two women of a tray of diamonds and other precious stones, valued at $60,000. The robbery was committed while the store was full of customers. No arrests have been made.

Error In Counting License Vote

Lincoln, Neb., April 10.—After long consultation members of the excise board declared that the anti-prohibition forces carried the city by a majority of 229 and that an error was made in the first count, making it appear that the "drys" had won.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The German government will soon begin the erection at Brunsbuettel, at the entrance of the Kiel canal, of what is designed to become a great docking and repair establishment for warships.

Colonel William L. De Lacey, a prominent lawyer of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., committed suicide by inhaling illuminating gas. He had served in the Civil war.

Joseph H. Taylor, frontier author, died at Washburn, N. D., of heart failure. He was among the first white men to take up his abode in North Dakota.

Robert Hunter, the Socialist writer and speaker, was thrown from his horse while riding at Darien, Conn., and received a dislocated shoulder.

DEED OF INSANE MAN

Believed to Have Set Fire Which Killed Wife, Son and Self

Boston, April 10.—After investigation the state police have agreed with the Belmont police that the fire in that town, March 26, when the whole Blomquist family was burned to death and their home destroyed, was deliberately set by Ernest W. Blomquist, the father. He is known to have been insane for several months before the fire.

Blomquist's wife, Charlotte, and his son, Lewis, 10 years old, died with him. According to the police theory Blomquist, after his wife and son had retired for the night, went stealthily about the house, sprinkling oil in every room from the family oil can. This was done even on the beds where his wife and son slept.

Then he is said to have lighted a match and set fire to the oil-saturated curtains of the room where his wife lay asleep.

Sacrificed Life For a Cat

Boston, April 10.—Mrs. Catherine C. Tucker, a lover of cats and for more than twenty-five years matron of a feline hospital, lost her life last night Her favorite cat, Bobbie, upset a lamp, and in an effort to save the cat from harm Mrs. Tucker received burns from which she died. Two weeks ago Mrs. Tucker was obliged by old age to send away the 100 cats in her hospital and she retained only "Bobbie," which she declared she would care for until her death. Both lost their lives by the fire.

Offer to the Unemployed

Providence, April 10.—With a view to aiding in the relief of the large number of persons in Rhode Island who at present are unemployed, Anthony Corcoran, a local real estate dealer, has offered the free use of vacant lots to all persons who are willing to raise garden truck on them this year. Each person who expresses a desire to plant seeds and care for the vegetables as they grow will be assigned one of these lots.

To Seek Clues In Newfoundland

Boston, April 10.—In the absence of Chief of Police Urquhart of Arlington, who has started for St. Johns, there are no developments in the mystery of the death of Annie Mullins, the Cambridge domestic. Urquhart is bound for Newfoundland to question her relatives and also to interview a sailor, who is said to have left Boston for St. Johns shortly after the discovery of the crime.

Full Recovery Will Be Slow

Boston, April 10.—The condition of Governor Guild has shown such favorable progress during the present week that his relatives and immediate friends look for his recovery. They admit, however, that it will be quite a long while before the governor can be as active as before his illness.

Policeman Got Bullet In Neck

Philadelphia, April 10.—Thomas A. Gordon, a policeman, went into the store of Henry Fiedman to exchange a revolver. Mrs. Fiedman waited upon him. She says that while examining a revolver he pulled the trigger of the weapon, which was discharged, the bullet striking Gordon in the neck. He staggered to the street, where, Samuel Berman says, he exclaimed: "She shot me." Gordon died in a short time. Fiedman, his wife and Berman were all arrested, pending an investigation.

King Warding Off Influenza

London, April 10.—The king's absence during the cabinet crisis has provoked such comment and criticism, as well as suspicion, that there may be some underlying reason connected with the king's health, that a semi-official explanation was issued last night to the effect that his visit to Biarritz was undertaken in conformity with the opinion of his medical advisers, owing to repeated attacks of influenza to which the king has been subject during the spring for a number of years past.

De Sagen Tired of America

New York, April 10.—Prince Helie de Sagan dined in public with Mme. Anna Gould last night for the first time since his arrival in America in the restaurant of the St. Regis. After the dinner the prince went to the Tyler Morse apartments, where he spent the evening with Mrs. Morse and Mme. Gould. The prince said that he intended to leave very soon and hoped that he would never see America again.

Deaths Instead of Divorce

Pueblo, Col., April 10.—Mrs. Sherman T. Cammack, a society woman, who was shot by her husband on the night of Jan. 30, after which he instantly killed himself, died last night. Mrs. Cammack had instituted a suit for divorce and was in her husband's office talking over an agreement as to property when the tragedy occurred.

Duel Challenge Declined

St. Petersburg, April 10.—Count Bobrinsky, president of the Constitutional Conservative party and marshal of nobility, challenged Professor Miukoff, leader of the Constitutional Democrats, to a duel, following a dispute arising between them in the duma. Miukoff declined to accept the challenge.

Against Wood Pulp Tariff

Chicago, April 10.—Members of the National Agricultural Press league, representing the leading farm papers of the United States, at the annual meeting of the organization here, voted to support Herman Ridder of New York in his efforts to have the tariff removed from wood pulp.

Soldiers Take "Night Riders"

Murray, Ky., April 10.—Soldiers have arrested eight alleged "night riders" in this county. They are all young farmers. They were placed in jail.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Clyde T. Cox, the pharmacist, has a dandy new sign.

The new Federal building is now above ground and growing rapidly.

Little Miss Mildred Carson of Rawson road is very ill with gastric catarrh.

Mrs. Julia Page of Beach street is visiting relatives in Somerville and Winthrop.

Ray Brown, who an instructor at the Choate school, Wallinford, Connecticut, is home for his Easter vacation.

The Quincy Y. M. C. A. has planned for a gymnastic carnival and garden concert to be given April 22 and 23.

New England league football game at 3 o'clock Saturday at Washington street grounds, near Quincy Point bridge.

A specially interesting program has been prepared for the meeting of the Unity club of Wollaston for this evening.

Herbert Clay will lead the prayer meeting of the Park and Downs Congregational church on Sunday evening. His subject will be "As ye sow, so shall ye reap."

Science of business building will be the subject of James Wood Pogue next Tuesday evening at the April meeting of the Unitarian club of Wollaston. Officers for 1908—09 will be elected.

Music by the High School orchestra will be a feature of the program at the senior dramatics this evening. There are sixteen in the orchestra led by Mr. Landis Snyder, and the instruments are the piano, violin, cornet, cello and double bass.

A Well Known Veteran Fireman

One of the best-known veteran firemen of the state was laid to rest Thursday afternoon when George B. Pray was buried in Mt. Wollaston cemetery. For over 50 years the face of "Uncle George" has been a familiar one at the hand engine musters in this and other states and at the services were delegations from the famous Red Jackets of Cambridge and the Stars of Jamaica, while on the uniform of the old veteran were pinned badges of both companies.

Mr. Pray died suddenly in a drug store on Summer street, Boston, on Monday afternoon. The services were conducted by Rev. Alfred Ray Atwood, pastor of the Washington street Congregational church, and were largely attended by citizens and veteran firemen.

All the bearers were from Jamaica Plain, namely: John O'Brien, Philip A. Mock, William Bodenbrown and George Drown.

The floral offerings were many and beautiful consisting of:—

Wreath, marked "Husband."

Pillow of Hyacinths, marked "Father."

Flat Piece Hyacinths—Frank Picknell and family.

Bouquet of pinks,—Mrs. Geo. W. Jones, Mrs. C. E. Poe, Antoinette Pray.

Bouquet of lilies,—Mrs. Willard Lothrop.

Bouquet of pinks and roses,—Mrs. H. E. French.

Wreath of roses,—Mrs. Anna Sampson and daughter.

Wreath of pinks and leaves,—Mr. Oliver J. Blanchard.

Wreath of roses and leaves,—McKinley 13 Club.

Large wreath from Jamaica Plain Veteran Fire Association, with white ribbon marked "Comrade."

Spray of pinks,—Harry B. Glidden.

Spray of sweet peas and lilies,—Mr. and Mrs. H. Glidden and family.

Spray of sweet peas,—Mr. and Mrs. Knapp.

Spray of pinks,—Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McNeil.

Spray of pinks,—Mr. H. A. Newton.

Money Hidden Everywhere

Leu Sing, the Chinese laundryman located in the rear of the Rugby block at East Milton was found dead in his laundry Monday morning. Death was due to heart trouble. When the police took charge of the laundry they found $966 in money. The money was hidden all over the laundry. Some of it was in the clock, some under the ironing board as well as behind the wall paper, some in the bed, some under the floor, and in other places. The police are holding the money until they can locate the man's relatives if he has any. Since it became known that the money had been found, several Chinamen have appeared on the scene claiming relationship. One said he was a brother, and another a cousin. All wanted the money. The police however still have it.

School Closed For Teacher's Funeral

The funeral of Miss Henrietta T. Hallowell, for thirty years a teacher in the Milton schools, was held Thursday afternoon from the First Congregational church. All of the public schools of the town were closed, and many of the pupils of the High school were present at the services. There were also many friends as well as relatives present, and there was a wealth of beautiful flowers. Rev. Roderick B. Stebbins officiated at the services, and Mrs. Emma S. Moore of Quincy sang "Abide with me," "Passing out of the Shadow," and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." After the services the body was taken to Bangor, Me., her native place for burial. The death of Miss Hallowell is the first break in the family for fifty years. She left a brother and sister in Quincy, Dr. H. C. Hallowell and Miss Lucy M. Hallowell.

There will be baptism at the close of the evening service at the Wollaston Baptist church on Sunday.

The Seven Ages In Tableaux

Success eclipsing that of any previous year attended the Easter sale given in Memorial church Thursday evening under the direction of Mrs. Hattie Baker of Walker street. The season's colors of lavender and white were used for decoration and the charming display of useful articles, cake, candy, punch and ice cream voiced the labor and effort expended in preparation.

Among the young folk the miscellaneous table under the charge of Miss Cummings and one of her boys from the Quincy school, and the peanut and corn-ball table of Miss Upton and her class, were very popular, holding as they did great possibilities for the youthful appetite and imagination.

The large crowd present purchased freely, and the tables were well emptied by eight o'clock when the entertainment began.

This part of the program was under the direction of Mrs. Cecil Marble, Mrs. Charles Safford and Miss Cummings. It was a series of tableaux illustrating "The Seven Ages," accompanied by appropriate musical numbers. The poem was beautifully read by Mrs. Frank Butler of Botolph street after the first recitation "Seven Times One" by little Lucy Whittier which won the compliment of tears as well as applause.

In the first tableaux, "Childhood," were Clara Von Emden, Beatrice Rogers, Mary Coolidge, Marion Gurney, Jessie Welch, Alfonzo Larson and Lucy Whittier. It was preceded by a quartet "Hark! the Lark."

Seven Times Two—"School Days," was portrayed by Winthrop Safford and Grace DeWolf, preceded by a trio, "Orpheus with his Lute."

Seven Times Three—"Love," was poised for prettily by Miss Maud Read and Carl Stocker. A solo "A Dream of Paradise" by Rev. Henry A. Coolidge was and additional feature to this number.

Seven Times Four—"Motherhood,,, followed the musical selection "Mid Summer Night's Dream" and was was one of the most touching of the series. It was represented by Mrs. Lyndon Gurney surrounded by the little participants in the first tableaux.

Seven Times Five—"The Widow," was well taken by Mrs. Hattie Baker.

Seven Times Six—"The Wedding," opening with the march, played by Mrs. Marble, was a complete entertainment in itself. The bride, Miss Cummings; the groom Winthrop Safford; the minister, Mr. Charles Safford; the father, Laurence Pope; the best man, Gorden Jenkins; the maid of honor, Maud Read; the ribon bearers, Gorden Sherwin, Ralph Alden, Clara Von Emden and Jessie Welch, ring bearers, Alfonzo Larson and Carlton Marble; flower girls, Mary Coolidge and Marion Gurney; maids of honor, Lucy Whittier and Beatrice Rogers.

The last number Seven Times Seven,—"Longing for Home," was portrayed by Mrs. Sarah Butler. It was the voiced cry of a lonely life, where a woman with hands outspread on the Bible, looks up and beyond the material world toward better things Beyond.

The entertainment was one of the most finished that has ever been given in Atlantic and was worthy reception.

The musical numbers were those to be given by the Shakesperian society at their musicale which will be held at a later date with Mrs. Tenney of Wollaston. The quartette included: Mrs. Frederick J. Peirce, Mrs. Lyndon Gurney, Mrs. George Richards and Mrs. John Carver. Mrs. Cecil Marble was accompanist.

The financial proceeds were upwards of ninety dollars and the workers in both the sale and entertainment were well rewarded for their efforts in behalf of Memorial church.

Labor Side Of Controversy

That the Quincy granite workers are working today under the agreement signed some days ago, and that they will continue to do so, is the statement made to a Boston American reporter by James Duncan, member of the International Executive Board of the International Granite Cutters' Association of America.

Mr. Duncan declared that a mistake had been made in the statement that the Quincy granite manufacturers had repudiated the agreement signed last week between the representatives of the union and those from the manufacturers. It was claimed that the manufacturers based their refusal to comply with the terms agreed to on certain alleged facts which Mr. Duncan declares not to exist.

"We are working now under the agreement," he said, "as signed some days ago, and shall most assuredly continue to do so, unless the manufacturers stop us through legal action."

Mr. Duncan said that it was incorrect that before the recent conference, which ended in the framing of the agreement, the representatives had agreed that a majority vote of the six members of the conference committee, three from the manufacturers and three from the union, would carry any proposition; that the union had relied upon the vote of William S. Alexander of Barre, Vt., to carry their points, and that the Quincy manufacturers had objected to the so-called "closed shop" agreement of the conference.

"These are the facts," said Mr. Duncan. "The conference had agreed that any vote, to be binding, should consist of a majority of the representatives on each side. For instance, if three union men and one of the manufacturers voted together, that vote would not be binding, as a majority of the manufacturers had not voted for it.

"The Quincy manufacturers have always considered Mr. Alexander as an authority on the kind of matters discussed at this conference, and were fully agreed to his serving on the committee and also acting as chairman. D. L. McLaren, another member of the committee, represents the New England Granite Works, with quarries in Concord, N. H., and C. Harry Rogers of Rockport, Mass., of the Rockport Granite Company, a large employer himself, was the third member of the committee. The makeup of the committee was above suspicion.

"Nothing was agreed upon without, at least, a two-thirds vote. The open or closed shop was not discussed at all, for 97 per cent of the journeymen granite cutters in this continent belong to our union. There are not more than fifteen non-union men of the 1,500 cutters, polishers and tool sharpeners."

The Birmingham In Commission

The scout cruiser Birmingham, of the fastest class of warships in the world, left the plant of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. this morning shortly after 6.30, and passed through the draw of the Quincy Point bridge at 6.45. She was in charge of Capt. Evans, and was accompanied by two tugs. President Bowles, Manager Smith and Assistants Wellington and Brown were on board.

The Birmingham went direct to the navy yard at Chralestown and was delivered to Rear Admiral Swift, commandant at the yard, who accepted her on behalf of the government, and immediately placed her in commission.

Commander Burns T. Walling, who has for some time been general inspector of equipment in the navy, will be the first commander of the Birmingham. Chief Boatswain James W. Angus, assistant to the executive officer o fthe Charlestown yard, will be chief warrant officer. The crew had been assembled already on the receiving ship Wabash.

In order to distinguish the scout cruisers, the Navy Department has ordered that a single black band be painted on each of the four smokestacks of the vessels.

Peacemaker Needed To Settle Strike

A joint meeting of the Granite Manufacturers' committee and the committees representing the Steam Engineers' Union was held Thursday evening in an effort to reach an agreement.

It is understood at this meeting the engineers submitted three propositions as follows:

Stationary engineers to receive a minimum of $18 per week for the first two years, and $19 per week the third year.

Portable engineers to receive $17 per week for three years.

Skeleton engineers to receive thirty cents per hour.

The manufacturers, it is understood, turned down all three propositions, and stood out for the present bill for a term of three years.

The conference then adjourned without having accomplished anything.

There is a general feeling of regret among the business men and people in general at the prospect of a long drawn out strike in the granite industry, for it means not only a great loss in money, but great hardship to men not employed in the granite industry.

The sentiment seems to be that the time has arrived for an outside party to step forward and act as peacemaker, and several have suggested that Mayor Shea take the initiative in the matter.

FOR YOUR SUNDAY DINNER

try the following delightful desert:
1-2 cup English Walnut meats.
1-2 doz. figs, cut up fine.
1 10c. package JELL-O, any flavor.
Dissolve the JELL-O in a pint of boiling water. When cool and just commencing to thicken stir in the figs and nuts. Serve with Whipped Cream. Delicious. The walnuts, figs and JELL-O can be bought at any good grocery. This makes enough dessert for a large family and is very economical.

LEAGUE PROTESTS

No License Organization Gets After The City Council

A well attended meeting of the Executive and Advisory Committee of the Citizens No-License League was held Thursday evening. The meeting was called for the purpose of protesting against the indiscriminate manner in which the majority of the City Council at its meeting last Monday night granted Express Permits to carry intoxicating liquors in the City of Quincy. Representative citizens from the different wards attended this meeting, and they did not hesitate to express their indignation at the manner in which a majority of the Councilmen misrepresented their constituents.

At the last election every ward and every precinct in every ward cast a majority of votes against the sale of intoxicating liquors, and the total majority throughout the city was larger than had been recorded at any previous election. At a meeting of the No-License League held December 30, 1907, a special committee was appointed to use its good offices in seeing that the Licensing Committee of the City Council of 1908 should be composed of men who would be in sympathy with the large and evenly distributed No-License sentiment as expressed at the polls.

The special committee of the No-License League was led to believe that such a Licensing Committee of the City Council had been appoined, but recent events would seem to show that a majority of the Licensing Committee are in favor of the indiscriminate granting of Express Permits.

A year ago a special committee appointed by the No-License League gave especial attention to this subject of liquor transportation. The committee interviewed the Chief of Police, the members of the Licensing Committee of the City Council of 1907, the publishers of the A. B. C. Pathfinder Express list, and many representative citizens, and as a result of their investigation they formulated certain general rules or principles which in their judgment should be followed in granting the so-called Express Permits. There rules or formulas were briefly as follows:—

First—That no permit should be granted to any one who had been convicted of breaking the laws governing the sale and transportation of liquor.

Second—That no permit should be granted to an expressman who was not a resident and a taxpayer of the City of Quincy.

Third—That no permit should be granted to anyone unless he were a bona-fide expressman, that is, one whose chief business was the carrying of general merchandise. (The Council of 1907 used the A B C Pathfinder Express list as its authority of what constituted a bona-fide expressman.)

Fourth—That in view of the tremendous No-License sentiment throughout the city, as expressed at the last and all preceding elections, the City Council should scrutinize every application most carefully, and should use its best endeavors to keep the number of expressmen authorized to carry liquor down to a small number.

On Thursday April 2, 1908, the Licensing Committee of the City Council considered all the applications to transport intoxicating liquors that had been received at that time. There were eleven applications and the committee reported to the Council recommending that permits be granted to all of them. The Council also passed all of them and they were sent to the Mayor for his approval or disapproval.

In this connection it is well to note the following extract which appears in the inaugural adress of His Honor, Mayor William T. Shea.

"I trust you will exercise great and discriminating care in the matter of granting licenses to express concerns to transport intoxicating liquors into Quincy."

Of the eleven express concerns to which permits have been voted by the Council, there are at least five that do not conform to the principles or standards as set forth above. One has been convicted in court, one is not a resident of Quincy, and at least three are not rated in the A B C Pathfinder Express list. These facts were brought out in the committee room, and also in the Council, and yet the permits were voted.

The Licensing Committee of the City Council has now on hand thirteen additional applications and more are expected. During the year ending May 1, 1908, permits were granted to thirteen expressmen. If the Council of 1908 continues its course of granting permits to every applicant we shall have from twenty-five to thirty "saloons on wheels" in our city.

The meeting of the No-License League on Thursday evening was called not only for the purpose of protesting against at least a portion of the permits already voted by the Council, but also to use its best endeavors to prevent if possible any increase in the number of expressmen authorized to bring intoxicating liquors into our City.

It was formally voted:—That it is the sense of the meeting that the No-License League adhere to the resolutions with reference to granting permits as prepared a year ago, and as noted above, and that a special committee be appointed and instructed to interview the Mayor, and to take such steps as they deem best in order to oppose the granting of permits to

Compromise Declaration on His Candidacy In the Bay State

IN INTEREST OF HARMONY

Oil Poured on Convention's Troubled Waters In a Speech by Lodge--Negro Delegates Precipitate a Contest Over Alternates-at-Large

Boston, April 11.—The four men who will lead the Massachusetts delegation to the Republican national convention will go to Chicago unhampered by pledges. These four delegates, selected at the state convention, are Senators Lodge and Crane, former Secretary of the Navy Long and Sidney O. Bigney, a business man.

The alternates-at-large selected were Frank E. Dunbar of Lowell, Winfield S. Schuster of Douglas, Ralph D. Gillett of Westfield and James F. Shaw of Manchester.

The convention adopted resolutions endorsing Governor Guild as a candidate for the vice presidential nomination, advocating a "wise revision" of the tariff, and on the question of the presidential candidacy of William H. Taft stating that it "recognized that a majority of the delegates to the convention desired his nomination," but that it was "uncertain whether a resolution of preference would be carried, and its presentation would certainly lead to a contest, which would be injurious to the welfare of the party."

This last named plank, the adoption of which was the feature of the convention, was admitted by all the party leaders to be a compromise affair. It was submitted to the committee on resolutions at 9 a. m. yesterday by the Taft league, after an all-night session. The fight on it may be regarded as starting with the inception of the Taft movement in this state several months ago, becoming acute when Senator Crane, while not directly opposing the candidacy of Taft, declared in a public statement in February that the Massachusetts delegation to Chicago ought not to be hampered by pledges.

Both sides had made every effort for a decisive victory in the convention. The Taft people wanted either pledged or preference resolutions, while their opponents fought against anything that would indicate a preference. The compromise was effected when the leaders of the unpledged cause admitted that a majority of the delegates to the state convention favored Taft, and by the agreement on the part of the Taft leaders that a resolution expressing a desire instead of a preference for his nomination would be satisfactory.

Even after this agreement had been reached it was not certain but that some of the warmest supporters of Taft would endeavor to substitute it by a more radical plank. Senator Lodge, however, with the finishing of the reading of the resolution, stepped forward and made a speech in which he explained that the compromise was made in the interest of party harmony as well as for his friendship for his colleague, Crane, his desire for the success of Lieutenant Governor Draper next fall and for the perpetuation of the policies of President Roosevelt.

Senator Lodge's speech aroused much enthusiasm. The resolutions were carried with a rush, even Congressman Gardner, one of the leading Taft exponents in Massachusetts, arising in their favor. Later there was considerable difference of opinion as to what the passage of the plank really meant and whether the compromise had been as effective as was anticipated.

The selection of the four delegates occupied but little time, former Governor Bates, who magnanimously withdrew his candidacy for one of the places on Tuesday last, laying the four names before the convention and moving that they be chosen by acclamation.

The only matter which then remained was the selection of four alternates; but here a pretty contest resulted. After John N. Cole had presented a ticket made up of four citizens of the state, a negro delegate nominated Charles W. M. Williams of Boston, another negro, which was followed immediately by Samuel F. Courtney of Boston, also a negro, being placed in the field. Williams was charged with being a bitter antagonist of Taft and President Roosevelt, while Courtney was charged with having run for school committeeman on a Democratic ticket.

The debate practically closed the convention proceedings, for as soon as the delegates had dropped their ballots they retired from the hall. The votes showed that Williams led Courtney, but that the convention desired neither, and the Cole ticket was selected.

Trade Is Still Lagging

New York, April 11.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that commercial conditions show little alteration, the gains of the first quarter being maintained, but further progress is extremely slow. The outlook for future business is brighter because of the almost unanimous reports of satisfactory crop prospects.

A Presidency For Shaw

New York, April 11.—Leslie M. Shaw, formerly secretary of the treasury and formerly president of the Carnegie Trust company, it is stated here, has tentatively accepted the presidency of the First Mortgage Guaranty and Trust company of Philadelphia.

NOW BACK TO OLD PRICE

Dealer In Kerosene Did Big Business While Bargain Sale Lasted

Haverhill, Mass., April 11.—The struggle between the Standard Oil company and an independent dealer for trade supremacy in this city reached its climax when advertisements in the local papers announcing that the Standard Oil dealer would sell oil at 5 cents a gallon brought out such crowds that the police were called upon to preserve order in the vicinity of the store.

During the midst of the excitement the independent dealer drove up to his rival's store with his tank wagon and offered to buy what the Standard dealer was willing to sell, when the price of the latter's oil jumped to 13 cents a gallon, its previous price, owing to the depletion of the supply. The street in the vicinity of the Standard dealer's store was crowded all day by people laying up a supply of kerosene.

Venezuela Called a Brigand

London, April 11.—The Daily Graphic, in an editorial describing Venezuela as a "brigand republic" outside the pale of civilization, demands that the government recall the British minister at Caracas and resort to reprisals. "It is not consistent with this country's dignity," says The Graphic, "to continue ostensibly friendly relations with a government that is engaged in robbing British subjects and offensively mocking their flag."

Calls President a Fool

Montreal, April 11.—Alexander Berkman, the anarchist, is in Montreal. In speaking of President Roosevelt's announcement he made this statement: "Roosevelt is a fool. His latest message to congress shows that plainly. The United States today is making the same mistake that Russia made twenty-five years ago in trying to suppress the anarchist propaganda. Suppression begets violence. The United States should take warning."

Over Five Miles Underground

New York, April 11.—The south tunnel of the two which the Pennsylvania railroad is building under Bergen hill, Hoboken, was holed through this morning. It will now be possible for a person to go from the western end of the Bergen Hill tunnel to East avenue, Long Island city, and under two rivers—a distance of 5.3 miles—without coming above ground.

Bannerman Grows Worse

London, April 11.—Two of King Edward's physicians were called in consultation with Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman's regular physicians yesterday afternoon. The gravity of the ex-premier's condition was further evidenced by the issuing of a bulletin last evening, saying that there is no improvement in his symptoms and that he is very weak.

Two Boys Buried Alive

Chicago, April 11.—Carl Hedfeldt and Earl Gustavson, cousins, each 11 years old, were suffocated by the caving in of a dugout in which they were playing. Policemen attempted to rescue the entombed boys by digging away the sand with their hands, but the mound was too deep. The bodies were recovered by members of a fire engine company.

Leech Will Be Public Printer

Manila, April 11.—John S. Leech, public printer of the Philippines, who on April 4 was nominated by President Roosevelt as public printer to succeed Charles A. Stillings, resigned his Philippine office yesterday and wired his acceptance of the Washington position. He will start for Washington on May 1, probably by way of Siberia and Europe.

Arrest of Former Mrs. Duke

Chicago, Ills., April 11.—Mrs. Alice Webb, divorced wife of Brodie L. Duke, the millionaire tobacco manufacturer, was arrested here on a warrant charging her with having defrauded a Chicago hotel company by means of fraudulent checks. She was held at the Harrison street police station last night in default of bail.

Wreck of Boston Schooner

St. Thomas, D. W. I., April 11.—Schooner H. F. Thompson of Boston, Baltimore for Port Royal, Jam., has been wrecked. Captain Hardy, his wife and child and crew of eight men, who were saved, have arrived here. The Thompson sank off the Island of Anegada after striking a reef.

Receiver For Electric Company

New Orleans, April 11.—The Consumers' Electric company, with capital stock, bonds and other obligations, aggregating about $2,500,000, has been placed in receivership. Samuel Insull, president of the Commonwealth Edison company of Chicago, was named as receiver.

Part of Boy's Head Blown Off

Highland Falls, N. Y., April 11.—While Wendell B. Carpenter and Joe Pavek, aged 8 and 14 years, respectively, were handling a loaded shotgun last night, the weapon was discharged and the back part of Carpenter's head was blown off. Death was instantaneous.

Suicide of a Priest

Albany, April 11.—Rev. Joseph A. Graham, rector of the Roman Catholic Church of the Blessed Sacrament in this city, twice shot himself in the heart, dying almost instantly. In the opinion of Bishop Burke Graham was not in his right mind.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

The 25 tanks which the Fore River company has been making for the General Electric Company have been finished and delivered.

The Pacific fleet will stop at Port Hartford April 12 and will be at Monterey, Calif., May 1.

A patent was issued this week to T. S. Bailey and E. T. Cable of Quincy, assignors to the Electric Boat Company.

Light vessel No. 90 for the Light House board, Department of Commerce and Labor, U. S. Government, is at the present time the scene of much activity. A large force of men are engaged in finishing up this vessel, and from present indications it would seem that the date of completion is not very far off, probably about two or three weeks will see her delivered. The boilers have been installed since the day of launching, and the engine is already in place. The ventilating system is being installed at present and will be finished up in a few days. There are two ventilators 18 inches in diameter in the fire rooms and one in the drum room of the same size. The mouth of the ventilating cowls are twice the diameter of the ventilator shaft. In addition to the ventilators to the fire-rooms and drum room, each oil room is equipped with a copper ventilator 9 inches in diameter and of sufficient height to carry off the gases.

A new hammer is being machined for the forge at the shipyard.

William Varney, formerly a special mechanic in the employ of the government stationed at the Fore River, is at present employed in a ship yard at St. Johns, Oregon.

One day ahead of scheduled time the flotilla of torpedo boat destroyers, the Lawrence built at Quincy, the Whipple, the Hopkins, the Stewart, the Hull and the Truxtum, joined the battleships at Magdalena bay on Sunday evening. The Arethusa was behind.

HELP THE POOR.

Mrs. L. F. Tirrell, Superintendent of Press Committee, W. C. T. U., wishes to notify the Union of the assistance needed by the co-workers in helping the poor Shut-ins in sending Easter offerings, such as eggs, oranges, lemons, jellies, cocoa, tea, coffee, sugar, grapes, malted milk, or money for plants, to cheer up the little suffering children who will be gladdened greatly by these tokens of love.

Those who are able to be out cannot fail to catch something of the Easter joy. They see the beautiful flowers and hear the wonderful Easter music telling of the risen Christ while the evidence of the resurrection is all about them in the awakening of spring.

Putting It Just Right.

Here are splendid words says the Ladies' Home Journal that ought to be burnt into the mind of every public-spirited citizen who loves the beauty of his town. They were delivered by Judge Welch, of the Superior Court, when he decided that all advertising billboards should be removed from the highways of the beautiful town of San Jose, California:

"A glaring billboard set opposite a man's house in a vacant lot, bordering upon a public highway in a country town devoted to homes, is just as offensive to the immediate residents as would be the maintenance of a pigsty giving forth offensive odors, or the maintenance of a stonebreaking machine, or the chime of hoarse bells. In principle, there is no difference between them. It would be a singular result of our law if relief could not be had against the maintenance, for purely advertising purposes, of an uncouth billboard erected opposite my house, having painted upon it grotesque advertisements of wines, beers and whiskies, and constantly, hourly and daily a detriment to my property and a serious injury to the feelings of myself and my family."

Cup Defender Sold.

The Sally VIII, the sonder boat which defended the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup last year for the Corinthian club against the Quincy and Manchester club, has been sold to M. B. Truesdale of New York, who will use her the coming summer at New Bedford. It was expected that the Sally VIII would be the defending yacht in this year's races. It is reported that a new sonder boat will be designed by Burgess and built to defend the cup.

MANY BASEBALL TRADES.

Some of the Big Swaps Made Since Last Season.

More than the average number of baseball trades were made by the American league during the present off season. Managers declare that it is impossible to get a good player at any price, yet several classy performers in Ban Johnson's circuit were sent to new fields by purchase or trade.

This lot includes Fred Parent of Boston, who was sent to Chicago, and Ferris of the same club, who was traded to St. Louis via New York. The latter team turned over Laporte to Boston, while New York sent Williams and Hoffman, along with Ferris, to the

BOBBY QUINN, PRESIDENT OF THE OHIO STATE LEAGUE.

[Bobby Quinn, the new president of the Ohio State league, is an old time ball player and was the first catcher Jerry Nops, the once famous Baltimore pitcher, had. Nops always had a habit of making an ascension when in a pinch, but they say that when Quinn was doing the receiving he was a different pitcher. For several years Quinn has been connected with the Columbus team of the American association. Practically half of the star players picked up by Columbus were first discovered by Quinn. He is an excellent judge of ball players and, knowing their peculiarities, will be able to handle them without much difficulty. The new president is enthusiastic over the new league and is certain that it will have a successful season. All the men connected with the league believe that in Quinn they selected the very man to make a success of the organization.]

Browns in exchange for Niles, Hemphill and Glade. New York also purchased Jack Stahl.

Washington swapped Jones to the Browns for Pickering. Still, McAleer was not satisfied, and he acquired Waddell of the Athletics by purchase. Cleveland took Hickman off Chicago's hands, and the Sox obtained Anderson from Washington. Detroit's only deal of note was to buy Catcher Thomas of New York.

Managers may insist that it is difficult to get star players at any price, yet every season several toppy players figure in deals.

In the National league there were fewer transactions. The biggest trade was between the New York and Boston teams, New York getting Tenney, Bridwell and Needham for Dahlen, Bowerman, McGann, Browne and Ferguson. Pittsburg sold Third Baseman Sheehan to Brooklyn, which about completes the deals in that circuit.

A Matter of Business.

By Arthur Densmore.

Copyright, 1907, by G. H. Richardson.

"WE will go to Henslow Beach this summer," said my wife. "We will coax John to go with us. There are always a great many nice girls there, and who knows what may happen?"

John is my wife's brother. He is a quiet, retiring young man and very bashful. He does not care for girls. At least he says he doesn't.

My wife and her mother thought John ought to marry because he was thirty and received a salary of $2,000 a year. They threw hints at him for a year or two, and then they came out into the open and argued with him. But John said he was very comfortably situated in bachelor quarters.

My wife showed less enthusiasm over the matter. I think she feared John would end, as young men who keep aloof from young ladies, and consequently don't understand the game, commonly do, by marrying some entirely impossible person. Probably she set the Henslow Beach plot in motion merely to humor her mother. Nobody who knew John and looked at the situation in anything approaching an unbiased way could imagine that he would be in any danger at Henslow. For my own part, I knew that he would take a dip conscientiously every day, spend the rest of his time in a shady nook reading the six best selling novels and return to the city without having increased by so much as a single one the number of his acquaintances.

When I made that calculation I had never heard of the Castle girl. I saw her first on the evening we arrived. She was sitting at the end of the hotel piazza, and John was seated near her. They were engaged in conversation.

I felt it my duty to find out who the girl was. I didn't intend to let my innocent young brother-in-law fall into the clutches of a designing woman. I found that she was a daughter of Tom Castle of Chicago, who had been a millionaire, but, owing to an ambitious attempt to corner the pork market, was one no longer; also I learned that, besides being remarkably pretty, she was cultured, refined and educated.

At the first opportunity I asked John how he had become acquainted with her. He didn't seem to know. He hadn't made any advances, he said, and he was sure she hadn't. They had just happened to meet. Then he began talking about affinities and some other rot, and I saw the disease had attacked him.

"Now, see here," said I. "You don't know anything about girls. If you did, you would see that she's just flirting with you."

JOHN TOOK AN OAR AND PUSHED OFF.

But it did no good to warn him. He insisted that she was the nicest girl who ever happened and that she would as soon commit murder as trifle with a man's affections.

"Very well," said I. "It must be some time, and it may as well be now, while you are young and have a strong constitution."

The Castle girl was certainly very nice to John when you take into consideration what a clumsy, awkward fellow he was and how unkindly nature had dealt with him touching his face. She played croquet with him all the next forenoon, and in the afternoon, when he asked her if she would like to go out rowing with him, she said she would be just delighted to do so. John had never rowed a boat, but of course that didn't matter.

John braced an oar against the pier and pushed off. The impetus sent the boat perhaps fifteen feet out. Then, with an air of determination, he grasped the oars. He let one of them fall lightly into the water and pulled very hard. The result was that he lifted the oar just above the girl's ear and turned half a pint of water down the back of her neck. She smiled, but her smile seemed to lack spontaneity. He took a fling at the other oar and deposited another half pint in her lap. These little irregularities made him nervous and embarrassed, so that at the next stroke he missed the water altogether, and the oar swung around and struck her on the side of the head with great force. About this time he lost his balance, fell backward and was about to disappear in the briny depths when the girl opportunely grasped his feet and restored him to equilibrium. Then she thrust her sleeves above her elbows, seized the oars and rowed the boat to the pier.

After that adventure I felt pretty sure the girl had conceived a real liking for John. Of course I hadn't the remotest idea why. I imagined that after the boating incident the girl would cease her efforts to make John happy. She didn't, so I knew it was no mere flirtation.

The more I saw of the Castle girl the better I liked her. She was very versatile and correspondingly popular. She played golf and tennis, rode a bicycle, understood sailing a yacht and was quite at home as a chauffeur. Then, again, her stock of miscellaneous information was truly wonderful. Senator Blenkins was at the hotel that summer. He is for tariff revision. The girl discussed reciprocity and the reduction of duties with him. She said she thought the Dingley tariff act the most iniquitous piece of legislation that had ever tarnished a statute book. After Blenkins went away ex-Governor Whitmyer ran down for a week. Whitmyer is a stand patter. So was the Castle girl—that week. She said only an enemy of his country would consider lowering a duty on anything.

This shows what an adaptable, companionable girl she was. She could discuss any man's hobby intelligently, whether it happened to be amateur photography, postage stamps or golf.

Now, John's hobby was military bands. Before he moved to the city he was solo cornetist in the Beamington brass band. He enjoyed an enviable reputation in that part of the state. It relieved his mind a great deal to indulge in reminiscences of that delightful period and to discuss bands in general. Well, among other things, the girl knew all about bands, and she would spend an hour at a time discussing with him the career of the late P. S. Gilmore and the relative merits of Arbuckle and Jules Levy.

Once, I recollect, she was interrupted in the midst of one of these conversations by a young lawyer who had heard that she was omniscient and wanted to know if she could state the rule in Shelley's case. She could and did. She said perhaps he would like to know whether beasts taken levant and couchant in withernam could be replevied. He said he wouldn't trouble her for that and went away.

Meantime John's condition grew steadily worse. He even fell into the rhyming habit, and he would sit on the hotel piazza long after sensible people were in bed, dreaming of heroic deeds. Although he did not say so directly, I know from chance remarks he made that he rather hoped the Castle girl would go beyond her depth some time while bathing so that he could save her life.

Toward the end of the first week John and the girl chanced to be in the surf at the same time. John is a splendid swimmer. His style of swimming is what youths in country places call dog paddle.

When I first saw John that morning he was swimming valiantly toward the diving float, which is anchored a short distance from shore. After he had taken about a dozen strokes he became tired. He tired quite easily. So he stopped swimming and stood on the bottom. He had made a slight miscalculation as to the depth, and the water reached above his eyes. He began to shout that he was drowning and begged piteously for help. The Castle girl heard him, and so did three or four others, who started to aid him. The Castle girl called them back. She swam out to him and towed him into shallow water.

John explained that there was a peculiar undercurrent in that place which just wound around a fellow's legs like a rope and held him fast. Of course even the most powerful swimmer would succumb to it.

We were leaving Henslow on Saturday morning. Friday afternoon John told me he had made up his mind to propose to the Castle girl. He wanted my advice as to the best style to adopt. Some doubt existed in his mind as to whether it would be wisest to use blunt brevity, metaphor or carefully stated but plain and businesslike argument. He also desired my opinion as to the result. I advised in favor of the plain, common sense style.

In the evening John found an opportunity to unbosom himself. He told her how domestic his tastes were, how he longed to settle down, what his salary was and how much the president of his bank thought of him and ended by asking her to take a matrimonial chance with him.

The girl said it had never occurred to her that John thought of her in that way. She said if she had so much as suspected that he was traveling in that direction she would have set a switch open for him and landed him safely on a sidetrack. She was sure he wouldn't say that she had done anything to encourage him.

John lied loyally and said she had not.

"I knew you didn't care for me," said he, "but I couldn't help telling you all this. I'm a fool. That's what I am, a"—

"Oh, no!" interrupted the girl. "I think you're really a very sensible fellow. Why, you should have heard Charlie—but of course I mustn't tell."

Then she held out her hand to John, bestowed a look of deep sympathy upon him and said she was very, very sorry for him.

John told me the whole story. He still felt that he had had a fair deal. I didn't, and I made several unkind remarks about the Castle girl.

Probably she inferred from my manner when we met next morning that John had told me what had occurred the previous evening and that I thought he had just cause for complaint, whatever his view of it might be. At any rate, she came over to the corner of the dining room where I was standing just before my departure and began conversation.

"I suppose he has told you all about it," she said.

"He has," said I.

"Perhaps you think I flirted with him," she went on.

"I do," said I.

"I didn't mean any harm," said she.

"Girls never do," said I.

"It's an exceptional case," said she. "Can you keep a secret?"

"As well as the next man and better than any woman," said I.

She looked about her a trifle fearfully as though she had an idea what she was about to say might be overheard.

"Suppose we go out on the piazza," she said.

We had the greater part of the piazza to ourselves. I tried to remain indignant at her, but I made an utter failure of it. She had a trick of smiling at you and acting as though she regarded you in the light of a big brother in whom she could safely confide that was irresistible.

"You see," she said, "papa was quite wealthy once, but he took a plunge in the market and lost it all. He's in the real estate business now. That's the final refuge, you know—the last stopping place on the route to the almshouse—the real estate business or perhaps canvassing for life insurance.

"I felt I must do something. Papa didn't wish it, but I insisted. Still I didn't know what to do. I had never studied shorthand, and I hated the thought of being a telephone operator. One day a friend of mine who knew my perplexity said to me: 'Why don't you go somewhere as a social entertainer? Eleanor Brackett has done grandly at it.'

"'And what might a social entertainer be?' said I.

"'Why,' she said, 'at summer hotels, you know, there are apt to be people who are reserved and unsocial and others who form cliques. The result is that a great many guests go away dissatisfied and say the place is dull and the people who frequent it disagreeable, and of course that damages the hotel proprietor's chance of heavy patronage the next season. The social entertainer circulates about among the guests, breaks up cliques, pulls the clammy and retiring people out of their corners and pushes them into conversation and keeps things generally mixed up and lively.

"'It looks like a rather large order,' said I.

"'It is,' said she, 'but you can fill it. You get the best of everything at the hotel and a good salary besides. Eleanor has turned down half a dozen good offers for this summer. She can find you an opportunity, and after a season or two you'll do awfully well.'

"I spoke to Eleanor about it, and she told me the proprietor of the Lookaway House at Henslow Beach had one of these positions open. I wrote to him, and he said I could come on and try it and if I did well I should be compensated accordingly. He's a very practical man, and he doesn't pay for the purely imaginative. The evening I arrived he pointed out your brother-in-law.

"'He's just come down here,' said he. 'Start in on him. I don't know anything about him, but he looks like a fair subject for a test. If you can draw him out of his shell and get him to dance about and spend his money foolishly, as a young man should, I'll employ you regularly.'

"So I just did the best I could to give Mr. Simpkins a good time. I never once thought of flirting with him, and I didn't dream he was taking things so seriously. I did so want to make good."

"Well, you've certainly done it," said I.

"I do feel sorry for Mr. Simpkins, though. Will he really take it very hard, do you think? Those quiet chaps often have it the worst, you know. Why, I remember Harry, but of course I mustn't tell."

I detected just the slightest naughty lowering of her eyelid.

"He said he'd never be the same man again," she said.

I thought of several idiotic incidents in John's past life.

"I hope he won't," said I.

Interesting Papers At Unity Club

The postponed meeting of the Unity club, last evening, was in charge of Miss Elizabeth Thayer. Mrs. Myra Moulton gave two pleasing piano selections. Mrs. George G. Saville read a paper on "Current Events in Art," in which she emphasized the intensely human quality in the present day art, as well as the faithful portrayal of nature. Mr. Tetford of Boston, exhibited his very artistic photographs, and spoke informally about photography. Miss Thayer then read a paper on "Clever Advertising," pointing out the various ways in which the demands of American commercialism have been met by clever artists.

Announcement was made of a lecture by Miss Carret of Milton, in the Unitarian church, Wollaston, on Wednesday, April 15. A banquet of the club was also considered, and action was left to the executive committee.

CALLED PASTOR.

The Rev. W. S. Perkins, D. D., pastor of the First Universalist church of this city has accepted the call extended to him by the First Universalist church of Wakefield. He will assume the duties of pastor of the parish May 1. Dr. Perkins succeeds the Rev. C. Guy Robbins, who resigned early in the year to accept a call to the pastorate of the Church of the Good Shepherd of Lawrence. By special arrangement the new pastor will preach at Wakefield on Easter Sunday, April 19.

MORE DIVORCES.

Among the jury waived divorces granted by the superior court at Dedham on Friday were:

Luella G. Gilmour of Braintree from Andrew W. Gilmour, for gross and confirmed habits of intoxication.

J. Gilbert Miller from Catherine S. Miller of Quincy for desertion.

Margaret Kelliher of Cohasset from Thomas Kelliher for non-support.

The children are looking forward to the annual children's festival on Saturday afternoon, April 25th at Quincy Music hall. There will be the usual attractions of May baskets, candy, ice cream and an exhibit of sewing and sloyd work in competition for prizes, also flower and garden seeds for those who wish to compete for prizes this summer for the best gardens. For entertainment there will be a hurdy gurdy for dancing, a cantata by pupils of the Adams and Crunch schools, flag drill by Y. M. C. A. boys, the Signal Corps from Atlantic, etc.

The public are cordially invited to the lecture to be given at the Wollaston Methodist church Sunday evening at 7 o'clock by Prof. John A. Nicholls. Here is what the New York Witness has to say of him: "Prof. Nicholls has been very successful as a speaker on almost every phase of the temperance question and can hold his own in a town for a week, as well as a night. He has the gift of telling the truth without offending, and can speak in a place twice with a larger audience the second time than the first."

Mrs. N. G. Nickerson is making good headway in her collection of old rubber in aid of the Visiting Nurse's salary. She wishes to remind all members of the Quincy Women's club that every piece of rubber counts no matter how small, and if each one will take one piece to the club meeting next Tuesday afternoon it will aid materially. Old rubbers, hose, water bottles, auto tires, etc., are asked for.

We have the stock, tools, machinery, and "know how" to do your Optical work promptly and satisfactory. We repair the frames, grind lenses, match the broken ones or test the eye. C. F. Pettengill, 1391 Hancock street, Quincy.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY

Twenty-Five Years Of Congregationalism At Quincy Point

The quarter-century anniversary of the Washington Street Congregational church was the occasion of the special services Friday afternoon and evening. The origin of the church dates back to 1838, at which time it was of the Methodist denomination. It continued as such until 1878, when it became a Union church. One of the pastors of this Union church was Rev. John L. Harris. He discovered that a greater part of his people were Congregationalists, and in April, 1883, the church became one of the Congregational faith.

Rev. Edward Norton was pastor of the Orthodox church as it was called at Quincy and took part in the exercises that day, extending the right hand of fellowship. He is the only living clergyman today who took part in the exercises at that time.

Rev. Mr. Harris continued as pastor of the church until 1885. The pastors since that time have been:

Rev. George Benedict, from July, to March, 1892.

Rev. W. Sherman Thompson, from July, 1892, to July, 1894.

Rev. Herbert A. Youtz from Nov. 1894, to Feb. 1896.

Rev. Morris Howland Turk, from May, 1896, to March, 1898.

Rev. Edward Anderson from Sept. 1898, to Oct. 1900.

Rev. Edward Norton, supplied from Oct. 1900, to June 1901.

Rev. Leon H. Austin, from June, 1901, to Oct. 1905.

Rev. Alfred Ray Atwood from Nov. 1905 to date.

There were many former attendants at the church on Friday and they were given a warm welcome. The interior of the edifice never looked more home-like and prosperous than it did on this occasion, and it was the subject for much favorable comment. On the table in front of the altar was a massive bouquet of carnations, and near it the original communion set which was in use up to a few years ago, and the original church Bible.

AFTERNOON MEETING.

The afternoon exercises opened at 3.30 with an organ prelude, followed by scripture reading and prayer by Rev. George Benedict of North Abington, a former pastor.

Then came the roll call of members by the pastor and Deacon T. B. Pollard. As the roll was called those present responded with a few words or a verse from scripture, while many from out of town sent letters of congratulations which were read. It was a very pretty and touching service.

From this roll call it appeared that there were now 164 past and present living members of the church. The present membership is 116 members, of which 100 are resident members. Following this Rev. Benedict spoke briefly of the work of Rev. Mr. Harris the first pastor, calling attention to the pulpit and table which were samples of his handy work.

REV. A. R. ATWOOD.

Deacon Charles H. Sherburne read the address of welcome. He spoke of the old members, and of those that had gone on. Of the pastors who had labored for the church. All of these save Mr. Harris, were living, and at work in other fields. God who was with us 25 years ago is with us today.

Rev. Dr. E. N. Hardy of the Bethany church brought the greetings from sister churches. He spoke of the signals of greeting that passed between vessels meeting at sea, showing how all humanity is one great brotherhood. There is nothing that binds us together more, he said, than that which has to do with religious life. There was not as much fellowship among churches at present as we could wish, but he felt the churches of Quincy were growing stronger. The time is coming when the churches of every name and denomination must stand together or we must fall together. He also dwelt upon the evidence of growing fellowship in Quincy, and he believed there was a future here in Quincy that will shine with religious brightness.

Rev. H. C. Alvord of South Weymouth brought the greetings of the Norfolk Conference. He said he did not come by a special commission as the conference had held no meeting, but he knew the feelings that comprised this sisterhood. They are with us in spirit. If all could be here their hearts would respond and find a living interest. You have had your joys and trials. There is no church but what has trials, so we can stand together and have one common feeling that we are called to be soldiers of Christ. The church of Jesus Christ looks forward. Not to defeat but to glorious victory.

Rev. Edward Norton spoke of 25 years of fellowship. He spoke of visiting the church and people for ten years before it became a Congregational church and the feeling of good fellowship he then found. Fellowship is what all the orders and organizations stand for, but the membership in no order did the work for man as does the church. He recalled the faces of those with whom he had fellowship 25 years ago. What a change has been wrought. What a change will be wrought in the 25 years to come.

During the exercises there was congregational singing.

THE BANQUET.

At 6 oclock a supper was served in the vestry by the Ladies Aid Society and was enjoyed by a large number. After the supper which was preceded by prayer by Rev. Mr. Simms of Braintree, Dr. E. H. Bushnell was introduced as toast master. The first toast was "Our Opportunities" and was to have been responded to by C. W. Newcomb, Mr. Newcomb was not present however, and Rev. Mr. Atwood read his letter. The letter said our opportunities had been taken advantage of in two ways. First, in the Sunday school, and second because we had increased in membership.

Mrs. Percy Holman responded to the toast "The Ladies Aid." She said in all these years the Ladies Aid had labored the debts to pay. Their motto was for Christ and the church, and what will Thou have us do. They had much to give thanks for.

Richard D. Chase responded to the toast "Witness of our organization." Mr. Chase was one of those present 25 years ago when the ship had sailed out. There were then about 200 church members in the town and a population of about 11,000. Now we hav a church membership of 1100 and a population of about 30,000. The text of the sermon that day by Dr. Herrick was "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today and forever." Who shall say that that the words have lost their lustre?

Eugene R. Stone responded to the toast "Quincy Point and church." He spoke of the conditions at the Point when he came there nine years ago and today. Then the church was struggling hard. The field of labor was not as rosy as today. Then came Mr. Atwood. He told how he had labored and worked for the church, and through whose influence the church had been repaired and refurnished. He also spoke of the work of Supt. Sherburne of the Sunday school, and the different societies that had been organized in the church.

Rev. F. G. Merrill of North Weymouth spoke on the toast "North Weymouth and Point Churches." He referred to the pleasant relations between the two churches. Mr. Atwood was of the kind who do things.

Arthur W. Newcomb's toast was "The heroic past." He said that we did not realize the work of year ago that we might have the grand and glorious heritage that we now enjoy. The great work was to gather in the foreigners that have come to us, and teach them the liberty we enjoy and what it has cost. Then the future will be safe.

Deacon Thomas B. Pollard answered to the toast, "The heroic future." First he spoke of the work of Rev. Mr. Benedict under whose ministry the church had got out of debt, and a clear title of the property obtained. He had been connected with the church for 21 years, and he felt it his home. The church ought to have a bright future, and this line ought to be the start of a movement for the good of Quincy Point and the church. We look toward a general betterment of the community.

Charles H. Johnson responded to the toast "Fresh air camp." He briefly outlined the plan of the new movement in this direction. It proposed to take societies to this camp for outings, and he asked all to join in the movement.

Rev. Ellery Channing Butler of the First church responded to the toast "Our Brotherhood." He said that there may be some differences in the churches in Quincy, but they are becoming more friendly. He spoke of the great need of the churches uniting in one common brotherhood for the good of the whole comunity. We must have unity of design. If we do not our weakness becomes magnified. We must stand together or Protestantism will fall.

Rev. Dr. E. N. Hardy was the last speaker and his toast was "Our Fellowship." He spoke along the same lines as Rev. Mr. Butler urging more harmony and fraternity among the churches of the city. Both Dr. Hardy and Mr. Butler punctuated their remarks with well told stories to illustrate the points they wished to emphasize.

EVENING SERVICE.

The evening service was held in the church proper, and was well attended. The program opened with an organ prelude and was followed by Scripture reading and prayer by Rev. E. J. Yaeger of Weymouth Heights.

The address was by Rev. F. G. Merrill of North Weymouth who took for his topic "The Church in the Community." It was a helpful address.

During the services there was congregational singing, and a solo "Hear Ye, Israel" by Mrs. E. C. Page.

The anniversary sermon Sunday morning at 10.45 will be preached by Rev. Leon H. Austin of Roslindale, former paster, whose subject will be: "The church of the past." Music will be a feature of the service. The choir will sing the anthems: "I will greatly rejoice," "Welcome, delightful morn" and "When I survey the wondrous cross." Miss Nina B. Gage will sing as a solo, "Palm branches."

At the 7.30 P. M. service Rev. W. S. Perkins, D. D., of the First Universalist church of Quincy, will give the address on "The church in the future." The choir will sing: "Jesus, Saviour, pilot me" and "Jesus shall reign."

The Sunday School will also have an anniversary service at 12 M on Sunday, when the program will be:

FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER

Free to You and Every Sister Suffering from Woman's Ailments.

I am a woman.
I know woman's sufferings.
I have found the cure.

I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from woman's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure—you, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourselves at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for Leucorrhoea or Whitish discharges, Ulceration, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors or Growths; also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousnnss, creeping feeling ur the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness, kidney and bladder troubles where caused by weaknesses peculier to our sex.

I want to send you a complete ten day's treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial; and if you should wish to continue, it will cost you only about 12 cents a week, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. SENIOR DRAMATICS

Large Audience Enjoy Plays Presented at High School

There is usually a little rain on the date selected for the senior dramatics of the Quincy High school, but nevertheless there was a full house last evening and the audience were delighted with the farce and drama presented, and also with the music by the orchestra composed of pupils.

"A Forced Friendship," was the title of the farce and the cast included:

Horace Fenchurch, (who rents apartments) — Brewster Walker
Gallop, (his man) — Harold Gore
Alicia Merrivale, (who rents apartments) — Blanche Morrison
Ernestine (her maid) — Grace Parker

The scene was in an apartment house, where Fenchurch and Miss Merrivale had both rented furnished apartments exactly alike. The two had seen each other on a train and were smitten. By mistake the gentleman entered the wrong apartments, and interesting situations followed. All took their parts well and were frequently applauded.

"Just for Fun," was the title of the drama, and was given in three acts in the drawing room of Mrs. DeSmythe in New York city. The cast included:

Mrs. Fitzgerald Mandeville DeSmyth. (would-be society leader) — Caro Sumner
Miss Edith Morton, (her niece, a Western Heiress) — Mabel Pratt
Miss Mable West, (his friend) — Beatrice Morrison
Jane McCarty, (an Irish maid-servant) — Lucile Elwell
Lord Chelsea, (an English nobleman) — William Nolan
Jack Earl, (a happy-go-lucky fellow) — John D. Gourlie

Mrs. DeSmythe planned an "at home" for her niece from the West whom she had never met. The young lady was accompanied by a friend, and they agreed between themselves to exchange places. Lord Chelsea was among the guests invited but he also had agreed with Jack Earl to exchange places. Mr. Gourlie made quite a clever nobleman, but did not always fill the bill. He soon discovered the deception of the girls, but kept it a secret. Miss Morrison, who was taking the part of the heiress also discovered the real lord and kept the secret, at the same time helping along his attachment for the real heiress.

Jane also discovered the deception of the lord and told Mrs. DeSmythe, who was very indignant because she thought her niece might marry the wrong man. Of course it all came out right, but each scene added to the interest, and all were very clever actors.

E. Landis Snyder, the musical director of the school, has reason to be proud of the High school orchestra of eight pieces which played popular music of the day between the acts. The "Merry Widow waltz" was a favorite and was encored. The orchestra includes:

Piano—Minnie Hildebrand.
Violin—Howard Allison, Elmer Carlmark, Theo H. Corey, Raymond Coyle, William Manning, Ruth Packard, Max Pinkham, Everett Rhodes, Jennie Taylor.
Cornet—Roger Bates, Alex Clark, R. A. Weston.
Cello—Maud Alletzhauser, Charles Sayward.
Double Bass—S. C. Berry.

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

Miss M. Lizzie Furnald is convalescing from her recent illness and has gone away for a few weeks of quiet and rest in the country, where it is hoped she will fully regain her health.

Miss Lillie Hicks has greatly improved her place on Spear street by the addition of the lot of land at the corner of Orchard place. The whole has been graded, sodded, walks rolled, hedges set out as well as trees and shrubs the effect being a delight to the eye and calling forth most favorable comment from passersby.

First Church Sunday school has a special service tomorrow when Supt. C. H. Johnson will give a talk on "Palm Sunday" illustrated by stereopticon. Mrs. Caroline Rice Page will sing the "Holy City" illustrated by beautiful pictures.

Holy week will be observed at Christ church with services every evening except Saturday at 8 o'clock. There will also be an ante communion service at 9 A. M. on Good Friday, and at 3 P. M. on Saturday the annual baptism service for children.

A collection is to be taken at the morning service at First church for the American Unitarian association. A fine musical program will be rendered at this service and on Easter Sunday there will be a double quartet and another specially good musical service.

Holy week will be observed at St. Chrysostom church. On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, holy communion at 7 A. M. On Wednesday also a lenten service at 12.30 P. M., and evening prayer and sermon at 8 o'clock. On Thursday at 8 P. M., preparation for Easter communion. On Friday morning prayer at 9, lenten service at 12.30, and evening prayer and address at 8 o'clock. On Easter even at 4 P. M. holy baptism will be administered.

Children competing for the prizes in sewing offered by the Education Committee of the Quincy Women's club may leave their work at Mrs. Z. A. Arnold's, 38 Coddington street, Quincy, Mrs. E. E. Jameson's, 58 Beach street, Wollaston and Mrs. W. F. Cummings', 14 Clive street, Atlantic. Sloyd work may be left at Mrs. W. O. Wellington's, 116 Prospect avenue, Wollaston and Mrs. Charles Cherrington's, 21 Clive street, Atlantic. The work will be exhibited at the Children's festival.

No man is doing more in a quiet way to improve the looks of Quincy than Mr. Henry M. Faxon. He certainly stands for good citizenship. He has made great improvement about the Quincy station with the grass plot and trees and also on the northerly side of Savil street and about the old Savil house. It is wonderful what a lawn, trees, and nicely cut edges and walks will do toward making a city attractive. He has recently fixed up the grounds about his old homestead at the corner of Coddington street with most satisfactory results. Each well kept place on a street adds to the attractiveness of the street and many real estate owners would follow Mr. Faxon's lead with mutual benefit to themselves and the city.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

HARMONY RESTORED

No Dissension Anticipated In the Empire State Convention

HUGHES LEAGUE A FACTOR

Was Not Satisfied With Proposed Delegates-at-Large, but Resolution Endorsing Their Favorite's Candidacy Changed Matters

New York, April 11.—The political atmosphere has been heavy with rumors of dissension, and for a time there were storm warnings of a fight on the Republican convention floor today against the endorsement of Governor Hughes for the presidential nomination. The air has now cleared and the original program will be carried out, probably without a hitch.

Reports of an upsetting of the prearranged plan to endorse Hughes developed from opposition in certain quarters to those slated for delegates-at-large. A meeting of the executive committee of the Hughes league, at which resolutions were passed leaving the selection of delegates-at-large to the state convention, and the arrival of Congressman Fassett from Washington with resolutions endorsing Hughes for president and commending the national and state administrations, cleared the situation of its uncertainty.

Following a meeting of the Republican state committee, to prepare the convention's temporary roll, the best opinion obtainable is that the convention today will be harmonious and the program of endorsing Hughes and naming Stewart L. Woodford, Seth Low, Frederick R. Hazzard and Edward H. Butler as delegates-at-large, with their alternates, to the Republican national convention at Chicago, will likely go through without opposition from any of the 1069 delegates to the convention who are in this city.

Until the eleventh hour yesterday it appeared to the delegates arriving here that the convention's machinery was well greased and that the business of the delegates would be expedited greatly and smoothly. The change in the situation developed last night, when State Committee Chairman Woodruff learned that all the delegates-at-large were not satisfactory to some of those identified with the Hughes league.

Coincident with these reports William L. Ward, national committeeman from this state, made a statement to the newspaper men that Taft would be nominated in Chicago on the first ballot and in the election would carry New York by a large majority.

The executive committee of the Hughes league, having been in communication with Woodruff, held a meeting late yesterday to consider the selection of delegates-at-large, after which the following statement outlining the committee's position was made public:

"At a meeting of the executive committee of the Hughes league of the state of New York it was unanimously agreed to continue the same policy heretofore pursued by the league, which is consistent with that of Governor Hughes, viz: To leave the whole matter of suggestions in reference to the selection of delegates-at-large to the national convention in the hands of the Republican organization."

Committeeman Fassett brought with him from Washington last night the resolutions endorsing the federal and state administrations and endorsing Hughes for president. The resolutions have been looked over by those actively engaged in the interests of Hughes and pronounced satisfactory, it is stated. The platform will declare for a revision of the tariff to meet existing economic conditions.

To Confer on Maritime Law

Washington, April 11.—Great Britain has extended an invitation to the great maritime powers to participate in a conference at London to determine, if possible, on definite principles of maritime international law capable of being applied by the proposed prize court provided for at the last Hague conference. The United States will be represented at this conference.

Opposition to Aldrich Bill

Washington, April 11.—There were four representatives of large commercial interests before the house committee on banking and currency yesterday, all of them opposing the Aldrich currency bill, which they declared would do no good and might result in much harm to the business interests of the country.

Sagan to Marry Anna Gould

New York, April 11.—The marriage of Prince Helie de Sagan and Mme. Anna Gould has been finally decided on. It will take place somewhere in France in June. There will be no formal announcement of the engagement in this country.

President Wants More Battleships

Washington, April 11.—President Roosevelt's known desire that the building of four battleships shall be authorized by congress during its present session may result in the sending in of a special message urging that action.

Rioting In Street Car Strike

Pensacola, Fla., April 11.—The arrival of strike-breakers here to end the street railway strike brought out serious rioting. There were several pitched battles and a number of persons were hurt.

MISS ELKINS NOT ENGAGED

Father Will Make Authentic Announcement When Time Comes

Washington, April 11.—Senator Stephen B. Elkins, in view of the reports from Rome that the rumored engagement of Miss Katherine Elkins to the Duke of the Abruzzi had been confirmed there, and that matters had progressed so far that the royal family have placed orders for the wedding gifts, last night sent to The Associated Press a statement deprecatory of current reports, as follows:

"If you can consistently, will you kindly cease the publication of dispatches and rumors of the reported engagement of my daughter. The matter has occupied the attention of the press so long and to such an extent that I feel called upon to make this request.

"While making it, I wish to state that I appreciate the kindly expressions that have appeared concerning my daughter in connection with her reported engagement. Whenever there shall be any reason to make an announcement about this matter I will be glad to give it to the press in an authentic form."

Crooked Bank Men Sentenced

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 11.—Judge Pollock sentenced C. R. Billingsley, formerly president of the Capitol National bank in Guthrie, to seven years and five months in the federal prison at Leavenworth. A. S. Hayes, formerly cashier of the First National bank of Lexington, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. Billingsley was convicted on a charge of misappropriating bank funds and Hayes for falsifying reports to the comptroller of the currency.

Cleveland's Street Railway Row

Cleveland, April 11.—The Cleveland Electric Railway company has empowered its representative to reopen negotiations with the city for a settlement of the local street railway controversy. The contest involves a lower rate of fare. Former negotiations came to a deadlock a few days ago when the mediators could not agree upon the value of the railway company's property. The move indicates a desire for peaceful settlement instead of open warfare.

Criticism From Ministers

Albany, April 11.—At a meeting of the Albany Ministerial association a resolution was adopted criticising Senator Grattan because he voted against the anti-race track gambling bills. The resolution "respectfully requests Senator Grattan to take this whole matter again into consideration, to the end that he may support the bills for the suppression of race track gambling, should they again come up in the senate."

Third Term Ghost Rises

Washington, April 11.—With the ascendancy of the Taft candidacy comes a recurrence of the third term talk, which has taken an unusual turn in that it couples the name of Senator Foraker and his co-worker, Senator Dick. Another man opposed to Secretary Taft is responsible for the statement that workers are now in the middle west and western states working for the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt.

Suspended For Political Activity

Washington, April 11.—On the recommendation of the civil service commission, William A. Kroll, an employe of the bindery of the government printing office, has been suspended for alleged pernicious political activity. B. H. Warner, Republican candidate for congress in Maryland, charged that Kroll served as chairman of political meetings in the interest of an opponent of Warner.

Settled Between Themselves

St. Paul, April 11.—The receivers of the Chicago and Great Western railroad announce that the controversy between the road and the trainmen over payment for time consumed in delays has been amicably adjusted, and that the intervention of the interstate commerce commission and the federal labor commissioner will be unnecessary.

A DISPLAY OF FORCE

Not Unlikely to Soon Occur In Venezuelan Waters

CASTRO CONTINUES DEFIANT

Refuses Arbitration of Certain Specific Claims Against His Government--Patience of United States Is at the Breaking Point

Washington, April 9.—An acute stage has been reached in the "claim" campaign against Venezuela. Detailed plans are being arranged for an imposing show of force against President Castro.

Just as soon as President Roosevelt obtains sanction from congress there will be a mobilization of a joint military and naval force in Veuezuelan waters. Secretary of State Root recommended that a show of arms be used to back up eventualities if necessary.

The general staff of the army and general board of the navy, acting under direct orders from the president, have the whole military situation under consideration. The most explicit directions are being given.

To the repeated demands made by the state department for the settlement of affairs in dispute with the South American republic Castro has several times refused an arbitration of certain specific claims.

The controversy reached a point about ten days ago where the Venezuelan-American correspondence was called for from the state department by Senator Lodge of the committee on foreign affairs, who has acted in the matter evidently with a thorough understanding with the administration, and as a concession to the clamoring claimants.

News has been received from Caracas that the highest court of Venezuela has rendered a final decision against the Manoa company and the Orinoco, by which the notorious Fitzgerald concession is annulled.

These were the specific demands the state department has pressed against Venezuela, as summarized from the lenghy communication dated Feb. 28, 1907, sent by Secretary Root to Minister Russell at Caracas. The demands of the United States are as follows:

1—Indemnity in the sum of $25,000 for the expulsion from Venezuela of A. F. Uarett, a Frenchman by birth, holding American naturalization papers.

2—An arbitration at The Hague, or some other agreed upon tribunal, for the purpose of determining whether the contract rights of the Orinoco corporation have been destroyed or the value of its concession injured by alleged unjust acts of the Venezuelan government; whether loss has been caused to the Manoa company, Limited, to the Orinoco company, Limited, and the Orinoco corporation, while they have been in possession of rights under the so-called Fitzgerald concession, from alleged acts of opposition usurpation by the Venezuelan government.

3—The reopening and resubmission to arbitration of the entire claim of the Orinoco Steamship company, operating as concessionaire and successor under the Greil concession, the case having already been submitted to an arbitration and an award made by the American-Venezuelan mixed commission.

4—An international arbitration to investigate the alleged rights of the New York and Bermuda company, operating under the Hamilton concession, and to establish the sum of its losses in consequence of alleged denial of justice to the company in civil actions.

5—That the Venezuelan government shall withdraw its opposition to the alleged rights of the United States and Venezuelan company, an asphalt concern, to carry on its business in accordance with the terms of the Guzman concession acquired by George W. Critchfield, or, second, that the rights of the company shall be determined and the damages fixed by arbitration.

True Bills In Peonage Cases

Greensboro, N. C., April 9.—The federal grand jury returned true bills on the charge of peonage against J. W. Prim, a cotton mill man, and also against the following persons connected with the construction of the South and Western railroad: D. S. Madden, J. B. Powers, J. H. Harris, Joe Tally, W. B. Radcliffe, James Finley and J. P. Elmore.

Virginians For Taft

Lynchburg, Va., April 9.—The Virginia Republicans, in state convention, adopted resolutions reaffirming Republican principles, endorsing the Roosevelt administration and instructing the four delegates-at-large to vote for the nomination of Taft at the Chicago national convention. The convention was against continuing the negro in the party councils.

Ruef Suspects Prejudice

Los Angeles, Cal., April 9.—The application of Abraham Ruef for a writ of mandamus and prohibition to prevent his trial on a charge of bribery before Judge Dowling, on the ground of alleged prejudice, was denied by the supreme court, sitting in this city.

Duke May Wed In September

Turin, April 9.—The Duke of the Abruzzi has arrived here from Spezia It is reported that his marriage with Miss Elkins will take place in September.

EASTER LOVE FEAST.

Quaint Custom of the Moravians of Lancaster County, Pa.

It is a great privilege to witness the Easter observances at the old Moravian town of Lititz, Lancaster county, Pa. In churches of this denomination the men and women sit on the opposite sides of the "meeting house," as do the Shakers and Quakers and the Harmonyites of Economy. During the love feast a number of men servers come in at the door on one side of the house and a like number of women enter from the opposite side. They carry wooden trays piled high with sweetened bread, and after they have passed this all around, the men serving the men and the women serving the women, they bring in enormous cups of steaming hot coffee. The feast is partaken of in silence on the part of the feasters, but the preacher exhorts all the while, and the band plays without ceasing. Every Moravian church has its brass band.

The love feast is held the Saturday morning preceding Easter Sunday. But in the afternoon of that day these people have a pretty custom of decorating the graves of their dead, which seems to be particularly appropriate at the Easter season since done in the faith that the dead "will rise again and live forever."

Later on in the day the mothers of the little Moravians prepare the nests of what is known to these small people as "the good rabbit." How they do shout and rejoice on Easter morning when they discover the nests all filled with colored eggs laid by the good rabbit in nests hidden in dense grass, straw piles and other hard to find places!

At 5 o'clock Easter morning the Moravian minister takes his stand on the church steps and reads a litany and the verse of a hymn, which the congregation, standing around him in the chilling dawn, take up and sing to music furnished by the church band. After this they make a second pilgrimage to the graveyard. This service is to commemorate the visit of the holy women to the tomb of Jesus. The minister bares his head and reads the Easter litany.

By this time the sun has risen, and its light gleams across graves that were yesterday strewn with flowers that are now beaded with diamond dew. It would be hard to imagine a more impressive ceremony than this. All that would seem to you and to me grewsome now dies out of the hymn, and a song full of joy and triumph, denoting "Christ has risen," seems to rise to the very heavens, and the people smile and shake hands and rejoice. The Moravians share the belief of the Irish peasantry that the sun dances on Easter morning.—Washington Post.

PIGEONS OF ST. MARK'S.

Why Venice Venerates Them, Particularly on Easter Day.

There is a tradition, now generally accepted in Venice, which tells how the great doge made a formal and ceremonious visit to the Piazza San Marco one Palm Sunday centuries ago. With him went his entire suit of officials, including the foreign ambassadors residing in Venice. The presence of this host of dignitaries, the blare of the silver trumpets that announced their coming and the magnificence of the processions greatly impressed the people of the city, who were gathered, as many as could be accommodated, on the edges of the piazza and in nearby places.

The doge was moved to show his bounty to his subjects, so he had a number of pigeons, each one weighted by having a piece of paper tied to one of its legs, released from the gallery of St. Mark above the portico where the bronze horses rear their gigantic bodies. The pigeons thus hampered were easily caught by the greedy crowd waiting in the square below, and those who were lucky enough to capture these sacred birds took them home and fatted them up for their Easter dinner. A few of the pigeons escaped and sought refuge high up in the domes of the church, where the hand of man could not reach them. The fact that the pigeons found safety in the very dome of the tomb of St. Mark worked on the superstitious natures of the multitude, and they at once believed that the good saint had given the birds protection and had thus signified his wish that the pigeons should be regarded as sacred creatures henceforth.

From that time until the present day the pigeons of St. Mark's have been safe from the sacrilegious hand of man, and ever since it has been the custom to give them extra attention and food on the anniversary of their being taken under the protection of the saint of the church. That is why everybody who is in Venice on Easter Sunday provides an extra supply of food for the pigeons of St. Mark's.—New York Herald.

Strange Good Friday Custom.

In Munich and Vienna the churches on Good Friday are the scene of a very striking picture of the burial of Christ. A figure of the Saviour is carried in state around the church to the altar, where is a sepulcher, to which access through an opening formed by artificial rocks awaits it. The windows are darkened, and through the gloom the eyes of thousands of awed worshipers are drawn to the tomb, where a solitary light illumines the white palled figure of the crucified Christ. In some parts of Austria large processions parade the streets, headed by priests riding on horses and bearing banners, with an escort of white robed choristers chanting hymns, and in Bavaria the peasants form processions, hundreds, sometimes thousands, strong, heralded by a man bearing a gigantic candle.

TYPHOID FROM MILK

Boston Health Authorities Locate Origin of Epidemic

PEDLAR HAD THE DISEASE

Continued to Test and Otherwise Handle Milk For a Long Period Without Suspecting Nature of His Illness--What Autopsy Disclosed

Boston, April 11.—The health officials of Boston who have been investigating possible sources of the typhoid fever epidemic which has spread over Jamaica Plain, where there are now 230 cases of the disease, were notified that John J. Fallon of 35 Lamartine street, Jamaica Plain, one of the pedlars for a large milk concern supplying the district, died yesterday from the disease.

The officials have spent a week in investigating the water supplies and farms from which the milk came in Worcester county, particularly in Southboro, and the analysis had developed no information regarding the source of the epidemic.

With the announcement of the death of the milk pedlar Health Commissioner Norris ordered an autopsy to be made to find out how long the man had been affected with the disease. Fallon was a driver on one of the terms in the district where the infection started and was taken to his bed about April 1.

The health officials now state that they believe the infection had its origin in Boston and will make a complete investigation on that basis. The epidemic seems to have reached high water mark in Jamaica Plain, although twenty new cases were reported yesterday. The number of cases in other nearby sections has become slightly above normal, however.

The board of health last night issued the following statement, folowing the autopsy upon the body of Fallon and the investigation into the cause of his death:

"It is now in full evidence that a man who died of typhoid fever in Jamaica Plain was suffering from this disease as early as March 15 or earlier, during which time he was at work daily testing and otherwise handling the milk supply which we have been suspecting since April 2. This man not only could have infected the said milk, but most likely did continuously for a period of at least the last half of March, having been at work handling the milk in question until March 30 without suspecting his illness."

Postoffice Plans Selected

Washington, April 11.—The board of award appointed to select plans for the new New York city postoffice building unanimously chose those submitted by McKim, Mead & White of New York, and the secretary of the treasury has approved the award. The site on Eighth avenue was purchased from the Pennsylvania Railroad company for $1,660,540.14. Congress has appropriated the sum of $100,000 for the preparation of plans.

But Little American Lace

Washington, April 11.—The United States consumed over $6,000,000 worth of lace goods last year, 90 percent of which was imported. Special reports from United States consuls in the various centers of the industry show that the principal obstacle to lace manufacture that presents itself in this country is that of wages, workers here receiving three or four times the amount paid in other countries.

Chased Negro and Was Killed

Macon, Ga., April 11.—In an attempt to make an arrest here J. J. Wimberley, a painter, was shot through the heart and instantly killed by Joe Holmes, a negro. Officers Jobson and Rogers were held at bay by Holmes, whom they attempted to arrest. Wimberley joined in the chase after Holmes, who secured a shotgun and killed Wimberley. The negro was captured.

Southern Mills Feel Depression

Charlotte, N. C., April 11.—At a meeting of the executive committee of the North Carolina Cotton Manufacturers' association here it was decided to recommend that all southern mills shut down for sixty days. The Cotton Spinners' association will assemble April 17, and it is expected that the southern mills will fall in line with the mills of this state.

The Vanderbilt Divorce Suit

New York, April 11.—The divorce case of Mrs. Elsie Vanderbilt against Alfred G. Vanderbilt will not be closed next Monday, as had been expected. It is said that counsel on both sides have indicated a desire to produce additional witnesses and that their testimony will be heard next week.

Noted Baseball Player Dead

Utica, N. Y., April 11.—Michael J. Griffin died at his home in this city from pneumonia. Griffin was for several seasons captain and for one season manager of the Brooklyn National League team. He was counted the best centre fielder in the league. He retired in 1898.

Missouri Suffers From Flood

Joplin, Mo., April 11.—One man killed, railroad traffic impeded by landslides and mines inundated are some of the features of a flood that is sweeping southwestern Missouri. Portions of Carthage are inundated.

LIVES WERE JEOPARDIZED

Supposed Incendiary Fire Destroys Two Tenement Houses

Boylston, Mass., April 11.—Fire, evidently incendiary, burned two three-story, three-tenement houses owned by George A. Flagg in Boylston Center, early this morning and threatened several others, which were saved by apparatus from Clinton and Worcester.

In the first building that caught the three families—Mrs. George A. Flagg and five children, Gustav Peterson, wife and three children, and George H. Bruso, wife and child—escaped scantily clad, saving none of their property. The second house was occupied on the third floor by the family of Edward Warren, wife and child. The property loss is estimated at $9000.

Three legal processes were served against Flagg on Thursday at the instance of his wife, who seeks to be made guardian of her husband, setting forth that he is a spendthrift and who asks for a decree of the court to prevent him from disposing of his property.

Corporations Have Come to Stay

Hartford, April 11.—Stewart L. Woodford, head of the Hughes presidential movement in New York, was the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Hartford Business Men's association last evening. He did not refer to Hughes' candidacy, but spoke in regard to the proper manner of treating corporations. The corporation, he said, has come to stay; destroy it and you will destroy the thrift of the industrious and the savings of the poor. Better far to regulate it and utilize its power in making it a stepping-stone for the future greatness of the republic. Woodford spoke at length in favor of just regulation of corporations.

Walker's Vacation Prolonged

New Britain, Conn., April 11.—E. N. Stanley, treasurer of the Savings Bank of New Britain, states that the return of Walker, the absconding cashier of the bank, to the United States will be delayed ninety days because of a writ which allows the holding of the body sixty days. Fifteen days will be consumed by the officials at Mexico City in looking over the papers, and fifteen days will be required for the papers to be taken from Ensenada to Mexico City and returned.

Man and Woman Instantly Killed

Enfield, Mass., April 11.—Struck by a flying log which suddenly jumped from a chute in the portable sawmill of William Bishop, Bishop and Miss Wilhelmina Weston, aged 17, were instantly killed. The side of Bishop's head was crushed and Miss Weston's neck was broken. Three other young women and Mrs. Bishop, who were in the party, succeeded in avoiding the flying timber and were not hurt.

Must Answer to Forgery Charge

Boston, April 11.—E. H. Dunn arrived in Boston last night, accompanied by two inspectors, coming from Chicago, where he was arrested for the Boston officers. Dunn is under indictment, charged with forging and uttering checks. He appeared in Salem and Boston in the uniform of an ensign of the United States navy and secured a large amount of goods from storekeepers.

Quarrymen Reach Agreement

Barre, Vt., April 11.—As a result of a conference between the granite quarry workers and the quarry owners, there is every probability that the strike of quarrymen, which has existed since March 1, will be settled today. The bill of wages agreed upon provides for a wage of 25 cents an hour until March 1, 1909, and after that to be 26 cents an hour.

Governor Given Veto Power

Providence, April 11.—The house of representatives, by a strict party vote, passed in concurrence with the senate an amendment to the constitution, granting the power of veto to the governor and increasing the representation in the house from 72 to 100. This result was reached only after a ten hours' session.

New Scout Cruiser In Commission

Boston, April 11.—The scout cruiser Birmingham was formally accepted yesterday for the government by Admiral Swift, commandant of the Charlestown navy yard, and Captain Peters. Owing to a delay in the receipt of necessary papers from Washington, the cruiser did not go into commission until today.

Cape Codders Scooping Herring

Buzzard's Bay, Mass., April 11.—The herring season on Cape Cod opened yesterday and at all the houses where the fish are scooped out of the swift waters as they attempt to run up the narrow sluiceway to the big ponds beyond, their spawning grounds, is all activity.

Skull Cracked and Legs Broken

Boston, April 11.—Arthur F. Walker, aged 40, was almost instantly killed by being struck by the engine of an express train while he was standing on the platform of a station in the Charlestown district. His skull was fractured and both legs broken.

Must Reduce Freight Rates

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 11.—The state board of railroad commissioners yesterday ordered reductions in freight rates in western South Dakota, ranging from 10 to 43 percent. The greatest reductions are made on immigrants' goods and groceries.

Prison For Undressed Paraders

Fort William, Ont., April 11.—Nineteen Doukhobors, nine women and ten men, were sentenced to six months in the central prison at Toronto. They were arrested for parading the streets unclothed.

AN ELECTION PRIMER

Pertinent Points About Our Election Machinery For New Voters and Old

THE SOCIALISTIC PARTIES.

Are persons holding Socialistic views represented by a national political party?

They are represented by two parties, the Socialist and the Socialist Labor.

For what does the Socialist party stand?

In its platform for 1904 the party said: "Socialism means that all those things upon which the people in common depend shall by the people in common be owned and administered. It means that the tools of employment shall belong to their creators and users; that all production shall be for the direct use of the producers; that the making of goods for profit shall come to an end; that we shall all be workers together, and that all opportunities shall be open and equal to all men." The Socialist party stands for shorter working hours, higher wages, graduated income and inheritance tax, public ownership of public utilities, complete education of children and their freedom from toil, "and for every gain or advantage for the workers that may be wrested from the capitalist system and that may relieve the suffering and strengthen the hands of labor."

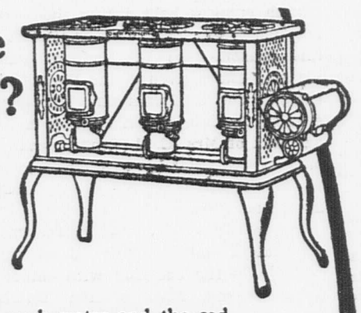
Who was the first Socialist candidate for president?

Eugene V. Debs of Indiana, who in 1904 received 402,283 votes. In 1900 Mr. Debs ran on what was called the Social Democratic ticket, receiving 87,814 votes.

When did the Socialist Labor party first appear in national politics?

In 1892, when Simon Wing was nominated for president, receiving 21,164 votes. The Socialist Labor party has not grown appreciably. In 1899 a large majority of its members seceded, uniting with the Social Democracy founded by Debs and thus forming the straight-out Socialist party.

What Stove for Summer?



Nothing adds to kitchen convenience in summer weather like a New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove. Anything that any stove can do the "New Perfection" will do, and do it better. Bakes, roasts, boils, toasts; heats the wash water and the sad irons, and does it without dissipating its heat through the room to your discomfort. The actually keeps the kitchen cool—actually makes it comfortable for you while doing the family cooking, because, unlike the coal range, its heat is directed to one point only—right under the kettle. Made in three sizes, fully warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

NEW PERFECTION

The Rayo LAMP affords a mellow light that is very grateful to tired eyes—a perfect student or family lamp. Brass, nickel plated, hence more durable than other lamps.

The Scrap Book

According to the Lord's Dictionary.

It is told of a minister, a great precisionist in the use of words, that on one occasion in the course of an eloquent prayer he pleaded:

"O Lord, waken thy cause in the hearts of this congregation and give them new eyes to see and new impulse to do. Send down thy lev-er or lee-ver, according to Webster's or Worcester's dictionary, whichever thou usest, and pry them into activity."

POINTS OF VIEW.

I would not have trusted the bee with a sting
Nor the gnat with a taste for meat;
I would not have hidden in brake and ling
The adder that haunts my feet;
I would not have bristled the hedge with thorns
Nor poisoned the berries red;
I would not have fashioned the bullock's horns
Nor riddled the night with dread.

I would not have burdened the sun with spots
Nor put out the moon so quickly;
I would not set snails in the garden plots
Nor scatter the weeds so thickly;
But, knowing the world is God's, not mine,
I fancy the gnat and the bee,
The adder, the bush and the horned kine
Must wonder why God made me.

Conscious of Her Girth.

A trolley car had collided with a milk cart and sent can after can of milk splashing into the street. Soon a crowd gathered. A man, coming up, had to stand on tiptoe and keep dodging his head about to see past a stout lady in front of him. "Goodness," he exclaimed, "what on awful waste!"

The stout lady turned and glared at him. "Mind your own business!" she snapped.—Everybody's.

He Had Already Tried.

An Irishman, going into a restaurant for the first time after coming to this country, sat down at the table with a man who was eating raw oysters. He did not know what they were, but when the waiter came to get his order he said, "Bring me some of thim things." The waiter complied with his request. Pretty soon after that he went to see if his customers desired anything else. The Irishman was sitting looking at the oysters in such a peculiar way the waiter said:

"What's the matter, sir?"

And Pat said, "Can you ate thim things?"

Waiter—Yes.

Pat—Well, let me see you ate one.

Waiter—All right.

Pat—Can you kape it down?

Waiter—Yes.

Pat—Well, you're a better mon than I am, thin, for I've had thim down twice, and they won't stay.—Judge's Library.

Selfishness Rebuked.

A poor old man, busily planting an apple tree, was rudely asked: "What do you plant trees for? You can't expect to eat the fruit of them." He raised himself up and, leaning upon his spade, answered: "Some one planted trees before I was born, and I have eaten the fruit. I now plant for others to show my gratitude when I am dead."

Her First Railroad Ride.

An old lady in Missouri took her first railroad trip the other day. She noticed the bell cord overhead, and, turning to a boy, she said, "Sonny, what's that for?"

"That, marm," he said, with a mischievous twinkle in his eye, "is to ring the bell when you want something to eat."

Shortly afterward the old lady reached her umbrella up and gave it a vigorous pull. The train was in the middle of a trestle. The whistle sounded, the brakes were pulled on, the train began to slacken its speed, windows were thrown up, questions asked, and confusion reigned among the passengers. The old lady sat calmly through it all.

Presently the conductor came running through the train and asked, "Who pulled the bell?"

"I did," replied the old lady meekly.

"Well, what do you want?" asked the conductor impatiently.

"Well," said the old lady meditatively, "you may bring me a ham sandwich and a cup of tea, please."—Butler Democrat.

Familiar.

"I've seen you haul away many a load of ashes," said a resident of Mobile, Ala., to an old darky as he was preparing to depart with the customary load. I've never had the least idea of your name. What is it?"

"Mah name is Gawge Washin'ton, sah."

"George Washington, eh? It seems to me I've heard that name before."

"Reckon you has, sah, 'cause I's been haulin' 'way ashes from yo' house fo' more'n ten years."

A Wonderful Country.

An Irish contractor in San Francisco sent to Ireland for his father to join him. The journey was a great event for the old man, who had lived in rural districts all his life, and he reached San Francisco much excited.

After several days of sightseeing, his son resumed his business and suggested that his father should visit the Presidio.

"And phwat's the Presidio?" asked the old man.

"The Presidio, father, is the government reservation for the soldiers—a fine bit of park—and you'll enjoy yourself."

At the end of a strenuous day the old man stood gazing at the big buildings, comparing them with the small huts of his old home. Seeing a soldier near, he tapped him on the shoulder.

"Me bye, phwat's that string of houses forninst us?"

"Why, those are the officers' quarters."

"And that wan with the big smokestack?"

"That's the cook shanty."

"Shanty, is it? Well, 'tis a great country! 'Tis palaces they're using."

The young man offered to show him the new gymnasium. On the way the sundown gun was discharged just as they passed. The old man, much startled, caught his companion's arm.

"Phwat's that, now?"

"Sundown," replied his friend, smiling.

"Sundown, is it? Think of that, now! Don't the sun go down with a terrible bump in this country!"—Lippincott's.

De Jure and De Facto.

"Are you up on Latin, my dear?"

"What do you want to know?" she inquired, with proper caution.

"I want to know the difference between de jure and de facto."

"Well," she said, studying a moment, "you are at the head of this family de jure."

"Yes, I understand that."

"And," she concluded, with some vigor, "I am the head of it de facto."

Didn't Admire Mrs. Cleveland.

A voluble young girl was one day going from New York to New London when she found herself seated next to a pleasant faced woman who spoke to the girl, and after awhile the talk drifted to general topics.

"Do you know," said the girl, "speaking of lovely women, I was reading about Mrs. Grover Cleveland today. She is my ideal of a lovely woman," and the girl launched forth into a torrent of extravagant praise of the once mistress of the White House. Suddenly the girl perceived that her companion was rather unresponsive.

"Perhaps you don't agree with me about Mrs. Cleveland?" asked the girl.

"I know her," said the woman.

"Don't you admire her?"

"Well, no, not especially."

The girl changed the subject.

At Greenwich the lady rose to leave the train, and as she was leaving she said to the girl: "I get out here. I'm visiting some friends. I hope some time we may meet again. Here is my card."

When the train had started again the girl looked at the card to find printed thereon:

"Mrs. Grover Cleveland."—Ladies' Home Journal.

No Discrimination.

"It is very good of you, sir, to give me your seat."

"Not at all, mum," said Pat. "It's a dooty we owe to the sex. Some folks only do so when a woman is young and pretty, but I says the sex, and not the individual."

An Endless Chain.

When Lord Archibald Campbell fell in love with Miss Janet Callander and went to his father, the Duke of Argyll, for his approval of the engagement, the duke said: "I'm delighted. Nothing could be better, but—er—er—hadn't you better let me speak to Lorne? He might think we ought to consult the princess." So to his brother, the Marquis of Lorne, now the Duke of Argyll, they went, and he certainly thought that his wife should be consulted as to who should be admitted into the family. "If Archie likes her, she suits me down to the ground," said the princess impulsively, "but, you know, I think I ought to speak to the queen." Her late majesty graciously approved of the match. "But, Louise, I think I ought to consult our German cousin first," she said, and accordingly wrote to the German emperor. The kaiser, the present emperor's grandfather, remembered having met Miss Callander and approved of the match, but left his letter open because he did not care to answer finally without consulting Bismarck. The kaiser found his chancellor and, telling him of the proposed alliance, asked what he thought. When his sovereign had finished Bismarck blew a cloud of smoke and replied: "Me? Oh, I don't care a hang!"

The Same One.

A young country minister, who had been presented with a horse by a rich farmer parishioner, rode the animal home to exhibit him to his father. The old gentleman studied the horse carefully and observed that he seemed very aged and infirm.

"Well, father, you ought not to complain of him even if he is old and feeble. It is a good deal better animal than our Saviour rode into Jerusalem nineteen hundred years ago."

"I don't know, John. I think it's the same animal."

His Disease.

Congressman Hamilton of Michigan went out for a walk in the country. The day was hot, and when he had gone a few miles he sat on a fence to rest.

"Want a ride?" asked a teamster who came by.

"Yes, thank you," Hamilton replied.

Hamilton was thinking of a plan to get a bridge for the Paw Paw river and said nothing. Finally the teamster asked, "Professional man?"

"Yes."

The teamster wanted further information. A few minutes later he said: "You ain't a lawyer or you'd be talking. You ain't a doctor or you'd have a satchel. You ain't a preacher because you cussed when you barked your shin getting into the wagon. Say, mister, what is your profession anyhow?"

"I am a politician."

"Huh," snorted the teamster, "politics ain't no profession. Politics is a disease!"

Dutch Supper And Entertainment

A fitting climax to the series of church suppers held during the past fall and winter, and now ended for this season, was the unique and pleasing affair given at the Wollaston Congregational church on Thursday evening, April 9. Under the able management of Mrs. E. S. Tenney, chairman of the committee in charge, a typical Dutch supper and entertainment was given.

The lecture room of the church was elaborately and tastefully decorated suitable to the occasion with embellishments suggestive of the Dutch Holland etchings, photogravures, calendar illustrations, lined the walls. The floral decorations were wholly Dutch tulips and hyacinths. A beautiful dado of tulips, red and yellow mounted on a background of white, was strung completely around the lecture room.

The supper was Hollandish throughout, frankfurters, baked beans, potato salad, apple sauce, Dutch biscuits, apple schnitsch, apple pie, coffee and Dutch cocoa.

The water carriers who served the guests with drinking water from a typical Dutch yoke and buckets, Master Norton Nickerson being the carrier and Miss Marion Baker, the server, both dressed typically Dutch, even to the feet clods, was a feature of the evening.

The entertainment following the supper was distinctly Hollandish. It consisted principally of tableaux with Dutch music, recitings and readings, interspersed.

The program was:

1. Tableau—In the Tulip Field—Miss Esther Murray, Miss Gladys Kingman.
2. Tableau—The Flower Belle—Miss Marjorie Gould.
3. Tableau and Song Reading—A Little Dutch Garden—Miss Marie Dickey, Miss Margaret Harding, Master Norton Nickerson. These were assisted by Mrs. N. R. Hoover in the song reading, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. John Locke.
4. Piano Duet—Miss Gladys Bain, Miss Helen Seavey.
5. Tableau—Little Dutch Girl in every Package—Miss Esther Murray.
6. Tableau—Typical Dutch Street Scene—Miss Marie Dickey, Miss Gladys Kingman.
7. Tableau—Watching for Fathers' Boat—Miss Mary Murray, Miss Esther Murray, Master Franklin Streeter.
8. Reading—The Hair Cut Boy—Mrs. A. P. Thompson.
9. Tableau—National White Lead—Master Franklin Streeter.
10. Three Tableaux—Hints to Housewives.
    1 Old Dutch Cleanser—Miss Avis Tobey.
    2 If it isn't an Eastman it isn't a kodack—Miss Caroline Lewis, Miss Gladys Bain, Miss Mary Murray.
    3 Van Camp's Pork and beans—Miss Gladys Kingman, Master Franklin Streeter.

The Committee in charge of the affair was as follows:—Mrs. Tenney, chairman, Mrs. Harding, Mrs. John Thompson, Mrs. A. P. Thompson, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Tobey, Mrs. Streeter, Mrs. Hoover, Mrs. Locke, Mrs. Murray, Mrs. Wiley, and Mrs. Cable.

At the Scenic.

The Scenic promises some excellent features in the vaudeville bill for next week, when the following artists will do their best to entertain the patrons of this popular place of amusement: Mons. Herbert and his musical dining table is a refined musical act that never fails to attract attention. Bert Lewis an exceptionally clever monologist, and May Russell, a particularly comely comedienne, contributes some singing and talks. Nellie LeMar remains another week.

Team 2 of the Y. M. C. A. bowling league (Capt. Giles) defeated Team 1 (Capt. Andrews) last night two out of three. The championship goes to the Sandberg team. A supper is being planned when the prizes and medals will be awarded.

The John Hancock school scored another victory yesterday by beating the Lincoln school team by a score of four to three.

those who do not conform to those resolutions.

It was also voted:—That a circular letter, setting forth the facts in the case be prepared and sent to all the ministers of the city, respectfully asking them to urge their parishioners from the pulpit to see the Councilmen who represent them, and also His Honor the Mayor, with a view to restricting the number of permits.

It was also voted:—That petitions be circulated in the various wards of the city protesting against any increase in the number of expressmen authorized to transport liquor into our city.

It is the earnest desire of the executive and advisory committees of the Citizens No-License League that all individuals who are anxious to keep liquor out of the City of Quincy make a special effort to see the Councilmen who represent their ward, the Councilmen at-large, and also the Mayor, and urge them to carry out the wishes of the citizens as expressed so emphatically and universally at our last election.

LATEST!

The latest dispatches from Chelsea place the loss at $12,000,000. The extent of the fire was one and one-half miles. Eighty-five person are missing, two men and one woman dead, and hundreds injured. Three hunder and fifty buildings were burned.

RELIEF MEETING CALLED BY MAYOR

Mayor Shea has called a public meeting of the citizens to be held in the Council chamber, City Hall, at 8 o'clock tonight, to take action on the relief of the sufferers by the fire in Chelsea. An advertisement will be found in another column, and the Mayor has also covered the city with flyers. Let Quincy respond nobly and do her full share and a little more.

Mayor Shea sent the following telegram to Mayor John E. Beck of Chelsea this morning:

John E. Beck, Mayor of Chelsea:

Quincy extends its heartfelt sympathy to your stricken city, and will render you any assistance in our power.

William T. Shea, Mayor.

QUINCY MEN LOSE AT CHELSEA

Henry M. Faxon was one of the heavy losers by the Chelsea fire on Sunday. Mr. Faxon had seventeen houses in the city, twelve of which were totally destroyed. When seen Mr. Faxon said that his loss was fully covered by insurance.

Remick Bros., the Music hall block clothiers, were also losers by the fire. Their Chelsea store was located in a block on Broadway between Everett and Second streets, and was entirely destroyed. Mr. Remick was at the fire and witnessed the burning up of his building. The residence of Mr. Remick of Chelsea was saved.

Addison Bros., jewelers, of which firm T. A. Addison of Quincy Point is a member, was burned out, their store being located in the Broadway block. Mr. Adison was notified by telephone at 12.30 by the Protective Association that his store was threatened, and he hastened to the scene. The fire had not communicated with the building when he arrived, and he was able to get out some things. Entering the building he opened the safe while the water was coming through the building onto him. He took out all the watches and jewelry that had been left for repair and some precious stones. These were wrapped in a rubber blanket and carried to a place of safety in an automobile. He was driven from the store by fire before he was able to remove any of his stock.

SAD SUNDAY FOR CHELSEA.

HALF THE CITY GONE

Flames Relentlessly Wipe Out Homes And Business Blocks Thousands Homeless

Chelsea, Mass., April 13.—A northwest gale fanned a small, insignificant fire into a vast conflagration yesterday, completely obliterating fully one-half the city, destroying five hundred dwelling houses and public buildings, drove fifteen hundred families from their habitations and rendered ten thousand people homeless.

The fire area, which was in the form of an elipse, extended for a mile and a half and was only ended when the water was reached at Chelsea creek. Starting from a blacking factory at the northwestern end of the city at about 10:30 a. m., it marched relentlessly through the business section and destroyed tenement houses on either side by the hundreds.

Assistance from all the nearby cities was called in, but the great battery of fire apparatus was unable to stop the flames until dark. In the meantime the fleeing inhabitants were met by a vast crowd of spectators, so that it was necessary to call for troops, and the United States government and the state militia were drawn upon to maintain order and keep the fire lines clear for the fighting.

All the banks, more than three-quarters of the churches, fully half of the business section and nearly all the schoolhouses were wiped out.

In the turmoil many of the sick and infirm found difficulty in obtaining assistance and several were forgotten, so that the number of known dead is four. Three of these had been burned to death and one woman committed suicide as her house caught fire.

Relief work for the care of the homeless was begun within six hours after the fire started and at 10 o'clock last night was in full swing, under the leadership of the state board of charity. Fortunately the weather was springlike, so that suffering from exposure was not severe.

The greater number of buildings destroyed were of wood. It was easy, therefore, for the fire to jump over a block and start afresh beyond the reach of the engines which happened to be stationed at the last point of attack. A great many instances were noted of buildings five and six hundred feet away from the flames bursting out into a fierce blaze, so that the fight against the progress of the fire for five or six hours seemed almost hopeless.

Progress of Flames Checked

The principal stand made by the firemen was late in the afternoon in Central square to prevent the flames from extending west and south, following which the gale would almost surely have carried them into three of the heaviest manufacturing plants in the city. This fight was won at 8 o'clock last night, and after that it was merely a question of the fire burning itself out among the ruins hedged in on all sides by a strong army of apparatus.

The fire burned over an area of about one square mile. It started near the corner of Cypress and Third streets and the northwest gale sent it straight to the southeast, which spread out as it advanced until its northerly boundary reached the Boston and Maine railroad, along the tracks of which it extended to the junction with the tracks of the Boston and Albany railroad, over which it swept until stopped by a small creek.

On the other side the fire was held along Second street until Broadway was reached and then along Essex and Middlesex streets to the waterfront at Chelsea creek. From Third street, where it started, to the waterfront is about a mile and a half, while its greatest width was about a half a mile. The fire did not stop at the edge of Chelsea creek, but jumped over into East Boston, where it licked up half a dozen houses and several well-filled tanks of the Standard Oil company.

Rescue work during the exciting periods of the fire was one of the features. Many persons refused to leave their homes until dragged out by the police and militia, while at the Frost hospital, which was directly in the path of the flames, patients were removed with great difficulty, and twenty babies taken out of the day nursery by patrolmen only a few minutes before the buildings caught fire.

Among the buildings destroyed were all the banks and many public buildings.

City Under Martial Law

Late last night the city was placed under martial law, and all the military forces, numbering about 1500 men, guarding the burned district and places where goods were stored were organized systematically under Adjutant General Brigham of the state militia. With the first signs of looting orders were issued to supply the soldiers with ball cartridges and they were empowered to shoot anyone found pilfering. The artillerymen were assigned to cover the actual burned district and the members of the infantry companies were stationed in small groups around the piles of household goods which were scattered through those sections of the city not reached by the flames.

What might have been more serious results from the explosion of the Tide Water Oil company tanks was probably prevented by the prompt action of the marines from the Charlestown navy yard, who hauled a small cannon to the tanks when they were first threatened and perforated the bottom of the tanks in a dozen places with small shot, allowing the oil to escape and lessening the force of the explosion, which was inevitable.

Militia on Duty

The militia call brought out the First company, coast artillery, in order to guard property moved into the streets from buildings in the path of flames. The marines at the Charlestown navy yard, on request of Mayor Beck, were sent to the fire. Rear Admiral Swift also sent out all the men from the receiving ship Wabash who were not already off on liberty. These sailors were not sent under command of any officer, but were instructed to give their services wherever needed.

METROPOLITAN IMPROVEMENTS COMMISSION.

20 Beacon Street, Boston.

NOTICE OF

PUBLIC HEARINGS APRIL 14 and 15

The Metropolitan Improvements Commission, appointed under Chapter 108, Resolves of 1907, will give two public hearings on April 14 and 15 respectively, in the Hearing Room of the Board of Railroad Commissioners, No. 20 Beacon Street, Boston, at two o'clock P. M.

This Commission is investigating the advisability of public works in the the Metropolitan District tending to the convenience of the people, the development of business, the beautifying of the district, or its improvement as a place of residence.

It is also considering the establishment of a systematic method of communication by highways, the control and direction of traffic and transportation, and the location of docks and terminals.

Any person desiring an opportunity to offer suggestions or to be heard by the Commission upon any of the above matters will be given such opportunity at the public hearings hereby notified.

QUINCY TO AID

Steamer 1 and Combination 1 Do Heroic Work At Chelsea Fire

The most conspicuous white spot in the black area of Chelsea today is that portion of the City saved largely through the efforts of the Quincy fire apparatus, and Quincy firemen under the direction of Chief Williams of Quincy, bounded by Pearl, Essex, Hawthorne and Marginal streets. Their work attracted the attention of those who happened to be in the vicinity. It is shown the best on the map of the burned district printed by the Boston Journal. The Quincy steamer was located on Marginal street near the corner of Hawthorne street, with Capt. Charles P. Costa as engineer and William J. Sands of the Wollaston company as fireman. Combination 2 of Atlantic driven by Faxon Billings run the line from the steamer up the hill on Hawthorne to Essex street. At that time the north-easterly side of Essex street was on fire and it seems as though the southwesterly side between Hawthorne and Pearl was doomed. Not a building in this block, however, was burned, although the flames destroyed the City Hall school of stone at the southeast corner of Essex and Hawthorne, and also the buildings at the other end of the block near Chelsea Square where the hottest fire raged until late in the evening.

It was 4.45 when the Quincy engine took her stand. Nearby on Hawthorne, street was the Newton steamer, but it became too hot for her hosemen and they relocated.

Chief Williams had with him however the best company of fire fighters in the city, viz: Capt. John McKenna, Cornelius O'Connors, Daniel Golden, Daniel McNiece, Thomas Leary, Miles Cremer, John Credon and Walter P. Hill, who were assisted by Charles Hill.

Chief Williams was told to check the fire there if he could. The steamer behaved beautifully under her skilfull engineer, playing continuously for four hours and 15 minutes at one stand, and no fire was allowed to come within 700 feet. A water pressure of 150 pounds was maintained. Not only was the entire block saved but Chief Williams went across Essex street and materially helped in saving the large three story wooden carriage manufactory of Lynch Bros. at the corner of Essex and Pearl street.

For an hour or more Quincy firemen were alone at this spot, and were in the thickest of it. They were without ladders, but with a building burning fiercely on one side of an alley way they went into the alley and played on the building opposite which was next to the carriage manu-

Flames Relentlessly Wipe Out Homes and Business Blocks

SAD SUNDAY FOR CHELSEA

Ten Thousand People Homeless, and All the Banks, Most of the Churches, and Nearly All the Schoolhouses Burned--Fifteen Hundred Soldiers Supplied With Ball Cartridges and City Placed Under Martial Law

Marines with fixed bayonets held back the crowds while the militia and sailors helped families remove their goods. Advance squads of the military and police were sent ahead warning out families living in the course of the fire, which leaped block after block with astonishing rapidity. The crowds generally were easily handled. Occasionally some excited house-owner would burst through the cordon of militia and marines to dash into a house for some forgotten valuables, but the presence of so many uniformed guards overawed the rougher element.

A force of National Guardsmen, called to control the streets of the burned section, was increased last night by the arrival of company L of the Fifth infantry, company B of the Eighth infantry, and the Fifth corps, coast artillery. A marine guard was also on duty, four squads of marines being placed to protect valuable safes in the ruins of different buildings.

A detail of seventy-five policemen from Boston under five sergeants were stationed at various entrances to the city, with orders to prevent anybody from coming in with the exception of firemen, policemen, soldiers and newspapermen. The police of Winthrop and Everett also sent assistance.

Efforts to Save Household Goods

Over Chelsea bridge into East Boston streamed a long line of fire refugees lugging what few household effects they were able to save. Vehicles of all descriptions, automobiles, pushcarts, drays, carriages and even baby carriages were piled high with furniture and bedding. Hundreds of people carried only huge bundles tied up in sheets. These were mostly grey-headed women of the foreign class.

Among these poor people there did not seem to be any panic. There was no crying or wringing of hands. All seemed too stunned by the disaster that had wiped out their homes. These people seemed mostly of the poorer class, who could not afford to lose what little they possessed, with factories and mills closed down or earnings reduced by half-time work. Pictures, trunks, bedding and chairs streamed out over the bridge, being scarcely noticed by the dense throngs that moved towards the fire from Boston, too preoccupied with the flames and heavy pall of smoke sweeping in swift panorama before them to take notice of the misery and suffering passing by.

In the burning district itself sidewalks were piled high with household articles. In most cases these goods were abandoned to the flames. Bedding and furniture blazed in the streets, and were caught up by the gale and hurled into doorways and on roofs, setting other houses on fire. Several of the large type of cars used by the Boston Elevated railway, abandoned when it was found necessary to shut off the power, were left helpless in streets swept by the flames. Many invalids were carried by on stretchers, and furniture vans whose drivers were waiting for bargains were pressed into use by the police to remove the sick.

How the Fire Started

The fire started among a lot of old rags scattered about the dump in the rear of 265 Second street, near the Everett line, occupied by many Jewish dealers in old rags and junk. It is supposed the cause was spontaneous combustion.

The old rags, which had been brought from a fire in another street by the owner, Isaac Rubens, about two months ago, had been thoroughly wet down in the heavy rain of last Friday night. This had caused the oil in some of the rags to spread. The hot sun of Saturday and Sunday morning, it is thought, caused certain chemical actions which brought about spontaneous combustion.

When the rags burst into flame it was easy for the high northwest wind to carry the sparks to the building of the Boston Blacking company, near by, and thence to other buildings, the great conflagration being the result.

In the ferocious gale shingles, burning paper and oil soaked rags were flung high into the air and went soaring over the city. Soon a dozen factories and cheaper tenement houses west of Everett avenue were in flames and the firemen were utterly unable to cope with the conflagration.

Realizing fully for the first time that the city was doomed if the flames could not be stopped at Everett avenue, Fire Chief Spencer ordered a general alarm of fire to be sounded and summoned help from Boston and all the surrounding cities and towns. Four alarms of fire were sounded in Boston and all the available apparatus was sent to the city across the harbor. A two-alarm fire in the city of Boston, however, prevented as many engines being sent across the ferry as would otherwise have been possible. By noon, however, help had arrived from Everett, Lynn, Haverhill, Wakefield, Salem, Malden, Cambridge, Winthrop and Revere.

Loss Will Reach $7,500 000

Everett C. Benton of the insurance firm of John C. Paige & Co., Boston, after a cursory investigation of the fire, gave out the statement this morning that it was his belief that the total fire loss would reach $7,500,000, of which $5,000,000 was covered by insurance. He declared the insurance companies would have no difficulty in meeting every obligation.

City Densely Populated

Chelsea was settled in 1630. In the year 1739 it became a town, and in 1857 a city. The population in 1905 was 37,289. It is one of the ports of entry adjoining Boston on the northeast. It is connected with Boston by ferry and electric cars. It is the home of many and varied industries. Of late years the dealings in old junk and rags have become most extensive.

With the exception of Hoboken, N. J., Chelsea is the most densely populated city in proportion to its area of any incorporated municipality in America. The city officials of Chelsea have estimated that, with but two-thirds of the acreage devoted to residences, the average population per acre is more than 36 persons. The population of the city is said to be increasing at a rate of about 1000 a year.

Along both sides of Everett avenue, in the section bounded by Spruce, Fifth and Williams streets and Broadway, the congestion is the greatest.

In this section are gathered nine-tenths of the Hebrew population, estimated at about 6000 persons. On the opposite side of this congested space are the extensive United States hospital grounds.

Chelsea is distinguished for being one of the smallest cities in area in the United States, as well as one of the most densely populated. In 2 1-3 square miles she houses her 37,000 inhabitants. At one time this was a farm that was leased for $150 a year and $25 of that went annually to Harvard college.

Legislature Will Act

Boston, April 13.—One of the first things that will confront the legislature today is the problem of passing such legislation as will grant relief to the devastated city. It is said that the general court will probably be asked to declare a holiday period of three days or more in order to give the business men of Chelsea who have lost their records and much cash and securities time to meet the demands of notes pending.

Acting Governor Draper, it is said, will send to the legislature a special message embodying this suggestion. It is also anticipated that Chelsea will be permitted to issue a loan for the purpose of getting her streets into condition for business and to provide herself with temporary headquarters for municipal government.

Denounced by Church Brethren

Auburn, N. Y., April 13.—Several hundred persons attended a mass meeting in the First Methodist Episcopal church and applauded enthusiastically while six speakers vigorously denounced State Senator Wilcox's action in voting against the anti-race track bills. The senator is a member of the church. Resolutions were unanimously adopted, demanding that the senator reconsider his vote, if given the opportunity in the future.

Fine Work With Æroplane

Paris, April 13.—Leon de la Grange broke the record for distance in his areoplane, covering in an official trial two miles and a half in six minutes and thirty seconds. The previous best record was something less than two miles. Later de le Grange, in an unofficial trial, covered seven miles in nine minutes and thirty seconds. As, however, he lightly touched ground twice during the flight, the total distance was not counted.

Would Get After Anarchists

Madrid, April 13.—The partisans of Premier Maura are using President Roosevelt's anti-anarchist message as an argument in favor of the new government bill imposing severe penalties against anarchists. The Liberals and Republicans are opposing more stringent measures, fearing, they state, that the Conservative governments might use such laws against their political adversaries.

Prize Fight Swindlers

Chicago, April 12.—James Hall, formerly a middleweight pugilist, was arrested on a charge of promoting "fixed" prize fights. Five other men were arrested with Hall, and the police say the prisoners obtained considerable sums from residents of western states by persuading them to bet on a glove contest between members of the gang.

Taft Returns to Washington

Washington, April 13.—Secretary of War Taft returned here yesterday after an absence of about ten days in the west, where he made a number of addresses. It is the secretary's intention to remain in Washington until next Saturday, when he will go to New York city to deliver an address.

Ideal Lumbering Conditions

Fredericton, N. B., April 13.—Lumber operators from the head of the St. John river say that conditions are all that could be desired and that prospects are excellent. A foot of heavy snow fell on the upper St. John last week and snow is now more than three and a half feet deep.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Boston Theatre.

In announcing "The Sign of the Cross" as the Boston Theatre attraction for one more week beginning Monday Manager Morison appears to have met the desires of a very large public. The character of the play is quite in keeping with the Lenten season and the hearty endorsement that it has been given by the clergymen of various denominations who have witnessed it at Manager Morison's invitation has created a desire to see this production on the part of many who seldom attend theatrical performances. The high standard of the productions at the Boston Theatre has been fully maintained in "The Sign of the Cross" in the matter of stage settings, costumes etc., and the several members of the company have become thoroughly identified with the characters they impersonate.

Keith's Theatre.

A program remarkable for its all around strength it that arranged for week at Keith's. Proof of this statement is plainly apparent when the names of Wilfred Clarke and company, "A Night With the Poets," Vasco, La Maze Brothers, Elsie Faye and Boys, Sam Williams, and Alexander and Bertie are mentioned as sure to be among those present. There is no livelier farce than "What Will Happen Next?" and it is played up to the handle by Wilfred Clarke and his company. It is full of droll incidents and bright dialogue, and there is not a moment when the action drags. "A Night With the Poets" is one of the most artistic novelties vaudeville has ever known.

Orpheum.

The vaudeville event of the week of April 13th will be the first appearance in Boston, of Miss Rosie Lloyd. The youngest of the famous vaudeville family, of which Marie Lloyd is the best known, Rosie Lloyd will make her debut at the Orpheum theatre. She was the last of the three remarkable comediennes—all—sisters—to come to America, and she has been, perhaps, the most popular. She has all the mannerisms of her elder sisters, is still a very young girl, and has had the greatest success in securing songs especially adapted to her style of work. She has been for several months the sensation of the New York vaudeville theatres, and her appearance at the Orpheum will be the first outside of the metropolis.

Park Theatre.

Special efforts are being put forth by the management of the Park theatre, Boston, to take care of out of town theatregoers who are desirous of seeing Miss Rose Stahl in James Forbes' comedy "The Chorus Lady." Miss Stahl's success in this play since she made her first appearance in Boston four weeks ago has been so pronounced that a record breaking demand for seats has resulted. In order that persons living outside the city may be properly taken care of a special suburban ticket department has been created and mail orders accompanied by remittance will receive prompt and careful attention. In the language of a well-known Boston critic Miss Stahl has "taken the town by storm." It is seldom indeed that an actress is able to give a stage character the vogue that Miss Stahl has brought to Patricia O'Brien, member of the chorus. As a matter of fact it is next to impossible to separate Miss Stahl and Patricia, so closely are they allied.

Castle Square Theatre.

The attraction at the Castle Square theatre the week beginning April 13, will be a production of "Out of the Fold," a rural drama in four acts, by Langdon McCormick. This will be the first time that this piece has been seen in Boston, although it ran one whole summer at Chicago, at the Great Northern theatre, and was played eigth weeks in New York last fall. It has been described by the newspaper critics as a second "Old Homestead," and it is said to be a very "Lesson from Life." The story is that of a young woman who has come to the country from the city, where her life has not been altogether blameless. She wishes to reform, but the people of the village grow suspicious of her from the very fact that they know nothing about her,—she receives no letters, knows no one, and no one comes to see her,—and the suspicions finally ripen into open hostility, and she is in truth "Out of the Fold." The only one who befriends her is Nolan Craig, the young schoolmaster, whose kindness to the young woman of course gives rise to gossip in the village, and results in his being thrown "out of the fold." The piece will be given a very elaborate production and it is sure to attract unusual attention.

Tremont Theatre.

"The Man of the Hour," at the Tremont theatre, reaches the unusual dignity of 100 performances continuously in one house with the performance of Monday evening April 13th. In appreciation of the phenomenal patronage bestowed by the intelligent theatre-going public of New England, which has made such an event possible, Messrs. Brady and Grismer will present every lady attending the century performance, on the date above named, one of the handsomest and mose useful souvenirs ever given away in any theatre in America. The souvenir is in the form of a very pretty Swiss clock,—a real timekeeper, not a toy,—and is alone worth the price of the seat, which entitles the holder to receive one. The play itself, about, which all New England has been talking for months, needed no such inducement as the presentation of a souvenir to secure increased attendance, because the theatre is filled at every performance. The matinees are on Wednesday and Saturday. "The Man of the Hour" will be seen nowhere in New England except at the Tremont theatre, Boston.

We have the stock, tools, machinery, and "know how" to do your Optical work promptly and satisfactory. We repair the frames, grind lenses, match the broken ones or test the eye. C. F. Pettengill, 1391 Hancock street, Quincy.

CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace Of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

BIRTHPLACES OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Admission charged.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural momuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb, reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock cemetery across the street from First church contains many old stones. Among the old graves are those of Henry Adams founder of the Adams family who died Oct. 5, 1646; Rev. William Thompson, 1st pastor over the Braintree church who died Dec. 10, 1666; Rev. Henry Flint who died Oct. 11, 1668; Rev. John Hancock father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744 and many other notable people.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

SURGERY A NECESSITY.

Dr. Maurice H. Richardson Quotes Figures to Defend Use of Knife.

From the Boston Transcript.

By way of refuting some of the popular notions regarding surgeons and surgery, Dr. Maurice H. Richardson at the Harvard Medical school, Sunday afternoon, set forth the absolute need of resorting to the knife in certain cases. His topic was: "Dangerous popular delusions concerning surgical diseases."

The idea that the surgeon lacks sensibility and is more or less indifferent to human suffering and may even perform an operation when not absolutely necessary for the sake of the fee, he declared to be all wrong. He said that the contrary is plainly shown by the fact that the surgeon is constantly laboring to make his profession unneccesary, by preventing the recurrence of the diseases for which he operates, as well as by endeavoring to cure without resorting to operation.

The doctor was particularly severe on persons who deny that there is any such thing as disease and who will undertake to cure malignant disease without expert diagnosis or proper scientific treatment. He declared that such theories are derived from "mere craziness or faulty intelligence," that they are beyond the pale of argument, and it is a waste of time to attempt to refute them.

To prove his contention, Dr. Richardson illustrated the nature of a variety of internal surgical diseases, principally related to the digestive organs, by sketches on the blackboard, showing how, in many cases, a patient may be snatched from almost certain death and restored to health by a comparatively simple operation, and making it clear just what the operation would be, and how the consequences of failure to operate would come about.

"As instances specially demonstrating the value of surgery, Dr. Richardson cited intestinal peritonitis, of which he said, 662 cases were operated on, last year at the Massachusetts General hospital, with only 16 deaths. Surgery is almost as sure a cure, he added, in appendicitis, if resorted to soon enough.

"A popular delusion that the surgeon is simply looking for an opportunity to keep busy all the time," he declared results in thousands and thousands of deaths of sufferers who are persuaded by friends not to submit to operation, until it is too late to save the patient."

Dr. Richardson admitted a personal aversion to vivisection, but he declared that it must be continued, for it results in a great good to humanity.

The lecturer had a capacity audience and some who arrived before the hour for the talk were denied admittance because of the rule that the doors shall be closed when the seats are filled.

ARBOR DAY APPEAL.

The Civic committee of the Quincy Women's club is desirous of doing some systematic tree planting on city streets and has selected Coddington as one in need of shade trees. No street is more used by residents of the city as a whole, as it is the thoroughfare to Mt. Wollaston cemetery and beaches beyond. The committee wishes to set out maple and elm trees from Washington street corner to the Adams farm to connect with those set out years ago by Mr. John Quincy Adams. Although Mr. Patterson the Wollaston florist has agreed to furnish the trees for $60 hundred it will take considerable money as over two hundred will be needed. The Civic committee treasury cannot at the present time put more than $60 into the cause which would be half of the cost of the trees. One member has contributed personally $25 and others will pay for several trees. Would any of the abutters, Coddington school children, or tree loving citizens care to contribute financially in this good work? If so it would be greatly appreciated by the committee.

Annie L. Prescott,
for the Committee.

Grand Jury Report.

There are a number of Quincy cases in which true bills were found by the Norfolk grand jury, which reported last week. Among the Quincy cases are Charles J. Stewart and Martin F. Bigelow, for breaking and entering.

Louis Kaughman and Dora Klagman for adultery.

Timothy Duggan of Quincy, for assault and battery on Elizabeth Schofield at Holbrook.

James T. Harphy alias George Dillon for breaking and entering; three cases.

Giovanni Franchetti of Boston, for felonious asault on Maria de Mambo at Quincy.

Morris R. Higgins, for assault with dangerous weapon on Charlotte Higgins.

TO WORK FOR HUGHES

Delegates From the Empire State Are Thus Instructed

CONTEST ON RESOLUTIONS

Brought About by Minority Report, Which Resulted In Protest Against Endorsement of Hughes Being Sidetracked--Synopsis of Platform

New York, April 13.—Governor Charles E. Hughes was endorsed as New York's candidate for president at the Republican state convention and the four delegates-at-large, with their alternates, elected to the Chicago national Republican convention were instructed to use all honorable means to bring about his nomination. The four delegates-at-large are Stewart L. Woodford, Seth Low, Frederick R. Hazzard and E. H. Butler.

The convention was a replica in its distinctive feature of the Oneida convention of 1880, in which Roscoe Conkling sought vainly to have not only the delegates-at-large, but the congressional delegates as well, instructed for Ulysses S. Grant. Edgar T. Brackett, president of the Hughes State league, planned a political coup d'etat by presenting a minority report of the committee on resolutions which sought to amend the resolution endorsing Hughes and instructing the delegates-at-large to work for him, also requesting other delegates to "persistently labor for his nomination until a nomination is made."

Mr. Brackett's report precipitated a sharp debate on the convention floor and the thousand delegates and the hundreds of spectators, who filled the galleries, were aroused to a high pitch of excitement.

When the debate reached a point of spirited tension Speaker Wadsworth moved that the question of adopting the majority report of the committee on resolutions, containing the Hughes endorsement along the lines of the convention endorsements of Levi P. Morton in 1896 and President Roosevelt in 1900, be put to the convention and with a burst of applause and much cheering the majority report was adopted by a viva voce vote.

Stormy petrels foreshadowing possibilities of a turbulent session were observed on the political horizon before the opening of the convention when the Westchester county delegation decided to register a protest against the endorsement of Hughes by voting against the Hughes resolution and declaring for an uninstructed delegation. This was completely sidetracked by an unexpected move of Brackett in submitting a minority report of the resolutions committee. In meeting this situation the majority of the convention adopted the platform by a viva voce vote and the Westchester delegation had no chance to vote as a delegation in protest against Hughes' endorsement.

The new Republican state committee elected at the convention held a brief session immediately after the adjournment of the convention and re-elected former Lieutenant Governor Timothy L. Woodruff as chairman.

Believing that the platform foreshadowed the platform that will be adopted by the Chicago national Republican convention, more than usual interest attached itself to the reading of its recommendations, which were confined practically to national issues. The platform endorsed in strong terms the administrations of President Roosevelt and Governor Hughes and commended the policies of the federal administration. A revision of the tariff was favored and the action of congress in declining to revise the tariff piecemeal was warmly commended. Changes were advocated in the currency laws to provide a more elastic and satisfactory monetary system.

Defeat For Bryan Men

Pittsburg, April 13.—Many of the contests in Saturday's primary election remain undecided. While neither figures on the results nor the names of the successful candidates for delegates to the Democratic national convention are obtainable, it is practically certain that the Bryan forces have suffered an almost complete defeat in western Pennsylvania.

Great Project Consummated

Birmingham, Ala., April 13.—The official announcement by the Illinois Central that the new Birmingham division will be opened for traffic April 19 calls attention to the completion of the last link in the great Harriman trans-continental route, for, by controlling the Union Pacific, Illinois Central and Central of Georgia, this system will extend from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Three cottages were destroyed by fire at Swampscott, Mass. Two of the buildings were new and unoccupied.

A tenement house owned by the Avery Chemical works at Littleton, Mass., was burned and a portion of the main building of the company, which caught from the sparks, was destroyed. The loss is about $8000.

Announcement is made of a new extradition treaty between the United States and Spain, negotiations for which have been going on for some time past.

Charles Rice, who was found unconscious in the street at New Haven with a scalp wound, is dying. His complaint is diagnosed as alcoholic pneumonia.

WEYMOUTH.

The many friends of Mrs. George Davis are sorry to learn that she is quite ill at her home on Washington street with nervous prostration.

Miss Mary F. Loud and Miss Annie G. Loud of Commercial street spent Monday afternoon with their niece, Miss Mary Loud of Waltham.

G. Herbert Baker of the Ledges, Commercial street, has visited recently Denver, Colorado, where he dined with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Norton and Mrs. Trask, all well known here. Mr. Baker will reach California this week and expects to go to Seattle on business before returning east.

Vaughan & Price of Washington Square have had their ice cream parlors wired for electric lighting. The brilliant lights reflected in the shining mirrors are very attractive to the passer-by.

The friends of Mrs. L. W. Nash of Front street are glad to hear she is recovering from her recent illness.

Mrs. Kate Pierce Thayer has purchased the Tufts estate on Commercial street.

John H. Coffey is on a business trip through the west.

Miss Mila Bates of Quincy has been the guest of her cousin, Miss Vira Bates.

Mrs. Joseph D. Vinal was one of the fortunates to receive favors at the whist party held by Steadfast Rebekah lodge, I. O. O. F., at the opera house, East Weymouth, last week.

The window of Perkins' pharmacy is tastily decorated for Easter.

Philip Bourke of Concord, N. H., has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Bourke.

SERMON BY TELEPHONE.

Rev. Frank B. Cressey, Weymouth, arrived from Philadelphia last week and filled his pulpit at the Baptist church on Sunday. While in Philadelphia he preached in the Baptist Temple of that city before a large audience. Arranged on the desk he noticed the telephone attachments but did not realize their silent work. The day after his return, however, he received a touching letter from an invalid in a hospital two miles away from the Baptist Temple who wrote to thank him for his sermon which she had listened to through the telephone. Some years since when Bellamy's "Looking Backward" was published, such use of public services of worship was spoken of as very successful by means of similar invention. But the telephone was not then perfected.

WOMEN AND CLEAN STREETS.

Jane Oddams of Hull House, who has been addressing large audiences during her recent visit to Massachusetts, told of the trouble women have in Chicago to get the streets and alleys cleaned. She said:

"There are 36 Ward Inspectors of Garbage in Chicago, and only one of them is a woman. In my ward, when the garbage accumulates till it gets unbearable, we telephone to the city hall and ask if Mrs. Paul may not be sent to us. Generally we are told that some other ward has just sent in an urgent call for her, but that when she is through there, she shall come to us. When she comes, she does her work in a very quiet way; she goes around in a little runabout, looking very domestic; you might think she was on her way to market; but in two or three weeks she gets our ward all cleaned up. Then she is called away to some other district, and our ward is again left to its regular inspector, some negligent, inefficient politician. Why should not women have a vote in choosing the inspectors to keep the surroundings of their homes clean?"

Mr. Raymond Robins, who has been active in good government work in Chicago, and has effectually redeemed his own ward from boss rule, has also been speaking in Boston. He says: "There are 20,000 government jobs in Chicago, most of them of a kind where the work could be done by women just as well as by men, and the civil service rules in our city say that there shall be no discrimination on account of sex; yet, of these 20,000 positions, only 1800 are held by women." This probably explains why there is only one woman among the 36 garbage inspectors. Mr. Robins, like Miss Addams, warmly advocated woman suffrage, as a means of promoting clean streets, a pure milk supply, and the better protection of women and children in general.

—The United States circuit court of appeal has decided that the award of $10,500 to the town of Hingham for the taking of the Poor farm for a naval magazine is enough.

EDITORIAL.

At the last meeting of the City Council the Mayor was requested to notify the heads of departments to attend all meetings of the Council as required ine the City Charter. Th Daily Ledger would suggest a roll call and record at each meeting.

It has been shown by figures that the city cannot sell water at a profit for less than fifteen cents per 1000. It is a fact, however, that the city agrees to sell water by meter at a less rate, viz: 10,000 to 15,000 gallons per day, at 13 1-2 cents per 1,000 gallons; 15,000 gallons and over per day at 12 1-2 cents per gallon. It is said that some is sold for even less by special agreement. The result, is, although some pay as high as 30 cents per 1,000 gallons, there is a deficit each year to be raised by taxation. Last year an item of $21,-631.59 was included in the tax levy which raised the tax rate about $1 per $1,000.

Birthday Party

Saturday April 11, was a great day for Master Clarence Bartley Barron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barron 20 Orchard place. It was Master Clarence's fourth birthday and he entertained twelve of his little friends. After one hour was spent in playing games Master Clarence ushered his guests into the dining room which was prettily decorated with pink and green crepe paper. The table was also prettily decorated and laden with good things to eat, including a birthday cake with four lighted candles. The favors were like Easter chickens which was placed at each plate. After partaking of the "goodies" and wishing Clarence many returns of the day, the little ones left for their homes hoping Clarence would celebrate his fifth birthday. He received many pretty gifts.

Guests of City.

The Massachusetts Truant Officers' Association will meet in this city on Saturday, April 25. It has been the custom for the cities and towns to entertain these officers, and an appeal for funds for this purpose has been sent to our citizens by the truant officer of this city, C. H. Johnson. It is hoped there will be a generous response. Subscription may be forwarded to Truan Officer Johnson.

Train Derailed

The two rear cars of the 10.27 outward train from Boston Sunday night jumped the rail between Savin Hill and Harrison Square and were dragged along the sleepers some distance before the train was stopped. The derailment delayed the train so that it did not reach Quincy until after midnight.

NOT DROWNED.

Word was received by the police Sunday that Emil and Evan Broberg of Gass place, and Yohanas Sevens of Granite street, who left home Saturday morning on a fishing trip were on Peddocks island. The young men said that they would be unable to get off the island until today as their boat had gone adrift. When the young men did not return Saturday night it was thought that they had been drowned.

Albert H. Grant of Brackett street who did not return from a fishing trip Saturday and was thought to have been lost returned home Sunday. Mr. Grant said that when the blow came Saturday he anchored off Grape island. His boat was filled but did not sink. It was blown ashore and he remained with William McLeod until Sunday afternoon when he returned home.

ANNIVERSARY SUNDAY

Presentation to Supt. Sherburne Whose Record Is Unexcelled

Sunday was a happy day for the people of the Washington Street Congregational church at Quincy Point, and also for the members of the Sunday school, and particularly for Rev. Alfred Ray Atwood, the pastor; Charles Sherburne, superintendent of the Sunday school and Rev. Leon H. Austin, a former pastor.

Rev. Mr. Austin, now located at Roslindale, preached the anniversary sermon. It was not an historical address, but rather an inspiration from the text, "But, ye, brethren, be not weary in well doing." He told what Congregationalism means, and said there was no prouder christian title than that of Congregationalist. By their fruits ye shall know them, and he paid tribute to the founders of the church and the early pastors. There is a great work to accomplish here at Quincy Point, he said to crown the work of the past with success. There was a cosmopolitan neighborhood, and the church must reach out with new methods. An effort should be made that the church may become a greater power and service in the locality. He enlarged on these three thoughts: (1) a splendid vision; (2) a mighty purpose, and (3) a transcendant faith.

There was special music for the occasion, including the anthem, "I will greatly rejoice" and the solo by Miss Nina B. Gage, "Palm Branches," all beautifully rendered.

It was a pleasure to many to greet Rev. Mr. Austin at the close of the service.

The Sunday school also celebrated its anniversary at 12 M. with a service in the auditorium, about 300 being present.

The processional was a pretty feature when nearly 100 pupils of the primary department marched in. The program was as follows:

Processional.
Scripture Salutations, Intermediate Dept.
Mr. John Hendry, Supt.
Song "To and Fro," Primary Dept.
Miss Margaret L. Thomas, Supt.
History of our school,
Deacon Charles Sherburne,
Teacher and Superintendent of this school for 25 years.
Song, "The Alder by the River,"
Primary Dept.
Address, Rev. A. R. Atwood, pastor.
"The Children of Today, The Church of Tomorrow."
Onward Christian Soldiers.

Supt. Sherburne in his historical sketch said the school was really 57 years old at it was in Oct. 1851, that a Sunday School Society was organized, which started a Sunday school that year. The first superintendent was George Newcomb, a brother of the late Deacon Newcomb. The first report for 1853 showed 128 as the whole number and 81 as the average attendance. The attendance increased to about 200 in 1861, about the present number. In 1888 the school had $177 in the bank. In 25 years there had been but four superintendents: Charles Sampson for one year, T. H. Newcomb for three years, George A. Sidelinger for four years and C. H. Sherburne for seventeen years.

Mr. Sherburne said that for twenty-five years he had been superintendent or assistant superintendent, before that a teacher for five years, and before that a pupil for 20, altogether nearly 50 years a member of this Sunday school.

Something not down on the program was the presentation to Supt. Sherburne of a silk umbrella, silver mounted, by Deacon T. B. Pollard, in a very clever speech. Rev. L. H. Austin also addressed the Sunday school.

There was also an interesting order of service Sunday evening.

Opening of Q. Y. C. House

The club house of the Quincy Yacht club will be opened for the season on Thursday April 30. It is probable that the opening will be observed by an entertainment of some kind.

The Vose cups presented to the club by Mr. Vose, who is now in the Philippines, will be raced for the coming season by the Cape cat class. They are a handsome pair of cups and should ensure some exceedingly good races in this class the coming season.

The steam yacht Machigonne, owned by ex-Governor Douglas, has returned from a winter's cruise in Florida waters and is now at the Baker Yacht basin.

The steam yacht Revolution purchased by Charles Hayden has been brought to Quincy and renamed Wacondah.

The Baker yacht basin has under way three launches. These are a cabin launch for E. H. Tarbell, 45 feet water line, 11 feet beam and 3 feet 6 inches draft, to be equipped with a 25-horse power engine; an open boat for Loring Swazey of Swazey, Raymond & Page, 31 feet water line and 6 feet 6 iches beam, to be equipped with a 20-horse power engine, and a 33-foot cabin launch for Mr. Witherell of Taunton. They will soon start on an 85-foot, twin-screw fishing boat of 16 feet 6 inches beam for William Underwood. This boat, which is to be used on the coast of Maine, is to be equipped with a 75-horse power engine.

Quincy Challenge For Quincy Cup

The Quincy Yacht club has formal ly challenged the Corrinthian club for the Quincy challenge cup now held by them. The challenge which was forwarded by Secretary John O. Hall on Saturday reads:—

To the Officers and members of the Corrinthian Yacht club.

Gentlemen:—We hereby challenge your club for a series of races for the Quincy Yacht Club challenge cup to be sailed during the coming summer. Said races to be sailed in conformity with the details of the deed of gift of said cup.

Fraternally,
Herbert W. Robbins,
Commodore, Quincy Yacht club.

The yacht which the Quincy club will enter is probably the Manchester owned by Charles Francis Adams, 2d, who will sail her.

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

This is the last week of Lent.

The Republican Congressional convention will be held in Boston tomorrow evening.

There will be no meeting of the City Council tonight. The next meeting will be held Tuesday April 21.

The people of the Point having small children are pleasantly anticipating the starting of a kindergarten.

Mrs. Charles H. Penniman and Mrs. George T. Magee left this morning for a ten days' trip to New York.

Division 9, A. O. H., attended holy communion in a body at St. John's church on Sunday morning.

Many former acquaintances were renewed under pleasing circumstances at the anniversary of the Point church.

Warren Edwards, who has been passing the winter at the Greenleaf, goes to the Cape today for a few days' gunning trip.

The City Council Committee on Licenses meet to-night and the Committee on Public Buildings on Tuesday night.

According to the street watering order passed by the City Council the street watering is due to commence Wednesday.

The Blanchard house on Edison street is receiving a pretty coat of paint. Percy Holman of South street the popular painter of the Point has the contract.

The people of Quincy Point especially the men, are reserving the evening of April 22, next week Wednesday, to attend a social function of special interest to the people of Ward Two.

New President Granite City Club

The annual meeting of the Granite City club was held Saturday evening. The annual reports of the officers for the year ending April 1, were very satisfactory. They showed that during the year ten had been admitted to membership and that the finances were in a good conditon. These officers were elected:

President—Henry F. Tilden.
Vice President—Eben W. Sheppard.
Clerk and Collector—W. W. Mitchell.
Treasurer—W. W. Ewell.
Finance Committee—James H. Peniman, Benjamin Johnson and Fred E. Jones.
House Committee—John Q. Cudworth.
Membership Committee — Ellsworth E. Morgan, James H. Lalley, Clayton R. Marstin, William R. Thomas, and Nathan Ames.
Entertainment Committee—George T. Magee, Thomas G. Smith and Ellsworth E. Morgan.
Trustees — J. Warren Nightingale, George W. Prescott and George H. Field.

THE PHILERGIANS.

At a meeting of the club held Tuesday, April 7, it was voted that hereafter the annual dues shall be $2.35 for every member except honorary members and that thirty-five cents per capita of said dues shall be set aside for some educational or philanthropic purpose, and for the payment of the annual dues in the General and State Federations of Women's clubs.

Following the business meeting there was a chafing-dish demonstration given by Miss Maria Daniels, ably seconded by the members of the Exchange Committee, Mrs. MacCarter, chairman.

Nine chafing-dishes were ready for use and a bewildering array of materials and condiments, but Miss Daniels was mistress of the situation and kept two or three of the nine recipes demonstrated, in process of preparation at the same time.

As she turned from one savory dish to another she kept the audience interested with explanations interspersed with many valuable hints for every day cooking.

Miss Daniels is a teacher of wide experience and her talk proved very instructive as well as interesting, while the tastes of the appetizing dishes prepared made the ladies resolve to try them all as soon as possible.

High Grade Bedding.

With a third of your life spent in bed there is much reason in owning a high grade comfortable mattress and elastic bed spring. A high grade mattress will bring more real comfort and enjoyment into your life than anything else that money can buy. It last a life-time and makes one of your very best friends. We have luxurious hair mattresses from $15 to $25. Ostermeer Felt Mattresses from $11 to $15.50 Selected Silk Floss Mattresses $14 to $17.50. Cotton Mattressses $5.00 to $15.00. Fibre Combination Mattresses $5.00 to $7.00.

Mayor Shea Requested to Return the Express Permits

Editor of the Quincy Daily Ledger:

Is Quincy a No-License city?

The action of the City Council at its last meeting in the matter of express liquor permits should not be allowed to pass without vigorous protest from the great No-License majority of the city. At this very first hearing on applications, a majority of the Council showed a disposition to grant practically everything that was proposed, even going out of their way, as it would seem, to flout public opinion by granting permits to notoriously unfit persons among the very first.

How do the people of Quincy like this treatment? Did they understand that they were voting for this kind of Councilmen at the last election? If we vote out the saloons, and then turn around and vote in a horde of liquor-peddling expressmen, how are we any better off? Such a policy is a good deal like washing our faces with dirty water; we are not much cleaner after the washing than before!

The consistent and logical stand of Councilman Bryant and his associates of the minority deserves hearty commendation. Of course they see that if a No-License policy is to prevail in the city at all, it should be carried out to its logical conclusions. Should Quincy sometime go back to the saloon, which is about as remote a possibility as could be imagined, we can consistently turn over the moral welfare of the city to the saloons and the liquor-peddling expressmen conjointly, since they are natural complements of each other, and we might as well have both of them as only one; but so long as we vote out the saloon, we cannot consistently do otherwise than vote out the superfluous liquor peddlers also. It is hardly worth while to attempt cleaning out one-half of a cess-pool, and leave the other half untouched!

It is wearisome to hear the same oft-repeated demagogic arguments urged every year in favor of unlimited express permits. There is the usual no-monopoly cry, and the cry that the small expressman has as good a right to a permit as the large one, and that every citizen should have an equal right to earn a living, etc.

Now every intelligent person knows that under the law expressmen have no right whatever in the matter, and that there is no question of right involved. The one simple fact is that when Quincy votes out the saloon, it does so without interfering with the right of the private citizens to have liquor carried to his own house for his own use. And so, to secure the private citizen in this right, but in no sense to make business for expressmen, the Council may, at its discretion, issue one or more permits for carrying liquor, but is under no obligation to do so.

A few days ago the City Council of Lynn took the radical ground of refusing to grant any permits at all for the transportation of liquor; this in response to the insistent demand of 36,000 petitioners. Such action, if in good faith, would seem to have overshot the mark, since it results in hindering citizens in the exercise of certain undisputed legal rights.

Although Quincy, with its longer experience, would hardly think of going at present to the same length as Lynn, yet every reasonable consideration would seem to urge the Council to restrict the permits to a few expressmen, (not more than ten or twelve) who are responsible financially and otherwise. The right of private citizens to have liquor carried to their homes will thus be amply protected; and that is the only phase of the matter with which the Council has to deal. The plea of this or that expressman that he needs a liquor permit to help him earn a living should be promply ignored. So-called expressmen who cannot earn a living except by bringing liquor into a No-License city would better go into some other business.

There is no more reason for granting indiscriminate permits to liquor expressmen than to drivers of garbage wagons and night wagons. It seems to be universally agreed that certain kinds of business are properly restricted to a few persons.

Since the ill-advised action of the Council has brought the matter to the present unfortunate stage, it would seem that the only relief from an intolerable situation rests in courageous action on the part of the Mayor. When the strong Republican city of Quincy chose a Democratic Mayor at the last election, there is no question that a vast number of Mr. Shea's supporters were influenced by his lifelong No-Lincense and temperance record, and though he may have made no ante-election pledges in the matter, he would, in the writer's opinion, do well to heed the strong No-Lincense sentiment of the city in the present exigency, as against the mercenary claims of a few liquor-peddling expressmen and their friends.

Now the writer chooses to believe that the present attitude of the Council regarding express permits is due to a misapprehension of the spirit and temper of the people of Quincy as to the liquor issue, and suggests that the Mayor veto the whole batch of permits just approved, and send them back to the Council with a short statement of the logic of the situation, which, apparently, has not been duly appreciated. Afterwards, when the applications are all in, a dozen of the better class can be selected and approved, and the matter placed on the fairly satisfactory basis of last year.

Doubtless the shrill clamors of the would-be liquor peddlers sound pretty loud to the Mayor just now, but if he will hold his ear to the ground he will hear a sound of far greater import, namely, a roar of protest from thousands of indignant citizens against nullifying the over-whelming No-License sentiment of the city by granting licenses to saloons on wheels.

Baptists Banish Baptismal Barrier

A religious exchange (Congregationalist) of last week says, "the Lincoln Park Baptist church, West Newton, Mass., has decided to receive by letter members of other evangelical denominations without immersion. This is a new departure for Baptists in this country, tho' we believe it is not unusual for English Baptist churches."

In the same exchange we read of an attempt to unite the First Presbyterian church of Newburyport with the Prospect Street Congregational church of the same city.

A union is also under contemplation of the First Presbyterian church of Springfield and the Eastern Avenue Congregational church of the same city.

These are but promising prospects of the union of all religious denominations.

LONG TRIP TO FIND LUMBER.

Russia Gave Australian Firm Concession on Siberian Timber Lands.

An Australian corporation recently received a concession from the Russian government to take out 30,000,000 feet of timber a year from a forest in Siberia, 900 miles from Vladivostok, to be delivered in Melbourne, Australia, approximately 8,000 miles away and nearly three times the distance from New York to San Francisco.

It is likely that no lumbering operation of recent years more strongly illustrates the pinch in the timber supply in all parts of the world, says a forest service bulletin. In the news of the concession, told in an American lumber journal, is the suggestion of the difficulty that all countries may have to encounter in getting the wood which they need in the future. Every year timber cruisers are going farther and farther afield and cutting trees which, in former times of abundance, they passed because of the inaccessibility of the forest.

In taking out the Siberian timber the Melbourne lumbermen will have to ship the entire year's cut in July, August, September and October, for during the remainder of the year there is no open water at the point of shipment. What makes this unusual feature of transporting bulky logs 8,000 miles quite feasible is that such unmanufactured stock is admitted free, while there is a heavy duty on all manufactured wood brought into Australia, the duty on lumber, for instance, being nearly $5 a thousand board feet. At Melbourne a new mill is being erected to manufacture these logs into dressed stock, such as flooring, ceiling and other products, as well as into lumber.

These Siberian operations differ from the lumbering methods in the United States in that in this country it is possible and customary to have new mills conveniently near the place of production, though, with the continually decreasing supply, the larger mills often find it profitable to haul their timber by trams and railroads many miles away from their saws. Forest experts in this country say that the hope of the United States for a steady supply of timber lies in the application of forestry to all timber lands, private and public, and the careful study of the economical and better utilization of product. Even so, a severe shortage in twenty to twenty-five years must be expected.

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S BOUQUET

After a Reception President's Wife Gives It to Some Young Girl.

Natural flowers as adjuncts to women's costumes seem to have passed away except at the official levees in Washington. Mrs. Roosevelt invariably carries a cluster of flowers, which she uses as a graceful foil against the multitudes which seek to grasp her hand during the long official receptions. She has adopted the pleasant habit of presenting a bouquet to the wives of the cabinet members who assist her, and she always asks the color and variety of each gown before ordering the bouquets.

Another habit she has formed is to present her bouquet to some young girl just as she ascends the grand stairway in the state corridor when the levee is ended. At the diplomatic reception she singled out Miss Grace Jarvis, granddaughter of Mrs. James McMillan of Michigan, for the honor. The bouquet was of purple orchids, and Miss Jarvis has cleverly pressed them in her herbarium. Miss Anna Anderson of Cleveland, O., received an exquisite cluster of lilies of the valley at the congressional reception. Receiving Mrs. Roosevelt's bouquet is now an honor sought as eagerly as getting a bride's bouquet or being selected as queen of love and beauty at a tournament.

NEW PRIZE FOR AIRSHIPS.

International Competition at Munich, Germany, From May 1 to Oct. 1.

With the object of promoting aerial navigation Dr. Gans, chairman of the airship section of the Bavarian Automobile club, has offered a prize of 10,000 marks to be awarded to a flying machine at the Munich exhibition between May 1 and Oct. 1. Competitors of any nationality are eligible for this prize.

The prize will be awarded to the aeronaut who, starting from the ground, succeeds in flying or remaining suspended in the air above the space assigned to him for the purpose for ten minutes and in landing within that area after the ten minutes have elapsed. Balloons or flying machines fitted with balloons are not eligible for competition.

Intending competitors must inscribe their names on the list in the office of the sports committee of the exhibition "Munich, 1908." They must, moreover, send in descriptions of their flying machines, accompanied by photographs or sketches, and pay an entrance fee.

The address of the sports committee of the exhibition "Munich, 1908," is Neuhauserstrasse, 10 and 11, Munich, Germany.

Sweet Spring.

Sweet spring is but a little way ahead.
The lambs will soon begin to play. The dead
Old form of winter soon will lie o'erspread
By green grass, and the April sky
Will stretch above us by and by,
The dandelion's face will glow,
The winds will gladden as they blow,
And Cupid's darts will freely fly.

The waiting buds will soon begin to sprout.
The brooks will laugh as, winding in and out,
They hurry onward to the sea. The shout
Of him who tills the soil will be
Re-echoed back from hill to lea,
And then the man who golfs once more
Will sclaff and foozle as of yore
And vent his feelings horribly!

Another Conference With Engineers

It is reported that there will be a conference tonight between the committees representing the Granite manufacturers and engineers in an effort to settle the strike. It is thought by those conversant with the situation that an agreement may be reached.

LIQUOR RAID.

The police went on the war-path Sunday night after persons whom it was believed were doing an illegal liquor business. In the raiding party were Chief Burrell, Officers Goodhue, Larkin, Dinneen, Lyons, Broberg, Hinchon, Johnson, Crooker, Milford and Whalen. Five places at West Quincy were raided simultaneously. These were all on California avenue and were occupied by Italians. The occupants were Ambrose Bartoni, in the old stone house; Louis Lerapini at number 17, Dominico Donatti at number 9, Umberto Sansitini at number 5 and John Cellini at number 3. Small quantities of ale, beer and wine were secured at all of the places in addition to a lot of empty cases, barrels and bottles.

The raids were made in the vicinity of 7 o'clock and attracted a large crowd of spectators. This is the first big raid since the shift in the officers two weeks ago, when Officer Goodhue was put in citizens dress and assigned to special duty. All five of these men were in court and their cases were continued until April 18.

At one of the houses the police found four men playing cards, whom they arrested. They were Allic Resso, Joseph La Pietro, Rocco Simonti and James Simonti. In court they were fined $10 each.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

The British steamer Bisley, in which the two Curtis (Fore River) turbines for the Japanese cruiser Ibuki will be shipped to Japan, is now on her way to the United States on her maiden voyage. The Japanese cruiser in which these two turbines will be installed was recently launched at Kure, Japan, and on her speed trial will be expected to sustain a speed of 23 knots. Both are 144-inch seven-stage Curtis marine reversible steam turbines of 12,000 brake horsepower with considerable overload capacity.

An 8 by 10 engine cylinder is being rebored and repaired in the machine shop at the shipyard for the Old Colony Street Railway Co.

Two composition castings are being made and machined for A. W. Potterton.

During the month of March there arrived at the port of New York from home and foreign ports 723 vessels of all classes. Of these 334 were from foreign and 389 from home ports.

METROPOLITAN IMPROVEMENTS.

The Metropolitan Improvements Commission has advertised two public hearings to take place on the afternoons of Tuesday and Wednesday, April 14 and 15, in the hearing room of the Railroad Commission at 20 Beacon street, at 2.30.

The Commission desires the attendance of all persons interested in the problems which it has under consideration. These relate to the development of any public works in the Metropolitan district which will tend to the convenience of the people, the development of local business, the beautifying of the district, or the improvement of the same as a place of residence. In particular, it is giving its attention to the question of better railroad facilities and terminals within the Metropolitan district such as will facilitate the movement of local travel not only from the suburbs to the city, but from suburb to suburb; the question of docks and freight terminals, and the best locations for, and railway connections with, the same; the development of metropolitan transit in a comprehensive and systematic manner; and the improved planning of highways for the Metropolitan district with regard to economy in their laying-out and construction when the time may come for such works to be undertaken.

The Commission feels that there are many persons interested in various aspects of these questions and who may have valuable suggestions to make.

FOOTBALL.

The Fore River football team put up a stubborn fight for victory on Saturday in a championship game with the Fall Rivers on the home grounds at Quincy Point. The wind was blowing a gale from the northeast and the ball could not be placed acurately. During the first half, McGregor of the hame team slipped on a blocked ball and fell, twisting his left leg so that the knee cap was dislocated. He was taken from the field and attended by Dr. Middleton. Under the association rules the Fore Rivers were obliged to finish the game with one man short.

During the first half Gauthier of the visitors scored a goal, and that was the only score made. In the second half the home team tried hard to score, and put up a hard fight, but being one man short were somewhat handicapped. Although unable to score they were able to prevent the visitors from again scoring, and the game ended with the score of 1 to 0 in favor of the visitors.

Canal Street Sunday Fire

The alarm from Box 25 at 11.07 Sunday morning called the department to a stubborn fire in a house on Canal street, owned by Mrs. Gourley, and ocupied by Benjamin Leavitt. The fire started up stairs from too hot a fire and a defective chimney. The chimney was in a bad condition and a fire had been built in a small stove.

The fire was discovered by one of the family, who upon going up stairs into the room was surprised to find a fire in progress. Mr. Leavitt, who was in the yard, was notified and an alarm sounded. Chief Williams was at South Quincy at the time, and owing to a failure of the whistle at South Quincy to sound, did not hear the alarm. When it was found that he did not respond to the alarm three blows were sounded. This is the Chief's call and he heard that, and was soon on the spot. The three blows however were taken by many to mean a recall.

The high wind caused the fire to spread rapidly, and almost instantly the whole interior of the house was a mass of flames. The fire worked down to the lower floors, and so hot was it that the family were unable to remove any of the furniture save a few chairs.

It came through the roof in one or two places but was confined to the interior which was badly gutted. The firemen worked well, but before the flames were out the interior of the building was ruined, little more than the shell of the building being left. Chief Williams estimates the loss on building and contents at $1500.

AFTER THE DIVORCE

De Sagan and Mme. Gould Knew They Loved Each Other

PRINCE MAKES A STATEMENT

First Word About Love or Marriage Came From Woman Whom He Is to Wed--Was Afraid He Was Too Old, but Anna Disagreed With Him

New York, April 13.—Another chapter was added to the account of the affairs of Prince Helie de Sagan and Mme. Anna Gould, who sailed on different steamers for Europe Saturday, when G. G. Netter of this city made public a statement last night, given him, he explained, by the prince, and intended for publication after the St. Paul, upon which De Sagan took passage, was well out to sea.

Mr. Netter is a personal friend of the prince and was intrusted by the latter with the statement that he and Mme. Gould were betrothed. The statement says in part:

"When trouble developed between Count Boni and the countess, I sought to aid them as a friend sincerely interested in their affairs. It was at that time that her friendships were really tested. She stated at that time that she appreciated my efforts very much.

"Our love for each other began to dawn only after the divorce decree had been entered. Long after the courts had acted I chanced to call at her home one day, and by one of those intuitive divinations—a meeting of the eyes sometimes brings the knowledge—I knew for the first time that I really loved her and she loved me.

"It was on the first day of last August that the first word about love or marriage was uttered between us. In the course of a conversation she suddenly said to me: 'Oh, Prince, why didn't I marry a man like you?'

"I replied that I was afraid I was too old, but she asserted that she did not think so. I had known her well; I had studied her thoughts, her hopes, her inclinations. And, understanding all this, I realized what a good wife she would make and I believed it might lie in my power to make her happy. We became betrothed.

"Mme. Gould and I contemplate a quiet marriage. When that event has taken place my wife and I will live for some years in complete retirement in some quiet suburb of Paris. There we shall remain until the debts of her former husband are paid. We are marrying, I repeat, for nothing else except that we love each other."

Steamer Crushed by Ice

St. Johns, April 13.—Bringing tidings of the sinking of the steamer Grand Lake of the sealing fleet, sealer Newfoundland limped into port, leaking badly. The Newfoundland's bows and stern were crushed by ice, and her crew of 200 men were forced to stand by for thirty hours pumping and bailing to keep the vessel afloat. The Grand Lake was shut up in the jaws of the two great ice floes, until her sides gave way, and even her engines were crushed. Her crew of 214 men escaped to the steamer Vanguard, which was close by. A catch of 20,000 seals went down with the Grand Lake.

To Hunt Whales' Home

Dunkirk, Scotland, April 13.—The Jacques Cartier, bearing the Polar expedition under command of Lieutenant Bernard, sailed from here yesterday. The primary object of the expedition is to investigate the theory that whales, which are now disappearing off Newfoundland, have sought refuge in the Barents sea, in the Arctic ocean, that is always free of ice. Other scientific investigations will also be made.

Militia on Duty at Pensacola

Jacksonville, Fla., April 13.—Governor Broward has ordered every command in the state militia to proceed at once to Pensacola. The electric company decided to start cars on its lines today and the troops have been called out as a measure of precaution because further trouble is feared.

Out of Gubernatorial Race

Wheeling, April 13.—Following his unexpected defeat by A. C. Scherr in the Marshall county primary, William H. Hearne last night gave out a letter withdrawing from the contest for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. This leaves the field clear to Scherr and Charles Swisher.

Close to Designed Speed

London, April 13.—A new discovery in connection with the turbine engines of the Dreadnaught has resulted in a great increase in speed. In a twelve-hour trial just held the battleship averaged 20½ knots, which is only half a knot below her designed speed.

German Chancellor In Italy

Rome, April 13.—Prince Von Buelow, the imperial German chancellor, has arrived here. During his stay politics will be discussed, but it is stated that he has no special question in mind at present to take up with the Italian government officials.

HEAD BADLY BATTERED

Aged Man Dies From Injuries Probably Inflicted by Robber

Providence, April 13.—One of the most mysterious cases which the police have had to investigate in this city confronted them when Henry Kelly, 63 years of age, died from terrible injuries received shortly after midnight at the hands of an unknown assailant.

Kelly was found on Canal street with the left side of his face crushed in, the right side of his face torn out and one eye gone, a stone weighing forty pounds having been dropped on his head. Despite his injuries, the man was alive when discovered, but died three hours later at a hospital without recovering consciousness. Robbery is believed by the police to have been the motive for the assault. There is absolutely no clue to his assailants.

Kelly had no occupation and lived with his grandson. The police think that Kelly was attacked by one or two men, who first struck him to the ground, then rifled his pockets and, to make certain that he would not be a witness against him, crushed his head with the stone as he lay upon the sidewalk.

Death of Lieutenant Totten

Milford, Conn., April 13.—Lieutenant Charles A. L. Totten, U. S. A., retired, and former Yale professor, died at his home in this place. Totten was very widely known because of mathematical deductions upon which he based prophetical interpretations of the Scriptures, most of these being as to the coming of the end of the world. He was a native of New London, Conn., and was in his 57th year.

Fire Came as Aged Woman Died

Boston, April 13.—Hardly a moment before the clanging fire apparatus dashed up to the door to extinguish a fire which had started on the roof of the house from a defective chimney, Mrs. Betsy R. Tucker, aged 99, passed away at her home, 99 Sedgwick street. The firemen were at once apprised of the fact and went about their work swiftly, but silently, and soon had the fire extinguished.

Boy Killed In Trivial Dispute

Watertown, Conn., April 13.—Robert Downs, 18 years old, died from the effects of a knife wound in the neck inflicted by William McLaughlin, aged 40, with whom he had had a trivial dispute. Downs was on his way to church when he met McLaughlin and got into an argument over a payment of wages and the knife wound was inflicted, it is thought, with some element of accident.

Bodies Floated Nine Miles

Bangor, Me., April 13.—The bodies of Howard Collins, aged 72, and Alphonso Brodeur, 45, who were drowned at Great Works on the night of Jan. 29, were found in the Penobscot river nine miles below the place where the accident occurred. Collins and Brodeur were both employed on the night shift of the Penobscot Chemical Fibre company's plant.

End of Quarrymen's Strike

Barre, Vt., April 13.—By a vote of more than 5 to 1, the strike of the quarryworkers in this vicinity came to an end and the 5000 men who have been affected will return to work. The strikers decided to accept the settlement proposed by the committees from the manufacturers and the quarry workers.

A Mother's Shocking Discovery

Boston, April 13.—Worried at the continued absence of her 9-year-old son, Henry, whom she had sent to a store on an errand, Mrs. Mary Eustsek went out to look for him and found him in the unidentified crushed body of a boy which had been picked up on the railroad tracks by the police.

Pair of Jail Breakers

Fitchburg, Mass., April 13.—Israel Rondeau and Alfred O. Guertin, Jr., prisoners in the Worcester county house of correction, escaped from that institution by prying the bars of a window in the basement, where they had exchanged the prison uniform for civilian garb.

Met Death by Electricity

Malden, Mass., April 13.—Cornelius Carey, aged 44, a trimmer for the Malden Electric Light company, was trimming a light when he received a shock that caused his death a moment afterwards. It is believed that the high wind crossed the wires.

Scarlet Fever at Harvard

Boston, April 13.—Scarlet fever has appeared among the students at Harvard university, and there are eighteen afflicted students confined in Stillman infirmary, with a number of others scattered through the dormitories.

A Mullins Murder Suspect

St. Johns, April 13.—Inspector General Sullivan of the Newfoundland constabulary states that he has had detectives at work investigating the record of a former Broad Cove man whose name has been mentioned in connection with the death of Annie Mullins at Arlington, Mass. The suspect was well acquainted with the Mullins girl.

Shot Sweetheart and Self

New York, April 13.—Enraged because the girl with whom he was enamored declined to accompany him to a concert, Billa Vass, a young Hungarian, fired three shots at Julia Szilagzi and then killed himself at her home on East Third street. The girl cannot live.

To Take Vacation Abroad

Washington, April 13.—Should President Roosevelt's present desires be realized, he will spend the first year after his retirement from office in travel outside the United States. His itinerary has not, however, been determined.

The candidates for the various positions on the Thayer academy baseball team have been seen on the Common mornings during the past week practising.

The large chimney at the Braintree Cement Co. plant blew down during the gale on Thursday morning, about nine o'clock. No one was injured although there were several narrow escapes.

Prof. Townsend of Washington street will undoubtedly be seen on the base-ball diamond again the coming season and at present it looks as though he would be seen in a Randolph uniform.

Mr. H. W. Mansfield, the grocer, while in Boston on business Thursday was taken suddenly ill and removed to the Relief hospital. His many friends are glad to learn of his recovery. He returned to South Braintree yesterday.

Mrs. F. G. Pennock entertained the A. B. C. at her home Friday afternoon. Highest scores were made by Mrs. S. B. Gammons and Mrs. Eben Prescott.

The Penniman School Association will give a comedy "Her Weekly Allowance" in the Penniman building next Friday evening.

Little Esther McGill of Washington street got her fingers caught between the chain and sprocket of a bicycle and received medical attention from Dr. C. H. Gould.

Mrs. Boylston White of South Weymouth is spending a few days with her daughter Mrs. G. W. Jenning Washington street.

Mrs. Barker of Sherbrooke avenue is confined at the Mass. General hospital in Boston, where she underwent an operation the past week. At present she is resting comfortably.

The St. Mary's Society will meet on Wednesday afternoon April 15, with Mrs. Bill, Hollis avenue, at half past two o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Anthony and daughter Helen of Middle street have been spending the school vacation in Fall River.

The Easter Sunday Service of the Braintree Episcopal church will be of especial interest this year as Arch Deacon Babcock is to officiate and there will be extra music. Each of the children will be presented with a plant.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Putnam of Oak street have returned to their home after an absence of several weeks.

Mr. J. Henry Peirce of New Bedford died on Thursday, April 9, at the residence of Mr. G. H. Holbrook, 185 Middle street. He had been in declining health for four or five months and came to Braintree in hopes to regain his health. A prayer service was held Sunday at twelve o'clock and the funeral took place in New Bedford on Sunday.

Mr. Geo. Shella and wife are stopping at Mr. Wm. H. Whalls on Granite street for a while.

Mr. Jerry DeCoste has his new house well under way on Franklin street.

Benton's Comedy.

By Frederick White.

Copyright, 1907, by Frederick White.

WHEN Benton's comedy was published in a leading magazine no one was more surprised than Benton himself. Of course he had received the editor's acceptance and a week or two later a very satisfactory check, but the full realization of what it meant did not come to him until after months of waiting he saw with his own eyes his own work under his own name. It was the first time, and Benton felt a certain responsibility.

Many a man has had the same feeling on the birth of his first child, and Benton was simply experiencing some of the pride of fatherhood. For a time he struggled with the desire to adopt literature as a profession, but as the weeks passed and he failed to find himself heralded as a genius saner thoughts prevailed. Woolen goods were in demand, and so were his services as a salesman. Some months afterward he received this note:

My Dear Mr. Benton—At the request of the Hillside Dramatic club I write to ask your permission to use your play, "Maids and Widows," at our midwinter entertainment for the benefit of the orphans' home of this place. We have all read your comedy with great interest and appreciation and think it just what we need for our purpose. Trusting that you will grant our request, believe me, very cordially yours.
ELIZABETH RANKIN VAN CLEAVE.

Benton felt very much gratified when he received this note. He was appreciated, after all. He at once indited the following reply:

My Dear Miss Van Cleave—It will afford me the greatest pleasure to give you permission to use my play for the benefit of the orphans' home. It is always gratifying to find one's work appreciated, and I assure you that the Dramatic club has my best wishes for a successful representation of "Maids and Widows." Very sincerely yours.
JOHN AUSTIN BENTON.

He wondered if the members of the club would gather about Miss Van Cleave and regard the signature of the well known author and playwright with awe, and he began to think of writing a four act tragedy. One morning he was agreeably surprised to find another letter in the handwriting of Miss Van Cleave.

"Thank you so much," she wrote, "for letting us use your play. We have had two rehearsals, and everything seems to be going nicely. Will you please tell me if Alice is supposed to fall in love with Henry at the breakfast table, or is it when they are on their way to the golf club? I am to play Alice, and I do so want to make a success of the part.

"By the way, I find my aunt, Mrs. Baker, is an old friend of your mother's. Is it not strange how small the world is after all?

"Do you consider it necessary for Henry to kiss Alice in the last act, as the book says?"

Benton whistled as he perused this note. He remembered having heard of his mother's friend, Mrs. Baker, and this must be her niece, the beautiful Miss Van Cleave.

That evening he wrote the following letter:

Dear Miss Van Cleave—In my opinion Alice did not fall in love with Henry at the breakfast table. That would be asking too much of any girl. Eleven o'clock and the golf club is a different matter.

Under the circumstances I should consider it necessary for Henry to kiss Alice. He really could not help it, you know, for Alice is a charming girl.

I am glad that the play is progressing well and wish you every success. Sincerely yours. JOHN A. BENTON.

On Tuesday evening Benton received a note from Mrs. Van Cleave inviting him to run out to Hillsdale the following Saturday to witness the presentation of his play and also to spend Sunday with them. Mrs. Van Cleave spoke of her sister's friendship for his mother and in closing stated that he would be met at the station by some member of the family. A convenient train reached Hillsdale at 5:30 o'clock, giving him time to dress for an early dinner.

Benton accepted at once and spent the intervening hours in wondering if the author would be called upon for a speech. On Saturday afternoon he boarded the train, suit case in hand. All the way to Hillsdale he wondered if Miss Van Cleave would be the one to meet him. It was only an hour's run from the city, and soon Benton stood upon the platform. He looked about him, noting the well kept, prosperous appearance of the place and the many handsome traps and carriages awaiting their occupants. A groom in surprisingly tight breeches came up to him and, touching his hat, inquired, "Mr. Benton?"

"Yes," said Benton. "Mrs. Van Cleave's carriage?"

"Master Harry awaits you in the dogcart, sir," replied the man, possessing himself dexterously of Benton's luggage and leading the way across the platform. Benton followed. A boy of sixteen or so was endeavoring to calm a mettlesome cob that was trying to see how straight he could stand on his hind legs without falling over backward.

"Chuck those things in behind, Burns, and get to his head," he ordered. "How de do, Mr. Benton? Excuse my not shaking hands and climb in."

Benton waited for a moment of comparative quiet and then climbed in. He was not accustomed to a horse like this, and the boy noticed it at once.

"He hasn't been out for a week," he explained, "and he feels good. Let him go, Burns." And, with a plunge, they started, the well trained Burns clutching the rail and swinging up behind with the greatest imperturbability. Once on the straight road leading from the station the cob settled down to a good steady gait, and Benton began to enjoy himself. Young Van Cleave was surprisingly easy for one of his years and kept up a constant flow of talk.

"That's a corking good play of yours, Mr. Benton," he said. "I'm going to be James, and I'm dead letter perfect. Got my clothes last night, and Aunt Fan thought I was the new man and asked me to get her a glass of water. Say, can't James come on in the last act with a letter or something?"

Benton good humoredly said that he thought it might be arranged and inquired who was to play Henry.

"Oh, Artie Brown, and he thinks he's the whole show. Wanted to kiss 'sis' every rehearsal. Said he didn't want it to go wrong the night of the play. Sis couldn't see it and said she thought that was something a man of his experience could do without rehearsing. Rough on Artie, for he knows it all and likes to have people think he's a regular 'killer.' Whoa, boy! Easy now," to the cob as they turned into a private roadway and whirled up to the steps of a fine old colonial house.

The groom was at the cob's head before they really stopped, and Benton climbed down and followed young Van Cleave into the house. Mrs. Van Cleave welcomed him cordially and introduced him to her daughter and the members of the house party, some of whom were to take part in the play. Miss Van Cleave showed him the music room, where the performance was to be held, and exhibited the stage, which was already set for the first act.

"Do you not feel very important," she asked, "when you consider that you are really responsible for it all?"

"No," said Benton. "I cannot say that I do. After all, the real responsibility rests with the players."

"You cannot shirk your share so carelessly," she said, laughing. "Stand or fall, you are one of us in this, and I shall see that you receive your full measure of praise or blame."

"Let us hope, then, that it will be praise—for all our sakes," he said, with an admiring look at her.

"Seriously," said Miss Van Cleave, "I do hope you will not be disappointed in us, and you must not be too critical."

"I shall not be disappointed in you," he replied decidedly.

While Benton was dressing for dinner some one knocked at his door.

"It's me—Jack. Can I come in?" said that ungrammatical young man in an excited tone of voice.

Benton opened the door and inquired what the trouble was.

"Here's a go!" said Jack. "Artie Brown has busted his leg or something and can't act. Sis is having a fit, and the others are just wild. It's too late to put it off, and what are we going to do?"

"Is there no one else to take the part—no understudy?" inquired Benton.

"No one knows it except the prompter, and she's a girl. Father has just come in, and he's tearing his hair. He plays the old man, you know. Got a bald wig and whiskers, and he'll die if he can't wear 'em. Say, what can we do about it anyhow?"

Another knock at the door, and Mr. Van Cleave, Sr., appeared.

"Pardon me, Mr. Benton, for introducing myself in this unceremonious manner," he said, shaking hands, "but this is a serious matter. The tickets have been sold, and it is too late for any postponement. My daughter has suggested that possibly you are sufficiently familiar with the lines to take the part, or, failing that, to read it. It is asking a good deal, I know, but if you could possibly do it it would be a great relief to all of us, besides helping us out of a very embarrassing predicament."

Benton's head whirled. It was an unexpected role that he found himself called upon to play. It is one thing to watch others act and quite another to do it oneself. However, he was a self reliant young man, and, as it happened, he was familiar with the part of Henry.

This was the character into which he had put his own individuality. Step by step and situation by situation he had made Henry act and talk as he himself would have done under like circumstances. So, while it would have been almost impossible for him to take any other part without preparation, in this case he felt that he might venture upon it without danger of absolute failure. It was a risk, but under the circumstances he did not feel justified in refusing.

"I think I might do it after a fashion," he said gravely. "I should like to have a glance at the book, and I shall have to look to you all to help me out with the business."

"You may count on us for every assistance in our power," said Mr. Van Cleave. "It is a great relief, and you are placing us under a lasting obligation."

"I hope you will be able to say as much after it is all over," said Benton, "but in any event I will do my best."

Jack brought him the clothes that the unfortunate Arthur was to have worn, and they proved to be a very presentable fit.

"I SHALL NOT BE DISAPPOINTED IN YOU."

Before the curtain was rung up Benton found time to go over some of the more important scenes of the play. He was very much relieved to find himself quite at home in both lines and situations.

A short time later he stood in the wings listening to the announcement of the accident and the request that the audience would kindly overlook any lack of smoothness in the part of Henry, as the gentleman who was to play it had stepped into the breach at a moment's notice. Then, after a few hurried words of direction from the stage manager, two very flurried young people took their places for the opening scene and the curtain went up.

Now, there are certain psychological processes which prevail under certain conditions. We are mystified by their apparent unaccountability. We raise our hands in helpless incredulity and exclaim, "How inexplicable!" when there is nothing strange about it if we remember that youth and propinquity work hand in hand to carry out the universal behest. One each at least of these processes and conditions confronted Benton as he stood on the lawn before the clubhouse an hour later. He had done well, and he felt strangely exalted. He knew he was John Benton, but it was a new personality that cloaked him. He was in love—in love with a girl whom he had met yesterday for the first time—or was it today? He was waiting—waiting impatiently and giving voice to his inmost thoughts in words that were strangely familiar. He saw her coming slowly through the trees and started forward to meet her. They seated themselves on the clubhouse steps. They fenced with each other lightly, but with an undercurrent of feeling. He loved her—he loved her—and in a moment he would tell her so. His heart bounded, for he knew what her answer would be.

"It is only since yesterday, but it is enough. A week, a month, a year, and it would be the same. A hundred years from now, and it will still be the same. I love you. Will you be my wife?"

She arose, and he followed her. Her eyes were cast down, and her hands hung limp by her side. He seized them in his own, and his compelling gaze forced her to raise her eyes to his.

"Answer me," he said.

"I love you," she said falteringly as she swayed toward him, and he clasped her in his arms, and only his ears heard the added "dear."

He kissed her full upon the lips.

There was a roar of applause. From the wings people flocked upon the stage clad in golfing attire, their faces strangely red and white. Then he remembered. Still holding the girl by the hand, he led her to the front. It was his place to repeat the epilogue. The others formed a half circle behind them. He spoke:

"In what may seem a very short space Alice and Henry have met, loved and settled the question, quite to their own satisfaction. May we hope that the match and the manner of its making meet with your approbation? And as the curtain falls let these words, typifying the end of the old and the beginning of the new, close our story—'and so they were married.'"

Women of Diplomacy.

Almost all the celebrated women have gained their fame by diplomatic means. The famous women of Jewish history were all subtle in their methods—Rebecca, Jael and Herodias, to name but a few of them. What born diplomatists, too, were Catherine of Siena, the great saint, and Catherine de' Medici, the great sinner! The list of them down the ages is unending.—Woman's Life.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The public schools are having a vacation this week.

H. F. Miller of Quincy was second in the one mile run event with a hannicap of 15 yards, at the annual spring handicap games at Harvard on Saturday.

Mrs. R. H. Newcomb, has invited the Point Ladies Aid Society, to hold an all-day sewing bee at her home on Winter street Thursday, the 16th. All the members are expected to be present as important business will be presented.

Combination No. 2 of Atlantic was called out twice Saturday for small fires. The first was for a grass fire on Squantum street and the second for a chimney fire in the house of James Reardon on Squantum street.

Carl W. Gram, a High school graduate, won honors at the Technology annual spring track games of the senior and junior classes on Saturday. He won the final heat for the class of 1909 in the 100-yard dash, and also the 220-yard dash; time 24 1-5 seconds.

Members of the Quincy Women's club are reminded that Mrs. N. G. Nickerson expects them all to each bring a piece of rubber to the meeting of the club tomorrow afternoon. Hunt up a pair of old rubbers, hot water bag or a piece of hose and help along a good cause. Proceeds of sale for Visiting Nurse's salary.

Miss Prescott is already receiving generous response to her appeal on Saturday for financial assistance to aid the Civic Committee of the Quincy Women's club in setting out elm and maple trees on Coddington and Sea streets, to connect with the rows below the cemetery set out by the Adams family.

factory. They had practically saved it, when the situation became critical on Pearl street. When that was averted the building on Essex street again demanded attention. At this time a line from the Milton steamer came to the assistance, and both steamers played upon the side of the manufactory which was about three feet from the burning building.

The plant of Lynch Bros. was saved, and at 9 P. M. the fire was under control at this point.

Then Chief Williams was told to take a position near the water, but could not get the steamer across a creek where the bridge was gone.

At 10.15 the Quincy apparatus was ordered home. The fire at that time was not out but was under control.

It was about 3.30 in the afternoon when Quincy was requested to send aid and in a few minutes the Steamer and Combination 2 started over the road to Boston. The Atlantic company reached the South ferry in 40 minutes and the Steamer was at work within an hour. Chief Williams and his men are pleased with the treatment received, coffee and refreshments being served, but are proud because they were able to render efficient services, and those services were appreciated.

The alarm from box 162 in Quincy was not given until after the apparatus started. In the meantime Chief Williams left orders for the protection of the city. The steamer from Houghs Neck was ordered to Quincy and a relief hose placed in commission.

It was 5.15 when the Milton steamer left for Chelsea arriving about 6.50, and immediately added two streams with good effect.

Inspector McKay was at police headquarters in Boston on Sunday when the Boston police inspectors were ordered to Chelsea to look after crooks. He went with them, and did duty in the burned district until late Sunday night.

HOW QUINCY MAN SAW CONFLAGRATION

News of the conflagration at Chelsea came to your correspondent at about 4.30 P. M. and preparations were made to visit the fire. Leaving Quincy on the 5.13 we were soon in Boston. On our way in we could see the heavy column of smoke over 8 miles away, but which did not seem more than a half a mile away. Before leaving home a topographical map of Federal Government and ultimately intended to be extended till the whole country is covered show the location of towns and shows the natural shape of the land, that is rivers, hills, bays etc. From this map the elevation at Orient Heights was shown to be the best point to view the flames.

Arrived in Boston we made our way along Atlantic avenue to the Narrow Guage depot where we got the ferry and soon were on the water. Here we had our first sight of the fire. One of several schooners which had been anchored near the Standard Oils works in East Boston had been towed out with her mats aflame. This was the only vessel saved of the lot As we passed this vessel a sailor was in the rigging playing a stream of towed out with her masts aflame. This main topmast was floating in the water, it having been burned through till it fell of its own weight.

After a short wait at the East Boston station of the railroad for a train, we were on our way to Orient Heights. The train was not very full and apparently no one was bound for the same place that we were. Before we arrived at Orient Heights the magnitude of the fire was made evident to us. The train went through the base of the heavy column of smoke, visible from the South Shore, and we saw blazing sparks and embers falling into the yards beside the railroad. Here we began to feel that it was criminal for mere sight seekers to get so close to the trouble.

At Orient Heights we found a large crowd waiting to take the train and begun to have fears that we might not be able to go back without considerable trouble. We found the elevation as per map and from the hill we quickly saw all that we had a desire to. The Heights was directly in the path of the flames and was protected by half a mile of water and mud flats. So from here we had an uninterrupted view of water front of Chelsea which was one mass of blazing ruins. The wind was blowing a gale and the cold, coupled with the anxiety about getting home, caused us to quickly decide that wonderful as the sight was we had seen it from the best vantage point possible and unlike Emperor Nero the sight gave us no pleasure.

Coming down from the Heights we found some tunnel cars. From what we had then it seemed as if these tunnel cars must go under the flames to get back to Boston, and so decided to take our chance on them. These cars were the last cars to make the trip to the Heights and on the way back had to use the out going track. We were carried by puffing fire engines, protective department wagons and within 100 yards of the flames. We could see one crowd lined up at the water edge so close that their heads stood out against flames so that it seemed as if they were a picket fence. The sight of the blazing oil tanks was awe inspiring, but we did not care to linger longer than was necessary here. We were glad when the car got onto the double track again and began to make time for the tunnel. We got back to Quincy after an absence of about 4 hours tired out, and more than glad to be home but with something to remember the rest of our lives

NEW THEATER PLANS

Playhouse to Be Maintained For Advancement of Art.

LUXURIOUS IN ITS FITTINGS.

Splendid Structure to Be Erected In New York Will Seat 2,318—Fine Quarters For Star Performers—Immense Stage and Bar Open All Year Round.

Complete plans for the New theater, which is to be "maintained for the advancement of art and not for commercial gain," on the block in Central Park West, between Sixty-second and Sixty-third streets, New York, were recently given out by the architects of the remarkable structure. The excavating work has been done, and the foundations of the theater have been laid up to the level of the street. Work on the building will be pushed from now on, and it is expected that the New theater will be ready for the season of 1909.

Its founders hope that it will stand in the same relation to dramatic and musical art as do the principal theaters of Europe. It is planned not only to foster and stimulate art by the production of plays and light operas that are worth while, but also to maintain a school of musical and dramatic art.

The well to do men who stand behind the project have arranged that all profits above a very small interest on the money invested shall be devoted to the development of such a school, the accumulation of an endowment fund and other like purposes. Briefly it is planned to make the New theater the nearest thing to a national theater that can be obtained in the United States.

The architects therefore have tried to plan a fitting home for the development of such an idea. The stage and auditorium will occupy but a moderate portion of its plan. Ample provision is made for a foyer, grand staircase, retiring and cloak rooms, smoking room, entrances, roof garden, buffet, quarters for confectioner and florist and similar accommodations.

The building will occupy a site fronting 200 feet on Central Park West. It will run back on Sixty-second street 225 feet and 200 feet on Sixty-third street. The exterior is to be of Indiana limestone. The architecture will follow the Italian renaissance. The main building will have a high base containing all the entrances and a two story colonnade. The foyer, extending through the height of two stories, will be accentuated by large arches extending the full height of the columns.

It may be noted in passing that the buffet will extend all along the front and that it will be open all the year round, as will the roof garden, restaurant and art instruction schools.

There will be twenty-two entrances, the biggest at the two corners, and the others will be strung along Sixty-second and Sixty-third streets. At the corners will be two monumental double staircases, one leading to the boxes, the other to the galleries.

The house will seat 2,318 people, 600 in the orchestra pit, 300 in the boxes and 1,418 in the two galleries. The boxes are arranged in two tiers of twenty-four each, most of which have been subscribed for. Nine stairways will lead from the boxes through the foyer. In the rear of the boxes will be a private hall, so that box occupants of one floor may visit other boxes on the same floor.

The auditorium will be elliptical in form, the long axis of the ellipse being parallel with the stage, so that the farthest box in the center of the house will be no farther from the stage than the last orchestra seat in the usual small theater.

No orchestra seat will be under a gallery. The architects have tried to make it possible for every person occupying a seat to hear and see everything. The acoustics will be as nearly perfect as possible.

The stage is to be 100 feet wide, 68 feet deep and 112 feet in the clear. The depth below the stage will be thirty-two feet. The proscenium arch is to be forty-five feet wide and forty feet high. Few theaters have a stage so large.

Accommodations for the stars will be luxurious. Rooms for twenty-three men and fifteen women have been provided for. All the dressing rooms face on the street. Four or five of the thirteen elevators will be used to take the chorus girls and supers to and from the stage.

The stage will be big enough for grand opera. The Metropolitan stage is no larger.

Philippines to Outlaw Playing Cards.

Playing cards are doomed to disappear in the Philippines. Legislation is now in the course of preparation to prohibit the manufacture of these cards in the islands and their importation from other countries. The punishment for the importation of such merchandise is to be fixed at 500 pesos for every packet imported or manufactured. For the possession of a park of cards there will be a fine of 100 pesos for every pack found, and in both cases the cards will be confiscated and destroyed.

Compulsory Education In China.

The board of education in Shanghai, China, has proposed to punish either the father or brother of any child above seven years old who is not sent to school and has consulted with the high commissioners who are compiling law codes to place the new crime in the new code.

AS VIEWED FROM QUINCY

Hundreds of Quincy people went to the conflagration, the Daily Ledger representative reaching the scene before 4 o'clock. Thousands viewed the spectacle from the hills of the city. Third hill at Wollaston, Presidents hill, Cranch hill, Penns hill, Mt. Ararat and the quarries west of the West Quincy depot were vantage points.

From these points exceptionally good views of the conflagration were obtained. During the afternoon but little more than a long line of rising smoke could be seen, out of which there would occasionally leap a tongue of flame. In the evening, however, the sight was grand. For a space that seemed all of a mile long there was a sheet of flames. From this there would appear to be an explosion following which a sheet of flame would rise suddenly in the air.

That's what you'll say if you will look into the merits of the Ralston shoe—and after you've tried one pair you'll never have to be urged again.

You'll find that not only in style and dependability Ralstons have no superiors, even among five and six dollar shoes, but also that when it comes to fitting qualities Ralstons have no equals.

Ralston foot print lasts have marked a new epoch in shoe construction.

Let us show you why.

QUINCY ORGANIZES

To Collect Funds and Clothing for Chelsea's Aid

Quite a gathering of citizens assembled at City Hall Monday evening in response to the call sent out by Mayor Shea. The object of the meeting was to take action looking to the relief of the sufferers made homeless by the conflagration in Chelsea on Sunday.

In opening the meeting the Mayor said that a dire calamity had overtaken Chelsea. Thousands had been driven from their homes. An appeal had been sent out and he believed that the citizens of Quincy would respond to the call. He had formulated no plans, but what is to be done should be done quickly.

Ex-councilman W. H. Hull thought that a committee of two from each ward, to work on lines similar to those carried out for the aid of San Francisco would be a good plan. Also to have an appeal made in the churches.

Henry L. Kincaide said clothing was badly needed and suggested that a place be opened where articles of clothing could be received.

At this point the meeting organized with Mayor Shea as chairman, ex-Mayor Sears as secretary, and R. F. Claflin of the National Granite bank as treasurer.

Felix Favorite believed a circular appeal and a house-to-house collection for money and clothing a good thing.

It was voted that a committee of two or more from each ward be appointed to have charge of the soliciting and collecting.

Charles W. Hanscom said the Central Labor Union met this week and he suggested an appeal to the labor unions. He had no doubt they would gladly respond.

Charles H. Johnson offered to give his illustrated lecture in Quincy, the net receipts to be devoted to the fund.

R. F. Claflin thought it would be an excellent thing if the committee should issue a brief appeal to the citizens. It might stimulate a desire to contribute.

Dr. Hunting hoped that the committee would make it known that the funds and articles collected would be well taken care of.

T. L. Williams thought this a matter that demanded immediate attention. He would be glad to do anything to help along.

Mayor Shea then announced the following as the committee to solicit and receive funds and contributions, the first named being chairman:

Ward One,—Henry L. Kincaide, Maurice Spillane, Daniel J. Deasy, Delcevare King and Harry L. Rice.

Ward Two,—T. L. Williams, T. B. Pollard and Fred H. Smith.

Ward Three,—Henry McGrath, Alexander Falconer and Dr. R. McLennan.

Ward Four,—James F. Burke, William E. Badger and Edward J. Sandberg.

Ward Five,—Wendell H. Hull, S. F. Copeland and Walter E. Simmons.

Ward Six,—Ralph W. Hobbs, William Branscheid and Harry W. Reed.

The members of the committee present informally discussed ways and means after the meeting, and it was voted that each ward committee proceed as it thought best. The Daily Ledger agreed without cost to publish all subscriptions as received. An appeal will probably be issued.

Old Schoolhouse Set on Fire

The firemen did a good job Monday night in saving the old Atlantic school building from destruction. The wind was blowing a gale, and had the fire not been discovered in its early stage, the flying embers would have been carried to Norfolk Downs and Quincy might have had a conflagration.

The fire was evidently the work of an incendiary, and was apparently set near the porch on the northeasterly side. It was discovered by Daniel McNeice, a fireman attched to the Atlantic company. He was at the engine house at the time and happening to look out of the window facing the building saw the fire.

No time was lost by Combination No. 2 in arriving on the scene, and an alarm from Box 64 at 8.59 summoned additional help. The fire worked into the building, and up through the walls to the upper story. At times the upper rooms looked as though they were a roaring furnace.

Several lines of hose were laid. Some were taken into the building by the main entrance and others fought the flames from the outside. Had the fire once broken through in good shape with the high wind the building would have gone. The firemen realized this and they fought to keep the flames from coming through. At times the fire would break out over the side porch but a well directed chemical or water stream would put it out of business.

It was quite a stubborn fire to put out however, and it was an hour before the all-out signal was sounded. The loss to the building should not be more than $200.

APPEAL TO CITIZENS

How Quincy Has Planned For Relief of Chelsea Sufferers

In a time of distress, such as afflicts our neighbor, the City of Chelsea; when thousands have lost their entire possessions—home, furniture, clothing, food ,and in many cases the means of livelihood; when thousands are feeling the depths of despair, and are feeling helpless and forsaken; then is the time for the truly benevolent, those who feel that the Golden Rule is their guide, that real red blood courses in their veins—to go down deep into their pockets and to give of their comparative abundance as much as they can spare.

This is a time when their charity is sure to count, when they can feel that they are surely helping in a worthy cause; and if money cannot be spared or as much of it as they would wish, they can give of those other prime necessities—clothing, bedding, blankets, canned goods, and many other things.

Let all join in the good work, knowing that every little helps and that "Many a little makes a mickle."

Contributions of money can be sent to the City Treasurer at City Hall, or to the Treasurer of this fund, Rupert F. Claflin, at the National Granite Bank, or to Horace F. Spear at the National Mount Wollaston Bank. Other contributions can be sent to Kincaide's store or to store in Adams Building tendered for that purpose; or, on notice by letter or postal card, directed to the City Treasurer at City Hall, will be called for at the homes of contributors.

All contributions will be acknowledged through the Quincy Daily Ledger.

An Insult To the Voters

Editor of the Quincy Daily Ledger:

I have read with much interest the letter of Mr. D. L. F. Chase on "Express Permits.' The letter is surely timely. The citizens of Quincy are face to face with an issue which involves the good name and self-respect of her people. The action of our Council at a recent meeting, when, precipitately and indiscriminately, permits were granted to all applicants, without respect for moral fitness, is not only humilitating, but utterly without excuse. The men who voted thus cannot justify themselves in their action. They have misrepresented their city. The electors stand disgraced in their action. I can see it in no other light than that an outrage has been perpetrated on the majority of our citizens.

I submit that the councilmen in question owed it to those whom they are supposed to represent, to ask how their action comported with the will of those whom they have obligated themselves to represent. If these men cannot represent their constituents then they ought to have the honor to resign, and frankly say so. In that case we could respect them. As it is we cannot. They have accepted a trust which they have most flagrantly betrayed in this matter in question. They have with the utmost insolence slapped those who entrusted them with office, in the face, and should be called upon to give reason for so doing.

The trouble is, we sit supinely by, and swallow the insult. It is surely time electors took their turn. The people are indignant. Again and again has the writer heard good citizens repudiate the recent action of the Council. This is not enough. Let us devise ways and means for repudiating the reprehensible actors. It can be easily done. The same votes which gave them tenure of office, rightly used, will elect men who will stand for a clean city government. In the meantime let us keep in touch with the further action of our Council, with a view to giving due credit where credit belongs, and at the some time resolve that those through whose votes we are being insulted shall be called to account.

Yours for good government,
N. J. Sproul.

Quincy, April 14, 1908.

Taken to Jail.

Jeremiah Cullinan will pass the next sixty days in Dedham jail as a result of over indulgence in liquid refreshments. Late last year he was before the court for the same offense and was given time to pay his fine. He failed to come to time, however, and was defaulted. Monday night Cullinan again fell into the hands of the police and this morning was fined $30 on the two complaints. Being unable to pay he went to jail.

Interesting Talks At Brotherhood

A Dutch supper was served on Monday evening at the April meeting of the Bethany Church Brotherhood, and was enjoyed by nearly 100 men. There was a bountiful supply of frankfurts, potato salad, bologna, sauerkraut, baked beans, pickles, rye bread, rolls, hot squash pie, cheese, coffee and pretzels.

President Myers presided, and the program included addresses by Edward Southworth, Rev. E. C. Wheeler of Rockland, Rev. E. W. Phillips of Whitman, and violin solos by Leo Brooks. Six were elected to membership. The next meeting will be the annual and also a ladies night. Messrs. E. W. Branch, E. V. Fitts and C. T. Sherman were appointed a committee on nominations.

Mr. Brooks was accompanied by Leslie Mehaffey and his solos were much enjoyed.

Mr. Southworth spoke particularly of his visit to the colored schools at Washington, and to the home of one of the prominent colored educators. Their kindergarten, he said, was the best he ever saw. All the teachers were polite and refined and doing excellent work. The work at the High school was remarkable. At the meeting he attended they were forking for the uplifting of the race, and the leaders were cultured and earnest, and worthy of the respect of every loyal citizen of the United States.

Rev. Mr. Wheeler told of his visit to Gibraltar, and gave his audience a much better idea of the fortress and its surroundings which really are little known. First he noted that the current through the strait is always into the Mediterranean sea. Then he was impressed with the length rather than the height. It is not a barren, uninhabitated land, but abounding in growing things, gardens in bloom, animals, fish, and birds, and has a large thickly settled population. There is some business but no commerce. The strongest fortification is not toward the sea, but toward the land, but nevertheless Gibraltar commands the strait. The description of the excavations of the fortress, its history, the seiges, etc., were full of interest.

Rev. M. Phillips spoke for Christian manhood. While it was an earnest talk, he introduced so many stories that it was not at all dry, but awakened considerable interest among the men to rally to the work of the church.

The Brotherhood showed its interest in the addresses of the evening in the unanimous vote of thanks extended.

The Best Spring Medicine in the World is

TRUE'S ELIXIR

Spring usually finds the whole system run down and more or less out of order. The bowels are sluggish and inactive—the system is debilitated—the blood impoverished. Nearly everybody needs a Spring Remedy. For 57 years True's Elixir has been the standby of thousands at this season, as it is the best possible remedy to arouse the stomach, liver and bowels from their sluggish condition. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless.

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

Quincy lodge of Orangemen will hold a social Thursday evening at Wilson's hall.

Mrs. Charles J. Anderson of Oakland avenue is spending a few days in Somerville with Mrs. John B. Rich.

Clan McGregor held an open meeting Monday evening for the purpose of explaining to prospective members the principles and purposes of the order.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Clattenburg have issued invitations for an at home to be held Monday, April 20, from 4 to 6 P. M., at the St. Chrysostom's rectory.

Mrs. Alfred E. Walker of South Central Avenue returned on Saturday, from West Wareham, where she spent three weeks with her mother, Mrs. William H. Cowan.

Mrs. White entertained a few friends at whist Friday afternoon April 10, at her home on Farrington street. Souvenirs were won by Mrs. Albert E. Kingsbury, Mrs. Francis H. Corey and Mrs. White.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Kingsburys of Newton street entertained their whist club on Thursday evening of last week. Prizes were won by Mrs. Kingsbury, Mrs. James B. Smith, Mr. William O. Phelps and Mr. Harry Howarth.

A motion to set aside the verdict in the action of Hege vs. Fore River Shipbuilding Co., was argued the other day before Judge Dodge of the U. S. Circuit court in Boston, but his honor ruled that the verdict must stand. The defendent's contention was that the jury's finding was against the weight of the evidence and also against the law.

HELP FOR HOMELESS

Comes Promptly and Efficiently After Chelsea Disaster

NO ONE WITHOUT SHELTER

Three Known Dead, but a Hundred Persons Are Missing, the Bodies of Some of Whom May Be In the Ruins--Many Families Separated

Boston, April 14.—From the embers of Sunday's conflagration in Chelsea there has arisen a well organized movement for aid and relief of the ten thousand homeless, a counting of the cost by insurance companies, whose representatives placed their losses at three millions and a half, and a determination by the city authorities to rebuild the 350 acres swept by the flames where stood, before the fire, property valued at nearly six millions.

Revised figures indicate that the losses are divided according to the various classes of property destroyed as follows:

Churches and schools	$525,000
Public buildings	475,000
Factories, business blocks and contents	825,000
Dwelling houses	3,750,000
Total	$5,575,000

The insurance of $3,500,000 is divided among about eighty companies.

There is comparatively little suffering reported among the fire victims. So prompt and efficient was the relief work, beginning Sunday, that practically no one was without shelter during the night. Yesterday the relief work was taken up by those who handled the Massachusetts fund for San Francisco sufferers.

Early in the day Mayor Beck issued an appeal to the country, but after a conference with Acting Governor Draper the appeal was amended so as to include only the state. Announcement was made that $15,000 had been raised by subscription in Boston before noon. In addition, the city of Chelsea appropriated $10,000 and a resolve for $100,000 from the state was introduced in the house of representatives. Many nearby cities announced the starting of subscription papers, and the city governments of others will holds special meetings to take action on the matter. A message received from President Roosevelt expressed sympathy and volunteered the services of the army and navy.

In the meantime the local organizations, such as the Associated Charities and Salvation Army, were perfecting their work and they professed entire ability to find temporary quarters for all the homeless.

The burned district is closely patrolled by the state militia. The work of the guard, however, consists mostly in keeping people from venturing too near the standing walls. There is very little property remaining to be guarded, so thoroughly had the area been swept by the flames. In fact, the underwriters who viewed the ruins see no prospect of salvage of any description.

One street, Broadway, has been cleared and opened to the general public, and as it leads straight through the heart of the ruins, a steady stream of people move through it all day. A few of the ruins smoke lazily, and two more oil tanks caught fire yesterday and burned themselves out. Other than these, there was little left of the fire and all the visiting apparatus was sent home yesterday.

The burned territory was so densely populated that it will take a long time to examine the ruins thoroughly. People hunting for missing relatives and friends had to confine their efforts to the hospitals, relief bureaus and the many neighboring cities and towns.

While the list of official dead still remains at three, it is believed that there must be more somewhere among the blackened timbers and stones. So far as can be learned there are fully 100 missing. The work at reducing this list necessarily proceeds slowly.

Families scattered widely in the first excitement and so many were the places of refuge offered in the thickly populated metropolitan district, a district second only to New York in point of population and covering a wide area, that the work of systematizing a search proceeds with great difficulty. In a large majority of cases fathers and brothers sent the children and women out of danger early in the conflagration and remained behind until the last moment in the hopes of saving some of their heavier possessions. The fire traveled so rapidly that they had to make hasty escapes and were unable to rejoin the others of their families.

Offices for registration purposes to assist in reuniting families and tracing the missing were opened by the relief committees, the police and the newspapers during the day, and by night many of the missing reported themselves.

One gratifying feature of the situation is the fact that all the homeless people are well housed. So far as known no one is sleeping out of doors or in tents. Ample accommodations in the halls, public buildings and private houses of the neighboring places were furnished for all refugees. Provisions poured into the relief stations from all sides, and during last night meetings of citizens in various cities and towns of the state took steps to organize relief work. Mayor Beck of Chelsea has especially emphasized the need of children's clothing and in many of the public schools appeals for articles of this kind will be made.

It is believed that Massachusetts will be amply able to provide for the sufferers, but Acting Governor Draper, Mayor Beck and other officials, as well as the citizens generally, express their deep gratitude at the spontaneous offers of aid that came from all over the country.

Fiends May Have Spread Flames

Boston, April 14.—The Post says: Mayor Beck, in an interview with a Post representative last night, made the startling statement that at least three fires in the same district, northeast of Broadway, the tenement district where the fire raged first, had been set after the original blaze had commenced to gain headway.

"I have been informed by a friend," said Mayor Beck, "that he saw with his own eyes one of these incendiaries at work. My informant is a prominent merchant of this city whose honor and accuracy of observation cannot be questioned. Almost before the original blaze had gone beyond control there were men actively engaged in doing all that they could to nullify the fight that was being made against terrible odds."

Will Investigate Gotham's Affairs

Albany, April 14.—Governor Hughes has signed the bill providing for an investigation into the government of New York city. The law authorizes the governor to appoint a commission of fifteen persons to inquire into the city government in New York, suggest legislation, and in its discretion draft a new charter and an administrative code for the city. The commission has authority to delve into all departments and can compel the attendance of witnesses and the taking of testimony under oath. The city must provide for the commission's expenses.

Why Farms Are Deserted

Washington, April 14.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, in an address here last night, made a strong plea for the return of young men to agricultural pursuits. The desertion of the farm for the city is a national menace, he declared. He said that the reason why the farm is being forsaken for city life is because the American youth has not had that training in scientific farming necessary to make that occupation a successful one.

Probing Alleged Combinations

Washington, April 14.—Attorney General Bonaparte sent Speaker Cannon a letter in reply to the house resolution asking what steps have been taken by the government to investigate the alleged combination of wood pulp or print paper manufacturers. Bonaparte says that an investigation is in progress, but no evidence has yet been obtained to justify legal proceedings.

Senators Declared Unfaithful

New York, April 14.—Rev. D. C. Hughes, father of Governor Hughes, was at a meeting of the Baptist ministers of this city when a resolution was adopted declaring that the state senators who opposed the anti-gambling bills were unfaithful to their oaths of office and disloyal to the state constitution. Plans were made for an indignation meeting next week.

War Relics Burned With Church

Berlin, April 14.—The historic garrison church in the Neue Freiedrichstrasse, dating from 1703, was completely burned out, with numerous ancient regimental shot-worn flags, carried in various wars, which decorated the central aisle of the church. Only the shell of the building is now standing. A short-circuited electric wire caused the fire.

Alleged Assailants of Girl

Valdez, Alaska, April 14.—O. L. Grimes, a teacher in the schools on Afognak island, and C. P. Henkel, superintendent of the government fish hachery at Letnieck, are under arrest, charged with attacking a 14-year-old Russian girl. In addition to these two cases, officers are in possession of affidavits making similar charges against other persons.

Sealed His Own Fate

Tampa, Fla., April 14.—As a train was approaching Winston late last night, John Jackson, enraged because Lizzie Holmes persisted in coming to Tampa, threw her from the platform of a coach and then jumped after her. The woman was unhurt, but Jackson's neck was broken by the fall.

Corruption Reigns In Moscow

Moscow, April 14.—The prefect of Moscow is about to begin prosecutions against five of his sub-prefects, the chief of the fire department and several of the higher police officials, alleging that their departments are honeycombed with corruption, extortion and collusion with criminals.

Soldiers Ready For Business

Pensacola, Fla., April 14.—An entire regiment of infantry and two gatling guns being here, an effort will be made to operate street cars after a suspension of service for eight days, due to the strike of street railway employes. Additional strike-breakers reached the city late yesterday.

Miners Gain Concessions

Bay City, Mich., April 14.—The Michigan coal miners and the operators, in joint conference here, agreed on a scale for the ensuing year. Wages are unchanged from last year, but the miners obtained some changes in working conditions.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, April 15.
Sun rises—5:03; sets—6:26.
Moon sets—4:57 a. m.

The weather will be generally fair in New England. It will be warmer.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

Manager H. G. Smith has issued notice number 185 which is as follows: "The works will be closed on Monday, April 20, 1908, Patriots' Day. Only such repair work as is necessary will go on. Work will be resumed as usual Tuesday, April 21, 1908."

An election was held Monday, at the works to select nine directors of the Accident Association of the employees for the coming year.

The Stars and Stripes were raised over Fort Sumter 43 years ago today, April 14, 1865.

An extra set of propellors have been made for the steamer Creole.

Capt. John Roberts, of the British steamer Benedick, from Huelva, was held in $2,500 bail by the United States Commissioner at Philadelphia, on April 2, charged with smuggling wines into this country. The steward and cook were also held in $1,800 and $500, respectively.

Meetings of the Council Committee on Licenses and Public Buildings will be held tonight.

GREAT REWARD

How a Concern That Did a Generous Act is Now Being Repaid.

A few weeks ago the manufacturers of the Elba Home Remedies made a most astounding and generous offer. They advertised to give away through all the Riker-Jaynes stores any of their 34 preparations absolutely free. It wasn't a little sample they offered, but a full size package. They printed a coupon, which, filled out and brought to our stores, entitled them absolutely free to a full size package of the remedy their ill required.

The effect of this policy has been most remarkable. These remedies are bona fide prescriptions, discoveries of eminent specialists who have used them in their daily practice for years. Each of them is intended to cure a certain ill. They are not in any way "cure-alls," neither are they secret preparations. The formula of each one of the Elba Home Remedies is printed plainly and in full on the package.

This generous, open-handed system has not only gained the confidence of the public, but of eminent physicians. The absolute merit of the Elba Home Remedies has been assured. Had they not had virture the method thus adopted would have bankrupted the manufacturers. The remedies did do, however, all that was claimed for them. Astounding cures were effected. People who were made well gladly told their friends and neighbors how they accomplished this happy result. The consequence is our store is flooded with hundreds of others seeking restoration to health.

The confidence has been created in Elba Home Remedies that never can be shaken. On top of this confidence stands the Elba Home Remedy guarantee. Your money back at any time if all that the manufacturers claim for any one of them is not fulfilled exactly as promised.

We ourselves know of many cases where good has been accomplished. Following is one that has come to our notice:

Elba Chemical Co.,

Gentlemen—So wonderful have Elba Home Remedies acted in my wife's case that we want to tell other sick people about them. For over six months her health has been miserable. She was suffering with kidney and nervous troubles, had pains in her back and other symptoms of kidney disease. Four weeks ago today she suffered a nervous breakdown, and was completely prostrated. I took advantage of your free offer and had her try Elba Home Remedy No. 2 for Kindney, and Nervelba No. 8 (the nerve tonic.) Almost from the first day the change was marked. Within ten days she was able to get around and attend to her household duties. Now we are firm believers in Elba Home Remedies, and I have today purchased three of the other remedies. Either my wife or myself would be glad to tell anyone about her condition before she used them, and what a wonderful cure they brought her. Yours truly, CHAS. A. STEVENS, 18 Templeton street, Dorchester.

We also know from what other customers tell us that every one of the other 32 Elba Home Remedies will act in as sure, safe and scientific a manner as Nos. 2 and 8 did for Mrs. Stevens, and for this reason we lend our indorsement and name to all of these preparations.

Your money back at any time if you are in any way disappointed. CLYDE T. COX, Quincy, Mass.

We have the stock, tools, machinery, and "know how" to do your Optical work promptly and satisfactory. We repair the frames, grind lenses, match the broken ones or test the eye. C. F. Pettengill, 1391 Hancock street, Quincy.

BAKER WILL CONTEST

Boston, April 14.—The hearing upon the objections to the allowance of the will of Walter F. Baker, who died from poisoning at Bogota, N. J., under mysterious circumstances several months ago, has begun in the Suffolk county probate court here.

The contest is made by Edward F. Baker, the brother of the testator. The Baker will disposes of property valued at $450,000. He left $5000 to his brother Edward, $10,000 to Mrs. Helen B. Hurd of Bogota, N. J., at whose house he died, and provided that the residue of the estate should be divided into three parts. Harvard college was to have one-third, another third was left to Natalie Hurd, and the remainder was to be divided among certain nephews of the testator.

Natalie Hurd, who was 7 years old, has since died and her estate reverts to her parents. The will is defended by Harvard college and by the Hurds. A notable array of counsel attended the hearing.

Dancing Ban Is Raised

Worcester, Mass., April 14.—The New England Methodist conference voted to lift the ban on dancing, card playing, theatregoing and other amusements, which in the past have been forbidden to their followers. Rumors had been afloat that this body of clergymen would not assume the same position as the New York conference in this matter, but the vote showed 107 for the yeas and 42 nays.

Firebug Sent to Asylum

Boylston, Mass., April 14.—George A. Flagg, a wealthy citizen, was placed under arrest by state detectives at the old Flagg mansion here, charged with trying to burn up his two apartment houses in the town centre at midnight Friday. Drs. Kirby and Bowers pronounced him insane and he was committed to the Worcester insane asylum.

Determined to End Her Life

Boston, April 14.—After cutting her throat with a razor, Grace F. Fitzalle, colored, aged 26, jumped from a window on the fourth floor of her home to the street, a distance of forty feet, and died almost instantly. Despondency is believed to have been the cause for her action.

Instantly Killed by a Fall

Boston, April 14.—Mrs. Jane Goelett, aged 32, of Marlboro, was instantly killed by falling down the elevator well, from the street floor to the basement, in the department store of the Henry Siegel company. Death was caused by a fracture of the skull.

Plunger Makes Record Time

Newport, R. I., April 14.—The submarine torpedo boat Plunger, which left the New York navy yard on a trial trip to the torpedo station here, covered the distance in 17½ hours, which is said to be record time over this course for submarine boats.

Rival Soldiers May Clash

Havana, April 14.—General Guerra, with much ceremony, yesterday took command of the Cuban army. Guerra informed Governor Magoon that it was his desire immediately to organize his staff and Magoon gave consent. The general impression is that trouble is likely to ensue between Guerra's regulars and the rural guards under General Rodriguez, the two generals having been combatants in the revolution of 1906.

One More Mullins Suspect

St. John's, April 14.—The police here have been notified that the steamer Rosalind, due here from New York, has a man on board who is said to be a suspect in the Arlington, Mass., Mullins murder case. Chief Urquhart of the Arlington police was expected to be here when the boat arrives, but it is supposed that he is detained at Sydney, C. B., by the ice blockade.

Head Smashed by Hammer

Philadelphia, April 14.—William Renwick, the groundkeeper at the University of Pennsylvania, was struck on the head by a sixteen-pound hammer at Franklin field and probably fatally injured. Daniel F. Luby of Peabody, Mass., threw the hammer down the field toward Renwick, who either did not see the throw or lost sight of the weight in the sun.

Going After Shipwrecked Crews

St. John's, April 14.—Sealing steamer Adventure, which has arrived from the north with a cargo of seals, will return immediately to seek the sealing fleet and take on board the crews of the steamers Panther and Walrus, which recently foundered after collision with ice floes. The government chartered the Adventure to proceed north.

The Thaw Divorce Suit

New York, April 14.—Josiah Cohen of Pittsburg has been appointed a commissioner to take the testimony of Pittsburg witnesses in the suit for annulment of marriage which Evelyn N. Thaw has instituted against Harry K. Thaw. Three witnesses whose testimony he will take testified in the Thaw trials.

Hero Crushed to Death

Hammond, La., April 14.—Frank Stewart, a pumping engineer, gave his life to save a small boy from being killed by a railway engine. Stewart jumped in front of the engine and tossed the boy safely off the track, but was himself run over and crushed to death.

Sunday Games In Alabama

Mobile, Ala., April 14.—Judge Alford declared the Alabama law against the playing of baseball, lawn tennis, golf and other games on Sunday to be unconstitutional.

CHILD KILLED BY POISON

Man Who Mixed the Stuff With Flour Has a Shady Record

Chicago, April 14.—Francesca Nicolazzo declares that the death of Mary Renda, 8 years old, who died several days ago under suspicious circumstances, was caused by poison which he had placed in the flour at the suggestion of the girl's mother. No motive is known for the alleged crime except that Mrs. Renda was angry with her husband because he desired to move from their present residence, while she desired to remain.

Nicolazzo was a close friend of the Renda family and declares that the woman asked him to buy the poison and, after he had done so, requested him to mix it with the flour. When his confession was read to the woman in the presence of Nicolazzo she made a vicious attack on him and it required the full strength of two police officers to drag her away.

Mrs. Renda charged Nicolazzo with the crime and declared that she believed it was his intention to poison her and her husband to get money that they had saved. Nicolazzo confessed he had been in trouble with the police of Rumford, Me., where he was acquitted of the murder of Francisco Vatalero. He also said he fled from Gorham, N. H., last December, after the sudden death of the owner of a boarding house, where he had been living.

KING "LOST HIS NERVE"

Missing Financial Agent Said to Be In a Bad Way Mentally

Boston, April 14.—C. F. King, the missing financial agent, is said by those who have been in communication with him not to be in such shape mentally that he would be of any assistance in the settlement of his affairs if he should return to Boston. There will therefore be no haste to bring him back.

Attorney Baker, who has been employed to act in the interests of King in the present effort being made to settle up his affairs and bring him back, has returned from Atlantic City, where he conferred last week with Attorney McDonough, who represents a number of King's creditors who had taken their claims into court.

"My conferences with Mr. McDonough were very satisfactory," said Baker. "King himself is in no condition mentally to help us much just now, even if he returned.

"I think that his affairs will be found to be in such condition that he will be able to settle with all his creditors for 100 cents on the dollar. That is, if they give him plenty of time. In my opinion, there was really no need of his going away. He simply lost his head, lost his nerve."

Battleship Advocates Busy

Washington, April 14.—Unlooked for progress was made by the house yesterday in the consideration of the naval appropriation bill. It has been one-half disposed of and the advocates of the four battleship proposals are aligning themselves for the fight on that subject. The hopes of the officers of the navy and marine corps for an increase in pay were dashed when, on a point of order, there was stricken from the bill the provision for such increase. On a similar point an amendment prohibiting naval or marine bands accepting private employment in competition with civilian musicians was lost.

Attempt to Wreck Trains

Elmira, N. Y., April 14.—A determined attempt was made last night to wreck a west-bound passenger train near Lowman by piling ties on the track. The ties were placed across the rails and then laid from the top of these to the roadbed between the rails. The train was running sixty miles an hour. The obstruction was on a sharp curve and close to the river. The locomotive ground one of the ties to pieces and shoved the others along the rails. A similar obstruction was found nearby on the east-bound tracks, where a freight train was due.

Suspected of Killing Millionaire

Huntington, Ind., April 14.—Police Chief Marks of Pelham Manor, N. Y., has decided to take the three Italians under arrest here back to New York on a charge of complicity in the murder of Julius Rosenheimer, a millionaire, last June. Two men and a woman are under arrest, Frank Monato being charged by his wife with the murder of the millionaire.

Clergyman's Corpse Found Floating

New York, April 14.—The body of a man found in the Hudson river was identified last night as that of Rev. Dr. Charles E. Allison, pastor of a Presbyterian church at Yonkers. The body was badly decomposed. It is not known in what manner Allison met his death. He was last seen on Jan. 2 on the public pier at Yonkers.

Seven Detectives to Lose Jobs

Philadelphia, April 14.—Without any preliminary warning, Director of Public Safety Clay demanded the resignations of seven of the best known detectives in the city for the "good of the service." But one of them is eligible to go on the police pension roll.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Dennis Porter, 4 years old, was instantly killed in the dooryard of his home at Dexter, Me. The boy was playing in the yard near a pile of logs, at which some men were working, and was struck by the rolling logs.

Peter M. Neal, war mayor of Lynn, Mass., is dead. He was a Quaker and was born at North Berwick, Me., in 1811. He removed to Lynn in 1850 and had represented his district in both branches of the legislature.

Swarms of People To see Cooper

New York, April 13. There seems to be no let-up in the tremendous interest that has been aroused in this city and vicinity by L. T. Cooper, the young philanthropist, who is introducing his preparations to New York people. The remarkable results accomplished by him in the past two weeks are daily becoming more manifest. Some of those who purchased his medicine in the early part of his visit are now calling at his headquarters, the Riker Drug Store, 456 Fulton Street, to report results.

Yesterday was a record-breaking day, and many present were anxious to tell what Cooper's preparations had done for them. One of these was Mrs. A. E. Stack, living at 88 Washington Street, Brooklyn. Mrs. Stack had previously been treated for stomach trouble and nervousness, which according to her story, had afflicted her for a quarter of a century. In relating her experience Mrs. Stack said:

"I have been a sufferer for twenty-five years with stomach trouble and nervousness. I have grown steadily worse until of late years I have been compelled to go without food for days at a time. What food I could eat did not agree with me, and I had become terribly despondent. I did not sleep at night and would get up as tired as when I went to bed.

"I have spent many hundreds of dollars in the effort to get well, but nothing helped me.

"A week ago a friend of mine told me of this new Cooper medicine and I decided to give it a trial. Today I have a good appetite, can eat anything, and my nervousness has disappeared. I noticed that I was no longer troubled with formation of gas in the stomach the second day after I started taking the medicine.

"If I had not actually had the experience I could not believe it after so many years' suffering. This Mr. Cooper has the most wonderful medicine I know anything about."

Statements such as this from sources of unquestioned integrity have firmly established public confidence in Cooper's ability, and although some members of the medical profession scoff when the subject is brought up in their presence, the faith of the people generally remains unshaken.

EDITORIAL.

It will be 47 years tomorrow (April 15, 1861) that Col. Abner Packard of the 4th Regiment, M. V. M., received orders to report with command in Boston the following day. The response was quick. Today (April 14) is also the anniversary of the assassination of President Lincoln in 1865. It is a good day to send a check for the new soldiers' monument.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Full moon Thursday night.

On Saturday the sun will rise before 5 o'clock.

April meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian club tonight.

Miss Avah Gilson is the guest of Miss Bertha Bartlett of Malden.

Mrs. Henry Kolseth of Walker street has returned from Manchester, N. H.

Miss Helen Coombs of Boston was a guest of Miss Ethel Hill of Walker street last week.

The Daily Ledger will publish all church programs for Easter if forwarded early this week.

The base ball season opened in Boston this afternoon, the Boston Americans playing the Washington team,

A contest for delegates is expected at the 10th district Congressional convention of the Republican this evening.

The Easter decorations in the Granite Shoe store windows are very artistic and attract considerable attention.

The Houghs Neck Associates will give its minstrel show for the benefit of the homeless in Chelsea.

The quarry owners held a meeting Monday night, but no definite action was taken toward settling the strike.

A new front is being built to the store block ocupied by William West- nd O'Brien's news stand on street.

Quincy Elks went Monday evening, and he officers of Brockton trip was made in a spec- ar. The officers of Quin- be installed tonight by oston lodge.

The relief committee have been given the use of one of the vacant stores in the Adams building for headquarters. The room will be in charge of a competent person and contributions of clothing may be left there.

Quincy people obtained a good view of the Chelsea ruins yesterday by taking a trolley to the North station in Boston, thence by rail to the Chelsea station. They were allowed to walk through Broadway but could not leave that street. They returned by trolley.

St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church held an attractive Easter sale Saturday afternoon at Clive street. The financial proceeds were a compliment to those who expended effort and time in preparation for the sale. The outlay was most attractive in every detail.

The Salvation Army man who visited Atlantic Saturday said he found the residents noticeably open hearted and that very few doors where he called did not open bountifully in charity to meet his request for a good cause. When the team left Atlantic, it was filled to the doors, on top a bed, mattress and spring were strapped and on behind a first class kitchen table.

The Wollaston Unity club will hold a special meeting in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church Wednesday evening, April 15. Miss Parret, the physical director in the Milton schools and also head of Cunningham Gymnasium, will speak on "What parents can do for their children physically, mentally and morally." It will be an open meeting and the public are cordially invited.

ARBOR DAY APPEAL.

The Civic committee of the Quincy Women's club is desirous of doing some systematic tree planting on city streets and has selected Coddington as one in need of shade trees. No street is more used by residents of the city as a whole, as it is the thoroughfare to Mt. Wollaston cemetery and beaches beyond. The committee wishes to set out maple and elm trees from Washington street corner to the Adams farm to connect with those set out years ago by Mr. John Quincy Adams. Although Mr. Patterson the Wollaston florist has agreed to furnish the trees for $60 hundred it will take considerable money as over two hundred will be needed. The Civic committee treasury cannot at the present time put more than $60 into the cause which would be half of the cost of the trees. One member has contributed personally $25 and others will pay for several trees. Would any of the abutters, Coddington school children, or tree loving citizens care to contribute financially in this good work? If so it would be greatly appreciated by the committee.

Annie L. Prescott,
for the Committee.

AN AMENDMENT.

In Mississippi there was a colored preacher noted in those parts for the extreme frankness and candor of his exhortations to his wicked brethren to reform. On one occasion the divine was holding forth on the sin of theft. Among other things he said:

"I see befo' me ten chicken thieves, includin' Dan Samson."

This bald statement of fact rather aroused the resentment of the aforesaid Samson, and he threatened the minister with personal violence. The latter's friends persuaded the divine to withdraw the accusation, if Samson would promise not to offer the minister any hurt.

Therefore, rising in the pulpit on the day appointed, the minister said:

"It 'pears dat a remark of mine in de sermon of last Sunday has been de cause of offence, an' I derefore amends it. What I should have said was dis: 'I see befo' me ten chicken thieves, not includin' Dan Samson.'"—Harper's Weekly.

—The total interest and dividend payments to be made next month by railroad, industrial and traction corporations, according to compilations by "The New York Journal of Commerce," an excellent authority, will be $126,584,488, as against $134,317,429 in April a year ago, or a decrease of $7,732,941. In view of all the conditions prevailing during the early months of Winter it will strike most persons that the showing is a good one, and that the so-called business depression has not been as great as some would have it appear.

ANNUAL SALE, TEN MILLION BOXES

Grade Crossings And Workingmen

Editor of the Quincy Daily Ledger:

The contemplated railway improvements in this city have been agitated for a number of years by the citizens. All classes agree that grade crossings are dangerous, and as the traffic and population increases the risk to the people is augmented.

The railroad company have for years been preparing for this important undertaking by purchasing property rights, and have expected that former city administrations would demand that this important question would be brought to the attention of the company's agents. In this they were disappointed. No official action was submitted to the company, but instead there was postponement and delay on the part of the former administrations.

Certain property owning classes have been greatly benefited by this delay, which will result in increased expense to the people. The political future of a clique of peanut politicians can perhaps be enhanced by their pusillanimous disregard of the public interests, but their acts will be a great detriment to this and future generations.

The time has come for action. The railroad company have brought the subject to the attention of the city and delay is no longer possible. The work will stand as a monument of beauty or disgrace for all time. Which shall it be? The railroad have no interest in the matter of beauty or utility to the city. To them it is a practical matter of better service and increased profits. Their estimates are furnished by the most competent engineers.

How can the present Mayor be expected to safeguard the welfare of the city unless he can secure the services of first class civil engineers. His request to the city government that funds be appropriated for this purpose was not granted. The city can have no plans or estimates as to probable expense or any superficial knowledge what its pro rata share of this great improvement is to be.

The Statutes provide that seventy-five per cent of the expense is paid by the Railroad, fifteen per cent by the State and the balance of ten per cent by the City.

Is it economy for the city to expend this large sum of money without proper advise? If when this work is completed and it is proven that the city debt has been unnecessarily increased who is to bear the blame? It will be the result of the contemptible pusillanious actions of peanut ward politicians.

Any increase in the present debt means higher rate of taxation and higher taxes means increased rents. This then is the vital interest that the working men have in this question and in the future if a mistake has been made in not furnishing the Mayor the necessary funds to secure competent advise.

The working men of this city will not forget to place the blame on the right men. Increased rents mean decreased wages.

Chas. W. Hanscom.

Sunday will be Patriots day as well as Easter, so that Monday will be observed as a holiday.

Give the Mayor A Fair Chance

Editor of the Quincy Daily Ledger:

I wish to refute two charges made against our Mayor.

Some say he promised an unpartisan administration, but almost the first he did was to turn out Assesor Johnson. Now, I say, give Mr. Johnson's successor a chance to make good, and if he can't do it, demand the re-instatement of Mr. Johnson, and not cease from saying "to the victors remain the spoils."

Some say that this is a "Rum Administration" and quote the granting of 13 permits to transport liquor into Quincy as an evidence of a "Rum Administration." Now, I say, give the Mayor a fair chance to show his manhood and to show that the temperance training he has had, is to tell for temperance. Certainly he will hear and heed the 2000 No-License majority. He knows his party and his administration is on trial before the city; and he knows he has such veto-power as to make this a clean city; and let the rest of us, regardless of creed or politics, support him in this right. I believe in him.

Straight Republican Protestant.

"Ralston's for Mine"

That's what you'll say if you will look into the merits of the Ralston shoe—and after you've tried one pair you'll never have to be urged again.

You'll find that not only in style and dependability Ralstons have no superiors, even among five and six dollar shoes, but also that when it comes to fitting qualities Ralstons have no equals.

Ralston foot print lasts have marked a new epoch in shoe construction.

Let us show you why.

AMONG THE CLUBS

The Charitable Ten's Circle of King's Daughters will meet with Mrs. J. Henry Emery Adams street on Monday April 20 at 2 o'clock. Sewing and regular monthly meeting.

The Junior Friday club goes to West Newton for its next meeting, the club being entertained at the home of Miss Grace Isaac on Tuesday afternoon, April 21st. Michaël Angelo, music of the period and renaissance architecture will be the subjects discussed in the continuation of the study of Florence.

Mrs. Florence Evans of Dorchester speaks on "Purity Lessons" Thursday afternoon in Bethany chapel under the auspices of the Mothers' association. On April 23, her subject will be "Birth Problems and Elemental Lessons in Self Control."

QUINCY WOMAN'S CLUB.

Although rounding out its third year the Quincy Women's club is losing none of its energy and enthusiasm, in fact the meetings bring out larger and larger gatherings, it being especially noticeable at the business meetings which used to be slimly attended.

Mrs. George W. Morton, president called the meeting together promptly on Tuesday afternoon and reports were given by the secretaries, and treasurer. Mrs. Ward Whitcher spoke of the Chelsea fire, the needs of the people who were homeless and made the motion that $50 be sent from the club which was unanimously voted, Mrs. W. E. Simmons, Mrs. W. E. Alden, Mrs. Morton speaking in favor of the cause. Mrs. Simmons told of the immediate need of quick action in sending clothing and agreed to pack and forward all clothing left at her house and Mrs. Morton said she would gladly do the same in Ward One.

The Arts and Crafts committee announced that the club house was heated and comfortable for any who might care to use the loom. The loom was a modern one easily worked and members could have the use of it for a small sum per week.

The extra meeting of the club is to be held next Tuesday afternoon, April 21st, at the club house which will be free to club members and also the public. It is under the auspices of the Arts and Crafts committee, Mrs. W. E. Blanchard, chairman. There will be a musical program by Miss Margaret Carruthers, pianist and Mrs. Dudley Talbot of Milton, who will sing a group of old fashioned songs. Mrs. Overholser of Wellesley Hills will give a talk on Arts and Crafts which will prove of great interest as Mrs. Overholser is an entertaining speaker and also one well posted in her subject as she is chairman of the Arts and Crafts department of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's clubs. Following the program there will be an exhibit of the work of eight clubs including the Deerfield. If club members cannot come early for the program they should plan to drop in later for the exhibit. However to thoroughly enjoy the afternoon none of the program as arranged by Mrs. Blanchard and her committee should be missed.

The Education committee, Mrs. C. R. Safford chairman, spoke of the Children's Fetival to be held at Quincy Music hall on Saturday afternoon the 25th, and asked the support of all club members in making it the most successful one ever held. A great amount of good is done by the committee with the money raised in this way and it is their only appeal for support throughout the year. They maintain summer schools for sewing, sloyd and recreation, also give prizes for sewing, sloyd and flower and vegetable gardens, encouraging the young to do useful things through the summer. If you cannot go yourself buy tickets and make some youngsters happy.

There will be a hurdy-gurdy for dancing. Adams and Cranch school pupils are to give a cantata, Y. M. C. A. boys give a drill, also the Atlantic Signal corps. Then there will be maybaskets by the hundreds, candy to put in them, also ice cream and many things to delight children. Candy may be sent to Mrs. C. M. Bryant and maybaskets to Mrs. E. W. Sheppard.

Mrs. Otho A. Hayward for music committee announced that the musicale for next year had already been arranged for and also good musical programs for the various meetings which promised much pleasure to club members.

Mrs. Francis Abele, Jr., for Philanthropy committee said a Charity Conference had been formed, with representatives in each ward to investigate appeals. The committee had arranged for a social or thimble party at the club house on Tuesday afternoon, May 5, to which all club members were invited. It was not necessary to bring sewing but it was thought it would be more informal. Each one was asked to wear her visiting card pinned conspicuously on her dress so that introductions would not be necessary. There will be music and refreshments. It was hoped club members would all attend.

Mrs. John F. Welch for the Visiting Nurse committee said that to obtain the services of the Nurse it was necessary to apply to a doctor.

Mrs. N. G. Nickerson, who is collecting old rubber to sell for the benefit of the Visiting Nurse's salary, reported a generous response. Mr. Joselyn of Wollaston, a rubber merchant of Boston, sent a big donation and large collections were being made in the wards of the city. The barrel at the club house had been filled and would be put out again for the next meeting. It was hoped to have all collected by April 22d.

From now on there will be meetings every Tuesday afternoon at the club house until the close of the club season.

The musical program consisted of songs by Miss May Belle G. Dadnum, first soprano of the Bostonia Ladies'

Installation Of the Elks

Tuesday evening was a red letter night for Quincy lodge of Elks. It was the annual installation of officers, and the members turned out en mase to welcome the installing suite. In addition to these, there was a large number of visitors from other lodges, and the lodge room was crowded.

A regular business session was held during the first part of the evening, during which several were elected to membership, and several initiated.

Then came the installation. This work was performed by Laurence H. Sullivan, exalted ruler of Boston lodge, who was accompanied by a large suite composed as follows: Grand Esteemed Leading Knight, James A. Galvin; Grand Esteemed Loyal Knight, Thomas H. Dowd; Grand Esteemed Lecturing Knight, Walter A. Webster; Grand Secretary, Daniel J. Kane; Grand Treasurer, James H. Buckley; Organist, Fred M. Strahar; Violinst, Henry J. Rockett; Grand Chaplain, Thomas M. Guiney; Grand Inside Guard, Richard G. Stocher; Grand Tyler Oscar Schaeffer; Grand Trustees, J. W. Linehan, George A. Fallon, Eugene M. Schwortinghurg, Thomas J. Bodes, Fred E. Perkins, Saul B. Kantor, F. J. Coughlin and P. F. McCarren; Grand Esquire, William M. Murphy.

After the installation ceremonies, which were beautifully rendered, a Boston caterer served salads, escaloped oysters, ices, etc.

Then the brothers again assembled in the lodge room with Grand Exalted Ruler as toastmaster. There was a pleasing entertainment. This included remarks by born orators, solos, recitations, etc., all members of the suite being introduced.

One of the distinguished guests of the evening was Gus Williams, the well known commedian, who came directly from a Boston play house. Mr. Williams was one of the original seven who founded the order forty years ago, and who also founded Boston lodge thirty years ago. He was given a royal welcome, and when called upon gave several sketches.

The new officers of Quincy lodge are:

Esteemed Leading Knight—William J. Coleman.
Esteemed Loyal Knight—Elmer L. Paine.
Esteemed Lecturing Knight—R. J. Williams.
Secretary—Edmund W. Courtney.
Treasurer—Benjamin Johnson.
Tyler—Edward Desmond.
Trustee for three years—Henry W. Tirrell.

The newly elected exalted ruler, William R. Thomas, has not yet arrived home from Europe but will be installed on his return.

QUINCY'S RESPONSE

Prompt and Generous in Cash, Supplies And Clothing

Responses to the appeal sent out to the citizens of Quincy for contributions of money and articles of clothing began to come in bunches today. All the morning the telephones at City Hall were busy receiving notices of bundles of clothing that had been made ready, and asking that teams be sent to collect them.

William H. Flynn was placed in charge of the receiving room in the Adams building this morning, and a city team started out to make collections. Before noon so many requests to call for bundles had been received that it was seen that one team would be inadequate, and a second team was put on.

Mayor Shea also requested several parties who own automobiles to lend their assistance and this afternoon several of these were in use.

The Mayor would be glad if any lady would report at the receiving room and assist in sorting and getting the clothing sent in, readiness for shipment.

It is probable that a team load of supplies will be sent over the road to Chelsea before night. Other loads will follow as fast as collected and made ready.

In another column is announced a benefit lecture for the Chelsea relief by Charles H. Johnson. One hundred children are wanted to sell tickets, and it is a good chance for children to help swell the Quincy fund. One thousand tickets should be sold.

This morning Mayor Shea received the following letter in answer to his letter to Mayor Beck of Chelsea:

Chelsea, April 14, 1908.

Hon. William T. Shea, Mayor Quincy, Mass.

Dear Sir:—Your telegram of sympathy and offer of aid received and on behalf of the citizens of Chelsea I extend to you their heartfelt thanks. Checks should be made payable to Lee, Higginson & Co., Boston. All necessities should be sent to the High school.

Yours truly,
John E. Beck, Mayor.

South Quincy Fire.

The alarm from Box 138 at 4.30 this morning was for a fire in the L of a house on corner Brooks avenue and Centre street occupied by Thomas Keenan as lunch room. The fire had made a good start when discovered, but was confined to the L of the building, which with its contents was damaged $600. The fire started from an accidental cause. During the early evening a fire had been started in the grass outside by a cigarette, and had set the sills of the building on fire. This was put out by the occupants of the store. It is thought that while they supposed that all the fire had been extinguished it was not and that the sills smouldered until 4.30 when fire broke out.

VOTE WILL BE CLOSE

Opponents of Four New Battleships In Majority In Congress

A PRESIDENTIAL MESSAGE

China's Position Due to "Peace at Any Price" Doctrine--No Hope of Limitation of Armaments--Country Must Take No Backward Step

Washington, April 15.—The message of the president in support of his plan for an appropriation for four new battleships, concerning which there has been so much speculation, was received yesterday by both houses of congress.

That the message was designed to influence the house to increase the number of battleships provided for in the naval bill from two to hour, was generally understood, and the dispatch of the message was intended to be so timed as to reach the house just before the taking up of that provision.

The debate on the naval appropriation bill was on when the message arrived, and it quickly became noised about that the anticipated document had reached the house. All sorts of questions were asked of the floor leaders as to when the reading of the message would begin. But a typographical error in the print of the message was seized upon by those opposed to the four battleships plan to delay the reading, in the hope that the provision relating to the battleships would be first reached and thereby discount any effect the message might have in bringing members over to the president's view.

It looked at one time as if it would be necessary to return the message to the president so that he might make the required correction and, when this was avoided, further delay was caused by the necessity of a change which would transform the committee of the whole into the house proper and then return to the committee's method of proceeding. Consequently the bill was not laid before the house until just before the close of the day's work. It was enthusiastically received by the advocates of a larger navy.

"The antis" later gave vent to their feelings by applauding a petition from citizens of New York city, which was read at the instance of Mr. Tawney, protesting against "the extravagance of spending over sixty million dollars for four battleships."

These demonstrations afforded a fair opportunity to judge the temper of the house as a whole on the proposition. It was evident that the opponents of four battleships were in the majority, although the final vote will be close. On an objection by Mr. Williams, Mr. Hobson was prevented from having read a memorial from laboring men favoring the building of more ships.

Senators and members were supplied with copies of the message and many read it with avidity.

The message was a brief, but vigorous, contention for the rapid development of the navy. China was held up as an example of the "peace at any price" doctrine, and Great Britain as having the naval policy to be emulated It was contended that the result of the last Hague conference made it plain that the nations would not for some time, if ever, agree on a plan of limitation of naval armament. Disclaiming any intention on the part of the United States ever to engage in a war of conquest, the president made it plain that this country could ill-afford to relax into a position where insult would have to be borne in silence.

Hammering at Aldrich Bill

Washington, April 15.—Vigorous support and equally vigorous denunciation of the Aldrich bill attended yesterday's hearing on that measure before the house committee on banking and currency. Former Comptroller of the Currency Dawes argued that an elastic ...ergency currency as provided for in ...ich bill is vital to the financial ... the people at this time. ... New York and ... and New England for and against the ...oon session.

...ht Cubans Napping

...l 15.—The various po... have not yet met for the ...hoosing Cubans to replace ...can provincial governors ap... by Governor Magoon. The ...usion says in an editorial: The ...arch for impartial Cubans to replace the American governors has been a sorry sight. Governor Magoon, with simple but profound Yankeke shrewdness, caught us napping.

Julia Marlowe Breaks Down

New York, April 15.—Miss Julia Marlowe is seriously ill in this city as a result of a nervous breakdown. With care she may be able to resume her work in May. Miss Marlowe's physician and her attorney have found it unwise to consult her for the time being concerning the introduction of her name in a Boston divorce suit. At present no one is permitted to see her.

Steamer at Sea's Mercy

Halifax, April 15.—No further word has been received here regarding steamer Breiz Huel, which is drifting helplessly about the ocean in the vicinity of Sable Island with a broken rudder. As the disabled vessel is in the track of the regular liners, it is thought in shipping circles that she will soon be picked up.

IN HOME WATERS

Battleship Fleet at Anchor Off Coast of California

San Diego, Cal., April 15.—The American battleship fleet sailed home on a summer sea. In four regularly intervaled columns, the fleet found its first home anchorage in its four months of cruising around the southernmost end of the Western Hemisphere and halted for four days of merrymaking for men and officers.

The beauty of the day's spectacle was rivalled last night, when for three hours every vessel was outlined in fire. In fairylike form the ships stood out against the night and in letters six feet high the name of each vessel was spelled across its forward bridge. The glow of the thousands of incandescent bulbs flooded the sea for thousands of yards away.

The splendid condition of the ships was manifested in every way. Outwardly they were the same sparkling white and buff units as when they left Hampton Roads. Internally the ships were in better condition than when they started.

Queer Legislative Contrivance

Washington, April 15.—To transform the 35th parallel of north latitude into a macadamized roller skate, pedestrian and automobile highway, to be constructed by the United States government from the Atlantic to the Pacific, via Newburn, N. C., electric lighted, policed and bordered with new idea garden cities, wherein no one shall break the eight-hour law, is the object of a bill introduced by Representative Cockran by request. Speculation as to its authorship was rife, but futile, for none but Cockran had the secret, and he kept it.

Powers and Howard Seek Pardon

Frankfort, Ky., April 15.—Governor Willson has begun the formal hearing of the application of Caleb Powers and James B. Howard for pardons for alleged complicity in the assassination of Governor Goebel eight years ago. Howard is now serving a life sentence. Powers had four trials. In the first three he was convicted and the last time the jury disagreed. The hearing will continue throughout the week.

Boy Killed by Policeman

Philadelphia, April 15.—William McCue, aged 17, was shot in the back and killed here by Policeman Hoffman, who shot to frighten the boy, whom he was trying to capture. McCue and several other boys, it is said, attacked a party of Italians. The wounded boy ran a full block after being shot and then fell unconscious, dying three hours later. Hoffman was locked up.

Says Consuls' Reports Are Untrue

Brussels, April 15.—The government of the Congo Independent state has issued a reply to the British White Book, containing reports from British consuls in the Congo. These reports, the reply states, are untrue. The document also goes carefully into the questions relating to commerce, and denies that the state has placed obstacles in the way of private traders.

Bryan May Soon Be "Too Old"

Peoria, Ills., April 15.—William J. Bryan spoke in the Coliseum here last night. He discussed Democratic policies, the tariff and corporations. During the course of a banquet prior to the meeting Bryan made an address, in which he said he thought he was too young the first time he ran for president, and if he were not elected soon he feared he would be too old.

Half a Million Involved In Suit

New York, April 15.—John J. Gibbons, as a director of the San Luis Mining company, has brought suit in the supreme court to recover more than $500,000 alleged to have been lost, wasted or converted to his own use by the late Walter S. Logan, who was president, director and counsel of the company. There are other defendants beside the Logan estate.

Will Take Short Cut Home

Washington, April 15.—The battleships Maine and Alabama, which will be detached from the Atlantic fleet, their places being taken by the Wisconsin and the Nebraska, are to come home by way of the ... the Suez canal. They are expected to reach the Atlantic coast by October. They will leave San Francisco a month ahead of the fleet.

Woman Suffrage In Denmark

Copenhagen, April 15.—By a vote of 64 to 35, the folkething passed the government franchise bill. This measure already had been adopted by the landsthing. Under it all taxpayers, both male and female, over 25 years of age, and all married women whose husbands are taxpayers are entitled to vote in all communal elections.

Pension Bill Ready For President

Washington, April 15.—The house of representatives adopted the conference report on the special pension bill granting increases of pensions to widows of soldiers and sailors. The report was also adopted by the senate and now will go to the president for signature.

Strike Situation at Chester

Chester, Pa., April 15.—The situation in the street car strike here remains unchanged. No cars have been run since Monday, but there are no serious clashes with the police such as marked the first day of the strike.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

In connection with the four Curtis (Fore River) marine turbines for the battleship and cruiser of the Imperial Japanese Navy, 68 extra blue prints of all turbine drawings have been made in the engine drafting department.

A barometric condensor has been installed in the machine shop for testing the Japanese turbines.

Some holes have been welded in auto wheel plates, a new invention of Mr. Snow.

The new five-masted sailing ship Preussen, from Hamberg, said to be the largest and fastest of her kind, arrived in New York on Monday. The Preussen is built entirely of steel her displacement is 11,150 tons, and she has a cargo capacity of 8,000 tons. Her sail area is 60,000 square feet, about double that of the Shenandoah, the largest American sailing ship. Her crew consists of 58 men.

Conditions in Hayti have improved in the view of administration officials at Washington, and the four American warships which have been stationed in the waters of the island for the protection of American interests are to be given an opportunity to have their spring target practice

A exciting adventure with monkeys who to the number of 400 ranged over the ship, hurling belaying pins and other missiles at the men, is the story brought in by the crew of the British steamer Braunfels, which has arrived at Philadelphia from Calcutta. Lizzie, who had the freedom of the vessel, made her way between decks and liberated the monkeys. They took to the rigging and for two days there was no rest among the officers and crew.

The North Dakota, the 20,000-ton battleship building by the Fore River Shipbuilding Company at Quincy, was more than one-quarter completed on April 1, according to a report received at the Navy Department this week. Her keel was laid on Dec. 16 last as the battleship fleet was steaming out of Hampton Roads on its long cruise to the Pacific coast. The Delaware, a sister ship to the North Dakota, was 18.10 per cent completed on April 1. She is being built by the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Company of Newport News, Va.

A Boston paper reports that upward of 100 men will be discharged from the staff of the Charlestown navy yard, by a new order that will go into effect at once. The system of short-time work recently established will be abandoned in favor of a smaller and permanent force. The new order provides that the men with excellent or good marks in workmanship, application and conduct will be placed on a special furlough list and will have the preference in future employment. Two hundred will go on this list, and 2400 men will be continued on the permanent employed list.

SEARCHING THE RUINS

Three More Bodies of Chelsea Fire Victims Are Found

GENEROUS OFFERS OF HELP

Local and State Authorities Able to Meet Needs Thus Far--Military Guard Greatly Reduced--Arrest of an Alleged Incendiary

Boston, April 15.—The pall which still hangs over the city of Chelsea as the result of the calamity which on Sunday wiped out nearly one-half of the city, destroyed millions of dollars' worth of property and rendered 10,000 homeless, has precluded all thought of plans for the future and little is thought of further than a mere beginning at a systematic search of the ruins of the hundreds of homes for remains of possible victims.

Three more victims of the conflagration were found Tuesday. One body was that of a man and from the location of the remains and other slight evidences it is believed to be that of Willard C. Sanborn, aged 50, a carpenter. The second body was that of a woman and, judging also from the location where found, it is believed to be that of Mrs. John B. Hake of 96 Fourth street, who is missing. About sundown last night the remains of a body were found in the cellar at No. 62 Chester avenue. The sex of the victim could not be determined, but the remains were those of an adult.

The discovery of the three bodies yesterday makes the total number of known victims of the fire six. The three bodies found Sunday have not been identified.

The police yesterday placed under arrest Daniel Ross of Third street, who was waving lighted tapers of paper in a lumber yard, and he was held under $2500 on the charge of attempted incendiarism. Investigation into the rumored stories of incendiarism during Sunday's fires brought out no result and the authorities are under the opinion that the rumors are unfounded.

The board of aldermen met late Tuesday and discussed very generally the plans for the future, which included the proposition to widen some of the principal thoroughfares of the city when it should be rebuilt.

The relief measures for the afflicted have been kept up and offers of a most generous nature have come from all sources, but the local authorities and those of the state have been able to meet the needs.

Late last night Adjutant General Brigham issued orders withdrawing Colonel Nutter and twenty companies from duty in the burned area, and but one battalion was left on guard for the night. It was reinforced today by two companies from Lynn which were ordered on duty.

The work of tearing down the dangerous walls which are scattered about the ruins will begin today, and the first to be attacked will be the city hall and First Baptist church, which are now the landmarks of the ruins.

To govern Chelsea by a commission similar to the one that was created for Galveston in her distress is the proposition that began to loom up big in the legislature yesterday.

Mayor Beck and Senator Hall of Revere were in consultation with Acting Governor Draper over the proposed commission, and it is said that a bill embodying the ideas of the commission men will be submitted at once to the legislature.

It would have to go to the committee on rules and be admitted under suspension of the rule which requires that all matters shall be submitted before the third Saturday in January.

The Chelsea plan is for a commission of three persons, of which the mayor shall be chairman, the other two to be appointed by the governor with full power to act for the city for a certain period. The powers of the board of aldermen would be suspended.

Long Journey Was Fruitless

St. John's, April 15.—Chief of Police Urquhart of Arlington, Mass., and State Officer Byrnes of Massachusetts, who arrived here in connection with the investigation of the death of Annie Mullins, learned little of value and left for home last night. They conferred with Chief Sullivan of the St. John's police force and visited the Mullins home.

Improvements For Havana

Havana, April 15.—A committee of the city council reported favorably on the plan submitted by Governor Magoon for the paving and sewering of Havana at a cost of $15,000,000. The state will advance the city $5,000,000 and will itself pay the other $10,000,000 for the improvements.

Heavy Damage to Great Dam

Helena, Mont, April 15.—The great dam at Hauser lake, fifteen miles north of this city, partially gave way, causing damage estimated at $250,000. No lives were lost. The dam, 70 feet high and 490 feet long, was completed last year at a cost of more than $2,000,000.

Cannot Stop Woman's Tongue

London, April 15.—The court refused to issue an injunction requested by Prince Victor of Thurn and Taxis of Austria to restrain Josephine Moffit, an American woman, from saying that she is the prince's wife and that he fled from America to avoid his creditors.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams Street, Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

AN OVATION TO FORAKER

Speech In Behalf of Negro Soldiers Aroused Big Audience

Washington, April 15.—Applause that smothered the pounding of the vice president's gavel attested the warmth of the reception given by the crowded galleries of the senate to the speech of Senator Foraker in defense of the negro soldiers discharged without honor by the president because of their supposed connection with the Brownsville affair.

The day was made notable in the annals of senatorial oratory. Never in the history of the senate have the galleries been so fully surrendered to representatives of the negro race, more than half of the crowds that filled every available seat and standing room being occupied by them. They came early and secured the points of vantage in all the galleries except that reserved for members of the families of senators. The only seats unoccupied were in the section reserved for the use of the president.

The senator's final reference to the part the negro race had taken in the military service of the country called forth smothered applause and, as he finished, there was resounding handclapping, which defied the gavel of the vice president and continued for several minutes. As the ovation ended Vice President Fairbanks made the usual announcement about the rules of the senate forbidding demonstrations in the galleries and the tardy restoration of order called forth general laughter.

One after another, senators from both sides of the chamber congratulated Foraker on his presentation of the subject. Near the close of Foraker's address the president's secretary announced "a message in writing," but in rather unusual manner it was skimmed through, so that only a bare announcement of its purport was possible. Senator Hale came to the rescue of the vice president, who was endeavoring to restore order, by a motion to adjourn.

Johnson Scents Danger

Chicago, April 15.—In an address before the Press club here, Governor Johnson emphasized the belief previously expressed that the centralization of power at Washington is the chief danger that threatens this country. He made a strong plea for adherence to the old forms of the constitution and state's rights. "There is a stretching-out in various ways," he said, "to give greater power. The situation is a dangerous one. Rome wanted more power, and instead of going forward she went backward."

Bomb In Tenement House

New York, April 15.—A bomb, which the police figure was intended for Augustine Bonomolo, a banker and real estate dealer, was exploded last night in the tenement house where the banker lives. The lower floor of the building was badly damaged and the several families it housed were greatly alarmed. With the exception of one woman, whose head was cut, no one was injured.

Merger Contrary to Law

Knoxville, April 15.—Chancellor Sneed holds that the merger of the United Order of the Golden Cross and Home Circle, which was effected at Boston in April, 1906, is null and void and ordered that steps be taken at once to put the organizations in statu quo as to finances. Charles Knapp et al brought suit here, owing to the fact that this is the home office of the Golden Cross.

A whist tournament will be held at the rooms of the Granite City club tonight.

Considerable stone work on the new Federal building on Washington street has been laid.

Two new cases of diphtheria are reported at Braintree. The public schools however opened on Monday.

Prof. Oakman of Thayer Academy mourns the loss of his infant son who was recently ill with diphtheria. When out of danger from this disease meales developed and proved fatal.

Mrs. James H. Elock, Misses Alicia and Grace Elcock and Miss Alice M. Parker are enjoying the sights of Washington this week.

Music lovers should read the advertisement of the song-recital to be given by Mrs. Bertha Cushing Child, for it is something they will not want to miss.

One Atlantic lady has made over a hundred May baskets for the Children's Festival on April 25th at Quincy Music hall, and also secured a lot of home-made candy.

It is possible for Quincy school children to raise over $100 for the children of Chelsea by selling tickets for the Johnson lecture. The net proceeds will be sent to Chelsea.

The only flag displayed today on the anniversary of the departure of the first Quincy company for the Civil war is at the residence of Geo. H. Wilson on Revere orad.

Begin today children to sell tickets for the Chelsea benefit lecture. Everybody wants one at 25 cents. You will be suitably rewarded and at the same time share in the good work.

Charles A. Johnson, the well known real estate broker and auctioneer, will be one of the salesmen at the large land sale at Squantum, commencing April 16, and continuing until the 22d.

At the meeting of the Young People's Religious union in the Wollaston Unitarian vestry on Sunday evening, the meeting will be in charge of Mr. E. B. Hall and Mr. Frank A. Page will be the speaker.

At the Scenic this week the management has secured what has been termed by several of those who attended the performance Monday and Tuesday nights a record-breaker.

The citizens are urged to make an early response to the letters sent out for funds to entertain the Massachusetts Truant Officers at their annual meeting here April 25. Same to be forwarded to C. H. Johnson, truant officer.

The Junior Sons and Daughters of the Revolution in this vicinity are interested in the restoration of the Paul Revere house in Boston and to aid in the work are to give a play at Colonial hall next Tuesday evening. "An Unimportant Address," the play selected, abounds in humor and judging by rehearsals the young people will give a capital presentation.

The Quincy Women's club was quick to respond to Chelsea's need for at its meeting on Tuesday $50 was appropriated and steps taken to send clothing; Mrs. W. E. Simmons of Wollaston and Mrs. George W. Morton of Quincy agreeing to pack and forward all sent to them. Clothing sent to 112 Salem street, Chelsea will be discriminately distributed and local expresses have agreed to forward packages.

Gallagher and Davison Elected

The Republican Tenth district convention was held in Wesleyan hall, Boston, Tuesday evening. Although a warm contest was expected the convention was a peaceful one.

Ex-Mayor Bryant of Quincy was chairman of the convention and put things through with his accustomed rapidity.

The delegates elected were H. Clifford Gallagher of Milton and Dr. Archibald T. Davison of Boston. Mr. Gallagher received 94 votes, out of a possible 96, and Dr. Davison received 62. Harrison H. Atwood and Franklin L. Codman were elected as alternates.

Guy Ham presented the following resolution expressing preference for Taft which was adopted by voice vote.

"Resolved, that as Massachusetts Republican have never undertaken to pledge or bind their delegates to a national convention, we, as representing the Republicans of the tenth congressional district of Massachusetts in convention assembled, do iot wish nor intend now to give them any instructions limiting their free action at Chicago, but we think it is fitting for us to declare our decided preference among the candidates for the Republican nomination to the presidency.

"We, therefore, declare our preference to be William H. Taft of Ohio, a leader of national reputation, of great abilities and with unsurpassed experience in national affairs, and urge our delegates to give him their earnest and active support."

Herman Hormel who was a candidate for delegate received only 35 votes. On his motion the election, however, was made unanimous.

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by John R. Tunnicliff and Selina Tunnicliff, his wife, in her right, to Anna Emerson Ely, dated July 28, 1898, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Lib. 821, fol. 443, and for breach of the condition of said mortgage, will be sold at public auction upon the premises, on SATURDAY, the second day of May, A. D. 1908, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, namely:—

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and being lot numbered 20 on a plan of house lots on Cranch Hill made by H. T. Whitman, dated January 20, 1897, and recorded in Norfolk Registry of Deeds, Book 777, page 538, and bounded and described as follows, viz.: Northeasterly on Whitwell street, sixty feet; Southeasterly on lot numbered 21 on said plan, ninety feet; Northwesterly on lot numbered 29 on said plan ninety feet; and Southwesterly on lot numbered 39 on said plan sixty feet; containing 5,400 square feet of land.

Being the same premises conveyed to said Selina Tunnicliff by John Swithin et als., Trustees, by deed dated January 25, 1898, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Libro 810, folio 555.

Said premises will be sold subject to any unpaid taxes.

Terms, cash at time and place of sale.

quartet, with Miss Marion C. Whiton at the piano. She sang "At Twilight" and "The Nightingale's Song" by Nevin, "An Open Secret" by Woodman and in response to an insistant encore "The Chrysanthemum." Her voice was delightful and gave much pleasure. Many would have liked more but there was not time.

Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead, the speaker of the afternoon, was introduced by Mrs. C. R. Safford, chairman of the Education committee and she spoke for an hour on "Patriotism; the new Internationalism." She said that she considered peace the most important work in the world; less money should be spent for battleships and armament and more for promoting peace. Instil peace into the minds of children instead of war, dwell not too much on past wars and blood shed but look ahead to peace among all nations. People looking for trouble generally found it, so nations looking for war and being on the defensive got what they looked for. Each year showed a decrease in war and strife. Mrs. Mead was very earnest in her presentation and gave members much food for consideration. She urged all to do all in their power to promote peace. Space will not permit of even a brief synopsis of Mrs. Mead's lecture.

Mrs. Harry W. Read of Atlantic was in charge of the hospitality of the social hour which followed the lecture and was assisted by Atlantic members, Mrs. Charles A. Hall, Mrs. Frederic J. Peirce, and Mrs. Seth Ellis Pope presided at the chocolate urns.

Mrs. George W. Morton and Mrs. J. G. Worster were elected delegates to the Federation meeting at Hudson on April 28th.

At Home Everywhere

Speaker Cole of the House of Representatives, who gave an address at North Weymouth last evening, became stranded in Quincy at 9.30 with a half hour to wait for a train to Boston. He was taken in charge by the newspaper men and entertained at the Granite City club rooms. Later he was presented to Mayor Shea who was at City Hall.

Slight Fire.

The alarm from Box 26 at 6.04 Tuesday night was for a fire in the old ice house in the rear of the Adams building. Workmen were at work demolishing the building, and probably a careless smoker left a lighted pipe where it caused a fire to start. James A. Keating who lives nearby saw the fire and rang the alarm. A hydrant stream was used but there was no loss.

AN APPEAL FOR CHELSEA.

PEOPLE OF QUINCY

In a time of distress, such as afflicts our neighbor, the City of Chelsea; when thousands have lost their entire possessions—home, furniture, clothing, food ,and in many cases the means of livelihood; when thousands are feeling the depths of despair, and are feeling helpless and forsaken; then is the time for the truly benevolent, those who feel that the Golden Rule is their guide, that real red blood courses in their veins —to go down deep into their pockets and to give of their comparative abundance as much as they can spare.

This is a time when their charity is sure to count, when they can feel that they are surely helping in a worthy cause; and if money cannot be spared or as much of it as they would wish, they can give of those other prime necessities—clothing, bedding, blankets, canned goods, and many other things.

Let all join in the good work, knowing that every little helps and that "Many a little makes a mickle."

Contributions of money can be sent to the City Treasurer at City Hall, or to the Treasurer of this fund, Rupert F. Claflin, at the National Granite Bank, or to Horace F. Spear at the National Mount Wollaston Bank.

Other contributions can be sent to Kincaide's store or to store in Adams Building tendered for that purpose; or, on notice by letter or postal card, directed to the City Treasurer at City Hall, will be called for at the homes of contributors.

All contributions will be acknowledged through the Quincy Daily Ledger.

Quincy at Work For Chelsea Relief Along Many Lines

The response of the people of Quincy for the relief of the people of Chelsea is prompt both in cash, clothing, supplies and services.

The contributions in cash are acknowledged below and the total is growing rapidly, but there is no danger of too much money being given, so all are urged to give liberally and give promptly. The appeal of the committee on this page tells some of the places where money may be left.

The contributions of clothing have been surprisingly large, but it can all be put to good service. More should be forwarded to the vacant store in the Adams building, or it will be called for if the Commissioner of Public Works or members of the committee are notified. One two-horse load has already been forwarded to Chelsea.

The problem of shipping articles collected for the relief of the Chelsea sufferers to their destination has been solved by the Old Colony street railway company. The company has offered to transport free of charge from all points along its lines to the receiving station in Boston, all packages collected. The company will use the cars run on its trolley freight lines. Mayor Shea was informed of the affair this morning and immediately accepted it. Tomorrow morning the trolley freight car will pass through Quincy, and all packages made ready will be shipped by this method.

VOLUNTEERS WANTED.

Ex-Councilman W. H. Hull of the Quincy Relief Committee has spent the greater part of yesterday and today in Chelsea, and he reports to Mayor Shea that there is need in Chelsea of men and women from Quincy and other cities who will volunteer their services for a house-to-house canvass in that city to ascertain the needs of the people. The needs are great and should be relieved promptly and systematically.

Mayor Shea requests that Quincy men and women who can give their services call on him at City Hall. He will give letters of introduction which will be all the credentials required. He hopes there will be 25 volunteers to go to Chelsea early tomorrow morning.

Ex-Councilman Charles R. Sherman has volunteered to receive and forward all clothing and supplies left at his store at Wollaston.

The Folsom Tea Company of Granite street will also forward goods.

The receiving room in the Adams building for contributions of clothing for the Chelsea sufferers was a busy place Wednesday afternoon and evening. Bundles of clothing were constantly arriving during the afternoon and evening. These were carefully sorted and packed in cases ready for shipment, and today they were taken to Chelsea and delivered at the High school which is the distributing point.

BOYS AND GIRLS.

More boys and girls are wanted in all parts of the city to sell tickets at 25 cents each for the Benefit Lecture to be given by Charles H. Johnson. A thousand 25-cent pieces would be $250. The children who are selling have been surprised at the little work required to sell these tickets, as hundreds are willing to contribute 25 cents to the cause.

Tickets may be obtained at the residence or office of Charles H. Johnson, also at the Daily Ledger office. Free tickets for all boys and girls who sell ten tickets.

The guild of Christ church have made a contribution of $25 to the Chelsea Guild, and will send a barrel of clothing. A special collection for the sufferers will be taken Sunday at the church.

HOUGHS NECK BUSY

The Houghs Neck Associates met Wednesday evening to take steps toward the relief of the Chelsea sufferers. At this meeting it was decided to give up the idea of a minstrel show for the benefit of the sufferers, and instead to collect money and clothing.

A committee was appointed consisting of Herbert W. Robbins, J. E. Whall and R. F. O'Brien. They will have the matter in charge and make a canvass of the beach for contributions.

A paper was circulated at the meeting and $11 was quickly raised. It is thought that at least $100 in cash will be raised here.

Five Thousand Jackies Welcomed to California

SAN DIEGO HAS A HOLIDAY

Golden Key to City and Gold-Mounted and Jeweled Sword For Evans--Three Other Admirals Recipients of Gold Medals

San Diego, Cal., April 16.—A parade of 5000 bluejackets and marines from the American battleship fleet marked the ceremonies of welcome of the state of California. Sixty-four companies of sailors, in their togs of the sea, and fifteen companies of marines formed this most notable of the navy's land display. The procession was more than two miles long.

The sailors marched from the waterfront to the city park over three miles of streets canopied with decorations which combined the Red, White and Blue of the nation and the gold and white of the state.

San Diego took a holiday to see the martial pageant and the sidewalks were crowded with a typical holiday throng. Their enthusiasm was explosive, the appearance of the bluejackets and marines calling for long-sustained cheering.

At the city park the sailors passed in review before Rear Admirals Thomas, Sperry and Emery and Governor Gillett and his staff.

A crowd of many thousands of people surrounded the grand stands. Three thousand school children waving flags and banners were massed directly in front of the reviewing stand and their songs and cheers were one of the prettiest features of the day's celebration.

Governor Gillett, in a brief speech, supplemented his words of welcome spoken previously on the flagship Connecticut, and Rear Admiral Thomas made formal response in behalf of the fleet.

Admiral Thomas then accepted, in Admiral Evans' behalf, a golden key symbolical of the freedom of the city. The token will be forwarded by Thomas to Evans at Paso Robles, and there will go with it a gold-mounted and jeweled naval sword, presented yesterday to Evans by the patriotic fraternities of the city, including the Grand Army of the Republic, the Confederate Veterans and the Spanish War Veterans.

To Admirals Thomas, Sperry and Emery gold medals, commemorative of their visits, were presented, and there also was a medal for Captain Ingersoll, who served as a chief of staff to Evans from Hampton Roads to Magdalena bay. The medal will be sent to Ingersoll at Norfolk.

Last night a ball was tendered to the admiral and the officers of the fleet at the Hotel Del Coronado.

Cheated In Election

New York, April 16.—Frank Duffy, an election district captain who had been convicted of having assisted thirty men to register falsely at the last election, was sentenced to not less than two years and three months and not more than four years and three months in prison. The punishment was meted out in spite of more than 200 letters asking for clemency of the court.

Europe In Need of Gold

New York, April 16.—The first engagement of gold for shipment to Europe since the financial panic of October last is announced, the National City bank taking $1,000,000 for Paris. The shipment is due to a rise in exchange rates in New York and a decline in sterling in Paris. Germany is reported to be bidding actively for gold in New York.

Irish Societies Raise Protest

New York, April 16.—A specially convened meeting of the United Irish-American societies was held here to protest against "the action of the state department in withholding from the press and the people of the United States information regarding the British arbitration treaty."

Anxiety Over Disabled Steamer

Halifax, April 16.—Steamer Florence was sent out this morning in search of the disabled French steamer Breiz Huel, which has not been reported since Monday afternoon. Some anxiety is felt regarding the disabled steamer, owing to her being in the vicinity of Sable island.

Suicide of a Doctor

New York, April 16.—Dr. Alexander B. McDowell cut his throat with a razor and died soon afterward. Just before death came he urged his housekeeper to summon medical aid. The suicide was 35 years of age, a widower and had a son of 5 years. No cause is known for the suicide.

New Hampshire's Veterans

Concord, N. H., April 16.—The total number of Grand Army veterans in the New Hampshire department was shown by the report submitted at the convention here to be 2568, a net loss for the year of 121.

Evans Is Gaining Strength

Paso Robles, Cal., April 16.—Rear Admiral Evans' gradual improvement continues steadily. While he is still very weak, his digestion has improved so much that he is slowly gaining strength.

IS AN OLD OFFENDER

"Colonel" Wood, Utterer of Forged Check, Goes to Prison

Boston, April 15.—With whitened hair and infirm step, Daniel S. Ward, 74, better known as "Colonel" Ward, was arraigned in the first session of the superior criminal court on the charge of uttering a forged check for $100 on one of the department stores. After pleading guilty to the first count of the indictment, Ward was sentenced to state prison for a term of two and one-half to three years.

Ward has a long criminal record and is well remembered as having been saved from death on the gallows by the intervention of President Lincoln. At that time he had been convicted as being one of the gang that had entered into a conspiracy to "blow up" New York in 1864. Ward was a southerner, and naturally was in sympathy with the south.

Fisk Brothers Win Will Contest

New Haven, April 15.—A decision awarding the sum of $217,000 to the sons, Louis A. Fisk and Leonard D. Fisk, was given in the superior court here as the result of the appeal from the probate court against the estate of their father, Eugene D. Fisk, who died without leaving a will. Fisk was twice married and Louis and Leonard were sons of the first wife. They set up the claim that their mother left $300,000 worth of property which was to be a trust fund. The widow claimed a dower right in the entire estate.

National Bank to Liquidate

Boston, April 15.—The Newton National bank of Newton and the Newton Centre Trust company of Newton Centre have merged their interests and will be known as the Newton Trust company. The Newton National bank will go into liquidation. The latter institution was incorporated in 1864 and the Newton Centre Trust company was incorporated in 1894.

Think Tax Is High Enough

New Bedford, Mass., April 15.—At a meeting of the Weavers' union last night, it was voted not to pay the increased per capita tax demanded by the United Textile Workers of the World. The sentiment was that if the U. T. W. insists on the increase in the per capita tax being paid that the local union will withdraw from that body.

Postal Clerk Sent to Jail

Boston, April 15.—Royal S. Wagstaff, a postal clerk at Springfield, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment in the county jail at Springfield by Judge Dodge in the United States court here for embezzling a letter. Wagstaff had twice been indicted for the same offense and pleaded guilty.

Granite Cutters Still Idle

Barre, Vt., April 15.—Owing to a difference in the adjustment of wages, the polishers in the quarries of this vicinity did not return to work yesterday. Because of the refusal of the polishers to return the cutters were obliged to remain out. The quarrymen went back Monday.

War on Gypsy Moth

Manchester, Mass., April 15.—At an adjourned town meeting it was voted to appropriate $5000 for gypsy moth work, in addition to which the state agrees to contribute $5000 and $5500 will be given by private subscription.

Sword Pierced Stomach

Waterbury, Conn., April 15.—A. J. Pearce, known in circus circles as "Chief Yellow Bear," while swallowing a sword pierced his stomach, and the doctors say he cannot live.

Complaints of Interior Banks

Washington, April 15.—In response to a resolution adopted by the senate at the instance of Senator Culberson, Secretary Cortelyou transmitted to the senate copies of all letters and telegrams of complaint relating to the refusal of national banks to furnish currency for the needs of the interior banks during the financial stringency of last fall. Fifty-one complaints were received from forty-three banks.

Peaceable Agreement Likely

Toledo, April 15.—If the first day's session of the conference between the bituminous coal miners and operators of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois is any criterion, the entire meeting will be peaceable and harmonious. The differences existing between the two factions of the mining industry are now in the hands of the scale committee and will be threshed out behind closed doors.

Thirty Miles Clipped Off

St. Petersburg, April 15.—After a stormy debate, the duma passed the first reading of the bill authorizing the construction of the Amur railroad, by a vote of 212 to 101, and proceeded to the second reading. The duma rejected the starting point of the railroad, Nertchinsk, as suggested by the government, and substituted Kuenga, shortening the length about thirty miles.

Not a Precursor of Peace

Berlin, April 15.—It is reported here that the great powers, as a sequel to the discussions at The Hague peace conference, are arranging an international conference for the discussion of the laws governing maritime warfare. No confirmation of this report can be obtained at present in official quarters.

For Revision of Tariff

New York, April 15.—With a letter of endorsement from William J. Bryan and vigorous speeches on tariff reform, the tariff reform committee of the Reform club last night opened what promises to be a vigorous campaign for the revision of the tariff.

The Concertina.

The accordion, which was a development of a previously existing aeolina, was invented in 1829 by a Viennese named Damian and consists, as every one knows, of a small pair of bellows and a range of keys which regulate the admission of wind to metal reeds. The accordion sounds notes in one key only. The concertina proper was invented on the same date by Charles Wheatstone, who later became a famous man of science. It seems curious that a man whose reputation rests chiefly on his electrical work and discoveries, who was one of the earliest men of science to make experiments in connection with submarine cables and who, moreover, was an extraordinarily skillful decipherer of cryptographic writings, should also have dabbled in musical inventions. But, as a matter of fact, Wheatstone's musical work preceded his scientific discoveries. He went straight from school to the business of manufacturing musical instruments, and it was in 1829, at the age of twenty-seven, that he took out his patent for the concertina. But he was more interested in the scientific principles on which musical instruments are constructed than in music itself, and his acoustical and musical experiments soon drew him into the path which led to his many electrical discoveries.—London Globe.

An Emended Sign.

Many a householder at the mercy of the painter will find a bond of sympathy with the students of Stanford university in the incident taken from the San Francisco Chronicle. The score of fraternity houses on the campus were in the process of being cleaned up in preparation for the receptions and luncheons to be given to visitors on the day of the big football game. A man got the contract to paint one of the houses white with the understanding that the job must be done and dry by a certain day. After making a rush start the painter asked permission to hang out his sign. His request was granted, and he put up a conspicuous announcement over the front porch, "These Premises Being Painted by Blank Blank."

Then the work dragged. He would come one day and stay away two. So the impatient collegians added to the sign until the announcement read:

"These Premises Being Painted by Blank Blank, Now and Then."

A Calm Witness.

A lawyer was cross examining a witness with a view to getting him muddled in his testimony. The following questions and answers occurred:

"Did you see the plaintiff faint a short time ago?"

"Yes, sir."

"People turn pale when they faint, don't they?"

"No, sir; not always."

"What! Do you mean to tell me that a person can faint and not turn pale? Did you ever hear of such a case?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you ever see such a case?"

"I did, sir."

"When?"

"About a year ago, sir."

"Who was it?"

"'Twas a negro, sir."

The lawyer excused the witness.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

The Moabite Stone.

The so called Moabite stone was discovered by the Rev. F. Klein in 1868 among the ruins of Dhiban, the ancient Dibon. The stone was of black basalt, rounded at the top and bottom, two feet broad, three feet ten inches high and fourteen inches in thickness, but was unfortunately broken by the Arabs, whose cupidity had been aroused by the interest that was taken in it by the explorers. The fragments were afterward collected and laboriously fitted together, and the stone now stands in the Louvre at Paris. The inscription of thirty-four lines is in Hebrew-Phoenician characters and appears to be a record of Mesha, king of Moab, mentioned in II Kings iii, referring to his successful revolt against the king of Israel.—New York American.

A Model Friend.

What true friendship consists in depends on the temperament of the man who has a friend. It is related that at the funeral of Mr. X., who died extremely poor, the usually cold blooded Squire Tightfist was much affected.

"You thought a great deal of him, I suppose?" some one asked him.

"Thought a great deal of him? I should think I did. There was a true friend! He never asked me to lend him a cent, though I knew well enough he was starving to death!"

Too Expensive.

Two little girls who were taken to see "Othello" were much impressed by the death scene.

"I wonder whether they kill a lady every night?" asked one.

"Why, of course not," said the other. "They just pretend to! It would be too expensive to really kill a lady every night!"

Sweet Sorrow.

"I can't please my friends," sobbed the young bride.

"What's the matter, pet?"

"They insist that I can't be happy with a fathead like you, but, oh, husband, I am!"—Washington Herald.

Domestic Amenities.

Knicker—I've waited an hour for you to get your hat on straight. Mrs. Knicker—Well, I've waited longer than that for you to get your feet on straight.—New York Sun.

Decision of character is one bright golden apple which every young person should strive in the beginning to pluck from the tree of life.

CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace Of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

BIRTHPLACES OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Admission charged.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb, reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in NORFOLK, ss. March, 10, 1908.

Taken on execution and will be sold at public auction, on SATURDAY the twenty-fifth day of April, 1908, at nine o'clock, A. M., at my residence, 163 Franklin Street, in Quincy, in said County of Norfolk, all the right, title and interest that John T. Cavanagh, of Quincy in the County of Norfolk, had (not exempt by law from attachment or levy on execution) on the twenty-second day of May, 1906, at nine o'clock, A. M. being the time the same was attached on mesne process, in and to the following described real estate, to wit:—

A certain tract or parcel of land comprising upland and marsh with buildings thereon containing about 38 acres of land more or less, situated in that part of Quincy known as Houghs Neck, and lying on the southerly side of the road from Quincy to Houghs Neck known as Sea Street. Said parcel being more particularly described as follows:—

Beginning on Sea Street at the northeasterly corner of the premises thence running south about 229.5 feet; thence turning and running east about 168.9 feet; thence turning and running south about 948.9 feet; thence turning and running west about 175 feet to a ditch on the edge of the marsh, thence continuing west along the edge of the marsh about 107 feet to a ditch; thence south by said ditch about 525 feet to a small creek; thence westerly by said creek and a ditch about 980 feet to a creek sometimes called Rock Island creek; thence a little northwest by said creek about 125 feet to a ditch; thence north by said ditch about 293 feet to the edge of the upland; thence east by the edge of the upland about 120 feet to a wall; thence turning and running north by said wall about 604 feet to Sea Street; thence turning and running east and northeast about 1430 feet by the southerly and southeasterly line of said Sea Street to the point of beginning.

Also four certain parcels of land with the buildings thereon situated in that part of said Quincy known as Houghs Neck being lots 21, 22, 23 and 24 in Section 2, as shown on a plan entitled "Plan of Sea Shore Lots at Houghs Neck, Quincy," drawn by H. T. Whitman, Surveyor, 1891, and recorded in Norfolk Deeds at the end of Book 668.

Lot 21 is bounded and described as follows:—easterly on Sea Street as shown on said plan 52.92 feet; southerly on lot 22 as shown on said plan 87.87 feet; westerly on lot 24 as shown on said plan 50 feet; northerly on lot 20 as shown on said plan, 105.45 feet.

Lot 22 is bounded and described as follows: easterly on Sea Street as shown on said plan 54.7 feet; southerly by lot 23 as shown on said plan 115.97 feet; westerly by lot 53 as shown on said plan 50 feet; northerly by lots 21 and 24 as shown on said plan 137.87 feet.

Lot 23 is bounded and described as follows: easterly by Sea Street as shown on said plan 55.2 feet; southerly on Shennen Street as shown on said plan 92.25 feet; westerly by lot 53 as shown on said plan 50 feet; northerly by lot 22 as shown on said plan 115.97 feet.

Lot 24 is bounded and described as follows: easterly by lots 20 and 21 as shown on said plan 100 feet; southerly by lot 22 as shown on said plan 50 feet; westerly by lot 25 as shown on said plan 100 feet; northerly by Winthrop Street as shown on said plan 50 feet.

BRIDGE AND DAM PRIVILEGES

President Roosevelt, In Special Message Vetoing a Bill, Says That Rights on Waterways Should Be Paid For--His Recommendations

Washington, April 14.—In a special message yesterday President Roosevelt refused his signature to a bill giving an additonal three years to the Rainy River Improvement company within which to build a dam in the Rainy river.

"I do not believe," says the president, "that natural resources should be granted and held in an undeveloped condition either for speculative or other reasons. So far as I am aware, there are no assurances that the grantees (in this case) are in any better condition promptly and properly to utilize this opportunity than they were at the time of the original act (granting the privilege) ten years ago."

Discussing broadly the federal policy, the president says:

"Every permit to construct a dam on a navigable stream should specifically recognize the right of the government to fix a term for its duration and to impose such charge or charges as may be deemed necessary to protect the present and future interests of the United States in accordance with the act of June 21, 1906.

"The provision for a charge is of vital importance. The navigability of every inland waterway, and of all connected or connectable inland waterways as a whole, should be improved for the purpose of interstate and foreign commerce and a consistent and unified plan by which each part should be made to help every other part. * * *

"The income derivable from this source would materially aid in the complete improvement of our navigable waters, for which there is now such a crying need. The chief of engineers of the army reports that the bills now pending at this session of congress permit the construction of dams in navigable streams capable of developing over 1,300,000 horse-power. These rivers run every hour in the day and every day in the year. To develop this amount of power would, under average conditions, require about 25,000,000 tons of medium quality coal every year. This natural wealth is the heritage of the people. I see no reason for giving it away, though there is every reason for not imposing conditions so burdensome as to prevent the utilization of the power.

"We are now at the beginning of a great development in water power. Its use through electrical transmission is entering more and more largely into every element of the daily life of the people. Already the evils of monopoly are becoming manifest; already the expense of the past shows the necessity of caution in making unrestricted grants of this great power.

"The present policy pursued in making these grants is unwise in giving away the property of the people in the flowing waters to individuals or organizations practically unknown and granting in perpetuity these valuable privileges in advance of the formation of definite plans as to their use. In some cases the grantees apparently have little or no financial or other ability to utilize the gift and have sought it merely because it could be had for the asking.

"In place of the present haphazard policy of permanently alienating valuable public property we should substitute a definite policy along the following lines:

"First—There should be a limited or carefully-guarded grant in the nature of an option or opportunity afforded within reasonable time for development of plans and for explanation of the project.

"Second—Such a grant of concession should be accompanied in the act making the grant by a provision expressly making it the duty of the designated official to annul the grant if the work is not begun or plans are not carried out in accordance with the authority granted.

"Third—It should also be the duty of some designated official to see to it that in approving the plans the maximum development of the navigation and power is assured, or at least, in making the plans, these may not be so developed as ultimately to interfere with the better utilization of the water or complete development of the power.

"Fourth—There should be a license fee or charge, which, though small or nominal at the outset, can in the future be adjusted so as to secure a control of the interest of the public.

"Fifth—Provision should be made for the termination of the grant or privilege at a definite time, leaving to future generations the power or authority to renew or extend the concession in accordance with the conditions which may prevail at that time."

Anarchist Sentenced to Death

Barcelona, April 14.—Jean Rull and three of his accomplices, charged with complicity in the recent series of bomb explosions and anarchist outrages, were found guilty. The evidence showed that Rull and his associates were the authors of the attempts to assassinate King Alfonso and of various outrages in different parts of Spain. Rull was sentenced to death and the others to imprisonment.

Labor Conditions Improving

Washington, April 16.—That conditions throughout the country are fast becoming normal again is the opinion expressed by T. V. Powderly, chief of the division of information of the bureau of immigration and naturalization, who keeps in close touch with labor conditions throughout the country. "We first felt the depression in October," said Powderly, "but there has been every evidence within the past few weeks that employers are replacing the men who were laid off at that time."

Shot Daughter and Self

Asheville, N. C., April 16.—Enraged at his 16-year-old daughter because of a harmless school girl prank, Dr. C. O. Swinney, who recently came here from New York, fired two shots at and fatally wounded her, and then shot himself, dying almost instantly. The tragedy occurred in the reception room of a girl's boarding school, where Miss Swinney was a pupil. Swinney has been in poor health and it is said his mind has been unbalanced.

Sealing Steamers In Hard Luck

St. John's, April 16.—Sealing steamers Viking, Erik, Algerine and Vanguard came into port last night, all more or less damaged. The Erik had her stern stove in by colliding with the Aurora. The Algerine's side was crushed by ice, and for three days the crew had to work the pumps. The Vanguard brought 200 men taken from the sunken steamer Grand Lake.

Broken Dam Causes $1,000,000 Loss

Helena, Mont., April 16.—With several houses destroyed in the town of Craig, hundreds of head of cattle and other live stock drowned and the Great Northern railroad tracks washed away for miles, the loss from the floods caused by the breaking of the seventy-foot dam at Hauser lake is estimated at approximately $1,000,000, which includes the damage to the dam.

Sympathy For Van Schaick

New York, April 16.—Three members of a committee representing the shipping interests of this port will intercede with President Roosevelt in behalf of Captain Van Schaik, who entered Sing Sing on Feb. 27 to begin a ten years' sentence for negligence in connection with the burning of his charge, the ill-fated excursion steamer General Slocum.

Steamer Once Again Afloat

Halifax, April 16.—Steamer Mount Temple, which struck La Havre Iron Bound island on Dec. 2, was floated by tugs last night, and towed to Halifax for repairs. The Mount Temple was bound from Antwerp to St. John with more than 600 passengers at the time of the accident. She is badly damaged amidships, but the broken plates can be replaced.

Resumed Under New Name

New York, April 16.—The Jenkins Trust company of Brooklyn, which was closed during the financial panic last fall, has reopened as the Lafayette Trust company, with $1,500,000 in cash to meet withdrawals. All five branches of the company have also reopened.

Steamer Overturned

Gothenburg, Sweden, April 16.—The small steamer Goetaelf capsized here. About forty persons were aboard and a number of them were thrown into the water. Eight bodies so far have been recovered. It is believed that others are lying under the decks.

A Presidential Preference

Kalamazoo, Mich., April 16.—The Prohibition state convention here endorsed Joseph Tracy of Detroit for the presidential nomination to be made by the national convention at Toledo, and instructed the seventy-one Michigan delegates to vote for him.

Forest Reservation Income

Washington, April 16.—According to a statement by Secretary Wilson, transmitted to the senate in response to a resolution, the total receipts of the government from forest reservations from July 1, 1907, to April 7, 1908, were $938,726.

Dropped Dead When Accused

Philadelphia, April 16.—When confronted with the charge of embezzlement, Herbert L. Heyl, for twenty-two years treasurer of the Franklin Institute, dropped dead.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Friday, April 17.

Sun rises—5; sets—6:28.

Moon rises—7:37 p. m.

High water—12 m.; 12 p. m.

There will be rain or snow in New England, followed by clearing and colder weather.

AN ALLEGED CONFESSION

Throws Light on Murder Which Puzzled Providence Police

Providence, April 16.—The mystery concerning the death of Henry Kelly, who was found on Canal street with his head crushed under a heavy stone, was solved last night by the alleged confession of Frank Lyons, who was arrested on suspicion.

According to Chief Inspector Horton, Lyons is alleged to have said that on Saturday night he and Kelly, who was 63 years old, while under the influence of liquor, had a quarrel in a saloon. Later they walked to the bridge on Canal street. Here, Lyons said, the dispute continued, and after knocking Kelly down Lyons is alleged to have confessed that he picked up the stone, weighing forty pounds, and threw it on Kelly's head. In this condition Kelly was found by two young men at 12:30 Sunday morning. Kelly died three hours afterwards. Lyons will be arraigned on a charge of murder. He is 21 years old.

The Abolition of Grade Crossings

A special meeting of the Board of Trade was held Wednesday evening. The business was a continued discussion of grade crossings. Several outsiders were present, and there was a general discussion on the subject, particularly in regard to an appropriation for expert advice.

Mr. Bates was present and explained his plans for abolishing the grade crossing at Saville street. This plan seemed to meet with favor by those present.

There was no discussion as to the Water street crossing. The meeting adjourned without taking any action.

Teacher's Annuity.

At the recent annual meeting of The Teachers' Annuity Guild of Massachusetts action was taken which will enable a large number of teachers, previously ineligible, to participate in the benefits of the organization.

In the early years of its existence the guild was confined to a few cities of the state. After all the teachers of these cities had been given an opportunity to join, a restriction was made denying admission to teachers who neglected to appy for membership before they had taught 15 years. When the guild was extended to include all the cities and towns of the state, this restriction excluded many who wished to become members but had had no opportunity to join before crossing the 15 years' service barrier. In justice to these teachers, an amendment to the constitution was adopted at the annual meeting admitting to the guild prior to Jan. 1, 1911, teachers who have taught between 115 and 29 years on payment of intial assessments equitable alike to these teachers and to the present membership. After the above date, the old restriction will be restored.

The annual report of the treasurer, Dr. William F. Bradbury of Cambridge, showed $135,272.91 on hand, of which $118,613.88 is in the Permanent Fund. During the past year, $12,859.28 was paid to annuitants obliged to retire from service because of disability of age. Since Jan. 1, 1907, $3,056.32 has been received in gifts making a total in donations of $32,693.59 since the incorporation of the Guild.

George M. Wadsworth of Whitman, formerly of Quincy, is the secretary.

Plant Crippled.

Parties unknown entered the engine room at F. Barnicoat's granite plant at South Quincy Tuesday night, and screwed down all the nuts on his engine. The result was that it was some hours before the trouble was remedied. It is understood that a non union engineer is employed at the works, and the work is laid to some sympathizer of the engineers on a strike.

Launching of The Lightship

Lightship No. 91, one of the three being built by the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. for the Light House Board, was successfully launched this morning. The launch was a private one, and was witnessed by few outsiders other than those in the launching party and officials of the company.

The lightship was christened by little Miss Frances Sanford Gregg of North Easton, who carried a bouquet of sweet peas almost as large as herself. Miss Gregg is a daughter of Tom H. Gregg, superintendent of construction of the Light House Board.

In the launching party were Mrs. T. H. Gregg, Miss Bessie Curtin, Miss Helen Keith and Miss Eleanor Gregg of North Easton, Mrs. C. C. Gregg and Mrs. Rose Chadburne of Boston.

The launch was a most successful one in every way. It was about 11.45 when preparations to launch the ship were commenced and at 11.52 she commenced to slide down the ways.

The lightship was laid down quite a distance in shore and she had a long slide before she reached the water. This, while unusual, afforded a pretty sight as she slid gracefully down the ways.

As the ship started for her maiden dip, Miss Gregg smashed a bottle of American wine over her bow, and said, "I christen thee, No. 91."

As soon as the vessel struck the water she was taken in charge by tugs and towed to the fitting out dock.

Lightship No. 91 will be used as a relief ship for the Fourth district and stationed at Philadelphia.

Lightship 91 is one of four similar vessels built by the Fore River Company for the Light-House Board. They are constructed throughout of mild steel. Their general dimensions are: length overall, 135 feet, 9 inches; length load water line, 113 feet; moulded breadth, 29 feet; depth of hold, 15 feet, 4 inches; displacement in salt water, 660 tons.

Their propelling machinery consists of a set of compound inverted direct acting surface condensing engines, furnished with steam by two Scotch boilers which will also supply power for the auxiliaries and heating the vessel.

Grand Supper For the Bowlers

A pleasant event for those interested takes place tonight at 6.30 at the Y. M. C. A. It being the supper and presentation of prizes which ends the bowling league tournament.

For ten weeks the men have been bowling with eager eyes on the prizes and mouths watering in anticipation of the final supper tonight these eager longings are to be satisfied. Not all the men will receive prizes of course, only the best; but the supper; the supper is for each and every one of them.

The cup for best average goes to Mr. Hermanson with a score of 87 Mr. Hermanson with a score of 87 18-27; Mr. O'Neil a close second with 87 1-27. William Griffiths gets the highest string prize, score 121. Capt. Sandberg's team wins the team prize with 666. Capt. Giles was second with 629.

AMONG THE CLUBS.

QUINCY ALLIANCE.

The neighborhood meeting of the Quincy Alliance in First Church chapel on Monday afternoon was the happiest and most social gathering of the season, attended by members and a large delegation from neighboring Alliances. Tulips, pinks and palms made the chapel look springlike and the refreshment tables, were particularly attractive the color scheme being yellow.

Mrs. George W. Morton presided and a short business session was held followed by music. Miss Alice Gertrude Coe of Atlantic, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Sampson, sang three songs beautifully receiving merited recognition in the applause which followed each song.

Senorita Carolina Huidobro the speaker was most happily introduced by Mrs. Morton and in responding spoke of her enjoyment and appreciation of Miss Coe's singing. Senorita Huidobro has a charming personality and presented her subject "The Women of Chili and Argentine Republic in the Peace Movement," in a forceful, convincing way, interweaving humor and pathos, that quickly brought a smile or tear. Her listeners got a clear insight into the manners and customs of the people of far away and little known South America and the part women were playing in making history, especially for peace. Christ of the Andes a monument on the top of a mountain on the boundry line of Chili and Argentine erected to commemorate peace between the two countries was wonderful. It symbolized more than peace between the two countries, it showed energy in the erection at so high a point and stood for brotherly love and christian living.

Chocolate and tea were poured by Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann and Mrs. Henry M. Faxon and there was delicious orange frappe, sandwiches and cake served by members of the Alliance. Mrs. Butler, Mrs. Emery and Mrs. Sanborn were among those to receive the guests and the affair abounded in hospitality and good cheer.

Y. M. C. A. AUXILIARY.

The all day sewing meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. held on Friday April 10th was a great success. Bags were made for a birthday party which is to be given on Friday afternoon May the eighth. The business meeting was held at three o'clock. The devotional exercises were in charge of Rev. E. D. Webber of Wollaston.

The meeting was of unusual interest as several letters were read from other philanthropic societies also from members outside of Quincy.

Letters were received from Mrs. Colton wife of former Secretary of Y. M. C. A., Mrs. George H. Litchfield, the first president of the Woman's Auxiliary Miss Johnson, Mrs. John O'Hall, Jr., Mrs. Charles Spear, Mrs. Marston, president of Woman's club, Mrs. Abele, chairman of Philanthropic committee of Woman's club, Mrs. Blanchard, Chairman of Auts and Craft and Mrs. Wilson Marsh.

Mrs. W. H. Doble gave a report of the Mothers' meetings and Mrs. Blaisdell gave a report of the Child Nurture club. During the afternoon Mrs. Hunting sang two beautiful solos.

NEIGHBORING.

Milton Woman's club is now ten years old having its annual meeting on April sixth. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. William W. Churchill; 1st vice-president, Mrs. W. Q. Baxter; 2d vice-president, Mrs. W. C. Tucker; treasurer, Mrs. W. B. Batchelder; recording secretary, Mrs. Leander M. Clark; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Murray Ruggles; auditor, Miss S. P. Fletcher; directors for three years, Mrs. M. Eleanor Clark, Mrs. Arthur A. Hibbard, Miss M. L. Richardson.

Mrs. Humphrey Ward of England, who is in this country will be in Boston next week when she will be given a reception by the New England Women's club at hotel Vendome on Friday afternoon April 24th.

The Old Colony Club of South Weymouth held its annual children's day on the afternoon of April 9. Over four hundred school children were present. The play "Alice in Wonderland" was given under the management of Mrs. Henry B. Reed. The cast was made up of club members and their children. The costumes were very clever, and the entertainment proved delightful to the children and grown-ups as well.

The Alliance of All Souls' church, Braintree, is to hold a neighborhood meeting on Wednesday afternoon, April 22d, at half past two, when they will entertain presidents of several neighboring Alliances. Mrs. George G. Saville of Quincy is to give a talk.

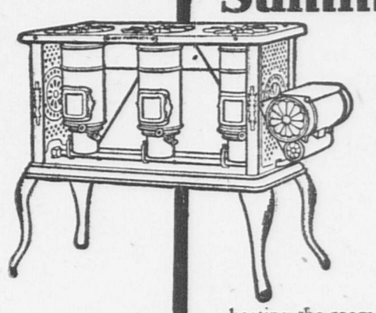
FIRST CHURCH.

An elaborate program has been arranged for the Easter service of First Church Sunday school by the Supt. C. H. Johnson. Children will assemble in the chapel at 3.45 P. M. At 4 o'clock they will march by a processional into the church and an attractive program has been printed consisting of selections by the children, Easter carols, and readings and a short address on the Joy of Easter by the Superintendent. At the close Easter cards and buttons and a beautiful Easter plant will be given each member of the school. A cordial invitation to all.

Have You a Summer Stove?

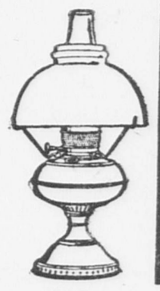


The stifling air of a close kitchen is changed to comfortable coolness by installing a New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove to do the family cooking.

No kitchen furnishing is so convenient as this stove. Gives a working heat at once, and maintains it until turned out—that too, without overheating the room. If you examine the

NEW PERFECTION
Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove

you will see why this is so. The heat from the chimney of the "New Perfection" is concentrated under the kettle and not dissipated through the room by radiation. Thus it does the work of the coal range without its discomfort. Ask your dealer about this stove—if not with him, write our nearest agency.



The RayoLamp is a very handsome piece of housefurnishing and gives a clear, powerful light more agreeable than gas or electricity. Safe everywhere and always. Made of brass finely nickel plated—just the thing for the living-room. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

Record Breaker At the Scenic

At the Scenic this week the management has secured what has been termed by several of those who attended the performance Monday and Tuesday nights a record-breaker.

Bert Lewis, a clever monologist, is unequalled as an entertainer, and kept his auditors in constant good humor by his droll imitations and funny stories, his impersonation of Harry Lander, in Scotch Highlander costume making a hit.

May Russell, a brilliant, versatile English comedienne, whose bright, catchy songs and snappy stories provoked extended laughter throughout her act, is in a class by herself. Her vivacious, manner and sparkling wit makes you feel like a new person as soon as she appears.

Mons. Herbert and his wonderful musical dining table, is a drawing card everywhere. Mons. Herbert gets more music out of the ordinary articles found on a dining table than any person ever witnessed up to date. A clean refined musical act.

Nellie LeMar who sings the illustrated songs, continues to receive warm appreciation from the audience and the moving pictures are decidedly humorous and interesting.

There will be a special matinee on Patriots Day, Monday, April 20 at 2.30.

ARBOR DAY APPEAL.

The Civic committee of the Quincy Women's club is desirous of doing some systematic tree planting on city streets and has selected Coddington as one in need of shade trees. No street is more used by residents of the city as a whole, as it is the thoroughfare to Mt. Wollaston cemetery and beaches beyond. The committee wishes to set out maple and elm trees from Washington street corner to the Adams farm to connect with those set out years ago by Mr. John Quincy Adams. Although Mr. Patterson the Wollaston florist has agreed to furnish the trees for $60 hundred it will take considerable money as over two hundred will be needed. The Civic committee treasury cannot at the present time put more than $60 into the cause which would be half of the cost of the trees. One member has contributed personally $25 and others will pay for several trees. Would any of the abutters, Coddington school children, or tree loving citizens care to contribute financially in this good work? If so it would be greatly appreciated by the committee.

Annie L. Prescott,
for the Committee.

Fresh Air Camp.

A religious exchange (The Congregationalist) makes the following comment, in its issue of April 4: "Spiritual prostration is a natural result of nervous prostration." To relieve this nervous prostration, which means reviving of spiritual life, a Fresh Air Camp has been contemplated for the people of our city for July. Let every one avail themselves of the opportunity it offers of rest and recreation.

High Scores

There was a good attendance Wednesday evening at the weekly whist tournament at the rooms of the Granite City club. So popular have these become that the committee will probably continue them through this month and possibly through the month of May. Seven tables were in play and some good scores were made. E. E. Morgan and W. W. Ewell secured the highest per cent., although there were several who secured over sixty per cent.

The citizens are urged to make an early response to the letters sent out for funds to entertain the Massachusetts Truant Officers at their annual meeting here April 25. Same to be forwarded to C. H. Johnson, truant officer.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

Forty gasoline tanks are being made and galvanized at the shipyard for the U. S. engineer's office.

Self closing bibbs will be put on all water taps in the yard not already provided with same.

The B. F. Sturtevant Company are having some valve patterns changed and composition castings made at the shipyard.

The submarine torpedo boat Plunger which left Newport, R. I., for the New York navy yard under her gasoline engines has arrived, convoyed by the tender Nina.

The steamer Islander, built at a cost of $22,000 for the Augusta, Gardiner & Boothbay Steamboat Company, was launched Tuesday at East Boothbay, Me. The craft will have a speed of 15 knots and can carry 340 passengers. She will ply along the Kennebec river.

The valuation of imports at the port of Boston for the week ending April 10 amounted to $2,862,738, a falling off in comparison to the figures of the same period of last year, which were $3,079,145. Exports also show a decrease, being $1,295,325 last week, as against $1,880,605 for the some week a year ago.

The Russian government has decided to order four 900-ton torpedo boat destroyers from England. This action reverses the recent decision that warships for Russia should be built only in Russia.

In the latest issue of the Christian Science Sentinel is the following statement from Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy: "For many years I have prayed daily that there be no more war, no more barbarous slaughtering of our fellow beings; prayed that all the peoples on earth and the islands of the sea have one God, one Mind; love God supremely, and love their neighbor as themselves. National disagreements can be, and should be, arbitrated wisely, fairly, and fully settled. It is unquestionable, however, that at this hour the armament of navies is necessary, for the purpose of preventing war and preserving peace among nations."

Farewell of Boys' Work Director

A large and interested audience of boys listened to a stereopticon talk at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening by J. A. Goodhue, on the work of H. G. Banurji among the boys of Calcutta, India, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. of that city. The boys' departments of the states of Massachusetts and Rhode Island pledged his support for one year at the Lynn conference in February. The Quincy boys pledged $26.70 in sums of one two and five cents per week, payable during the year.

This was Mr. Goodhue's last appearance in Quincy as boys work director. Owing to the sudden death of the active business partners of Mr. Goodhue's mother, Mr. Goodhue was called to Leominster, Mass., about eight weeks ago, to look after his Mother's interests. It was expected at that time that he would soon return to his duties in Quincy, and the directors granted him a temporary leave of absence. Matter have so culimated, however, in Leominster that it has become necessary for him to buy out the partner's share and enter business. The business is the manufacture of horn goods and offers a particularly attractive opening at this time beside giving Mr. Goodhue the opportunity of living at home with his mother, from whom he has been widely separated for more than fifteen years.

Mr. Goodhue came to Quincy last September. The association felt itself fortunate in securing a man of such wide experience, admirable qualities, and thorough knowledge of the association work, and of boys, and the confidence has in no way been lessened as the months have passed. The department has been built up to a high point of efficiency, and the association is sustaining a distinctive loss in Mr. Goodhues' leaving. He will be greatly missed by the mem bers of every department by the board of directors, and by his colleagnes in the work, all of who regret his going very much.

The board of directors will take immediate steps to secure a worthy successor for Mr. Goodhue, to take up the work in the early fall.

Good Receipts Good Cooks

We may live without poetry, music and art;
We may live without conscience and live without heart;
We may live without friends; we may live without books;
But civilized man cannot live without cooks.
—Owen Meredith.

At the request of a Quincy lady who is troubled to find something new for the table, the Daily Ledger will once a week, on Fridays, devote a column to receipts and household notes, to which all women are invited to make contributions. The editor would like to use the name of the author with the receipt, but will not make it a rule. It will be the endeavor as far as possible to specialize. With this in mind the following schedule is suggested for the next ten weeks:

April 16—Hot breads.
April 24—Pies and tarts.
May 1—Salads and dressing.
May 8—Candy.
May 15—Puddings.
May 22—Fish.
May 29—Ice Cream.
June 5—Cake.
June 12—Strawberries.
June 19—Chowders.
June 26—For invalids.

By special request the following are contributed for opening week.

HOT BREADS.

A Southern paper says most northerners have been taught to believe that hot breads for breakfast are ruinous to the digestion. Be this as it may, there is nothing more tempting or tasty for breakfast than a lot of hot muffins, biscuits, pop overs, hoe cakes, and nice, light slices of corn bread piled up on a big plate and folded about with a snowy napkin to keep them warm.

Southerners make hot breakfast breads in perfection, and eat them inordinately, and do not, after all, seem to be hopeless dyspeptics.

There is no use in anyone trying to excel, and it is hard to equal, a southern cook in the making of corn muffins, hot biscuits, corn bread, griddle cakes, hoe cakes, or any other of the many breads one finds served everywhere in the southern states.

First of all, they have better cornmeal in the south than we of the north have. It is made of white sweet corn, is finer ground than one finds in the north, which is made from the yellow field corn, fit only for horses. Then the southerners do not use prepared flour, which also makes a great difference in the quality of these hot breads. They measure carefully and mix with their meal and flour the quantity of raising materials required.

Many persons object to and strongly oppose breads made light by yeast baking powder, soda, or any of the artificial modes of raising, and only eat breads that are unlevened. In this line there are the famous beaten biscuits and the hoe cake of the south, sweet, delicious, nutritive, and easily digested."

BREAKFAST BUNS.

Scald three cups of milk and cool until lukewarm, then add one-half yeast cake dissolved in one cup of lukewarm water and stir in enough flour to make a stiff batter, but do not have the dough stiff enough to knead. Cover and let rise over night, or until light. If the batter is mixed in the forenoon it will be light in the evening. Stir well and add one-half cup of moistened butter, one and one-half cups of sugar, a saltspoon of salt, a small nutmeg grated and enough flour to roll out. Knead fifteen minutes, cover and let rise until morning. Roll out one inch thick, cut into rounds, lay in buttered pans close together, or so that they will touch, and let rise about half an hour. If the buns are to be called "hot cross" as they are when served at Easter, then cut a cross by making a gash each way on the top of each, then bake. Draw from the oven and brush the top of each bun with the white of egg beaten with powdered sugar until quite thick. Wollaston.

CORN BREAD.

Scald two cups of milk in a double boiler, add two cups of boiling water and four cups of cornmeal. Stir and cook a few minutes, then allow it to cool. Now add three cups of flour, one cup of molasses, two level teaspoons of salt and one and one- half level teaspoons of soda. Steam three hours, then bake one hour.

Beginner.

SQUASH BISCUITS.

Take one cup of squash, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of milk. Salt to suit the taste. Add nearly one quart of flour and half a yeast cake. Set to rise over night. Franklin Street.

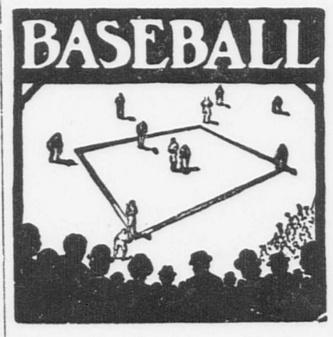
ZWEIBACK.

One cupful milk, two yeast cakes, one-half level teaspoonful salt, two cupfuls flour, one-fourth cupful melted butter, three eggs. Scald the milk and when luke-warm add the yeast and salt. When the yeast is dissolved add the flour; cover and let rise until double in bulk. Then add the sugar, butter, eggs unbeaten and sufficient flour to knead. Knead well anl shape into finger rolls. Place in a buttered pan two inches apart and let rise until light and well puffed; then bake for twenty minutes. When cold cut diagonally in one-half inch slices and brown in a very moderate oven. They should be dry and crisp throughout and a vrey delicate brown.

GERMAN SANDWICHES.

Use the above recipe for zweiback and cut in thin slices before toasting. Toast as above and spread with jelly or marmalade, then add some finely chopped pecan or English walnut meats to half the slices; cover with the remaining slices. Fore River.

Please send receipts for pies before next Wednesday for issue of Friday, April 24.



On Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock the Makaria Fraternity will open their base ball season at Merrymount park with the Quincy Stars. While the name Quincy Stars is new the players are not, for they are all stars as a plance at the following line up will show:

Bidewell will pitch and Smith catches, a well known English High school battery. Davenport will play at short, Harry Slade will hold down the first bag and Rupert Ganzel of the Malden White Sox will play at second, with Davis at third, an infield hard to beat. Then with Harry Drake in left field, Sid Patterson in centre and Joe Harkins in right field, it is indeed a star team.

Makaria has the fastest team this year they have ever turned out, and under the efficient coaching of Chas. W. Ganzel of Boston National league fane, has a team to well be proud of and they are. See how they are going to support it on Saturday.

For the box they have three of Quincy's factest ameateur pitchers in Russ Tupper and Ted Penley of last year's team, and last but not least, Jimmie Michael. Then Swithin will be behind the bat and Walter Troup too, making a battery that will do things the coming season. Watch out! Wesley Ganzel will hold down the first bag, with big Bill Troup the hitter on second, Mattie Nicoll in short stop and George McKenzie on third. What more could be wanted for an infield? For the out field, there is a fast bunch, including Frank Ewen, Honey Curtis, Walter Troup, Charlie Parker, Harry Brooks and Walter Nichols.

So if a good game is desired go to Merymount park on Saturday afternoon at 3 P. M.

On Patriots day, Monday, at 3 P. M., Makaria will play the North Dorchesters, the winners of the pennant in the Boston Suburban League last year. Watch the Ledger on Saturday for the line up for Monday's game.

The Makaria Fraternity has an attendance of over fifty on Sunday's, meeting at 12 o'clock in their rooms in Bethany church. On April 4 they were adressed by Messrs. Stater and Currier the Harvard Varsity battery and last Sunday Charles W. Ganzel was the speaker and another good one next Sunday. All young men are cordially invited to attend.

The Science of Business Building

The members of the Unitarian Club of Wollaston will miss their monthly banquets for awhile, as the season closed with the April meeting of Tuesday evening, when there was the usual large attendance, and a remarkable address. A hot roast beef dinner was served at 6.30, with strawberries and ice cream for dessert.

President F. E. Parlin presided at the meeting which was the annual.

Secretary Brigham in his report said the club was organized in 1900 with 31 members. In 1907 the limit of 100 was reached and there has been a waiting list since. The average attendance has been over 80. Thanks were due for much of the success to the dinners provided by Vice President Plummer.

Treasurer Loring reported $126.46 in the treasury at the close of the season, a larger balance than one year ago. The receipts of the year were over $500.

Thomas Lacey for the nominating committee reported the following list, and all were unanimously elected:

President, Frederic W. Plummer.

Vice President, Eugene C. Hultman.

Secretary, C. H. Brigham.

Treasurer, Charles P. Loring.

Members of Executive Committee, Frank A. Page and George Follett.

F. A. Page extended the club an invitation to attend the special meeting of the Unity Club and urged all to attend.

During the evening, Walter E. Simmons, for the Ward Five Relief Committee for Chelsea, caused a subscription paper to be circulated, and reported $83 subscribed. A motion of E. J. Cummings for the club to increase it to $100 was referred to the executive committee.

Upon motion of Mr. Simmons a rising vote of thanks was extended to President Parlin for excellent work during his two years, particularly in securing good speakers.

President Parlin wished to include the executive committee, an active working body.

The speaker of the evening was James Wood Pogue, the field organizer for the Sheldon school, with office in Boston. Any attempt to report his admirable address in brief would not do it justice. His subject was "Science of Business Building." He told of the possibility and the necessity. The day has come when man is recognized for his worth. There is a tone of respect for a business man as high as for the professions.

It was the business men who have caused the great strides in the world, but man himself has not developed as rapidly. That is the weak spot. The colleges were making a great mistake, and it was not surprising they were short of funds when a Harvard professor laments because the fund is being "spent on a lot of fellows who only intend to go into business." The world wants well qualified business men. Its destiny rests with them.

Business men should train themselves to the highest standards. Competition is not the life of trade, but rather cooperation. All employees are factors, and the speaker by blackboard in an original way showed how. He started with the measure of value, and the expense of supervision, saying that thousands of men fall just short of success because they just miss connections.

Man know thyself; that is the highest accomplishment. Success is founded on 52 items, and loss on 52 items. The majority of men are failures. The first thing needed to success is to draw out the powers in men. Few of the men here probably develop half their power. There is no sense in getting aged. Develop the body and be children. The average man only uses one-fourth of his lung capacity, and women only, one sixth. Learn to breathe.

The four basic elements in the body that lead to success are: strength, activity, symmetry and endurance. To defeat—weakness and crankiness. Also develop the brain, build memory and imagination. Men of faith climb. Have faith in other men. There is more good than bad in most men.

In closing he emphasized the importance of ability, reliability, endurance and action.

The audience showed appreciation of the address at the close, and the club adjourned until Oct. 13.

A DEATH LIST OF SIX

"Skeleton" In Chelsea Ruins Proved to Be a Wire Model

LOOTERS GET INTO A SAFE

Escape With Contents Despite Guard of Police and Militia--Restrictions on Visitors Removed--Relief Fund Is Still Growing

Boston, April 16.—Although a diligent search was kept up all day yesterday in the ruins of the hundreds of structures destroyed in the Chelsea fire of last Sunday, no more bodies of victims of the disaster were discovered and the death list remains at six. A skeleton which was unearthed early in the day proved to be a wired model, used presumably by a physician or medical student, and the rumor of a second body being found proved unfounded. Medical Examiner Magrath last night gave out the official statement that but six bodies had been recovered.

There was a seventh victim of the fire, however, in the death at the Soldiers' home in Chelsea of Frank Mahan, aged 45 years, who died as the result of being kicked by a horse during the fire Sunday night.

Notwithstanding the careful guard of property maintained by the police and militia, looters were able to open up a safe in the ruins of the Whitman studio on Broadway and escaped with the contents, consisting of money, bank books, checks and other valuables.

The Chelsea Savings bank opened up yesterday for business and there was an urgent demand for money, although many availed themselves of the opportunity to make deposits, the latter being in the main money received from the insurance adjusters, who have been making prompt and full payments.

All restrictions on visitors were removed yesterday and the public was allowed to visit all sections of the burned area, care being taken, however, that the ruins should not be overhauled except by owners of property. The street car lines were opened up and as a result many thousands of visitors and sightseers visited the city.

The relief fund, which is in charge of a Boston firm of bankers, has passed the $140,000 mark and the subscriptions are coming in rapidly. J. B. Moore and Miss Alice Higginson of Boston, who did service at the San Francisco fire, have been placed in charge of the relief work in Chelsea and are working in co-operation with the local authorities.

A number of incipient flames were started as a result of a high wind, but little damage was done.

Willard C. Sanborn, the carpenter, whose burned body, it was believed, had been found near the ruins of his shop on Division street Tuesday, made his appearance before the officials yesterday. The body remains unidentified.

Looking to the future development of the city, a resolution was offered in the Massachusetts house of representatives by Representative Robinson of Chelsea authorizing the city of Chelsea to borrow $1,000,000 to be used in rebuilding the city.

The proposed government of Chelsea by a commission has thrown a pretty fight into the legislature. While Senator Hall of Revere was in consultation yesterday with Attorney General Malone over the preparation of the commission bill, Representative Robinson of Chelsea announced that he would oppose that measure to the last.

"I have faith in the mayor and the board of aldermen elected by the people, and I believe that they, with the co-operation of the citizens of Chelsea, will put our city on its feet again," said Robinson.

The bill now being drafted is to be modelled upon the Galveston act passed by the Texas legislature just after the great flood. But there will be a change in some of the features of the Galveston act.

Cubans Fear Absorption

Havana, April 16.—The Diario Espanol, in an editorial, says: Governor Magoon was instructed from Washington to appoint American officers as governors of the provinces as a first step in the absorption of the island. He was instructed to demand the resignations of the Cuban governors and to dismiss them if they refused to resign.

Ban Placed on Betting

Washington, April 16.—Without discussion, dissent or division, the senate, within twenty-four hours after the winding up of the spring race meeting at Bennings, passed the bill prohibiting betting in the District of Columbia.

CITY OFFICIAL KILLED

Shot by Discharged Employe, Who Then Kills Himself

Northampton, Mass., April 16.—George F. Birge, superintendent of streets, was shot and fatally wounded by a discharged employe of the street department, John Tracy, who afterward shot himself. Birge lived only a few hours after the shooting. Tracy lingered until last night, when he also succumbed to his injuries. He had two bullets in his abdomen, while a third bullet lodged at the back of his throat.

Birge was shot while sitting in a chair in the harness room at the highway department barn on Prospect street. Immediately afterward Tracy walked to his own home, about a half-mile distant, and shot himself.

Birge had been superintendent of streets for six years. He was 40 years of age and unmarried. Tracy was 60 years old and had a wife. He was an employe of the street department for about ten years. No cause for the shooting is known other than that Tracy was discharged by the superintendent last Friday on account of lack of work.

Cuts Off Liquor at Drug Stores

Concord, N. H., April 16.—The license commissioners have decided to issue no more licenses to druggists in no-license towns to sell liquor. The commission says: "Taking the sales as found on the books of certificates for certain months as a basis, we find that the licensed druggists in thirty-eight towns and cities voting against license, who have licenses permitting them to sell liquor upon the certificate of the purchaser for medicinal, mechanical, chemical or sacramental purposes only, will have made 697,590 sales, amounting to $365,024.64, during the license year ending April 30, 1908."

Dissatisfied With Reduction

New Bedford, Mass., April 16.—Committees of the carders and ring spinners were directed by those unions last night to confer with the agents of the Gosnold and Hathaway mills regarding the wage reduction which has just gone into effect in those mills. The carders of the Gosnold mill have been on strike since Monday. It was asserted that the reduction in wages in the two mills named amounts to between 20 and 27 percent.

Granite Cutters Reject Proposition

Milford, Mass., April 16.—The Granite Cutters' union voted not to accept a proposition that the cutters return to work in the local quarries provided that the local manufacturers furnish engineers. The engineers struck on April 1 for a forty-five-hour week and a minimum wage of $18, instead of a forty-eight-hour week and $16 weekly. The cutters voted to stay out until an arrangement was made with the engineers.

Liquor Revenue For State

Boston, April 16.—Boston and all cities and towns of the state are in danger of losing the fees received from liquor licenses. Boston will be deprived of practically $1,300,000 annually, while the license cities and towns stand to lose over $2,000,000. A bill with this end in view was reported in the house of representatives by the joint committee on ways and means.

Alleged Cruelty to Horses

Manchester, N. H., April 16.—A special to The Union from Allenstown says: On warrants sworn out by State Agent Sargent of the Animal Rescue league, George Desroche, town clerk, and Arthur Desmarais and John J. Connor, selectmen of Allenstown, were arrested on the charge of overdriving and abusing a pair of horses belonging to a livery stable keeper of Suncook.

Not Too Crazy to Escape

Bridgewater, Mass., April 16.—After arranging a crude dummy in his cot at the insane department of the state farm, James Johnson, a negro, sawed off the bars of his cell, made a rope from the bedding, climbed to the roof, lowered himself over the wall surrounding the institution and escaped. The police of all the surrounding cities and towns are looking for him.

Net For Stopping Torpedoes

Newport, R. I., April 16.—A test of a steel torpedo net designed for the protection of battleships from torpedo attacks was made in Narragansett bay. Torpedo boat Morris, traveling at 25 knots speed, sent a Whitehead torpedo into it from a distance of 800 yards. Although the torpedo exploded as it struck, the net is said to have remained unbroken.

Talk Is Cheaper on Telephone

Boston, April 16.—Beginning yesterday one may talk on the telephone of twenty-three city and suburban exchanges of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company for five minutes for a flat rate of 5 cents. This means that a subscriber may telephone from the main exchange in Boston to suburban points on the 5-cent rate.

Fire Started In Hay Shed

Bangor, Me., April 16.—A brisk fire broke out in the hay shed of J. F. Green on Broad street this morning and spread to a fertilizer warehouse, the Northern Paint company's building and a clothing store. It is thought that some person threw a match in the hay shed. The total loss is about $20,000.

Was Posted on Sports

New York, April 16.—John H. Mandigo, for twenty years at the head of the sporting department of The Sun, is dead. Mandigo had been in the employ of The Sun for thirty-three years. He is said to have originated what came to be known as the technical story of the baseball game on the diamond.

BUT TWO BATTLESHIPS

President's Pet Project Is Knocked Out In the House

Washington, April 16.—By a vote of 199 to 83, the house of representatives decided against the president's program for four battleships and adhered to the recommendation of its committee on naval affairs for two vessels of that type. The result was reached after a debate which lasted for four hours and was received with applause.

The increase was opposed by Mr. Tawney, chairman of the committee on appropriations; Mr. Foss, chairman of the committee on naval affairs; Mr. Williams, minority leader, and many others, and was advocated by Mr. Hobson (Ala.), who declared that in relation to the increase of other nations, four battleships would only keep the American navy abreast of other great navies. Mr. Longworth (O.) told the house that the president was more interested in this increase than in any other question before congress, and as practically all of them had in the last election declared that they would support him, this was a good opportunity to live up to that declaration.

An amendment by Mr. Tawney to reduce the number of new battleships to one was voted down by an even more decided majority than was Hobson's proposition for an increase to four. A provision for two fleet colliers of 16 knots and of 12,500 tons capacity, costing $1,800,000 each, was adopted. The bill as it stands authorizes expenditures of $107,837,000.

Headache Cure Man Fined

Washington, April 16.—Robert N. Harper was sentenced by Judge Kimball to pay a fine of $500 on one count and $200 on another count of the indictment returned against him for manufacturing and selling an alleged mislabled pharmaceutical compound. President Roosevelt had insisted that the prosecuting officer demand a jail sentence. The compound which brought about his prosecution was a so-called headache remedy. Harper's attorneys took an appeal to the district court of appeals.

Presbyterians' "Labor Sunday"

New York, April 16.—The ministers of the 11,000 Presbyterian churches throughout the United States have been requested by the department of church and labor to observe Labor Sunday on Sunday, May 10. The 28,000 local labor unions throughout the United States, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, have been requested to co-operate in the observance of Labor Sunday. A special souvenir program has been prepared, which will be generally used by the Presbyterian churches.

Conspiracy Charges Denied

Salt Lake City, April 16.—Answer to the charge made by the United States government in its suit to dissolve the Harriman system of railroads as a combination in restraint of trade has been filed by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad. The answer makes a sweeping denial of the various charges of conspiracy and illegal combination.

China's Backbone Strengthened

Paris, April 16.—The Echo de Paris states that the explanation of the firmer attitude assumed by China with regard to the Japanese in Manchuria may be found in the support given to China by the United States, a proof of which was given in the remittance of the indemnity due from China on account of the Boxer troubles in 1900.

Relics of Bygone Ages

Boone, Ia., April 16.—The state historical department yesterday unearthed in a mound near here human bones, animal bones and human teeth, historical documents from ancient urns and other curios, believed to be relics of the ancient mound builders.

Ten Dead In Prison Battle

St. Petersburg, April 16.—Eleven political prisoners attacked and stabbed two warders to death at Penza. They then threw a number of bombs and escaped from the prison in the confusion. Guards hastily gave pursuit and shot eight of the men dead.

Two Fishermen Drowned

Halifax, April 16.—With her flag at half mast for the loss of two of her crew, fishing schooner Ronald G. Smith arrived here from the Banks. Leary and Knickle were returning from their trawls with a doryload of fish when a sea capsized their boat.

OUT OF PARTY LINES

McCarren Unseated by New York Democratic Convention

HIS THREAT TO TAMMANY

None Present Will Ever Live to See Another Democratic Mayor of New York--Delegates to National Convention Are Uninstructed

New York, April 16.—State Senator Patrick H. McCarren, leader of the Kings county Democracy, was unseated from his place as a delegate to the party's state convention last night after a two days' contest before the committee on credentials. He was alternately greeted with cheers and derisive cries.

In a scene that was tense and dramatic, he first made an appeal to the convention to refuse its sanction to the majority report of the committee on credentials and then followed with a deliberate defiance of those who, he said, were excluding him from the place in the party councils for which he had been chosen by his Democratic constituents.

To the Tammany delegates he delivered a threat that if he plan to put him outside the party lines was carried out no one present in the convention hall would live long enough to see the election of another Democratic mayor of New York.

The proceedings were attended with much confusion and disorder, in which both the McCarren men and their opponents participated. The long two days' wait for the credentials report had affected the delegates, who showed the strain during the long rollcall on the adoption of the majority report.

The business for which the convention was assembled, the selection of delegates to the national convention, the nomination of presidential electors and the adoption of a platform, was almost forgotten in the excitement over the McCarren contest.

When the vote was announced McCarren, with his followers, arose and left the hall, while their friends in the gallery gave them a parting cheer. Another cheer greeted Bird S. Coler of Kings as he and his fellow-delegates entered to replace the McCarren men. McCarren said he would carry his fight to the Denver convention.

After the settling of the contests the convention proceeded with its task and named delegates, electors and adopted the following platform:

"We believe that the Democracy of the nation, by the strength of its position on questions of great public importance and by the blunders and extravagance of the Republican party, has this year ppresented to it an unusual opportunity to return to the control of the government of the country, and to that end we believe that every sacrifice which patriotism may suggest or public sentiment require should be made by all members of the party in order to again put Democratic principles into actual operation in the administration of the affairs of the government.

"We believe that as the country is greater than the party, so is the party greater than any of its members; and, therefore, personal ambition and individual preferment must give way to the good of the many and the triumph of the cause.

"We hold that Democratic traditions, bound up as they are with much that is greatest in the history of the country, require that national conventions should be gatherings of the best intellect, the ripest judgment and the most unselfish patriotism of the party, protecting the needs and striving for the welfare of the country at large.

"And, therefore, we, representing the party in the greatest state of the Union, a state whose electoral vote is essential to Democratic victory, with no animosity or hostility for any candidate, and animated only by devotion to the principles of the party, call upon the Democracy of the country to send to Denver in July next, unpledged and uninstructed, the ablest, strongest and most representative men, to the end that out of the deliberation and consultation of such men there may be then and there nominated a ticket which will rally to its support the judgment, conscience and vote of a majority of the citizens of the country."

The final session was not ended until 12:30 this morning and the last hour's business was transacted amid a hubbub that made it almost impossible to determine the will of the delegates as expressed in voting.

During the day the Bryan men, who already had been defeated in the committee on resolutions, abandoned their attempt to have the national delegates instructed for Bryan.

When the new state committee plan was put through there was a wild scene. Protesting delegates clambered upon their chairs and screamed protests. The chairman pounded for order until his gavel broke in bits and then he called on fifty police to restore order. The latter failed. Those on the stage crowded about the chairman until the sergeant-at-arms was pitched into the orchestra pit. Amid the din of battle the chairman put and declared carried the several resolutions as mapped out in committee. Then he declared the convention adjourned.

The delegates-at-large elected are Alton B. Parker, Charles F. Murphy, Lewis Nixon and Charles Enoch, all of New York city.

When Cupid Delayed Dinner

By BESSIE R. HOOVER.

Copyright, 1907, by Bessie R. Hoover.

IT was 8 o'clock on a raw morning in early summer, and the teams that were to take them to the lake had not yet arrived.

There were but two men in this chilled company on the church steps, for the superintendent and several of the teachers could not leave their work. The Rev. Albert Pashley was one of the faithful; the other was Ike, the son of Deacon Clutner, a rich dairyman. Ike was allowed a substitute on this momentous day, and, while a hireling slopped milk into the motley dishes of the customers, Ike abandoned himself to the varied pleasures of the Sunday school picnic.

Ike Clutner was a stoop shouldered, amiable fellow with no particular features. He looked singularly out of place in his best clothes minus his milk can and measure.

The first wagon rattled up after an hour of wintry waiting. There had been some mistake about the time—there always is. The Rev. Albert Pashley clambered into the wagon as a matter of course. Phyllis Jones, who had walked in from the country, was already in the wagon when Ike Clutner, brushing aside the squirming children, forcibly took his seat beside her. Ike did not mean to leave his courting to chance, for holidays were scarce with him. But Mrs. Pashley, the minister's wife, who was going to wait for the last wagon, cried:

"AW, THUNDER!" GRUMBLED IKE.

"We'll need a man in our crowd. Ike, you stay and go with us."

"Aw, thunder!" grumbled Ike under his breath and climbed disconsolately out, and the first load rumbled away.

The second wagon came in half an hour. Ike, fearing that he might be left out entirely if the minister's wife happened to think of any reason for his staying behind, plumped himself down by the driver's side and left the mothers and children to scramble in as best they could.

"Which way?" questioned the driver when they were within a mile of the lake. "Are you goin' to Coggin's gap or to Feather's?"

This caused consternation among the mothers, who all knew that they were going to the "gap," but did not know which one.

"Coggin's," volunteered Ike, with the intuition of a lover.

"Feather's gap," corrected the minister's wife. "I remember now. It's Feather's."

"Aw, thunder!" muttered Ike gloomily to himself.

When the heavily freighted wagon rolled protestingly into the deep beach sand Feather's gap lay wrapped in utter solitude but for the intruding team. The low lying dunes were as guiltless of a footprint as if man had never passed that way. The other wagon had not come to Feather's gap.

"I knew all the time that it was either Feather's or Coggin's," said Mrs. Blish, president of the Ladies' Aid. "Now, driver, take us round to Coggin's."

The driver grudgingly turned his horses, growling about "fool women," when the minister's wife spoke out sharply, "And remember we don't pay you anything extra for this blunder."

"Whoa!" shouted the driver. "Pile out!"

"Pile out!" echoed Mrs. Pashley in a scandalized voice. "We will not! You should have found out where we were going before you started. Drive on immediately."

"It'll be a dollar more," announced the man, with gloomy unconcern.

"It will not be a dollar more," declared Mrs. Pashley angrily. "Climb out, everybody. I shall speak of this to Mr. Pashley."

The picnickers poured quickly into the lake sand. Then the dinner for the whole crowd was clawed from under the driver's seat and dumped in a little pyramid on the ground. The team started off, the man muttering.

The children ran shrieking to the lake. The mothers carried the dinner and placed it in the shade of the willows. But a cry of black ants was raised, and, as the women were already exhausted from wading in the deep sand, Mrs. Pashley ordered Ike to transfer the dinner to a place of safety, as if he were the state militia.

"Take the dinner out by the lake—not too near the water," directed Mrs. Pashley, who was going about with a pained, consecrated face as if they had just been shipwrecked on a desert island.

For Ike the forenoon passed gloomily away, but he put in a good day's work waiting on the women.

As dinner time approached they began to expect the other picnickers to look them up, but no one came, so Mrs. Pashley sent Ike to Coggin's gap to ask the minister and his crowd to come to Feather's gap to eat, as that would save carrying the dinner a mile.

Ike struck out through the woods that skirted the bluffs above the sand dunes. When he had gone about half the distance he met Phyllis Jones.

"Hello!" he shouted.

"Where you been?" cried Phyllis.

"Feather's gap."

Though Phyllis had a good disposition and a great capacity for work, nature had not seen fit to bless her with much chin, but she had an honest freckled face, and Ike considered her perfection.

"We supposed you folks had gone to the wrong gap," explained Phyllis, "so the minister told me to go over and tell Mis' Pashley that, as she had the dinner, we'd all come over to Feather's gap to eat—or if she'd ruther come"—

"Mis' Pashley 'd ruther eat where she is, so that's settled," answered Ike easily. Then he proceeded to forget the other picnickers entirely.

"Lookie," he cried, producing a dingy candy heart bearing in bold red letters the suggestive motto, "Be My Honey."

"I mean worse'n that," hinted Ike darkly, slipping the heart into her hand, immediately presenting her with another saccharine sentiment, "Yours For Eternity."

After reading this solemn promise Phyllis fished out a candy heart from her own pocket, which as a thrifty and farsighted young woman she may have secreted for this very emergency, and gave it to Ike, who read with great satisfaction, "I Am Yours."

"When?" he asked briefly.

"Not till after butcherin' time," answered Phyllis promptly and firmly.

"Aw, thunder—stop!" cried Ike, greatly displeased. "Talk sense."

"You don't want me very bad if you can't wait till I'm ready. Pete Jenner 'd wait till doomsday."

"I'll—I'll wait till next grass—if you say so," vowed the distressed dairyman recklessly.

"No, Ike. Butcherin' time's long enough. I'll be ready by then."

"Lookie," cried Ike, "here's a path that leads to the lake. Let's go down."

Following this path, they found a little cove sheltered from the world by high clay ridges that shut them completely from view of either gap. Here they sat hand in hand watching the waves and, growing hungry, lunched on a whole bag of amorous worded sweets that Ike produced from a bulging pocket.

"Maybe we ought to look the others up," suggested Phyllis after a long season of blissful munching.

"Aw, thunder—no!" objected Ike.

"There might be something to do—somewheres," she added vaguely.

"I done it all," Ike assured her.

In the meantime the minister's wife and her satellites waited impatiently for Ike and the other picnickers.

"Let's feed these children and eat ourselves," suggested Mrs. Jenner.

"No," said Mrs. Pashley emphatically. "The others might not like it."

"Mis' Peters would have a fit if we et without her," declared Mrs. Blish. "Let's all go over to Coggin's gap and then send Ike and Brother Pashley back here for the dinner."

"No. If we go, we'll take the dinner with us," said Mrs. Pashley. "Albert's chest isn't strong."

"It's a long walk to tug all these victuals," sighed Mrs. Blish.

"But I guess it's the only thing to do," replied Mrs. Pashley. "Mrs. Jenner, you get the children together and we'll go."

They went through the woods, as Ike had gone, for that was the shortest way.

At last they filed thankfully down the crooked path into Coggin's gap. But the Rev. Mr. Pashley and his half of the crowd were not there.

"Where's Ike?" burst out Mrs. Blish as she sat cumbrously down on the sand to rest in the shade of an ant covered willow.

"And where's Brother Pashley and the rest gone to?" exclaimed Mrs. Jenner.

"Well, they've gone," declared Mrs. Jenner, "and we can't help it. So we'd jest better unjack these victuals double quick."

"No, no; it won't do at all!" cried Mrs. Pashley sharply as several women, anxious to feed the clamoring children, fussed over the baskets.

"Put those covers on again," commanded the minister's wife. "Mr. Pashley and the others will probably come in a few minutes."

But nobody appeared, and they began to think that the crowd must have gone to Feather's gap by the wagon road or the beach and that they had missed them.

It was long past dinner time and the shadows were beginning to lengthen when the woebegone party, still ably commanded by the minister's wife, retraced their steps to Feather's gap.

But not a vestige of the other party or Ike was to be found there.

"Now, if you'll take my advice, Mrs. Pashley, we'll eat a snack," urged Mrs. Jenner as they dumped the dinner in the sand at Feather's gap.

"We'll do no such thing," retorted the minister's wife. "I shan't have it said that I meddled with the dinner."

The children, too tired and hungry to play, dropped languidly on the warm sand or tried to drown their sorrows in copious drafts of warm lake water.

"I'm going home," said Mrs. Jenner firmly, after another bitter season of fruitless waiting. "I shall take the infant class and my five and go. The rest of you can do what you please."

She would have opened her own basket and fed the children, but it contained only sour pickles and cabbage salad, and she dared not thrust such food on the empty stomachs of the infant class, not to mention her own five.

"I thought we'd have a man to help us," fretted the minister's wife, "but, no; I send Ike on an errand, and that's the last of him."

"I should think that Brother Pashley would do something," observed Mrs. Jenner.

Mrs. Pashley let this remark pass in silence. "We will all go home now," she announced in a tired voice. "That's all we can do. Each one carry something." And again they were marshaled along, but this time it was toward home.

They had planned to walk back, for the Sunday school could not afford to ride both ways. Drearily they snailed along. A mile passed by, and its weary length seemed stretched to half a dozen.

As these picnic toilers rounded a bend in the road that now led through treeless, open fields they beheld as in a vision a dispirited company halted by the dusty roadside for a rest in the hot sun.

It was the Rev. Albert Pashley, the formidable Mrs. Peters, several other matrons and a dozen or more glum children, all sitting dejectedly on the grass dangling their tired feet in a dry ditch.

The Rev. Albert arose as spokesman for this disgruntled assembly. "Where have you been?" he inquired ungraciously of his wife, as if she and her crowd were the offending ones.

"Looking and waiting for you—all day long," replied Mrs. Pashley coldly.

"Where's Phyllis Jones?" asked Mrs. Peters, coming forward. "We sent her to tell you that we'd come to Feather's gap and eat dinner with you, but she didn't come back. So we went over there, but you was gone. Then we went back to Coggin's again, and finally we started home."

"We ain't none of us saw Phyllis," returned Mrs. Jenner. "But where's Ike Clutner?"

"None of us has seen him," answered the minister.

"The only thing to do now is jest to unpack these victuals double quick," began Mrs. Jenner.

"Land sakes!" broke in Mrs. Peters shrilly. "Ain't you folks et yet?"

"No, ma'am," answered Mrs. Blish icily.

"Well, of all fool things!" commented Mrs. Peters. "Totin' all that truck all day long and not eatin' your share!"

"I'm surprised, Mrs. Pashley," said the minister, "that you didn't take the initiative here. At least you could have fed these little ones"—

ORDERED THE FOOD DUMPED ON THE GROUND.

"That's what I said all the time," interrupted Mrs. Jenner.

"It has been ten hours since I myself ate," he concluded solemnly, referring to his watch.

"Why, I thought—it would be nicer to eat together," began Mrs. Pashley, but nobody seemed to hear her.

For Mrs. Peters ordered all the food dumped on the ground by the roadside.

The ravenous children squatted quickly before the delayed dinner. The older people lowered themselves to the ground awkwardly, but gratefully. Then the Rev. Albert asked the shortest picnic blessing on record, and the meal began by the dusty roadside.

At last around a bend in the road, hand in hand, came Ike and Phyllis. Ike's pockets were bulging with stones and his face wore a satisfied grin. Phyllis showed a nervous tendency to giggle.

"You're great folks!" cried Mrs. Peters. "Where've you been?"

"Back apiece," replied Ike boldly.

"We sort of lost track of time," confessed Phyllis guiltily.

"We've most of us been there ourselves," the Rev. Albert remarked genially, with an added unction in his voice in view of the possible wedding fee.

"Aw, thunder!" grunted the red faced Ike, who didn't know what else to say.

Leonard's Address on Christain Science

An appreciative audience of between 500 and 600 listened to a lecture on Christian Science by Frank H. Leonard, C. F. B., of Brooklyn, N. Y., on Sunday afternoon, last, in Post Office block, given under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Braintree. A portion of the lecture was as follows:

The Christian Science Board of Lectureship, of which I have the honor of being a member, has been organized and instituted, under the direction of Mrs. Eddy, for the purpose of affording those really desirous of knowing what Christian Science is, andw hat it teaches and does for mankind, an opportunity to get this knowledge through an authorized channel.

The work of this board is supremely educational, and is accomplishing the uplifting of mankind to a plane of thought whereon it finds it possible to accept God as being Infinite Good, without making any reservation, either as to Himself or His creation.

Many people approach the study of Christian Science, or demonstrable Christianity, with a feeling that, while it may do and has done much for some of their friends, it cannot do so for them because they lack any faith in it. For the benefit of the skeptical, I am going to tell you how absolutely without faith or even knowledge I was, when I first went for a Christian Science treatment; how absurd it seemed to me, and what it did for me regardless of all this.

I was born with an incurable organic disease, according to the physicians, and up to the time when Christian Science was presented to me had never known a day of freedom from pain or suffering. I had taken medicine by the quart, the allopathic way, and by the attenuated hundredth part of a drop, the homeopathic way, and then alternated the two ways, and that was eclectic, and the conclusion of the physicians was that dissolution was at hand.

At this point in my experience I was told a new way of treating disease was being used with wonderful results! That people calling themselves Christian Scientists were saying that God's Word had not lost its power to destroy sin, disease and death. It was suggested, as everything else had failed, that I try this new way as it might benefit me.

I had tried everything else and was willing to try this, so went for my first Christian Science treatment without the slightest idea as to what was going to be done to me. When I reached the home of the practitioner who had been recommended to me, I was compelled to wait some time because of the many ahead of me. When my turn came I was ushered into a small room and asked to be seated in a chair as far removed from the one in which the practitioner sat as the size of the room would permit.

The first question asked was "What seems to be the matter with you?" I felt it was adding insult to injury to ask me what seemed to be the matter with me, and I told the practitioner, who was a woman, the physicians said I had an incurable disease, telling her what name they had given it. She talked to me for a few moments, and then said, "I will treat you." Then she seemed to go to sleep for about fifteen minutes. She closed her eyes and commenced rocking gently back and forth in her chair.

The belief that she could do me any good while we were sitting at opposite ends of the room began to strike me as being too funny for anything, and at last I was compelled to stuff my handkerchief in my mouth to avoid discourtesy of laughing in her face. After a while she woke up, and said: "I will see you tomorrow at the same time." I thought she would not—I had no intention of ever going back there. I asked her how much I owed her, and she told me, and as I paid her I thought it was the easiest dollar I had ever been separated from. Then I went home; I went to my room, and there on the shelf was the tonic the family physician told me it was as much as my life was worth to go without. I fully intended to take some of it but didn't do it.

My every night was filled with the most awful mental pictures, pictures which we call dreams, that it is possible to conceive of, and it had become necessary to give me a sleeping potion in order to put me to sleep because I dreaded these so. When I went to bed that night I intended to take my sleeping potion, but I didn't, and then the first thing I knew I was opening my eyes, and found it was broad daylight! found that I had slept the whole night through without one of those dreadful pictures, and had awakened with a feeling of refreshment, of strength, of hope and joy that I had never known before. The longest hours I ever spent were between my awakening and the time set for my going back to that little room. I continued to gothere for three months, and then, upon his request to be permitted to do so, our family physician made an examination of me, and said I was a perfect a physical specimen as he had ever examined. That was in 1885, and from that day to this, Christian Science, as revealed to the world through Mrs. Eddy, has met every diseased condition that has presented itself to me; has destroyed it and left me free.

I was not born in Missouri, but I might as well have been, from my nature because I have always been one of the kind that would not believe anything until I had absolute proof that it was true. The Truth has been very good to me all these years, because, as a Christian Scientce practitioner, I have been brought face to face continually with the wonderful healing work that has been brought out by the use of this Truth as Mrs. Eddy has given it to us. I have seen cancers, tumors, locomotor ataxia, drunkenness and immorality destroyed, and men and women made whole morally and physically just by the touch of Divine Love as understood and demonstrated in Christian Science. For this reason, and for the reason that I am convinced, as the result of my study, that Christian Science is transcendentally and practically the highest apprehension of Good the human consciousness can conceive of, I am a Christian Scientist today, and thank God His way has again been revealed to human consciousness, and that I have been here to receive its benefits.

You have doubtless heard people say, in speaking of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," the text-book of Christian Science written by Mrs. Eddy: "I have read that book from cover to cover and nobody on earth can make any sense out of it." Hand a text-book of algebra to a child! Tell him to read it through from cover to cover without any previous instruction as to how to read it, and then, when he has finished it, ask his opinion of it. What will he say? Naturally enough he will say, "I have read it from cover to cover and nobody on earth can make any sense out of it." Then you say to him, "Take that text-book and go to someone who is a student of algebra and let him tell you what it means." He follows your advice, and the result is that what appeared like a meaningless jumble to him, becomes an avenue through which he is enabled to work out problems that he never could work out before. It that what people do when they want to know about Christian Science? No; generally speaking, it is not. They find somebody that doesn't know anything about it, and ask them what it means, and they only learn what the other fellow doesn't know that he doesn't know, and it becomes a self-evident case of the blind leading the blind, with the inevitable result—they both fall into the ditch. And this is the kind of investigation that precedes alleged criticism of Christian Science.

Christian Scientists continually repeat the statement, Man is One with God. This statement has been used as a foundation for discourses wherein it has been said Christian Science is but a re-dressing of the Bramahnistic and Buddhistic philosophies, wherein it is taught man reaches the most ecstatic state of existence when he forgets that he ever has lived, and is absorbed into Deity. The teachings of Christian Science absolutely overthrow any such idea, and intelligently instruct us to know that Man is one with God, as the idea is one with the mind that conceives it—no part of the mind whatever, but inseparable from it—and so it is with Man, God's idea about himself: God's image and likeness! He is inseparable from God, the Mind, the Creator which conceives him, but in no sense is he any part of God, and in no sense is his individuality ever lost. but is as eternal as the Creator who created him.

My friends, Christian Science is the demonstration of that great, tender, compassionate Love which Jesus Christ manifested to the world, not only in his word, but in his demonstration of its wonderful power. We want you to know that Christian Science is the revelation to mankind today that only as we live the religion of Love, making its demonstration that of doing unto others as we would be done by, are we showing any conception ofthat erligion, pure and undefiled, which the Bible commands us to demonstrate.

Love brings no evil; Love brings no suffering to man; and the understanding of Love, as it is demonstrated in Christian Science, enables man to reach out to his brother with a tenderness, a sweetness, a sense of consideration the world knows not of until it is given to it through Christian Science.

Christian Science is the manifestation of that Love that respects no person, that knows no relationship save the universal brotherhood, bringing to mankind the satisfied consciousness that it is really, demonstrably proved, that God is Love. In this consciousness of demonstrable religion, Christian Scientists have their satisfaction, their joy, their sense of harmony that can never be disturbed, and their consciousness of Love that stretches out into the universe, including all in its omniscience, turning us, weary and heavy laden, to Calvary and the cross, where we are freed from its weight and its shadow in fulfilment of the promise of Him whose word never faileth. There we find surcease for our pain, our sorrow and tears, in spiritual regeneration, emerging gently out of self and away from the world, flesh and evil, into that everlasting peace which God giveth his beloved children, and toward which Mrs. Eddy, God's revelator to this age, is leading us.

We ask you to investigate, not Christian Scientists, but Christian Science, and see how absolutely it reveals the Godly standard, wherein what blesses one blesses all. Every promise shall be fulfilled, and the graand work of Christ, as exemplified in Christian Science, be universally accepted. Then shall His "Will be done in earth as it is in Heaven;" then shall we realize that His 'i's the kingdom and the power and the glory forever," seeing the full fruition of Love, having no other gods than "Our Father which art in Heaven," who is Life, Truth and Love everlasting.

Waging Battle On Odd Parasites

New York, April 15. Probably the most unusual feature of the excitement that has been created by L. T. Cooper's visit to this city is the removal of parasites or tapeworms by his preparations.

During the early part of Cooper's stay in New York, individuals who were taking his "New Discovery," as it is called, brought either to himself or to physicians throughout the city immense parasites that had left the system after using the medicine.

Many of these people were frightened, and cases of this sort become so numerous that Cooper finally made the following statement for publication:

He said: "In every city I visit these things are brought to me within a few days after my medicine is sold in the city. They are what is known as the tapeworm, and grow to enormous size.

"Few, indeed, realize how prevalent these creatures are. I think I have been the first to demonstrate what a large factor they are in the poor health of this generation. I believe that fully one-half of the chronic stomach trouble that is so universal is caused by these parasites.

"Individuals may have them for years and not be aware of the reason for continued ill-health, but attribute it to many different diseases, when in reality one of these creatures is robbing them of their vitality.

"These parasites are taken into the system in uncooked food or rare meat, in the form of an egg, which hatches almost immediately. People suffering from them experience a feeling of lassitude and are extremely nervous. The action of the New Discovery seems to be fatal to these great worms, and in most cases a few doses of the medicine drives the creatures from the system. I will have hundreds of them brought to me before I leave the city."

This grewsome prophecy has been amply verified, for not only hundreds but thousands of New York and Brooklyn people have been relieved of one of these fearful parasites since taking Cooper's preparations, and the entire city has been aroused by the fact.

Some of these parasites are of such enormouse size as to startle the imagination. The statement of Thomas McNulty, a city employe, living at 218 Thirty-ninth Street, South Brooklyn, verifies this. His statement, among others given to a reporter, was as follows:

"I have no objection to talking about this matter. Why should I The facts are so, and a man who would not discuss them is suffering with false modesty, in my opinion. I believe every one should know about these things. I believe they are a public menace, and if this man Cooper, or any one else, relieves it, I am willing to say so, and give credit where it is due.

"I have been a sick man for years. My stomach was all wrong and I had a gnawing, faint feeling which only a little food of some sort would relieve. Then after I ate the food it would not agree with me, and I would bloat and feel uncomfortable. I was tired all the time, was nervous and depressed and did not sleep well. I felt as tired in the morning as when I went to bed. I had dizzy spells, headaches, a coated tongue, and have been thin and generally run down.

"I went to Riker's, saw Cooper and got some of the New Discovery medicine—not because I thought it would help me, for I have tried everything, but just on a chance. Monday a tapeworm fully thirty feet long left my system. How a man could live with such a thing sapping his vitality for all these years is beyond me to say. Now I know why I have been half dead so long. I will tell any one in the city of New York these facts who wants to know about them."

This story of Mr. McNulty is a fair example of the experience of an astonishing number of New York people, and Cooper's preparations are selling here in enormous quantities. It is now estimated that he has sold one hundred thousand bottles to date in this city alone, and the sale is still increasing.

Quincy Fund Is Growing

About $125 More Acknowledged Today And Car Load of Clothing Ready to Ship

Quincy is responding nobly to the call for relief for the Chelsea sufferers both in contributions of money and of clothing, etc.

All day Thursday and in the evening bundles of goods were constantly arriving at the receiving room. Some of the bundles contained articles of clothing and others household necessities.

In addition to these a number of pieces of furniture in the way of chairs, tables and mirrors were also received. This morning other bundles arrived and it looked at noon as though there was enough to fill one car. The street railway car will take away these things before night.

At West Quincy on Thursday James F. Burke started out with a subscription paper and was not long in raising $21.

At Houghs Neck the canvasing committee report good success and expect to reach the $100 mark before Saturday night.

Mayor Shea receiver a letter from a Quincy business man this morning containing a check for $75. Of this amount $50 was to be applied to the fund being raised for the Chelsea sufferers, and $25 in the purchase of tickets for Mr. Johnson's lecture for the children. The writer requested the Mayor to distribute the tickets as he saw fit. The only string attached to the noctribution was that under no circumstances was his name to be made public.

Hundreds of tickets are being sold for the lecture which seems a popular way for many to contribute.

CHELSEA RUINS.

The representative of the Daily Ledger who witnessed the work of the Quincy firemen at Chelsea on Sunday, visited the scene again on Thursday and went over much of the burned district. It was much more extensive than he realized.

Some of the ruins are still smouldering, but in the residential section where the houses were of wood scarcely a burned timber remains. In the cellars will be found ranges, furnaces and the remains of iron bedsteads, but that is about all. Here and there are a few brick walls.

Just to the north of Chelsea square, in the rear of Odd Fellows hall which was destroyed, is the carriage manufactory of Lynch Bros. an Pearl street, a three-story wooden building, which the Quincy firemen saved. Buildings on three sides of it were

Movement Started To End Granite Trouble

Ex-President Sandberg Of Board of Trade Outlines Plan In Open Letter

Ex-Representative Edward J. Sandberg started a movement this morning to settle the differences between the Granite Manufacturers and the Quarrymen and Engineers' Unions. Mr. Sandberg's proposition is from a disinterested party, and is for the two committees to meet a committee of the Board of Trade at their rooms.

This morning a letter outlining his plan was sent to the three parties interested. The letter in full is as follows:

Secretaries Quarrymen's Union, Engineers' Union and Granite Manufacturers' Association.

Gentlemen:—The business men of Quincy are viewing with grave concern the failure of your bodies to adjust their difficulties and the continuance of a strike which is occasioning serious loss to not only the parties actively interested but the citizens generally. Our interests are bound up in each other. What is the concern of one is the concern of all in a matter of this character. That is my justification in addressing to you this letter.

I am a member of the Quincy board of Trade and ex-President ofthat body. I take the liberty of offering to you the use of the rooms of the assistance and co-operation of a committee of business men to be apboard for a joint conference, and the pointed by the president of the board. Such a conference could do no harm, and might result in an agreement to terminate the strike on conditions satisfactory to all concerned.

Although I have not conferred with the president or other officers of the board regarding this matter I can assure you that the program can be carried out, for the Board of Trade is what its name implies—a body of public spirited citizens. If you accept this offer please notify the president, W. E. Piper; the secretary, Mr. A. W. Stetson; or myself; and arrangements will be speedily made for the conference.

Edward J. Sandberg.

AN APPEAL FOR CHELSEA.

PEOPLE OF QUINCY

In a time of distress, such as afflicts our neighbor, the City of Chelsea; when thousands have lost their entire possessions—home, furniture, clothing, food ,and in many cases the means of livelihood; when thousands are feeling the depths of despair, and are feeling helpless and forsaken; then is the time for the truly benevolent, those who feel that the Golden Rule is their guide, that real red blood courses in their veins —to go down deep into their pockets and to give of their comparative abundance as much as they can spare.

This is a time when their charity is sure to count, when they can feel that they are surely helping in a worthy cause; and if money cannot be spared or as much of it as they would wish, they can give of those other prime necessities—clothing, bedding, blankets, canned goods, and many other things.

Let all join in the good work, knowing that every little helps and that "Many a little makes a mickle."

Contributions of money can be sent to the City Treasurer at City Hall, or to the Treasurer of this fund, Rupert F. Claflin, at the National Granite Bank, or to Horace F. Spear at the National Mount Wollaston Bank.

Other contributions can be sent to Kincaide's store or to store in Adams Building tendered for that purpose; or, on notice by letter or postal card, directed to the City Treasurer at City Hall, will be called for at the homes of contributors.

All contributions will be acknowledged through the Quincy Daily Ledger.

WITTY MR. WILLIAMS

He Entertains the House With a Twenty-Minute Speech

IN DECIDEDLY JOCULAR VEIN

Talks of Navy "Plated With Railroad Iron," Dirigible Balloons and Japanese War Scare--He Draws the Line at Being Called a Poor Joker

Washington, April 17.—Just before the passage by the house of the naval appropriation bill, Representative Williams (Miss.) got the floor and delivered one of the wittiest speeches ever heard in that chamber. Availing himself of the twenty minutes allowed for discussing a point of order, Williams said it was never out of place to read lessons upon civic righteousness to the Republican party. He then proceeded to declare that wood pulp and print paper were germaine to the bill, because it was of the very highest necessity to maintenance of the navy to spread intelligence among the people so they might know how much of a navy was necessary for national defense.

Mr. Williams proceeded to discuss the naval bill. He traced the history of the naval construction of the world, beginning with the battles in canoes and declared that the question was whether the American navy in the present day can get away from an enemy as rapidly as one could in the distant day to which he had been referring, or whether the American navy today could get at an enemy as effectively as in those remote periods for which, he said, amid shouts of laughter, "I see by the expression of countenance of the gentleman from New York (Mr. Payne) he has the utmost contempt."

Mr. Williams spoke of ships being at one time built of iron, and said it would have been foolish to have built too much of a navy "plated with railroad iron," for fear an improvement soon might make the ships obsolete. Therefore, he said, "our wise ancestors" built only a few of them, about two at a time, so they could keep up with new types as new types arose.

Mr. Hobson asked Williams whether, in full consideration of all the history of naval architecture, the gentleman from Mississippi "finally finds himself on the side of the Merrimac or the Monitor."

Mr. Williams replied, amid laughter, that "a little cheesebox upon a raft," referring to the Monitor, "has won a great battle, and that once more the lesson was taught of not making appropriation for too many battleships at the same time.

When Williams touched upon airships pandemonium reigned. "When ships begin to sail through the air," he said, "it will not be long before we are equipping, perhaps armoring and officering and manning, dirigible balloons for the purpose of preparing for peace, filling the minds of the world with the idea that it is the ardent desire of the American people to go armed in order that they may have no occasion or opportunity to attack anybody."

Mr Hobson inquired of Williams if, on meeting another "in his own lofty altitude and his tire should be punctured at 10,000 feet, he would not prefer to have balloon ships of a little different and better type and a few more of them than the other fellow?" He asked Williams if there would not perhaps be "more hot air escaping than there is today?"

"More than there is today," Williams solemnly declared, "but not more than there was yesterday." This sally was intended for Hobson, who took it good-naturedly. Williams said he did not want the house to think that because of the questions of Hobson "I am up in the air, because I am not." He had only been referring Hobson to the proposition that if they ever were to fight battles in the air "the eloquence and oratory of my friend from Alabama would keep pace with the other fellow."

"I tell you," said he, "when he described to me that the Japanese are yearning for my blood and the blood and property of my children, how the yellow race is prepared to inevitably conduct a war upon the great white race, and how we must provide to take care of ourselves; do you know that after he got through with that argument I feared very much for them and had to retire to the cloak-room for five or ten minutes to smoke in order that my frightened imagination would settle down and my reason take cool possession of me."

The climax of the speech came when, after Hobson had referred to "a poor yarn related by Williams yesterday," Williams said:

"Mr. Speaker, I decline to be interrupted any further. When a man criticises my reasoning powers I do not mind it. When a man criticises my sanity I do not mind it. When a man criticises my personal pulchritude I can reconcile myself to that, but when a man tells me that I have told a poor joke, it makes me hot under the collar. Why, Mr. Speaker, if I have two specialties in the world they are jokes and poetry."

Amid shouts of laughter, he concluded by referring to a recent poem by Mr. Dalzell on "Little Johnny." He quoted from Macbeth and declared: "I announce to the country that I shall verse no more, for Dalzell hath murdered verse." It was some time before order was restored.

The Best Spring Medicine in the World is

TRUE'S ELIXIR

Spring usually finds the whole system run down and more or less out of order. The bowels are sluggish and inactive—the system is debilitated—the blood impoverished. Nearly everybody needs a Spring Remedy. For 57 years True's Elixir has been the standby of thousands at this season, as it is the best possible remedy to arouse the stomach, liver and bowels from their sluggish condition. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless.

LOOKING AFTER TARS

How Seamen's Society Watches Over Uncle Sam's Sailors.

REACHES TO FAR CAPE HORN

Not a Man Lost Through Shore Leave by Battleship Fleet In Its Long Cruise Around South America—Many Letters Sent Home From Society's Coast Stations.

That the 15,000 sailors of the United States battleship fleet were slipping along the far coast of South America, hale and hearty, with ever an eye to old home folks, was reported in New York city the other day.

From their five branch stations along the route about the Horn the workers of the American Seamen's Friend society are sending to headquarters the news of the eventful days of shore leave in which Uncle Sam's sailors swarmed ashore to their quarters for sight of a good American face and the rare chance of a quiet smoke, a talk and a long letter to the folks at home. Stamps, souvenir postals, reading material from home and stacks of letter paper are exhausted at these branches, the society's officers declare, and thousands of carefully scrawled missives have left their writing rooms for homes in every part of the United States.

At Rio de Janeiro, Montevideo, Buenos Aires and Rosario, where headquarters for sailors have been maintained for years by this organization, the navy tars have been welcomed, entertained and piloted pretty clear of the shoals that lie particularly foul of the course of the sailor in foreign ports. Human life, vice and bad liquor are valued cheaply in some of these South American towns, and it goes hard and often fatally with the seafaring man if he gets into the hands of the natives. Not even his navy uniform has saved many a jacky from bodily harm in remote quarters of such cities, and today the workers of the society throughout the lower continent feel relieved and gratified that the fleet has finally stood off toward its own shores once more with all the tars aboard and alive.

From Rio de Janeiro a report recently reached New York telling of the advent of the Yankee sailors there. With other local organizations the American Seamen's Friend society's branch at New York organized a constant entertainment for the men of the fleet. An information bureau was equipped, to which the sailors went on their arrival to have their money honestly changed and embark on excursions conducted about the place for their benefit. Every square foot of the rooms of this station of the society was packed each hour of the stay of the battleships' the American crews, smoking, yarning or reading and writing home letters. Before the squadron weighed anchor a large meeting of the men was arranged by the society's workers.

On the river Plata the society had three stations ready for Admiral Evans' men. Here everything was thrown open to the visiting sailors and their path kept as straight as possible. The bloody violence of the crimps of Rosario and this entire region has fallen on many a defenseless seaman in the past, and after seven years of hard effort the workers of these branches have only just succeeded in becoming a buffer between them and the visiting sailors. That the American jackies left Buenos Aires in good order is recognized as a welcome result of the long campaign. To the friendly offices of this as well as the other branches of the American Seamen's Friend society the navy tars had been commended long before they sailed by old friends in the active branches of the organization at the Brooklyn navy yard and Newport News.

Five large institutes of the organization will be on the lookout for the men of the fleet when they touch home soil again at Seattle, Tacoma, Portland, Astoria or Port Townsend. There are some forty-five of these branches keeping watch over the sailorman all over the world, the officers of the society say. That such close touch could have been kept of the Pacific fleet in its continent girdling cruise is regarded by them as a good test of the work.

Open Air Checker Contest.

In Colorado Springs, Colo., there is a little group of men who like outdoor exercise—of a very light nature. So they take a checker or domino board to one of the many little parks there and play, no matter what the state of the weather, just so long as it is not snowing or raining. Almost any day will find the little group of men with benches drawn close together and all intent upon the game, not seeing the many strangers who regard them curiously as they sit there playing their daily game.

The games, cold weather or warm, in the little parks have aroused much interest in Colorado Springs. The chamber of commerce of the town has taken the picture of the men and will use it in a circular advertising the climate of that country.

Huge Silver Tray.

A gigantic tray of solid silver has recently been made by a firm in London for an oriental potentate. The tray is seven feet in diameter and is said to be the largest ever executed. It was in the hands of the workmen for over a year.

"American butter" is the name given in Syria to oleomargarine.

ELEPHANTS GOT ASTRAY

Woman Killed and Whole California Town In an Uproar

Riverside, Cal., April 17.—As a result of a fire which started at the Sandard Oil company's storage tanks a herd of elephants were stampeded, L. U. Worsley was fatally burned and Miss Ella Gibbs is dead.

A circus three blocks distant was about to open. The herd of elephants became uncontrollable and they dashed to the east side of the town, knocking down fences, outhouses, and despoiling orchards that lay in their path. Many persons narrowly escaped the infuriated animals. In a short time, however, all but the largest of the elephants was rounded up.

The leader of the herd then changed his course and entered the court of the Glenwood hotel. Miss Gibbs was in the yard in front of the house. The elephant pinned her against the house between his tusks, threw her to the ground and trampled upon her, crushing her chest so that she died. The animal then proceeded to the doorway. A guest of the house attempted to swerve the animal from the court. He was knocked down and had several ribs broken and was otherwise injured.

The beast crashed through the door, walked through the barber shop and out on the main street, crossed the street and crashed through the heavy plate glass windows in a store. Before being rounded up at a down-town public stable, the animal trampled on another man and seriously gored him with his tusks.

One of the keepers attempted to subdue the animal, but sustained painful injuries. Not until four other elephants were brought to the stable was the huge beast got under control and taken to the circus grounds. By this time the entire town was in an uproar. The fire loss was about $11,000.

Holland Restriction Knocked Out

Washington, April 17.—The long-existing controversy as to whether the navy should have submarine boats of the Holland type, as recommended by the committee on naval affairs, was settled in the house of representatives when, after a lengthy and lively debate, the proviso limiting the secretary of the navy to purchase only boats of the Holland type was stricken out. The effect of this action was to give the secretary a free hand in the selection of submarine boats.

Out of Army For "Private Reasons"

St. Petersburg, April 17.—The retirement from the army for "private reasons" of Generals Fock, Smirnoff and Reiss is gazetted. The three officers receive pensions and are entitled to wear the army uniform. The three officers were, with General Stoessel, the principals in the recent trial growing out of the capitulation of the fortress of Port Arthur to the Japanese.

Jury Upholds Sunday Law

Kansas City, April 17.—A jury returned a verdict finding L. A. Keller, ticket seller at the Orpheum theatre, guilty of violating the Missouri law against performing unnecessary labor on Sunday and fixed his punishment at a fine of $1. This is the first conviction in similar cases, of which there are about 2000 pending against theatre owners and employes.

Fleet's Visit to Australia

Washington, April 17.—The Atlantic battleship fleet, after touching at Auckland, New Zealand, on its way around the world, will, in all probability, go first to Sydney and thence to Melbourne, Australia, the whole fleet visiting both places. After leaving Melbourne the vessels will sail around Australia and up to Manila.

Fined For Using Trawls

St. John's, April 17.—Captain Wharton of the Gloucester, Mass., schooner Arkena was arrested at Cape Bay on a charge of violating the colonial fishing laws by using trawls within the three-mile limit. He was fined $50. Two American captains were fined for the same offense last week and a third escaped.

Two Thousand Jackies Ashore

San Diego, Cal., April 17.—After two days of pageantry on sea and land there was a lull in San Diego's celebration in honor of the American battleship fleet yesterday. Ninety-two of the officers were entertained at a picnic in the country. The streets here were filled with 2000 bluejackets.

Negroes Must Have Rights

Washington, April 17.—The department of justice has decided to institute proceedings to compel the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway company to furnish accommodation to negro passengers paying first-class fare equal in all respects to those furnished to white passengers.

Paid the Death Penalty

Raleigh, April 17.—Sam Murchison, a negro, was hanged in Fayetteville for the murder of Chief of Police Benton of that city on Feb. 23 last. It was exactly a year and a day since Sam Walker, also a negro, was hanged for the murder of Benton's predecessor.

Family of Seven Missing

Forman, N. D., April 17.—Louis Orian, wife and five children, whose farm buildings were destroyed by a prairie fire, are missing and are believed to have perished in the flames. The fire burned over several square miles.

HAD SECRET SCHEME

Charge Against Bankers Who Opposed Aldrich Bill

ARE FAVORING IT PRIVATELY

Crozier Says Measu.. Is a Gambling Game From Start to Finish--Panic Brought on Deliberately by Wall Street--Can Produce Witnesses

Washington, April 17.—In picturesque language, at times violently denunciatory, Alfred O. Crozier of Wilmington, Del., told the house committee on banking and currency that he had unearthed a secret scheme for a compromise on the Aldrich currency bill. He intimated plainly that the members of the currency commission and the American Bankers' association did not act fairly with the banking and currency committee in unanimously opposing the Aldrich bill.

While opposing the bill "on principle," he said, "the members of that commission objected to it because the emergency currency was to bear 6 percent interest and are ready to support it now if the interest is reduced to 3 percent.

"Last evening our distinguished banking friends held a conference," he said. "Today they are having another, with the wicked promoters of the wicked Aldrich and Vreeland bills. What for? They are agreeing on a compromise. On what basis? Just a simple little amendment reducing the tax to 3 percent and some other minor changes.

"If this committee had not honored me with this opportunity to speak at this postscript to the public hearing," said Crozier, "and if one of the distinguished bankers who addressed you yesterday had not mistaken me last evening for one of their fraternity and unreservedly told me the whole program, the trick would have been turned quickly and suddenly. The business interests of the country might never have known that they had been sold out by their banking partners and even this committee might not in time have become aware that the great men who appeared here against the bill openly were in fact favoring it privately.

"The Aldrich bill," Crozier declared, "is a gambling game from start to finish, brought here by gamblers and promoted by gamblers for gambling purposes."

He asserted stoutly that he knew the late financial stringency was brought on deliberately by Wall street men. "I was told in Wall street that such a measure as the Aldrich bill would be brought before this congress and that a panic would precede it."

Mr. Prince suggested that this charge was a very serious one, and ought not to be made on opinion, but on actual facts. Crozier replied that if a commission was appointed he would furnish a list of witnesses to the counsel by whom this charge could be proved.

As an evidence of the conspiracy to bring on a panic Crozier said a prominent financier told the president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company that it was to be brought on before the meeting of congress and on that information, he said, the railroad borrowed $30,000,000. Urged to tell who the financier predicting a panic was, Crozier said he did not like to give his name at this time, but would give it to the counsel of any commission congress might appoint to investigate the causes of the recent financial crisis. He predicted that when the panic was finally investigated it would be seen that there had been a concentration of banking capital in New York.

In concluding his remarks, Crozier said: "It is impossible to understand any reason for thus forcing this universally obnoxious legislation through congress unless some persons high in the council of our party have made some secret pledge to the masters of Wall street to put this legislation through and give its dangerous powers to the special interests in exchange for the support of the malefactors in the coming campaign.

"If this is what has been done and it is persisted in to the extent of fastening this dangerous legislation upon the country, our party will deserve the defeat which that course will bring upon it. Every patriotic citizen will hope that no such unholy and discreditable bargain has been made and that in the final test the members of the majority in congress will listen to the all but universal demand of the people of the entire United States and will defeat both the Aldrich and the Vreeland bills overwhelmingly."

Chairman Fowler then announced that hearings on the Aldrich bill were closed.

Many Victims of Snowslide

Calgary, Alberta, April 17.—A snowslide on the Canadian Pacific railroad occurred in the Cascade mountains, sweeping away two boarding cars filled with Japanese laborers and carrying them down the mountain side. At least forty Japanese were in the cars. Only five bodies have been recovered.

Minnesota Delegates For Taft

Minneapolis, April 17.—The Minnesota Republican state convention elected four delegates-at-large to the national convention at Chicago and instructed them to vote for the nomination of Mr. Taft until he is "selected by the convention."

Prince's Tr.. ..es Accumulate

Paris, April 7.—Mlle. Kemper has laid formal complaint against Prince Victor of Thurn and Taxis, whom she alleges obtained $120,000 from her to facilitate his marriage first with a princess of the house of Bourbon and, that failing, with an American heiress. Prince Victor recently lost a suit in London in which he had asked an injunction preventing Miss Josephine Moffitt, an American, from referring to herself as the Princess of Thurn and Taxis or asserting that she had been married to him secretly in the United States.

State Constabulary Called Upon

Chester, Pa., April 17.—Riot and bloodshed marked the street car strike here when the Chester Traction company attempted to operate its care with imported strikebreakers. The strikers and their sympathizers stormed the trolley car that was started out of the barns and in the melee two railway men were shot, but not fatally. Several other traction employes were also cut and bruised. The local police were unable to cope with the situation and Governor Stuart sent the state constabulary to take chargge of the situation.

Collision of Ocean Liners

New York, April 17.—Two ocean liners, the Monterey, bound for Havana, and the Danish steamer United States, bound for Copenhagen, collided in the main ship channel in lower New York bay. Both were damaged, but no lives were lost. The Monterey had her stern damaged and several of her bow plates were loosened. The United States had a large hole stove in the hull and it was deemed wise to run the vessel aground on a mud bank on the channel's edge. Responsibility for the collision has not yet been placed.

Disappeared With Children

Petersburg, Ind., April 17.—John W. Stillwell, a former bank president and recently one of the heaviest property holders in Pike county, has disappeared. Several days ago he began converting his property into cash and last night went to the rooms of his two eldest children by a former marriage. The three are gone. Stillwell paid all his debts before leaving.

Outsider Wins Rose Stakes

Aqueduct, N. Y., April 17.—Trance, neglected in the betting at 15 to 1, easily won the Rose stakes, four furlongs, at Aqueduct, and in doing so equalled the track record of 46 2-5. Trance went to the front soon after the start and, steadily increasing her advantage to the end, won easily by six lengths. Personal was second, with the favorite, Wild Pigeon, third.

Alleged Smuggling of Aliens

Port Huron, Mich., April 17.—The Point Edward ferryboat was seized on the American side here and Captain Glass was lodged in jail on the charge of illegally importing Hungarians, Poles, Germans and other foreigners into the United States. The boat is tied up by direction of the United States immigration officials.

French and Arabs In Battle

Ain-Sefra, Algeria, April 17.—A French column has been heavily engaged with the Arabs west of this place. The booming of cannon was heard throughout yesterday, but no details of the engagement have been learned.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Henry E. Warren, aged 23, committed suicide by hanging in the cellar of his home at Boston. He had been out of work for three months and is believed to have been despondent.

After a protracted session at New York of the leading pig iron interests of the country, it was announced that the present prices of foundry iron will not be changed.

Property amounting in value to more than $2000 has been stolen from summer camps and cottages in different summer settlements on Penobscot bay, Me.

YOU COULD See This CITY GROW

If Your Dollar
Circulated in Quincy.

Why Do Country Boys Flock to Big Cities?

Most small towns are short of young men. As a rule there are plenty of agreeable girls who would not object to matrimony; there are plenty of old people and enough babies to go around. But the boy—oh, where is he?

The boy, the young man, has gone to the city, where he imagines there are opportunities. To him the old home town is dull and stupid. He sees no future for himself there. Both for social and financial considerations he rushes off to the great city. Very frequently he finds that he is lonesomer there than at home—nearly always so; and even more frequently he finds that riches do not grow on ten story walls.

BUT STILL HE GOES TO THE CITY.

In going there the boy simply follows his daddy's dollars. For years his daddy and his mother and his big sister and his Aunt Mary Ann have been mailing their money to the big city for Mail Order bargains.

Result: Home merchants don't thrive, grass grows in the streets, no jobs are to be had, no opening for a new business, and the young man goes to the city because it is a place where people have traded at home and built up their own community and provided opportunities for outsiders as well as for themselves.

IF YOU WANT TO KEEP YOUR BOY AT HOME BUILD UP YOUR TOWN SO THAT HE CAN BUILD UP HIS CAREER AMONG HIS HOME FOLKS.

Mayor Shea Gives Conference

A large delegation from the No-License League held a conference with Mayor Shea Thursday night, on the granting of permits to expressmen. At the start the committee told the Mayor if he would tell them whether or not he intended to veto those granted by the City Council last week it would simplify matters.

The Mayor informed the committee that he was not ready to define his line of policy at the present time, as it should first go to the City Council.

The committee then entered into a general discussion of the granting of permits.

The question of the granting of these permits is one that is receiving much attention. In addition to the scores of persons who personally see the Mayor in favor or against the parties to whom permits have been granted by the City Council he is deluged with letters on the subject. Some of these came from individuals while others are in the form of resolutions from different societies.

The Mayor has until Monday night to approve or veto the order.

Methodist Club Against Permits

The Methodist Club of Wollaston held an enthusiastic meeting Thursday evening in the church vestry with a good attendance. The music was rendered by the Monatiquot Male Quartette and was well received. J. Barry Frauenfelder sang in a pleasing manner a baritone solo.

The meeting resolved itself into an old fashioned town meeting with Mr. George Taylor as moderator. Several of the members presented petitions of some moment and before the meeting adjourned a movable sidewalk from Prospect street to the Wollaston Yacht Club was established, also that Bensdorf's cocoa should be used exclusively at the almshouse.

The meeting adopted unanimously the following resolutions in regard to express permits:

Whereas, the City Council already has voted eleven permits to transport liquors into the City of Quincy, and we understand that at least thirteen more applications have been made to the Council for that privilege, and

Whereas, the sentiment of this city, and especially Ward Five, is against the licensed saloon; and as permits to bring intoxicating liquor into the City is a privilege which if given should be few in number, and given only to responsible trustworthy expressmen regularly engaged in the carrying business, be it

RESOLVED, That we, the members of the Methodist Club of Wollaston, condema the action of the Licensing Committee and the Council in passing eleven permits indiscriminately without sufficient investigation, and we do hereby petition the Honorable Mayor to veto the entire number, and it is further

RESOLVED, that while we are in favor of granting no permits whatsoever, if permits are granted, we are of the opinion, that they should be limited to an exceeding ten in number.

GAS RECEIPTS.

According to the report for the month of March, the Citizens Gas Company is not yet on a paying basis, the deficit being $765, against $294 in March last year. For the nine months ending March 31, the deficit was $5,987 compared with $4,264 for the same months a year ago. It will not be many months, however, before there are net earnings, for most of the streets of the city are now piped.

Killed While Walking on Railroad

John Finn, aged 34 years, of Centerville, Brockton, was killed and Timothy Leary, aged 28 years, also of Brockton, received a bad scalp wound by being struck by a train 200 feet south of Capen's bridge in Braintree at 6 o'clock this morning.

According to the story told by Leary, the two went to Boston on Wednesday and took the 11.13 P. M. train for home. Instead of going through to Brockton they got off at Braintree and remained there all night.

This morning they decided that instead of going home they would return to Boston and they started to walk along the tracks. They were on the inward rail and saw the 6.06 train from Braintree approaching. They stepped one side to let the train pass but misjudged the distance and were nearer the rail than they supposed.

Both men were struck, Finn being drawn about so that he fell beneath the cars which passed over him, cutting him in two. Leary was thrown one side receiving a bad scalp wound. The train was stopped and both men taken back to the depot where Leary's wounds were dressed, and he was later taken home by relatives. Leary was unmarried and lived at home. Finn leaves a widow with whom he did not live however.

Opening of the Base Ball Season

The base ball season opens today in Quincy, the High School nine having as opponents the Winthrop High team at Merrymount park.

To morrow at the park, Makaria Fraternity vs Quincy Stars.

The Bigelows open their base ball season on the afternoon of Patriots' day, April 20, at the Ward Two playgrounds, and will have as opponents the strong Hurons of Roxbury. The fans will see some new faces in the Bigelow baseball team this season. The local team will put some good players on the field in their opening game and a real snappy contest is looked for.

The Glendale A. A. played the New England Stars on Thursday and beat them 9 to 0. The Glendale A. A. manager is Henry Peterson and the captain Carl Ahlstrom.

The Samoset Baseball team of South Quincy will play their first game of the season on Patriots day when they will meet the Quincy Grays of South Quincy.

The Wollaston Heights team defeated the Bright Star in a closely contested game on Thursday. The score was 24 to 25. The battery for the Bright Stars was George Jennings pitcher and Harold LaCroix catcher.

Heavy coats were not uncomfortable at any time Thursday.

The City Council Committee on Public Buildings will meet tonight.

The holes on Washington street near the corner of Mill street are being filled up with gravel.

The W. C. T. U. will hold a special meeting in Protection hall Saturday directly after the Loyal Legion session which begins at 2.30. All are most cordially invited to be present to enjoy the program. The next regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held the 21st in Johnson building at 3 P. M.. All members are invited to be present.

Presentation to Past Master

A largely attended social was held Thursday evening by Quincy lodge of Orangemen at Wilson hall. It was in honor of Anrew Stewart, in appreciation of the good work he has done for the lodge. Mr. Stewart was the first master of the lodge, and held the office continuously up to this year. Under his reign the lodge has grown rapidly, and is now in a most prosperous condition.

During the first part of the evening there was an entertainment consisting of vocal and instrumental music, readings, etc. The crowning feature, however, was the presentation of a handsome past masters' jewel to Mr. Stewart, as a token of the appreciation of the lodge for his good work. The presentation was a surprise in a way, and it was a few minutes before Mr. Stewart could collect himself and respond. He assured the lodge that while not now in office he still retained the same interest in it, and would always be ready and willing to do all in his power for its welfare.

Following the entertainment refreshments were served and there was a social hour with dancing.

The W. C. T. U. Also Protest

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Kindly grant us space in your valuable paper in which to record our protest against the indiscriminate granting of express permits to bring intoxicating liquors into our city.

His Honor, the Mayor, in his inaugural address, used these words in speaking to the members of the City Council: "I trust you will exercise great and discriminating care in the matter of granting licenses to express concerns to transport intoxicating liquors into Quincy."

It would seem from the action of the majority of the City Council at its last meeting, that they failed to heed the advice of the Mayor, as all permits that were before the Council were granted, good, bad and indifferent, without any discrimination.

We very much deplore the conditions now existing whereby more intoxicating liquor than formerly is brought into our city, some of the permits granted being for nothing more or less than a saloon on wheels, and this in spite of the strong No-License sentiment as expressed at our last city election.

We trust the Mayor will use his power of veto, and his influence as well, in order that the express permits may be kept down to a reasonable number, and that none be given to any person who intends to do only a liquor business with a saloon on wheels. We hardly see how the Mayor can do otherwise, in view of his strong stand for temperance before the election, and his advice to the City Council.

Respectfully yours,
Quincy Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Engine Derailed.

The engine of the 11 o'clock South Shore train jumped the rail just north of Braintree depot last night, splitting the rail. The engine was moving slowly at the time and no further damage was done. Both tracks were blocked, however, and it required the services of the wrecker to clear the rails. All late trains were more or less delayed by the accident.

INTERESTING LECTURE

On Physical And Moral Training For the Child

Miss Carret, director of physical training of the Milton schools and director of the Cunningham gymnasium, spoke at an extra meeting of the Unity Club on Wednesday night, April 15, on the subject of "Physical and Moral Training for the Child." Miss Carret spoke of the benefit of medical inspection in the schools. The defects commonly noticed among school children are poor sight and hearing, adnoid obstructions and catarrhal difficulty. Both the latter difficulties are the frequent cause of deafness. After the operation for adnoids, children show a marked improvement in general health, alertness and ability to comprehend. Miss Carret recommended the nasal douche, and hot water gargles far catarrhal affections, simply hot water with a good antiseptic; sometimes merely salt in the water will help, but is not such a deterrent factor as a good antiseptic.

Defective vision is frequently the cause of poor health, nausea, inattention, nervousness and general bodily discomfort. Such a defect should receive attention as soon as noticed, and a regular oculist consulted in preference to an optician. The Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary was recommended, also the Homeopathic Hospital, which is not so crowded and where individual cases receive more attention.

The subject of bodily deformities, such as round shoulders, common among school children, was mentioned. The need of treatment before this deformity became fixed was advised. It does no good to tell the child to "straighten up," after a certain stage in the deformity has been reached. It is impossible for the child then to correct the defect alone and he should have regular treatment at a hospital taking exercises with machines. For the early stages carefully selected gymnastic exercises is one of the best means of overcoming the difficulty.

Any good physician can give a few corrective exercises for round shoulders, which, if practised faithfully every morning will give satisfactory results. The causes inducing round shoulders were given as follows: 1. Continued sitting or standing in a faulty attitude at home or at school. 2. Standing or sitting on one foot, allowing the hand to hang; often in defective vision the child sits and reads with the head bowed over a book. 3. Carrying small brother or sisters continually, or lifting heavy weights of any kind, such as scuttles of coal, or overwork of any kind. 4. Rapid growth, severe illness, ill fitting school furniture, poor training at home, a lack of nourishing food, clothing not properly adjusted, etc.

Miss Carret contradicted the popular idea that all clothing for children should hang from the shoulders, insisting that the clothing of children should be so adjusted that there is very little downard pull on the shoulders, for they are easily pulled out of shape. Clothing should be fastened to a waist, and the garters worn loose. Suspenders were said to be extremely injudicious for boys, and the belt worn not too tight, recommended. Growing maturing girls should wear loose unboned underwaists, and have a full blouse with loose sleeves that they may be able to stretch their arms and backs and increase their lung power to its fullest capacity.

The need of the recess in school life was insisted on. All children should have a morning recess of fifteen minutes of free play, if possible in the open air, in the forenoon. They need this rest to overcome the strain and fatigue of school life. There should also be an afternoon recess for primary children, and a basement recess and gymnastics with open windows, for at least three minutes for the older children in the afternoon. A frequent evil in school rooms is vitiated air. The windows cannot be opened in cold weather with the children sitting quietly without danger of chilling them too suddenly. For that reason when the windows are opened, the children should stand and take some simple but lively exercises, or march about the room until the air is changed.

More home training in morals is a much felt need among children. Miss Carret spoke courageously of her own experiences in meeting children who were too ignorant to protect themselves from evil companions and habits. Every child should be warned at home and told enough of the secrets of life that he should have no unhealthy curiosity but could protect himself from unwise or vulgar informers on these sacred subjects. Keep in touch with your child and as soon as these questions arise, even if they arise when he is in the primary grades, see that he has the right and true view of the matter, and encourage him to come to the parent with his problems, not avoiding the subject with him and putting him off on strangers for his information.

Miss Carret had a very pleasing personality, and spoke from a full experience, and very much to the point To Mrs. Blaikie, of Wollaston the Club is indepted for some charming songs which were sung with spirit and feeling.

Would Reduce Express Permits

Editor of the Quincy Daily Ledger:

The action of the City Council in regard to express permits, is very hard for me to understand. Year after year the voters of Quincy have said very emphatically that liquor is not wanted in our city. But the Council, part of it, any way, ignore the vote of the people, and seem willing to grant permits to any one who cares to ask for it. What is the difference between a saloon on the corner, and one or two dozen wagons running all over Quincy with liquor?

If this must be, I would be in favor of granting the smallest number of permits possible, and of making the conditions of the permit such as that they could the more easily be watched by our Police department. It is much easier to take care of five or six permits than twenty-four or thirty. If impossible to keep liquor out of Quincy make it as hard as can be to get it in. Think if those men who are so anxious to get permits, found the conditions of getting them and keeping them very difficult, they would find the business unprofitable, and perhaps try some more respectable calling.

I hope those Councilmen who voted so readily for permits at their last meeting will look back at the No-License vote of Quincy for the past tweny years, and remember that they are sent to act as the servants of the people, and not anything else.

As I hear the people talking over this matter, one thing is certain, they are indignant over the indiscriminate granting of permits.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

Lieut. Caleb West of the Mass. Coast Artillery who has been in charge of a detachment doing duty at the Chelsea fire returned Thursday to his duties in Y department.

The four-masted schooner Henry L. Peckham has arrived with a cargo of coal for use on the trials of the U. S. S. Salem (scout cruiser) and is now discharging.

Coal barge Harrisburg has also arrived and is discharging a cargo of coal.

Three nickle steel crank-shafts are being forged and rough machined for the Goulds Manufacturing Co.

Representative Hobson's amendment to the naval appropriation bill, providing for four battleships instead of two, as reported by the Naval committee, was defeated by the House. In the course of the debate on the battleship proposition, President Roosevelt's known eagerness for four new sea-fighters was strenuously urged by Representatives Hobson and Longworth.

The Temps, a Paris (France) journal express enthusiastic approval of President Roosevelt's reasoning in favor of providing additional battleships for the American navy, and says:—"If America wishes to avoid war with Japan she must have a fleet permamently in the Pacific. The American people are at present confused as to the proper course to pursue, but President Roosevelt's naval policy suggests a luminous and wise pathway which the country sooner or later will follow."

The Boston bark Harrison G. Johnson, which was recently sold by N. W. Rice & Co., of Boston is reported to have gone ashore on Cumberland Island, not far from Brunswick, Ga. She was bound into Brunswick from Havana.

The new battleship Idaho has sailed from the League Island navy yard for Hampton Roads, from which point the warship will proceed to Panama.

Sir Thomas Lipton's new Shamrock will, it is expected, be launched at Fairlie, on the Clyde, Saturday. She has been built according to the international rules for the 23-metre class to compete with such boats as the White Heather and Brymhilde.

Rear Admiral Evans' gradual improvement continues. While he is still very weak, his digestion has improved so much that he is eating more heartily and is slowly gaining strength.

A London dispatch of Thursday to the Transcript says: The Shipbuilding Employers' Federation announced today that unless the ship workmen on the northeast coast who went on strike in January resume work by April 25 all the shipbuilding yards in the country will be closed. Such a lockout would involve fully a quarter of a million people. The men on the Tyne have twice voted against accepting the settlement arranged by their leaders with the employers. Seven to ten thousand men are involved.

The Naval bill of $105,000 as passed on Thursday by the House of Congress authorizes eight submarines but frees the secretary of the navy of the limitation to contract only for boats of the Holland type. Representative Roberts of Massachusetts waged a losing battle as the champion of the Holland type of vessel by the close margin of 108 to 104 an amendment was adopted striking from the bill the language which gave the Holland company a practical monopoly in furnishing submarines to the government. Mr. Roberts exhausted every parliamentary manoeuvre to retain in the bill the committee provision. He denounced the rival submarine—the Lake type—as "defective and dangerous," and said that although the Lake boat had been shown to be the inferior of the Holland in competitive tests, the losing party had come whining to Congress about favoritism, although they had announced that of given just one chance to compete with the Holland boat they would accept the decision as final.

Water a Problem.

The Sewer department is up against a serious proposition in the building of a section of the main sewer on Farrington street. The trench had not been dug to a very great depth before the water began to come in so fast that work had to be stopped until a steam pump was set up. Since then the pump has been working night and day. Up to the present time the water has flowed in faster than the pump could take it out. It looks now as though another pump would have to be set at work before any work could be done laying the pipe, and it is possible that even two pumps will not be sufficient.

DEATH LIST OF NINE

Searchers Find More Bodies In Ruins of Chelsea Fire

IMPOSTERS HINDER RELIEF

Work Is Reorganized, So That Those Really In Need of Aid Will Receive It After Due Personal Investigation by Proper Committees

Boston, April 17.—Three more bodies were recovered late yesterday from the ruins of the fire in Chelsea, making the total number of bodies now recovered nine. In addition, two persons have died of causes incident to the fire.

The bodies recovered yesterday were those of Mrs. Minnie I. Fenwick, wife of Dr. J. B. Fenwick; Mrs. Walter Barnes, a niece of Mrs. Fenwick, of Newark, N. J., and Miss Vinie Boyer of Chelsea, who was a maid in the employ of the Fenwick family.

The Fenwick family lived on Chestnut street, next to the St. Stanislaus Polish Catholic church, which was burned. The family has been prominent in local affairs for many years, Mrs. Fenwick being for some years a member of the Chelsea school board. As Dr. Fenwick could learn nothing of his wife's whereabouts after the fire or of her niece, who was visiting them, and maid, it was felt to be almost certain that the three had perished in the fire.

Ever since Monday the ruins in the vicinity of the home have been worked over, but with no result until late yesterday. That the three had evidently made a desperate attempt to escape the fire was shown by the discovery of their bodies somewhat removed from the house at the back, where they had evidently fled in an endeavor to escape the conflagration. The bodies of all three were almost entirely consumed and covered deep with bricks, but a gold watch of Mrs. Fenwick's, with the rims of a pair of gold spectacles and other non-inflammable articles carried by the three women, proved sufficient to establish their identity beyond question.

Misuse of relief by persons fraudulently obtaining places in the relief lines at relief headquarters was made the basis for a complete reorganization of methods followed by the general committee. The new method practically cut off all supplies except where personal investigation or reliable endorsement can assure the distributors that aid is really needed.

The reason for this was the discovery that many people who never lived in Chelsea, imposters from various quarters, were intruding themselves in the crowd of real sufferers in and around the Chelsea high school building, where clothing, supplies and quantities of bedding and mattresses were being distributed, and were taking what they had given them in good faith to Boston, where they were selling it for what it would bring.

Under the new arrangement the city of Chelsea is divided into five districts, with a relief station for each district. People needing aid of any sort are to apply for it only at the station nearest the building in which they are now quartered. No application for anything other than second-hand clothing will be satisfied at the stations, however; but the applicants will be visited at the addresses which they leave at the stations, and such relief as is found to be needed will be sent to them immediately following the visitation.

Refugees who have been quartered since the fire in Boston and its suburbs, outside of Chelsea, will be required to make their applications for relief to district stations now being established. Each application, as in Chelsea, must be made to the station nearest the present quarters of the applicant. Similar stations for the cities and towns farther distant will be arranged for as soon as possible.

In all cases the visitation preliminary to giving supplies or money will be made immediately by committee members having the use of automobiles, and the necessary contributions will be sent out from headquarters in a similarly expeditious manner.

Four companies of militia remain on duty to guard property, but visitors are allowed access to all the streets in the burned area, with a result that thousands come from all directions to view the ruins.

The relief fund has reached well toward $150,000 and the work of the various relief committees progresses rapidly and efficiently.

That the city will have the full support of the legislature in securing funds with which to rebuild the municipal buildings was shown by the favorable report of the committee on rules to allow the city to borrow $1,000,000 for the reconstruction of municipal buildings.

Got Bottle of "Grape Juice"

New York, April 17.—Selig Silverstein, the Union square bomb thrower, who has been a marvel to the physicians on account of the wonderful vitality he has displayed since he was brought into Bellevue hospital in what was supposed to be a dying condition, created some excitement when he tried to hide a small bottle of liquid, which his sister brought in to him. The sister declared, it is said, that the bottle contained nothing but grape juice. The bottle was turned over to a chemist for analysis.

HAVE REVOLUTIONIZED OLD BANKING METHODS.

Work of Two Men In New Field of Finance Has Shaken Up the Old Style Bankers.

That two men in two years' time could introduce and make successful innovations in finance that amount to a revolution is a feat sufficiently remarkable to make the personality of these men of more than ordinary interest. Neither of them is a banker by profession. Perhaps that is one reason why they have worked along new lines instead of following the beaten trails of the banking business.

When F. W. Shumaker and G. H. Middlebrook came to New York a little over two years ago and entered the business of financing industrial corporations, there was only one recognized method of floating such undertakings. The promoters went to one of the old line banking houses and paid a high commission for their capital, if they got it at all. Mr. Middlebrook and Mr. Shumaker decided that there was a better way.

Their way was to reach the small investor, and their methods have been so successful that their firm, the Sterling Debenture corporation, now has one of the largest banking houses in New York, with several hundred employees and a "following" of thousands. The new telegraph company, the Telepost, with an authorized capital of $18,000,000; the Oxford Linen mills, with a capital of $2,500,000; the Telegraphone, the O'Brien Electric Light and other large undertakings are among those financed by this concern.

Mr. Middlebrook, president of the corporation, belongs to the fourth generation of his family, who have lived in Ballston Spa, N. Y., since 1770. He was born there in 1865, graduated from the Albany Business college and took the classical preparatory course in the Beloit (Wis.) academy. From 1888 up to the time he went into the banking business with Mr. Shumaker Mr. Middlebrook was engaged in various large publishing enterprises, in which he was associated with Belford, Middlebrook & Co., John D. Morris & Co. and Doubleday, Page & Co. This is not the ordinary training for a banking career, but it seems to be a very desirable one.

Mr. Shumaker, the secretary and treasurer of the Sterling concern, was born forty-one years ago near Red Wing, Minn. A few years' experience in country newspaper work was followed by opportunities for education, and in 1887 he completed the Oak Park (Ill.) high school course and in 1892 received his degree from Beloit college. From that time until 1896 Mr. Shumaker was engaged in publishing, building up a business that had branch offices in ten cities. These interests he sold to the Werner company of Chicago in order that he might be free to take the position of eastern manager for the sale of the Century Dictionary. In 1888 he made a tour of Africa, India, Ceylon and Australia for the London Times and after completing this trip returned to the United States and was connected with the publishing houses of John D. Morris of Philadelphia and Doubleday, Page & Co. of New York.

F. W. SHUMAKER.

Both are still young men, but they have gone far enough to teach old line bankers that capital can be found outside of Wall street for legitimate undertakings. Any number of brokerage houses that up to a few months ago refused anything less than 100 share orders are now advertising that they will accept commissions for the purchase of anything from one share of stock upward. This is the strongest kind of evidence that the originators of the Sterling method of financing knew what they were doing when they began in 1906 to serve exclusively the investor whose capital is limited to a few hundred or a few thousand dollars and who is not looking for speculation, but for safe investment.

A Good Use of a Flask.

[Original.]

Many years ago, when I was a young man, I had occasion to move my office belongings and hired a negro called Bill for the purpose. After the moving I missed a new sixty dollar overcoat. I was sure Bill had taken it and had him arrested, but since there was no evidence against him he was discharged.

My new office was on the second floor, apart from other offices. One afternoon when I was sitting there alone at work on my books Bill opened the door and came in. He had not been paid for his services and asked for the money. I gave it to him and said:

"Bill, perhaps you know who stole my overcoat. Try to find it and bring it to me. If you do, I'll pay you well for your trouble. If not, I'll send the man who stole it to state prison yet."

"I'll try," he said as he pocketed the money I paid him and went away.

I had advertised my loss, and the next day a woman and a little girl came into my office with the missing coat. The woman said that a negro had sold it to her for $3 and that she would know him if she should see him again. I had Bill rearrested. She identified him, and he was tried and sent to state prison for two years.

After it was all over I learned that Bill was a very bad man. He had been a slave, and his former master had said that he was the only negro he had owned that he was afraid of. That Bill had ever been a criminal before stealing my coat I did not learn. Upon getting this information I remembered with some feeling his visit to me when I was alone in my office. I am a small man; he was a large and powerful one. Indeed, I had been completely at his mercy. It occurred to me that after he had served his term he might make me another visit for the purpose of taking his revenge for an enforced residence in prison.

I was sufficiently impressed with this to note the time of expiration of Bill's term, so that when he was released I might be prepared for him, but I didn't count on time reduced for good behavior. One evenng just before I was ready to shut up my office and go home the door opened and in walked Bill. He assumed the same cool, impudent manner as before. I sat looking at him from my desk.

"You don't remember me, do you, boss?" he said.

"Yes; I remember you very well. You're the man who stole my overcoat."

"And the man you sent to state prison."

"Yes. I remember that too."

He was looking about him, glancing out of the window, taking in the situation. I knew he had come to kill me and was only considering the question of my surroundings with a view to doing the job without its being known who was the murderer. Hearing a step in the hall without, he delayed. All this I could read in his eyes as plainly as if it had been written in capitals on the desk before me. The step was lost in the distance, and Bill's manner indicated that he considered an obstacle removed. Still, he must have fully appreciated the many possible dangers of being tracked, if not caught in the act. He kept his eyes and ears open for anything without. There was a coal stove in the center of the office, near where he stood, and a heavy iron poker. I saw him take in the poker, and I knew by his expression that he had chosen it for a weapon. It would make no noise. I also inferred by this that he was probably unarmed. He doubtless had no money with which to buy a weapon. A door slammed on the floor above, and there was a step on the stairs. Some one was coming down. Bill's eye changed in a twinkling.

"I'm gwine to try 'n' do better, boss," he said.

"So I would advise you."

"Couldn't you help me a leetle?"

Here was a ray of hope. Not from the passing person—I dared not risk calling. In the right hand drawer of my desk I remembered having placed a brown glass flask shaped like a revolver and commonly called a pocket pistol. Bill had given me an excuse to open the drawer.

"I might give you a few dollars," I said, "to keep you till you can get a job. I keep stamps and petty cash in this drawer. You needn't come inside the rail. I can hand it to you."

The person coming downstairs had gone out into the street, and all was still. Watching Bill's eye, I saw that my time had come. Grasping the poker, he started for the gate in the rail. I opened the drawer, seized the pocket pistol, brought it to bear on him and cried fiercely:

"Hands up!"

His hands went over his head as if worked by a spring. Fearing that if I delayed he would discover my trick, I cried:

"Face the door!"

Again I gave the third order:

"Move forward!"

I marched Bill out and down the street, hoping to meet a policeman, but there were only about a dozen policemen in the town, and I was obliged to see my prisoner to the police station, where he was locked up.

I found witnesses to prove that Bill had told them at the time of his conviction that when he got out of prison he would kill me. With my own statement, backed by this testimony, I was enabled to put him where he wouldn't trouble me for a number of years longer. I have never since seen or heard of him.

CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace Of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

BIRTHPLACES OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Admission charged.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural momuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. The funeral of John Quincy Adams was held in this church. Beneath the entrance is the Adams tomb, reached by stairways from the vestibule. Near the tomb is the box in Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of the old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponsit river.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams, also the old town hearse. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock cemetery across the street from First church contains many old stones. Among the old graves are those of Henry Adams founder of the Adams family who died Oct. 5, 1646; Rev. William Thompson, 1st pastor over the Braintree church who died Dec. 10, 1666; Rev. Henry Flint who died Oct. 11, 1668; Rev. John Hancock father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744 and many other notable people.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

MILLER'S PLAYERS.

Actor-Manager Has Formed a Stock Company For New York.

ITS LEADING MEMBERS.

The Opening Production of "The Servant In the House"—Story of the Play by Charles R. Kennedy—Grace George's Retirement.

[From Our New York Dramatic Correspondent.]

Henry Miller has formed a new organization of players along lines similar to those that have been more or less prominent in the past, like Sydney Rosenfeld's "Century Players" and Mrs. Fiske's Manhattan theater company.

Mr. Miller's object is to produce a series of plays in which these players will appear, thus forming a sort of stock company.

The Henry Miller Associate Players is the title of the organization, and it recently made its initial bow to the public in "The Servant In the House" at the Savoy theater. The author of the play is Charles Rann Kennedy.

The members of Mr. Miller's company are Edith Wynne Matthison, Walter Hampden, Tyrone Power, Charles Dalton, Arthur Lewis, Galway Herbert and Mabel Moore.

The central figures of the play are three brothers who were separated in youth, one becoming a vicar in an English village, one a bishop in India and the other an outcast. A daughter is born to the outcast and is adopted by the vicar. At the beginning of the play the brothers come together again at the vicarage, the bishop unrecognized by the other two.

When they meet there are hatred in the heart of the outcast, remorse in that of the vicar, who feels himself responsible for his brother's condition, and beneficence in that of the bishop.

Also on the vicar's soul is the realization that his life work has been a failure largely because of his own failure as a man through his hatred of his brother.

His wife is the sister of the bishop of Lancashire, a worldly prelate who counts religion in pounds and pence. When the play begins discord reigns; every clash of personality is a jangle. Under the dominant guiding force of the bishop from India harmony is gradually restored, and brotherly love and the larger creed of human brotherhood are triumphant.

HENRY MILLER.

Grace George, now starring in "Divorcons" and known in private life as Mrs. William A. Brady, expressed herself recently at Fresno, Cal., as intending to retire from the stage. She said that she would give it up shortly.

Before leaving Fresno Miss George left a commission with the Bartons, proprietors of the local playhouse, to invest in Fresno vineyard property, expressing her intention of building a country home there.

Henry W. Savage has engaged Eben W. Backus to play the role of the village constable and act as stage manager of "The College Widow" when it is produced at the Adelphi theater in London on April 20. Mr. Backus stage managed the play during its career in this country.

In "The Regeneration," by Owen Kildare, the hero, Owen Conway, as played by Arnold Daly, recites his own version of the Lord's Prayer after his "Mamie Rose" has given him his first religious instruction. Here is Owen Conway's version:

Our Father which art in heaven—our Father which art in heaven—Lord, does it make an awful lot of difference how I say it if it's on de level? Won't you just listen to de rest I got to tell you? It ain't much at dat. You're wise to all t'ings, and dere's no use tryin' to t'row you any bull con. You know I ain't no snow white lily, but you know I'm strictly on de level in this proposition. I want to be a man—leave de booze alone and work for de grub you're goin' to gi' me, and mebbe some day you'll gi' me a little home like dis. Aw, but I don't want to ask you for anyt'ing yet. I don't want to impose on your good nature. Just gi' me a chance and I'll make good. Honest, I will. Honest, I will. Amen.

KILLED TWO BROTHERS

Young Tardis Sentenced to Seven Years In State Prison

Houlton, Me., April 17.—Guy Tardis of Limestone was sentenced to seven years in state prison for the killing of Stephen and Oscar Downey at Limestone on Sept. 17, 1907, by Judge Cornish in the supreme court.

Tardis is 17 years old, while the Downey boys were 14 and 18 respectively. Tardis was indicted on the charge of manslaughter and when arraigned yesterday afternoon pleaded guilty, on the advice of his counsel.

Schooner Captain Drowned

Rockland, Me., April 17.—Captain Charles E. Rhodes was drowned and his mate, Robert Maker, had a narrow escape from death by the capsizing of schooner Lizzie of Belfast. The two men were the only persons on board the boat. They managed to grasp the mainmast and both clung there, immersed by the icy water. Rhodes, who was 72 years old, was unable to stand the affects of the exposure long and was swept off by a wave and drowned. For two hours longer Maker clung to the mast. He was nearly unconscious when a tug rescued him.

Women's Names Eliminated

Boston, April 17.—Attorney Bridgham of Boston, who filed a libel in the superior court at Salem in behalf of Clara L. Von Herrmann, in which the actress, Julia Marlowe, and Mrs. Maude T. Backus were named as corespondents, has had the libel dismissed. Mrs. Von Herrmann will seek a divorce from her husband on other grounds, which in no way involve Miss Marlowe or Mrs. Backus.

May Have Been Escaped Convict

Middleboro, Mass., April 17.—The state authorities were notified that a negro supposed to be "Jim" Johnson, the insane convict who escaped from the state farm at Bridgewater Tuesday night, was seen on a freight train, which he left at Onset. Johnson was under a sentence of twenty years for burglary and resisting the arresting officer.

Strike Closes Chair Plant

Bennington, Vt., April 17.—Following an announcement of a 10 percent reduction in wages, employes of the Hale Chair company at East Arlington have gone on strike. The plant is shut down, about 125 hands being idle. The chair factory is the only industrial plant of consequence in the village.

Insurance Rebating Charged

Portland, Me., April 17.—Walter D. C. Moore, general agent of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance company for western Maine, was bound over to the grand jury of the superior court after a hearing in the lower court on the charge of rebating an insurance premium. Sureties were furnished.

Veteran of Two Great Wars

Raleigh, April 17.—Rear Admiral George B. Balch, U. S. N., retired, died here last night. He had come to Raleigh from his home in Baltimore for the winter. He was in his 87th year. Death resulted from pneumonia. Balch was the oldest flag officer of the United States navy, a veteran of the Mexican and Civil wars and the last of the coterie of naval officers of which Admiral Farragut, with whom Balch was on intimate terms, was a brilliant ornament.

Young Runaways Caught

New York, April 17.—Clarence and Alfred Sebbins of Worcester, Mass., 12 and 11 years old, respectively, were gathered in late last night by the police while preparing to bunk in a lumber yard. They said that they came here to see the bulls and bears of Wall street and other sights of the big city, having helped themselves to $50 of their father's funds. The parents of the boys were notified and will come for them today.

Calls Leopold a Squanderer

Brussels, April 17.—A feature of the debate on the Congo annexation treaty in the chamber of deputies was the violent attack made on King Leopold by Socialist Deputy Bertrand, who accused the king of squandering millions on palaces and in restaurants which ought to be devoted to the needs of the natives of the Congo Independent state.

Pension Law Works Automatically

Washington, April 17.—Pension Commissioner Warner announces that widows now on the pension roll will not be required to make application for the increase from $8 to $12 a month recently voted by congress. Pension agencies throughout the country will put the law into effect automatically, the first payment of the increase to be made May 4.

Booming Hughes In Kentucky

Louisville, April 17.—The formal opening of the Hughes campaign, which has been quietly gathering way in Kentucky for some time, came last night when Stewart L. Woodford delivered an address here in his interest. The audience was an enthusiastic one. Woodford's points in favor of Hughes apparently found favor.

Missing Steamer Lost Sight Of

Halifax, April 17.—That the disabled steamer Breiz Huel has been carried far out of the track of ocean liners is the impression now prevailing in shipping circles here. Since Monday, when the steamer was sighted in a helpless condition off Sable island, nothing has been heard of her.

Evans Able to Be Out

Paso Robles, Cal., April 17.—For the first time in a week Rear Admiral Evans was given an outing yesterday. He spent some time on the lawn, watching games of croquet and tennis. He seemed to be in good spirits and was improved in appearance.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Good Friday.

A delightful day.

Eight pages tomorrow.

No Daily Ledger next Monday.

The City Council will meet next week on Tuesday.

Alex Shirley and family are settled on South street.

Yards and lawns are being cleaned up, preparatory to Easter.

Porter Barrows is fast recovering from his recent illuess.

Easter concert at the Point church, Sunday evening at 7 o'lock.

The Point men are sharpening up their appetites for next Wednesday evening.

Gilbert G. Lyman of 901 Hancock street, Wollaston, has moved his family to Braintree.

There will be "Something doing" at 6.30 and 7.30 at the Point next Wednesday evening. Better be round to see and enjoy it.

Several boys and girls of the Point are selling tickets for the illustrated lecture "Historic Quincy," given for the benefit of Chelsea.

Miss Mary Harkins of Goffe street has returned from the Quincy Hospital where an operation was perform ed, and is favorably convalescing.

Since Hiram A. Hayden went to Penville, Indiana, about a year ago, he has been interested in the work of the Methodist church. His picture appears in a local paper in a group of "leading citizens and church workers." He continues at the printers trade.

William Northrup will lead the prayer meeting of the Christion Endeavor society of the Park and Downs Congregational church, on Sunday evening. His subject will be "Sunday, our week. ly Easter, and how to observe it."

A quiet gathering of young people occurred Wednesday evening at the Point vestry under the auspices of the C. E. Society. Irving Hayden was pianist; Miss Lowe was reader; and Erastus Osgood was entertainer. About 100 young people were present. Refreshments were served. Emma Hayden was ably assisted by a trio of young ladies and by Joseph Fitton.

Councilman Gilson usually does the illustrating for Mr. Johnson's lecture on "Historic Quincy," but having already been engaged in another city for Monday evening, the doctor wishing to do his part towards the good cause, has secured the services of A. D. Handy the maker of the views, to act for him. Mr. Handy is probably the most expert operator in this section of the country, and we bespeak for our citizens a rare treat.

burned, but this tall building, an easy prey to flames, still stands practically undamaged.

One can now walk or ride through the streets of the burned district, but are not allowed on the sidewalks or among the ruins. Hundreds from Quincy are visiting the scene daily and it is well worth a visit.

At the relief stations the Daily Ledger noticed that the work is being done systematically. It has been found necessary to closely question all applicants to guard against imposters.

QUINCY PEOPLE ANXIOUS.

Several Quincy people have been anxious for the safety and condition of Chelsea friends.

Mrs. Fred Chapman of Federal avenue, South Quincy, would like to hear from Mrs. Lottie Tibbetts and family.

Discountenanced by Engineers Union

Editor Daily Ledger:

I am sorry to see by your paper that some mischievous parties have entered the plant of F. Barnicoat.

Would say that the Engineers' Union knows nothing about any such work. We consider ourselves too honorable a body of men to be connected with any such work as your paper stated was done at Mr. Barnicoat's plant.

If the Engineers had contemplated anything of that kind they could have done so March 31, previous to going out on strike.

Hoping that you will give this article space in your paper, I am, your truly,

A. V. Johnson.

At Large Again

James Johnson, the negro who escaped from the State farm at Bridgewater last week, is the same man who was arrested by Inspector McKay in Quincy in 1903. At that time he went under the name of Sam Scott. He broke into a house at Wollaston and stabbed the occupants of the house. He was sentenced to 20 years under the name of Johnson, but was adjudged insane and sent to Bridgewater.

Y. M. C. A. Bowling League Banquet

Twenty members of the Y. M. C. A. bowling league sat down to a bountiful supper at the Association building Thursday evening. All of the teams were represented and all but six of the men were present.

After an enjoyable social hour about the tables, O. A. Sanburg was introduced as toastmaster. In the absence of R. D. Witherell, chairman of the bowling committee, H. C. Andrews gave the staticial report of the season, announcing the winners, the standing of the individual teams and the high scores.

The team prizes, handsome watch fobs bearing the official emblem of the Y. M. C. A., were awarded to Mr. Sandberg's team. Cups were given for the high string and high average going to Mr. Griffith and Mr. Hermanson, both of Mr. Sandberg's team.

The standing of teams follows:

	Won.	Lost.	Percent.
Team 4	18	9	.666
Team 2	17	10	.629
Team 1	17	10	.629
Team 3	14	13	.515
Team 5	10	17	.370

High string prize, won by Griffiths, score 121; scond, Nicoll, Albert Prescott and Andrwes, each 114.

High average prize, won by Hermanson, with 87 2-3; second, O'Niel, 87 1-27; third, Nicoll 86 25-27.

Two teams 1 and 2 tied for second place, and very close to the winners. The final high averages were only two points apart, giving a very exciting finish.

Physical Director Maxwell was then introduced and presented the prizes with appropriate remarks. Each of the team captains were heard from with brief speeches and stories.

Captain Gordon moved that a vote of thanks be extended to Chairman Wetherall for the very efficient and faithful service in connection with the schedule and records of the games. Mr. Wetherall came in before the party broke up and was given a pleasant ovation.

After leaving the table a pleasant half hour was enjoyed about the piano singing songs.

The prospects for a league with representative teams next fall are good. Every one is enthusiastic about bowling.

Man With Health Corked In Bottle

New York, April 16. The astonishing sale of Cooper's preparations in this city has now reached such immense figures that the medical fraternity at large have become forced into open discussion of the man and his preparations.

The physicians as a whole seem to be divided with regard to the young man's success in New York, some being willing to credit him for what he has accomplished, while others assert that the interest he has aroused is but a passing fad which cannot last, and which will die out as quickly as it has sprung up.

The opinion of these two factions is very well voiced in the statements made recently by two of a number of physicians who were interviewed on the subject.

One of New York's most prominent physicians, when questioned about the matter, said: "I have not been a believer in proprietary medicines heretofore, nor can I say that I believe in them at present. But I must admit that some of the facts recently brought to my notice concerning this man Cooper have gone far toward removing the prejudice I had formed against him when the unheard-of-demand for the preparations first sprang up in this city.

"Numbers of my patients, whom I have treated for chronic liver, kidney and stomach troubles, have met me after taking Cooper's remedies, and have stated positively that he has accomplished wonderful results for them. I notice particularly in cases of stomach trouble that the man has relieved several cases that were of years' standing and proved very obstinate in treatment.

"I am the last man on earth to stand in the way of anything that may prove for the public good simply through professional prejudice, and I am inclined to give Cooper and his preparations credit as deserving to some extent the popular demonstration that has been accorded them in this city."

Another well known physician who was seen, took the opposite view of the "Cooper-mania," as he called it, which now has this city in its grip. He said: "I can only liken the present state of affairs to a certain kind of hallucination. For want of a better name I might call it "Cooper-mania." The people of New York seem to be firm in the belief that this man Cooper has health corked up in a bottle.

"Some of them imagine that he has completely cured them of various ills, judging from their statements. It is beyond me to say why the city has gone crazy over the man. It may be safely put down, I think, to one of the passing fads that so often attack the American public."

In the meantime Cooper meets several thousand people daily, and only smiles when statements of the above character are quoted to him. His charitable work still continues to be very extensive.

QUINCY FUND

For Chelsea Relief Is Growing And is Near The $1000 Mark

One of the handsome trolley fright cars used by the Old Colony street railway in its trolley express business was brought to Quincy last night, and this morning was taken to the siding on Washington street. There it was loaded with the bundles of clothing and articles of furniture that had been collected for the Chelsea sufferers burned out by the fire last Sunday.

City teams took the goods from the store in the Adams building to the car, and there were more than two loads. As soon as the car was loaded it was run direct to Causeway street, Chelsea, where it was unloaded at the police station.

Mayor Shea received word from Chelsea last night that most of the articles of clothing being received were for adults, and that there was great need of children's clothing. Many lose sight of the fact that the children are scarcely supplied with clothing. Now that it is known that children's clothing is needed many doubtless will send some.

It was also made known to the Mayor that more volunteers, both ladies and gentlemen, were needed to assist the relief committee at Chelsea. Under the plan now in force, when application for aid is received, one of the committee is sent to see just what is needed. In this way the committee is not imposed upon, and aid is given where

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

Mr. Charles H. Johnson will give his illustrated lecture on "HISTORIC QNINCY," in Colonial Hall next MONDAY EVENING, APRIL 20, 1908 at 7.30. Net proceeds of same to be given to the Treasurer of the Quincy Committee for the Relief of the Citizens of Chelsea.

Mayor William T. Shea will preside. Mr. Eugene R. Stone will serve as treasurer of the evening.

This is an interesting and instructive lecture, illustrated by 200 special views, said by experts to be among the best in the stereopticon work.

School children are urged to sell as many tickets as possible, and will be suitably rewarded. Call at once on Charles H. Johnson, 1166 Hancock street or Room 3 Adams Building, for tickets.

AN APPEAL FOR CHELSEA.

PEOPLE OF QUINCY

In a time of distress, such as afflicts our neighbor, the City of Chelsea; when thousands have lost their entire possessions—home, furniture, clothing, food ,and in many cases the means of livelihood; when thousands are feeling the depths of despair, and are feeling helpless and forsaken; then is the time for the truly benevolent, those who feel that the Golden Rule is their guide, that real red blood courses in their veins—to go down deep into their pockets and to give of their comparative abundance as much as they can spare.

This is a time when their charity is sure to count, when they can feel that they are surely helping in a worthy cause; and if money cannot be spared or as much of it as they would wish, they can give of those other prime necessities—clothing, bedding, blankets, canned goods, and many other things.

Let all join in the good work, knowing that every little helps and that "Many a little makes a mickle."

Contributions of money can be sent to the City Treasurer at City Hall, or to the Treasurer of this fund, Rupert F. Claflin, at the National Granite Bank, or to Horace F. Spear at the National Mount Wollaston Bank. Other contributions can be sent to Kincaide's store or to store in Adams Building tendered for that purpose; or, on notice by letter or postal card, directed to the City Treasurer at City Hall, will be called for at the homes of contributors.

All contributions will be acknowledged through the Quincy Daily Ledger.

INDIVIDUAL WEALTH

Seems to Be a Requisite of American Ambassadors

HILL CASE AS AN EXAMPLE

Hospitality and Amusements Useful Adjuncts of Diplomatic Life, but Not Recognized Objects--We Should House Our Legations Abroad

Washington, April 18.—In course of an appeal in the house for government legation buildings abroad, Mr. Perkins of New York, by implication, charged that Emperor William's attitude toward David J. Hill as American ambassador to Berlin was entirely due to social causes.

That the ambassador from the United States must be a very rich man, Perkins said, seemed to be accepted in court circles. In the case of Hill, he declared, "no one questioned his capacity, nothing he had ever said or done was distasteful to the country to which he was accredited, but those who find special pleasure in elaborate entertainment and in the splendor of social life supported by multi-millionaires, seem to have regarded as distasteful the prospect of a change in the social regime."

Plain living and high thinking, he maintained, apparently were not popular in all classes. "It is quite evident," said Perkins, "that if the recognized function of American ambassadors is to entertain with excessive liberality, and therein their usefulness is thought to consist, the sooner we are done with ambassadors the better. Hospitality has its charms, and dining and wining is a creditable amusement, but after all it is not for such purposes that we sustain a diplomatic corps. Such things may be useful adjuncts, but certainly they are not the recognized objects of diplomatic life."

If, he said, only millionaires were fit for the duties expected from American ambassadors, then American ambassadors must soon cease to exist. When the United States owned its own buildings, he said, there would be a better chance for the man of moderate means to make ends meet, and less demand for the multi-millionaire to expend his wealth in excessive display.

Mr. Slayden of Texas also touched upon the question of wealth as a qualification for foreign service in urging adequate government maintenance for American diplomats abroad by providing suitable residences and fair salaries. He asserted that unless it was done "we will be virtually saying to the world that the great North American republic, despite its declaration of equality, has set aside certain of its more important offices for the exclusive enjoyment of the rich by making it impossible for the citizen of small means to occupy them." The tendency was growing more and more, he said, to select men of large wealth for these places.

Mr. Slayden was willing to admit that some rich men may be as accomplished in statecraft as Motley, Lowell or Bayard, "but," he said, "those really great men should not have their memories insulted by mention in the same breath with another class who are only distinguished because they give costly dinners or pay extravagant rent for the palaces they occupy while socially exploiting themselves as American officials."

Touching the incident of Ambassador Hill, whom the president chose for the post at Berlin, Slayden said: "Two great governments have just been jolted by the mere replacing of one representative by another. It was rumored, I hope without foundation, that the substitution of a highly trained diplomat of exalted character, but of limited means, for another who may be equally qualified and who is a man of great wealth, did not meet the approval of the sovereign to whose court he was to be sent, just because he was classed as a poor man. The rumors were denied from the court of that sovereign, and our diplomat, it now appears, is persona grata and will be received."

But the fact, Slayden said, that such stories could be circulated showed the state of mind of the public from which came a degree of embarrassment which he hoped would assist in establishing a standard for American ambassadors. He pleaded for "decent and dignified" residences for American legations, with a fair salary, "and then," he said, "make up in character and qualifications for any lack of individual wealth."

Trouble In Central America

San Francisco, April 18.—The Bulletin says that political unrest along the south coast has caused the issuance of secret orders to Commander Mayo of the cruiser Albany to prepare at once for a three months' cruise. The destination of the ship is believed to be La Union, Salvador.

Railway Men Threaten Strike

Yonkers, N. Y., April 18.—The motormen and conductors in the employ of the Yonkers City Railway company voted to go on strike tomorrow unless they are granted an increase in pay with a day limited to ten hours. The men ask $2.50 daily.

Evans Is Gaining Strength

Paso Robles, Cal., April 18.—"I'll soon be on the quarter deck again," said Rear Admiral Evans as he came from the baths yesterday. In the afternoon he spent an hour on the lawn.

PROSECUTION ADVISED

Steel Corporation Officials May Go Before Federal Grand Jury

Boston, April 18.—The finance commission concerned with the investigation of departmental affairs of the city of Boston, upon the completion of its recent investigation of bids for city contracts by iron firms, last night issued several important recommendations.

The commission recommends that the officers and directors of twelve of the biggest steel corporations in the eastern part of the country, as well as the corporations themselves, be brought before the federal grand jury for violation of the interstate commerce act.

It also recommends that action be brought in state and federal circuit courts to recover "money out of which, it is alleged, the city was defrauded" on boiler and fire-proofing work, and to "recover triple damages allowed by the provisions of the Sherman act from the members of the 'Boston agreement.'"

The twelve corporations named are the alleged members of the "Boston agreement," which is claimed to have governed bids for the Dover street draw span and the Brookline street bridge in October and November, 1905.

Seeking Pardon For Brennan

Providence, April 18.—The committee on pardons of the Rhode Island senate has under consideration the recommendation of Governor Higgins that James Brennan, who has served nearly nine years of a fifteen-year sentence for complicity in the Portsmouth car barn robbery of 1899, be pardoned.

Shortage of Over $300,000

Boston, April 18.—Attorneys representing Henry M. Rogers, receiver of the estate of John O. Shaw, Jr., state that the alleged shortage in Shaw's accounts will exceed $300,000. Shaw, who was trustee for numerous persons and estates, is failing rapidly mentally, according to Mrs. Shaw.

Took a Tumble From "Cloudland"

Waterbury, Conn., April 18.—During a rendition of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in the town hall, following Little Eva's declaration of "I see the angels, Uncle Thomas," the rope that carried her to cloudland broke, spilling her to the floor and ending the show in confusion.

Ex-Councilman Goes to Prison

Boston, April 18.—William H. Curley, formerly a councilman from a Roxbury ward, was convicted of larceny in the superior criminal court. The jury was out two and a half minutes. The prisoner was sentenced to one year in the house of correction.

A Fruitless Conference

Milford, Mass., April 18.—No agreement was reached at the conference held yesterday between representatives of the Milford Granite Manufacturers' association and a committee of the striking engineers. About 300 men are affected by the strike.

Boys Held For Grand Jury

Lawrence, Mass., April 18.—Edward Aubertin, aged 17, Edward Boisvert, 17, and Napoleon Gamache, 17, were in the police court on the charge of breaking and entering a saloon. They were held for the grand jury.

Fined For Selling Diseased Horse

Malden, Mass., April 18.—On a charge of selling a horse with the glanders, Edward McGann of Everett was sentenced to pay a fine of $250.

Sweden to Russia by Balloon

St. Petersburg, April 18.—A balloon containing two Swedish army officers dropped yesterday afternoon into the orchard of the Kivivi monastery, twenty-one miles east of St. Petersburg. The police found the passports of the aeronauts correct. They said they left Stockholm at 7 o'clock Thursday evening. After conferring with the Swedish legation here, the officers were permitted to pack their balloon and they started for Stockholm by way of Finland.

A Matrimonial Fraud

Chicago, April 18.—Mrs. Jennie Call, who conducted a matrimonial agency in Chicago, was found guilty by a jury in the federal court of having used the mails to promote a fraud. Evidence was introduced at her trial to show that, through correspondence and advertising, the agency which she built up misrepresented the character and financial worth of its clients. Sentence was deferred.

American Car Turned Back

Seattle, April 18.—On the steamship Glenlogan the American and German cars in the New York-to-Paris automobile contest will leave Seattle for Vladivostok this evening. The American car arrived from Alaska yesterday on the steamship Bertha, having failed to make any progress whatever on Alaska's frozen trails. The German car arrived last night from Ogden.

Government a Heavy Loser

Danville, Va., April 18.—Charged with having committed extensive frauds on the government, T. M. Angle, president and general manager of the Dry Fork Distilling company, was placed on trial in the United States court here. It is alleged that Angle has defrauded the government out of between $100,000 and $150,000 worth of taxes on whisky.

Big Gold Cleanup Expected

Seattle, April 18.—According to special cable advices from Nome, Alaska, bankers and miners of Seward peninsula expect to realize this year the largest spring production in the history of Alaska. It will probably reach $3,000,000. From all the camps reports have been received of unusually rich dumps piled up during the winter season.

DEATH ROLL GROWING

Chelsea Fire Ruins Yield Up Two More Charred Bodies

SUSPICION OF INCENDIARISM

Has Been Greatly Strengthened In Past Few Days and State Will Make Rigid Investigation--Steamship Captain Says He Saw Firebug at Work

Boston, April 18.—The total number of bodies discovered in the ruins of the Chelsea fire up to the present time is eleven. Of this number two were found yesterday. One was that of a negro who was identified as Harry Lewis, aged 49, of 29 Marlboro street. Three other persons who lived at this place are still missing. The body of Lewis was badly charred and was identified by the teeth and by a watch which was found nearby.

The other body found yesterday was that of an adult male. It was discovered by a laborer who was at work in Poplar street. It was charred and the head was missing. Among the articles found near it were two jackknives, some suspender buckles, a detachable metal button and another button which is believed to indicate that the man belonged to some trades union, although the buckle was so badly burned as to be undecipherable. This body has not been identified.

Of the eleven bodies thus far found all but two, including one of those found yesterday, and the body of a woman, have been identified. In connection with the above Medical Examiner Magrath says that thus far there have been no deaths in the hospitals as a result of the fire, as far as he has been informed.

A rigid investigation into the reports that fires were set in Chelsea is to be made at the state house office of the district police, beginning next Tuesday. Summonses in large numbers are to be issued, requiring the presence of every individual who is known to have made the statement that he or she saw incendiaries at work, or had good reason for believing that they were pursuing their evil purpose.

Deputy Neal of the district police and other officers are making a tour of Chelsea by automobile, looking for every piece of evidence that may be of value at that hearing and querying every person who they think may have something of interest or importance to tell. Officers Smith, Grady and O'Neill have been conducting investigations since the day following the fire, threading the district each day and picking up many facts of value.

The police believe that they have a highly important witness in Captain Wood of the steamer Georgian, one of the Leyland liners now tied up at the Hoosac Tunnel docks. It is understood that Wood was in Chelsea taking snapshots the day of the fire and that he saw an incendiary at work. He even may have a picture of the man, or of the building, and is said to be able to positively identify the building.

The report that the fire was set in as many as forty different places is not credited generally in Chelsea.

Upon the recommendation of the house committee on rules, the bill introduced in the legislature by Representative Robinson of Chelsea to authorize that city to borrow $1,000,000 for municipal buildings and other purposes, made necessary as a consequence of the recent calamity, was admitted in the lower branch under a suspension of the rules. It was referred to the committee on cities for a hearing.

Business Still Halts

New York, April 18.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that Easter trade and generally favorable weather accelerated retail distribution of merchandise, but there is no evidence of increased activity in preparation for future business, nor are manufacturers disposed to operate more extensively. In fact, some net curtailment of output is noted and more reductions in wages have occurred.

Noted as an Indian Guide

Lower Brule, S. D., April 18.—Alexander Rencounter, famous Indian interpreter and guide, died here of apoplexy. Rencounter was guide and interpreter for Father Desmet on that missionary's second visit to the Sioux nation. In 1866 he accompanied General Sherman and General Sully when they located the site of the agencies and forts from Yankton to Fort Benton.

Sighted Disabled Steamer

Halifax, April 18.—Captain Pickering of steamer Victorian, from Liverpool, reports that an unknown steamer, probably the Breiz Huel, was sighted 136 miles southeast of Halifax at 3:30 yesterday morning. The unknown steamer displayed lights signifying that the vessel was not under control.

No Cars Running at Night

Pensacola, Fla., April 18.—The street railway strike situation remains unchanged. Cars are guarded by state militiamen during the day, but are run into the barns at nightfall. The sheriff has sworn in 150 business men of the city to serve as deputies.

Public Printer Confirmed

Washington, April 18.—The senate confirmed the nomination of John S. Leech of Illinois to be public printer, to succeed Charles A. Stillings.

THE ROUNDUP COLUMN.

West Tells Two Baseball Yarns and Hands Out Some Crisp Comment.

Harry Steinfeldt of the Chicago National league club started in life as a bank messenger, and Steiny is proud of the fact today, although he is now making in point of salary as much money as a good many bank presidents.

Just before the Cubs and the Detroit club clashed for the world's championship a group of the Chicago boys were seated in their hotel one night discussing the best investments that they could get for their money, and Steinfeldt on account of his having been at one time employed in a banking institution was appealed to for advice on the investment question.

After the popular third baseman had discussed in a learned manner the best kinds of investments, so far as he knew, Johnny Evers, who has to be shown every time, though he is not from Missouri, turned to Steinfeldt and asked:

"What position did you hold in that bank you worked in, Steiny?"

"Well, I went in as a messenger," slowly replied the clever third baseman, "but when I quit the job to play baseball I was a director in the institution."

"A director," chorused the bunch, with widely staring eyes.

"Sure," answered Steinfeldt as he edged over toward the door. "I used to direct all the postal cards."

For years Al Orth, the New York American league club pitcher, has been "Smiling Al" and the "Curveless Wonder" to readers of baseball dope.

The Athletics concur in the first title, but swear by all the gods of the Romans that the latter was tacked on by a joker who has Joe Miller faded.

"Curveless Wonder! Huh! Forget it, kid," said Ossie Schreck of the Philadelphia Athletics recently. "The B. and O. is a curveless, too, is it not?"

"I saw the Curveless Wonder work against us one day last fall, and if there was anything he didn't have and use I don't know what it is.

"Why, that big chunk of laugh just uncovered his ivories, and if he pitched one straight ball that day you can have the money. He stood us on our heads, and we took it like little men. In two innings six men faced him and five of them fanned. The other didn't reach first. And I guess if he had been sending them over straight he would have turned that trick? Not!"

We hope that no scandal has developed in the basket ball season that cannot be cleared up before we are knee deep in the baseball season.

Pugilist "Packy" McFarland's parents strenuously objected to his taking up boxing as a career. We understand that they have since become reconciled.

The Naval bill of $106,000 as passed on Thursday by the House of Congress authorizes eight submarines. This means more business for Quincy as the recent submarine test, proved the Quincy-built submarines to be the superior. Probably at least one of the two new battleships will be built in Quincy. This is all good news to the people of our city.

Sudden Death.

Mrs. Whittemore who resides with her son, F. A. Lathrop, at 113 Franklin avenue, Wollaston, dropped dead near her home this morning. Mrs. Whittemore came home from Boston on an electric car about 11 o'clock. Leaving the car she started to walk to her home a short distance away, apparently in good health. Suddenly she was seen to reel and fall, and when aid reached her she was dead.

Negro Captured.

James Johnson, alias Sam Scott, the Negro who escaped from the State farm at Bridgewater early this week, as announced in Friday's Daily Ledger, has been captured. The arrest was made at Hyannis by Sheriff Hart and Constable Bearse. Johnson willingly accompanied the officers to Barnstable jail. He admitted that he was the man who escaped from the institution and told how his escape had been accomplished.

Take Trolley to Ruins.

In anticipation of the desires of many thousands of people in the next few days to visit the ruins of the terrible fire at Chelsea, the Old Colony Street Ry. Co. and its sister company, the Boston & Northern are making plans for extra cars and otherwise increasing their facilities for handling the crowds.

For the information of the public it is announced that the best and most direct way to reach the ruins from Boston is to take cars at the Brattle Street entrance to the Scollay Square subway for Chelsea, Lynn, Salem, Revere, or any cars marked especially for the ruins. These will take one into the heart of the burned district in less than 18 minutes.

People desiring to go from Quincy by trolley should take the cars which run from Quincy to the Dudley Street terminal of the Boston Elevated, and there change to an elevated train via the subway to Scollay Square, then taking the route before mentioned.

Surprise Party.

A surprise party was tendered to Master Chester Moyle at his home on Centre street Thursday evening. The time was pleasantly spent in juvenile games and pastimes. During the evening his young friends presented him with a gold signet ring as a token of their esteem. A dainty lunch was served and at a late hour the young folks departed for their homes with many good wishes to Chester. Among those present were: Rebecca Nelson, Madeline Nelson, Ellen Johnson, Florence Gustafson, Violet Spargo, Etta Spargo, Ruth Opie, May Opie, Maud Johnston, Florence Manhire, Bertha Booth, Oscar Solander, Carl Johnson, Roger Nelson, Joe Spargo, Raymond Johnston, John Anderson, Lemuel Murray, Frank Allen, Knute Blonquist and Howard Johnston.

Athletic Meet at Milton.

A large delegation of Y. M. C. A. athletes and their friends will go to East Milton tonight on the 5.25 car. This is a return meet. The first meet at Quincy resulted in a score of 25 to 20 in favor of Quincy. As a handsome trophy is given to the winner, besides three individual prizes in each event, the interest is at fever heat. As no admission is charged at the Cunningham gymnasium there should be plenty of supporters for the Quincy team.

HAPPY EASTER

Andrew Carnegie Contributes to Organ Fund at Lutheran Church

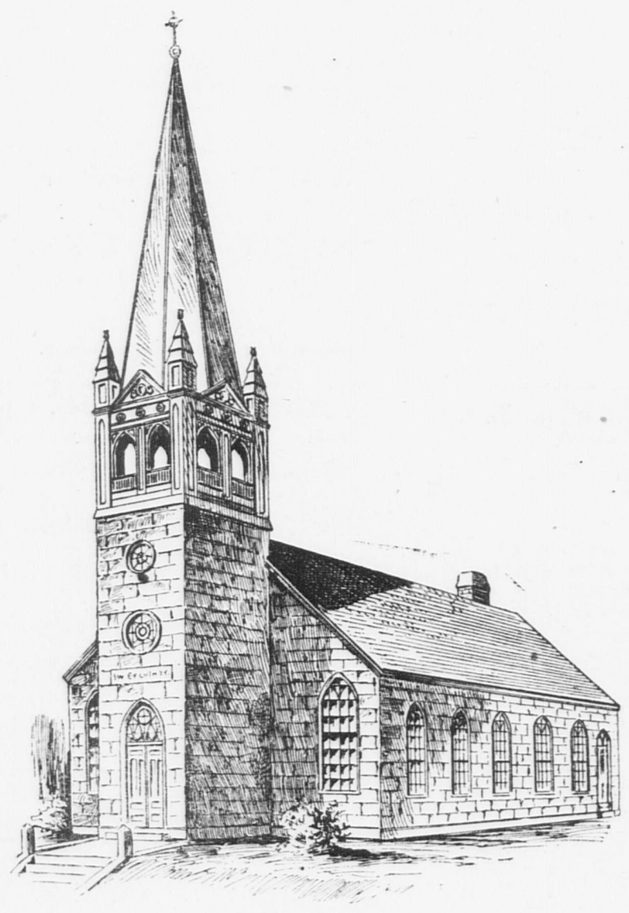
It will be a happy Easter for one of the Quincy churches, because Andrew Carnegie has come to the assistance of the Swedish Lutheran church and has promised $800 toward a $1,600 pipe organ. His letter is as follows:

Andrew Carnegie
2 East 91st Street.
New York, April 6, 1908.

Rev. S. N. Elwin, Swedish Exangelical Lutheran Salem church, 199 Granite street, Quincy, Mass.

Dear Sir:—Responding to your appead, Mr. Carnegie will be glad to provide the last half of the cost of an organ for your church, at price of sixteen hundred dollars, when the first half has been collected by the congregation and payment of the organ becomes due.

Respectfully,
Jas. Bertram,
Private Secretary.



It was in September last that the pastor and trustees of the church made their first appeal to Mr. Carnegie, their letter being accompanied by a letter of Hon. James Thompson, then Mayor of Quincy, who heartily commended the church and the Swedish-American people of the city.

A second letter was necessary about Dec. 1, and that brought an answer from Mr. Carnegie. Correspondence has continued since, Mr. Carnegie, requiring complete information about the church and its needs, also its finances, etc. His investigation was entirely satisfactory as the letter shows.

The Young People's Society has been at work some time raising funds for the organ, so that the goal is near. They have their $800 nearly raised.

Next year the society will be 20 years old, and before that date hopes to build a young people's hall, to furnish the church according to the original plans, install the new pipe organ, and will then be ready to celebrate its 20-year jubilee. Rev. S. N. Elvin, the present pastor, has been in Quincy about a year and a half, and has been very successful in his work for the church.

This church is known as the "Church upon the Rock," as it is built upon a granite prominence. The church bell was donated by the late Henry Hardwick Faxon. Mr. Carnegie has helped many Swedish Lutheran churches in raising funds for church puproses, and has made no mistake in assisting the Quincy church.

WEYMOUTH.

Mrs. J. G. Worster was one of the delegates elected at the Quincy Women's club on Tuesday to attend the Federation meeting at Hudson on April 28th.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. D. J. Pierce of Webb street is sick at a hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Sylvester celebrated their fifth marriage anniversary with a wooden wedding on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Edwin Pratt of Commercial street was remembered with flowers and tokens of affection by children, grandchildren, relatives and friends on Friday, April the tenth, the eighty-fifth anniversary of her birth.

The Union Literary Circle of Weymouth and East Braintree met on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Lund of Commercial street. Mrs. Harriet K. Gutterson read a paper on "Woman as an asset of value in community at large in America and elsewhere."

Quite a number of Rosedale people had friends and relatives living in Chelsea. Mrs. Henry Doane's father and mother had quite a narrow escape from being burned out as the street on which they lived was in the burned district. It was a very anxious time for them for awhile.

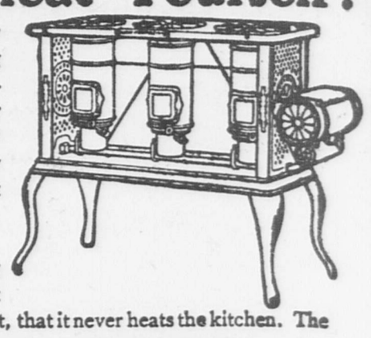
Why Overheat Yourself?



Much of your summer pleasure depends upon having a cool and comfortable kitchen. Why not be prepared for hot days before they come?

Ask your dealer to show the New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove. It's a wonder.

Does the work of your big range in every particular, but has this great advantage over it, that it never heats the kitchen. The makes summer days endurable. Think of preparing a meal in less time than you'd do it on the coal range, and then sitting down at table with the family—not overheated, but entirely comfortable.

NEW PERFECTION
Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove

That is the way you will do when you have a "New Perfection Oil" Cook-Stove in your kitchen. Made in three sizes; fully warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

THE Rayo Lamp is a center draft lamp of great illuminating power. Large font holds oil for several hours' burning. Free from all objectionable features—a splendid family lamp. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

Social Realm

The Shakespeare club of Atlantic had a most delightful as well as instructive outing on Thursday. There were sixteen in the party which gathered for luncheon at the Copley Square hotel, Boston, after which the Museum of Fine Arts was visited. Mrs. Maud Brown Olsson, president of the Travel club of Everett gave interesting talks on art as the various rooms were visited and a lecture was given by Louis Earle Rowe, instructor at the Museum, on Greek, Roman and Egyptian Mythology. On the return the cathedral of the Holy Cross was visited and its wealth of beautiful flowers admired.

Patriots' Day At the Scenic

Monday being the celebration of Patriots' Day, the Scenic will run a special holiday matinee at 2.30, in addition to the regular evening performance at 8 o'clock. It is advisable to secure seats for the evening performance early that night, as the excellent program offered is bound to attract a large crowd. There will be four vaudeville acts next week instead of the usual program of three, and the moving pictures and illustrated songs will be better than ever.

Miss Nellie LeMar, who has been retained for the holiday week, will sing the songs, and has made a great hit this week with Thomas Allen's latest success "My Heart Beats Alone For You."

Included in the vaudeville acts for the holiday and the balance of the week are George Nagel, expert whistler and juggler; Carrie Adams in charming songs and dances; George Fallis, in an entirely novel musical act and the Wonderful Hansone, Mystifying and Highly Entertaining Magician; one of the strongest bills yet presented at this popular house, and which, without question, will attract large audiences every night. The usual prices will obtain for the holiday.

Have Hope in The New Mayor

Editors Daily Ledger:

It is somewhat amusing to see many of the citizens just at this time in a state of excitement as to the prospect of our fair city being completely demoralized by the element running "travelling saloons." Why so much alarm, gentlemen, have you not elected to the highest office in the city a man widely known for his temperance sentiment, and who we believe has some moral courage, at least sufficient to withstand the onslaught of a few irrepressible expressmen?

I am inclined to take a different view entirely of the matter, for I believe the Mayor's heart and wishes are right, but that his political party will endeavor to prevent him from exercising good judgment. It is not very often we see the Democratic party rise entirely out of the depth of oblivion and give a clean business administration of city affairs, and the present indications in Quincy are that they will not prove a happy exception to the rule.

A recent vote of the Council on a notorious application to haul liquor indicates the trend of the Democratic vote, for every Democratic member, with one possible exception, voted in favor of the permit. The Democrats in the Counicl are representative men of their party in Quincy, and I understand hold high places in their ranks, but some oftheir records on license matters have indicated that they will vote a rum permit to whosoever asks for one. They care little whether temptations are brought to our young people or not. We certainly cannot yet infer that the Mayor is directing his Democratic brethern which way to vote on such matters for unless I have mistaken the man, the Mayor will veto every doubtful application, and the number of permits will be even less than last year.

Unless the Democrats change their attitude towards licenses, it is certain they will go out of power at the close of the year to remain in oblivion for a few more years. They need not think the sentiment of Quincy is for more rum. If they think so they had better take heed, for there is arising in our homes, in the form of indignation, an avalanche of protests which will suffocate the Democratic party beyond recognition in this city.

Very truly,

Old Home.

No-License Men Should Show Colors

Editors Daily Ledger:

I notice with deep interest the letters of Mr. Crane and Rev. Mr. Sproul in your paper on the granting of so many so called expressman's licenses to transport liquor, but which in reality are saloons on wheels.

Now, Mr. Editor, it is time that every one who believes in the policy of No-License for Quincy should show their colors.

Our City Council evidently think the 2,200 majority of votes cast against license were cast by a lot of hypocrites, or else they know better than the voters do what is for the best interest of our city. What voter would not rather see a licensed stationary saloon than one on wheels going from house to house. Very many people would pass the saloon who would be tempted by a solicitor at the door. They say, "Give every bonafide expressman a license." Where is the law that says they shall so govern the business.

If those Councilmen who were so anxious to vote for so many licenses they must know that very many of them are wholly depending on their liquor traffic for an existence. They may carry a few cabbage or a few bundles of uncertain value and mysterious contents, as a blind, but their business and their intent is the dealing in liquor.

Do those Councilmen imagine for one minute that if we had the stationary saloons in Quincy that it would take some twenty expressmen to carry the liquor. Oh no, they are not so simple minded as that. Our citizens have said No-License by an unmistakable vote, and I believe they meant just what they said and every Councilman who voted for the wholesale granting of licenses to the locomotion saloon should have his name well known to every voter before the next annual election, and those voters who really believe in No-License can take care of them.

The good name of our city is at stake, and if our Mayor will live up to his life-long principles of temperance he will veto the whole batch. By so doing he would earn the repect and support of all who have said "No Saloons for Quincy."

Hoping the good work of protestation will go on, I am,

Yours very truly,

J. L. Miller.

Quincy, April 17, 1908.

BRAINTREE.

A. Martin Hollis of Snell street, Brockton, but a member of Post 87, G. A. R., attended the annual reunion of the Minute Men of '61 in Boston, Wednesday. Mr. Hollis is a member and has the distinction of never missing a meeting. We also noticed in the line Solon David and Lawrence A. Dyer of South Braintree and Albert Keating of Quincy.

Business has been resumed at the plant of the Braintree Cement Co. The damage done to the buildings by the falling of the chimney has been repaired and a new steel chimney will replace the old brick one.

John Cameron the idol pitcher with Braintree base ball team two season ago will twirl for the fast Amory A. A. semi-professional team the coming season.

Gen. Sylvanus Thayer Post 87, and their allied organizations will hold a social in G. A. R. hall, Friday evening, April 24th.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Emory of West Bridgewater are the happy parents of a daughter born last Saturday. Mrs. Emory was formerly Miss Alice F. White of this town.

There will be a meeting of the Ladies' Aid society at the home of Mrs. James Johnson, Allen street on Wednesday April 22, at two o'clock. All members of the society are requested to be present.

The Local club held its Easter meeting with Mrs. Binney West street, Thursday, April 16. All the decorations were yellow and each guest received a downy chicken for a souvenir. A delicious dinner was served by a most excellent hostess, after which vocal and instrumental music was enjoyed.

The Penniman School Association gave a farce in one act entitled "Her Weekly Allowance" in the Penniman building last night. A good sum was netted towards the fitting for use of the Penniman school hall. Other socials will follow later to which the public are cordially invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Hill of Randolph have recently taken up residence in East Braintree, and their presence is being missed by Randolph friends. Both were interested and active workers in the First Congregational church, Mr. Hill being one of the officers of the parish.

The Woman's Guild of the South Congregational church held a successful sale in the Ladies' parlor of the chapel on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday, April 15th. Aprons and other useful articles were on sale, and found many purchasers, while the candy table proved a great attraction to great and small.

Wednesday, April 15th, the ladies of St. Mary's society of the Braintree Episcopal Guild met with Mrs. C. A. Bill, 91 Hollis avenue. The day was spent in work on garments for children, suffering from the Chelsea fire. Mr. J. Marcus Arnold and Mr. Loring kindly donated material and South Braintree friends also sent garments, shoes, besides many other useful articles. The contributions filled three barrels.

On Sunday evening, April 26, there will be a special union service in the Town hall, under the auspices of the several churches of Braintree. The Anti-Saloon League of Boston has promised to furnish one of its best speakers, who will address the people on the tremendous enthusiasm for temperance that prevails in the country and the great work that can be done by the moral dynamic force.

Services appropriate to Holy Week were held at St. Francis' church on Thursday and Friday morning, Rev. A. J. Fitzgerald celebrant. A beautiful repository adorned with lights and flowers had been prepared by the ladies of the parish. A procession of about thirty children daintily dressed in white with the acolytes, accompanied the priest bearing the Blessed Sacrament from the altar in the upper church to its resting place in the lower church on Thursday morning and back again on Friday morning. Saturday morning customary ceremonies were held.

The Jonas Perkins School Association held its regular meeting in the school hall on Thursday evening. Regular business was transacted after which Judge Albert E. Avery gave a very interesting and instructive talk on the "The Reform of the Delinquent." Remarks from Selectman H. M. Storm, Messrs Kelley, Aiken and Dobson brought out thoughts of value. One of the questions was "Why not have better play grounds for the children and why not push this good work on?" Miss Blanche Niles presided at the piano. Her selections show talent and careful study. The committee in charge served punch and fancy crackers. The next meeting one month from date will be the election of officers.

OLD COLONY DRIVING CLUB.

This organization, formed during the past winter, having for its purpose the encouragement of breeding and driving of high class horses and composed of representative citizens of the south shore towns will hold its opening matinee at the South Weymouth fair grounds next Monday, April 20th. Races will start at 1 P. M. on that date. Music will be furnished by American Band of East Weymouth. There will be no charge for admission either to grounds or grandstand and a cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend. It is intended to hold races each Saturday afternoon until the end of October to which admission will be free.

The officers of the club are:

Col. A. C. Drinkwater, president.

Lot Lohnes, vice president.

Theron Tirrell, secretary and treasurer.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889
The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.
Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.
The Secretary, Timothy Reed, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, Richard D. Chase, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)
The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.
Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.
The Treasurer, William E. Cummings, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, Ernest G. Gay, will be happy to answer inquiries.

THE CHESTER STRIKE

Trooper Gets Bullet In Leg and Horse of Another Is Shot

CITY IS UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Mounted State Police Well Supplied With Arms and Ammunition--Fine Horsemanship Stunts In Making Arrests--Few Cars Running

Chester, Pa., April 18.—As a culmination of the bitter feeling engendered by the mobilization of the state constabulary here, in connection with the strike, Marshal Crawford, a member of troop B, was shot in a skirmish with Thomas and Nicholas Barger, about two miles outside the city last night. Another trooper's horse was shot. Crawford received a bullet in the leg and will be laid up for a time.

The shooting formed an exciting incident in the day's events here. After a detachment of troopers had been put on guard at the car barns and power house of the Chester Traction company troops A and troop B last night started out the road toward Leiperville. When the troopers passed the Barger home the two brothers came out in front of the house and began a harangue.

One of the Bargers, it is declared, flourished a revolver at the mounted pilicemen and vile epithets were flung at them. Lieutenant Adams ordered Sergeant Meyers to dismount and arrest the man who was flourishing the revolver.

Meyers jumped from his horse and attempted to capture the man, when the other brother rushed into the house and upstairs. From there he fired two shots from a revolver, one of which struck Crawford and another a horse. The troopers drew their carbines and fired several shots. Under cover of the shots several of the police ran into the house and arrested both the Bargers, who were brought to this city.

With four troops of state police practically in command, the strike situation is well in hand. Troop A from Greensburg, B from Wilkesbarre, C from Reading and D from Punxsutawney, comprising 160 men, make up the force which has taken charge of the strike situation.

The troopers rode into the city early yesterday. Each trooper is armed with a short carbine, a heavy field revolver, a regulation police revolver and a riot club. Two belts of ammunition are carried by each man and their appearance, mounted on their horses, had a salutary effect upon those inclined to be disorderly.

Under the protection of the state police the traction company ran five cars during yesterday afternoon. The first car was run out by F. W. Bergmann, who ran the first car out of the barns in San Francisco in the face of the striking employes. On the car were two city policemen and a private detective of the company and beside it rode two of the troopers.

The car had not gone far when some of the strikers or their sympathizers began throwing stones and shouting at the men in charge of it. The troopers rode the men down and arrested six of them. The prisoners were put on the car and, under guard, were compelled to make the trip through the streets and back to the barn, where they were charged with inciting to riot. The subsequent cars were run under about the same conditions and a number of arrests were made. The company made no attempt to operate its cars after nightfall.

In making arrests the troopers gave several exhibitions of horsemanship which caused the disorderly element to regard them with awe. Sergeants Logan and Chambers and Trooper Kobut, in their determination to capture a negro, jumped their horses over a high embankment and two fences into a field, where they overtook the fleeing man.

The failure of the local police to cope with the situation has caused a number of citizens to circulate a petition asking for the removal of Chief of Police Pennington, who is declared to be incompetent.

Jap Wanted to Join Navy

Milwaukee, April 18.—A Japanese who gave his name as H. Hamashi applied for enlistment in the United States marine corps at the recruiting office here yesterday. He first said he was a Filipino, but later admitted that he was a Japanese and that he was trying to enlist so as to get to the Philippine islands. He was told that he would have to take the oath of allegiance, whereupon he fled.

Carried a Penny Sixty Years

Laporte, Ind., April 18.—A large copper cent, swallowed sixty years ago, caused the death of James Huckins, 67 years old, a farmer. The coin became encased in the lining of the stomach at the time it was swallowed and remained there until recently, when an abscess formed and acids in the stomach began to dissolve the coin. Poisoning ensued, causing death.

Soldiers to Get Higher Pay

Washington, April 18.—The army is practically assured of an increase in pay. The conferees of the senate and house have reached an agreement on this item of the army appropriation bill substantially along the lines of the senate amendment, which granted the authorized increase according to the various branches of the service.

Persians Punished by Russians

Tiflis, April 18.—The Russian troops which recently invaded Persian territory to punish Kurdish raiders of the Russian garrison at the frontier post engaged in a fight which assumed the proportions of a pitched battle. The Russians routed the Persians, inflicting a loss of 34 men killed and 50 wounded. The remainder of the tribesmen broke and fled. The Russians lost one officer and several soldiers wounded. The cannonade set fire to the village of Delesuvar, the destruction of which was completed by the Cossacks. The Russians bombarded two neighboring villages and razed both. The non-combatants suffered great losses.

Two Months' Closing of Mills

Charlotte, N. C., April 18.—Although resolutions were adopted at the meeting of the Southern Hard Yarn Spinners' association held here to withhold from the public the conclusions of the conference, it is learned that an agreement was virtually reached to shut down all plants for a period of sixty days. At the end of that time another conference will be held to consider the situation.

Battleships Leave San Deigo

San Diego, Cal., April 18.—Sailing orders having been issued for 6 o'clock this morning, the stay of the American battleship fleet in San Diego ended last night, so far as activity was concerned. Plans are already under way for the erection of a commemorative monument in the city's park, where the official welcome of the state to the sixteen vessels was extended on Wednesday last.

Tobacco Combine Not Dissolved

Richmond, April 18.—Positive denial is made both here and in New York of the report that the American Tobacco company is to be dissolved. The rumors probably arose from the fact that the American Cigar company, one of the branches of the corporation, is to be divided by the formation of the Federal Cigar company, which will manufacture only machine-made cigars.

Successful Balloon Experiment

Baltimore, April 18.—A United States signal corps balloon landed near this city about 6 o'clock last evening. It was in charge of Lieutenant Lahm, with three others on board. The balloon left Washington at 2:17 yesterday afternoon for an experimental flight. At one time an ascent to about 7000 feet was made. The trip was uneventful and the landing was made safely.

Morocco Irritating Italy

Rome, April 18.—The murder of an Italian missionary in Tripoli and the prosecution by the Ottoman authorities of natives who have sold land to Italians are causing considerable irritation. Protests against these actions have been lodged with the Italian government.

NEWS IN BRIEF

At a meeting of the student body of the University of Vermont it was voted that a resident athletic coach for the university be secured.

Born in Ridgefield, Conn., 100 years ago, Mrs. Betsy M. Gage died at her home in Brooklyn, where she had lived the past fifty years.

Hugh J. Grant, former mayor of New York, declines to serve as a presidential elector from the Twelfth New York district.

Secretary of War Taft will resign from the cabinet if he is nominated by the Republican convention in June. Otherwise he will continue at the head of the department until the end of President Roosevelt's term.

Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, who has been confined to his room at Washington for two weeks by illness, is much improved.

The resignation of W. G. Sabine, dean of the Lawrence scientific school and of the graduate school of applied sciences, as a member of the Harvard university athletic committee, is announced.

Pictures of The Christ

Reasons For Belief In Authenticity of the Typical Portrait.

As Easter day approaches Jesus, whose resurrection and ascension this day commemorates, is drawn to our attention, and the question is asked, "Did the Saviour leave his likeness on earth while among men?"

This question is best answered by referring to the remarkable consistency with which Christ has been pictured all through the ages by the world's greatest painters.

Many able and profound students of Christian art have brought forward positive arguments to show that this portraiture did exist in the early decades of the Christian era at the time of Christ and that its history and characteristics fully supply the requisite element of authenticity.

Of the typical portraiture of Jesus, transmitted to us from an age in which the productions of pictorial art were either venal to inanity or utterly debased, it stands entirely by itself for purity, for power of conception and for a style of art not belonging and related to none other.

Archaic in its grand simplicity, it is yet distinctly individual and portrait-like in its type. Whether portrayed in humility, in suffering or in triumph, though sometimes severe and rugged, it is still always dignified and majestic. It addresses itself by its infinite tenderness and at the same time by its strength of character so directly to the higher sympathies and aspirations of our nature that it is accepted at once with undoubting, almost instinctive, faith as the veritable counterpart of the divine original.

Investigation as to the authenticity of the most valuable representations of

PORTRAIT FROM THE CATACOMBS.
[One of the earliest pictures of the Saviour.]

Christ, because admittedly the oldest, has been beset with very great difficulties. The Church of Rome, in whose possession most of them are, has guarded them with extreme care, and, considering their sanctity, no one can wonder at this or even complain of it.

There is in the basilica of St. Peter's, at Rome, in the sacristy over the gigantic statue of St. Veronica, a picture accounted so holy and priceless that no layman may ever behold it, and it is on the authority of Fathers Garucci and Tebay, who were famous as Roman antiquarians in the reign of Pius IX., that even the supreme pontiff looked upon it only once a year, and then only after communion.

It consists of a life size head of the Saviour represented as lying in the sepulcher. The ascertained history of the picture reaches to the second century.

Second only to this work is the picture in the sacristy of the Church of St. Bartolomeo, in Genoa. The hair is wet and matted; tears and the blood drops from the crown of thorns, so expressive of the stern reality of death, mark the face, but the calm features and nearly closed eyes, the gently parted lips, speak not of corruption, but of the spirit at that moment in paradise and of the shortly to be accomplished resurrection. This portrait is positively known to be 1,800 years old, and tradition says it was painted by St. Luke.

A picture in the library of the Vatican at Rome is of a date probably contemporary with the two just mentioned. Legend declares that this also was a production of St. Luke. It is executed in thick water color on a panel of cyprus wood, now almost wholly decayed.

Many of the portraits of Christ found in the catacombs afford sufficient evidence that the familiar traits of the hair parted in the middle, flowing to the shoulders and beginning to curl or wave from the ears downward; the thin beard, the mustache and the oval face were recognized as the distinguishing characteristic and true likeness even at the early period.

This type has been followed by all the great painters of Christendom down to the present day. It satisfied Michelangelo. In painting his last picture of Christ he followed the Veronica portrait line for line, as if he had traced it.

This likeness of Christ is universally recognized, so that now in every country where we see it painted it is well known who it represents. — New Orleans Times-Democrat.

JOHNSON IS CAPTURED

Convict Glad to Return to Prison After Sensational Flight

Hyannis, Mass., April 18.—James Johnson, the negro convict who escaped from the state farm in Bridgewater Wednesday morning, was taken into custody here last night. Johnson pretended at first that he was in search of employment, but after he had been identified from the description sent from the state farm, he admitted that he was the fugitive wanted. He said that he was exhausted by hunger and by his wanderings since leaving Bridgewater, twenty miles, away, and that he was glad he had been caught.

Johnson was committed to the state prison five years ago for twenty years on a breaking and entering charge. He showed signs of insanity and was transferred to the state farm about a year ago. He is 30 years old.

John made his escape from the Bridgewater institution by sawing the bars of his cell, climbing to the roof of the building and crossing from there to the roof of a barn, from which he lowered himself with a rope of bedclothing. He left a dummy in his bed to deceive the prison guard. The authorities say that his was the most cunningly conceived and daringly executed escape that has ever been known at the state farm.

Says Bryan Tide Has Receded

Omaha, April 18.—"William J. Bryan is a 'has been,'" says Governor Johnson of Minnesota. "His star reached its zenith some time ago and when his name goes before the Denver convention he will be looking for votes. The tide always has a limit. It continues to swell until that limit is reached, and then it recedes. The tide of the popularity of Mr. Bryan receded with the adjournment of the state convention in Nebraska and has been receding ever since." This statement Johnson made when he passed through Omaha yesterday.

"Give the Indian a Show"

Washington, April 18.—"After all, he is the oldest American of all of us; so give him a fair show; give him a chance." These words were addressed by President Roosevelt to the members of the Tulsa (Okla.) Commercial club, who called at the White House and made it known that they favored the removal of restrictions upon the sale of Indian lands in the new state. The president told the club that he would help them to get their rights and he wanted their help to see that the Indian gets his.

Miners and Operators In Harmony

Toledo, April 18.—The 200,000 idle miners in the central competitive district, composed of western Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana, will go to work next Monday. An amicable agreement between miners and operators was reached by members of the scale committee and this agreement was ratified by the joint meeting of the miners and operators. Miners and operators declare there is now a more harmonious feeling between them than has existed in years.

Minister Takes His Own Life

Woodbury, N. J., April 18.—Within a week after the announcement of his engagement to a wealthy widow, Rev. George W. Thompson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, was found dead in his room at the Newton hotel. He had ended his life with a bullet through the head. Thompson was 48 years old, and had been married a number of years. His wife died a little more than a year ago.

Train Holdup In Minnesota

Minneapolis, April 18.—A Northern Pacific coast train was held up by two men just outside the city limits and money and two watches were taken from the passengers. The men entered one of the sleeping cars and at the point of a pistol commanded the passengers to hold up their hands, one of the robbers standing guard as his companion searched his victims.

Aldrich Bill Held Up

Washington, April 18:—The house committee on banking and currency voted unanimously to table the Aldrich financial bill. It also was decided to give a hearing to Representative Vreeland of New York, who recently introduced a financial bill which is looked upon as a substitute for the Aldrich measure.

Disastrous Test of Boiler

Passaic, N. J., April 18.—Engineer Delmar was scalded so seriously that he died soon afterwards and Chief Engineer Stokes and Fireman Serokary were badly burned by the blowing out of a tube in the boiler at a light and power station here. The men were testing the boiler when the accident occurred.

The United States Afloat

New York, April 18.—With the aid of three wrecking tugs and a flood tide the Scandinavian-American line steamer United States was floated last night from the mudbank where she grounded after a collision with the steamer Monterey while departing for sea.

Mount Temple at Halifax

Halifax, April 18.—The Canadian Pacific line steamer Mount Temple, which was floated Thursday evening, arrived in port this morning and anchored in the stream. The steamer was convoyed from Lunenburg by a government steamer and two tugs.

Loss of SLEEP

Body and brain need sufficient peaceful sleep each night to repair the waste caused by the physical and mental exertions of the day. Broken rest brings on headache, despondency, irritability and nerve exhaustion. When the nerve force is low,

Beecham's Pills

are invaluable as an aid to renew the supply of health-producing elements. They act favorably upon the digestive organs, throw off impurities from the blood, and restore the vital energies. Beecham's Pills relieve congestion, dispel brain-fag, quiet the overwrought nerves, and

THE DAY BETWEEN.

KATE M. CLEARY.

I like to think, when Calvary's Run
Went down in cloud and storm and rack,
And velvet shadows, one by one,
Blurred out that gibbet looming black:
Only one day must pass away,
Only one day must intervene,
Till aching eyes beheld Him rise;
But oh, that day—the day between!

And did the dawn that Deathless Day
Like loveliest lily slow unfold,
Until the sundrifts broke like spray,
And all the world was rose and gold?
When, silver clear on listening ear,
Of those who gazed where He had been,
An angel voice bade hearts rejoice,—
But oh, the day,—that day between!

And so I know that there shall be
That hour, beloved, you must take
Your cross, and bear it patiently
Up Calvary Hill, for love's own sake,—
Blossoming born, your Easter morn
Will follow soon, sublime, serene,—
But this we pray, dear God, today,
Grace for the day that lies between!

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The Wollaston Cooperative bank holds its annual meeting on Tuesday evening, April 21st.

The High school base ball team is scheduled to play a game on Patriots' day with an Alumni nine.

A special Easter service is to be held at four o'clock Sunday afternoon by the children of First Church Sunday-school.

It is announced by Carlson & Nelson that 200 presents will be contributed at the land sale at Squantum Park next Monday.

There is likely to be something doing at the meeting of the City Council next Tuesday evening, and seats will be a premium.

A gang of men was at work this morning putting the lawn in front of the High school in shape. It is being rolled and will be sown with grass seed.

Miss Julia M. Newell, who has been in Providence, R. I., for about a year, has returned to Quincy and is with her sister, Mrs. Francis at North Weymouth.

Ask any boy you meet for tickets for the Y. M. C. A. carnival and garden concert for next week Wednesday and Thursday evening. If they haven't them they will get them for you.

Owing to the fact that the holiday falls on Easter Monday, Elmer W. Baker will hold his annual Patriots' Day sunlight dance in Faxon hall, Monday, April 20, from 3 to 11 P. M.

The Witch City gym team will be the leading spectacular feature of the Wednesday evening's performance at the Y. M. C. A. Nothing like their work has ever been seen before in Quincy.

C. Pol Plancon of First church quartet was the star attraction on Wednesday at a musicale given at the Tuileries, Back Bay, for the benefit of the Peabody Home for Crippled Children. He was assisted in two duets by Mrs. Laurance H. Sturtevant. The concert contributed over a thousand dollars for the cause and also was one of rare enjoyment for those attending.

The Methodist church at Hall Place has a newly organized orchestra which assisted the choir at both services on Sunday and will render special music on Easter Sunday. It is composed of the following skilful persons: Miss Berle Hannant, organist; Ernest Williams, cornetist; Harold Williams and Albert Thomas, violinists.

SUNDAY: 12 TO 1—SHARP

Bethany Church, City Square

If YOU are a young man, and not associated with any other Quincy church, YOU are most cordially invited to come to our meeting.

A warm welcome—Hearty singing—A helpful hour together.

Soldiers' Monument.

Long & Saunders have received the contract to furnish the Grand Army at Whitman with a soldiers' monment. The memorial will have two bases, a die and plinth, and will be surmounted by a statue. The bottom base is nine feet square, and the monument with the exception of the statue will be of Quincy granite polished. The statue will be cut of pink Westerly granite and will represent a soldier at "Parade rest." The monument will cost about $3,500.

At Merrymount park yesterday afternoon Winthrop High defeated Quincy High in the first game of the season for the local nine. It was close but uninteresting, the weak hitting of both teams making the score small.

Winthrop started the first inning with a run but Quincy came back in their half with two. Winthrop got none in the second, and Quincy scored one on Murphys hit to right field.

In the third two more were chalked up for Winthrop, and none for Quincy, leaving the score three to three. It continued tie until the first of the ninth when Belcher beat out a hit to first, stole second on a bad throw and got home on a wild throw over third. In their half of the ninth Quincy could do nothing, and the game ended with the score 4 to 3 in favor of Winthrop.

This is the first game for the home team, while Winthrop has been playing for a week or more, and the result was far from discouraging. The Winthrop nine has been heralded as a fast bunch by the Boston papers.

For Quincy, Keohane, Bates and Murphy were the shining lights. Keohane with his fielding, Murphy with his hitting and Bates' all round work, showing up. Miller and Marks did good work for Winthrop.

Makaria vs. No. Dorchester.

At Merrymount Park on Monday at 3 P. M. Makaria Fraternity will cross bats with the fast North Dorchester team and an excellent game is assured. North Dorchesters have four of last year's Bowdoin team of Quincy—Rodgers, Barrows, Kelley and Bill Smith, who are all fast men.

The North Dorchester line up will be as follows: Murphy, l.f.; Bill Smith, c.f.; Dillon, 3b.; Harris, 1b.; McDonald, 2b.; Kelley, s.s.; Barrows r.f.; Rodgers, c.; Swanson, p.

Makarias line up will be as follows: McKenzie, 3b.; Smith, c.; Ganzel, 1b.; Bill Troupe, 2b.; Penley, c.f.; Nicoll, s.s.; Parker, l.f.; Curtis, r.f.; Jim Michael, p.

Game called at 3. Harry Kolseth will be the umpire.

Makaria Fraternity will have a live speaker for their noon meeting at Bethany church on Sunday in Stacy Southworth, and there will be special music. A large attendance is assured.

There is an average attendance of over fifty every Sunday and every young man of Quincy is cordially invited to attend.

Full scores of Saturday and Monday games in the Ledger of Tuesday.

Quincy Point Game.

The newly organized Fore River base ball team will open the season on April 20, with the strong Lynn A. A. team, playing at the enclosed football grounds at Quincy Point in the morning and at Lynn in the afternoon. The manager has secured a fast bunch of players for this game, including Whiting, former catcher and star football player of English High school; Studley, pitcher of Hingham team, and last year with Norwell; Leach, first baseman of the South Weymouth team; Duffy, lately with South Quincy; Elcock, of the Copeland club and Curran former captain and outfielder of Cushing Academy, and the remaining players have been picked from the best teams on the South Shore. The game will be called at 10 o'clock.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

THE ORPHEUM.

There will be another "first appearance" of a big English act at the Orpheum theatre the week of April 20th, when the McNaughtons, two of the most remarkable comedians that have come from the other side, will make their Boston debut. The McNaughtons have a style of humor that is all their own. It is largely burlesque, of a most laughable character—English, but strange to say of a quality that makes a strong appeal to American audiences. A splendid American act, also on this bill, is that of McKenzie and Shannon, called "A Shine Flirtation," the action of which takes place in a boot-black emporium, where a husband and wife meet under the most extraordinary circumstances, all of which are extremely humorous and give an opportunity for the introduction of some excellent singing numbers.

BOSTON THEATRE.

At the Boston theatre next week the attraction will be Shakespeare's comedy "The Taming of the Shrew" this being the first of this class of productions by the stock company at this theatre. The version of the play to be used is that made by Stage Director Snader and presented at the Empire theatre in Boston so successfully when under the direction of Manager Morison a few seasons ago. The comedy is given in five acts and seven scenes with many seldom presented bits of business. When the play was given at the Empire it was accepted generally as one of the most satisfactory versions ever seen in this city. The leading characters have been assigned as follows: Baptista, William Hasson; Vincentio, Louis Theil; Lucentio, Thomas MacLarnie; Petruchio. Wilson Melrose; Gremio, Walter Walker; Hortensio, John Meehan; Grumio, Donald Meek; Biondello. Otis Thayer; Katharine, Olive L. Oliver; Bianca, Mary Sanders; and Curtis, Beverly West.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The combination of Easter Monday and Patriots' Day will find at Keith's one of the most notable shows of the season, headed by that famous English comedienne, Alice Lloyd, whose vogue in New York surpasses that of Vesta Victoria. Miss Lloyd, who, by the way, is a sister of Marie Lloyd who scored so heavily at Keith's early in the season, is remarkably pretty and dainty. Her songs are notable for their brightness, snap and swing. "Looking for the Lovelight in Your Eyes," her latest hit, is a distinct novelty in the song line, while "Splash me" will undoubtedly be whistled and sung by all who hear it. Charlotte Parry, the greatest protean actree, vaudeville has ever known, is to play her remarkable playlet, "The Comstock Mystery," which has proven to be one of the big successes of the season.

FORMAL OPENING.

Paul Revere Memorial association is to have a formal opening of the old home of Paul Revere at 19 North square, Boston, this Saturday afternoon, the 133d anniversary of Paul Revere's famous ride to Concord. There will be brief exercises and ex-Gov. Long will be among the speakers After the exercises which is limited to invited guests, the house will be open to any interested people. Quincy patriotic societies are contributing to the restoration of the house.

Indian Skeleton.

Workmen laying gas mains on Bell street yesterday unearthed the skeleton which Medical Examiner Jones said were those of an Indian. That they were probably those of a woman about 20 years of age. The skeleton was found about two feet below the surface, and was in good condition. They were taken in charge by an undertaker.

BARGAIN PRICES

It isn't easy to find plain, honest designs coupled with good sound construction in Bedroom Furniture. A large amount of the Furniture now-a-days is covered with cheap, meaningless ornaments which simply conceal a low grade of material and flimsy construction.

The styles we are showing are made along lines which are peculiarly appropriate to the design of Bedroom Furniture. There isn't anything fussy about these designs, nothing elaborate "so to speak," to disturb the effect of quietness and restfulness.

We have the choicest patterns in solid mahogany, Toona Mahogany, Curly Birch, Bird's Eye Maple, White Enamel and Quartered Oak.

K. OF C. BALL

Brilliant Party Largely Attended And As Usual A Grand Success

The one social event looked forward to by lovers of dancing immediately following Easter is the annual concert and ball of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus. This year it fell as usual on Easter Monday night, and proved to be a social success in every way. The ball was held at Music hall and was very largely attended. There was nothing out of the usual in decorations at the hall, save a row of potted flowering plants on the platform whose foliage almost hid the orchestra from view.

Cuff's orchestra furnished the music and from 8 to 9 o'clock gave a pleasing concert, their selections including:

March,	"Sousa Swing"	Alford
Concert Waltz,	"Oliva Waltzes"	St. Clair
Overture Medley,		Von Tilzer
	"Bye Bye Dearie"
Intermezzo,	"The Flirt"	Hildreth
Two Step,	"Red Domino"	Henry

During the concert those who were to participate in the dancing were arriving, and their wants were carefully looked after by a large reception committee. The gallery soon filled up, with those who proposed to watch the festivities rather than to more actively participate. The floor viewed from this point presented an inspiring scene.

Among the spectators here were noticed Rev. John J. Coan, pastor of St. John's church, and Rev. John P. Cuffe, pastor of the Sacred Heart church.

It was a little after 9 o'clock when the grand march was inaugurated and it was a very pretty sight. Fully one hundred couples participated, and it seemed as though there were as many more watching the moving picture of splendor. The march was led by Timothy J. Carey, the grand Knight of Quincy council, whose partner was Miss Mary McNally. Following close in their wake were Mayor William T. Shea and Miss Katherine Shea, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Murphy, and Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Cahill. The march was very prettily executed and called for a round of applause as they came down the centre with sixteen front.

The march over general dancing was in order. At midnight during a brief intermission, Whittemore served supper in the annex. Timothy J. Carey was floor marshal. The floor director was Edward J. Murphy and the assistants were Peter J. Cahill and John J. O'Hara.

The aids were: Charles J. McGilvray, John Joyce, Dr. Daniel B. Reardon, Richard A. Cole, Thomas J. Shortle, Dr. Cornelius J. Lynch, Robert J. McDonnell, John E. Ford, Dr. James P. Murphy, Joseph J. Callahan, William DeCoste, Robert J. Williams, Jr., John H. Heaney, William H. Flynn, Patrick McMann, John Clinton, Thomas W. Keating, Edward N. Heffernan, John P. Tierney, John F. Walsh, Dr. John T. Reynolds and Thomas R. Donovan.

The other officers of the ball were: Reception Committee,—John W. McAnarney, Michael T. Sullivan, James F. Burke, William T. Shea, Peter J. Cahill, Eugene M. O'Connor, William J. Coleman, Arthur Murphy, David J. Barry, Daniel Desmond, William T. Moran, Thomas F. Mannex, John Casey, Edward J. Parker, John A. Mahoney, Dr. John H. Ash, Charles C. Hearn.

Committee of Arrangements,—Timothy J. Carey, Michael T. Sullivan, Lawrence W. Lyons, Edward J. Murphy, Harry A. McGrath, John A. McGowan, John J. Lane, Joseph E. Granahan, William J. Corcoran, William Lynch.

ENTHUSIASTIC CONVENTION

Christian Endeavorers Of the County Meet in Quincy

Christian Endeavorers from all parts of Norfolk county spent the greater part of the holiday and also the evening in Quincy, and felt that they were royally entertained, and well repaid. The majority came shortly after 9 A. M., and they remained until after 9 P. M. Bethany church until its large auditorium, two chapels, ladies' parlor, dining room, kitchen, etc., was well adapted for such a large convention, but all the rooms were in use.

As the holiday followed Sunday it was necessary for several young men to be on hand early in the morning to decorate the church, and several willing workers responded about 4 A. M. All parts of the church were prettily and extensively decorated. Over the main entrance were red, white and blue, and the monogram "C. E." Inside on the wall back of the pulpit was a mammoth "C. E." with the topic of the day; in the "C." were the words "Greater faithfulness to the pledge," and in the "E." the words "For Christ and the Church." At the top of the auditorium was a large American flag, and in a continuous band around the church were "C. E." banners, those of the Junior C. E. being near the pulpit. There were also C. E. flags, calla lilies, Easter lilies and other decorations. At the right of the pulpit was a large banner reading Norwood 1909 denoting the place of the next annual meeting.

One of the chapels was festooned with red, white and blue, and the other with wide white streamers with bunches of red, and C. E. flags.

In the dining room were white and red streamers, large square lanterns of white marked C. E., etc., and on the tables Easter lilies.

Signs directed one to the coat rooms, toilet, exits, etc.

As fast as the delegates arrived they were met and requested to visit the chapel and register, when they were given badges, banquet tickets, etc. There was in the chapel a display of C. E. literature and C. E. pins were offered for sale.

The morning session opened at 10 o'clock and there were over 100 Juniors in the audience of 400 to 500. During the day the number increased and fully 700 to 800 attended the convention. When the Juniors entered each brought a card with one word, and when these were hung on the wall they produced the Beatitudes which extended the entire length of the church on each side.

Melville P. Hayward of Quincy presided at the morning service, which was largely devoted to Junior Endeavorers. This session opened at 10 o'clock with a service of song and prayer, followed at 10.10 by a Junior service. The address at this session was given by Rev. George F. Kenngott of Lowell, State Superintendent of Junior work, who knew how to reach the young people. He spoke at length urging the importance of work among the Junior and the early training of boys and girls.

Following the address came the Junior question box conducted by Mr. Hayward, the presiding officer, and chairman of the Junior committee. Then came the appointment of com-

Engineers Ready To Arbitrate

The letter sent to the granite manufacturers, quarryman and engineers by Edward J. Sandberg, ex-president of the Board of Trade, submitting a plan for arbitration, has borne fruit. On Sunday the engineers union voted that it was willing to submit its differences to arbitration.

The plan proposed by Mr. Sandberg was for committees representing the manufactuers and the unions to meet a committee of disinterested persons from the Board of Trade and discuss plans of adjustment, to see if a settlement cannot be made.

Arthur M. Huddell, the international vice president of the engineers, has given the sanction of the executive board of the National Association to such a plan.

☞In response to the numerous requests of their friends, the Pine Tree State Association have arranged to give another dancing party, Tuesday, April 28, in Faxon Hall. Anything given under the auspices of this association is always sure to be successful, and a pleasure to all who attend.

The Best Spring Medicine in the World is

TRUE'S ELIXIR

Spring usually finds the whole system run down and more or less out of order. The bowels are sluggish and inactive—the system is debilitated—the blood impoverished. Nearly everybody needs a Spring Remedy. For 57 years True's Elixir has been the standby of thousands at this season, as it is the best possible remedy to arouse the stomach, liver and bowels from their sluggish condition. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless.

REACHES THIRTEEN

Chelsea's Death List Is Slowly but Steadily Growing

EPIDEMIC IS THREATENED

Rag Dealers Ordered to Remove From City Limits at Instance of City Physician--Need of Outside Aid Is Still Acute

Boston, April 21.—The thirteenth body was taken from the ruins of the Chelsea fire late yesterday by workmen digging in the cellar of 114 Central avenue. Identification was impossible, as the bones were badly charred, and there were no articles in the vicinity by which the name of the victim could be learned. Presumably the body is either that of John Gilbrook, a cigarmaker, or William Morris, a shoemaker, both of whom lived there and have been missing since the conflagration.

A holiday crowd, estimated at about 100,000 people, flocked to the scene of the fire, but for the most part they were orderly and gave the militia and police little trouble. The greater part of the throng pressed around the groups of workmen digging for bodies. The Salvation Army took advantage of the presence of so many people and stationed their representatives at crowded places with coin boxes, soliciting aid for the sufferers.

City Physician Chase made an inspection of the sanitary conditions of the city and found a disquieting state of affairs in that part of the Jewish quarter which escaped the flames. In one kitchen there were twelve cot beds, and Chase expressed the fear that unless such conditions were remedied there would be an epidemic.

The rag dealers, in whose quarters it is believed by some that the fire gained its headway, were given forty-eight hours' notice last night to move from the city limits. This step was taken at the instance of Dr. Chase after a consultation with the military authorities. It is feared that the rags might cause a pestilence which, in the city's present state of unpreparedness, would result seriously.

The work of relief went steadily on yesterday, although in some quarters there were reports of friction. The need of help was forcibly brought to the attention of the thousands who viewed the ruins yesterday, when it was seen how complete was the havoc, in both the well-to-do and the poorer residential sections of the city.

A measure of practical relief was adopted by the West End Landlords' association, composing about 400 property owners in the West End of Boston, who announced last night that they would place all their empty tenements at the disposal of those families who were burned out and had no other prospects of shelter save those offered by halls and public buildings.

All day Officers Smith and Grady of the state police and Patrolman O'Neil of the Chelsea force were busy rounding up witnesses to testify at the fire inquest, to be held today. It is now regarded as doubtful if any of the alleged incendiary fires can be fixed upon some firebug, although the officers say they have indisputable evidence that fires were deliberately set while the horror of flames was in its birth near the edge of the Everett marshes.

This morning about 2500 Chelsea school children were able to resume their education. In various elementary schools that escaped the fire these children will attend in shifts of two hours today, in order to give as many as possible a chance. The high school pupils must still wait, for their building will be required until next week by the relief workers.

The uniforms of the militiamen will not be seen about the Chelsea streets many days longer. Colonel Sweetser and his outside militia companies will probably be relieved from duty tonight, but the Chelsea company may remain on guard duty for several days more.

Missionaries' Work Appreciated

New York, April 21.—Lauding the missionary for what he had accomplished in aiding the advancement of civilization in the Far East, and declaring that both Protestants and Catholics alike in the Philippines hoped that the Roman Catholic church might be strengthened to be able to continue its work in our Far Eastern insular possessions, Secretary of War Taft, in a speech before the laymen's missionary movement last night, roused his auditors to a rare degree of enthusiasm.

Currency Commission Favored

Washington, April 21.—The house committee on banking and currency voted to lay on the table the financial bill offered by Representative Vreeland as a substitute for the Aldrich bill and decided to report favorably the bill recently introduced by Chairman Fowler providing for a currency commission to consist of eleven members of the senate, eleven members of the house and twenty-one others, who must be citizens of the United States.

Fines For Three Ball Tossers

Cincinnati, April 21.—The National Baseball Commission has reinstated Players Garland, Stahl and Donlin, but fined each $100 for having participated in certain games with clubs or against clubs harboring ineligible players in Chicago during last season.

The Scrap Book

The Request Granted.

He was standing on a corner in the shopping district of New York waiting for a car when a woman, handsomely gowned and evidently a stranger, approached him and said hesitatingly:

"I wish to go to John Wanamaker's."

Instantly he replied in a tone of indulgent seriousness:

"Very well, you can go this time, but don't ever, ever ask me again!"

WASTED AFFECTION.

Talk not of wasted affection. Affection never was wasted.
If it enrich not the heart of another, its waters, returning
Back to their springs like the rain, shall fill them full of refreshment.
That which the fountain sends forth returns again to the fountain.
—Longfellow.

Doing His Best.

Two leading attorneys of Memphis, warm friends for years, happened to be opposing counsel in a case. The older was a man of magnificent physique, about six feet four and built in proportion, while the younger was barely five feet and weighed not more than ninety pounds.

In the course of his argument the big man unwittingly made some remark that aroused the ire of his adversary. A moment later he felt a tugging at his coattails. Looking down, he was astonished to see his opponent wildly gesticulating and dancing around him.

"What on earth are you trying to do there?" he asked.

"By Gawd, suh, I'm fighting, suh!"—Everybody's.

The Other Joshua.

In a southern federal court an old colored man was on trial, charged with running an illicit still.

"What is your name, sir?" asked the district attorney.

"Josh Hicks, sah."

"Are you the Joshua that made the sun stand still?"

"No, sah. I's de Joshua dat made de moon shine."

He Announced His Intentions.

A young man and his ladylove attended a protracted meeting which was being held in the village church. Arriving late, they found the church filled, but a gentleman gave the lady his seat, while the young man was ushered to a seat in another part of the building.

The service grew warm and impressive.

"Will those who want our prayers please stand up?" said the preacher.

At this juncture the young man thought it was getting late and he would get his sweetheart and go home, but not just knowing where she sat he rose to his feet and looked over the audience.

The minister, mistaking his intentions, asked, "Young man, are you seeking salvation?"

"No. I am looking for Sal Jackson!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Corrected, if Not Charged.

Some years ago a freshman at Dartmouth college called upon one of the professors and asked for medical advice. Having received it, he offered the usual fee, but it was refused with the explanation that students were never charged.

"Oh, I see. It would be too much like dog eat dog."

"Dog eat puppy," dryly corrected the professor.

An Easy One.

Ex-Senator Spooner tells of a case tried in a Wisconsin court in which, during the course of the cross examination of an exceptionally youthful looking physician, the opposing counsel was led to utter some rather sarcastic remarks as to the probability that so young a doctor should thoroughly understand his business.

"Are you," asked counsel, "acquainted with the symptoms of concussion of the brain?"

"I am."

"Then let us take a concrete case. If my learned friend, counsel for the defense, and myself were to bang our heads together, should we get concussion of the brain?"

"The probabilities are that counsel for the defense would!"

They Were Quits.

A city fellow while hunting went out into the country one day and lost his way, and as he was standing by a crossroad he saw a farmer a little way off. He walked over to the farmer and said, "Say, Pat, which road leads to the station?" "How do you know my name is Pat?" asked the farmer. "I guessed it," said the fellow. "Well," replied the farmer, "then guess the way to the station."—Judge's Library.

Inferences.

When a man fails to keep an appointment, infer that you are seeking the favor, not he.

When you hear an American lauding the institutions and customs of Europe and speaking slightingly of the United States, infer that he will never be president.

When you hear a man "dearing" and "darlinging" his wife in public, infer that he "damns" her at home.

When a woman prattles much about female rights, infer that she doesn't understand the meaning of household duties.

When you hear a spinster gushing over the many offers of marriage she has rejected, infer that she will snap at the first fellow who comes along.

When a critic is unjustly severe in condemning a literary production, infer that it has wounded his pride, vanity or self interest.

When a magazine returns a voluntary contribution, infer that the editor knows what he wants and you don't.

When an acquaintance invites you to take a drink, infer that he expects you to treat back.

When it is told about the clubs that you are the most popular poker player, infer that you are losing all the money.

When a man flatters you, infer that he takes you for a fool who is easily worked.

When an acquaintance whispers softly in your ear some dark secret, infer that he has spread it all over town.

When you lose your job, infer that it requires a search warrant to find a friend.—New York Press.

His "Character."

There is a story of a Scotch gentleman who had to dismiss his gardener for dishonesty. For the sake of the man's wife and family, however, he gave him a "character" and framed it in this way, "I hereby certify that A. B. has been my gardener for over two years and that during that time he got more out of the garden than any man I ever employed."—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Governor and His Band.

Ex-President Cleveland tells an experience he had when governor of New York.

There was a public meeting at one of the theaters to which the governor and his staff were invited. The staff put on their most gorgeous uniforms. There were fifteen or sixteen of them, and they were resplendent in gold lace and cord.

When the party reached the theater entrance they found so many people there that somebody suggested they should go around and enter by the stage door.

They encountered a stolid stage door keeper, who had been at his post for years and was used to the wiles of people who try to get behind the scenes.

"Can't get in here," he said gruffly.

"But I am the governor."

The door keeper looked the governor over carefully. Apparently he recognized him, for he said, "All right, governor, you can go in."

Then he waved his hand at the gaudy staff and announced, "The band must go around the other way."

Mark Misjudged.

When Mark Twain was a young and struggling newspaper writer for the Atlantic County Herald in New York city a lady of his acquaintance saw him one day, with a cigar box under his arm, looking in a shop window.

"Mr. Clemens," she said, "I always see you with a cigar box under your arm. I am afraid you are smoking too much."

"It isn't that," said Mark. "I'm moving again."

Only the Runner Up.

The best man thought he'd take a look around and see that everything was running as a fastidious bride would wish it, and up in the room where the presents were displayed, alone and unhappy looking, he came upon a youth, seemingly ready, like the wedding guest of the English poet, to "beat his breast." He was wandering about, looking at silver and cut glass without seeing them, and the best man hardly knew how to approach him.

"Er—have you kissed the bride?" he asked at last.

And the answer told far more than its two meager words might have been expected to. It was "Not lately!"—Lippincott's.

On Papa's Side Only.

"Mamma, our teacher says I'm descended from a monkey."

His mother (glancing severely at her husband)—Not on my side, darling.

Not Quite the Same.

Having arrived at that point in the baptismal service where the infant's name is conferred, the clergyman said, "Name this child."

"Original Story," said the sponsor nurse.

"What do you say?" he asked in surprise.

"Original Story," she repeated.

"It's a very odd name. Are you sure you want him called by the name of Original Story?"

"Original Story—that's right."

"Is it a family name?"

"Named after his uncle, sir," explained the nurse.

Original Story the little fellow was christened. Some weeks after this event the minister made the acquaintance of the said uncle, a farm laborer in another village, whose name was Reginald Story.

The Painter's Way.

When a painter has taken up the parlor carpet, removed the furniture from the dining room, leaned two ladders against the hall mantel and stacked a half dozen variegated cans of paint on the sideboard, it means he is now ready to paint the outside shutters and the back fence.—Mark Twain.

Crockett and the Mules.

It is told of the famous Davy Crockett that one day while standing on Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, a swarm of mules trotted by under the custody of an overseer from one of the stock farms in Virginia. A congressman from Boston attracted Crockett's attention to the unusual sight, saying: "Hello, there, Crockett! Here's a lot of your constituents on parade. Where are they going?"

Crockett looked at the animals with a quizzical glance and answered quietly, "They are going to Massachusetts to teach school."

HARNESS OUTLOOK.

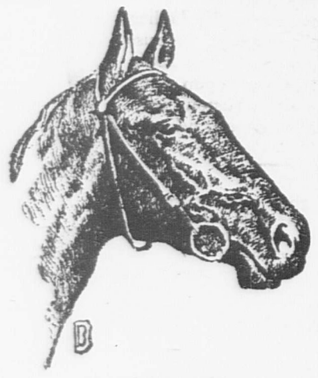
A Prosperous Season For Trotters and Pacers Anticipated.

MANY RICH STAKES OFFERED

Racing Associations Most Liberal In Giving Big Prizes For the Grand Circuit—The Great Western and Independent Meetings.

In spite of the cry that the harness racing game is on the down grade, well posted authorities claim that never before in the history of the sport has the outlook been so bright for a successful season as it is for the meetings of 1908. Seldom if ever have owners and trainers had occasion to look forward to such a profitable year.

The announcement of the prominent racing associations through the country show a great number of rich purses to be offered, with the conditions along most liberal lines. Not only is this the case down the grand circuit, but on the great western circuit and at independent meetings as well.



SHAUGHRAN, 2:08¼.

Beginning with the blue ribbon meeting in Detroit, there will be, as usual, the $10,000 Merchants and Manufacturers' stake for 2:24 class trotters and the $5,000 Chamber of Commerce stake for 2:07 pacers. Kalamazoo celebrates its annexation to the select circuit by offering $23,000 worth of stakes. The Michigan city will give a $10,000 stake and $3,000 for trotters, besides $5,000, $3,000 and $2,000 stakes for pacers. This, with the various purse events, will make a very elaborate programme.

Buffalo will again give the Dominion of Canada $10,000 for pacers and the $10,000 Empire State stake for trotters in addition to a number of $2,000 stakes, while Poughkeepsie will hang up the Oakland Baron $4,000 stake for trotters, as usual.

Readville expects to have a fine programme and will probably give the $9,000 Massachusetts stake for trotters, the $40,000 Pokapoag, the $45,000 Blue Hill, the $6,000 Norfolk and the $3,000 Readville stakes, the same as last year.

Hartford will renew the $10,000 Charter Oak stake and the $5,000 Nutmeg stake, which are well known throughout the country, while if Providence decides to give a meeting, which is a trifle doubtful just now, the $5,000 Park Brew stake for free-for-all pacers and the $5,000 Roger Williams stake for trotters will be on its programme.

Syracuse is expected to be in line with three big stakes, as was the case last season. The well known $10,000 Empire State race, the $5,000 Syracuse and the $3,000 Chamber of Commerce stakes for trotters will be the headliners on the programme.

At Columbus the association has just decided to hang up $100,000 in stakes and purses to race for, making it the richest meeting in the country for the horsemen. During the two weeks there are two $10,000 stakes, the Hoster-Columbus and the Board of Trade and Bankers' stakes, three $5,000 stakes and two $3,000 stakes. In addition, the Kentucky Futurities, worth $7,500, will be raced the first week and the Chicago Horse Review, the futurity worth $10,000, the second week. Then there is $40,500 in purses and $1,000 for a special race. The Board of Trade and Bankers' stake is the only one in the country where the money goes six ways without a consolation.

The cities on the great western circuit are giving larger stakes each year, and several $10,000 purses will be raced for by the western horses this season. Hamline will hang up $40,000 in stakes, while Peoria will give $30,000, and at Libertyville some big stakes, including one of $10,000, will be attractive features on the programmes. All in all this season will be a hummer and is being looked forward to with much interest because of the fact that a large number of high class horses will be in training to make the racing good.

Malarkey's New Drop Ball.

Malarkey, the New York National league team's pitching recruit, is said to have a drop ball that is a puzzler. He used it in practice the other day, and it made a hit with McGraw.

Hanlon May Return to Ring.

Eddie Hanlon, who retired from the ring two years ago after some great battles, is working hard to get into the game again.

Jennings Practicing New Battle Cry.

They say Hughey Jennings is practicing a new battle cry on the training trip.

New Stomachs Made Out of Old Ones

New York, April 20. The remarkable results that are being accomplished in this city by L. T. Cooper have become a topic of universal interest during the past week.

Reports that preceded his visit to this city told of Mr. Cooper's great success in Boston. But the man and his medicine did not attract widespread attention until the beginning of his second week here. Then the interest in him became very noticeable and has steadily gathered headway until his preparations are now being sold in enormous quantities, and his headquarters is a most interesting place to spend a half-hour.

People are coming from all parts of the city and surrounding towns to see him. The young man and his assistants are surrounded by swarms of humanity from early until late—some to tell what has been accomplished for them by the Cooper medicines; others to buy the remedies.

Perhaps nothing has done more to arouse this interest than Mr. Cooper's statement regarding the human stomach. At the commencement of his visit to this city, he claimed that the stomach is responsible for much of the ill health of this generation and that his New Discovery medicine would prove his theory to be correct.

This statement seems to have been completely verified. During the past two weeks hundreds of people who have been taking the Cooper preparation have been relieved of various ills. In consequence, Cooper and his theories have been growing into greater prominence each day.

Many of those who called at his headquarters yesterday had taken the New Discovery medicine for various forms of stomach trouble and made statements as to results obtained by them.

A statement of this character, which is almost identical with all those given by people who have had the same experiences, is given by S. J. Simpson, living at 979 President Street, Brooklyn, who said: "According to my experience this man Cooper is justified in his claims that his medicine will actually put the stomach in good condition. I have had chronic stomach trouble for years past. My stomach seemed to give out completely in August, 1906, and I have been able to eat next to nothing since.

"I have not taken the slightest enjoyment in living. I have been so depressed by my condition. Neither physicians nor medicine helped me, and it was only by the most careful diet I was able to retain any food whatever. For the past seven months I have not eaten a particle of meat. In the most skeptical frame of mind possible I called at the Riker store to see Mr. Cooper two weeks ago. I had not the smallest hope his medicine would help me as I had given up hope during the past year. I obtained some of the medicine and began its use. Today I am apparently as well as ever. I obtained relief so rapidly that it is positively wonderful. I am in good spirits, eat heartily, sleep well and am better in every way. I am convinced that the success this man is having in New York is richly deserved."

The introduction of these new preparations in New York has been remarkably successful, and they seem to be growing more popular each day.

Statements Affecting Big Men

Washington, April 21.—Mr. Sims of Tennessee, in the course of a discussion of the conference report on the District of Columbia street railway trackage bill in the house, declared that certain men were connected with the road who, it was thought, wielded an influence over congress. One senator, he said, was a member of the committee of the District of Columbia which has control of street car matters in the district and owned Capital Traction stock of a face value of $120,000. He also said that Mr. Loeb, the president's secretary, has in his name 4700 shares of the Washington Railway and Electric company of the face value of $470,000.

Jackies and Officers Entertained

Los Angeles, Cal., April 21.—A long day of merry-making by sailors of the American battleship fleet, boxing matches, barbecues, baseball games and wild-west shows being included in the entertainment provided by the city, was brought to a close last night with two big banquets, one to the petty officers and the other to the admirals and commanding officers of the fleet and members of their staffs.

Watterson's Prediction

New York, April 21.—Colonel Watterson, discussing the Republican situation, said that Taft would be nominated. Concerning President Roosevelt, he said: "I left Washington convinced that the president will not accept the renomination. I believe that if the convention should be stampeded to him he would insst that it be called together again and nominate another man."

House Backs Speaker's Ruling

Washington, April 21.—With the exception of Messrs. Cooper and Nelson of Wisconsin, Republicans, the house of representatives, by a strict party vote, declared that the action of Speaker Cannon last Saturday in summarily adjourning the house was not "a breach of the privilege of the house affecting its safety, dignity and the integrity of its proceedings."

Fleet to Check Boycott

Shanghai, April 21.—A Japanese squadron, including the most powerful battleships, five armored cruisers and several destroyers, in all fifteen ships, will proceed to southern Chinese waters, visiting Foo Chow, Amoy and Canton, ostensibly for a friendly visit, but, it is believed, in reality to impress the Chinese and check the anti-Japanese boycott.

Taft Resolutions Turned Down

Winnemucca, Nev., April 21.—The Republican state convention selected delegates to the national convention and rejected resolutions instructing for Taft for president, by a vote of 84 to 26. The platform endorses the administration of President Roosevelt.

Lipton's New Yacht Launched

London, April 21.—Sir Thomas Lipton's new racing yacht, Shamrock IV, was launched at Fife's yard at Fairlie, Ayrshire. The new yacht will be commanded by Captain Sycamore and is to compete in the British regattas of 1908.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Venezuela has placed an embargo on Cuban tobacco.

Fire risks, aggregating $5,440,407,457, were written by fire insurance companies in the state of New York during 1907. This is an increase of $261,700,070 as compared with the preceding year.

President Roosevelt has directed that a memorial oak be sent to East Haven, Conn., and planted on the site of General Lafayette's camp which was occupied during the war with Great Britain. The oak will be planted on Arbor day.

Charles A. Gordon, 86, and his housekeeper, Mrs. Eva McCoach, 56, were married at Colorado Springs, Col. Gordon has buried three wives.

"I KIN WORK IT."

A busy Lawrencian recently added a telephone to the modern improvements at his home. He has four happy children, all of them young, to whom the 'phone was new and who regarded it with awe. One of the kids is a boy of four. He watched the older people call up "Central" and communicate with friends at distant points and yearned to do likewise.

His mother chanced to be absent from home for an hour or so on a recent afternoon. The other children were out somewhere. He was alone. For a half hour he watched the telephone, then climbed up and took the receiver of the 'phone off the hook just as he had seen older people do. By that time he was trembling, but his courage was as strong as chilled steel.

"Number?" he heard a sweet voice inquire. For a moment he was startled, but he conquered a desire to drop the receiver and run and shouted bravely, "I want my pop!"

"Central" must have recognized the voice as that of a child. She promptly inquired, "Who is your papa?"

The little fellow knew enough to tell her, and it was but a matter of a few moments to ascertain the number of the busy Lawrencian's business 'phone and connect the four-year-old.

"Hello?" answered the busy citizen, turning away from a desk overburdened with papers and things.

"Oh, pop, I kin work it!" was the joyful little shout that answered him, and the busy citizen was just as proud and as pleased as the four-year-old of the other end of the line when the brief conversation ceased and the boy, obeying instructions given over the wire, hung up the receiver and awaited the home-coming of mamma to tell her of his conquest.—Lawrence Tribune.

¶ MORAL—If you are a travelling man, and have a wife and children at home, picture their pleasure at hearing your voice before they go to bed.

A Man of High Degree.

[Original.]

Arthur Leighton at school constantly led his classes. His father was poor, and Arthur's prospects for getting more than a school education were not encouraging when an aunt died and left him an annuity of $2,000 so long as he remained a student in a university which she designated.

Arthur was eighteen and a half when he entered college. He passed a splendid examination and was picked out for head of his class. His friend Edwin Tyler, entered the same year, managed to scrape through the entrance examination and was picked out for the foot of the class. At the high school from which the two young men went to college was Beatrice Ford, a young lady of sixteen, to whom both were devoted. The brilliant Leighton, however, was far in the lead, and there was an understanding between him and Beatrice that when he was graduated they should be engaged.

During the first year Arthur Leighton took most of the prizes offered, while Ned Tyler barely maintained a small fraction over a rating which would throw him out of college. Tyler was somewhat prominent in athletics, but he was especially interested in class politics. Not being sufficiently scholarly to warrant his appropriating any of the "appointments" to himself, he distributed them among those supposed to be fitted for them. Indeed, he was what might be called the class "boss." But in the middle of the second year even this ignoble distinction was denied him, for he was caught one night hoisting a calf into the belfry and expelled.

Leighton was graduated at the head of his class. He had spent every vacation with Beatrice Ford, had corresponded with her and on his graduation they became formally engaged. Arthur was very much puzzled in the choice of a career. He was so versatile, he seemed fitted for so many different fields, that he was drawn in as many different directions. When the summer had passed he had not decided. If by the first of October following he did not return to college he would find himself without an income. He concluded to enter for a postgraduate course, during which he would make up his mind as to his future course. Had there been a law school at his alma mater he would have become a lawyer, for he could have studied the profession there, receiving the annuity. But there was no law school at the university, and by the terms of the will he must study there, and there only.

Meanwhile Ned Tyler continued his downward course—so some of his friends expressed it—by hunting up scraps of news and selling them to newspapers. There seemed only one occupation lower than this, and he fell into that too. He became a political ward manager. He had the while been steadfast in his love for Beatrice Ford, though she was preoccupied with his rival. One day after an election she saw his name in the list of successful candidates for the legislature. "How fortunate," she said, "that I chose Arthur! I always feared that Ned would 'go down hill.'"

At the end of another year Leighton found himself in a position to lose the benefit of his course of study unless he finished it, which would take another year. Besides, the moment he ceased to be a student at the university his income would cease. He consulted with Beatrice, who declined to advise him. He continued the course, and when the second year was finished, being still in the same position, took a third year.

Beatrice did not lack decision, and when Arthur entered for the third year his postgraduate course she broke the engagement. This nearly broke his heart as well, but he was getting too old to study a profession, had no taste for business, and his only way of making a living seemed to be by remaining a student. The consequence was that when the seventh year of his studies expired he entered for the degree of bachelor of philosophy, which required an additional five years' course.

Meanwhile Edwin Tyler, being obliged to get up on his feet occasionally and talk to his fellow legislators, gradually attained the reputation of saying more to the point in fewer words than any of them. He was nominated for lieutenant governor and elected. The governor died, and Tyler became governor. While he occupied the latter office, hearing that his old sweetheart was disengaged, he proposed again.

Beatrice had seen one of her lovers begin high and remain on the same level, which means to sink. Another began low and climbed steadily upward. She objected to being the wife of a perpetual college boy, but was not averse to being the wife of a governor. She had waited seven years for the college boy and was now old enough to banish some of the sentiment of early maidenhood and appreciate real success. So she decided to take the man who she once considered was "going down hill," and now before the marriage has taken place the governor has his pipe laid for his election to the United States senate.

Arthur Leighton is coming to the end of his fifth year as a student for the degree of bachelor of philosophy, his twelfth at college, and, like Alexander, who wept because there were no more nations for him to conquer, is troubled because there are no more degrees for him to study for. He is getting gray about the temples and has bent over books so long that he stoops like an old man. The undergraduates maintain that he has been there ever since the institution was founded, two or three centuries ago.

Express Permits the Important Business

The general expectation is that there will be something doing at tonight's meeting of the City Council. It is expected by nearly everybody that the Mayor will veto some if not all of the liquor transportation permits granted by the City Council two weeks ago.

In addition to this the Committee on Licenses have thirteen other applications before them, upon which a report of some kind may be expected.

These matters are likely to cause more or less debate and a long session is looked for.

Arbor Day Next Saturday

Saturday, April 25, will be Arbor Day in Massachusetts, according to the following proclamation issued by Acting Governor Draper:

"In accordance with the provisions of section 16 of chapter 53 of the revised laws, I designate Saturday, April 25, as Arbor Day:

"The commonwealth is spending large sums of money to save its trees from the ravages of gypsy and brown-tail moths; is giving a great deal of attention, work and money to reforestation; and is distributing forest tree seeds and seedlings to large numbers of schools and land owners. It is estimated that practically a million or more forest seedlings will be set out in Massachusetts this spring. Literature has been sent out by the state forester and great interest has been taken by the commonwealth in the most important works of planing and improving the trees.

"I take this opportunity to call the attention of the city and town governments to the desirability of taking such favorable action as they may toward improving the shade trees in quality and increasing their number.

"I ask the people of the commonwealth to act in co-operation and sympathy with this idea, and suggest that any time they may give as individuals to help this cause will be well spent. Any persons who do assist in this good work, will deserve and receive the thanks of their children's children."

Patriotic Program By the W. R. C.

Patriots' day was observed by W. R. C. 103 at G. A. R. hall. Mrs. Eliza A. Penniman patriotic instructor, presided. The exercises opened with singing of "America," reading of scriptures by Mrs. Holmes, and Lord's Prayer in unison. Then followed reading of Paul Revere's Ride by Mrs. Edith B. Wolfe, and readings appropriate were given by Mrs. Nott, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Powers and Vice Commander Phillips. Pleasing remarks were made by Commander Williams of Post 88, and Mrs. Holmes, past president of Corps 103. Exercises closed with singing "Star Spangled Banner" and giving flag salute. Mrs. Laura Holt accompanist. Among Grand Army men present were Comrades Richardson, Bird, Dunbar, Cummings, Pierce and Studley.

All pastors of Quincy churches are requested to forward their calendars each week to the Daily Ledger. We are anxious to get the news from all the churches and organizations connected with the churches.

—The 40th anniversary of the incorporation of Hyde Park will be celebrated by a banquet on Wednesday evening in the Waverly Opera House. Lieut. Gov. Draper has been invited to make an address.

—Boston's three largest conflagrations were Nov. 9, 1872; Nov. 28, 1889, and March 11, 1893. The estimated losses were $154,500,000.

JOYOUS EASTER

Very Large Congregations At Most of the Church Services

CHRIST CHURCH.

The Easter services at Christ church were largely attended. More were out to the 7.30 A. M. communion than at the 10.30. The Sunday school filled the church again at 3 P. M. when there was a pleasing service. Rev. W. E. Gardner, the rector, caused the picture of a large dog to be displayed, and the children were much interested in the story it told. It was the picture of an iron dog sent to a missionary in India which had converted many to christianity. During Lent the children have been saving their pennies in mite boxes, and these boxes made quite a pile when the offering was taken for missions. The rector expected $150,000 would be raised by the Episcopal churches of the United States on Easter for missions. At the close of the service a potted plant was presented to each child present. The evening prayer at 7 o'clock was largely attended.

FIRST CHURCH.

was in the audience.

There was a large attendance Sunday morning at the Easter service at First church. Music was a special feature the quartet being enlarged to a double quartet, which rendered beautiful anthems and solos, Gounod's "Sanctus" being especially well sung. Easter lilies adorned the pulpit. Following the regular service, a communion service was held.

A very successful Easter service was held by the Sunday school at 4 P. M., Supt. C. H. Johnson having arranged a pleasing program. First came the processional when the children marched in from the chapel. Then followed carols, responsive readings, prayer in concert, selections by Marion White, Marie Schenkelberger, Ella Packard, and Fred Schenkelberger and the canticle of remembrance. Supt. Johnson spoke of the "Joy of Easter,' followed by an Easter offering for the Children's Mission. Potted plants were presented to each member of the school. Rev. Dr. Hardy of Bethany church

BETHANY CHURCH.

The people of Bethany church had reason to be thankful at the Easter season that their edifice had been saved from fire. Late the night before, while a half dozen young men were in the chapel making arrangements for the C. E. convention, a brisk fire was discovered in the blind attice over the primary room. Fortunately there were fire extinguishers at hand and the young men knew how to use them, for they went actively to work. Their prompt work saved the church, but not until some of the timbers were badly charred.

At both the morning and evening services it was necessary to open the balcony to accommodate the large congregations. A rich musical program was presented by the large chorus choir assisted by Mme. Morey as organist, F. S. Hall as violinist, and a pianist. The instrumental numbers were particularly good. The pastor's sermon was an Easter theme. Dr. Hardy also acknowledged the gift of a communion table, the donor requesting that his name should not be made public.

At 6 P. M. the Sunday school gave a pleasing Easter concert under the direction of W. E. Blanchard. It included 25 numbers, a processional, scripture reading, prayer, solos, duetts, exercises, recitations, songs, etc. An illustrated song was one of the features and the Lord's Prayer was sung to the tune of "Home Sweet Home."

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH.

There was a good attendance on Saturday afternoon at the children's festival at the Universalist church. The children gave a little play that was very pleasing, and they had an enjoyable time. The proceeds of the festival were to purchase flowers for Easter Sunday, and a good sum was realized.

All of the regular services at the Universalist church on Sunday was combined into one at 3 o'clock which was largely attended. There was special music by the choir. Rev. W S. Perkins, D. D., preached an Easter sermon, after which communion was held, at which two persons were taken into the church.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

A special Easter musical program with an Easter sermon by Rev. Henry G. Spaulding, was held Sunday morning, at the Wollaston Unitarian. The floral decorations consisted largely of Easter lilies, which were grouped about the desk. Immediately after the morning service there was a communion service. At the Sunday school which was held at 12.10, there was a special Easter service with songs and recitations by the pupils of the school.

AT QUINCY POINT.

The Point church was crowded to its utmost seating capacity at both the morning and evening services of Easter day. At the morning service the music by the choir was of an unusually high order and well rendered. Herr Lars Fjallback rendered a violin solo. Rev. A. R. Atwood spoke instructively upon the resurrections in modern life today. The church was prettily decorated by the "Priscillas" and the "Sunshine Band." In the evening, the Sunday school gave a concert, under the direction of Supt. Sherburne. There were interesting exercises by the different departments, the kindergarten and primary and intermediate and adult. Both Sunday school and church have contributed toward the relief of Chelsea.

ATLANTIC MEMORIAL.

A very pleasing and largely attended Easter concert was given at the Atlantic Memorial church Sunday evening under the direction of Mrs. W. G. Young and Mrs. Bean. The program, which was a lengthy one, included songs by the Sunday school recitations by Esther Hamm, Annabelle Brown, Grace Anderson, Lawrence Gayton, May Dexter, James Kennedy, Lucy Whittier, Ruth Osgood, Clara Von Emden and Marion Newcomb. Also solos by Nettie D. Coombs, May Knapp, Edith Stocker, Walter DeWolfe and Mrs. L. J. Childs; duet by Ouida Keay and May Knapp; several class recitations; and an address by the pastor, Rev. Henry A. Coolidge.

AT SNUG HARBOR.

Easter exercises at the Sailors' Snug Harbor were in keeping with the day. The chapel has recently been renovated under the direction of Captain Howes. The decorations were by Mrs. Howes. Mr. James Davis had charge of the Easter music and a quartet rendered: "Up from the grave, He arose," "Dying with Jesus," "Jesus, my Saviour," "Jesus, my Friend," Jesus, my Leader," "Thou the Spring of all my Comforl." The chaplain, Rev. A. R. Atwood, took for his Easter topic, "Come forth, into noble manhood."

A Democrat Asks Fair Play

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Ordinarily anonymous letters may well be ignored, but the cowardly attack on the Democratic party contained in the letter published in Saturday's Ledger, signed "Old Home," is such an obviously unfair piece of political trickery that the writer believes its refutation would not be out of place.

The author of the article apparently forgets that the socalled "notorious application" was favored by no less than eight Republican members of the City Council, four of whom represent the home ward of the applicant in question, and consequently may be assumed to be fairly familiar with his qualifications.

The intelligent citizen knows that the Democratic pary is represented by a small minority in the City Council, seven in number, and will certainly not hold that minority exclusively responsible, assuming that any responsibility exists in this particular instance. It would seem that "Old Home" has little reason to fear that a "Clean business administration of city affairs" will not be given if his cause of complaint is the action of part of the Democratic minority on one express license out of eleven recommended by the committee on licenses, two of whose three members are Republicans.

Fair play, "Old Home," and the severance of petty politics from your alleged cause will accomplish more than the use of such methods as you have adopted. Respectfully,

Charles J. McGilvray.

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

The public schools reopened today, after a week's vacation.

Frank E. Parlin visited his camp in New Hampshire last week.

Among the recent inventions granted last week at Washington was one to W. T. Richards of Quincy on lacing hook.

The comedy "An Uuimportant address" will be presented in two acts at Colonial hall this evening by local amateur talent.

Democratic caucuses to chose delegates to the State and Congressional conventions will be held tomorrow ing.

"The man of the house" was busy on the holiday making his estate more attractive, in anticipation of a visit by the Assessors in two weeks.

The attractions at the "County Fair" at Wollaston Unitarian vestry on the holiday amused a large number. There were several side shows with marvelous features.

The First Parish Sunday school of this city will be represented tomorrow at the anniversary banquet of the Boston Sunday School Union at Dr. Hale's church.

Several of the local pastors in their pulpits on Sudnay urged members of the congregations to use their influence to limit the number of express permits issued by the city this year.

The battleship Vermont built at Quincy was one of the first battleships to arrive at Los Angelos on Saturday. About 300,000 people assembled to greet the U. S. battleships.

The holiday weather was a disappointment. The morning was threatening and chilly. There was a little now squall at noon, and some rain in the afternoon.

Seven young ladies and one man are taking the civil service examination for clerical services today in Quincy, and four men for the position of foremen.

The Ladies' Circle of Bethany church will have an all-day sewing meeting tomorrow, from 10 to 4 and will forward a barrel of clothing to the Chelsea sufferers.

City Council this evening, and the attendance will probably be larger than on Inauguration day. Hundreds are anxious to learn what the Mayor will do with the express permits.

City Missions will be the subject at the Women's Missionary meeting at Bethany church tomorrow, and there will be reports on Chinese Missions in Boston, the Florence Crittenton Mission and the Jerry McAuley Mission.

Next Sunday morning the pastor, organist and choir of Bethany church will exchange with the pastor, organist and choir of the First Congregational church of Barintree, when their Easter music will be repeated.

Friends of L. H. Gilson are glad to know that he is recovering from injuries received on the train coming from Portland, Me., to Boston. An operation was found necessary, and proved very successful. His many friends are now looking for a speedy recovery.

If the lady who picked up a little purse on Hancock street near the bakery on Saturday will bring it to the Daily Ledger office she will make a newsboy happy. It contained less than a dollar in change, but that was considerable to the boy.

Chief of Police Roughly Handled

Chief Burrell was roughly used Monday evening by an Englishman named Frederick Harrison of Beacon street. It appears that Harrison and two other men were creating a disturbance in front of the Chief's home on Washington street, and he went out and ordered them off. Finding that Harrison was too much under the influence of liquor to take care of himself he ordered him to step one side. Without warning the man kicked the Chief in the stomach, doubling him up and before he could recover himself Harrison kicked him in the mouth and head. He then ran up Washington street. The police station was notified by telephone and the wagon sent out to head him off. The wagon caught the fellow in City square. Chief Burrell is more than a match for Harrison, but was caught unawares.

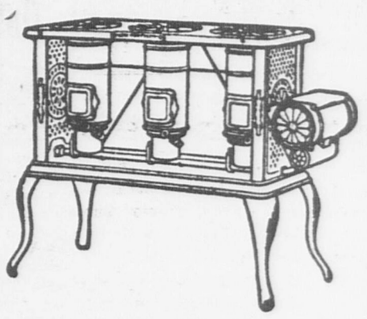
Let the Coal Fire Go Out



A reasonably cool and pleasant place for kitchen work is the blessing enjoyed by every housewife who possesses a New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove.

At the first suggestion of summer weather, let the range fire die out, set a

Appeal From A Mother

Editors of Daily Ledger:

In the name of the women and children of Quincy, I protest against the granting of any kind of a liquor transportation license to any kind of an expressman,—whether he drives an auto-wagon or a bargain horse with a spring-halt. I know what I am talking about. It makes no difference whether the liquor brought here puts a husband and father to bed between white muslin sheets, or on the kitchen floor. Whether he puts his limp legs into silk pajamas and his muddled head on an embroidered pillow, or lies upon the floor behind the kitchen stove. It has been my misfortune to see much of the bodily and mental suffering of the intemperate laboring man's wife and children.

Within the past few weeks Chief Burrell has raided and wiped out three of these cooperative kitchen bar-rooms stocked by a liquor express license. After these were annihilated there seemed some hope for a little home which they had nearly wrecked. A new life begun in it. The father started on steady work, the mother put up new white curtains and scoured the floors stained by the emptying of a man's liquor loaded stomach. The children never expected again to be hungry or cold or beaten. Alas! another liquor license made the way easy for a fall. The man of the house spent the money of Saturday in a Sunday visit nearby, and came home, reeling, fighting drunk. Disheartened and ashamed he has left for parts unknown, and his family is now a public charge. This is only one of many similar instances possible and authentic.

The inconsistency of the methods of combating the liquor evil in this country is a disgrace to the American flag. From an economic standpoint alone it is absurd. We vote no-license and accept money to make that vote of no real effect. Or do we sell the privilege to deal in liquor, and then use twice more than the amount received to take care of the wrecks liquor makes.

Gentlemen of the Council! If the moral side of this question does not appeal to you, look at it as good business men. T. W. R.

The Morning Fire.

The alarm from Box 45 at 8.55 this morning was for a slight fire at the engine house and office at the quarry of J. S. Swingle on the hill back of the West Quincy depot. The fire which probably started from chimney sparks was discovered by the foremen at the quarry, who had the fire under control by the time the department arrived. There was but little damage.

Serious Assault.

Benjamin M. Dionne, aged 27 years, of 67 Trafford street, was arrested Monday afternoon by Special officer Goodhue for alleged assault on Minnie, the 14-year old daughter of Louis Schlager of 86 West street; at store of William Reipke on Liberty street where she is employed. She was alone in the store when Dionne entered. In court he was held in heavy bonds.

Benefit Lecture In Aid of Chelsea

A substantial sum was realized at the benefit lecture given by Charles H. Johnson at Colonial hall on the night of the holiday for the benefit of the Chelsea sufferers. Enough tickets were sold to fill the hall several times, but fortunately many did not seek admission.

Mayor Shea presided and told of the need of greater effort to relief the needs of Chelsea people. He also thanked Mr. Johnson for his kind offer to give his lecture free for the cause.

Mr. Johnson, when introduced, complimented the Mayor on his prompt efforts for the aid of Chelsea, and said he had proved that he could be depended on in times of emergency.

The lecture is familiar to many, but Quincy people should never tire in hearing their city, its history, its great men, its large enterprises, etc., presented so ably, and so beautifully and clearly illustrated. Mr. Johnson has certainly entertainment for all in "Historic Quincy—past and present."

Enthusiastic Convention

mittee and adjournment for lunch which was served in the chapel by the Norfolk Uunion.

The afternoon session opened at 1.45 o'clock with Miss Ina M. D. Liddell of Readville, the county secretary presiding and with a much larger attendance than at the morning session. There was an interesting address on State work by George E. Copeland of Worcester the State president. This was followed by a song and the convention chorus rendered the Festival Te Deum in C by Dudley Buck.

At 2.30 there was a devotional service conducted by Rev. Charles F. Echterbecker of Hyde Park, which was followed by a pleasing solo "My Redeemer, My Lord" by Mrs. Emma S. Moore, and an address by Rev. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy, pastor of the church.

Then followed a question box conducted by Rev. James Alexander of Boston, singing, and an address on "The Charm of the Impossible" by Miss Margaret Slattery of Fitchburg who always has something of interest for Christian Endeavorers.

The closing anthem was "Lord God Almighty," the solo being sung by J. S. Whyte. The musical program was under the direction of Mme. Morey, the church organist, and was unusually good. Much credit is also due Miss Bertha Hanson the pianist for the brilliant and clear technique, and to F. S. Hall the violinist.

The banquet at 6 P. M. was one of the attractive events of the day, over 300 being served. Rev. Dr. Hardy was toastmaster and there was opportunity for remarks by Miss Liddell, Melville Hayward, Rev. William Macnair and Dr. Alexander.

The evening service was presided over by A. J. Barnard of Quincy, assistant secretary, and opened with a service of song and a devotional service led by Rev. William Macnair of Mansfield. This was followed by an election of officers at which Miss Ina M. D. Liddell of Readville was reelected county secretary, and A. J. Barnard of Quincy as assistant secretary.

The address of the evening was by Rev. Fay Smith of Northfield. He enlarged upon these thoughts—an age of cooperation, an age of individual opportunity, an age of young people, an age of personal work, an age of religious indifference, and an age of materialism.

Rev. John Reid of Franklin spoke the parting word, termed the consecration service, urging personal effort in reaching out to save others and of the joy in the work.

The music at this service was of a high order. There was a duett with auto harp accompaniment "Looking this way" by F. S. Hall and J. S. Whyte. Also a solo, duett and chorus by Miss Rose Deane and Miss Bertha Carlson. The crowning number was the anthem "Unfold ye Portals" from the Redemption.

The adjournment was reached shortly after nine, and a social hour followed.

The Quincy societies are to be congratulated on the perfect arrangements which they made for the convention and the grand success.

A home grown variety of common sense is the best thing in the world to keep you out of trouble.

Knew Them.

"Any particular brand?" asked the clerk as the new customer leaned over the cigar case.

"No," said the new customer with an air of resignation. "Just give me about 2 cents' worth of tobacco and 8 cents' worth of band, and I guess that will about average up with what I have been smoking."

ADVERTISE REAL ESTATE

IN DAILY LEDGER.

In the Drinking Days.

A once well known individual who had lived every day of his life and gained from it a great experience left the following advice—and little else—to his sons: "Drink slow; do not mix your liquor; never sit with your backs to the fire." It was an excellent precept for the era in which it was given—the times when the dining room door was kept locked that there might be no shirking the claret and when the only chance at the circuit mess of escaping intoxication was to drop under the table "like the rest," as Lord Cockburn tells us he did, and lie quiet—nay, even when our judges resented that discredit should be brought on drinking by misconduct. Everybody drank, and much too much, in those days, but especially the upper classes. A well known politician discharged his coachman for overturning him in his carriage. "I had certainly drunk too much, sir," urged the poor man, "but I was not very drunk, and gentlemen, you know, sometimes get drunk." "I don't say you were very drunk for a gentleman," returned his master, "but you were exceedingly drunk for a coachman!"—London Illustrated News.

Cage For a Queen Bee.

When a queen bee becomes unproductive through old age, it is necessary for the bee keeper to supply the colony of bees with a new queen. This he does in the following manner: The old queen is removed from the hive and the bees are left alone for about twelve hours or longer, during which time they find out that they are queenless. The new queen is then put into a cage made of wood and wire cloth, with an opening through one end. This opening is filled tight with a mixture of honey and sugar. The cage thus prepared is laid upon the tops of the frames in the hive. The bees soon discover the new queen in the cage and set to work upon the honey and sugar. In the hive bees recognize friends and strangers by their sense of smell, and a strange queen entering a hive would be very quickly killed by the bees. By the time the queen is liberated from the cage she has acquired the scent of the hive and is therefore no longer a stranger.—London Globe.

Eccentric Editions of Books.

Mr. George Somes Layard in a book entitled "Suppressed Plates, Wood Engravings, Etc.," writes of the ridiculous people who value such books as the first issue of the first edition of Dickens' "American Notes" just because there is a mistake in the pagination, or a first edition of Disraeli's "Lothair" because the prototype of "Mgr. Catesby" is divulged by misprinting the name "Capel," or "Poems by Robert Burns," first Edinburgh edition, because the Duke of Roxborough appears as "the Duke of Boxborough," or Barker's "Breeches" Bible of 1594 because on the title page of the New Testament the figures are transposed to 1495, or the first edition in French of Washington Irving's "Sketch-Book" because the translator, maltreating the author's name, has declared the book to "traduit de l'Anglais de M. Irwin Washington," and in the dedication has labeled Sir Walter Scott "barronnet."

Cornish Humor.

The magistrate at the Liskeard police court might well have excused the laughter which greeted the remark of a police witness only a short time ago who said with all seriousness: "He was drunk, your honor, and couldn't stand. I told him to go away, and as he wouldn't I locked him up."

The laugh in another court was against the solicitor who severely asked, "Were you present when you heard this?"

Mixed metaphors are not a peculiar nor indeed a common failing of the Cornishman, but a certain eloquent town councilor quite recently got entangled when in the course of a protracted debate on the momentous subject of the local dust bins he declared indignantly, "It is time we put our foot down with a loud voice."—English Illustrated Magazine.

A Fair Jury.

In a suit some years ago between father and son before an Indiana justice of the peace the sextet comprising the jury came in after three hours' deliberation with the following impartial verdict: "We, the jury, agree to find judgment for neither plaintiff nor defendant and find that each pay half the costs." It is said the verdict struck every one as being so unusually fair that even the parties to the action were satisfied.—Case and Comment.

Fooled.

Lazy Lewis—I was told dat de farmer wot lives on dat hill paid his hands jist de same whedder dey worked er not, so I went an' hired t' him. Tired Thomas—Den youse played off sick, I reckon? Lazy Lewis—Yep, an' at de end ov de month I found dat he never paid nobody nothin' nohow.—Chicago News.

Broke the Charm.

"Well, you are a good little boy. Are you usually as quiet as this?"

"No fear, but mother's going to give me a clockwork engine if I don't say anything about your dreadful red nose!"—London Opinion.

In the Fog.

Towne—So you were in London, eh? How did you find the weather there? Browns—I didn't have to find it. It came and hunted me up and surrounded me in chunks.—Philadelphia Press.

A London Joke.

Waiter (who has just served up some soup)—Looks uncommonly like rain, sir. Diner—Yes, by Jove, and tastes like it too! Bring me some thick soup.—London Tatler.

A Mercenary Boy.

"When I was a boy," said the man who insisted that men were more mercenary than women, "I had a little friend named Willie. Willie appeared one day with a fine apple.

"'I'll give you this apple,' he said to a little girl, 'for twenty kisses.'

"The little girl was amazed. That was not at all like Willie. Nevertheless she consented.

"'Shut your eyes,' said Willie. 'Sit down here and shut your eyes. And, mind you, if you open them the bargain is off.'

"The little girl obeyed, and slowly, very slowly, the kisses began to fall upon her lips. One, two, three, four (a long pause), five, six (another long pause), seven (pause), eight, nine, ten (intolerable pause).

"'Oh, Willie, hurry!'

"'I'm not Willie.'

"The little girl opened her eyes in astonishment and drew back her pretty mouth from the advancing lips of a strange boy, a very common, shabby sort of boy, whom she had never seen before.

"'Why, where's Willie?' she cried.

"'He's down the street,' was the reply, 'sellin' yer kisses for two apples apiece. Better shut yer eyes again. The next three boys is terrible ugly.'"—St. Louis Republic.

On the Verge.

He considered it a parental duty to see that his daughter kept only the very best marriageable company.

"Mary," said her father, "you have been going with that Mitchell fellow for more than a year now. This courtship must come to a termination."

"Oh, pa, how can you talk so? He is, oh, so sweet and nice!"

"Ah!" And the fond father arched his eyebrows. "Sweet and nice, eh? Has he proposed?"

"Well, pa, not exactly." And the girl hung her head and fingered the drapery of her dress. "He hasn't exactly proposed; but, then, last evening, when we were out walking, we passed by a nice little house, and he said, 'That's the kind of cottage I am going to live in some day,' and I said 'Yes,' and then he glanced at me and squeezed my hand. Then, just as we got by, I glanced back at the cottage, and—and I squeezed his hand, pa."

"Oh, ah, I see! Well, we'll try him another week or two."—London Tit-Bits.

His Feelings Were Hurt.

It is strange how unreasonable some people are in business—how unreasonable and how inconsiderate of the feelings of others. As an example, there is the case of a fidelity company in New York which suddenly and arbitrarily canceled the bond it had issued for a man attached in a fiduciary capacity to an important concern. It was the most natural thing in the world for the man to display some feeling and to demand to know the reason for such action. And the inconsiderate head of the bonding company wrote him to this effect:

"Because you were convicted of forgery under another name in the year —— and served a term in the state prison at ——."

The recipient of the note felt so hurt that he couldn't reply. He still is silent.—New York Globe.

A Singer's Avarice.

We hear a great deal about the enormous salaries paid to famous prima donnas nowadays, and we also hear a great deal about their charity and good nature. In the reign of Queen Anne one of the most celebrated singers was Mrs. Tofts, who had a veritable craze for money making as well as a great deal of personal conceit. Pope, who never spared any persons or objects that he satirized, wrote an epigram that must have greatly annoyed the avaricious singer:

So bright is thy beauty, so charming thy song,
As had drawn both the beasts and their Orpheus along,
But such is thy avarice and such is thy pride
That the beasts must have starved and the poet have died.

—London Standard.

He Was a Judge.

One of the consuls to Persia during a visit home said at a dinner in Chicago:

"Lady Drummond Wolffe once got permission to visit the late shah's harem. She took a friend with her who was about to be married. The two Englishwomen wandered over the palace, and presently the shah encountered them.

"'Come here,' he said to Miss Blank in his crude French.

"'You are about to be married?' he said.

"'Yes, your highness.'

"'It's late!'"—Boston Post.

Not In His Line.

"They tell me," said the new reporter, who was doing an interview, "that you have succeeded in forging your way to the front."

"Sir," replied the self made man coldly, "you have been misinformed. I'm no forger."—London Globe.

Foresight.

"Talk about foresight!"

"Well?"

"Old Gotrox left a thousand tons of coal in [illegible] not to be touched until the youngest child is of age."—Kansas City Journal.

How to Be Strong.

Man is strong only by union, happy only by peace. Be firm, not obstinate; courageous, not turbulent; free, not undisciplined; prompt, not precipitate.—Comte de Mirabeau.

I would not enter in my list of friends a man who needlessly sets foot upon a worm.—Cowper.

A Remarkable Suicide.

A man who had visited Paris was telling of an extraordinary suicide he had heard of in that gay city. "He was a Frenchman, who was nothing if not original," said the teller of the tale, "and even when he grew despondent he planned his death is a most original fashion. He locked the door of his room in the Rue Nitot and, removing the weights of the window cord, fastened them to the window itself. He added to the weight of the window by attaching six flatirons. On the sill he adjusted a large triangular bread knife, such as is used by chefs, and made ready a small balloon, capable of lifting fifty pounds. The ingenious Frenchman then put his head out of the window after attaching the balloon to his neck and by releasing the clamp that held the window cut his head off completely with the improvised guillotine. The decapitated body was discovered several days later, but it was not until the balloon and the head were found a week later in the field of a peasant, eighteen miles from Paris, that the method of suicide was really known."

Old Maps of Louisiana.

An interesting exhibit in the Louisiana State museum is a collection of old maps that show the state of Louisiana extending from Canada, which was then called New France, on the north to the gulf of Mexico on the south and from Virginia and Carolina on the east to the Pacific on the west. These maps were printed in Italy and Holland and France and were evidently largely works of fancy and imagination on the part of the geographers, as they depict mountain ranges where none exists and lakes and rivers distributed around in places where they are not found today. One of the most charming of these maps represents the Mississippi river as making a graceful turn along what is now the roadbed of the Louisville and Nashville railroad and emptying into the gulf in Florida. Along a strip of this country about where English Lookout and peaceful Bay St. Louis are located is a fearsome spot marked as the land of the man eaters.—New Orleans Picayune.

A Coveted Picture.

Some years ago a western man entered J. G. Brown's studio and seemed to gain satisfaction in finding its familiar features unchanged. He told the artist that in his boyhood he had worked in the streets of New York and, with others of his class, had served as a model for one of the pictures of street boys. He had gone west and had prospered and now had returned with a desire to become the owner of the group picture in which he and some of his boyish cronies appeared. He wanted it as a reminder of the struggles of his boyhood. He looked back on those days as being quite as happy as any he had ever known. The picture, says W. Howard Standish, discussing J. G. Brown, a painter of humble folk, had long ago been sold, and, although the would be purchaser offered to give his check for $25,000 for the work, the artist was unable to supply any clew to its whereabouts.—New Broadway Magazine.

To His Benefit.

A Tennessee congressman enjoys telling a story of a darky in his district who in a way is something of a philosopher.

Some one was saying to Mose one day: "You're always in trouble, Mose. Why can't you try to do better? You're a likely sort of darky, and you could get along very well if only you'd behave yourself—keep a steady job instead of drinking bad whisky and getting yourself behind the bars half the time."

"Excuse me, boss," said Mose, with a grin, "but it looks to me like I makes more money this way. When I works hard I gets $7 a month and my board. When I gets arrested the jedge he says to me that it will be $10 or thirty days. How kin I afford to work for $7 a month when I'm worth $3 more in de lockup?"—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

Diagnosed the Case.

A successful oculist recently put in a day or two with his new shotgun in the marshes. He soon noticed that when using the left hand barrel he generally brought down the game, but when using the other barrel he invariably missed. He finally tacked a small target to a bush near the river's bank and fired at it several times with each barrel in order to bring the matter to a test. The result confirmed his suspicions. One barrel was all right or nearly so, and the other was all wrong.

"Well," said the oculist to a friend who was with him, "as nearly as I can make out this gun has a severe case of strabismus, with strong symptoms of astigmatism!" — Modern Society.

The Cost For Repairs.

"Why did you sell your auto?"

"Cost too much for repairs."

"Wasn't it a good machine?"

"First rate. Never got out of order. But I had to pay for repairing the people it ran over."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Judicial Ignorance.

"Did the clock stop when you dashed it down cellar?" asked the police judge of the man who was charged with being disorderly.

"Of course it stopped. Did you suppose it went through to China?"

Modern Facilities.

"Who was dis Rip Van Winkle?"

"An old time guy wot slept in de mountains."

"Didn't have no public libraries, I s'pose, in his day?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Cruelty and fear shake hands together.—Balzac.

CHELSEA RELIEF

Another Carload About Ready To Ship to The Unfortunates

Although a large quantity of clothing, etc., was shipped from the receiving room in the Adams building more has been collected and is ready to be forwarded.
to Chelsea on Saturday fully as much

These will probably be forwarded by the trolley express car tomorrow morning. The relief committee to whom the Quincy contributions were delivered speak in very complimentary terms of the shape the bundles were in.

In most cases bundles received have to be opened for the committee to ascertain what is in them. In the case of Quincy, however, the bundles were plainly marked on the outside what they contained. This saved the committee a vast amount of work.

Although a Sunday and holiday have intervened since the list of cash contributions were published on Saturday, quite a sum has been added today. These are as follows:

STRUGGLE AT FINISH

Morrisey of New York Wins Boston Marathon Race

TIME CLOSE TO LONGBOAT'S

Man Who Took the Lead at Crack of Pistol Covered Nineteen Miles Before He Was Overtaken--Victor Reserved His Strength Until Finish

Boston, April 21.—T. P. Morrisey of the Mercury A. C., New York city, won the twelfth annual renewal of the Boston Athletic association Marathon road race, covering the twenty-five miles from Ashland to the finish mark in this city in 2:25:43 1-5. The time is second to the record of 2:24:24, made last year by Tom Longboat, the Canadian Indian runner.

Following Morrisey, fifty yards to the rear, came J. J. Hayes of the Irish-American A. C., New York, who in turn led Robert A. Fowler of the Cambridgeport Gymnasium association about the same distance. Hayes' time was 2:26:04, while Fowler took 2:26:42.

Morrisey ran a wonderful race, following out a plan carefully mapped out. He was never out of striking distance of the veteran runners and when the race was half run his reserve strength began to tell. Without a falter his long strides took him up to even terms with the leaders and, swinging along to the finish, he began to sprint, which soon left Hayes and Fowler in the rear and carried him across the finish line an easy victor.

The weather conditions were ideal for fast time when the contestants, 120 in number, lined up before the starter at Ashland, ready to start on their journey to Boston. A fresh wind was blowing out of the northwest right at the runners' backs and, although a light snow fell for a few minutes, it soon turned to rain, which refreshed the competitors and laid the dust along the course.

Every man had been examined by physicians and pronounced fit to attempt the long run, which, as an Olympic tryout, afforded the judges an opportunity to select part of the men who will journey to London and represent their country in the Olympic games.

Ray Welton of Lawrence, Mass., took the lead at the pistol. Starting out like a sprinter, Welton was fifteen seconds ahead when he finished the first mile. Entering Natick, Welton was two minutes ahead of the record and a quarter of a mile in front of the second man, with Fowler and Morrisey occupying third and seventh places respectively.

The flying leader increased the distance with every stride and passed through Wellesley nearly four minutes better than the record. Fowler still held third place and Morrisey had moved up to fifth, but Welton was half a mile away.

Leaving Wellesley and running through Newton the men encountered a long hill which has proved fatal to many Marathon runners. By the time he had reached this hill Welton's strength was spent and he was forced to climb the hill at a walk. The veterans who, up to this point, had held their strength in reserve, began to move to the front. Welton's lead, however, was so great that he had covered nineteen miles before he was overtaken.

Leaving the reservoir, Hayes, winner of second place, began to come up with a rush and at Coolidge corner was in sixth place, while Fowler, Lee, and Morrisey were well bunched in the lead. After Coolidge corner had been passed and the distance to the finish line was only about two miles, Morrisey began a spurt and soon shook off Fowler and Lee. He received a tremendous ovation as he came along Commonwealth avenue and Exeter street, the winner by fifty yards. Hayes came in with a fine spurt and snatched second place from Fowler by a like distance.

The crowd of nearly a hundred thousand people which stood in the rain for nearly two hours to witness the finish held their positions on Exeter street and Commonwealth avenue until the last runner had crossed the finish line.

Nearly all of the men finished in good shape, although some, having expended all their strength in the last few miles in the scramble for position, fell across the line exhausted. They were speedily revived in the clubhouse.

To Investigate Cost of Paper

Washington, April 21.—A definite step was taken toward a solution of the wood pulp and newspaper cost question in the introduction by Speaker Cannon of a resolution for the appointment of a select committee of six members to investigate "and obtain all possible information as to the reasons for the increased cost of white paper to the end that needful legislation may be enacted." The resolution, which was referred to the committee on rules, confers the usual authority of subpoena, the administration of oaths, etc.

"Explorer" Under Arrest

New York, April 21.—George M. Boynton of Boston, who has figured as the promoter of an expedition to explore what he described as "Darkest South America," was arrested on the technical charge of having violated the hotel law in failing to settle with Hotel Hermitage for eight days' board and lodging. Boynton denounced his arrest as an outrage and promised to explain everything at the proper time.

TURKEY YIELDS TO ITALY

Threat of Naval Demonstration Has the Desired Effect

Rome, April 21.—The threatened trouble between Italy and Turkey apparently has ended as a tempest in a teacup, and for the present at least there will be no demonstration by Italian warships in Turkish waters. Indeed, it now seems likely that the incident will produce a better feeling between Constantinople and Rome, leading to an agreement by the two countries on many differences, which heretofore have been the cause of not a little friction.

The Turkish government has given its permission to Italy to establish postoffices in the Turkish cities where other powers have like institutions, and in like manner has met the Italian demands with regard to other questions that have been subjects of dispute.

Especially is this the case with regard to Tripoli, which Italy did not wish to occupy, but merely wishes to be open to peaceful settlement by Italians. The fleet will now remain in Italian waters and the incident practically is regarded as closed.

Thinks Negro Troops Guilty

Washington, April 21.—The Brownsville affair was again a subject of interest when Senator Borah, in his first speech in the senate, took the ground that negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth infantry were guilty of the raid that occurred in the Texas town. Borah analyzed the testimony taken in this case and declared that no reasonable man could read it and fail to be convinced that negro soldiers "shot up the town." He scouted the suggestion of a conspiracy among citizens of Brownsville to create a state of riot and wound and kill their own citizens in order to secure the removal of the negro troops.

Gave Money For Politics

New York, April 21.—In a presentment filed in the criminal branch of the supreme court the special grand jury which has been investigating the affairs of the Metropolitan Street Railway company, the Metropolitan Securities company and subsidiary companies, exonerated the officials of the companies of any wrongdoing. In the evidence taken it was brought out that one of the expenses of the Metropolitan Street Railway company was $36,700, which was given for political purposes.

Move For Release of Thaw

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., April 21.—James G. Graham of Harry Thaw's counsel has made application to Justice Morschauser at White Plains for an order directing the superintendent of the Matteawan asylum to permit Thaw to sign a formal application for a writ of habeas corpus. The order was granted, as is customary in such cases, and when Thaw has made the application he will probably be brought before a justice for a hearing to determine whether or not he is sane.

Clearing Off Court Docket

Kansas City, April 21.—More than two thousand cases against theatre owners, actors, managers and others employed in Kansas City playhouses, which were brought as a result of the Sunday observance crusade, started last September, were wiped off the docket of the court when Prosecuting Attorney Kimbrell made a motion to dismiss the cases. There remain on the docket about 3000 cases which have been started during the last three weeks.

Trolley and Motor Cars Collide

New York, April 21.—A four-car motor train ran down a surface trolley car at Bath Beach last night. Several of the trolley's passengers were seriously injured, one of them probably fatally. At the point where the accident occurred the motor trains run upon the surface and the trolley car was crossing the train tracks at right angles. It is claimed that the signal was set against the trolley car.

Liberals' Attitude Toward Ireland

Manchester, April 21.—Winston S. Churchill, in a speech here last night, announced that he had the concurrence of Premier Asquith in saying that at the close of the present parliament the Liberal party would claim full authority and a free hand to deal with the problem of Irish self-government without being restricted by mere measures of devolution like the abandoned Irish councils bill.

Would Increase Freight Rates

New York, April 21.—That railroad freight rates should be increased was the consensus of opinion at a conference of the presidents of nearly all of the eastern trunk lines held in this city. No final action was taken in the matter, which will be further considered by the individual roads.

Russian Troops In Danger

St. Petersburg, April 21.—Associated Press dispatches setting forth the grave situation of the Russian detachment in Persia are fully confirmed by official reports received at the foreign office from the Russian commander at Yelisavetpol, in trans-Caucasia, ninety miles from Tiflis.

Guatemala's President Loses Finger

Guatemala City, April 21.—As President Cabrera was entering the palace yesterday to receive in public audience William Heinke, the American minister, there occurred a series of explosions. The president escaped with only the loss of a finger.

SCHOOL HYGIENE.

Why You Should Teach Your Children Jiu Jitsu.

One of the most interesting subjects brought up for discussion at the recent international congress on school hygiene was the question of including the teaching of jiu jitsu, or Japanese wrestling, as part of the regular school curriculum.

One thing about jiu jitsu is that it is graceful. The throws and falls are all done when expert with an ease and grace that are little short of marvelous. What is of more importance is the wonderfully beneficial effect it has upon the health of those little pupils who have already become proficient and who number small mites of five or six years.

One of the most potent results is the improved circulation of a child who has been through a course of training, the exercise invigorating all the organs and starting the circulation through brain and body. It permits of no danger of strain and can consequently be indulged in by the small devotee without any anxiety on the part of the school authorities.

In the case of an exceedingly delicate child the result has proved satisfactory beyond the most sanguine hopes, and the difference in the physique of the little pupil, who numbers eight or nine summers, seems hardly credible after a course of only three months' training.

A lesson in jiu jitsu lasts from twenty to thirty minutes, the movements representing the art of self defense or attack. Naturally enough, in the case of the small people it is necessary to teach the attitudes one by one till they become instinctive, the actual reasoning power which would direct when they should be turned to account requiring riper years.

The ankle trip, which consists in swinging the opponent's leg aside just at the psychological moment, when his weight is being shifted from the left foot to the right, and pulling him aside at the same time, is taught first, the children being wonderfully quick at picking up the theory and being given an opportunity of testing every movement on the teacher.

BUSINESS TRAINING.

Man Should Listen to Wife's Counsel In Business Affairs.

Governor Glenn of North Carolina writes:

"I advise every man who would be successful to listen to his wife's counsel in business affairs. The woman who is really a man's helpmeet is the one who is able to advise him on every serious problem that confronts him. But no woman can be a real companion who must spend all her time as cook and housekeeper. She ought to know about business and what is going on in the world. It is unreasonable of any man to expect his wife to meet his needs as a real companion if he does not provide the means for her to become so. A wife should have some leisure to study and develop herself along intellectual lines. A man who holds the opposite idea lowers the standard for wifehood and womanhood. And every girl and woman in the country should have a strict and thorough business education. No matter how fortunate a girl's immediate circumstances, she should be given a complete business training. Let them be trained to be first class stenographers, bank cashiers, professional nurses, bookkeepers—anything they have talent for. But let their equipment be complete, as a man's is. It is a dreadful mistake to leave a girl without any definite training whereby she may earn a livelihood in case of necessity. I believe the reason many women go into wrong paths in life is simply because they are helpless when thrown suddenly on their own resources."—Woman's Journal.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

A pinch of salt taken before meals stimulates digestion.

A cup of strong coffee will remove the odor of onions from the breath.

Nervous spasms are usually relieved by dissolving a little salt in the mouth.

Bathing in salt water tones up the skin and gives it a fresh, wholesome color.

For corns take equal parts of lard and quinine and mix thoroughly. Apply at night.

For a sprained ankle the whites of eggs and powdered alum made into plaster is almost a specific.

Hot water is better than cold for bruises. It relieves pain quickly and will prevent discoloration.

One should be cautious about entering a sickroom in a state of perspiration, as the moment you become cool your pores absorb.

Stewed rhubarb has a well known medicinal value besides being a complexion beautifier. It is said to be valuable for rheumatic troubles.

Eggs are considered one of the best remedies for dysentery. Beaten up slightly and swallowed they tend to lessen the inflammation of stomach and intestines.

In even severe attacks of colic a teaspoonful of salt dissolved in a teacupful of cold water has been known to give immediate relief. The same dose will revive a person who has been stunned by a heavy fall if he can be forced to swallow it.

A teaspoonful of ground mustard in a cupful of warm water is a prompt and reliable emetic and should be taken in cases of poisoning or cramps from overeating. Powdered resin is the best thing to stop bleeding from cuts.

RELEASED BY DEATH

Wallace Ham Broke Down Under Life In State Prison

WAS PROMINENT CHURCHMAN

Was So Fully Trusted That He Had Charge of Vast Funds Without Being Bonded--Used and Lost Others' Money In Speculation

Boston, April 21.—Wallace H. Ham, former treasurer of St. Paul's church of this city, custodian of funds of the St. Luke's home for convalescents, and unbonded manager of the American Surety company, who was serving a sentence in the state prison for the larceny of $214,000, died at the state prison hospital. Ham's death was due to a general decline both of mind and body. He was sentenced four years ago.

Ham was born in Maryland 52 years ago. Prominent in Episcopal church circles and in business affairs, considerable trust was placed in Ham, and his downfall in 1904, due to unfortunate speculations, it is said, caused a sensation.

When he was but 25 years old he was made treasurer of St. Paul's church, being entrusted with all the funds and property of that society. Later he was selected by Bishop William Lawrence of the Massachusetts diocese as an ideal man to take charge of about $100,000 in funds of the St. Luke's home for convalescents, of which Lawrence was president.

In 1898 further responsibilities were placed on Ham's shoulders when he was made manager of the New England office of the American Surety company, these three positions placing Ham in unquestioned control of about $400,000. Even as manager of the surety company, whose business it was to bond handlers of money, he was not required to furnish bonds. He received a good income and his salary from the security company was $6000.

A few ventures in the stock market led him in deeper. Most of his speculations failed, and to cover his margins he drew upon the funds in his possession. These losses, it is believed, continued for two years before they were suspected.

Finally discrepancies in Ham's accounts were noted by a New York auditor for the surety company and upon being asked to produce the company's bonds he broke down and confessed. He was arrested at his office on State street Feb. 25, 1904, and was indicted by the grand jury for the larceny of $214,000 from the surety company and $24,000 from the treasury of St. Luke's home. No prosecution followed because of his larceny of the funds of St. Paul's church.

Changing his previous plea of "not guilty" to "guilty," Ham threw himself upon the mercy of the court and after a severe arraignment by Judge Harris was sentenced to not less than 15 nor more than 20 years at hard labor in state prison. Ham was married fourteen years ago and leaves a widow. The body was turned over to Mrs. Ham, who has always remained loyal to him.

Alleged Corruption In Ohio

Columbus, O., April 21.—Charges that all the political power in the city of Cleveland and county of Cuyahoga has been, and is now, dominated by one man, that the police have protected violators of the law that prohibit gambling and regulate the liquor traffic, that the franchises have been granted to corporations in which the mayor or his friends have been personally interested and that various officers have misconducted themselves, will be investigated, if a joint resolution adopted by the house, 63 to 22, meets the approval of the senate.

Two Battleship Proposition Stands

Washington, April 21.—After consideration of less than two hours the senate committee on naval affairs reported the naval appropriation bill to the senate. It carries $111,546,549, an increase of $7,579,031 over the amount of the bill as it was passed by the house. On the battleship construction problem the senate committee adopted the policy of the house, making the change in the provision for two vessels.

Australian Railroad Disaster

Melbourne, Australia, April 21.—Two trains collided at Braybrook Junction. Forty-one persons were killed and sixty injured. A Bendigo train, with two heavy engines, crashed into the rear of a Ballarat train. Five cars of the latter train were wrecked. The wreckage took fire and was almost completely consumed. Many of the bodies were unrecognizable when recovered.

Was Father of Baseball

New York, April 21.—Henry Chadwick, aged 83, who took so prominent a part in the development of baseball that he was called the "father" of it, died of pneumonia at his home in Brooklyn. Chadwick was a writer on baseball topics, as well as an authority on the rules of the game.

Cannot Fulfill Airship Contract

Washington, April 21.—J. E. Scott of Chicago has given up his contract with the war department for furnishing a heavier-than-air flying machine for the signal office for $1000. The contract will be cancelled. The two remaining awards call for machines at $20,000 and $25,000 respectively.

SHANAHAN IN CUSTODY

Supposed Sweetheart of Miss Mullins Refuses to Talk

Boston, April 21.—Benedict Shanahan, the fisherman who was mentioned as one of the sweethearts of Annie Mullins, murdered at Arlington, is in the custody of the police at the Arlington station. No charge has been preferred against him, but he will not be allowed to leave the station.

Shanahan refused to talk. He did so on the advice of his counsel, Sylvester M. Whalen, who accompanied him from T wharf to Arlington. The fisherman arrived yesterday on the schooner Catherine and Ellen, on which he sailed a week after Annie Mullins was murdered.

Attorney Whalen, who is counsel for the owners of the schooner Mary and Ellen, on which Shanahan arrived in Boston from Newfoundland, is looking after the interests of the prisoner to a certain extent. While Shanahan declined to give out any statement for publication, except to say that he could prove an alibi, it is understood that he is willing to assist the authorities in their investigation, although disclaiming all knowledge of the death of Miss Mullins.

Forests Should Be Preserved

Boston, April 21.—The National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, through Secretary Woodbury of this city, sent the following telegram to Representative Tirrell: "The National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, comprising 1000 members, representing over $750,000,000, engaged in manufacturing, view with serious apprehension the impairment of water powers in Atlantic coast states and earnestly urge upon the judiciary committee the importance of favorable action on the forestry reservation bill."

Hundred and Four Years Old

Haverhill, Mass., April 21.—Mrs. Mary J. Stockbridge celebrated her 104th birthday yesterday surrounded by her five children, fourteen grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren, together with many friends. She was born in Alton, N. H., and has made Haverhill her home for over half a century. Mrs. Stockbridge is unable to read, although she sees to move through the house. Her hearing is also defective. Otherwise she is in the best of health and spirits, and insists on rising each day at 5 a. m.

Beaudin's First Day's Walk

Newburyport, Mass., April 21.—Arsene Beaudin, who started from Portland at midnight Sunday to walk to Chicago in an effort to lower the record of Edward P. Weston, arrived here at 10 o'clock last night. The distance from Portland to this city is seventy-seven miles. Beaudin was rather weary upon his arrival here. As he had no money, he did not go to a hotel, but was allowed to sleep at the police station.

Pledge Question May Make Trouble

Concord, N. H., April 21.—A feeling of uncertainty is prevalent among the Republicans who are here in preparation for the Republican state convention, at which four delegates-at-large are to be chosen to represent New Hampshire at the national convention at Chicago. It is recognized that a lively discussion will arise in case resolutions in favor of any presidential candidate shall be introduced.

Seventeen Horses Perished

Burlington, Vt., April 21.—The large livery stable of H. C. Smith, in the centre of the city, was burned last night with most of its contents, including seventeen horses, a large number of sleighs, wagons, harnesses and other equipment. The loss is estimated at $10,000.

Liquor Causes Woman's Death

Newton, Mass., April 21.—Locked up in a cell in the police station on a charge of intoxication, Mrs. Mamie Crirello, aged 25, of Boston, was found dead by Officer Gleason. Examiner West found death due to alcoholism.

The Submarine Probe

Washington, April 21.—Charles R. Flint and Grant H. Brown of New York, who were the intermediaries in such talk of combining the interests of the Electric and the Lake boat companies as took place last March, were witnesses before the Lilley committee yesterday. Brown's testimony explained some apparent contradictions that have characterized the testimony since the investigation began.

Gotham Policemen Arrested

New York, April 21.—Following the issuing of bench warrants for persons indicted as a result of the recent exposure of alleged gambling house conditions in the Tenderloin, two policemen were arrested and locked up, charged with bribery. Both men were attached to Inspector Walsh's staff previous to the publication of charges that gambling was being protected by the police.

Plotters Are Frustrated

Tokio, April 21.—An attempt to destroy the railroad leading from the coast to the capital of Korea was discovered before any serious damage had been done, and Prince Ito arrived at Seoul on schedule time.

Putting a girdle around the earth overland and undersea has become so common that the only way a daring airship driver can call attention to himself will be by whirling away to the moon or Mars.

Nobody doubts that times might be improved, but it is always some time in the past that they were good, you know.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

COMING, BUT WHEN?

Beware, beware,
Of too much hope,
For when you think
By all the dope
That spring has come
To town and farm
It only proves
A false alarm.

With every mild
And sunny day
You feel that it
Has come to stay,
But for a truth
You may believe
It has a snowstorm
Up its sleeve.

A balmy breeze
Will stir the blood,
But wait until
It dries the mud
Before you write
It on the slate
That spring has come
By special freight.

Spring fails to play
As advertised,
And all the signs
May be despised.
Just as you start
A welcome tune
Old winter says,
"Not yet, but soon."

More Modern.

"How much can we put you down for?" asked the committee out getting subscriptions for a worthy cause.

"See that pocketbook?" asked the victim, pulling out a wallet as lean as a prisoner of war.

"Did an elephant step on it?"

"No," groaned the man who had just returned from the repair shop; "an automobile ran over it."

Thoughtful of Him.

"Are you really looking for work?"

"Yes, indeed, ma'am."

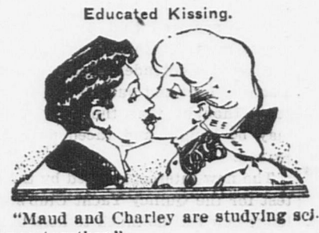
"What would you do if you were to find it?"

"Send word to my brother, ma'am."

"Where does your brother live?"

"In Japan."

Educated Kissing.



"Maud and Charley are studying science together."

"That so?"

"Yes; they are trading microbes."

The Modern Miss.

She doesn't like to go to school.
It doesn't meet her wishes.
She finds it hard to keep the rule
When told to wash the dishes.

She hates to get up in the morn
And help her wornout mother
And thinks it hard lines she was born
Herself and not another.

She wants the thing she hasn't got
And scorns it when she gets it,
And wretched is the family's lot—
With worries she besets it.

In fact, this modern miss affects
A lot of whims and fancies
Until her little bark she wrecks
And loses all her chances.

Place to See Them.

"I have lived most of my life in the west."

"Then you have seen plenty of cowboys."

"Oh, yes. I have been to a number of Wild West shows."

Where It Fails.

"Do you think man can tame a wild animal by looking him in the eye?"

"I don't know. Can he?"

"Maybe. It doesn't have any effect on a mother-in-law."

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The mercury was down in the 20's at sunrise.

Eight pages again today and a newsy paper.

The price of coal dropped fifty cents per ton this morning.

There was quite a heavy frost last night, the ground being frozen to a depth of nearly two inches.

If you enjoy a play go to Colonial hall tonight and see the young people in "An Unimportant Address."

Again, tomorrow, the trolley freight car will take a Quincy consignment of clothing, furniture, etc., to Chelsea.

Send along your old rubbers and aid the work of the Visiting Nurse. Mrs. N. G. Nickerson is to make the final collection on April 22d.

Miss Louisa A. Pinel of Franklin street has returned from the Quincy Hospital where an operation was performed and is convalescing.

The Makaria Fraternity base ball team opened the season on Saturday by defeating the Quincy Stars 16 to 8. They held the lead from the start.

Mr. Otho Hayward tried his lawn mower on the holiday with such good results that he has now one of the smoothest, greenest lawns to be seen anywhere.

Mrs. Elmer E. Gray and children, Edna and Spencer, of Newton street, have been spending a few days in Clinton with Mrs. Gray's sister, Mrs. Cunningham.

Masters Bowdoin and Ralph and Miss Edith Smith of Hancock street, Wollaston, have returned from a week's visit with their grandmother, Mrs. Holmes at Plymouth.

There are musical numbers and readings on the program tonight for the dramatic entertainment at Colonial hall by John Adams chapter, Junior Sons and Daughters of the Revolution.

Society will turn out en masse tomorrow night for the song-recital by Mrs. Bertha Cushing Child at First Church chapel. The Hospital Aid association will benefit by the concert.

Miss Mary Louise Gavin, president of the L. C. C. A., was one of the guests at the annual whist party of the Ladies' Catholic Club Association at the Somerset on the evening of the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. William O. Phelps entertained their whist club at their home on Prospect avenue Thursday evening, April 16. Prizes were won by Mrs. John G. Thomas, Mrs. Albert E. Kingsburg, James B. Smith and Edward S. Wales.

All the children in town are saving their pennies ready for the festival on Saturday afternooon at Quincy Music hall. There will be hundreds of May baskets of every kind and color to delight the young people and all kinds of candy to put in them.

The comedy "An Unimportant Address" is to be presented tonight at Colonial hall by John Adams chapter, Junior Sons and Daughters of the Revolution. The proceeds are to be contributed to the fund for the restoration of the Paul Revere house in Boston.

Four Challenges For Quincy Cup

With four challenges already received for the Quincy Yacht Club's challenge cup, which is held by the Corinthian Yacht Club, this event this season promises to be one of the most interesting on the yachting schedule for local waters says the Herald

As sonder boats will be the type that will race for the cup and as the challenger of the Manchester Yacht Club is a new boat designed by Edwin A. Boardman for C. H. W. Foster, new interest will be given to this series. Charles Francis Adams, 2d., will sail the Quincy Yacht Club's challengers, and will probably have the Manchester in the racing.

C. P. Curtis, Jr., will have his Ellen as the challenger of the Boston Yacht Club. This boat was also designed by Boardman and is known to be fast in light and moderate breezes. The Spokane II, owned by Vice-Commodore F. Lewis Clark of the Eastern Yacht Club, will be the challenger from that club and will be probably sailed by J. Lewis Stackpole, who sailed the Spokane I, abroad last year.

The Vim, designed by William Gardner, for the late Trenor L. Park, has been purchased by Commodore Henry A Morse of the Corinthian Yacht Club, who will use her as a defender. Commodore Morse will have her in the water today and will take her over to Beverly, where his schooner Dervish is fitting out. Benjamin C. Tower, the owner of the Corinthian, which was designed by Fred Lawley and entered the trials for the honor of going abroad, will make some changes in his boat which are expected to improve her, and will enter the trials of the Corinthian Yacht Club, from which a defender will be chosen.

It is rumored that a syndicate of members of the Corinthian Yacht Club will build a defender or may purchase a sonder boat and put her in the trials. It is thought that the New Orleans may be bought and raced during the season.

The new interest created by the contest for the Quincy Yacht Club's challenge cup will do much to help out the class this season which will be an excellent thing as another visit from the German yachtsmen is expected next year.

Elcock Wins Quarter Mile Race

A race to decide the quarter mile championship of the Y. M. C. A., was run off on Adams street at noon on Patriot's day. The course was carefully measured off by Geo. Newcomb, C. E., starting at the railroad bridge and finishing in front of Adams Academy.

A large crowd gathered as the nine men lined up for the start. All were in good condition from their winters work in the gym, and each felt hopeful of victory.

The race started at a fast clip from the crack of the pistol with Floyd leading. When half the distance was covered J. Elcock forged ahead and finished in a walk. C. Hull was a good second, while A. Caffin and H. Ulrich fought it out for third place, Coffin winning by inches. S. Melville, J. Floyd, J. Smith, W. Griffiths and H. Harding finished in the order named.

The time was fast considering the course being 54-1-5 seconds. Officials were: Starter, A. Grassick; Timer G. S. Maxwell; Judges, R. Jones, S. Duncan and L. Litchfield.

Griffith Wins Match Race

A 100-yard match race which has been causing a lot of talk among local sprinters for some weeks, was run at the grove on Patriots' day. The runners were Wm. Sullivan and Wm. Griffiths both of Quincy. From start to finish the race was close and exciting, both runners tearing along side by side. When a few yards from the tape Griffiths with a grand burst of speed forged ahead, crossing the line a winner by a few feet. Sullivan's friends were much disappointed, as they had been doing a lot of "joshing" to the other runner, expecting a very different finish.

Harry Howarth and family has moved from Elm avenue to Blake street.

We have the stock, tools, machinery, and "know how" to do your Optical work promptly and satisfactory. We repair the frames, grind lenses, match the broken ones or test the eye. C. F. Pettengill, 1391 Hancock street, Quincy.

North Dorchester Defeated.

On the holiday at 3 P. M. at Merrymount park Makaria met the North Dorchester team, winners of the penant in the Suburban league last year and completely swamped them to the tune of 12 to 3. North Dorchester never scored after the first inning.

The game started, in a cold rain which stopped after a little while, with the visitors at the bat. Murphy walked, Smith reached the bag on an error and Dillon also, filling the bases; McDonald hit and Murphy and Smith scored; Kelley fanned and Dillon scored; Lane fanned closing the inning—3 runs.

McKenzie fanned for Makaria; Ganzel out third to first; Smith hit, Bill Troupe walked, and Smith was thrown out at third—No runs.

Barrows struck out, Rodgers flied to centre, while Swanson made first on missed fly to left and Murphy walked making 2 on bases with Bill Smith at the bat; it looked bad when he slammed it way out in right field, but Curtis was there with the goods and after a long run made a beautiful catch closing the inning—no run.

Makaria opened with Penley at the bat. He walked, Nicoll hit, Ewen hit also filling the bases. Curtis walked forcing one run in; Michael hit to third who fumbled, scoring Nicoll; McKenzie sacrificed, scoring Ewen thus tieing the score. Ganzel put foul fly; Smith came to the bat and laced it out in centre field for two bases, scoring Curtis and Michael; Troupe flied to centre closing the inning with five runs. The boys had fanned Ewanson and hit at will scoring 2 more in the third, another in the fifth, 2 in the seventh and 2 in the eighth, totaling 12 runs on 14 hi when they were needed.

North Dorchester never scored after the first inning, the infield stopping everything coming their way, while the out field gobbled the flies in great shape.

Michael held them down to four weak hits, and getting 8 strikeouts. Jimie pitched a great game always there with the goods in a tight place.

Bil Smith ploying in centre field for the visitors made two of the finest catches seen on Merrymount park in a long time; his fielding was gilt edge.

In Praise of the Currant.

We have been hearing a great deal recently in praise of currants, of the part they should play in a dietary and of their health giving and nourishing properties.

"If only the many good qualities of this fruit were fully known," said a famous doctor, "there would be no danger of overproduction of currants." He did not go very fully into the scientific side of the question, but he did say that currants are remarkably rich in the saccharine element in its best form. In this connection one who also speaks knowingly of the currant says the saccharin, of which the currant so largely consists, is presented in the form of grape sugar, a food that is highly valuable because it digests very easily and quickly and affords real sustenance to the body.

Then there is also the tartaric acid of the currant, which gives it such a pleasantly sharp taste. Tartaric acid is a most healthful and valuable constituent. Without it currants would be all sweet, like honey, and it would then be impossible to eat them very freely and continuously, as we should soon tire of them. And, lastly, the currant contains another very valuable element—potash. This little item has perhaps been somewhat overshadowed by its bigger neighbor, the grape sugar, but currants would fail to be the desirable agent they are in the maintenance of health if potash were not present. All foods, then, in which currants appear are to be shown especial favor by one who wishes to provide not only richly, but wholesomely, for the family table.—From February Epicure, Boston.

Within the last few weeks the greater part of the necessary machinery has been installed in the first American linen mill at North Brookfield, Mass. Heretofore it has been impossible to manufacture linen in the United States, owing to the great cost of labor by European methods. The Oxford Linen mill at North Brookfield will operate under the Mudge process, which accomplishes in twelve hours what takes at least sixteen weeks by old world methods. Other Oxford mills will be equipped as rapidly as possible, and large profits are anticipated from this new undertaking. The Mudge process covers the whole work of reclaiming the linen fiber from the flax straw, degumming, bleaching and finishing.

EXPRESS PERMITS

Debated at Length by Council Only Four Passed On Roll Call

An audience nearly as large as that present on Inauguration day filled the Council Chamber at the meeting of the City Council on Tuesday night. The drawing magnet was the anticipated action on applications for permits to transport liquor. It was a lively meeting and was devoted largely to the discussion of these matters which prolonged the session until 11 o'clock.

Councilmen Abele and Curtis were absent.

JURORS.

The Mayor, City Clerk and Councilman Bishop drew the following traverse jurors: Marcus M. Berry, Francis M. Curtis, James W. McLaughlin, Mark E. Gill, Charles A. Lyons, Adam S. Vogel, Arthur S. Baxter, William F. McCaulder, John A. Avery, Martin A. King, John P. Minnehan.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Board of Health asking that $336.14 be transferred from draining pond on Grove street to the garbage acount. Referred to Finance Committee.

A communication was received from the Citizens' Association remonstrating against the action of the Council in refusing to pass an appropriation for expert advice on grade crossings. Placed on file.

EXPRESS PERMITS.

The Mayor returned without his approval the order passed granting permits to transport liquor. The communication was as follows:

"Order No. 76 is herewith returned to the honorable City Council, for the following reasons:—

"This order apparently was forwarded to the Executive department under a misapprehension of the law governing the granting and issuing of permits of the character referred to therein.

"The issuing of such permits requires the combined action of the Mayor and the members of the City Council and such action finds expression under the law in the signing of the permits by the licensing board. Any action the City Council sees fit to take as preliminary to its members signing or refusing to sign such permits for the purpose of declaring its views upon the merits of the applicants does not seem to me to require the approval or the disapproval of the Mayor.

"Whenever the Council formally votes to grant and issue a permit to any particular applicant to transport for hire intoxicating liquor into Quincy, the permit signed by at least the majority of the members of the Council should be forwarded with the order to the Mayor for action thereon. Until that is done the matter is not in condition for the Mayor to either approve or disapprove.

"No permits executed by the members of the Council accompanied said order No. 76 when presented to me, therefore, at this time, the matter does not call for action by me, other than to remind the Council of its failure to forward said permits and to return the order to the Council for such further action in the premises as may be appropriate.

"I desire to call the Council's attention to the fact that said order in its present form is otherwise objectionable. The Council undertakes to deal with eleven different permits in one order. If the Mayor should object to issuing a permit to any one of the applicants therein named he would be obliged to disapprove the whole order. It seems to me wiser to deal with each permit by a separate order.

"Allow me to suggest to your honorable body that the granting of permits for such purposes is one of the most important duties which you will be called upon to perform during the year, and in my opinion the whole subject matter of granting these permits should be considered and disposed of at one time.

"I trust, gentlemen, that you will realize the importance of this matter to the citizens of Quincy and will exercise great care in discharging your duty relative to the same."

Upon motion of Councilman Bryant the veto was laid on the table.

PETITIONS.

A petition was received from the American Telegraph & Telephone Co. for a location for poles on Willard street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Carey presented a petition for the acceptance of Murdock avenue, between North and Arnold streets. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A petition for a granolithic sidewalk on Kemper street was referred to the Committee on Streets.

The Electric Light Co. petitioned for location for poles on Lincoln avenue and Webster street.

REPORTS.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order appropriating $500 to rebuild the shelter house at Merrymount park. Referred to Finance Committee.

The Committee on Ordinances reported ought to pass on the order amending the building ordinance so as to provide that the Inspector of Buildings shall be the inspector in charge of all buildings erected by the city. Referred to Ordinance Committee for engrossment.

The Committee on Ordinances reported ought to pass on the order amending the ordinance relative to pool tables licenses, so as to provide that no screens or obstructions shall be placed in the windows. Rules suspended. Order passed.

The Committee on Ordinances reported ought not to pass on the order amending the junk license ordinance, so as to provide that no licenses should be issued except to citizens and voters of Quincy. Accepted.

NO RECOMMENDATION.

The Committee on Licenses to whom was referred the various applications for permits to transport liquor reported that the Committee had forwarded to each applicant a series of questions in relation to the business conducted by them, with a request for reply, and that the replies received, together with all applications before the Committee, are returned to the Council without recommendation.

The question asked by the Committee were:— Name; address; address of main office; address of all call boxes; number of single teams employed at this time; number of double teams employed; if applicant's license had ever been revoked; if the applicant had ever been convicted of violation of the pony express act; if so how many times. This statement the applicant was required to sign and swear to before a justice of the peace. Laid on the table.

The Committee on Licenses reported leave to withdraw on the application of Mary Cain for permit to transport liquor. Accepted.

The Committee reported orders granting junk licenses and, common victuallers. Report recommitted.

Councilman Whiton moved the Clerk of the Council make out orders for transportation permits in proper form for signatures. Motion withdrawn.

Councilman Bryant moved and it was voted to take application for liquor permits from table and act on them individually. Voted.

Councilman Proughton wanted Councilman Bryant to tell how many it was proposed to grant.

Councilman Whiton thought that was the limit; to have one Councilman say how many should be granted. He hoped all legitimate expressmen would be granted a permit.

HOW THEY VOTED.

LIBERTY VERY BRIEF

Max Shinborn Finds Himself Again Behind the Bars

HELD ON LARCENY CHARGE

No Direct Evidence Against Aged Bank Robber, but His General Record Proves a Handicap--Possible Victim of Circumstances

Boston, April 22.—After only two days' liberty, following thirteen years' imprisonment for bank robberies, Max Shinborn is again in jail on a charge of larceny of $200 from Daniel Ketcham of Adrian, Mich., a lodger at 124 Chandler street, this city, where the released prisoner engaged a room immediately after his discharge from the New Hampshire state prison on Easter Sunday.

This man, known internationally as "the king of bank burglars," continues to claim, as he has done for years, that he is not Shinborn, but that his name is Henry E. Moebus. He protests his innocence of the latest charge against him, and when heard in the municipal court he had some bitter things to say about police persecution. He declared: "I had rather have given $200 away than to have taken it from any one at this time."

The aged man—he is 73 years old—told to the court a complete story of his movements since his arrival in Boston Sunday from Concord, N. H., hopeful of enjoying the brief remainder of his life at liberty. He said that, acting upon advice of the prison chaplain, he went to the Boston Young Men's Christian association and asked them to direct him to a lodging house. He went to the address mentioned and engaged a room.

Ketcham, the other lodger, claims that some time between 7 and 11 p. m., Sunday, $200 was stolen from his room. He said that it had been hidden beneath the mattress of his bed.

Mrs. Barry, the landlady of the house reported the matter to the police and Shinborn was taken into custody without direct evidence that he had stolen any money, but on the strength of his general record. Before Judge Murray, in the municipal court, he was heard and held in $1000 bonds for the May term of the grand jury. Judge Murray declared that there was probable cause in holding the man from the fact that money had been stolen at a time coincident with the released prisoner's stay at the lodging house.

The small crowd of spectators and newspaper men in the courtroom were apparently moved by the plea of innocence which the aged man made, and it was a popular sentiment expressed outside that he was a victim of circumstances.

The prisoner was removed to the Tombs, and unless bail is procured he will be kept in jail until the grand jury convenes next month.

Testimony Not Made Public

Munich, April 22.—A libel suit which was a sequel to the notorious Harden-Von Eulenburg-Von Moltke case resulted in the conviction of Editor Stadele of the Neue Freie Volkszeitung. A fine of $25 and costs was imposed upon him for stating that Editor Harden of Die Zukunft of Berlin had received $250,000 from Von Eulenburg to suppress evidence. Owing to the nature of the testimony, the public was excluded from the courtroom.

No Light on Mullins Mystery

Arlington, Mass., April 22.—Benedict Shanahan, member of the crew of the fishing schooner Katherine and Ellen, who was taken into custody by the Arlington police under suspicion of knowing something of the death of Annie Mullins, was released after examination by the police. The body of Annie Mullins, with her throat cut, was found in a lot on March 27, and the police are apparently far from a solution of the mystery.

Snowslides Cause Great Damage

Winnipeg, Man., April 22.—All Canadian Pacific trains have been held up in the Rocky mountains the last two days by remarkable slides of snow at Bear Creek, Illecillemaet and at Sirdar. The snow carried with it immense quantities of ice, rock, earth and gravel, carrying away the track in places, as well as telegraph wires and poles.

Grafter Sent to Prison

St. Louis, April 22.—Ferdinand Warner, member of the house of delegates of St. Louis, was convicted of bribery by a jury and sentenced to serve two years in the penitentiary, the minimum sentence. Warner accepted a bribe of $500 for his influence in passing an ordinance permitting the erection of a garage.

Our Relationship With China

New York, April 22.—Bearing a message of peace and good will from the Celestial empire and expressing the conviction that the relationship between China and the United States will become closer day by day, Minister Wu Ting Fang spoke at the banquet of the American Asiatic association last night.

Cholera Epidemic Threatened

St. Petersburg, April 22.—The prefect of police has placarded the city with stringent regulations forewarning the residents of an expected epidemic of cholera.

A Chance Shot In Hunt For Health

New York, April 21. he most interesting feature of the enormous sale of the Cooper preparations, now going on in this city, is what the medicines are actually accomplishing among the people of New York and Brooklyn.

At the commencement of his visit here Mr. Cooper prophesied that during the latter part of his stay he would receive hundreds of callers daily who came simply to thank him for what the preparations had done. He also stated that stomach trouble is the foundation for a great many diseases, and that his New Discovery, as it is called, would prove very effective for many other diseases, simply by getting the stomach in working order.

That this prophecy has been fulfilled cannot be doubted after a half-hour spent at the young man's headquarters, listening to what his callers have to say.

A reporter who watched to ascertain, if possible, some light on the reasons for the immensity of Cooper's success, interviewed about twenty of his callers yesterday afternoon. The statements made by those seen indicate that physicians who claim that Cooper is merely a passing fad, have not looked into the facts.

Some of these statements were as follows:

Mrs. Reisbeck, living at 1228 St. Mark's Avenue, Brooklyn, was enthusiastic. She said: "I have suffered with stomach trouble, headache and neuraglia for the past five or six years. I had severe heartburn, gas on stomach, pain and fullness in stomach after eating. Food laid on my stomach like a lump of lead. The formation of gas was so severe at times as to effect the action of the heart. After meals I always felt sleepy, tired and lanquid For years I have suffered with chronic constipation. I have consulted physicians, and tried all sorts of remedies without benefit. I was constantly taking pills or laxatives of some kind to act on the bowels. It became a fixed habit, and as time went on, my system required heavier doses to get results.

"Through reading the articles in the papers regarding Mr. Cooper's work I was persuaded to go to him for relief. I have taken three bottles of his New Discovery medicine, and cannot honestly do otherwise than to say that today I am feeling better than I have for years. In fact, I am a different woman entirely. All my trouble has disappeared. I want to thank Mr. Cooper, and in justice to him I desire to let other sufferers know what a wonderful medicine he has placed within their reach."

Another statement was made by Miss Helen Clark, in regard to her niece, Miss Helen McLaughlin, living at 343 Seventy-sixth Street, South Brooklyn. Miss Clark said: "My little niece has been ill for many months. She has been nervous and run down. Nothing she ate would agree with her. She has lost flesh and color and we have been very much worried about her. She complained of headaches, bloating of the stomach, lack of appetite, and seemed to feel tired and despondent all of the time.

"We have tried in every way to find something or somebody who could help her, but nothing seemed to do any good. On a chance, I obtained some of this Cooper medicine for her. She has taken it for about a week and it has actually worked a miracle in her case. She is a different girl, eats and sleeps well and seems in perfect health and spirits. We are thankful beyond description and astonished to find how quickly the medicines acted."

Other statements taken from those who had previously tried the medicines seem to prove that Cooper's success throughout the country is genuine.

TRAGEDY FOLLOWS DIVORCE

Boston Man Shoots Wife and Son and Kills Himself

Norwood, Mass., April 22.—Bent upon making good an oft-repeated threat to wipe out his whole family, Erasmus M. Boyden of Boston shot and it is feared fatally wounded his divorced wife, Mrs. Sarah Boyden, slightly wounded his elder son, Henry Boyden, aged 25, and then committed suicide at Mrs. Boyden's home here.

In order to accomplish the crime Boyden ran a cordon of police which had been for days watching for him, he doing the shooting while officers were speeding to his home to arrest him.

Boyden, acting in the most cold-blooded manner, plainly told his wife and son that he was going to murder them. Then drawing a big 32-calibre revolver he opened fire at his son and then at his wife. Both were four feet away. Both rushed to the lawn in front of their home, where Mrs. Boyden, with a bullet wound through her right lung, collapsed. The son, whose clothing was penetrated and skin of his stomach cut by a bullet, escaped serious injury.

Boyden then put two bullets through his own body, one of them piercing the heart and killing him instantly.

The culmination of years of family troubles, the shooting was the direct result of Mrs. Boyden getting a decree of divorce from her husband a week ago last Thursday after thirty-five years of wedded life.

Shot Self Instead of Wife

Haverhill, Mass., April 22.—Arthur Denontur, aged 40, was arrested at his home here, charged with an assault with a dangerous weapon upon his wife. Denontur had a bullet wound in his arm received, it is said, from his own revolver, which his wife had thrust aside just as Denontur was about to discharge it into her body. The couple had separated. Denontur's wound is not considered serious.

Was Friend of the Needy

Boston, April 22.—Miss Edith E. Marshall, a prominent figure in rescue work in the slums of great cities, died at Waverly, Mass. She was a victim of her own enthusiastic endeavors, her death being caused by a breakdown due primarily to overwork. She was born in London in 1870, and when only 16 years old began a career of missionary and rescue work which continued up to within a few weeks ago.

Granite Labor War About Ended

Barre, Vt., April 22.—Differences between the granite manufacturers and the polishers were satisfactorily settled and there now remain only slight matters with the lumpers and derrick men to be adjusted to put a complete end to the labor war in the granite industry here. The cutters, who have not been able to work while the polishers have been out, will resume work with the polishers.

Millions Go to Art Museum

Worcester, Mass., April 22.—The Worcester Art Museum became one of the most richly endowed institutions of its kind in this country by the transfer to that corporation last night, under the terms of the will of the late Stephen Salisbury, of property valued at $2,738,000. This sum, added to the amount already possessed by the museum, brings its total up to $3,332,000.

Sixteen Counts of Forgery

Ellsworth, Me., April 22.—The grand jury indicted Charles Jocylen of Bucksport on sixteen counts, alleging forgery. Jocylen is alleged to have taken $20,000 by forged notes from the Bucksport Loan and Building association, while employed as private secretary to Parker Spofford, secretary of the association. Spofford has reimbursed the association for its loss.

Delay In Walker Case

Hartford, April 22.—The criminal superior court, which has been kept in session since early in March to permit of the arraignment of William F. Walker, the New Britain bank absconder, on a bench warrant, has been adjourned without date. This practically means that the court has become tired of waiting for the arrival of the fugitive on Connecticut soil.

Life Sentence For Robens

Houlton, Me., April 22.—A sentence of life imprisonment in the state prison was imposed in the supreme court on Juan Robens, who, at his second trial on the charge, was convicted of the murder of J. E. Dickinson, a Smyrna Mills farmer. Dickinson was shot through the head while standing alone in his kitchen.

End of Rockport Strike

Rockport, Mass., April 22.—The strike of the engineers at the granite quarries in this town has been settled and the men returned to work today. A new wage scale for three years was adopted, by which many of the men secure an increase in pay, and all the old men are given their former places.

Thought She Was In Love

Bangor, Me., April 22.—A childish love affair is said to have caused Viola Bolsteridge, aged 15, to attempt suicide by shooting herself through the breast with a rifle at Masardis. Physicians say that the girl's chances for recovery are slight. She expressed regret that the shot was not immediately fatal.

Victim of Hydrophobia

Worcester, Mass., April 22.—As a result of a dogbite received six weeks ago, Irene McQuirk of Southbridge, aged 6 years, died at a hospital here. Hydrophobia developed within the past few days, but the girl was not taken to the hospital until the disease was beyond control.

INCENDIARY'S TORCH

Police Think It Responsible For the Chelsea Holocaust

THE INQUEST IS UNDER WAY

Fire Captain Found Sack Soaked With Oil In a Cellar--Two More Bodies Recovered From Ruins--Metal Thieves Placed Under Arrest

Boston, April 22.—Four arrests for taking metal from the ruins, the recovery of two additional bodies and the examination of more than forty witnesses at the inquest held to determine the cause of the Chelsea conflagration were the principal developments in the ruined city yesterday.

While the thought seems too inhuman to be considered, it is the opinion of the state and Chelsea police that the origin of the fire which swept the city practically from the map will be traced to an incendiary.

Deputy Neal held two sessions of the inquest in the Chelsea courtroom, assisted by State Officer Smith. Together with the evidence offered by the witnesses present, four anonymous letters and considerable material evidence was presented.

Deputy Neal said after the inquest that the hearing would no doubt take up a week and that more than 100 witnesses would be examined. When asked if it was possible that arrests would be made today or in the near future, Neal said: "I cannot answer that question. We are hearing all the stories and simply sifting the truth from that which has no foundation."

Officer Smith said: "I cannot give out the nature of the testimony offered. It was interesting in a way, but there are many more witnesses to be examined."

It was learned from a reliable source that testimony was offered at yesterday's hearing which tended to show that several fires were in progress at the same time and that several men were seen in the vicinity acting suspiciously. The names of three men who have been under suspicion of starting other fires in Chelsea were said to have been mentioned.

Captain Casey of engine 8 was a very important witness. Shortly after the fire was under control Casey spoke of the fact that he had found a sack soaked with oil in a cellar of a house.

Arrests are likely to occur at any moment, and it is understood at the Chelsea police headquarters that certain persons who live in the vicinity of the place where the fires have started, but who have since moved to Boston, are under surveillance.

It is believed that the remains found yesterday under the ruins at 54 Watts street are those of Miss Ann Murphy, aged 63. It was impossible to make any complete identification of the body, but Miss Murphy is still missing.

At 114 Central avenue, where the bones of William Morris were found on Monday, there were found the remains of some human being, the identity being questionable. They may be those of Mrs. Morris, who was lost, or of John Gilbrook, aged 63, who lived at that address and who is reported among the missing.

Officers who were patrolling the ruined district arrested James Turner, Della C. Cariner, Joseph Good and Charles E. Leborgin on the charge of stealing a large quantity of metal from the ruins in various places. All were caught in the act, and will be arraigned in court on the charge of larceny.

Haytien Legislature Convenes

Port au Prince, April 22.—The legislature was opened with imposing ceremonies in the senate chamber here. Thousands of troops occupied the adjacent streets. The message of President Alexis declared his determination sternly to repress any symptoms of insurrection. He invited the co-operation of the legislature in maintaining order, re-establishing the prosperity of the people and protecting equally the interests of citizens and foreigners.

Offer to Chester Strikers

Chester, Pa., April 22.—A proposition that portends an early settlement of the street car strike was made by President Riggs of the traction company, who agreed to take the striking motormen and conductors back on the same basis as though they had never worked for the company at the scale of 16 2-3 cents an hour. He promised to pay them 17 cents in July.

Will Look Into Paper Trust

Washington, April 22.—Although several hours were consumed in roll-calls, the house of representatives passed several measures of importance. The principal of these perhaps was the resolution providing for an investigation of the paper trust and in pursuance of its provisions the speaker announced a committee of six who will conduct the investigation.

Sanders Will Be Governor

New Orleans, April 22.—Early returns from the state elections indicate that the Democratic ticket, headed by J. Y. Sanders for governor, had been elected throughout.

Unusually Cold In Italy

Rome, April 22.—Intense cold prevails throughout Italy, snow having fallen in towns where the climate usually is very mild, such as Milan and Perugia.

Sims Receives Corrections

Washington, April 22.—In the house yesterday Mr. Sims (Tenn.) read a letter from Secretary Loeb asserting that the 4700 shares of Washington Street Railway stock in his name, with the exception of 100 shares, belonged to others, and denying that he had in any manner exerted the influence of his official position in behalf of the company of which he was a director. The unnamed senator, also referred to by Sims, and who is Senator Newlands, sent a similar communication, declaring that the stock in his name was simply held as trustee and that he had never participated in legislation relating to the street railways of Washington.

Gunboat For Venezuelan Waters

Washington, April 22.—The closing of the port of La Guaira, Venezuela, because of the existence of what is believed to be bubonic plague there, has made it necessary for the state department to have at hand some vessel to be used as a dispatch boat by Minister Russell in sending messages to Curacao or Port of Spain, and for taking cablegrams to him from the state department. A small gunboat will be utilized for this purpose.

Bryan Has a Lively Day

New York, April 22.—Rounding out a day that had a pleasant beginning in the welcoming of his family returning from a sojourn in Europe and then carried him on a flying trip to Trenton for a brief speech, William J. Bryan returned here and addressed the Civic Forum on "The Brotherhood of Man." His day was ended at midnight, when he made a brief address at the supper of the Missouri society.

"Russian Cassie Chadwick"

New York, April 22.—A warrant for the extradition of Mme. Olga Stein, wanted in St. Petersburg on charges of forgery and larceny, was received here from the state department at Washington. Mme. Stein will be deported at once. Russian consular officers charge her with raising a note on the state bank at St. Petersburg from $50 to $50,000 and the larceny of over $5000.

A Strict Prohibition State

Guthrie, Okla., April 22.—Suit has been filed here on behalf of the state to restrain several newspapers from publishing advertisements for the sale of intoxicating liquors in this state, liquor houses from soliciting business in the state and restraining newsdealers from selling or placing of newspapers or magazines containing these advertisements in view of the public.

Saloon Interests Successful

Chicago, April 22.—The saloon forces were generally successful in the forty or more towns and villages of Illinois which voted on the local option question yesterday. Definite figures are lacking, but it seems certain that not more than 100 saloons were voted out of business, the larger communities voting to restrain their licensed dram shops.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Mrs. Humphrey Ward, the English novelist, who is spending a few days in Boston inspecting the schools and playgrounds of the city, was tendered a reception by over 600 members of the Twentieth Century club.

Dr. Wallace Rous, aged 36, lecturer and demonstrator at the medical college of Texas university, was instantly killed at Galveston by lightning while fishing.

V. K. W. Koo of Shanghai was elected editor-in-chief of the Columbia Spectator, the university daily paper.

Dean Frederick S. Jones of the University of Minnesota has been agreed upon by the Yale faculty as the successor of Henry P. Wright, dean of Yale college, upon the latter's retirement in September, 1909.

Llewellyn Lincoln of Searsmont, Me., aged 64, committed suicide by drowning near his home. He was considered to be prosperous and no cause has been assigned.

The grain exported from the port of Portland, Me., for the winter season just ended amounted to 5,142,181 bushels, as against 4,592,076 bushels the preceding year.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The Isabella Davis Dramatic club and friends are to have a dance on May night at Colonial hall.

Ex-Councilman Harry W. Reid sailed today on the steamer Admiral Sampson for Jamaica.

Ray Brown has returned to Wallingford, Connecticut, to resume his teaching at the Choate school after a ten days' vacation.

Theta Sigma club has discontinued its duplicate whist parties and has taken up the new fad of holding weekly cribbage contests.

The furniture house of W. G. Shaw is to furnish the stage settings Friday evening for the plays to be given at Colonial hall by the Isabelle Dramatic club.

This morning the trolley freight car took another load of clothing, furniture and other articles from the receiving station in the Adams building for the Chelsea relief.

Officer Goodhue arrested Jack Sullivan at the Fore River this morning for the alleged larceny of $75 from a fellow boarder at the house of Mrs. Stevens at 102 Chubbuck street.

Last call for old rubber in aid of Visiting Nurse fund. Send before Thursday night any old pieces of rubber to Shaw's furniture store, City Square and help along a worthy charity.

The first night of the Old Folks concert at the Park and Downs church on Tuesday evening proved quite a success. There were over twenty in the chorus all in Colonial dress, and they entered into the spirit of the entertainment. Some very pleasing readings were also given by Miss Derby.

The fourth lecture in the series by Mrs. Florence Evans of Dorchester under the auspices of the Mothers' association, will be given Thursday afternoon in Bethany chapel at three o'clock with "Birth problems and elemental lessons in self control" as the subject. The fifth and last lecture will be on April 30.

This week's program at the Scenic eclipses all past performances, and it is positive proof that the public appreciates the bill by the crowds that attend nightly. On Patriots' day there was a large attendance at the special holiday matinee, and at the evening performance every seat in the house was disposed of, and the ... standing room only."

There is also to be a boxing exhibition by two Brockton men which is sure to prove a novel feature.

The "Witch City Gym Team" has been engaged and will be on hand with some of its best stunts including tumbling and acrobatics, a winding wand drill and the dance of the jumping jacks, which certainly is a most spectacular piece of work.

City Council

less they were members of the league.

Councilman Gelotte—Any man can join the league on payment of $10. Its nothing more than a union.

Councilman Whiton—The league simply means a combination for protection. He had read published letters. We have been accused of most everything. He had talked to members of the No License League. They do not mean what these letters say. Two weeks before election I declared myself in favor of giving permits to legitimate expressmen. To issue no permits would be a curse to Quincy. I don't want the No-License League to send me any more circulars. I have a family growing up which is more than some of them can say. He did not know Flanigan, but the Chief of Police admitted he had been watched.

Councilman Hogan raised the point of order that the discussion should be Barker's license.

The chair ruled that general discussion was in order.

A roll call was asked when the vote was taken on the Barker license.

Councilman Bryant—The league was not an association to drive anyone out of business. Barker was a good man, but not a member of the league. The Chief of Police admitted that Flanigan had been convicted. When he was refused a license he hired himself out to some one who did have a license and snapped his fingers at the Council.

Councilman Hogan quoted from a report of a meeting of the Expressmens League in reference to Mr. Barker.

Councilman Moir moved discussion closed. Voted.

Councilman Gilson asked where the chair got his authority to rule that three members might ask for roll call.

The chair replied Section 13 of the Charter.

A vote was then taken on the license of S. F. Barker and it was granted 14 voting yes and 6 no.

The vote in detail on each application will be found in another column.

The application of the Boston & Houghs Neck Steamboat Co. was taken up.

Councilman Walsh favored.

Councilman Bryant opposed. They have refused to pay taxes.

Assessor Adams—They refused to pay tax claiming they were assessed in Boston. Their personal estate tax is not paid. The Tax Commission ruled they must pay a tax somewhere and as they are not assessed in Boston and are in Quincy they must pay here. The amount due is $350.

The permit was refused on roll call 4 voting yes and 16 no.

The permit of the New York & Boston was refused 10 voting yes and 9 no.

The permit of C. L. Hazelton was refused, 10 voting yes and 10 no.

The permit of Bruce & Myatt was granted, 13 voting yes, and 7 no.

The permit of W. B. Gerry was granted, 12 voting yes, and 8 no.

Others refused were:—

Boston & Quincy, 10 yes, 10 no.
Andrew S. Isaacson, 8 yes, 12 no.
John J. Maloney, 7 yes 13 no.
Ferguson & DiPanfilio, 9 yes 11 no.
James P. Flannigan, 9 yes, 11 no.
Louis Bizzozero, 8 yes, 11 no.

Councilman Whiton moved to reconsider all votes passed.

Chair ruled motion out of order and it was withdrawn.

Councilman Whiton moved to reconsider favorable votes on W. B. Gerry, Bruce & Myatt and S. F. Barker. Not seconded.

Coucilman Whiton moved vote on W. B. Gerry be reconsidered. Motion lost. Vote doubted. On rising vote motion lost, 9 voting yes, and 10 no.

Councilman Whiton moved vote on Bruce & Myatt be reconsidered. Motion lost, 6 voting yes and 13 no.

A permit was granted to Abbott & Miller, 15 yes, and 5 no.

Carl Libja refused, 8 yes, 12 no.

Councilman McGilvray moved reconsideration of vote on L. Bizzozero. Voted.

Bizzozero was again refused permit, 8 voting yes, and 12 no.

H. H. Lowe refused, 1 yes, 18 no.

N. E. Alley refused, 2 yes, 18 no.

Scribner & Campbell refused, 3 yes, 17 no.

Upon motion of Councilman Whiton, Maria Monti ... leave to withdraw.

Upon motion of Councilman Hogan, L. Romeri was given leave to withdraw.

N. T. Murphy granted, 18 yes, 1 no.

Evans Express was given leave to withdraw.

Councilman Walsh moved to reconsider vote on the New York & Boston express. Lost—5 yes, 12 no.

Upon motion of Councilman Cherrington, the vote on S. F. Barker was reconsidered.

Councilman Whiton moved Barker be given leave to withdraw. Voted 10 yes and 8 no.

A motion of Councilman Cherrington to reconsider vote on Bruce & Myatt was lost, 7 yes 8 no.

Voted to adjourn at 10.46.

All votes on express permits by roll will be found in detail in another column.

Out for Practice.

There was lots doing at Merrymount Park Tuesday afternoon and people strolling through the grounds found plenty to interest them. In the upper field, under Capt. Ted Keohane, the Q. H. S. baseball squad were making things hum with bat and ball.

Further on, in the lower field, the candidates for the track team were being tried out by Carl Gram, Tech '08, and Manager Pierce. From the 12 or 15 present a team is to be picked for the Harvard inter-scholastic meet.

In another part of the field, Fletcher Miller, Harvard '09, had a number of fellows chasing a pig skin around in preparation for football. This is the new idea at the school, and is being tried with good success, for there were 20 or 30 who showed up for the first day of spring practice.

At the High School athletics are booming, and plenty of good sport is promised for the future, especially in the baseball games. Watch them.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never fails. Sold by C. D. Harlow & Co., Druggists.

The Quarrymen Reach Agreement

Committees representing the Granite Manufacturers and the Quarrymen's Union met Tuesday afternoon, and reached an agreement whereby the differences were settled, and the quarrymen will return to work Thursday morning.

The terms of settlement are that the pay of the quarrymen shall be 26 cents per hour for the first year, and 28 cents per hour for the next two years.

The settlement of the quarrymen will be good news to everyone in Quincy. The manufacturers have a good supply of orders on hand, and there is no reason why business should not boom from now on.

The strike of the engineers is still on but as most of the strikers' places have been filled by non-union men, there will be no interruption of work.

Car Load of Wine.

Officer Goodhue arrested Egidio Pucci of Akron, Ohio, this morning for violation of the liquor law. It is alleged that Pucci would ship a car load of wine from Ohio to Quincy, and then go about the city selling it to Italians. A car load of liquor is now at the Quincy freight yard.

AMONG THE CLUBS

So much space is given today to the important meeting of the City Council that the Women's Club notes and considerable other news in type is crowded out. Club notes tomorrow.

The Friday club meets this week on Thursday afternoon instead of on the usual day meeting with Mrs. John F. Welch of Hancock street. Mrs. George W. Morton has arranged the program of noted Florentine names in literature and science: Machiavelli, Alfieri, Pulci, Galileo, Vespucci, Brownings, Bryon and Landor. The season closes May first with a business meeting at the home of Mrs. Geo. G. Saville when prosaic business will be enlivened by a series of living pictures from Florentine masterpieces done by club members as arranged by Mrs. Alden and Miss Randall.

Recital.

A most enthusiastic audience assembled to hear Miss Bass in her readings at the First Baptist church of Wollaston on Tuesday evening. She held her audience every moment in her serious as well as more humorous selections. Most of all perhaps, "The Last Word," was appreciated, showing Miss Bass' dramatic talent and great ability as a reader.

Miss Bass was assisted by Miss McConville, a violoncellist of wide repute, who most marvellously rendered her numbers. Both young ladies received hearty applause and were recipients of many bouquets.

We have the stock, tools, machinery, and "know how" to do your Optical work promptly and satisfactory. We repair the frames, grind lenses, match the broken ones or test the eye. C. F. Pettengill, 1391 Hancock street, Quincy.

Amateur Dramatics.

Members of John Adams chapter, Junior Sons and Daughters of the Revolution, entertained at Colonial hall on Tuesday evening, when a comedy in two acts entitled "An Unimportant Address" was given by the following cast:

Cecil Page, Albert W. Prescott (society young man)
James Montgomery, Ralph A. Merritt (society young man)
Nanette Jasmin, Edith May Granger (fashionable modiste)
Phyllis Wells, Helen M. Lincoln (a country girl)
Doris Page, Florence Loretta Burnhan (sister to Cecil)
Clara, Grace Estelle Burnham (maid to Madame Jasmin)

It was a new field for most of the actors but they received praise from their friends. Miss Helen M. Lincoln opened the program with a patriotic medley, and Master Myron Francis Ford, who was down for one reading, was recalled several times and delighted all. The candy table was well patronized.

FOR YOUR SUNDAY DINNER

try the following delightful desert:
1-2 cup English Walnut meats.
1-2 doz. figs, cut up fine.
1 10c. package JELL-O, any flavor.
Dissolve the JELL-O in a pint of boiling water. When cool and just commencing to thicken stir in the figs and nuts. Serve with Whipped Cream. Delicious. The walnuts, figs and JELL-O can be bought at any good grocery. This makes enough dessert for a large family and is very economical.

Good Taste in Bedroom Furniture

BARGAIN PRICES

It isn't easy to find plain, honest designs coupled with good sound construction in Bedroom Furniture. A large amount of the Furniture now-a-days is covered with cheap, meaningless ornaments which simply conceal a low grade of material and flimsy construction.

The styles we are showing are made along lines which are peculiarly appropriate to the design of Bedroom Furniture. There isn't anything fussy about these designs, nothing elaborate "so to speak," to disturb the effect of quietness and restfulness.

We have the choicest patterns in solid mahogany, Toona Mahogany, Curly Birch, Bird's Eye Maple, White Enamel and Quartered Oak.

A visit to our store will delight you.

Bill Reported Granting Appeal To Railroad Commissioners

The fight over express permits to transport intoxicating liquors may be transferred from the Quincy City Council to the Legislature, for only week Thursday the Committee on Liquor Laws of the Legislature reported an important amendment to the "Pony Express" Act, which proposes a new section granting opportunity for appeal to the Railroad Commissioners. There are three dissenters to the proposed bill,—Senator Hall, Representative Nash of Hanover and Representative Torrey of Groton.

Relative to the registration of carriers of intoxicating liquors.

Chapter four hundred and twenty-one of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and six is hereby amended by striking out the entire chapter and inserting in place thereof the following:—

Section 1. No person or corporation, except a railroad or street railway corporation, shall, for hire or reward, transport spirituous or intoxicating liquors into a city or town in which licenses of first five classes for the sale of intoxicating liquors are not granted, without first being granted a permit so to do as hereinafter provided.

Section 2. The mayor and aldermen in cities and the selectmen in towns in which licenses of the first five classes are not granted, shall annually grant and issue one or more permits under the provisions of this act, and every such permit shall specify the residence by street and number, if any, of the holder, and shall be subject to all laws now or hereafter in force relative to the transportation of such liquors.

Section 3. All permits issued pursuant to this act shall be signed by the licensing board, shall be recorded by the city or town clerk before becoming operative, and shall remain in force unless forfeited until the first day of May next succeeding the date upon which they are granted, and said clerk shall collect a fee of one dollar for such recording.

Section 4. Any person or corporation aggrieved by the decision of the mayor and aldermen of a city or selectmen of a town under the provisions of section two of this act, may within fifteen days after said decision, appeal therefrom to the board of railroad commissioners, and said board shall, after due notice given to said party so appealing and to said mayor and aldermen or board of selectmen, hear said parties, and if in the judgment of said board of railroad commissioners, public necessity or convenience require it, they may grant a license as aforesaid, signed by the chairman and secretary of said board. Said license shall be subject to all the conditions and requirements as hereinbefore expressed, and the decision of said board of railroad commissioners shall be final.

Section 5. Any person violating the provisions of this act shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for not less than one month nor more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment, and violation of the laws relative to transportation, keeping or sale of intoxicating liquors by a person holding a permit granted under authority hereof, shall render such permit void.

Section 6. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

The above bill purports to be on petition of Miss Eva M. Brown of Quincy, who forwarded a bill (No. 703,) but Miss Brown is strongly opposed to the bill reported and has already taken steps to defeat it.

The Bill accompanying the petition of Eva M. Brown for legislation relative to permits to carriers of intoxicating liquors read entirely different, being as follows:

Section 1. Section two of chapter four hundred and twenty-one of the acts of the year nineteen hundred and six is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following:—

PROVIDED, that no such permit shall be granted to any person whose place of business has been used at any time during the two years preceding the date of such application for the sale of intoxicating liquors, and no such permit shall be granted to any person who has within two years been convicted of any violation of the laws relative to intoxicating liquors,—so as to read as follows:—

Section 2. The mayor and aldermen in cities and the selectmen in towns in which said licenses of the first five classes are not granted shall annually grant and issue one or more permits under the provisions of this act, and every such permit shall specify the residence by street and number, if any, of the holder, and shall be subject to all laws now or hereafter in force relative to the transportation of such liquors: PROVIDED, that no such permit shall be granted to any person whose place of business has been used at any time during the two years preceding the date of such application for the sale of intoxicating liquors, and no such permit shall be granted to any person who has within two years been convicted of any violation of the laws relative to intoxicating liquors.

Section 2. Section three of said chapter four hundred and twenty-one is hereby amended by inserting after the word "forfeited," in the fourth line, the words:—or revoked by the board granting the same,—so as to read as follows:

Section 3. All permits issued pursuant to this act shall be signed by the licensing board, shall be recorded by the city or town clerk before becoming operative, and shall remain in force unless forfeited or revoked by the board granting the same until the first day of May next succeeding the date upon which they are granted, and said clerk shall collect a fee of one dollar for such recording.

Section 3. Section four of said chapter four hundred and twenty-one is hereby amended by adding thereto the following words:—

Any permit granted to a person who has been found guilty of such violation shall be suspended during the pendency of any appeal from such finding or other proceedings for review thereof,—so as to read as follows:—

Section 4. Any person violating the provisions of this act shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for not less than one month or more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment, and any violation of the laws relative to the transportation of intoxicating liquors, by a person holding a permit granted under authority hereof, shall render such permits void. Any permit granted to a person who has been found guilty of such violation shall be suspended during the pendency of any appeal from such finding or other proceedings for review thereof.

Y. M. C. A. CARNIVAL

Fine Exhibition of Gymnastic Work of Young Quincy Athletes

The two days' carnival of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. opened Wednesday evening when an excellent and varied program was presented. It was an exhibition of gymnasium work largely by members of the local association, and not only proved a pleasing entertainment, but showed the good work which the Y. M. C. A. is doing in developing the bodies of young men, making them manly men.

In the grand march 52 young men participated including 16 juniors. The Junior class acquitted themselves finely in the figure march and flag drill and won applause.

Eighteen seniors then showed their agility in fancy steps and dumb bell drill. The different squads then gave an exhibition of apparatus work, the squads changing from one piece to another, showing good all round work.

There were also interesting group games, three different games being in process at the same time. Seniors representing the Salem and Quincy associations then did some stunts which were marvelous, at times on the horizontal bar, the horse, and also in tumbling on the floor mats. In several of these two men took part.

Two young men from Brockton gave an exhibition of the "manly art." There were three bouts with boxing gloves in which the contestants were very evenly matched. Each touched the other with some hard raps.

Other events were the winding wand drill by the Witch City gym team, races including skin the snake,

What Do YOU DO for Quincy?

A Little Wad of Common Sense.

A New Aid Fable.

This is not a George Ade fable, though it may sling some slang. It is a Home Aid fable.

Once there was a Geezer, who sat around and cut Kindling too small for Cook Stove purposes. He Whittled against Time and Flabbergasted against his Town. The town was No Good, he said—strictly on the Blink. Yes, it was N. G. Why, hadn't he lived Here since '84 and found that the Place was Punky? Sure, Mike!

Look at that town over in the next County. Grown like Jonah's Gourd. Must be a Jonah here. We've grown some, but I don't see that we're knocking any particularly Big Persimmons. That's the way this Gazaboo knocked his town.

One day a Sarcastic Stranger floated into the Town that was Knocked from the burg that had Blossomed like Jonah's Gourd. He Heard some of the Flabbergasting and Dropped to the situation.

"Look here, you," he remarked to the citizen who was Handing Out the Knocks. "What do you do for this town? Are you doing your part to put this Burg on the Upgrade? What's that hefty Bunch of literature sticking out of your Clothes?"

"That's a Mail Order Catalogue from Chicago—a town that is a town," replied the Geezer.

"So I thought," said the Impertinent Arrival. "Now let me hand you out a nice little Wad of common sense. For the past ten years you have been sending your money to the Chicago Mail Order houses instead of spending it among your home merchants. What would have happened to Chicago fifty years ago if all the First Settlers had shipped their Loose Coin to New York on catalogue inducements? Why, you'd have to use a sand dredger now to find the Original Site of Chicago. Now, in the Burg from which I have just Blown in we got over all this Bum Business years ago. We passed Resolutions that we would trade at home and help our own town to Spread out so that you could Sight it on the map without using Opera Glasses. But you and a Bunch of other folks in this town have wasted your Substance in Riotous Expenditures in Chicago by mail and let the sheriff hang out the 'Nothing Doing' sign in front of some of your own town's mercantile Emporiums. Look at our Town and then look at yours. What makes the Difference?"

Whereupon the Whittling Gazaboo threw a few well chosen Thoughts into his mental makeup and went down to the village store to Annex a linen collar in place of the Paper Circles which he had bought from Chicago at Two Bits a Box.

MORAL: If you want your town to grow, patronize home enterprises.

Gabrielle's Easter.

By OLIVE HILL.

Copyright, 1907, by Hamilton Musk.

THERE could have been nothing fresher and more springlike than Mme. Louise's imported bonnets and hats, which had just arrived from Paris and were being unpacked amid the admiring exclamations of the employees of her establishment.

Mme. Louise was a fashionable milliner. Her models came direct from Paris, and her loyal patrons believed that the skillful fingers of her workwomen often improved upon the originals, but if you wanted bargains or if your purse was a limited one Mme. Louise's establishment was the last place to visit.

"You say I ask too moche," madame said one day to a customer, "but mademoiselle should remember it is not ze velvet nor ze ribbons nor ze plumes what make ze cost. It is ze cachet, ze style, you can find nowhere else in ze city. If mademoiselle can get dat cheap, eh bien, so much ze bettaire for her."

Among the importations which were not to be made visible to the public eye until the week before Easter was one superlatively charming hat. It was of cream point lace, with a kind of veiled suggestion of the tender green of spring verdure, and was trimmed with a drooping spray of exquisite lilacs. It was a hat for a beautiful young blond.

"Ah, but la petite Rose Lambert must buy dat hat!" madame exclaimed, clasping her hands and gazing with adoring eyes at the hat. "Vid her skin so white and rose, her eyes like ze blue sky and her smiling mouth she vill be sharming!"

"Ah, yes, and her father is rich, rich," said Miss Stoll, the forewoman, "and he denies her nothing! You will not ask less than thirty for this hat, madame?"

"Forty dollars!" madame said decisively. "It cost me ten in Paris, and it was a bargain. Look! Real lace and ze flowers! If we make not a leetle profit on our confections, how vill ze business keep up? La petite Lambert vill give ze price, and she vill be ze grand advertisement for ze style. Orders vill come in from ze light and ze dark, from ze ugly and ze pretty. She vill look so lovely dat dey vill all tink it is ze hat dat makes beautiful."

Among the workwomen who were admiring the new hat was one to whom it would have been quite as becoming as to the young lady for whom it was intended. Gabrille de Kernion had the same rose leaf skin and wavy golden hair, though her eyes were dark gray instead of blue, and her eyebrows and lashes were nearly black. She was a beautiful girl and a De Kernion with all the stately grace of her decayed aristocratic line.

But what use had a poor working girl for aristocratic ancestry? Such questions as that many of the creoles of Louisiana have put aside in their praiseworthy efforts to make a bare living. The affairs of the De Kernions had gone from bad to worse until the last descendant of the line had gone to work for meager wages to keep herself and her widowed mother from starving.

Certainly they were quite near starvation for a long time before Mme. de Kernion could make up her mind to consent to Gabrielle seeking outside employment. The work at home would be well enough, for the girl would not be exposed to the contamination of coarse associates, but such work could not be found, and poverty is a peremptory master who does not always leave it to one to decide where he shall make his bread, but pushes him into strange byways to seek it.

The girl herself, knowing nothing of the loss of wealth and grandeur that her mother lamented, was fairly content with her humble lot. Her ancestors had transmitted to her a certain stateliness of figure and manner, but she was at heart a simple minded girl, doing her work conscientiously and with no higher ambition than to excel in it.

There were changes even in her monotonous life. From Monday morning until Saturday evening she was Gabrielle, a hard worked girl, whom madame scolded and Miss Stoll worried and the customers ordered to do this and that, to pull to pieces and to construct, with a complete disregard of the possibility that fingers which were flesh and blood like their own might grow weary.

But on Sundays behold Mlle. de Kernion, clad in her best, walking gracefully to church with her mother and exchanging nods, smiles and courteous greetings with the creole aristocracy of the "old quarter." Most of her friends were as poor as she, but no poverty or humble toil could impair the refinement of manner and courtly address which they had inherited, with their names, from their French ancestors.

Gabrielle cared nothing for past grandeurs and aristocratic ancestry, but she would have liked money enough to dress prettily. She had excellent taste, and that taste was affronted by her threadbare dresses and well worn gloves and shoes.

"HOW DARE YOU ACCUSE MY DAUGHTER OF THEFT?"

"Ah!" she said to herself as she gazed at the famous spring hat. "This lace is just like mamma's old point lace scarf which she gave me. No old lace is handsomer than that. Mine is finer and some ragged, but it looks the same. Then my friend Christine Beaupre makes lilac sprays like these. How funny! And Mme. Louise believes the hat strictly Parisian."

She smiled at herself in the mirror opposite. Gabrielle was pretty and was fully aware of the fact. And the hat was such a beauty. Several times she caught herself looking at it, and when Miss Lambert, summoned by madame, arrived, Gabrielle, to her delight, was selected to try it on and make alterations if any were needed. Of course Miss Lambert bought the hat. When did the astute Mme. Louise fail in disposing of her "confections" according to her plans? There was a slight alteration to be made in some of the loopings, which was intrusted to Gabrielle's deft fingers.

"Be sure, madame, to send it to me Saturday," Miss Lambert said as she was leaving. "Don't allow your press of work to crowd my hat out of your mind."

"But certainly not!" madame screamed, gesticulating a vehement denial. "To forget! Ah, dat would be impossible! Mees Rose, you vill sharm all eyes on Easter day, and if ze young demoiselles vould give one t'ousand dollar dey could not get a hat like yours in ze city. It is unique, sharming, as it is ze most sharming young lady in ze city who vill lend grace to it."

Miss Lambert smiled and bowed at the compliment. It was really pleasant to know that she was the owner of something not attainable by her thousand and one dear friends.

On Sautrday there was such a rush of custom at Mme. Louise's that Gabrielle did not have time even to get her dinner. About noon Miss Stoll had been taken ill and was obliged to go home. It was very unfortunate, for it threw a heavier burden of duty upon the rest, who were already greatly overworked. During the rest of the day the shop was in great confusion.

"Tiens!" cried madame in good French, just as the shop was about to be closed, and she clapped her hands to her forehead as if to restrain from wandering the few ideas her head still contained. "I believe I have lost my mind in all this uproar. Here is Mme. Ernest Lauve's bonnet, and she lives in the French quarter, miles from here! Gabrielle, it is near the Rue D., where you live. Take the bonnet to her, and then you can go home, since by that time it will be dark, and you have had no dinner."

Poor Gabrielle, exhausted and hungry, was only too glad of an errand that would release her from the shop even a few minutes earlier than the others. When she reached home after dark she was too tired even to think of Easter.

Mme. Louise bustled hither and thither, for there were many hats and bonnets to be delivered to her customers that evening.

"And Mlle. Lambert's hat!" she cried. "You must take it to her, Victoire, and tell her we were too busy to send it before."

Victoire went to get the hat. She returned after several minutes' absence with a troubled face.

"Madame, the hat is not there. Gabrielle made the alterations this afternoon. Did you not send it by her?"

"No!" madame cried angrily. "She took Mme. Lauve's hat. You are all crazy. You can find nothing unless it is under your nose. Get that hat immediately! Do you hear? Immediately!"

The frightened workwoman ran here and there, pulling down boxes and ferreting in every corner of the large room.

Nine o'clock struck, and the missing hat was not found. But all agreed that Gabrielle was the last person seen with it. It was then too late to take further steps, and madame, overfatigued and nervous, became hysterical and was borne to bed crying that her establishment was ruined, that a theft had been committed, that her customers would lose their confidence in her and that she could never face them again.

But she awakened on Easter morning with her senses restored and with a well formed resolution in her mind. Since Gabrielle was the last person seen with the hat, no doubt the careless girl had stowed it away somewhere and forgotten to mention it. She would go to the French quarter and find out from Gabrielle where the hat was. There would still be time to get it and send it to Miss Lambert before she was ready for church.

Little did Gabrielle, who was making her simple toilet and adjusting her beautiful hat on her sunny hair, dream of the fate which was descending upon her. She paused a minute when she heard a well known voice in the front room addressing her mother imperatively in French.

"I am Mme. Louise. I wish to see your daughter Gabrielle immediately."

Gabrielle hastened to the room. Madame sprang from her seat as she entered with a loud cry.

"She has the hat! Ah, you wretched thief, how did you dare do this? Did you expect to wear it and get off and not be detected? Give me my hat!"

She snatched the hat from the head of the astounded girl.

"I have a great mind to call the police and send you to jail. If it were not for the disgrace to my establishment I would do it this minute. Oh, what a bold and impudent thief!"

"She calls me a thief!" cried Gabrielle, pale, trembling and throwing her arms around her mother as if for protection. "She says I stole this hat. Mamma, you know I made it of your old lace scarf."

"Are you mad, madame?" Mme. de Kernion said indignantly. "How dare you accuse my daughter of theft? I gave her the lace, and she made the hat."

Madame uttered a scornful laugh and cast a contemptuous glance around the poorly furnished room.

"Ah, then, you are the princess in disguise! You are lodged thus," with a sweep of the hand, "and you own costly point lace, and your daughter does me the honor to work for me and to appropriate my property. Bah! No more of this! My handsomest hat, which the girl altered, is missing. I come here. I find it on her head. I can swear to my property. If you both had your deserts you would be lodged in jail. Thank me that you are not. And, Gabrielle, never show your face in my establishment again!"

She swept away, leaving mother and daughter as much astonished as enraged.

When madame reached home she dispatched a special messenger with the hat to Miss Lambert and heard nothing more of it that day. But early next morning she was surprised by the entrance of the young lady.

"What did you mean, madame, by sending me two hats?" Miss Lambert asked. "And you deceived me by saying that mine was the only one in the city. They are as much alike as two peas. Miss Stoll brought me one on Saturday noon. She said she was ill and was going home, and, as she lives only a short distance from us, she was kind enough to leave my hat on her way. But, madame, it was a shame in you to deceive me!"

"GET THAT HAT IMMEDIATELY! DO YOU HEAR?"

Mme. Louise gasped for breath. Her explanation was not clear, but it satisfied Miss Lambert that a cruel injustice had been done to an innocent girl.

"So you were the actual thief, madame!" she laughed. "Why, they could arrest you for robbing them. Better send the girl's hat back to her and eat a little humble pie."

The humble pie was a bitter morsel to Mme. Louise, but as Gabrielle positively refused to return to her establishment they never met again. Circumstances since then have changed for the better with Gabrielle, but to this day she remembers the humiliation of that Easter morning.

"Easter hats!" I heard her say the other day. "Ah, I hate the very name of them!"

NEWSMEN AT BANQUET

Bryan Ventilates His Ideas as to an Ideal Newspaper

KNOX ALSO TENDERS ADVICE

Preachments Should Stimulate Energy and Courage of the People--Publishers Protest Against the "Subterfuge" of Speaker Cannon

New York, April 23.—There was a notable gathering of editors and publishers at the Waldorf-Astoria last night, the occasion being a joint banquet of The Associated Press and the American Newspaper Publishers' association, both of which organizations are holding their annual meetings in this city.

Every state and territory of the United States was represented by persons who have earned distinction in the newspaper profession, while their guests included William J. Bryan, United States Senator Knox of Pennsylvania and others of public influence.

In the course of his speech Mr. Bryan took occasion to present his views as to an entirely new form of newspaper. He said:

"It seems to me that the time is ripe for an experiment. It is much easier for a paper to be bi-partisan than non-partisan; that is, easier to represent both sides than to discuss public questions without taking either side. If the proprietor really wants to conduct a non-partisan paper and if the readers really want to subscribe for a non-partisan paper, why would not both proprietor and reader be better satisfied with a paper which reported the news impartially in its news columns and then gave to each party representation on its editorial page?

"If, for instance, a big metropolitan paper wants to become really independent, why should it not employ a representative of each of the parties to furnish signed editorials on political questions? Such a paper would appeal to all parties, and especially to those who are anxious to know both sides of every public question. Is it not an experiment worth trying?"

Senator Knox, in the course of his address, said:

"The press should lend its influence to strengthen the power of the states in matters over which they have and should exercise exclusive control and to strengthen the federal government in matters committed to it exclusively.

"Its preachments should be a stimulus to the energy and courage of the people, and it should be quite as keen to discourage unnecessary and vexatious interference with the daily affairs of the ninety and nine who are seeking their own happiness and building up our country by diligently pursuing their accustomed avocations as it is keen to hunt down the buccaneer sailing under self-created letters of commercial marque and reprisal and preying upon the commerce of the world."

A Protest From Publishers

New York, April 23.—A resolution thanking President Roosevelt for his message in favor of free pulp and print paper was adopted at the meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers' association.

Another resolution protested against "the subterfuge just designed by Speaker Cannon and Representatives Payne and Dalzell, creating a committee on paper inquiry, and thereby blocking the Stevens bill for free paper and free pulp. We charge that this device was inspired in bad faith." The resolution concludes:

"With the utmost respect and deference for the authority of congress, we respectfully state that we mistrust the committee just appointed. We challenge the intentions of those who have thus far succeeded in sidetracking the Stevens bill. We charge that action on the Stevens bill has been delayed to an advantage of a combination of paper makers who, in a desperate effort to maintain artificial prices upon a declining market, have shut down nearly 50 percent of their mills and who, by throwing into idleness a considerable number of their employes, have shown the insincerity of their professions that the tariff duty on paper was needed to protect that paper."

Illinois Revolt Against Bryan

Chicago, April 23.—The Swedish Courier, the most influential Swedish Republican daily in the country, has jumped over party traces and is out for Governor Johnson for the Democratic presidential nomination. John P. McGoorty, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, has announced himself for Johnson and has been joined by other Democratic leaders and delegates.

Russia Has Hard Job on Hand

St. Petersburg, April 23.—The situation on the Persian frontier is considered here to be growing more serious despite the check to the Persian brigands April 20, when the Russian forces drove the bandits back with heavy losses. The frontier guard is inadequate to cope with the situation.

Union Trust to Resume Business

Providence, April 23.—A sub-committee of the board of directors of the Union Trust company voted to reopen the branch at East Greenwich on May 4, the date of the resumption of the main bank and the branch in Olneyville.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the endowment fund. This now amounts to over $50 00 but a fund of at least $100.000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE

Young Men's Christian Association

OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title – Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

Lavish Entertainment

Los Angeles, Cal., April 23.—A ball rivalling in its wealth and brilliant effects an inaugural function at Washington brought to a close the fifth day of the stay of the American battleship fleet at the port of Los Angeles. The dance was given in honor of the admirals and officers of the fleet, and more than 1200 couples took part in the grand march. The program of dancing was a long one, beginning at 9:30 o'clock and ending at 3 a. m. More than 3000 bluejackets and marines came ashore in the morning and had a good time. Three-fourths of the fleet entertainment fund raised in this city has been spent on the enlisted men.

Won't Act on Venezuela

Washington, April 13.—Administration officials have practically abandoned the expectation that the senate will at this session of congress authorize the president to take punitive measures against Venezuela for refusal to refer to arbitration the disputed claims of American citizens and corporations against that country. Persons having commercial interests in Venezuela which would be adversely affected by punitive measures have asked that nothing be done, while no sentiment has developed in favor of drastic action.

Trip of Army Balloon

Wilmington, Del., April 23.—Balloon No. 10 of the signal corps of the United States army, which left Washington yesterday afternoon, landed last evening one mile above Delaware City. The balloon was in charge of Captain Chandler and had three passengers. The landing was made without accident, though in a previous attempt to bring it to earth the anchor caught in a tree and broke off.

House Front Wrecked by Bomb

Oakland, Cal., April 23.—A dynamite bomb was exploded last night under the residence of James L. Gallagher. The entire front of the house was destroyed. Gallagher was a member of the boodling board of supervisors of San Francisco and is an important witness for the prosecution in the bribery trials now pending in San Francisco. No one was hurt.

Forged Governor's Signature

Philadelphia, April 23.—William H. Mortimer, who, by forging the name of Governor Guild of Massachusetts, representing himself as that official's nephew, swindled the St. James hotel out of $300, pleaded guilty to the charge of forgery. He was given four years in the penitentiary.

Senators Befogged Over Treaty

Washington, April 23.—The senate considered in executive session the Canadian boundary treaty, but no agreement could be reached concerning it. The treaty was not generally understood by the senate and it went over until the next executive session.

Saved Town From Destruction

Wadsworth, O., April 23.—Seventeen-year-old Anna Wuest saved this little city from destruction. She was aroused from sleep to find an adjoining business house in flames. She ran through the streets in her nightdress and gave the alarm.

PRAISE FOR CANAL WORK.

Emil L. Boas Predicts Success of Great Panama Waterway.

Emil L. Boas, resident director and general manager of the Hamburg-American line, who returned recently to New York, with Mrs. Boas, from a month's trip to Jamaica, Colombia, Costa Rica and the isthmus of Panama, in speaking of his trip said:

"First and foremost in interest of anything seen during my trip is that wonderful undertaking, the Panama canal. It is simply overpowering, and after seeing what has been done and getting acquainted with the men who are doing the work the conclusion is made that all the great difficulties will be overcome and the stupendous work brought to a successful finish.

"If you stand on the height opposite the Gatun dam and have Major Hardy, in charge there, point out a great gash in the hill which has been made in the last half year, you get an idea what a 'million yards of earth' removed represent.

"Another way of appreciating these quantities is to watch the excavator at work. There it stands at the side of the hill, scooping up earth or rubble or big stones and dumping them into a waiting dirt train. It dips, fills, lifts and drops incessantly, but how long it takes to fill a car—a train! Everywhere are excavators of varied patterns, pneumatic drills and dirt trains. It is a wonderful scene of industry and activity, and there is not the slightest doubt that the American government will complete what first was advocated in 1620 by a Spaniard, Diego de Mercado, and frowned on as sacrilegious by King Philip II. of Spain, then actually taken up and abandoned by the French people and declared by eminent engineers to be an almost impossible undertaking."

Mr. Boas said that the mosquito, a great disseminator of disease in the canal belt, was practically extinct through the systematic efforts of the American health authorities there.

FLATS ON COLONY IDEA.

Each of Five Under One Roof to Reflect Ideas of Occupant.

Five Chicago men, having become tired of paying rent and desiring to live in apartments constructed after their own ideas, have subscribed $100,000 to erect in Chicago an apartment building in which the plans of each one will be carried out in the minutest detail.

Each of the five will own the flat he occupies. Instead of paying rent each will pay his share of the cost of operating the building, including heating, lighting and janitor service and the wages of a valet in common, who will be installed in a room on the first floor.

The five, who are said to be the first who ever have adopted this plan of avoiding the payment of rent in an apartment building, are James Petit, J. B. Terbell, Benjamin Marshall, Charles E. Fox and an official of the Rock Island railroad.

Each apartment will contain twelve rooms. A feature of the building, which will be of the old colonial style of architecture, will be that the first floor will be used as a garage, with room for five machines.

Refrigerating plants and other conveniences will be in the building, which is expected to be the most novel and elegant of its kind in Chicago.

SALUTE TO POLICE URGED.

Chicago Woman Wants Children Taught to Honor Officers.

Some school children in Chicago the other day put into practice a novel plan advocated by a clubwoman, saluting all policemen on the street as a mark of respect for the authority they represent. The giant, good natured officers generally returned the salutation. Many of them can do it with military smartness as the result of recent drills.

"We think too little of our policemen," said Mrs. Edward Roby of Chicago at a recent luncheon of the Chicago Colony of New England Women at the Woman's Athletic club. "They protect our homes and often endanger their lives in our behalf. Their calling should stir our patriotism, and every child should be taught to salute the star which the policeman wears."

Odd Feature of a Trial.

A murder trial now in progress in St. Charles, Mo., has an odd interstate feature. Daniel Dempsey, village marshal of Grafton, Ill., is accused of killing one Claude Allemang. It appears that Dempsey followed Allemang from Grafton across the river into St. Charles county and had him arrested. The prisoner agreed to return without requisition papers and after starting back tried to escape, whereupon Dempsey shot him. It is contended that Dempsey had no authority to shoot Allemang, being an Illinois officer in Missouri territory. On the other hand, it is maintained by Dempsey that Allemang lived until he reached Grafton, Ill. The question at issue is in which state the dead man's heart stopped beating.

Dogs' Toilet Club.

There has recently been opened in one of London's fashionable streets a toilet club for dogs. There the pets of the smart set can have their hair dressed and their coats trimmed to immaculate perfection. For 3 shillings (about 75 cents) they can be bathed. If their teeth are imperfect they can be filled or extracted, and if their claws protrude too far they can be daintily manicured.

$2,500 For Fore River Work

On the petition of Representative Hultman of Quincy, the Committee on Harbors and Public Lands of the Legislature has reported the following resolve for dredging the upper portion of Weymouth Fore river:

Resolved, That the Board of Harbor and Land Commissioners is hereby directed to dredge the shoals which have formed in the upper portion of Weymouth Fore river in the channel excavated by the United State government, in accordance with the provision of chapter 103 of the resolves of the year 1905, whereby the Commonwealth agreed to maintain the channel dredged in said river by the United States government. For the purposes of carrying out the provisions of this resolve said board may expend a sum not exceeding $2500 out of the treasury of the Commonwealth.

Quincy Fund Is Growing

There is still great need of ladies to assist the relief committee at Chelsea. The ladies there have worked so hard since the fire that they are getting tired out. Some Quincy ladies have assisted and there is still need of more.

Mrs. Mary Tisdale and Mrs. Helen Bass of Hancock street were at Chelsea assisting all day Wednesday and they will be on duty again Friday.

At the receiving rooms in the Adams building, bundles of clothing, furniture, etc., continue to be received and quite a lot has been collected since Wednesday when a car load was sent off.

The ladies of Bethany church packed four barrels on Wednesday, as a result of their all-day sewing meeting. One barrel will be sent to a minister's wife of Chelsea who knows of needy families, and the ladies know of other individual cases which they will help to relief.

Societies working in any way for the relief of stricken Chelsea are requested to keep the Daily Ledger posted.

The fund being collected in Quincy for the relief of the Chelsea sufferers has passed the $1,000 mark and is now approximately $1100.

The total of the contributions published Saturday was over $896. Since that time $193 has been contributed. The Quincy fund should reach the $1500 mark before the end of the week.

The recent contributions are:

Robert Mavers	$5.00

West Quincy M. E.

At the New England M. E. conference recently held at Worcester, Rev. Carl H. Raupach was reappointed to the pastorate of Hall Place M. E. church, West Quincy, and began the work of the new year on Easter Sunday morning, speaking on "The Glad Vision," to a large audience. The special music on this occasion rendered by the choir and orchestra was of high order. The concert exercise in the evening by the Sunday school was well rendered, and brought out a good-sized congregation.

Recital by Mrs. Child

Music lovers from all parts of the city were in the audience Wednesday evening at First Church chapel at the song-recital by Mrs. Bertha Cushing Child, a contralto singer well known in Boston and musical circles. Mrs. Child was assisted by Miss Anne Abbott, violinist and Mr. J. Arthur Colburn was accompanist.

Large palms loaned by Patterson the Wollaston florist and a grand piano loaned by Mason & Hamlin of Boston adorned the stage. The ushers were Misses Avah Gilson, Catherine Saville, Grace Spear, Alice Claflin and Minnie Hardwick.

Mrs. Child was cordially greeted as she stepped upon the stage for the group of four songs which opened the program. These were varied and brought out the singer's remarkable voice. Her group of French songs were exquisitely sung and called forth an enthusiastic encore, to which she responded with "Annie Laurie." Throughout the program the audience was in sympathetic accord with the singer and as one group of songs followed the other enthusiasim grew. "But the Lord is Mindful" by Mendelssohn was beautifully rendered. The closing song "Agnus Dei" by Bizet with violin and piano accompaniment brought out the rich fullness, dramatic fire, and wonderful range of Mrs. Child's voice, which combined with an artistic temperament made a perfect rendering. A storm of applause which was prolonged and insistent brought a repetition and added pleasure.

Miss Abbott gave three violin solos besides accompanying Mrs. Child in the closing numbers. She was warmly applauded and responded each time to encores. She has a skilful and pleasing touch, playing sympathetically. "Humoreske" by Dvorak was exquisitely rendered as was the encore which followed.

Mr. Colburn at the piano was always adequate and in harmony with singer and violin, sustaining his part in the program in a way to add to the pleasure of the audience.

A large audience was present and as the proceeds go to the Hospital Aid association, they will receive a tidy little sum.

Sudden Death Of Mrs. Pool

Mrs. Julia Pool wife of John Pool, died suddenly at her home on Arnold street on Monday, after an illness of only one day's duration. Her death was a shock to her many friends, and even more so to her family to whom she was most devoted. Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, John and Joseph.

The funeral was held from her late home on Wednesday morning. A requiem mass was celebrated at St. John's church at 9 o'clock by Rev. J. E. Johnstone, and the music was under the direction of the organist, John Mahan. At the conclusion of the mass Miss Mary Flynn rendered "I love to hear my Saviour's voice."

After the mass the remains were taken to St. Mary's cemetery, where the interment took place. There were a number of floral tributes including a wreath of roses and Easter lilies from Ladies' Auxiliary No. 8 A. O. H., a wreath of roses and lilies from Mrs. Crawford and Mrs. Quigley, a basket of Easter lilies and ferns from neighbors, spray of carnations from Mrs. Theophilus King, spray of Easter lilies from Mr. and Mrs. John Irvine, spray of lilies from Mrs. Craig and spray of lilies from Mrs. Harvey.

The pall bearers were: Cornelius Crowley, Michael J. Crowley, Patrick Tauley, John Connors, John Flynn, and John Murphy.

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

Civil service examinations for the fire and police service are being held in Quincy today.

W. H. Bennett, formerly of Quincy, was in town this week. He is now located at Ossipee, N. H., and runs a portable saw mill which is doing a big business.

A. J. LaCroix will cater at the banquet to be served on Saturday to the Massachusetts Truant Officers Association which will be the guest of Truant Officer Johnson of this city.

Commander Gow, recently at the plant of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, who was ordered to Norfolk, Va., has now been transferred to the Philippines.

The Mission Board of Wolaston will hold a festival Saturday afternoon in the Congregational vestry. An entertainment by the children will be given at 3 o'clock.

Richard E. Bennett, who was injured on the railroad March 25 left the Massachusetts General hospital this week. He expects to have a stiff hip for some time, but is thankful that he escaped with his life.

The Garden committee of the Quincy Woman's club is to observe Arbor day and will appreciate gifts of trees, shrubs, bulbs and hardy plants for adorning the club house grounds. They may be left Saturday morning.

The second instalment of the new Friday feature of the Daily Ledger will appear tomorrow—a column of receipts. It will be made up largely of pie recipes but there will be a complete menu for one day with a few notes. Ladies are invited to send recipes.

Many friends attended on Wednesday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. George W. Ewell of Foster street. Rev. Dr. Hardy of Bethany church officiated, offered a prayer, and read a beautiful poem. There were several beautiful floral tributes. The interment was at Mt. Wollaston.

Supper at Quincy Point.

A shredded whaet supper was given at the Quincy Point church on Wednesday evening which was very successful. The menu included soup and triscuits, chicken patties, baked beans, fancy cake, jelly with whipped cream, cheese and peanut butter, rolls and coffee. Mrs. William Lee was in charge.

An entertainment followed, the committee being Mrs. William Hayden and Mrs. Selleck. The program included singing and instrumental music, and a very clever nursemaids' drill finely executed by twelve girls. There was a May basket and candy table decorated with poppies, in charge of Mrs. E. R. Stone and Mrs. E. H. Bushnell.

Church Improvement.

New granite steps are being placed this week at the three entrances of Hall Place M. E. church, which will be a great improvement over the old wooden ones. Robert Newcomb superintends the work, assisted by the men of the church. The granite being used was once a part of the underpinning of the Old Colony depot, Boston, and is a gift to the church by John Cashman of West Quincy.

Seamen's Bill.

Representative Coombs opposed the bill in the legislature Wednesday in the legislature Wednesday to permit the enticing of seamen to leave their vessels. He characterized the bill as a step toward "black and white slavery." He continued his speech against the bill at the afternoon session.

To Organize.

The mass meeting of the city employes under the auspices of the Federation of State, City and Town employes, will be held at Wilson's hall next Wednesday. The object of the union is to get a wage of 2.25 per day, a half holiday on Saturday and pensions for the aged and infirm.

AMONG THE CLUBS

The Junior Friday club went to West Newton on Tuesday to meet at the home of Miss Grace M. Isaac and had a very enjoyable meeting. The program was in charge of Miss Georgiana C. Lane, Michael Angelo and Renaissance architecture being considered. The next meeting will also be in charge of Miss Lane and at her home on President hill on Monday May 4th.

Owing to the reception to Mrs. Humphrey Ward, the English novelist, at hotel Vendome, Boston, on Friday afternoon, by the New England Women's club, the regular meeting of the Friday club was held today so that members could attend the reception to Mrs. Ward.

First Church Alliance brings a most successful season to a close next Monday afternoon with a Tolstoi meeting in continuation of the one held on March 23, when Mrs. Hayward gave a fine paper on Tolstoi's life and religious works. Mrs. Wilson Marsh on Monday will tell of Tolstoi as a social reformer. Mrs. Delano will read two letters of Tolstoi's and speak informally on impressions of Tolstoi. Mrs. George W. Morton, president, and her committee have presented this year a varied and interesting program and the music in charge of Mrs. Henry W. Tirrell, has also been most enjoyable.

The spring meeting of the Massachusetts State Federation will be held at the Town hall, Hudson, on Tuesday, April 28, by invitation of the Hudson Woman's club. The morning session, beginning at ten o'clock, will be occupied by Mrs. May Wright Sewall, former president of the International Council of Women. In the afternoon, Mr. Edward F. Bigelow, president of the Agassiz association, and editor of the Nature Department of St. Nicholas magazine, will speak on "The Haunts of Nature." Luncheon tickets at fifty cents each may be obtained from Miss Mabel Tripp, 28 Pope street, Hudson, Mass., by sending an order with money enclosed and addressed and stamped envelope for the return of the ticket. All orders must be sent on or before Monday, April 27. No tickets will be sold on the day of the meeting. Trains leave North Station, Boston, for Hudson at 8 and 11.05 A. M. via. Southern Division, arriving at 8.59 and 12.07. Leave same station at 8 and 11.30 A. M., via. Fitchburg Division, arriving at 9.14 and 12.44.

Club members can obtain tickets to the meeting of Mrs. F. H. Bishop, Wollaston.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

An extra meeting of the Quincy Women's club was held Tuesday afternoon under the auspices of the Arts and Crafts committee, which was largely attended, not only by club members but by those interested in Arts and Crafts work. A short musical program preceded the lecture, Mrs. George W. Morton, president of the club, presiding and introducing the artists.

Miss Margaret Carruthers played a Nocturn and two Preludes by Chopin which called forth appreciative applause. Miss Carruthers is a Quincy pianist of unusual ability and is making rapid progress in her profession, receiving instant favor in musical circles. She has good technique and an acurate and pleasing touch and is moreover thoroughly musical, which adds much to the harmony of her playing.

Mrs. Dudley Talbot of Milton sang most sweetly two old songs "Coming thro the Rye" and "Annie Laurie" accompanying herself on the piano, and also being accompanied by her sister, Miss Grace Parker, who whistled. Miss Parker also gave Nevin's "Venetian Love Song," which was charmingly done in clear, sweet bird-like notes.

Mrs. Walter E. Blanchard, chairman of the Quincy Arts and Crafts committee, welcomed the club members and guests and invited all to inspect the fine exhibit by Massachusetts clubs and also the work of the Quincy club, after which she introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Overholser of Wellesley Hills, chairman of the Arts and Crafts department of the Mass. Federation of Women's clubs.

Mrs. Overholser has a charming personality which immediately put her in sympathetic touch with her audience. She told in an informal, conversational way of the arts and crafts movement. In Deerfield, the home of some of the most beautiful work, the movement started among strictly American people who had lived there for centuries and had beautiful heirlooms in the way of blue and white embroideries, rugs, linens, furniture, etc., which they copied with great success, creating a demand for the goods. In some places like Watertown, Greenfield and Montague arts and crafts was a great social worker as it brought the foreigner who was skilful into the way of earning in her own home, to the betterment of that home, as it brought the mother in touch with other women who were interested in her. It made for a broader life, a more human life.

As Mrs. Overholser talked she exhibited the work done in the various clubs and towns. There were fine samples of rugs, embroideries, stensil, basketing, etc. The work of the blind was especially beautiful in coloring and texture. Arts and crafts had done much for the blind, they could almost see through their fingers so skilful had they become and at the same time they had a much happier life from being occupied and useful. Rugs made at the Morgan Memorial, Boston, were exhibited and were of various kinds, some being very durable as well as beautiful.

Morgan Memorial was a very worthy charity finding work for the deserving who had some one thing they could do well.

The social and charitable view of the arts and crafts movement had never before been brought to the attention of club members in this phase and it is certain that new interest will now be taken in this branch of work in the Quincy Women's club.

At the close of Mrs. Overholser's talk the exhibit was carefully inspected and enjoyed. Upstairs in the rooms of the Arts and Crafts committee there was also a fine exhibit by local talent. Some stensil work was especially beautiful and perfect in its conception.

The next meeting of the club and the regular one on the club calendar will be on April 28th at three o'clock in charge of the Art and Literature committee, Mrs. Saville, chairman.

NEIGHBORING.

Visiting Daughters to the annual meeting of the General society of the Daughters of the Revolution in New York city next week are to be given a large reception on Monday evening at hotel Plaza by the New York society. Business sessions will begin on Tuesday morning with official headquarters at the Waldorf-Astoria lasting through Tuesday and Wednesday. Thursday and Friday there will be trips to West Point, Governor's Island, the Bronx, etc.

A relief committee of thirty has been appointed by the Chelsea Woman's club to care for the fire refugees. Owing to the strain of the time club meetings will be omiitted for the rest of the season excepting the annual meeting an election on May 1st.

The Fortnightly club of Winchester held an all day sewing meeting Tuesday to sew for members of the Chelsea Woman's club who were burned out. Garments were made to order to fit those whose names were sent by the club's committee.

Members of the Milton Woman's club are anticipating much pleasure at their next meeting on May 4th, when Mrs. Margaret Deland will be the speaker and guest of the afternoon.

The Brightelmstone club of Allston and Brighton has announced through its forestry committee, that it would offer two prizes of five dollars each, first to the child under fourteen years of age who should present the best collection of native leaves, mounted and labelled; secondly to the person between fourteen and nineteen years of age who should present the best essay on the subject: "Why we Should Preserve the Forests." The prizes will be publicly awarded at a meeting of the club in October.

Tuberculosis Exhibit.

A Tuberculosis Exhibit, similar to those which have been given recently in Boston and neigboring towns, will be held in the Municipal Building, Upham's Corner, Dorchester, from April 25 to May 3 (inclusive) under the auspices of the Dorchester and Milton members of the associated committees for the prevention and control of tuberculosis.

These exhibits are for educational purposes and are designed to show well people how tuberculosis can be avoided and to illustrate by what means the disease is spread, and how its spread may be prevented.

There will be lectures by prominent persons, laymen as well as physicians, giving the modern ideas of how to combat this most distressing illness, with the expectation that at some future time it can be eradicated.

Prize Essay Contest.

A prize of twenty-five dollars will be awarded by the Daughters of the Revolution, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, for the best essay on the following subject: "The part taken by the New England Colonies in the Revolution after the Declaration of Independence." High school pupils of any grade in the town in this vicinity who are registered for the year 1907-1908 are eligible to compete.

The essay should contain not more than 3,500 words, clearly written on one side of the paper only. It must be signed by a pen-name, and this name must be written on an accompanying envelope in which is the real name and school of the writer. All essays must be sent before October 15, 1908, to Mrs. Martha A. Kittredge, Gardner Road, Brookline, Mass. The prize will be awarded December 16, 1908, by a committee consisting of Mr. E. H. Clement of the Boston Transcript, Mrs. Ida Dudley Clapp, Regent of the Gen. Rufus Putnam Chapter of Dorchester, and Mrs. Mabel Priest Daniel, A. B., Radcliffe College, 1900. The judges will consider originality in the treatment of the subject in making their decision.

Teachers' School of Science.

The zoology and botany divisions of the Teachers' School of Science took a seven mile tramp through the Middlesex Fells Reservation last Saturday. The trip was exceedingly interesting, although on account of the high wind but few birds were flying. The hillsides are purple with hepatica blossoms. In damp laces the leaves of skunk cabbages are quite large but the flowers are already things of the past.

After eating lunch upon the grounds of the superintendent, the party, looked at the birds and animals in the zoo. A bunch of bob whites brought forth many exclamations of approval.

Later, the party separated, the majority returning by way of Winchester, and a few going by way of Stoneham. Members from Braintree Quincy, and Atlantic were present.

Fresh Air Camp.

Applications are being received from church organizations and from individuals, for tent-space at the Fresh Air Camp for Weymouth and Quincy, for July. The association is glad to accommodate all who desire such rest and recreation as the camp is to offer. Membership in the Fresh Air Camp Association may be had by paying one dollar to Rev. A. R. Atwood, president or to Charles H. Johnson, secretary and treasurer. The camp is open to every one of Weymouth and Quincy, regardless of creed or color. The invitation is to all, especially to parents with children to bring their luncheon and "come to spend the day." The camp has a good shore-privilege and a fine view of the harbor.

We have the stock, tools, machinery, and "know how" to do your Optical work promptly and satisfactory. We repair the frames, grind lenses, match the broken ones or test the eye. C. F. Pettengill, 1391 Hancock street, Quincy.

A "PAPER" PROVISION

No Money to Make It Effective In Naval Appropriation Bill

PRESIDENTIAL VETO CERTAIN

Threat Will Result In Amendment Calling For $7,000,000 Additional --Fight For Four Battleships Apparently Is Lost by Roosevelt

Washington, April 23.—President Roosevelt will veto the naval appropriation bill should the senate, as did the house, fail to make any appropriation for the two battleships which are authorized in that measure. The prompt announcement of this fact to senate leaders is regarded as responsible for the announcement by Mr. Hale that he should propose an amendment appropriating $7,000,000 towards the construction of these ships.

The president stated his position on this point with equal emphasis and suddenness upon learning that the bill, as passed by the house, was simply a "paper" provision for naval increase, with no money to make the provision effective. Such legislation as this, the president made known to his numerous congressional callers, was a travesty as to effectiveness and bore all the earmarks of legislative legerdemain.

That the president's quick and vigorous action is to be effective is evidenced by the action of Chairman Hale of the senate naval committee in announcing that at the proper time he will propose the $7,000,000 additional. As to his threat of veto, the president made it plain that should the wisdom of congress result in the passage of a bill providing for no naval increase whatever he would have no ground on which to to veto the measure. Any attempt at that he regards as a travesty on legislation by authorizing, but not appropriating for ships, he declares he will defeat by the exercise of his constitutional power of veto.

There is not the slightest indication that the president has ceased his fight for four new battleships, according to the evidence of senators who talked with him. Senators who are with the president in his fight on this proposition admit that a careful survey of their strength in the senate gives but a vote of twenty-six in that body in favor of the president's naval program for four ships.

Significance is attached to this poll of the senate in that it is said to show a loss to the president of some of his heretofore staunchest supporters in that body. Senator Lodge is understood to have quit the fight for the full naval program advocated by the president, and to have given his reasons personally to the president for so doing. The loss of the influence of the Massachusetts senator is regarded as responsible for the weakness shown by the poll, as it is believed by those favoring the program that, had the president's senatorial supporters entered the fight with the vigor he has evidenced, his desires in this direction might have been realized.

When the consideration of the naval appropriation bill was resumed in the senate Mr. Hale, referring to a publication "in a New York paper," which, he said, announced war outside and inside the senate, explained why an appriation for the two new battleships and submarines had not been placed in the bill either in the house or the senate.

The house, he said, voted the appropriation down on the ground that it would not be needed until next December, and the senate committee had not put it in the bill because no estimate of the amount that could be expended had been received. Since the bill was reported, he said, the estimates amounting to $7,000,000 had been received, and he would add that amount as an amendment to the bill, thus increasing to that extent the already heavy appropriations for the navy.

"I say this," added Hale, "in order that senators and newspaper men and all others may possess their souls in peace."

Answering an inquiry by Mr. Clay, Hale said it was necessary to begin to repair the great vessels of the navy almost as soon as they are set afloat. When repairs reach the original cost, he added, "it is discovered a vessel is obsolete."

Arbitration Treaties Ratified

Washington, April 23.—General arbitration treaties with Great Britain and Spain were ratified by the senate yesterday. Some protests against the treaty with Great Britain came from Americans of Irish descent, and proceeded from a misunderstanding of the fact that the treaty was drafted after a form used in declaring arbitration agreements with other countries.

Chance For "Fans" to Contribute

New York, April 23.—Baseball players and followers of the game throughout the country are to be asked to contribute to a fund to be used in the erection in Greenwood cemetery of a memorial monument to Henry Chadwick, the "father of baseball," who recently died in this city.

Disloyal Guards of Honor

Guatemala City, Guatemala, April 23. The students who fired on President Cabrera Monday were cadets who formed the guard of honor. Several of those who were implicated in the conspiracy against the president have been executed.

NOT A GREAT GENIUS

But Campbell-Bannerman Had Won the Hearts of Englishmen

London, April 23.—"He was the faithful servant of his country; I am truly sorry he has gone," is the expression King Edward used on hearing at Copenhagen of the death of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, and it well expresses the deep feeling of regret, as for a personal loss, underlying the tributes given in ungrudging measure by public men and newspapers of all shades of opinion.

SIR HENRY CAMPBELL-BANNERMAN.

That all are ready to admit that Sir Henry was neither a statesman of genius nor even a great administrator is not allowed to detract from the volume, the warmth or the sincerity of these tributes to his great force of character, his undeviating honesty of purpose, his courage and geniality of disposition, which enabled him to win all hearts, and his tact in dealing with men which brought him to the highest position of state.

Sir Henry died at his official residence in Downing street. The end was peaceful. The cause of death is officially given as heart failure.

House Passes Three Bills

Washington, April 23.—The sum total of yesterday's proceedings of the house was the passage of bills declaring the right to enter as oil lands certain mineral lands; authorizing the alienation of certain allotments of the five civilized tribes; removing the restrictions against foreign ships with respect to trade between the United States and the Philippine islands. The bill to allow the importation of foreign white laborers into Hawaii was defeated.

Won't Wait For Halifax Court

Halifax, April 23.—Claiming that there is unnecessary delay and that it is impossible to obtain judgment from the admiralty court at Halifax within a reasonable time, the owners of the Leyland steamer Columbian, which towed the German oil tank steamer Bergermeister Peterson to this port with loss of propeller blades, have declined to bring action for libel against the owners of the disabled steamer at this port and will take the case to the United States for a hearing.

Employers' Liability Bill Signed

Washington, April 23.—President Roosevelt signed the employers' liability bill upon receiving an opinion from Attorney General Bonaparte that the measure was constitutional. The attorney general indicates that the bill is confined in its scope to "common carriers by railroads" as distinguished from the act declared unconstitutional by the supreme court, which embraced "all common carriers engaged in interstate commerce and foreign commerce."

Harm From Anarchists Feared

Washington, April 23.—Postmaster General Meyer's residence is still being watched by the Washington police. Three bluecoats, each on duty eight hours, have been detailed to guard the residence for fear anarchists might attempt to wreak vengeance upon the head of the postoffice department because of the suppression of "La Questione Sociale," an incendiary paper.

No Time Was Lost

Baltimore, April 23.—Dr. J. M. T. Finney of the Johns Hopkins hospital left here on a special car for Annapolis, where he had been summoned to treat R. H. Aronson of the Harvard baseball team, whose skull was fractured during a baseball game with the midshipmen. Thirty-seven minutes later Finney was at Aronson's bedside.

Jurisdiction Remains Limited

Albany, April 23.—The assembly committee on rules voted unanimously not to report the bill extending the jurisdiction of the public service commissions to cover telegraph and telephone companies. The bill had passed the senate by a vote of 30 to 15.

Naval Oarsmen Defeated

Annapolis, Md., April 23.—By not a full half-length of her shell the navy lost to Harvard's eight-oared crew an interesting race rowed over the two-mile course on the Severn river. The time was: Harvard, 10:30; navy, 10:32.

The Vermont the Best Ever.

There are frequent references in the dispatches from California concerning the Quincy-built battleships. A dispatch of Wednesday to the Boston Transcript says:

"Los Angeles continued yesterday its long programme of entertainment for the sailors and officers of the American battleship fleet. There were three thousand bluejackets ashore again yesterday. They had the usual prize-fighting, fencing and balloon ascension stunts, with the side shows in full blast and free down at Chutes Park.

"The warship were again visited by thousands. The Vermont Society, two hundred strong, went to the Vermont to tell Captain Potter and the officers that they were the greatest men on earth, and that the Green Mountain battleship was the best ever. They had a good time after they had told all that.

"What the rush to see the ships means may be inferred from the fact that no less than 183,000 tickets were sold to San Pedro on the first two days of the fleet's stay here. Only one-quarter of the fleet is anchored there. Long Beach had even a bigger crowd. A marine Elks' lodge was formed in the fleet on Tuesday."

A POSER FOR SURGEONS

Strange Disarrangement of a Man's "Interior Department"

Baltimore, April 22.—Surgeons in Johns Hopkins hospital, during an autopsy on the body of Judge John E. McKeighan of St. Louis, were astonished to discover that the organs were scattered in almost unbelievable ways.

The heart was turned in a position the reverse of normal, the kidneys were united by a ligament in the shape of a horseshoe, and the liver was upside down, with the gall bladder on top. Many of the smaller organs were a chaos of entangling cords and fatty substances.

How McKeighan lived with such a strange transposition of the machinery of his body appears marvelous. Whether he was born with his organs in abnormal positions, or they were put in this state through disease or some freak of nature, is not known.

Judge McKeighan lived to be 66 years old, and was considered one of the ablest lawyers of St. Louis. His brain did not seem to suffer through the state of his organs, and he was able to eat heartily until within a few weeks of March 1, when he was brought to Johns Hopkins hospital in a critical condition.

Liberals Hustling For Votes

Manchester, April 22.—The furious election fight that is being waged here has brought forth two weighty pledges from the Liberal ministers. The first of these was Churchill's home rule pronouncement Monday, and last night David Lloyd-George offered to bet his opponents that the old-age pension scheme would be established within a year. Lloyd-George, as chancellor of the exchequer, will have to find the money for the pensions and his prediction therefore is of great interest.

Authority Greatly Enlarged

Albany, April 22.—The senate, by a vote of 30 to 15, passed and sent to the assembly for concurrency the bill amending the public service commissions law, and especially extending the jurisdiction of the commissions so as to take in telegraph and telephone companies, ferries and stage lines. The commissions now have jurisdiction over steam and electric railroads, gas and electric lighting and power corporations, sleeping and private car lines and express companies.

Steps Toward Thaw's Release

Matteawan, N. Y., April 22.—James G. Graham, counsel for Harry K. Thaw, presented an order issued by Justice Morschauser of the supreme court directing Acting Superintendent Baker of the Matteawan state hospital to permit Thaw to sign a petition for a writ of habeas corpus for his appearance in court to determine the question of his sanity. Baker complied with the court's order. Thaw was greatly pleased with he steps taken looking to his appearance in court.

Funds Remain In Bay State

New Haven, April 22.—Judge Gager of the superior court has decided that the Connecticut jurisdiction of the Ancient Order of United Workmen cannot collect $20,000 in funds paid into the Massachusetts jurisdiction under the insurance laws of the latter state. The Connecticut body seceded from the Massachusetts grand lodge and then brought suit to recover its deposit with the latter body. The defendant body demurred and it is the demurrer that Gager sustained.

Warner on Brownsville

Washington, April 22.—Calling attention to the Grand Army button he wore on the lapel of his coat, and insisting that he had no prejudice against negro soldiers, some of whom he claimed as comrades, Senator Warner of Missouri, in the senate, declared his conviction that the town of Brownsville, Tex., had been shot up by negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth infantry. Warner presented an argument to sustain his belief in the guilt of the negro soldiers.

Jackies Enjoying Themselves

Los Angeles, Cal., April 22.—Los Angeles continued yesterday its long program of entertainment for the sailors and officers of the American battleship fleet. Thirty-five hundred bluejackets were in the landing parties which came ashore at the various ports where the four divisions of the fleet are anchored. All of the port cities where the ships are stopping are carrying out elaborate entertainment plans each day.

Mob Rule In Pensacola

Pensacola, Fla., April 22.—After a week of quiet, with the state troops present to preserve order, Pensacola was again thrown into a turmoil when a mob of twenty-five men attacked a street car and probably fatally wounded the conductor, G. Hoffman. Following this attack, W. L. Wittich, Jr., a stenographer, was fired upon as he was taking a car to ride to his home. Further outbreaks are feared.

Brothers Killed In Auto Smashup

Dearborn, Mich., April 22.—William and Charles Wolcott, brothers, both of whom were merchants, were instantly killed near here when their automobile was struck by a train. William Wolcott purchased the machine in Detroit and started for the first time to drive to his home. Unaware of the approaching train, Wolcott drove the machine onto the tracks.

PHOTOS OF BIG FIRE

They Point to Incendiarism In the Chelsea Conflagration

SEARCH RUINS FOR BODIES

No Trace May Ever Be Found of Many of Those Who Were Cremated--Drunken Men and Thieves Receive Due Punishment

Boston, April 23.—Photographs taken during the start of the conflagration in Chelsea were exhibited yesterday at the continued hearing which is being conducted by Chief Neal of the state police, and furnished evidence which points to incendiarism.

They show that, while smoke and flames were being driven to the eastward by the gale of wind, fires started to the westward, directly opposite to the course over which huge, flaming embers were being carried. It is the first time in the history of a fire inquest that fire pictures have been offered as evidence.

Four witnesses were heard who told of a fire in the tenement house at 69 Second street, where a gunny sack soaked with kerosene was found.

Mr. Neal said that the investigation into the cause of the fire would not be confined to the Hebrew quarter where the fire started, but that several incidents on the side of Bellingham hill would also be looked into; in fact, that the entire ground would be covered before the end of the inquest. He said, further, that the evidence obtained thus far has led him to believe that action by the police would be warranted.

For months Officer Smith of the state police has been investigating in the district, where a large number of rag shops and houses caught fire under suspicious circumstances.

The street department has practically completed its work of cleaning up the streets and several hundred men are now devoting their efforts to find bodies believed to be in the ruins. Fifteen bodies of known dead have been recovered so far.

"The scant remnants of the bodies already recovered make it reasonable to suppose that many who lost their lives in the fire were cremated and that no trace of them will ever be found," said Medical Examiner Magrath.

Judge Bosson, in the Chelsea district court, passed a sentence of one year in the house of correction on Harry Wolfson, a Jewish tailor, who was charged with assault and battery on George Finn, an attendant at the Hebrew relief quarters. Wolfson had an altercation with Finn about some clothing for which Wolfson had asked, and, becoming enraged, he drew a pair of shears and jabbed them into Finn. When sentenced Wolfson entered an appeal and was held in $500.

Seven men were arraigned for drunkenness, and each was given a sentence of thirty days. In most cases appeals were made. Ten men charged with thefts among the ruins, their depredations chiefly along the line of lead or brass pipe, received penalties ranging from fines of $5 to imprisonment for three months.

Democrats Not Interested

Boston, April 23.—A very light vote was cast in the Democratic state primaries which were held last night for the purpose of selecting delegates to the state convention. There was practically no interest anywhere, and in several voting districts there were not enough voters in the wardroom to furnish caucus officers. None of the delegates chosen was instructed to vote for national delegates favoring anyone for the presidential nomination.

No Streets Through Race Track

Frankfort, Ky., April 23.—The Latonia race track proprietors won the fight with the city of Latonia, the court of appeals deciding that the city cannot fence streets through the race track. The city claimed that years ago the property occupied by the race track had been dedicated to the city, but the court holds that as it had never followed up the dedication with any act indicating its purpose to build streets, it cannot now claim the right.

Emergency Measures Not Wanted

New York, April 23.—The currency commission of the American Bankers' association has placed itself on record as "unqualifiedly opposed to the Vreeland bill and to all other emergency measures based on the unsound principle of bond-secured currency." It is urged that the whole question be referred to a competent commission for inquiry and report to the next congress.

May Never Be Extradited

New York, April 23.—The physicians at the Matteawan state asylum having reported that Robert Caldwell, who is wanted in England for perjury alleged to have been committed by him as a witness in the famous Druce case, is a mental and physical wreck, Commissioner Alexander has adjourned the hearing in his extradition proceedings to May 22.

Neglected to Ring Up Fares

Boston, April 23.—Conductor Hugh Bradford of the Boston Elevated Railway company was tried on a charge of larceny of fares from that company. He was found guilty and was sentenced to six months in the house of correction.

DEFRAUDED MERCHANTS

Jury Finds Four Schemers Guilty of Misuse of Mails

Boston, April 23.—After a week's trial, a jury in the United States district court returned a verdict of guilty of the charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud merchants out of goods sold on credit against William I. Alkon, Harris A. Alkon, Thomas Scottran and Herry Barish.

The men were given sixty days in which to file exceptions. Scottran and Barish are out on $1500 bail previously demanded and the bail of the two Alkons was raised to $5000 each, which they were unable to furnish and went to jail.

According to Barish, who turned state's evidence, the men were in a scheme to secure goods on credit from merchants all over the country, sell them, or go into bankruptcy, and pocket all the proceeds. It was claimed in the evidence that $75,000 worth of goods was thus secured. The men used the name of the Massachusetts Investors' Security company of Boston and H. Goldsmith & Co. of Chelsea as references, both of whom, the government alleges, were in the scheme. Action against the latter has been postponed, as Goldsmith was burned out in the Chelsea fire.

Charges of tampering with the jury and of offering witnesses money were made during the trial. Barish and William I. Alkon are now under sentence for concealing assets from the trustee of Barish's estate in one of the bankruptcy cases which came up earlier.

Failed For Over $600,000

Boston, April 23.—Thomas F. Carey, a dealer in railroad supplies and machinery, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy yesterday, showing liabilities amounting to $614,233. Of the total liabilities $592,250 consists of ninety-two notes of the Middleboro, Wareham and Buzzards Bay Steel Railway company, on which the petitioner is liable as endorser. Carey was one of the three men who built this road, which went into the hands of a receiver about four years ago. The assets consist of $13,222 in debts, due on account, and $500 in office furniture.

Chandler's Political Opinion

Manchester, N. H., April 23.—Two striking expressions of opinion in a speech made by William E. Chandler characterized the First district Republican convention. These statements were: "It will not be an easy matter for the Republican party to carry the state of New Hampshire, or the nation, in the next election. If there had been instructions given to the delegates elected at the state convention at Concord it seems to me that those instructions would have been for Charles E. Hughes."

Locomotives Lost In Fire

Somerville, Mass., April 23.—Nine locomotives were burned with the roundhouse of the Boston and Maine railroad at East Somerville last night, causing a loss of $60,000. Four larger locomotives were taken out of the roundhouse during the fire, Engineer Adams running out the last under cover of several streams of water when the fire was at its height. The cause of the fire is not known.

Fatal Quarrel Over a Debt

Providence, April 23.—In a quarrel over a debt, Gaetana Petrosinelli was stabbed fatally by Giovanni Rassa. It is said that Rassa owed money to Petrosinelli, and that the stabbing followed a demand by the latter for payment. The injured man died at a hospital. He was 29 years old and leaves a family. Rassa was arrested and will be arraigned on a murder charge.

Diphtheria In State Prison

Boston, April 23.—A quarantine of the Massachusetts state prison at Charlestown has been declared by Dr. McLaughlin, owing to the number of cases of diphtheria which have appeared among the prisoners. The quarantine regulations affect guards as well as inmates, and new prisoners will not be accepted in the main part of the prison under quarantine.

Business Men Oppose Merger

Boston, April 23.—Following two hours of heated discussion, 150 members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, representing 1000 of the leading business men of this city, went unrevocably on record as opposed to the merger of the New York, New Haven and Hartford and Boston and Maine railroads. The voice vote was almost unanimous.

Carkins Case Not Considered

Exeter, N. H., April 23.—The Rockingham county grand jury, before which Glacia Calla testified in regard to her accusation that her husband, Paul E. Roy of Paris, was the slayer of her brother, George A. Carkins, in January last, finished its deliberations last night, but no report was made in the Carkins case.

Ages of Thirteen Add Up 996 Years

Waterbury, Conn., April 23.—Census takers have unearthed a settlement in Wolcott, on a road only a half-mile long, which contains thirteen sturdy grangers who for eighteen hours a day do farm work of all kinds. All are past the three score and some are past the four score mark, their ages aggregating 996 years.

Skeleton Found In River

Gardiner, Me., April 23.—The skeleton of a man found in the Kennebec river is supposed to be the remains of the body of Frank Silva of Boston, who was drowned last November. Silva was a deckhand on board a steamer and fell overboard while the steamer was lying at her dock here.

Colds Colds

Ask your doctor if Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is not just the right medicine for such cases. He knows all about it. Then follow his advice.

Cold after cold, cough after cough. One cold no sooner cured than another one comes. It's a bad habit, this taking-cold habit. What you want is a medicine that will break up this habit, heal inflamed membranes, strengthen weak tissues. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

"I KIN WORK IT."

A busy Lawrencian recently added a telephone to the modern improvements at his home. He has four happy children, all of them young, to whom the 'phone was new and who regarded it with awe. One of the kids is a boy of four. He watched the older people call up "Central" and communicate with friends at distant points and yearned to do likewise.

His mother chanced to be absent from home for an hour or so on a recent afternoon. The other children were out somewhere. He was alone. For a half hour he watched the telephone, then climbed up and took the receiver of the 'phone off the hook just as he had seen older people do. By that time he was trembling, but his courage was as strong as chilled steel.

"Number?" he heard a sweet voice inquire. For a moment he was startled, but he conquered a desire to drop the receiver and run and shouted bravely, "I want my pop!"

"Central" must have recognized the voice as that of a child. She promptly inquired, "Who is your papa?"

The little fellow knew enough to tell her, and it was but a matter of a few moments to ascertain the number of the busy Lawrencian's business 'phone and connect the four-year-old.

"Hello?" answered the busy citizen, turning away from a desk overburdened with papers and things.

"Oh, pop, I kin work it!" was the joyful little shout that answered him, and the busy citizen was just as proud and as pleased as the four-year-old of the other end of the line when the brief conversation ceased and the boy, obeying instructions given over the wire, hung up the receiver and awaited the home-coming of mamma to tell her of his conquest.—Lawrence Tribune.

TAFT MEN DEFEATED

Mustered Twenty-Five Votes In New Hampshire Convention

DELEGATES UNINSTRUCTED

Dhioan's Friends Asked For Division and Were Overwhelmed by More Than Seven Hundred--What a "Preference" Vote Showed

Concord, N. H., April 22.—Six of the eight members of the New Hampshire delegation to the Republican national convention at Chicago were selected here at the state and Second district conventions, and the platform, which was identical in each case, contained a resolution to the effect that "the real interests of the party and of the presidential candidate to be nominated at Chicago will best be served by the omission of instructions, specific or implied, in the form of resolutions of preference."

The delegates-at-large chosen were Senator Jacob H. Gallinger, Chester B. Jordan, Edwin G. Eastman and Edwin F. Jones. The alternates-at-large are George B. Leighton, James L. Gibson, George H. Moses and William P. Straw.

The Second district delegates are Seth M. Richards and Lester F. Thurber; alternates, Charles G. Shedd and William F. Thayer.

The state convention occupied two hours, while the district convention was in session less than fifteen minutes.

At the state convention an amendment to the effect that it was the "earnest belief that the man embodying every element of a triumphant candidate was William H. Taft" was tabled by a large majority, about 25 out of a total of 763 delegates voting in favor of the resolution.

The convention, however, was given a somewhat unexpected opportunity of expressing its sentiment toward five candidates for president. In speaking in opposition to the Taft amendment, Thomas Chalmers asked for a voice vote of preference for LaFollette, Cannon, Fairbanks, Hughes and Taft in succession. No one voted for La Follette. Two voices were heard for Cannon, one for Fairbanks, a fair-sized shout for Hughes and a much louder demonstration for Taft.

The first few formalities, the opening remarks of Chairman Gallinger of the state committee, the appointment of the different committees and the speech of John McLane as permanent chairman passed off without instance. But scarcely had the platform, which was read by Henry B. Quimby, and which contained, in addition to its non-preference plank, a recognition of an early revision of the tariff and an endorsement of the president, been read, than Judge David Cross of Manchester mounted the stage and offered the Taft amendment. The vigor, eloquence and humor of Cross' speech almost belied the fact that the speaker was in his 90th year.

Congressman Currier opposed the resolution in a vehement speech. The resolution, however, was seconded, and Chalmers then came forward in an effort, as he said, to promote harmony, and at the same time to give the Taft men in the convention a chance to express their sentiments.

As soon as he had finished his call of the roll of the presidential candidates and had announced his opposition to the resolution, a voice vote was taken on the question of tabling the amendment. Although the chairman declared the tabling motion carried, some of the Taft delegates asked for a division. On a rising vote it seemed as if nearly the entire convention rose to its feet in the affirmative, while only twenty-five stood in the negative.

The original platform then went through with a rush, the delegates and alternates were chosen by acclamation and the convention adjourned.

The Second district convention met at once in the same hall. The proceedings, however, consisted only of a reaffirmation of the platform of the state convention and the selection of delegates and alternates.

A number of the leaders of the Taft movement in the state, while expressing disappointment over the outcome of the state convention, stated after the proceedings were over that in their opinion five of the six delegates chosen will vote for Taft on the first ballot.

Ithaca, N. Y., April 22.—Cornell students last night inaugurated a Hughes club with the sophomore faculty. The purpose of the club as stated is to promote Hughes' interests here and by the graduates when leaving college next June.

Maine Socialists' Choice

Lewiston, Me., April 22.—The Socialists of Maine, at a convention attended by thirty-five delegates in this city, nominated Curtis A. Perry of Portland as their candidate for governor.

Campaign Publicity Favored

Washington, April 22.—The McCall campaign publicity bill was unanimously recommended to the house for passage by the committee on election of president, vice president and representatives in congress. Though introduced by a Republican, the bill had the undivided support of the Democratic members of the committee.

Source of Trouble In All Mankind

New York, April 22. Nothing has done so much to arouse the people of this city as the immense number of people who have been relieved of various diseases by a preparation known as Cooper's New Discovery.

This preparation is being introduced in New York for the first time by L. T. Cooper, the young philanthropist, who has made and is making a fortune by its sale. The medicine is prepared at Dayton, Ohio, and is sold for various forms of stomach trouble. It is now being sold in New York in such enormous quantities as to have caused a general discussion by physicians throughout the city.

Cooper claims that nine-tenths of all the ills of mankind emanate from a disordered stomach, and stated early during his visit that his medicine would overcome all such troubles as kidney and liver complaints simply by restoring the stomach to normal condition.

A reporter who spent an hour at Cooper's headquarters, secured statements from a number of people who had tested this theory.

The following story was related by Patrick Smith, living at 438 Warren Street, Brooklyn: "I have been a sick man for fifteen years; I had indigestion. Food did not agree with me, and I always had a distressed feeling after eating. Gas formed on my stomach, and I was troubled with heartburn and the usual symptoms that accompany dyspepsia and indigestion. My stomach would bloat, and the abdominal area would expand until I was in agony.

"I did not know what was the matter with me, and the doctors were as ignorant regarding my trouble as myself. Nothing I tried gave me the desired relief. For the past year I have been unable to perform work of any kind on account of my sickness.

"I was attracted by the accounts of the work of Mr. Cooper, and concluded to try his New Discovery medicine. I experienced almost immediate relief, and since taking several bottles of this preparation I am feeling like my old self again, and am now able to work. A short time ago I was able to eat scarcely anything, and was indifferent as to whether I partook of food or not. Now I cannot wait for meal time. I can eat anything I like and have no thought of distress afterward. I will always have a warm spot in my heart for Mr. Cooper and his remarkable medicine, for it has made life worth the living for me."

These statements and others like them go far toward accounting for Cooper's immense success here and elsewhere. So far every claim made by the young man seems to have been verified.

and a dance of the jumping jacks.

The audience was also interested in examples of heroic rescue by the first class, including the treatment of a person shot, another nearly drowned, and a third who met with a bicycle accident and broke an arm and a leg. Pyramids was the closing feature, when colored lights were used. Great credit for the success of the exhibition is due the Physical Director Maxwell.

Tonight, the second night of entertainment at the Y. M. C. A., will be a garden concert in the spacious and beautifully decorated gymnasium. Whites orchestra who have played so ably at various occasions this season, will furnish the main feature of the program. Additional attractions will be banjo and piano trios, songs Scotch dances, etc. Ice cream and other refreshments will be for sale.

There was a good attendance of buyers at the auction sale at the West Quincy depot this morning of 200 lots of granite that had been unclaimed. The blocks were parts of monuments which the parties to whom they were shipped had refused, and others for which no claimant had appeared.

Lewis J. Bird & Co. were the auctioneers, and the purchasers came from all granite centres in New England, some even coming from Syracuse, N. Y. As a rule the pieces brought small prices.

Nothing is cooler in summer than a pretty straw matting. Walter M. Hatch & Co., of 45 Summer street, Boston, have a beautiful line at reasonable prices.

The Quincy Women's club will give the use this summer of the grounds about the club house which were ploughed up last fall, to any one who will plant them with potatoes or grain. Afi ne opportunity for some one.

Work was begun Thursday digging holes for the trees to be set out on Coddington and Sea streets. Over two hundred elms and maples are to be set out, the Civic committee of the Quincy Women's club being assisted in the work by kind friends and the hearty cooperation of the city.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

The British steamer Bisley, in which the two Curtis (Fore River) turbines for the Japanese cruiser Ibuki will be shipped to Japan, arrived at the works Wednesday afternoon. The Bisley, which came across in water ballast, is a new steamer, this being her second cargo. She hails from London and was built by Charles Connell & Co., Ltd., of Glasgow. The task of loading these two engines, which are all in sections and for the most part packed in large crates or otherwise protected with wood covering, was begun immediately and it is expected that all the different parts will be aboard and properly stowed so the Bisley can sail Monday. She will immediately proceed to New York where the balance of her cargo will be made up of railroad cars and locomotives, after which she will start for Japan sailing via the Suez canal.

The Japanese cruiser in which the two turbines will be installed was recently launched at the Kure naval dock yard, Japan, and on her speed trials will be expected to maintain a speed of 23 knots. Both are 144-inch seven-stage Curtis (Fore River) marine reversible steam turbines with considerable over-load capacity.

William McGregor of the Fore River football team, who had his knee injured a week ago last Saturday while the local team was playing a game in this city with the Fall River Rover, has received as a subscription from the opposing team a check for $25.00. This action is worthy of note, as it certainly shows a good Christian spirit.

The Atlantic torpedo boat flotilla is due at San Diego today. Large orders of supplies will be ready for the little boats on their arrival.

A Washington dispatch to the Transcript says the cruiser Charleston and the torpedo boat flotilla have been ordered by Secretary Metcalf to visit Portland, Or., on June 1 to attend the rose festival at that place. At the request of the mayor of Sacramento, Cal., the flotilla will go there at the close of the naval review in San Francisco Bay on May 8. The cruisers Washington and South Dakota have been ordered to be at Anacortes, Wash., on April 23 to enable the residents to see what big war vessels look like.

A Washington Dispatch says Senator Hale will introduce an amendment to the naval bill appropriating about $5,000,000 for immediate commencement of work on the two battleships, the torpedo boats and other vessels provided in the Naval bill. The present bill omitted appropriation for next year's work on these vessels on the theory that some time would be required for preparation of plans. The ships will be built on plans already used.

Alexander Mundie of the correspondence department, who was injured while riding his wheel one day last week, has returned to his duties.

Joseph M. Larkin of the A department spent the Easter vacation at Westboro.

Mr. Williams of the hull piping department has resigned his position.

Clarence Burns of the estimating department and Harry Sampson of the timekeeping department spent Easter in New York city.

It is reported that the U. S. S. Chester (scout cruiser) building at the Bath Irons Works will be delivered to the government at the Portsmouth navy yard April 25.

James E. Neary attached to the office of Mr. Hill, assistant to the manager, has been spending Easter in New York.

An appropriation of $1,800,000 has been made by the government for the purchase of the three colliers, Everett, Malden and Melrose, recently constructed by the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., for the Massachusetts Steamship Co. This means that the Massachusetts Steamship Co., will replace the three colliers in question with three others of the same type and they will be built in Quincy.

The legislative gossip column of the Boston Herald in a recent issue contained the following:

Senator Salter of Lynn thought of opening negotiations to purchase the Fore River shipbuilding yards while visiting the place last week with the legislative committee on harbors and public lands.

"How much is there invested here?" he asked one of the officials who was guiding the committee about the place.

"Oh, there are quite a few millions," answered the guide, who had noted with some pleasure the astonishment manifested by the Lynn man in the magnitude of the enterprise.

"You can see that easily enough," said Senator Salter, "but is it five or ten millions, or only—" the remark being cut in the middle by Representative McIntire of Gloucester, who had noted the large quantities of oil being used by the drillers in cutting rivet holes.

"What kind of oil do you use for that work?" he asked the guide.

"It's an ordinary market oil," replied the man. "Yes, we use immense quantities of it—just how much it would be impossible to say."

"What I am trying to find out," persisted the Gloucester man, "is whether or not dogfish oil wouldn't do it just as well."

The guide was puzzled on that proposition, and would have been inveigled into a discussion of the matter had he not been rescued by the other legislators, who understood the Gloucester man's intent. As a result of the visit to Quincy, Representative Salter is saving his salary and Representative McIntire is unfolding to the oil men of Gloucester the possibilities of a new market.

Attractions at Granite City Club

There was a good attendance at the weekly whist tournament at the rooms of the Granite City club on Wednesday evening. Eight tables were in play and some good scores were made. H. H. Snow and J. W. Bell secured the highest percentages.

A novelty in the way of a billiard tournament is being started by Mr. Morgan of the entertainment committee. The tournament will be participated in by nearly every member of the club. Quite a few members never played a game of billiard in their life, and some of them never handled a cue. These are all entered however. It will be a handicap tournament, and as some of the green players will be given a very large handicap a great deal of fun and sport is sure to result.

On Friday evening, May 1, the club will be the guest of Manager Donovan at the Scenic theatre. A special pleasing bill will be put on for their benefit, and an evening of pleasure is assured. Tickets free of expense may be obtained of the entertainment committee.

Little Interest Among Democrats

Democratic caucuses for the election of delegates to the State and Congressional conventions were held in all wards of the city on Wednesday evening. The city is entitled to one delegate to each convention from each ward.

The caucuses were held under the old law and for that reason no nomination papers were filed and no ballots were printed. In fact there was practically no interest whatever in the caucuses, and there were many of the party who were unaware that they were being held.

In every case the caucuses were in charge of the ward committee and the polls were kept open but a few minutes.

In Ward One Edward J. Dunn was elected to the state convention and Luke J. Coyle to the Congressional convention.

Each ward furnishes its own delegates with their credentials and are supposed to file a list of delegates with the City Clerk, but the returns are slow.

Quincy Politics.

Practical Politics has an interesting comment on the recent Republican convention:

The Tenth district convention came out about as the knowing political ones said it would. Quincy trimmed H. Clifford Gallagher on the delivery of its vote to Herman Hormel and of course Gallagher was put in a hole for he couldn't deliver when he hadn't the goods. So Hormel was beaten by Dr. A. T. Davidson of Ward 20 and he and Gallagher will go to Chicago.

"It isn't the first time politicians have been given the double-cross in Quincy. Paige got it hard once several years ago, and no more than two years ago Logan banked on some Quincy democrats to help him out in his congressional fight against O'Connell, and they did him up.

"Quincy seems to be politically about the finest thing around Boston in the gold brick line."

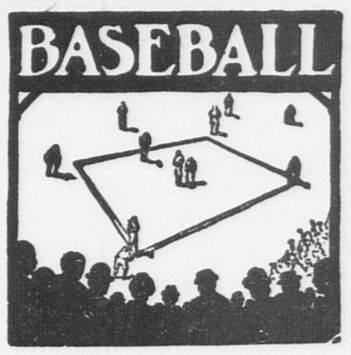
John Sullivan was arraigned for the larceny of money from William McCutchen at Quincy. Case continued until Friday.

James J. Bartlett was fined $15 for drunkenness at Milton.



The Franklin A. C. base ball team of Quincy defeated the Commonwealth A. A. of Weymouth at Garfield Park Weymouth, on Wednesday, by the score of 9 to 2. The features of the game were the playing of Capiline and Hennessy of the Franklins, and the catch of W. Maloney in the right field.

Politics in Fall River.

A Quincy firm recently obtained a large paving contract in Fall River, but evidently it is making some talk there for an exchange says:

"The award of the paving contract to an out-of-town firm of contractors is still a matter of discussion in local political circles and Mayor Coughlin is being berated in many circles for the award. At a meeting of the Fall River Trade and Industry Association a few nights ago, the mayor stated his reasons for awarding the contract as he did. Other matters of municipal interest took up his attention that night and he was compelled to leave the meeting after he had made his statement. When he had departed, his attitiude in the matter was severely assailed.

Alderman James Sinclair, who is president of the board of aldermen, and who is reported to have the ambition to sit in the mayorality chair, appealed once more in favor of the slogan of trading at home and keeping such contracts in the city. He spoke of the many men who were out of work and although the Quincy firm was the lowest bidder he thought that when it was all figured out, it would be much more to the interest of the city if the contract had been awarded to the lowest local bidder, even though his bid was five dollars more per thousand of blocks than the bid of the Quincy concern."

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and trying the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A Needy Case In Our Midst

Editors of Daily Ledger:

I desire to call the attention of our citizens to a family in our own city which was thrown into the street on the eventful Sunday of the Chelsea fire, by the entire destruction of their house. A family man with three small children, one an infant.

Boxes for contributions of money may be found at the following places of business: Berry Bros., Dennen's restaurant, Cox's drug store, McConnell's fruit store and Chapin's store. Let us not forget the needy near at hand.

Charity Worker.

KNOCKERS' CLUB.

A skidoo dinner was held Thursday at Thompson's restaurant by the Knockers club. At roll call it was found that several members were unavoidably absent. This, however, in no way interfered with the appetites of those present, and they did full justice to the excellent dinner placed before them. There was an absence of telegrams and the waste basket was empty. There were, however, the usual number of knocks exchanged. The menu included lobster, beef, and all "the fixins." Lettuce, cucumbers, tomatoes, strawberry short cake, crackers, cheese, coffee and cigars.

A new kindergarten school will be opened at Quincy Point next Monday under the direction of Miss Margaret Thomas, who has been very successful with young children at the Quincy Point church.

Truant Officers Coming Tomorrow

All arrangements have been completed by Truant Officer Charles H. Johnson to royally entertain the Truant Officers' Association of Massachusetts in Quincy on Saturday.

A meeting of the association will be held at the hall in the High School building at 10 o'clock, when the visitors will be welcomed and given the freedom of the city by Mayor Shea.

At 1.15 a special car will be taken for Hibernian hall on Franklin street, where a banquet will be served by A. J. LaCroix.

After the banquet there will be brief addresses by Mayor Shea, Frank E. Parlin, superintendent of schools, and others. There will also be a short entertainment.

At 2.30 the party will return to Colonial hall where Mr. Johnson will give his illustrated lecture on "Historic Quincy—past and present," which will be a good advertisement for the "City of Presidents.

Garden Concert At the Y. M. C. A.

The second night of the Y. M. C. A. Carnival on Thursday took shape in a garden concert. It was held in the gymnasium, which was beautifully decorated with flags, bunting, crepe paper, and a profusion of palms.

The gymnasium floor was set with small tables from which was served ice cream, fruice, home-made candy, etc.

A bevy of prettily gowned young ladies served at the tables.

The basis of the evening's program was furnished by White's Orchestra. Their work was from high-class and popular composers, and was well done. They played continually thro' out the evening being relieved only by three specialties from local artists.

Messrs. Erastus Osgood and Geo. H. Newcomb, gave banjo duets, accompanied by Miss Newcomb on the piano.

Miss Marion Bill and Master Willfrett Safford danced the "Highland Fling" in very pretty Scotch costume, and Elton Chase, the boy soprano of Christ Church, sang two very pretty solos.

Those present participated so freely in the refreshments, that the committee were entirely sold out by 9.30. The affair was one of the prettiest ever held in the association building and was considered a great success. About 300 people were in attendance.

A CHALLENGE.

William Sullivan, who was defeated Monday by William Griffiths in a 100-yard dash, feels that in that race he was somewhat handicapped by being in everyday clothing while his opponent was in running dress with spiked shoes. He has therefore challenged Griffiths to a race of 100-yards for Saturday, May 2. Friends of Sullivan will give a silver cup to the winner. If the challenge is accepted the race will probably be run in City Square.

Masquerade Party.

The second masquerade under the auspices of the Loyal Pride of Granite lodge, No. 30, I. O. O. L., M. U., was held in A. O. H. hall, Franklin street on Thursday evening.

The grand march was led by A. Boutilier, Chinaman, and Mrs. T. Kiernan, applewoman, followed by Miss E. M. Boutilier, red domino, and George Boutilier, Dutch schoolboy.

The prizes were awarded A. Boutilier, Chinaman, and Miss Margaret MacLean, autumn leaves. The judges were J. Richards, William Spargo and Mr. Fletcher.

The floor was in charge of Miss E. M. Boutilier, who was ably assisted by Misses Mabel Favereau and Monica Clare.

AGREEMENT REACHED

All Branches Of Granite Industry Are Now at Work

The strike of the steam engineers, employed in the granite industry which has been in progress since the first of the month, was settled Thursday evening, the agreement being signed at 10.30 today.

The agreement is for three years and is the old bill of prices, which was a minimum wage of $16 per week. There were few minor changes in the agreement.

This practically ends all trouble in the granite industry in Quincy unless there should later be trouble over the finding of the National Executive council on the disputed points in the cutters' agreement.

Another hearing tomorrow by the commissioners on the abolition of grade crossings in Quincy.

REGAINING STRENGTH

Nothing Alarming in Cleveland's Condition at Present

WIFE CALLED IN A HURRY

Ex-President the Only Guest Occupying Suite at Lakewood Hotel, Where No One Is Admitted to See Him--Has Gout and Stomach Trouble

Lakewood, N. J., April 24.—The condition of ex-President Grover Cleveland, about whom alarming reports have been circulated, is said by Mrs. Cleveland to be improved. Mr. Cleveland has been suffering from rheumatic gout and stomach trouble, and is said to have been reduced in weight considerably in consequence. With Mrs. Cleveland and a trained nurse he came to Lakewood about March 16 and since then has occupied a suite of rooms at the Lakewood hotel, where it was said he was regaining his health and strength. Since his arrival he has celebrated his 71st birthday.

The hotel closed last Tuesday, but Mr. Cleveland did not leave with the other guests. This gave rise to a report that his condition was such that it deemed imprudent for him to make the trip to Princeton. The report was given further credence by the fact that Mrs. Cleveland, who left here at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning for Princeton, hurried back to Lakewood the same afternoon and that the express train which leaves Princeton Junction a few minutes before 5 o'clock stopped to take her aboard. As this train does not stop at Princeton Junction without special orders it was surmised that Mrs. Cleveland received a call to hurry back to her husband.

No one is admitted to see the ex-president. The big hotel among the pines is locked and visitors are denied admittance. Most of the servants have left and the few remaining are busily engaged in packing up for the summer.

James E. Berry, the manager, says that the hotel will continue to house Mr. Cleveland's party until they find it convenient to leave. "Mr. Cleveland is improving and will return to Princeton probably within a short time," said Berry. "Mrs. Cleveland is with him at present, although she divides her time between Lakewood and Princeton, making occasional trips to the Cleveland home to see her children, who are there. Mr. Cleveland decided to remain a few days longer and we will keep the necessary force of servants here until he leaves for Princeton.

"There are a few guests remaining," continued Berry, "although the house is closed to new comers. Mr. Cleveland occupies a suite of rooms which face the east, where he can get the morning sun. There is nothing alarming in his condition at present. His physician, Dr. Joseph D. Bryant of New York, visits him at intervals."

Mr. Cleveland has kept to his room the greater part of his stay in Lakewood, although he has been out driving with Mrs. Cleveland occasionally.

Doctor Is Optimistic

New York, April 24.—Dr. Joseph Bryant, when seen here last night, did not appear to be at all worried about the condition of his old friend and patient. "Mr. Cleveland," said he, "has been suffering from his old complaint, but is now recovering. I expect that he will leave Lakewood for his home shortly."

Britain's Demands In the Congo

London, April 24.—It is understood that the conditions under which Great Britain is willing to recognize the annexation of the Congo Independent state to Belgium include the establishment of free trading and the abolition of forced labor. The delay in the receipt of a reply from Belgium is interpreted to mean that that government finds it difficult to comply with Great Britain's demands, probably owing to the attitude of numerous companies holding monopoly concessions.

England Keeps Chesapeake's Flag

London, April 24.—The flag of the American frigate Chesapeake, which was taken by H. M. S. Shannon June 1, 1813, and which was recently sold at auction in this city, has been presented to the Royal United Service Museum by William W. Astor. It was announced at the auction that the agent who secured the trophy was acting on behalf of an American.

Big Haul by Masked Men

Hot Springs, Ark., April 24.—Four masked men with levelled revolvers entered the clubhouse of the Indiana club, forced the occupants to line up alongside the wall and robbed the place of a large amount of money. The occupants were then locked in a room and the robbers escaped. It is estimated that between $5000 and $10,000 was secured.

Three Killed In Cyclone

Bancroft, Neb., April 24.—A cyclone swept through Cumming and Thurston counties and three people are known to have been killed and a number injured and a number of houses were destroyed. Telegraph and telephone wires are down and reports are slow in arriving.

Three Hundred Arrests For Murder

Lublin, Russia, April 24.—The murder of a policeman here was followed by the arrest of 300 workmen in local factories, where the police found stores of arms, ammunition and bombs.

BABYING A BOY.

Many a Foolish Mother Has Made a "Sissy" of Him.

Girls are girls and boys are boys even from their baby days. Why don't mothers realize this?

From the time he leaves his long clothes your little son should be encouraged to be a man.

Don't tell your boy he must not fight. Tell him instead he must not lie. Don't keep him from being a healthy, out of door boy because you are afraid of accidents. Teach him to use his judgment. That will keep him safe.

I once heard a silly mother say, "Oh, he's only a baby!" when some one called to her attention the fact that her boy, aged four, was a coward. I saw the same lady some time later when he was quite a big boy. Some other child had slapped him, and he was crying out loud just like a girl. His mother was to blame for that.

The Spartans knew how to bring up their men. If any mother has a male child with curls who wears a "fancy suit" she would do well to get a Greek history and read about the Spartans. I don't believe in the old saying, "Spare the rod and spoil the child." The rod is open argument and should only be used when all else fails. The mother herself is the source of all good or all weakness in her children. They become in nine cases out of ten what she is.

Show me a woman who has strength of character and I predict in advance her sons will be real men, but the type of weak mother—alas, all too common—is the cause of most of the cowards, the bullies and the "undesirable citizens" in the country.

I can tell you that many a man has begun life a petted darling to end it either a fool or a criminal.

A Blind College Girl.

Miss Margaret Hogan, a blind girl who is enrolled in the second year class at Barnard college, New York, has made a record so brilliant that it is quite possible she may carry off all the available honors when she graduates. Miss Hogan has a scholarship that covers the cost of her tuition, and a philanthropic lady pays her board. The state provides that each blind student in a college shall be provided with a paid reader, and Miss Hogan's reader helps her to secure notes of lectures and learn the contents of text books. Anything which she needs to study is printed for her in embossed type. Miss Hogan is an expert with the typewriter, an accomplished pianist and a very attractive young woman. She has not yet quite decided whether when through college she will be a writer or a teacher.

Good Taste in Bedroom Furniture

BARGAIN PRICES

It isn't easy to find plain, honest designs coupled with good sound construction in Bedroom Furniture. A large amount of the Furniture now-a-days is covered with cheap, meaningless ornaments which simply conceal a low grade of material and flimsy construction.

The styles we are showing are made along lines which are peculiarly appropriate to the design of Bedroom Furniture. There isn't anything fussy about these designs, nothing elaborate "so to speak," to disturb the effect of quietness and restfulness.

We have the choicest patterns in solid mahogany, Toona Mahogany, Curly Birch, Bird's Eye Maple, White Enamel and Quartered Oak.

A visit to our store will delight you.

"I KIN WORK IT."

A busy Lawrencian recently added a telephone to the modern improvements at his home. He has four happy children, all of them young, to whom the 'phone was new and who regarded it with awe. One of the kids is a boy of four. He watched the older people call up "Central" and communicate with friends at distant points and yearned to do likewise.

His mother chanced to be absent from home for an hour or so on a recent afternoon. The other children were out somewhere. He was alone. For a half hour he watched the telephone, then climbed up and took the receiver of the 'phone off the hook just as he had seen older people do. By that time he was trembling, but his courage was as strong as chilled steel.

"Number?" he heard a sweet voice inquire. For a moment he was startled, but he conquered a desire to drop the receiver and run and shouted bravely, "I want my pop!"

"Central" must have recognized the voice as that of a child. She promptly inquired, "Who is your papa?"

The little fellow knew enough to tell her, and it was but a matter of a few moments to ascertain the number of the busy Lawrencian's business 'phone and connect the four-year-old.

"Hello?" answered the busy citizen, turning away from a desk overburdened with papers and things.

"Oh, pop, I kin work it!' was the joyful little shout that answered him, and the busy citizen was just as proud and as pleased as the four-year-old of the other end of the line when the brief conversation ceased and the boy, obeying instructions given over the wire, hung up the receiver and awaited the home-coming of mamma to tell her of his conquest.—Lawrence Tribune.

SECOND FIRE WAS SET

Opinion of Chief Spencer of Chelsea Fire Department

AN INSURANCE "BLACK BOOK"

Suggested as a Means of Checking Numerous Fires Apparently of Incendiary Origin--Proposed Commission For the Stricken City

Boston, April 24.—The Post says: "I was too busy at the time the big fire started to note with my own eyes any cases of incendiarism, but I am satisfied that the second fire was set," said Chief Spencer of the Chelsea fire department to a Post reporter last night.

"I have had twenty people come to me and state that they know the second fire was not started by the first fire in the Boston Blacking company's building. There were no sparks coming from the first fire, for nothing was burning there except rosin and tar, which do not create sparks, only smoke."

Evidence is said to have been placed in the hands of Deputy Chief Neal of the state police, says The Post, to the effect that an organization existed in Chelsea among certain persons in the section where the fire started by which fires were deliberately set by employed agents for the purpose of securing insurance money. A legal adviser is said to have been employed and deliberate plans were made before each fire was set. Many such fires were closet fires in private dwellings, it is said.

In most every case the occupants of such houses were very conveniently away at the time of the fire. The closets burned almost invariably contained their best articles of wearing apparel and they were eager to collect the insurance as quickly as possible, it is alleged.

"I do not know of any organization of that sort existing," said Spencer, "but I think there might have been some understanding of that sort. I know that we have had about 100 fires which were very similar.

"There were five fires in one family, for instance, which all seemed to have started in the same way. A great many of our dwelling house fires have started in closets. I should say one-half, perhaps."

"What would you suggest as a remedy for such a condition of affairs?" asked The Post reporter.

"I should say the fault lies with the insurance people in a large part," replied Spencer. "Take some of these places that are heavily overinsured by the insurance brokers. I know of a case of a stable upon which seven policies of $1000 each were taken out by a broker. The assessed valuation of the stable was only $2800.

"There should be a place in the city for all the insurance agents in the city where records should be kept, or a sort of black book. Before a Boston insurance agent could make out a policy for some customer secured by a broker he should be able to ascertain from the Chelsea black book whether this prospective customer was overinsured or not, or whether he was a good risk. He should be looked up.

"I think also that there should be stricter building laws. No licenses for a building for the storage of rags should be given except after the strictest investigation."

It is expected that some very interesting testimony will be introduced at the inquest when it is resumed in the courthouse.

The draft of a bill providing for a commission of five to govern the city of Chelsea during its reconstruction was agreed upon at a conference of prominent citizens and officials of that city at the state house yesterday. The bill, which was submitted to the legislature under a suspension of the rules, provides that a commission of five citizens of Chelsea shall be appointed by the governor to hold office until 1909, and thereafter three for five years, one for four years and one for three years.

The vacancies caused by the retiring commissioners shall be filled by popular election, under the same provisions of law as now govern the election of a mayor, and such elected commissioners shall hold office for three years. The first such election shall be at the state election in 1911.

The commission shall take the place of the present mayor and board of aldermen and shall have power to appoint a school committee.

The commissioners shall have all the powers of the present city government and their compensation is to be fixed by the governor. After a certain period the members of the school committee are also to be elected.

Liberal Minister Re-elected

London, April 24.—Walter Runciman, the first of Premier Asquith's new ministers to submit to an electoral contest, was re-elected for Dewsbury by a majority of 1148, as compared with a majority of 3810 received by him in 1906 against the same opponent, Mr. Carpenter, Unionist.

New United States Judge

Washington, April 24.—The president sent to the senate the nomination of Milton D. Purdy of Minnesota to be United States district judge for the district of Minnesota, in place of Judge Lochren, retired.

INSTRUCTED FOR BRYAN

Johnson Men Failed to Materialize In Illinois Convention

Springfield, Ills., April 24.—The Illinois Democracy adopted the unit rule and instructed its delegates to the national convention at Denver to vote for William J. Bryan and to "use all honorable means" to secure his nomination.

After a hot fight in the resolutions committee, which was carried into the convention, the party adopted a platform plank declaring in favor of "the greatest possible personal liberty" to individuals, provided such liberty did not infringe upon the rights of either people.

The resolution endorsing Bryan was adopted with enthusiasm. It was not, however, worded entirely to the satisfaction of Bryan's most zealous supporters, and in the last few minutes of the convention Judge Thompson, declaring that Bryan had been "sold out," demanded a resolution be so worded that Illinois would be bound to support Bryan as long as his name was before the convention. His effort was swiftly and overwhelmingly defeated.

The Johnson men were not in evidence during the convention, and no resolution bearing his name was introduced.

Testified to Arbitration's Success

New York, April 24.—Representatives of an industrial army of 80,000 men appeared at the meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers' association and congratulated the members of the association upon the successful development and the working of the arbitration system between employer and employes. Among them were President Lynch of the International Typographical union, President Freel of the International Stereotypers' union and President Beechy of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union.

Cannot Evade Newspaper Men

Naples, April 24.—Declaring that he had been driven almost to desperation by newspaper men, Prince Helie de Sagan left the hotel last night at which he has been staying, and took an apartment under the name of Louis Perigord. He expressed regret at the tardiness of the steamer Friedrich der Grosse, on which Anna Gould is a passenger. The steamer's arrival, he said, would mean "protection from being victimized by damned reporters of two hemispheres."

Jerome Opposes Thaw's Release

New York, April 24.—Acting Superintendent Baker of the Matteawan insane asylum called on District Attorney Jerome and obtained certain papers to be used in the hearing on May 9 to show cause why Harry K. Thaw should not be freed from the asylum. Jerome said that his office would be represented at the hearing and that he would fight to the last ditch any and every attempt to give freedom to the slayer of Stanford White.

Money to Build Battleships

Washington, April 24.—As the senate was about to conclude consideration of the naval appropriation bill, Senator Piles proposed an amendment increasing from two to four the number of new battleships to be authorized. Further consideration of the bill was postponed until today. An amendment to the bill was adopted, appropriating $7,000,000 to begin construction on the two battleships authorized by the bill as passed by the house.

Death of Noted Russian General

St. Petersburg, April 24.—Lieutenant General Linevitch, aide-de-camp to Emperor Nicholas and commander of the first Manchurian army, died from pneumonia last evening. Linevitch was 68 years of age. He was fighting in the Caucasus when he was 21, and took part in a number of important engagements, in which he was reported as displaying great bravery.

Forger Gets Eight Years

Ellsworth, Me., April 24.—Charles C. Jocelyn of Bucksport was sentenced in the supreme court to a term of eight years in state prison for forgery. The Hancock county grand jury found sixteen indictments against him, all alleging forgery. His sentence followed a plea of guilty to one of the indictments. The other indictments were filed.

To Pave and Sewer Havana

Havana, April 24.—The city council has approved Governor Magoon's proposition for the paving and sewering of Havana, stipulating, however, that 75 percent of the men employed in the work shall be Cubans. The cost will be $15,000,000. The state will advance the city $5,000,000 and itself will pay the remaining $10,000,000.

Encouraging a New Enterprise

San Juan, P. R., April 24.—A company known as the Porto Rico Public Bonded Warehouse company has been incorporated here, with a capital of $500,000. This is the first undertaking of this kind in Porto Rico, and the new company will be exempted from taxation by the legislature for five years.

Hughes Calls Extra Session

Albany, April 24.—The legislature of 1908 closed its regular session yesterday afternoon and Governor Hughes at once filed a proclamation summoning an extraordinary session, to begin on May 11. The proclamation gives no intimation of the purpose for which the governor calls the extra session.

A Ticket Scalper's Story.

[Original.]

I'm a ticket scalper. It's not much of a business and doesn't give a man much of a position in the world, but a scalper has a human heart, just like any one else. A scalper may feel inclined to bestow that heart upon a woman. I had that inclination once, but I'm never going to have it again. Women are the most ungrateful creatures in the world. A woman who would treat a man as one of 'em treated me isn't fit to live on the face of the earth.

One day a pretty, melancholy looking girl of perhaps twenty-two came into my office and said she wanted to get to her mother, who was lying sick in Cincinnati. She said she was broke and wanted a ticket for about nothing. I had half a mind to give her a ticket, charging up the amount to myself, but that would be giving a stranger something like $10, and, while, as I said, a ticket scalper has a heart, he isn't the kind of man to give things away that he can't afford to give. I was looking among my old stock for something pretty cheap when I came across an unused half of an old excursion ticket, the limit of time of which had long ago expired. It occurred to me that if the girl worked on the sympathies of the conductor as she had on mine she might induce him to pass her through on it. I told her what I was thinking about and that if she was inclined to try it on I would give her the ticket free of charge. She asked if there would be anything dishonest in such an act, and I told her I didn't think there would be; there would be no misrepresentation. If the conductor wouldn't accept the ticket the worst he could do was to put her off at the first stop and she would be just so far on her journey. If she got stranded in a strange place she could get on the next train and go farther on the same ticket, and so on.

She said she wouldn't do that, but if the conductor would let her go through on the ticket she would do so. The ticket had been paid for by some one, and she didn't think the road had a moral right to refuse it. I agreed with her as to that, and she accepted the ticket with heartfelt thanks and tears in her eyes. She looked hungry, and I asked her if she was going through without anything to eat. She said she'd have to, and I felt so sorry for her that I asked her to go out to a restaurant and filled her up with oysters, beefsteak and a lot of other things. I remember the bill was $3.50. Her train went at 12:05 o'clock, so I took her to the theater. If you want to love any one, just do something for 'em. The more I did for this poor girl the more I thought what a lovely home she could make for me. By the time I left her at the station I would have bought her a good ticket, but I'd spent all my money. I told her to keep up her courage and she'd go through all right. She said that I was one of nature's noblemen and I would be rewarded for my kindness to her. As the train moved away she waved her hand to me out of the coach window, looking at me with tearful eyes.

It wasn't a week before I received a note from the attorney of the road over which I'd given the girl a ticket stating that they had a case against me for swindling and must either shut up my shop or they would send me to state prison. I went at once to the attorney's office and asked to know what it meant. He showed me the ticket I had given the girl with a sick mother and asked me if I'd sold it to a deaf and dumb girl. I denied the charge and admitted I'd given it to a girl who could talk as well as I could. Then he told me how the ticket had been used.

The girl had poked it at the conductor when he came around, and he told her it was no good. She began to talk to him with her fingers, and, seeing her condition, he had given her a pencil and paper on which she wrote that a ticket scalper had sold the ticket to her for the regular fare. The road was trying to get a case to scare us scalpers, and the conductor, backed by the passengers, who were indignant at such treatment of a poor deaf and dumb girl, passed her through, but he stipulated that she should give the name of the scalper, which she did willingly, expressing the hope that they would punish him soundly.

Well, I told my side of the story, and when they sent to the address the girl had given them for corroboration of her side they found there was no such street and number in existence. The officers of the road believed that the poor girl shrank from appearing against me, and had, therefore, thus concealed her abode. But, not having any evidence against me, they didn't prosecute me, though I remained under a cloud with them.

Not long ago in looking over a newspaper my eyes were attracted to an item headed, "Working the Deaf and Dumb Racket." The item stated that Mary Moyers had been arrested for traveling on railroad trains on worthless tickets and pretending to be deaf and dumb. She represented that the tickets were sold her by ticket scalpers, thus exciting the sympathy necessary to get herself passed and often to draw forth a contribution from the passengers. I sent the clipping to the officers of the railroad she had swindled, and they wrote me a note of apology.

But I don't want any more women in mine. MERRICK ANGUS.

Triumphal Echoes Of Hub Success

New York, April 23. In view of the enormous sale of Cooper's preparations now going on in this city and the intense interest which Mr. Cooper has stirred up since his arrival, a newspaper representative spent an afternoon at the young man's headquarters at Riker's store, 456 Fulton street, watching the swarm of humanity come and go.

During the afternoon the reporter interviewed many of the callers and obtained statements from all who cared to give them as to their experiences with Cooper and his preparations.

One of the most emphatic statements referred to above was made by D. A. Woods, who lives at 1983 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn. Mr. Woods said: "I am traveling and city salesman for the Babbitt Manufacturing Company. I have had chronic stomach trouble for years. This man Cooper who is now in Brooklyn recently spent two months in Boston. I came from Boston originally and my mother still makes her home in that city. My mother wrote me that Cooper was creating a furore in Boston with his medicines and advised me to try it, but I have had little faith in any medicine and refused to do so. Two weeks later she again wrote saying that she knew intimately several people that the medicine had done wonders for and strongly urged me to try it. She said that nothing like it had ever been heard of in Boston; that it was being widely discussed, and that she was sure she had heard that it was a real specific for stomach trouble.

"Now, I have had stomach trouble so long and had been up against so many medicines and treatments of various sorts that I refused to have anything to do with this Cooper medicine, but my sister, hearing from my mother about it, obtained some of it for me, and after she got it for me I decided to try it to keep peace in the family. I had no more idea it would help me than that it would bring a dead man back to life.

"I want to say that what my mother wrote me about the medicine is true. It helped me almost at once, and I am now practically a well man and life is worth living for me once more.

"I make this statement for publication wholly from a sense of duty, as there may be many a poor fellow in the same shape I was some time ago."

Another statement was made by Miss H. Paul, living at 249 Throop Avenue, Brooklyn. Miss Paul said: "I have suffered from stomach trouble for the past three years, which has been gradually getting worse in spite of all that I could do. Everthing I ate was sure to give me distress and pain. I tried dieting myself, but I only lost strength as a result, and I finally became weakened and badly run down. I used many remedies that had been recommended to me but they did me no good. I became greatly discouraged, and finally came to the conclusion that there was nothing that would help me.

"Then I heard of Mr. Cooper and his theory regarding the human stomach. I bought some of his New Discovery medicine and after having taken it for two weeks there has been a wonderful transformation in my condition. I have gained in flesh and strength and feel well. My food agrees with me now, and I can eat any kind of food and as much as I want. I have a splendid appetite, and everything tastes good after having been on the verge of starvation for so long.

"I cannot thank Mr. Cooper enough. I owe my restoration entirely to his splendid New Discovery preparation. It brought me out of my misery after all others had failed."

The young man seems to be gaining greater headway and his visit is to be prolonged. It is estimated that four thousand people called on him yesterday.

Banquet of the Bar Association

The Norfolk Bar Association held its annual banquet Thursday evening at Young's Hotel, Boston. There was a large attendance and several new members were obligated. U. S. District Atty. Asa P. French presided. The guests of the evening were Hon. John D. Long, Judge Putman of the U. S. Court of Appeals, and Chief Justice Aiken of the Superior court.

After facetious reference to the supposed district of the laity for the legal profession, Judge Putman, who was the first speaker, entered into a serious discussion of questions affecting the practice of law, and said in closing that since he first was put on the bench he never required of an attorney an affidavit o rnay other proof than his word, and he was never deceived by a member of the bar.

Judge Aiken, who was the next speaker, expressed pride in the integrity of the profession and dwelt on reminiscences of former days.

The other speakers were Senator C. F. Jenney, Judge E. C. Bumpus and J. H. Soliday. The festivities closed with singing the world anthem "Auld Lang Syne."

The following Quincy Lawyers were present: E. C. Bumpus, W. G. A. Pattee, Charles H. Hardwick, J. D. Mackay, L. W. Lyons, J. M. Nowland, W. P. Thompson, J. J. O'Hara, Geo. E. Adams, P. R. Blackmur, G. H. Brown, Hon. A. E. Avery and J. H. Churchill.

Men Serve Hot Roast Beef Supper

That the Wolaston Unitarian church is united in its work and congenial in spirit was shown Thursday evening at the social, supper and entertainment held in the church vestry. Over 100 enjoyed a hot roast beef supper served at 6.30 by the men, which included beef, macaroni, mashed potato, rolls, radishes, ice cream, cake and coffee. The committee on supper were W. M. Hatch, E. H. Sprague, William Weston and C. H. Brigham.

The entertainment included piano solos by William R. Kramer, readings by Mrs. Robert Park, selections by the Wollaston Mandolin club, readings from Dooley by George Brown and songs by Miss Penley. The committee on entertainment were: W. E. Simmons, F. E. Parlin and Thomas Lacey.

ANOTHER HEARING

Mayor Shea Ready to Present Plans on Grade Crossings

The adjourned hearing on the abolition of the grade crossings at Saville and Water streets, before the Commission oppointed by the superior court, will be held in Quincy, on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

Although the Mayor was refused a special appropriation for the employment of expert services the Engineers department has not been idle. The department has a plan under way which will probably be presented at the hearing.

The special committee consisting of a representative from the Board of Trade, Citizens Association, Granite Manufacturers and Central Labor Union, have held several meetings to determine on a plan of presenting the case of the city to the Commission.

Another meeting of this committee was held Thursday evening, at which action was taken on the matter.

The railroad has asked for a postponement of the hearing which may be granted.

Second Night Old Folks Concert

Ye last night of Ye Olde Folkes concert at the Park and Downs Meeting House proved as much a success as the first night. The church was filled with an expectant and appreciative audience and all went away at ten o'clock having enjoyed the entertainment greatly.

The concert was typically " Olde Folkes" from beginning to the end. Promptly at eight o'clock the chorus marched upon the stage. All were in Colonial costume; the men resplendent in their velvet suit, white lace stock and white periwigs, the ladies, sweet and dainty in their puffed dresses, high pompadours and big poke bonnets.

Hallelujah Hill and Jonathan Mehaffy first rendered a selection from Haydn's Symphony No. 1, then Father Hezekiah Swift, the Timest, gave the signal, and after the chord had been taken the good old song "Auld Lang Syne" was sung by the chorus of thirty-one voices.

Some very pleasing readings were given by Miss Derby, all of which were recollection of the olde days. "The Minuet" was most gracefully and interestingly rendered. This was encored by "Men's Wicked Ways," which appealed more to the younger people. Later in the evening Miss Derby in her irresistible way, recited "Molly," which was very entertaining, followed by "The School Marm's Courting" that amused all with its ungrammatical wording.

Ruth Whittaker and Simon Page surprised all by responding to an applause with a selection of their own, composed by Mr. Page. Their first song was "Dost thou love me, Sister Ruth?" Mrs. Whittaker made a very pretty Ruth and sang very sweetly. They were much applauded. When they finished their encore they brought down the house:—The words were:

Simon—In a cottage by the sea, you and me.

Ruth—We will live so happily by the Sea.

Simon—We will live on love and clams, oysters on the side.

Ruth—'Twill be our grand honeymoon when I am your bride.

Simon—I will never stay out late. No-no-no-

Ruth—If you do you will meet your fate. So-so-so.

Simon—O, but that would cruel be, my poor heart would break

Ruth—If you think you can fool me—that's where you mistake.

Simon—When our family grows to be one-two-three.

Ruth—With a push cart on the street. Not for me.

Simon—Very well, my charming Ruth, have your own sweet will.

Ruth—I intend to dress in silk, and send you the bill.

Mrs. Whittaker also sang "Mammy's Little Honey" most charmingly, aided by the chorus.

The "Jolly Blacksmith's Lay," four part tune, by Capen Hill, Smith and Macdonald called an encore which was "Lucky Jim." This was well acted out, and was rather startling at the end when they sang "Ah, Jim!"

"Only Waiting" another four part tune, sung by Healthy Hill, Thankful Capen, Obejoyfull Capen and Uncle Zebedee Smythe was well acted and received much applause.

"Good-night, Good-night, Beloved" the final selection was very good. Much praise is due all that took part.

Walsh—Creedon.

William F. Walsh of 380 A Broadway, South Boston, prominent in the automobile trade, and Miss Helen Creedon of Bates avenue, West Quincy, were married at St. Mary's church by the Rev. Father Duffy, Wednesday evening.

The bride wore brown silk mohair princess gown and picture hat and the bridesmaid, Miss Katherine Walsh sister of the groom, was attired in a gown of green silk trimmed with real Irish lace, John J. Lydon was best man.

Following the ceremony a reception which was attended by only members of the family of the contracting parties, was held at the home of the bride's parents. After a short trip, Mr. and Mrs. Walsh will reside in Providence, R. I.

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

Business begins to boom.

Mr. and Mrs. William Tower and family of Somerville were in Atlantic over the holiday.

A nice, wooden fence is being built about the homestead, corner of Washington and Edison streets.

Mr. and Mrs. James Toas of Riverside were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hill of Walker street on Wednesday.

Mr. Wright and family of Botolph street are to move to Savin Hill, where they have rented a house on Savin Hill avenue.

Mrs. W. L. Tompson of Squantum street has returned from the hospital where she has been under surgical treatment. Her condition remains about the same.

It is good news to the Point people that the Massachusetts Steamship Co. are to have three more colliers like the Everett, Malden and Melrose, built in Quincy, in the very near future.

Music lovers at Quincy Point are especially interested in the recital next Wednesday evening by Mrs. E. C. Page. She is a great favorite among her many friends in Ward Two, and of all lovers of first class music.

Harry Read of Squantum street started Wednesday for Jamaica for a short rest. Mr. Read has had a severe bronchial cough for the past month and thought the sea trip would be the best restorative possible.

Mrs. D. A. Bruce of Squantum street gave a costume party for the Atlantic whist club Wednesday evening. The creations of the guests afforded much amusement. Refreshments were served after the game.

Success of the most flattering kind attended the recital Thursday evening, given in Atlantic Music hall by the pupils of Mrs. Bessie Segee Butler. The hall was filled to the doors and the program was entertaining and eloquent of fine instruction. The musical numbers were also pleasing. Mrs. Butler was overwhelmed with congratulations.

One man on Billings street is proudly showing a crop of peas up and flourishing despite the cold weather. He claims that a competent gardener can work wonders. His garden is the envy of all the neighbors and everyone is enjoying that early luxury of June peas in spirit, while the fortunate producer can enjoy them in truth.

CANNOT RECOMMEND
Elba Home Remedies
TOO HIGHLY.
Cambridge, Mass., February 27, 1908.
ELBA CHEMICAL Co.:
Gentlemen—I am so gratified with the result secured by the package of ELBA HOME REMEDIES NO. 10, FOR GRIPPE, that I feel a pleasure in writing about it. I had an awful hacking cough, my nose was running all the time, and I felt miserable in every way. After using the ELBA GRIPPE REMEDY for just two days, I was entirely well. My sister, Mrs. J. Litchfield, of Cambridge, also used it with the same result. I cannot recommend ELBA HOME REMEDIES too highly. Hereafter when I am sick, I will always take Elba Home Remedies.
Yours truly,
158 Auburn St., Cambridge, Mass. J. W. PENNIMAN.
If this or one of the other 33 ELBA HOME REMEDIES fails to produce the same result in YOUR CASE we will cheerfully return your money in full. The price of ELBA HOME REMEDY NO. 10, FOR GRIPPE AND COLDS, is 25 cents.

La France
SHOE for WOMEN

$3.00 to $4.00

IN walking, just before your foot leaves the ground, the entire weight of the body is thrown upon the ball of the foot. If the sole of the shoe is stiff and unyielding the weight is thrown forward upon the toes, which is uncomfortable and injurious.

The La France Flexible Welt

entirely eliminates this difficulty. No shoe is so easy to walk in, as it adapts itself perfectly to the movements of the foot.

La France Shoes solve the problem of perfect ease and comfort, combined with the highest degree of style and grace in every line and detail.

There are many styles and models—you will be sure to find something that not only fits the foot but which pleases your individual taste, and they cost but $3.00 to $4.00 per pair.

Observed Birthday Of Shakespeare

The Shakespeare society of Atlantic observed Shakespeare's birthday Thursday afternoon with a musicale and with literary exercises at the home of Mrs. Edward Tenney of Wollaston. The program, including the musical members, was as wholly enjoyable as it was exclusively Shakespearian. The members are to be congratulated upon their success which is due in large measure to the personal interest each one feels in the society. The program included:

Quartet, "Hark, Hark, the Lark" from "Cymberline," Mrs. Frederic Peirce, Mrs. Lyndon Gurney, Mrs. George Richards and Mrs. John Carver. Mrs. Cecil Marble accompanist.

"A Tribute to Shakespeare" by Ben Johnson, Mrs. William Cummings.

Alto solo, "Lawn as White as Driven Snow" from "The Winter's Tale," Mrs. Carver.

Selections rfom Mcbeth, Mrs. Hattie Baker.

Two trios, "Orpheus with His Lute" from Henry the Eighth: "Blow, Blow Thou Winter Wind" from "As You Like it;" by Mrs. Peirce, Mrs. Gurney and Mrs. Richards.

Reading from "Love's Labors Lost," Mrs. Harry Kolseth.

Piano Solo, "Torch Dance" from time of "Henry the Eighth," Mrs. Charles Coe.

Selections from "Two Gentlemen from Verona," Mrs. Edward Tenney.

Soprano Solo, "Where Sucks the Bee" from "The Tempest," Mrs.

Selections from "Taming of the Shrew," Mrs. Theodora Parker.

Piano Solo, "Midsummer Night's Dream," Mrs. Marble.

Selections from "Macbeth," Mrs. Harry Read.

Quotations, Miss Elizabeth Cook.

Alto solo, "She Never Told Her Love," from "Twelfth Night"; "Come Unto These Yellow Sands" from "The Tempest," by Mrs. Richards.

Selections from "The Merchant of Venice," Mrs. Williams Ward Witcher who also read letters of regret from Mrs. Jason G. Miller and Mrs. Seth Ellis Pope.

Quartette, "You Spotted Snakes" from "Midsummer Night's Dream," Mrs. Peirce, Mrs. Gurney, Mrs. Richards, Mrs. Carver.

"A Shakesperian Story," read by Mrs. John Carver during the serving of refreshments.

Probate Court.

Judge Flint held probate court for Norfolk county at Dedham on Wednesday and transacted the following business:

Good Receipts
Good Cooks

A Menu for Thursday.

A well known Quincy lady contributes the following menu for Thursday, accompanied by a few notes:

BREAKFAST.

Fruit Cereal
Fillet of Sole Fried Potatoes
Coffee Muffins

LUNCHEON.

Potato Salad Cream of Tartar Biscuit
Strawberry Preserve Ginger Cookies

DINNER.

Vermicelli Soup Crackers
Boiled Tongue Mashed Potatoes
Baked Maccaroni and Tomatoes
Cucumber Salad
Banana Lemon Jelly Cake

NOTES.

Fillet of Sole is flounder with the bones removed; is delicious and cheap.

Potato salad may be very quickly prepared. Chop potatoes, grate onions on them to taste; sprinkle over them salt and a tablespoon of chopped parsley. Pour over the whole French dressing made one part vinegar, two parts oil, salt and pepper.

Dinner may be prepared almost wholly in the morning and is planned with that idea in mind.

I would like a good receipt for baked beans soup.

Digestible pies are the creation of art, says one who is not enthusiastic over the New England specialty, but when made by Quincy women they are above criticism. Apple, mince, squash and custard, are the favorites, but here are a few others:

LITTLE FRIED PIES.

Heat two cups of milk, add a saltspoon of salt, a rounding tablespoon of sugar and cool to lukewarm. Add one yeastcake dissolved in a little cold water and mix with flour to make a drop batter. Cover and let rise until very light, then add one-half cup of soft butter, one cup of sugar and flour enough to make a dough as soft as can be kneeded without sticking to the hands. Cover and let rise again until very light. Roll out thin and cut in small circles. Put a teaspoon of any kind of jam or marmalade or fruit cooked dry on one side, and lay the other over having moistened the edges. Press together closely and fry in deep hot fat like doughnuts. Roll in powdered sugar. E. D. N.

CHOCOLATE PIE.

Half cup (scant) grated chocolate, one cup hot water, butter size of a small egg, one cup sugar, beaten yolks of two eggs, two rounding tablespoons cornstarch dissolved in a little cold milk; cook till thick, stirring constantly; add teaspoon vanilla and pour into a baked shell of pastry; when cool cover with a meringue made from the egg whites, or whipped cream is nice; fit the pastry smoothly into the pie plate and pick all over with a fork; bake in a quick oven, not too hot on the bottom.
M. A. B.

CREAM PIE.

Beat two eggs with a pinch of salt, very light; add one cup sugar and beat; then one-half cup flour and beat; another one-half cup flour mixed with one teaspoon baking powder and beat; flavor, and last beat in half cup boiling water; put in oven as quickly as possible after beating in water. Third Hill.

COCOANUT PIE.

One pint milk, three tablespoons fine cracker crumbs, one egg, one small cup shredded cocoanut, sugar to taste. Bake like a custard, with one crust. Crescent Street.

STRAWBERRY PIE.

Line a plate with rich paste and bake. Hull and wash two quart boxes of strawberries and sprinkle one cupful of sugar over. Simmer together ten minutes, add a level teaspoonful of butter, rubbed smooth with one rounding teasponful of cornstarch and cook three minutes; cool and fill the shell.

Beat the whites of two eggs stiff and dry, add two rounding tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla and beat well. Heap this meringe over the pie and brown in a cool oven.
Mrs. D.

CHEESE PIE.

Cut a small onion fine and boil ten minutes. Drain and add piece of butter size of a walnut, six ounces of grated cheese, one egg; beat up together, pepper and salt to taste, cover pie plate with rich crust, and cover with the cheese. Put on upper crust bake as any fruit pie. C. A. R.

SHORT PASTRY FOR FRUIT TARTS

Rub one pound flour and six ounces of butter together. Make a hole in the center of the flour, into which put two ounces powdered sugar, two eggs beaten to a froth ,and a wine glass of water. Mix the eggs, sugar and water well. Drown in the flour and work lightly. Mary.

MINCE PIE.

Miss Farmer gives the following recept for mince meat: Five cups chopped cooked beef, two and one-half cups chopped suit, seven and one-half cups chopped apples, three cups cider, one-half cup vinegar, one cup molasses, five cups sugar, three-quarters pound citron finely chopped, two and one-half cups whole raisins, one and one-half cups finely chopped raisins, juice of two lemons, juice of two oranges, one tablespoon mace, two tablespoons cinnamon, two tablespoons clove, two tablespoons allspice, two tablespoons lemon extract, two nutmegs grated, one teaspoon almond extract, one and one-half cups brandy, salt, three and one-half cups liquor in which beef was cooked. Mix ingredients except brandy and rind of lemons and oranges, and cook slowly two or three hours.

SALADS.

Next week Friday the column of receipts will be devoted largely to salads. Quincy ladies are invited to send receipts.

The Puritan Pie.

Since preparing the above column for the Daily Ledger, our cook has discovered an interesting essay on the "Pie" in the Boston Traveler. Joseph Smith in "The Scrap Heap" writes interestingly, and says in part:

"Those keen philosophers, sociologists and psychologists who have been for years probing the cause of the decay— we hesitate to write degeneracy—of the Puritan spirit of New England have marshaled many causes to explain the deplorable fact, and yet it has always seemed to us that they had missed the real cause, had failed to touch the real source of the evil.

After much anxious thought we have come to the conclusion that the decay of Puritanism is coeval with the decay of the pie habit; and that that noblest of bon bouches and brain foods began to lose caste and vogue with the incoming of the railroad, which scattered peoples, habits, ideas, dishes and seeds of decay throughout New England.

"Time was when pie was the piece de resistance of every Puritan household, and by pie we do not mean that light, flaky, Frenchified form of pastry with any sweetened concoction deposited in its entrails, but the rough, resolute affair full of the fruits of a wintry, barren land, laden with the mysteries in which meat, molasses and hard cider may be detected, or flooded with the tribute of the hen and cow.

"We say fearlessly and defiantly that the gloom and glory of the Puritan past can only be restored when we adopt as our battle cry: "Back to the pie of the Puritan!"

YOU COULD See This CITY GROW

If Your Dollar
Circulated in Quincy.

Why Do Country Boys Flock to Big Cities?

Most small towns are short of young men. As a rule there are plenty of agreeable girls who would not object to matrimony; there are plenty of old people and enough babies to go around. But the boy—oh, where is he?

The boy, the young man, has gone to the city, where he imagines there are opportunities. To him the old home town is dull and stupid. He sees no future for himself there. Both for social and financial considerations he rushes off to the great city. Very frequently he finds that he is lonesomer there than at home—nearly always so; and even more frequently he finds that riches do not grow on ten story walls.

BUT STILL HE GOES TO THE CITY.

In going there the boy simply follows his daddy's dollars. For years his daddy and his mother and his big sister and his Aunt Mary Ann have been mailing their money to the big city for Mail Order bargains.

Result: Home merchants don't thrive, grass grows in the streets, no jobs are to be had, no opening for a new business, and the young man goes to the city because it is a place where people have traded at home and built up their own community and provided opportunities for outsiders as well as for themselves.

IF YOU WANT TO KEEP YOUR BOY AT HOME BUILD UP YOUR TOWN SO THAT HE CAN BUILD UP HIS CAREER AMONG HIS HOME FOLKS.

Woodrow Wilson of Princeton

Head of a Great University Who Has Been Suggested as a Candidate For the Presidency—Historian, Orator, Good Story Teller and a Political Economist of Recognized Standing—Dares to Say What He Thinks.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

DESPITE the prevalence of higher education in America, college presidents are seldom considered for political positions. Men like Andrew D. White and James B. Angell are conspicuous exceptions, but their work has been confined for the most part to the diplomatic service. There is scarcely a college head in either branch of congress or in high executive station. As for the presidency of the United States, if we except James A. Garfield, who was a college president for a short time in his early manhood, no educator has ever been seriously considered for the office.

Why should we not draft the knowledge, training and high ideals of the teachers in our government service? For example, why should not the trained political economists have some part in the actual working out of the political economy of the nation? If it be objected that they are only theorists, then give them a chance to correct the defect by practical experience. Both the college and the government would be the gainers, the government in expert knowledge and the college in actual contact with affairs.

It is in this spirit that President Woodrow Wilson of Princeton university has been suggested as a suitable candidate for the presidency of the United States. Wilson is not only an educator, but a historian, an orator and a political economist of recognized standing. He once practiced law and has kept in touch with the world of affairs. He has written a standard American history, and hence should know the policies and spirit of his country.

It might be said that if the nation were a great university it would be proper to head it with a college president; if it were a great business concern, then a banker or merchant should direct its destinies, but since it is a collection of people its president should be a man. A careful study of President Wilson, however, will convince the most hypercritical that he is both a college president and a man.

Popular Suggestion.

It was Colonel George Harvey, the irrepressible editor of Harper's Weekly, that suggested Dr. Wilson's candidacy, expecting it to pass off in the manner of the usual Harvey pleasantries. To his surprise it "took." The newspapers indorsed the proposition far and wide, and people wrote in its favor from all over the land. That was two years ago, and the boom is still alive. Nothing may come of it, but in that regard it does not differ from a large number of other booms. A suggestion that immediately strikes a popular chord and keeps it vibrating two whole years is worth discussing.

That Dr. Wilson has views, and vigorous ones, is shown in his advocacy of publicity for the trusts.

"If we are to give them our money," he says, "they must at least let us trouble them to see their consciences. If we could only see the souls of the board of directors and know how much they weighed, then we would know whether it would be safe to invest our money in them or not. * * * We can't abolish the trusts. We must moralize them.

"The thing that keeps water in stocks is secrecy. If this board were taken out of the sluiceway, the water would all run out, and then the people would know what they had left."

President Wilson believes our method of choosing a chief executive is wrong. It is too haphazard and local, not representing a general voice. We have not enough the idea of being a nation.

He also objects to the wide division between the different departments of the government. He would have the president and his cabinet able to initiate legislation and would make them responsible to congress so that they could be questioned on the open floor. This, he believes, would give us a president and cabinet of a different caliber.

"We should have not a little light thrown on the conduct of the departments," he says, "if the heads of the departments had daily to face the representatives of the people to propose, defend, explain, administrative policy upon the floor of the houses where such a plan would put them. * * * This will be done when the executive is given an authoritative initiative in the houses. * * * I see no other way to create national figures."

The present plan he objects to on the ground that it makes the speaker, who is not chosen by the people of the nation, the dictator of the house and some equally unrepresentative and irresponsible boss the dictator of the senate. By separating so widely the three departments of government we make them work at cross purposes when they should act in administrative unity.

Says What He Thinks.

This is refreshing, not so much because of the views expressed, over which there is room for difference of opinion, as because of the fact that this is a man who dares to think for himself and to say what he thinks.

Here is one of his healthy views on education:

"You don't send a boy to college to find an education; it's to find himself. * * * I believe the only way to learn is by trying your mind alongside of some other mind and drawing conclusions."

Despite the fact that he is the head of a great university, Dr. Wilson enjoys good stories and tells them. One of his best refers to the late President McCosh of Princeton. The venerable McCosh was not given to levity. Dr. Wilson says he never knew him to be guilty of more than one conscious jest. It was at a meeting of the Evangelical alliance. The presiding officer, who was a Baptist, said:

"Brethren, I presume that, whatever else our differences may be in denominational belief, we can safely say that the Apostles' Creed is a platform upon which we can all stand."

Whereupon Dr. McCosh leaned over to his neighbor, the Methodist minister, and whispered in his rich Scotch brogue:

"I should no care to descend into hell with an Episcopalian."

Difficult Problems.

Another Wilson tale relates to an instructor in astronomy in Vassar college. "In astronomy," this professor sagely remarked to his fair class, "to determine the motions of three bodies that attract one another is admittedly difficult." A suppressed titter on the rear seats. "May I inquire," he remarked sarcastically, "what unconscious humor lay in my last statement?"

"I beg pardon," said a blushing girl. "It merely struck me that the difficulty was nothing compared with the same problem in love."

The eternal feminine—likewise the eternal triangle!

From President Wilson's barrister days he culls the following:

A long winded and ancient southern lawyer had been making a plea for three whole days. The judge became impatient and in as polite a way as possible admonished him to cut it short.

"And do you know," says Dr. Wilson, "the old barrister declared that the last four days of his argument were a marvel of condensation."

Having been a student in Johns Hopkins university, Dr. Wilson tells this story of the illustrious founder of that institution. A Y. M. C. A. delegation waited on Mr. Hopkins for a donation to erect a building.

"But I have no ready money," said the philanthropist.

"Well, Mr. Hopkins," replied the spokesman, "we shall be glad to take your note."

"Um—h'm! Now, that's clever. You shall have it." And he drew one for $3,000. As he handed it over he said, "What are you going to do with this?"

"Turn it into cash."

"But what will that cost you?"

"Six per cent."

"That will never do. It's too much. I'll discount it myself for four."

"And he did," added President Wilson, "although he had no ready money."

Graduate's Two Offers.

Meeting a new graduate on the Princeton campus one day, Dr. Wilson congratulated him and asked him what he intended doing now.

"I hardly know yet, sir. I have two offers."

"Two? Wonderful!"

"Yes, sir. One is from a scientific society offering me a secretaryship at $5 a week, and the other is from a baseball magnate offering me a five years' contract to pitch at $5,000 a season."

The Princeton president tells this with all the more enjoyment because he himself when a student was enthusiastically devoted to athletics.

For a staid and dignified university president this repertory is not so bad, and it could be extended indefinitely.

A Princeton man now located in New York tells this story of a chance meeting with Dr. Wilson:

Going into Scribner's bookstore one morning, he saw a smooth faced middle aged man in glasses and without a hat and naturally took him for a clerk. Woodrow Wilson had just been elected president of his alma mater, and the former student wanted to find out something about him.

Of the supposed clerk he asked for some book by Wilson containing his portrait.

"There is no portrait of Wilson in any of his books," replied he of the glasses, "but if you will look in a certain magazine," naming the month and year, "you will find a fair likeness of him."

Then, picking up a hat, he bowed and went out.

"Do you know who that was?" asked the mystified Princeton man of a real clerk this time.

"Professor Woodrow Wilson," was the answer.

In view of the mention of his name for the presidency it is not without interest to know that Wilson originally went into the practice of law at Atlanta, intending to devote part of his time to politics. He found, however, that the two would not go together: that one or the other must be neglected. He therefore abandoned both for the study of political economy.

Called "Tommy" at College.

Woodrow Wilson was born in Virginia in 1856 and graduated from Princeton at the age of twenty-three. He was christened Thomas Woodrow and in college was called "Tommy." Among his classmates were such well known men as Robert Bridges, the writer; Edward Parker Davis, the physician; Thomas Hall, the religious author; Judges Mahlon Pitney and Robert McCarter.

President Wilson says he was not an honor student. "I believe," he adds humbly, "I ranked about fortieth in a class of 125."

After leaving college he studied law in the University of Virginia, after which he practiced for two years in Atlanta. While there he was married to one of the belles of Georgia, Miss Ellen Louise Axson, of Savannah.

Shortly after his marrage Mr. Wilson entered Johns Hopkins for a post-graduate course and took the degree of Ph. D. He then became professor of history and political economy in Bryn Mawr college and afterward occupied the same chair in the Wesleyan university. From 1900 to 1902 he was professor of jurisprudence and politics at Princeton. He was offered the presidency of several colleges, but preferred to remain with Princeton, of which he was made the head in 1902.

Professor Wilson is the author of many books, among which the best known are "Congressional Government," "The State," "George Washington" and "A History of the American People." He is not only a standard author, but a popular lecturer.

As between the two schools of so called reactionaries and radical Democrats Professor Wilson would scarcely be classed with either, although mention of him has been chiefly confined to conservative sources. Being at Princeton, he is of course a friend of Grover Cleveland. He is a fundamental Democrat, however, who believes in Americanism and in the peculiar and distinctive spirit of Americanism that animated the Virginia Democrats of an early day.

President Wilson's voice is said to resemble that of Henry Ward Beecher. If voice denotes the quality of the man, that fact should denote a rich culture and a warm heart. Add to these a sturdy individuality, high moral standards and devotion to basic principles and the result is a rare combination. The American people certainly need their scholars and idealists in politics.

WOODROW WILSON.

AT CABRERA'S ORDERS

Eighteen Ringleaders In Conspiracy Against Him Executed

MORE TO SHARE SAME FATE

Men Implicated In Plot to Assassinate President a Year Ago Will Have Lives Snuffed Out--Revolution Is Threatened In Guatemala

Guatemala City, Guatemala, April 24.—President Cabrera, against whose life an attempt was made by students last Monday, received the representatives of the various powers yesterday and made a lengthy statement to them that he had unearthed an extensive conspiracy against him, which led up to his attempted assassination.

He declared that eighteen of the leaders had been shot to death by his orders and that the death penalty would be meted out to others already in the hands of the military. Among these are the men who were imprisoned a year ago, having been implicated in a plot to assassinate the president. They were sentenced to death soon after their arrest, but the sentence was not carried out. Cabrera said that he had proofs that a majority of these prisoners were involved in the new attempt against his life and that they would be executed without delay.

The president has issued a proclamation stating he is confident that the people are with him and that he will preserve order with a strong hand.

Although there is a surface tranquility here, conditions really are serious. The military is in control of the city and a partial suspension of business has resulted. The revolutionary feeling is strong in many quarters, and there are those who will not hesitate to go to any length or face any danger in their efforts to make way with the president. Cabrera, for this reason, has not been seen but twice or thrice in public within the last three months.

An attempt was made to assassinate President Cabrera last April and arrests to the number of about 150 of those said to be implicated in the plot were made. Several of the arch-conspirators committed suicide and nineteen of the others were sentenced by court martial to death. The latter included two Mexicans, one Spaniard, two Italians and one Belgian. The representatives of the powers interfered as to the death sentence, sending an energetic protest against such summary punishment to Cabrera.

Later a large number of minor offenders were pardoned and released from prison and, although the supreme court of Guatemala confirmed the death penalty on all those sentenced for the attempt on Cabrera's life, the sentence was not carried out.

Dispatches from Guatemala City last July said that probably all of the alleged conspirators would be released shortly, but apparently not all of them were released.

Government to Sue Railroad

Washington, April 24.—By a vote of 245 to 8, the house adopted the senate joint resolution authorizing the attorney general to file suits against the Oregon and California Railroad company for the forfeiture of all or part of 2,800,000 acres of land grants in the western part of Oregon. It is contended by the government that by reason of breaches and violations of the acts making the grants, the railroad company has forfeited all rights to the land in question.

Will Close New York Bucket Shops

Albany, April 24.—The passage by both houses of Senator Cassidy's bill, which, if signed by Governor Hughes and enforced, will put out of business every bucket shop in the state, was the surprise and sensation of the closing hours of the legislature. Bills to this effect have been before the legislature every year for many years. The bill is modelled generally upon the Massachusetts statute.

Holy War Is Threatened

Simla, April 24.—Latest advices show that the Mohmands are becoming more aggressive. Sir James Willcocks has been ordered to make ready for the front as speedily as possible. It is reported that in a very extensive region the tribes are preaching a holy war. The Mohmands have organized a transport supply train to bring provisions and ammunition, mostly from Afghan territory.

Denmark to Shift Diplomats

Copenhagen, April 24.—Constantin Brun, the Danish minister to the United States, will be transferred during the coming summer from Washington to London. Count Carl Von Woltke, the minister to Italy, will probably succeed him. Countess Von Woltke is the daughter of Nathaniel Thayer of Boston. The marriage took place at Lancaster, Mass., on June 29 last.

Sailors Well Entertained

Los Angeles, Cal., April 24.—Fleet week in Los Angeles is drawing to a close in a perfect whirl of entertainment, amazing in its extent and variety. In every port a round of pleasure has been provided that will occupy every moment of time of the officers and men up to the hour they are required to return to their ships at midnight tonight.

MILDRED BREWSTER IS FREE

Anna Wheeler's Slayer Cautioned by Judge to Live Quietly

Montpelier, Vt., April 24.—Mildred Brewster, who shot and killed Anna Wheeler in this city in 1898, but who was found not guilty of murder by reason of insanity, was released from the insane asylum at Waterbury, where she has been for nine years.

Miss Brewster herself petitioned the supreme court for her release, which Judge Hall, yesterday afternoon, declared to be granted. Judge Hall cautioned her to live quietly and turned her over to the care of Mrs. J. W. Ross of Hardwick.

Murder Trial Goes Over

Dedham, Mass., April 24.—As a result of a plea in abatement entered in the superior court here, the case of Dr. Wallace R. Amesbury, who has been indicted for the alleged murder of his wife, will go over until the September term of court. The plea was entered by counsel for Amesbury, after the defendant had been brought into court with the expectation that his trial would be begun. Counsel in his plea states that the indictment gives the name of Mrs. Amesbury as "Anna B," whereas, he declares it should be "Anna V." Doctors who have conducted an examination of Amesbury's mental condition reported to the court yesterday that Amesbury was not insane at the time he is alleged to have shot his wife, and is not insane now.

Wu Talks to Hub Merchants

Boston, April 24.—Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese minister to the United States, who is on a visit to Boston, closed a busy day by giving an address last night before the Merchants' club. He dwelt in detail upon the commercial development of China and the opportunities given to the United States to gain an increasing share of the trade, and closed his address by tracing the movement in China toward the formation of a constitutional government.

No Federal Action on Merger

New Haven, April 24.—Inquiry in railroad circles here in regard to the alleged action of the federal government against the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company on the ground of its suppression of competition by buying trolley roads, shows that the officers of the railroad company have received no notification of any such proceedings.

Arrested on Bribe Charge

Boston, April 24.—On a charge of conspiracy to bribe a federal juror, William I. Alkon and Harris A. Alkon, brothers, were arrested yesterday at the Charles street jail, where they were committed the day before after being convicted in the United States district court of using the mails in a scheme to defraud merchants out of goods sold on credit.

Royal Arcanum Convention

Lowell, Mass., April 24.—The thirty-first annual convention of the grand council of Massachusetts, Royal Arcanum, opened here with 178 members of the grand council body present. Nominations were put before the body of those who aspire to offices. The election will come this afternoon. There are only a few contests, and these are for minor officers.

Went Ashore at High Tide

Chatham, Mass., April 24.—Schooner Abbie and Eva Hooper, Captain Holmes, bound from St. John for New York with a cargo of lumber, grounded off Handkerchief shoal at high water and remains there. She is in a comparatively easy position. It is believed that a portion of the deckload will have to be jettisoned before she can be floated.

Wind Carried Fire a Mile

Lowell, Mass., April 24.—Fire destroyed the Elmer E. Cole grain elevator and grist mill at Bennett Hall station, also the residence of Mrs. Nellie Morton in Billerica Centre. Burning shingles were carried by the wind a mile across country to a twenty-acre wood lot. The flames are thought to have started from a spark from a freight engine.

Alleged Sender of Obscene Letter

Portland, Me., April 24.—John F. McGinnis of Orono, charged with sending an obscene letter through the mails to his wife, who is living apart from him at Herkimer, N. Y., was brought here and arraigned in court. He pleaded not guilty and, failing to furnish bail in the sum of $1000, was committed to Portland jail.

Says He Accomplished Purpose

Arlington, Mass., April 24.—Chief of Police Urquhart, who went to St. John's on an errand in connection with the investigation of the Annie Mullins murder mystery, arrived home last night. He declined to comment on the result of his investigation, except to say that he accomplished the purpose for which he went.

Mills Closed by Fire

Fall River, Mass., April 24.—As the result of a fire in the engine room of the Weetamoo mills, one of the largest cotton plants in this city, 1000 operatives will be thrown out of employment for several weeks. The loss is estimated at $15,000.

Crazy Man Startles Senators

Washington, April 24.—A voice from the men's public gallery addressed to "Mr. Fairbanks and gentlemen of this house," startled the senate during the consideration of the naval appropriation bill. A man of about 30 years was trying to get the vice president's attention. He shouted: "I proclaim myself the head of this house." Capitol police officers took him out at this point. At the police station he said his name was George Washington and that if he were not permitted to keep that name he would go to Ireland and call himself Daniel O'Connell. He will be taken before the district lunacy commission. He would not or could not give his right name.

Opposed to Fleet's Visit

Pekin, April 24.—American official influence in Pekin is strongly opposed to the proposal that the American fleet of battleships call at Chinese ports, because during the past few weeks the conditions in Manchuria have created an international situation which is regarded here as dangerous. Furthermore, the spontaneous alignment of the powers for the first time since the conclusion of the Russo-Japanese war, and the attitude of encouragement to China discerned in this American demonstration, have aroused suspicion.

State Sends Italians Home

Boston, April 24.—Forty poverty-stricken Italians from Massachusetts mill towns sailed out of New York harbor yesterday for their native soil, their transportation paid by the commonwealth of Massachusetts. They are men, women and children, who, because of existing hard times, found it impossible to support themselves by the toil of their own hands and thus became public charges, so that their homeward trip amounts to a deportation to which they were not wholly averse.

Four Killed In Mine Explosion

Pittsburg, April 24.—The miners who volunteered for rescue work in the mine at Ellsworth, where an explosion occurred yesterday, have completed their search of the mine and report that only four men were killed. The explosion resulted from the victims striking a pocket of gas while at work far back in the mine and ahead of the air supplied by the ventilating system.

Steamer at Ocean's Mercy

Halifax, April 24.—The disabled French steamer Breiz-Huel, which was picked up and taken in tow by the tank steamer Lucerne last week, is again adrift at the mercy of the winds and waves in the Atlantic. The Lucerne arrived at Philadelphia and reported the loss of her tow through the parting of the cable in a gale last Saturday night, when off the Nova Scotia coast.

Suicide of London Banker

Paris, April 24.—Fritz Perrugia, a brother-in-law of Leopold de Rothschild, committed suicide in his apartments at the Grand hotel here. His motives for killing himself are not known, but it is reported that he had lost heavily through speculations. Perrugia conducted a banking business in London.

Many Contests to Be Settled

Indianapolis, April 24.—Chairman New of the Republican national committee has decided to call a meeting of the committee before the assembling of the national convention in June. The large number of spirited contests among the state delegates makes it necessary for the committee to meet.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Brooks, Me., suffered a fire loss of $25,000 and was saved from more serious consequences by forty Belfast firemen and a handtub.

Fire destroyed a dozen buildings at Cape May, N. J., causing a loss estimated at more than $150,000.

Two dwelling houses and a large barn on the farm of George Gove at Kensington, N. H., were burned, with most of their contents. The loss is about $10,000.

The Best Spring Medicine in the World is
TRUE'S ELIXIR

Spring usually finds the whole system run down and more or less out of order. The bowels are sluggish and inactive—the system is debilitated—the blood impoverished. Nearly everybody needs a Spring Remedy. For 57 years True's Elixir has been the standby of thousands at this season, as it is the best possible remedy to arouse the stomach, liver and bowels from their sluggish condition. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Cummings Giardino of Everett street has sold his house to Boston people.

A new house is going up at the corner of East and West Elm avenue.

The hottest part of the day Thursday was 3 P. M. when the mercury registered 85 degrees.

The Knights of Malta had a visit Thursday evening from the grand commander of the jurisdiction of Massachusetts.

James Thomas of Norfolk Downs will occupy the house on Willet street near the Massachusetts Field school when it is finished.

James Elcock, formerly with Walsh the grocer, on Beach street, has accepted a position with George B. Emerson, Boston.

The regular monthly meeting of the Wollaston W. C. T. U. will be held Tuesday afternoon 3 o'clock with Mrs. Amos D. Albee 80 Prospect avenue.

Miss Edna Fowler of Phillips street is attending to business again in her sister's store after an absence of a fortnight suffering from a severe cold.

Rev. Mr. Megathlin will lead the weekly prayer meeting in the Park and Downs Congregational church Sunday night. His subject will be "Paton and Missions in the Islands."

A comedy and a short play are to be presented tonight at Colonial hall by the Isabelle Davis Dramatic club. Owing to the length of the plays the curtain will rise promptly at half past seven.

Harry A. Burgess of Bass street, Wollaston, was operated on at his home last week for appendicitis. It was a critical case but he is now considered to be convalescing though it will be a long hard pull back to his usual health.

The members of Wollaston lodge, A. B. S., are planning for a May basket party to be held May 5. This is an annual event and is looked forward to with much pleasure by members and their friends.

David K. Gage of Willard street mourns the death of his brother Nathan M. Gage, who died last week in Franklin, N. H., in his 83d year. Nathan was the oldest of a family of ten sons and daughters, and has always lived at Franklin. David is now the sole surviver of the family.

A sale of cake, candy and dolls was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Horton Monday and six dollars was made and given to the Chelsea Relief fund. The children who held the sale were Edith and Martha Bixby, Frances Horton, Marion and Dorothy Edwards, Helen Walker and Betty Elwell.

The Rev. E. B. Young, rector of St. Luke's church, Chelsea, has written to Mrs. Howard D. Fowler, branch secretary of St. Chrysostom's branch, G. F. S., thanking her most heartily for the large box of clothing sent him to be distributed among the Girls' Friendly Society. Mrs. Fowler is planning to send another box next week.

To Merge or not to Merge will be the question at the next meeting of the Congregational Men's club of Wollaston Tuesday evening, April 28. This absorbing topic will be discussed pro and con by able speakers from out of town. Rodman W. Peabody will present the Merger side of the question, and Norman H. White the anti-Merger.

Recipes for pies in the Daily Ledger today.

Open street cars were run on all lines in Quincy on Thursday.

Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, D.D., of Topeko, Kansas, author of "In His Steps," will speak under the auspices of the Boston Central Woman's Christian Temperance Union in Tremont Temple, Boston, on Sunday, April 26, at 3 P. M. Subject—"What prohibition has done for Kansas." Public most cordially invited.

Quincy people should visit the Newtons and see how grade crossings were abolished there. They are beautiful, combining utility with the artistic by depressing the tracks. In contrast visit Roxbury crossing, Jamaica Plain, and others on the Providence road and you will see nothing but ugliness and eyesores forever. Which does Quincy want?

All the children in town are looking happy in anticipation of the festival tomorrow afternoon at Music hall. How they will munch candy, eat ice cream, buy Maybaskets and enjoy the entertainment and when all is over return home tired perhaps, but still happy.

The end men at the minstrel show of theof the Houghs Neck Associates Saturday evening will be as follows: Bones—Charles O'Brien, A. N. LaBrecque, Edward A. Taber, Ernest Norteman, William Norteman; tambos—George O'Brien, George Uran, J. R. S. Ross, W. J. Hudson and Frank Catarius.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

Light-house tender Mayflower has arrived at the works and will undergo extensive repairs, principally to her engine and boilers.

The Electric Boat Company is perfectly satisfied with the decision of the House of Representatives to the effect that the secretary of the navy be given a free hand in the selection of submarine boats. The secretary of the navy can select none other than the best.

Representatives O'Connell and Gardner were the only Massachusetts representatives voting for the amendment for four battleships instead of two. This is a fact which the voters of Massachusetts must not lose sight of in the future. Representative O'Connell is well known in Quincy and is personally acquainted with a large number of men employed at the shipyard. Representative Gardner although not of this district has a great many friends in Quincy as well as in every district in the commonwealth. The hand-writing on the wall would indicate that the day is not very far distant when Major Gardner, who distinguished himself in the Spanish-American war, will be the leading political power in Massachusetts.

Congressman Fassett of New York, who is to be one of the leaders of Gloucester's summer colony the coming season, said on the floor of the house during the discussion, that he would rather build four ships and find that only two were necessary than to build only two and then find that four were needed.

The last issue of the Marine Review, a New York and Cleveland magazine contained a special article by our correspondent, George H. Corliss.

The 10 nickle shafts for the main turning gear of the North Dakota's 12-inch turrets are now being forged and machined.

For the week ending Friday, April 17, imports for the port of Boston amounted to $1,570,247, a heavy decrease in value in comparison with those of a year ago, which were $2,376,636. Exports last week showed a slight gain, being $1,818,170, while for the corresponding period of 1907 they amounted to only $1,704,948.

Thus far this season the port of Boston has exported a total of 417,216 barrels of apples, as against 509,228 barrels last year.

Captain Finch and his gallant crew of the White Star liner Cymric were not forgotten by their countrymen who recognized their bravery in rescuing the survivors of the St. Cuthbert. Gold and silver medals and money have been given the brave men by societies in Liverpool.

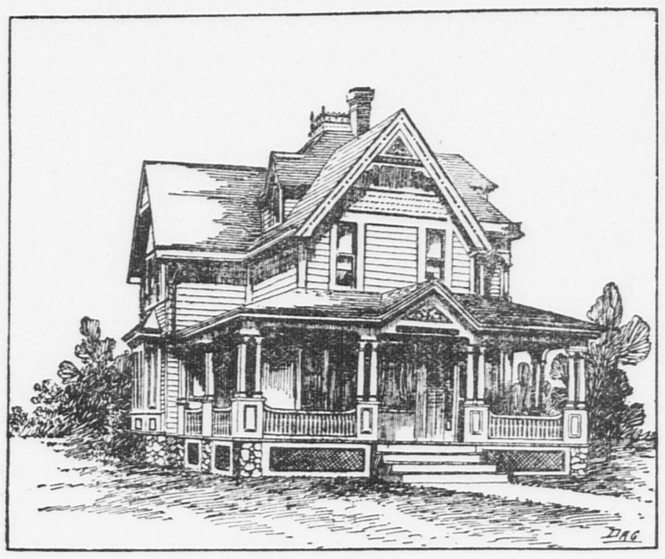
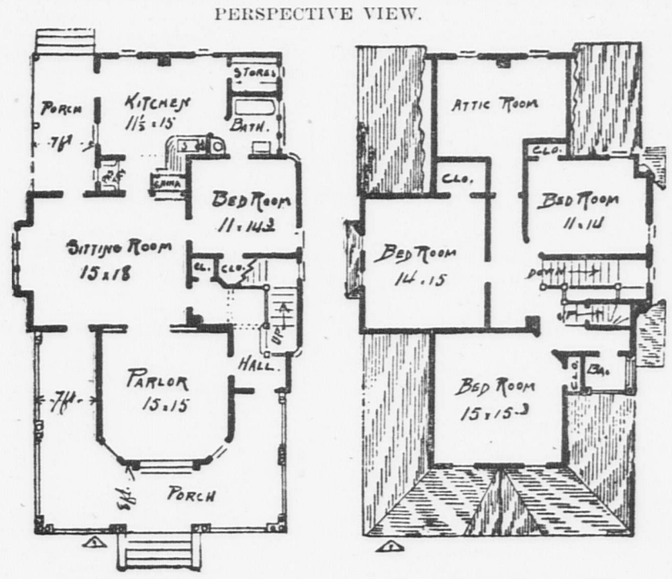
Imposing Frame House.

A Design Which Has Been Used Successfully In Illinois—Estimated Cost, $3,500.

Copyright, 1908, by George W. Payne & Son, Carthage, Ill.



PERSPECTIVE VIEW.



FIRST FLOOR PLAN. SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

The imposing frame house here illustrated is the residence of W. R. Harris of Bowen, Ill. Mr. Harris writes to the architect as follows: "Our residence, built from your design and under your supervision, is in every way satisfactory, and after occupying it for several months we cannot name a change we would desire. Comfort, convenience and cost all seem to have been consulted in its construction." The estimated cost is $3,500.

Makaria will play the strong Volunteer team of Waltham on Saturday at 3 P. M. at Merrymount Park. A good game is promised as Makaria is playing fast winning ball now. It is well worth one's time to see them play. Connolly and Rodgers for Volunteers and Tupper and Smith for Makaria will be the batteries. Full score in the Ledger on Monday.

On Sunday the Makaria fellows will listen to special music and a talk on the Baraca movement in Bible school work. The Makaria Fraternity contemplate taking hold of the movement and will listen with pleasure to the representative of the Baraca class of Dorchester. All young men are cordially welcomed at their meetings on Sunday at noon in Bethany church.

The Bigelow baseball team will play a game at Roxbury tomorrow afternoon.

All base ball clubs are requested to send announcements of games to the Daily Ledger. Full scores of the leading clubs of the city will be published if mailed on the night the game is played. Score blanks furnished on application at office.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and trying the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

"Ralston's for Mine"

That's what you'll say if you will look into the merits of the Ralston shoe—and after you've tried one pair you'll never have to be urged again.

You'll find that not only in style and dependability Ralstons have no superiors, even among five and six dollar shoes, but also that when it comes to fitting qualities Ralstons have no equals.

Ralston foot print lasts have marked a new epoch in shoe construction.

Let us show you why.

Good Taste in Bedroom Furniture

BARGAIN PRICES

It isn't easy to find plain, honest designs coupled with good sound construction in Bedroom Furniture. A large amount of the Furniture now-a-days is covered with cheap, meaningless ornaments which simply conceal a low grade of material and flimsy construction.

The styles we are showing are made along lines which are peculiarly appropriate to the design of Bedroom Furniture. There isn't anything fussy about these designs, nothing elaborate "so to speak," to disturb the effect of quietness and restfulness.

We have the choicest patterns in solid mahogany, Toona Mahogany, Curly Birch, Bird's Eye Maple, White Enamel and Quartered Oak.

A visit to our store will delight you.

The Social Realm

The brown earth yields to the warmth of spring,
And is donning her robe of green.
The birds gaily chirp as they work and sing
Though the winds oft blow cold and keen.
The violets bloom, the buds unfold,
Each day brings new treasures from nature's mold.

J. H. Lapham.

BEAUTIFUL DECORATIONS

At Annual Ball Of Quincy Division Of the Street Railway Union

The sixth annual ball of the employes of Division 1, of the Old Colony street railway, was held last evening at Quincy Music hall, and was a most successful affair in every way. The attendance was fully as large as at any previous affair, the music was fine, and the arrangements perfect. All these combined, helped to make it a most enjoable occasion.

The participants were not confined to Quincy, but came in large numbers from all the surrounding towns.

The floral decorations at the hall surpassed anything yet seen in their line. Across the front of the platform was a row of Easter lilies, while in the centre was a floral car, on the front of which was the number 253, which is also the number of the local union.

The car was of the open pattern, and was composed largely of yellow primroses. Electric lights burned brightly on the inside of the car, and the headlight showed bright and clear. Even the floral rails upon which it rested were illuminated. The floral signs on the end and side read "Quincy—Brockton." Besides the car was a dummy conductor, the brass buttons on his coat being brightly polished. On the lapel of his coat was an April button showing that he was a union man, and that his dues for the current month had been paid. The floral display was by Arnold & Johnson, the well known florists.

Back of this decoration was Cuffs orchestra which rendered the following concert program:

March "Colonial Guard"	Bonk
Concert Waltz "The Last Kiss"	Blake
Overture Medley "Sunny Songs"	Rossiter
Intermezzo Petite "In Roseland"	Eugene
Two-Step "Spares and Strikes"	Blair

The guests present included John Conway, assistant general superintendent of the Old Colony street railway company; Thomas Gammons, superintendent of Division 1, Mayor William T. Shea, Ralph W. Hobbs, the President of the City Council; foremen of the car barns of the division, Claim Agents John Kelley and James W. Parker, and others.

It was but a few minutes after 9 o'clock when the grand march which was to inaugurate the ball was started. This was led by President William J. Walsh, president of the union, and Mrs. Walsh, Mayor William T. Shea and Miss Nora McIsaac, Richard Little, the secretary of the Union, and Miss Blake.

Following in their wake were upwards of seventy couples. Fully as many more watched the pretty scene from the gallery. Although the ball was in motion at 9 o'clock, it was not at its zenith until an hour later, for many of the participants were unable to be present until their escorts had finished their runs.

The program of dances was largely made up of the modern dances, with a springling of the square affairs by way of variety. At midnight a supper was served by Whittemore in the annex.

The officers of the ball were:

Floor Marshal,—William Walsh.

Floor Director,— George F. Salvin.

Assistant Floor Directors,—Richard Little and John Daley.

Chief of Aids,—Frank Pitts.

Aids,—D. R. Barry, W. J. Coyle, John Brown, J. Q. O'Brien, H. Richmond, T. E. Bridson, F. Sampson, Jas. Murphy, George Sprague, H. Davey, S. Marr, J. J. Kelley, J. McKinnen, P. V. LEFT TRAIL OF DEAD

Tornado Takes Hundred and Fifty Lives in the South

VICTIMS LARGELY NEGROES

Score or More Small Towns In Louisiana Destroyed or Partly Wrecked --Mississippi and Alabama Are Also Visited by Storm--Details Lacking

Atlanta, April 25.—Reports indicate that 150 persons were killed and about 400 injured in storms of great violence which passed over sections of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama yesterday. Several towns were almost totally swept away and the property damage will run into large figures.

Most of those killed were negroes, whose cabins were swept away like so much paper. Natchez, Miss., reports that of sixty-four persons killed in that sections only two were whites.

Reports from Amite, a small town in southeastern Louisiana, say that the town was almost entirely destroyed and the estimates place the number killed at between twenty-five and fifty, while at least seventy-five were injured.

At McLain, Miss., eight are reported to have been killed; at Vidalia, La., seven persons are dead; at Quitman Landing eleven negroes were killed. At Purviss Landing, Miss., three whites and nine negroes were victims of the storm, and reports of from one to five deaths come from many towns scattered over the storm-swept area.

New Orleans and Mobile were cut off from wire communication with the outside world for several hours and the telegraph companies report wires down in all directions.

It is difficult to estimate the loss of life or the extent of the destruction of property, for there is little or no communication with points where the wind and rain did its greatest damage.

In Louisiana it is estimated that a score of small towns were destroyed or partly wrecked. They include Amite, Arcadia and Independence. Belle Grove, Milton, Lorman, Pine Ridge, Quitman Landing, Fairchild's Creek, Purvis and Lumberton, Miss., are reported to have been seriously damaged by the storm.

In Alabama, Dora was the chief sufferer. This town is also known as Bergen. Four or more persons were killed. Fifty persons, at the lowest estimate, were injured. Those most seriously hurt were carried to hospitals in Birmingham, Ala. At Bergen cars were blown from the railroad tracks and considerable other property was destroyed.

A Hoodoo Locomotive

Troy, N. Y., April 25.—A Rutland railroad through train for Montreal met with an accident at Hoosick Junction because of the engine jumping the track. The engine broke from the rest of the train and rolled down a steep embankment and the fireman and Engineer Hastings jumped. Hastings sprained his wrist. No one else was hurt. The engine, No. 210, is known far and wide among railroad men as the "Jonah." During the last few years it has been wrecked six times.

Steamship Service Experiment

Halifax, April 25.—The German steamship lines are to make a bid for the Canadian passenger trade and an experiment is to be made by the Holland-America, Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd lines in sending some of their biggest steamers to this port. If the experiment proves a success, Halifax will be a port of call the year round for these liners.

New Steamer Disabled

Halifax, April 25.—The new German steamer Deike Rickmers, Bremen for Philadelphia, with three blades of her propeller missing, was towed into Halifax this morning by steamer St. Bride, Shields for New York. Two days ago the St. Bride sighted the German steamer's signals of distress and the captain of the latter asked to be towed to Halifax.

Cavalry Officer Resigns

Washington, April 25.—Army orders announce the resignation of Second Lieutenant H. F. Ayres of the Seventh cavalry, a son of Lieutenant Colonel Ayres of the Forteenth cavalry, retired. Ayres' resignation has been accepted by the president to take effect May 14 next. No reason for the act in resigning is given.

Planning to Welcome Fleet

Auckland, N. Z., April 25.—The citizens of Auckland have appointed various committees to arrange for an adequate welcome to the American fleet of battleships when they call here next September, quite irrespective of the official program. The visitors can be assured of an enthusiastic reception.

Tornado Destroys Farmhouses

Omaha, April 25.—Reports from the scene of the tornado in northern Nebraska show that twelve farmhouses and twenty other buildings were destroyed and that over a hundred head of live stock were killed. No additional reports of fatalities have been received.

People Will Have No Voice

Brussels, April 25.—The chamber of deputies, by a vote of 70 to 39, defeated the proposition which sought to secure a direct expression of the people at the coming elections on the Congo annexation bill.

CHELSEA FIRE INQUIRY

Two Hundred Witnesses Called and More to Come

Boston, April 25.—The investigation of the state police into the cause of the Chelsea conflagration was resumed yesterday under Deputy Neal and about twenty witnesses from the western section of the city were heard.

Deputy Neal and Detective Smith refused to divulge any of the testimony given at the hearing, but stated that the evidence presented was of sufficient strength to warrant the continuance of the hearing.

It is said that the inquest will last well into the latter part of next week, as something like 200 witnesses have already been called, and probably a great number more will also be called.

Daniel Ross, who was arrested the night after the big fire on suspicion of being a firebug, was honorably discharged yesterday by Judge Bosson in the Chelsea police court.

One more was yesterday added to the list of those having perished in the flames. The body of Mrs. Harry Lewis was found in the cellar of the house at 29 Marlboro street.

Stolen Prize Is Returned

Boston, April 25.—By the arrest of Alexander B. Mills, assistant shipping clerk at Shreve, Crump & Low, silversmiths, the mystery surrounding the disappearance of a valuable New York Yacht club racing trophy has been cleared up. The missing trophy, which had been searched for by private detectives without success, was a silver bowl. It had been sent to the silversmiths for safe keeping. Inspectors were put on the case and they made a search of the various pawnshops. Yesterday they located several pieces of the trophy, which had been cut up. Mills was questioned by the inspectors, and it is alleged by the police he broke down and confessed to the theft.

Took Desperate Chance and Lost

New Bedford, Mass., April 25.—The decomposed body of a negro, pulled up from the river bottom by the anchor of a fishing vessel, was identified last night as that of Manuel Rose of this city, aged 19. Rose's feet were shackled. Last December Rose, who had deserted from the revenue cutter Dexter, was apprehended on the street and taken on board ship in irons. It is presumed that in an attempt to escape during the night Rose leaped overboard, ironed as he was, and went to the bottom during the ice-cold swim of half a mile to shore.

End of Granite Strike

Barre, Vt., April 25.—The strike of granite workers in Barre, Montpelier and neighboring towns, which has kept 5000 men out of employment for the last eight weeks, was finally settled last night, when agreements were signed by the lumpers, boxers and derrickmen with the manufacturers' committee. The men of the other departments of the granite industry, including the cutters and the quarrymen, signed an agreement with the manufacturers some time ago. All the agreements are for three years.

Legislators Raise Own Pay

Boston, April 25.—After Norman White had told the members of the house that higher salaries would bring better men to the legislature, the salary-lift bill went through by a vote of 89 to 74. It probably will get no further—at least in its present form. The bill provides $1000 for every man in the genera' court and it goes into effect this year. The bill has been ordered to a third reading and its next stage in the house is engrossment. The present salary is $750.

Called to College Presidency

Boston, April 25.—Rev. Dr. Frank K. Sanders, general secretary of the Congregational Sunday School Publishing society of Boston, has been chosen president of Washburn college of Topeka. Sanders was born in Ceylon of missionary parents. He has written a number of religious works, organized the first college Young Men's Christian Association in Asia and is the editor of several important stories published by Scribners.

Helped Chelsea Sufferers

Lowell, Mass., April 25.—The grand council, Royal Arcanum, of Massachusetts, sitting here, elected officers for the ensuing year. At the same session money was appropriated for the Chelsea fire sufferers and it was planned to institute a permanent free employment bureau for members of the order. The officers were chosen without any particular contests. John J. Hogan of Lowell was elected grand regent.

Ex-Mayor's Brother Fired

Boston, April 25.—Joseph A. Fitzgerald, brother of ex-Mayor Fitzgerald, was yesterday discharged from the service of the city of Boston by Superintendent of Streets Emerson. Fitzgerald was employed as a messenger at a salary of $1100 a year. He was removed by order of the civil service commission, who declared that his rating was illegal.

Boston to Have New Theatre

Boston, April 25.—Charles H. Bond, prominently interested in local musical and theatrical matters, announces that title deeds have been passed to him for 19,000 square feet of land at the corner of Tremont and Warrenton streets, and that he will erect thereon at once a $500,000 theatre, to be devoted to high class attractions.

Not Guilty of Manslaughter

Waltham, Mass., April 25.—F. O. Thompson, the Harvard man whose auto caused the death of Miss May McIntosh of East Watertown, was discharged on a charge of manslaughter.

DIAMOND GOSSIP.

Blair, the New York Americans' New Catcher, a Clever Player.

THE CARDINALS LOOK FAST.

Umpire Hank O'Day Says the St. Louis Nationals Are Strong This Season. Patsy Donovan Grieves—McQuillen In Good Shape.

One of the youngsters tried out by the New York Americans who has made a hit with the fans is Walter Blair of Wellsboro, Pa. Last season hitting was not Blair's strong point, but under Kid Elberfeld's tutoring he has improved wonderfully.

CATCHER BLAIR OF THE NEW YORK AMERICAN LEAGUE TEAM.

Blair has been a professional only two years, both of which were passed with the Williamsport team of the Tristate league. He can handle all sorts of pitching, is a clever outfielder and will be available for suburban duty should any of the suburbanites get injured.

Mention pitchers to Patsy Donovan, manager of the Brooklyn National league team, and a storm that would make a Kansas cyclone look like a soft spring zephyr will break loose.

It was not enough that Finlayson, whom he had looked upon as the pitching find of the season, should be taken from him. He has the satisfaction of knowing that he himself willfully sold Hunter, who recently shut out the Atlanta team of the Southern league with two hits.

Hunter, it is true, did not make as impressive a showing as Finlayson, but he did show real big league caliber. However, Patsy is consoled in a measure by the thought that later on, if he keeps up his good work, he can buy Hunter back again.

Hank O'Day, dean of National league umpires, says that the St. Louis team is sure to be among the leaders of the race at the finish of the season. Hearken, children, for when Hank speaks he says something:

"The Cardinals have a splendid chance of being up in the National league race this season. It is no longer a one club league. I don't care if the Chicago club plays better ball than it did last year. It will never have such a walkover for the pennant.

"There are four or five clubs in the league that have been building up during the last two years, and this is the year they are going to jump into the race. No club seems to me to have improved more than this St. Louis club, and I mean it, every word, when I say it has a chance to be up in the fighting."

McQuillen of the Philadelphia National league club, who pitched great ball during the latter part of last season, is again demonstrating that he is capable of delivering the goods. McQuillen has a fine assortment of curves, knows how to mix them up and has good control of the ball.

A NOTRE DAME LADY'S APPEAL.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbago, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M. Summers, Box B, Notre Dame, Ind.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

"I KIN WORK IT."

A busy Lawrencian recently added a telephone to the modern improvements at his home. He has four happy children, all of them young, to whom the 'phone was new and who regarded it with awe. One of the kids is a boy of four. He watched the older people call up "Central" and communicate with friends at distant points and yearned to do likewise.

His mother chanced to be absent from home for an hour or so on a recent afternoon. The other children were out somewhere. He was alone. For a half hour he watched the telephone, then climbed up and took the receiver of the 'phone off the hook just as he had seen older people do. By that time he was trembling, but his courage was as strong as chilled steel.

"Number?" he heard a sweet voice inquire. For a moment he was startled, but he conquered a desire to drop the receiver and run and shouted bravely, "I want my pop!"

"Central" must have recognized the voice as that of a child. She promptly inquired, "Who is your papa?"

The little fellow knew enough to tell her, and it was but a matter of a few moments to ascertain the number of the busy Lawrencian's business 'phone and connect the four-year-old.

"Hello?" answered the busy citizen, turning away from a desk overburdened with papers and things.

"Oh, pop, I kin work it!" was the joyful little shout that answered him, and the busy citizen was just as proud and as pleased as the four-year-old of the other end of the line when the brief conversation ceased and the boy, obeying instructions given over the wire, hung up the receiver and awaited the home-coming of mamma to tell her of his conquest.—Lawrence Tribune.

MORAL—If you are a travelling man, and have a wife and children at home, picture their pleasure at hearing your voice before they go to bed.

"Kin you work it?"

Look for a "Blue Bell" Pay Station Sign, and you'll get the answer.

About Women.

Miss Kelly Is a Basket Ball Coach – Wage Earners' Chances In Wyoming – A Model Dairy – Other Pertinent Notes.

Those male grannies who have been cackling about the effeminating influence of women teachers ought to know Miss Ella E. Kelly of public school No. 44, Brooklyn. Besides being an accomplished and refined young woman, Miss Kelly is an expert in regard to physical culture, particularly the sport of basket ball. She coached the five boys from her school who have so far been able to defeat every juvenile team of Brooklyn and Queens county. All the other contesting teams were coached by men. Miss Kelly is adored by the boys of school No. 44 because of her interest in their sports and her prowess as a trainer. She is no "easy boss," her methods being so Spartan as sometimes to stir a protest from the young athletes. When they win a victory, however, they acknowledge how good a thing it was that their trainer set them so high a standard.

Women's Eldorado In Wyoming.

If what Mrs. Mary A. Gates of Wyoming recently said in a public address in the east may be altogether relied on, that state must be the Eldorado of the woman wageworker. According to Mrs. Gates, who spoke before the Woman's National Progressive league, there are in Wyoming more positions for women than there are competent applicants. Said Mrs. Gates patheticalIy: "It's a constant struggle to fill the positions for which they are wanted. The very longest that we keep a schoolteacher is two years." The difficulty is that the young women will get married.

Aristocratic Dairymaids.

Mrs. Margaret Chanler Aldrich, head of the New York Women's Municipal league, is a woman of wealth and social position, but she has business ability as well. At her summer place on the Hudson she has a model dairy and sells the surplus milk to advantage in New York city. The queen of England has a model dairy at her country place, Sandringham, and Queen Wilhelmina is never happier than when she may have a vacation from cares of state and retire to her summer palace, where she has what is probably the best equipped dairy in the world.

Women of Letters and Suffrage.

Mrs. Humphry Ward and Miss Marie Corelli, the novelists, are said to be practically the only Englishwomen of letters who do not stand for woman's suffrage. Mrs. Ward favors giving women the ballot in regard to municipal affairs, but does not favor parliamentary representation. Beatrice Harraden, best known by her "Ships That Pass In the Night," is, on the other hand, an ardent suffragist. She is giving readings from her books to raise money for the cause. Violet Hunt, the novelist, is another active worker.

Writing Up Alaska.

One of the most interesting stories in a recent number of St. Nicholas was Miss Lida Rose McCabe's illustrated article, "Where Dog Is King." Miss McCabe spent a year in Alaska, and her keen observation, indefatigable energy and fine sense of humor supplied her with an abundance of first class literary material. Her illustrated lectures on the north are also absorbingly interesting.

At Seventy Years.

Dr. Osler wouldn't be considered very seriously in Seattle. Mrs. C. E. Cawthorne of that city, who is seventy years old and not ashamed of her age, recently defeated a lot of women half her age in an oratorical contest. She won a gold medal offered by the W. C. T. U., and her address was so much the superior of those of the other contestants that the judges without the slightest hesitation were unanimous in awarding her the prize. This is only another instance to disprove Dr. Osler's theory.

TYPHOID FEVER SPREADING

Large Number of Cases and Deaths Reported In Boston

Boston, April 25.—The report of thirty-two cases of typhoid fever in Boston yesterday, with four deaths within twenty-four hours, would seem to indicate that the epidemic which has swept over the city the past few weeks has not been as yet checked. In fact, the authorities announce that the sale of milk by ont big contracting firm in East Boston has been stopped, as it was found the milk was coming from the source that started the epidemic in Jamaica Plain last month.

Up to last night the total number of cases reported since Jan. 1 was 559, or twenty more cases than the number for the entire twelve months of last year. The number of typhoid deaths for the same period has been twenty-eight.

Practically all the cases and deaths have occurred within the past two months, dating from an epidemic which started in Jamaica Plain, where, two weeks after the first cases were discovered, it was learned that a milkman had died of typhoid fever, after having suffered with the disease for some time while about his work.

Battleships Again Set Sail

Los Angeles, Cal., April 25.—The scattered divisions of the American battleship fleet reassembled today and continued their journey toward San Francisco. The sixteen battleships have been at anchor in the four ports of Los Angeles for just a week and their departure marked the close of what many regarded as one of the most important period in the history of the city. The days and nights have all been filled with merrymaking and the beach cities where the divisions have been staying have vied with this centre of the festivities in lavishing entertainments upon officers and men.

Convention Railroad Rates

Chicago, April 25.—The Central Passenger association has passed upon the applications of some 150 organizations which desired to have low rates for conventions, in accordance with the previous action of the association when it decided on a rate of 1½ cents a mile for conventions which will draw 1000 or more visitors to the meeting places. Of the long list considered only eighteen events were decided to be entitled to the low rates. They include the convention of the supreme lodge, Knights of Pythias, at Boston.

A Blow to Liberals

Manchester, April 25.—The Northwest division of Manchester, by the heaviest poll cast in twenty years, and by a majority of 429 votes, unseated as its member of parliament Winston S. Churchill, Liberal, who has been made president of the Board of Trade in the new Asquith cabinet, W. Joynson-Hicks, Unionist, being his chief opponent. The defeat of Churchill is a crushing blow to the prestige of the government and the young and confident minister, which is bound to have a marked influence on several other impending bye-elections.

Failure of Big Brokerage House

New York, April 25.—The widely known brokerage firm of T. A. McIntyre & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange and of the New York Cotton and Produce Exchanges, with branch offices in several cities of the country, was placed in the hands of a receiver within a few hours after the announcement of the firm's suspension on the Stock Exchange. The firm's liabilities and assets are not stated.

Pleas For More Battleships

Washington, April 25.—Arguments in favor of the president's program for four battleships consumed most of the session of the senate yesterday. Senator Piles opened the debate, declaring that the Asiatic situation affecting the Pacific coast was a menace to that part of the country, because war clouds might quickly rise there over some clash between Americans and the Japanese.

Old Warrior Bracing Up

Paso Robles, Cal., April 25.—The progress made by Rear Admiral Evans during the past five days is so marked that those who saw him when he arrived at the hot springs three weeks ago are astounded. The pale, thin face, marked by lines of suffering, and the weakened frame have been changed and wonderfully improved.

Inland Waterway Favored

Washington, April 25.—The senate adopted a resolution appropriating $100,000 for a survey and examination for a continuous inland waterway from Boston to Wilmington, N. C. A similar resolution is now before the house and the indications are that favorable action will be had in that body.

Prince De Sagan Again Happy

Naples, April 25.—Mme. Anna Gould, formerly Countess de Castellane, arrived here from New York on board steamship Friedrich der Grosse, and was met in the harbor by Prince Helie de Sagan. The prince was much annoyed by the presence of reporters, and refused to be interviewed.

Simple Life For Bat Nelson

San Francisco, April 25.—Battling Nelson is the latest of the pugilist colony to seek the simple life. He returned from Livermore with the announcement that he had purchased a $15,000 vineyard.

Democratic Measure Comes Up

Washington, April 25.—The house discussed a resolution making peremptory demand on the secretary of commerce and labor for the report of the commissioner of corporations covering the result of his investigations into the causes of fluctuations in the price of cotton under the house resolution passed last year. Before the resolution could be voted on, the house took a recess until today. The resolution is the first measure of any kind of Democratic origin which the Republicans have allowed to be considered in several weeks because of the filibuster.

The Passing of Haywood

Denver, April 25.—The executive board of the Western Federation of Miners has terminated the services of William D. Haywood as a representative of the federation in the field. After Haywood's acquittal on the charge of complicity in the murder of former Governor Steunenberg of Idaho he was superseded as secretary and treasurer of the federation by Ernest Mills, on order of the executive board. Since that time he had been employed as a lecturer and organizer for the Federation.

Lockout of Ship Workmen

London, April 25.—The Shipbuilding Employers' Federation has decided to order a lockout in every shipbuilding yard in the United Kingdom, in accordance with the federation's announcement that unless the ship workmen on the northeast coast, who went on strike the middle of January, resumed work by April 25, all the shipbuilding yards in the country would be closed down.

Work For Taft In Panama

Washington, April 25.—As the result of deliberations at the cabinet session, it was determined that Secretary Taft should go to Panama. He will sail from Cherleston April 30 on the cruiser Prairie. A number of questions between the United States and Panama and between Panama and Colombia will be negotiated during the secretary's stay on the isthmus.

Doctor Remains With Cleveland

Lakewood, N. J., April 25.—Although ex-President Grover Cleveland is said to be slowly recovering from the attack of stomach trouble, he has not improved sufficiently to return to his home in Princeton. Dr. Bryant, his physician, arrived here from New York last night and is with Mr. Cleveland at the Lakewood hotel. He may remain over Sunday.

Warships' Presence Alarms China

Shanghai, April 25.—The arrival of six Japanese armorclad warships at Amoy has caused great excitement in the Fukien and Kwangtung provinces as well as in Pekin. There is varied speculation as to the object of such a formidable display, as it happens just as the negotiations relative to the Chientao boundary dispute are reopened.

Two National Banks Closed

Franklin, Pa., April 25.—Two Venango county banks were closed by the comptroller of the currency yesterday, the Farmers' National at Emlenton and the First National at Clintonville. The two institutions are controlled largely by the same persons. Both institutions have a large number of small depositors.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The annual debate between Bates and Clark colleges was won by the team from Bates at Worcester, Mass. Bates supported the affirmative of the question: "Resolved, That further material increases in the United States navy are desirable."

As the result of a cloudburst at Shawnee, Okla., an entire family of Kickapoo Indians, consisting of five members, were drowned.

A four-story brick block in the business section of Westfield, Mass., occupied by two large firms and a number of small offices, was badly damaged by fire, water and smoke, the total loss being abont $55,000.

200 Maples and Elms Set Out

The Quincy Women's club evidently believes in Arbor day and in forestry for its Civic committee is having the whole of Coddington street and Sea street as far as the Adams farm set with trees, over 200 maples and elms being used. The committee voted a large sum from its treasury which was augmented by generous donations from friends and abutters. William Patterson the Wollaston florist, furnished the trees and superintended their setting out and Commissioner Bainbridge, Mr. Dyer and city men showed their interest in a most practical way, which is appreciated by the committee. Let the good work go on.

New Sunday Train.

Through the efforts of ex-Councilman Carle R. Hayward, Quincy people will be better accommodated by an additional inward train to Boston on Sunday nights. Under the old arrangement there was no inward train between 8 and 10 P. M. There was, however, great need of a train between these hours. Mr. Hayward took the matter up with the railroad, and this morning he received a letter stating that arrangements had been made to stop the inward Plymouth train at Quincy. This train is due at Quincy at 9 o'clock P. M. and arrives at Boston at 9.16.

An exhibition and sale of rugs from the Morgan Memorial, Boston, is to be held in First Church chapel, Quincy, next Wednesday for the benefit of Morgan Memorial and the Quincy Hospital. The exhibition will be open from ten until five and afternoon tea will be served from three until five. Seead.

TRUANT OFFICERS

From All Parts Of Massachusetts The Guest of Charles H. Johnson

The fourteenth annual meeting of the Massachusetts Truant Officers' Association is being held in Quincy today at High School hall, and members from all over the state are present.

The meeting was called to order at 10 o'clock by the President Thomas W. Doyle of Holyoke, who presided and introduced Mayor William T. Shea, who welcomed the association to the city, whose freedom he turned over to them.

Mayor Shea was followed by Frank E. Parlin, superintendent of schools, who extended the welcome of the School Committee.

The following papers were read, each being followed by a discussion.

1. The co-operation of superintendents and teachers with truant officers on attendance and truancy, W. C. Bates, Superintendent of Schools in Cambridge.

CHARLES H. JOHNSON.

2. The advisability of the State appointing truant officers for towns that have no regular paid officers to look after absentees and truants, N. W. Nichols, of Winchester.

3. How the best results are obtained from the parents, H. H. Sager of Pawtucket, R. I.

4. What should the maximum number of children be to each truant officer in order to get the best results? L. E. Cabot of Cambridge.

This took up all the time of the meeting until 1.15, at which time a special car was taken for Hibernian hall, where dinner was served by Caterer La Croix, the menu being:

Chicken Bouillon
Cold Roast Turkey — Cranberry Sauce
Cold Boiled Roast Baked Ham — Radishes
Entree
Escalloped Oysters — La Grouiche
Ice Cream
Vanilla — Strawberry — Chocolate
Ices
Frozen Pudding — Lemon Sherbet
Orange Sherbet — Raspberry Sherbet
Cake
Citron — Sponge — Nut — Plain
Raisin — Marble
Coffee — Small P. H. Rolls
Fruit
Olives — Bananas

After dinner there were toasts following which the party returned to Colonial hall.

At Colonial hall Charles H. Johnson gave his illustrated lecture on "Historic Quincy, past and present."

At the conclusion of the lecture the party go to the Scenic theatre as the guests of Manager Donovan.

TO Speak in Boston.

The Boston Central Women's Christian Temperance Union extend to all unions a most cordial invitation to attend both the meeting at Tremont Temple, Sunday, April 26, at 3 P. M., which will be addressed by Rev. Sheldon of Topeka Kansas, author of "In His Steps," subject, "What Prohibition has done for Kansas." Also the general informal reception tendered him by the union on Wednesday afternoon, April 29, from 3 to 5 in the chapel of First Baptist church Boston, Commonwealth avenue, corner Clarendon street. The committee desire that Boston give Rev. Sheldon, so honored a guest, a most generous welcome, as he has an international reputation both as a preacher and a writer.

Have you planted a tree or shrub?

The Quincy fund for the relief of Chelsea now amounts to over $1,200.

Tomorrow will be vacation Sunday for the Sunday school of Christ church.

A meeting of the Junior Alliance of First church will be held this evening at half past seven in the chapel.

The crocuses are very attractive in the yard of Charles A. Howland on Adams street.

The Daughters of St. George will attend services at Christ church on Sunday evening.

Miss Marshall of Welcome Home will speak Sunday evening at the service at Christ church.

On Monday afternoon will be held the last meeting, for this season, of the Quincy Alliance and an unusually good program will be given.

Madam Edith Rowena Noyes, well known in this city and musical circles of Boston, is giving at Steinert hall, Boston, on the evening of May fourth, a recital by her pupils.

A meeting of the Old Colony association of Universalists will be held on Wednesday, April 29th, at Norwell, to which the local church will send delegates.

Rev. Carl H. Raupach attended on Thursday evening the meeting of the alumni of Bucksport (Me.) Seminary, which organized an association in Boston. There will be semi-annual gatherings.

The regular meeting of the Young People's Religious union of First church on Sunday evening will be postponed until May 3d to allow members to attend the Federation meeting at Jamaica Plain.

Charles Bulkley Ames of Harvard Divinity school will preach at First church on Sunday morning as a candidate for the position of assistant pastor. He is the first of several who will candidate this spring.

Living pictures of Quincy's famous men and women are to be presented at First Church chapel next Tuesday evening by the Quincy Historical society. Tickets have been sent out to members, the entertainment being complimentary to members as usual and none are on sale.

Business men of Quincy are invited to the discussion of the Merger question at the Wollaston Congregational church next Tuesday evening at 7.45. Men conversant with the question will present both sides, and there will be an opportunity to ask questions.

The Garden committee of the Quincy Women's club makes a most generous offer to any man who desires to raise a crop of potatoes or grain, giving the free use of the club house grounds for that purpose. It was ploughed up last fall and needs to be cultivated this season preparatory to sowing down to grass in the fall.

Members of the Quincy and Wollaston Y. P. R. U. are planning to attend the Federation meetings at Jamaica Plain on Sunday at Rev. Charles F. Dole's church. The afternoon meeting for business will be held at half past four, followed by a social hour and supper. At the evening meeting at half past seven Rev. Thomas Van Ness of Boston, will speak on: "What for Young People is the Modern Meaning of our Motto, Truth, Worship and Service."

Tomorrow will be Chelsea Sunday at the Wollaston Congregational church, when an offering for the 120 needy families of the Central Congregational church will be made. Rev. E. A. Chase was a Chelsea boy, and always interested in its welfare. He says: Little things much needed are, thread, needles, thimbles, scissors, pins, tooth-brushes, handkerchiefs, etc. Every woman and child is asked to bring one or more of these little things either to church or Sunday school, or the Endeavor meeting.

We have the stock, tools, machinery, and "know how" to do your Optical work promptly and satisfactory. We repair the frames, grind lenses, match the broken ones or test the eye. C. F. Pettengill, 1391 Hancock street, Quincy.

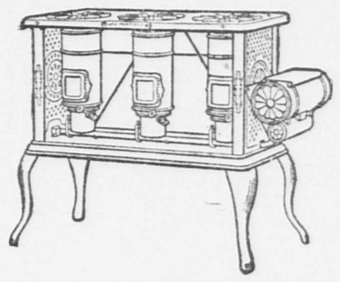
Don't Heat the Kitchen



All the necessary family cooking may be done as well on a New Perfection Wick, Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove as on the best coal or wood range.

By using the "New Perfection" Oil Stove, the annoyance of an overheated and stuffy kitchen is entirely avoided, even in midsummer. The construction of the

NEW PERFECTION
Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove

is such that the heat is thrown directly upward against the kettle or pan upon the stove top, without affecting the atmosphere of the room to an appreciable degree.

You can at once see the advantage of this stove over a great range which throws heat in all directions—it is the ideal summer stove.

If your dealer does not have the "New Perfection" write our nearest agency.

The Rayo Lamp is substantially made of brass, finely nickeled and very handsome. Gives a powerful light and burns for hours with one filling. Portable, safe, convenient—just what every home needs.

Children's Festival At Music Hall

The annual children's spring festival under the auspices of the Educational Committee of the Quincy Women's club is being held this afternoon at Music hall.

On the left of the hall is a long table literally loaded with May baskets. Here also is the ice cream table. On the right is the candy table and tables showing the work of the sewing and sloyd classes.

The entertainment program included the cantata "Summer" by the Glee club of the Adams and Cranch schools, under the direction of Harry Brooks with Miss Molly Rodgers as accompanist. Other numbers on the program were: Drill by the Boys' Signal Corps of Atlantic, fancy dancing by Miss Corlew's class and Miss Florence Barker of Atlantic, flag drill, tumbling, pyramids and wand drill by the Y. M. C. A. boys.

The drummer during the entertainment was Edmund Wade; cornetist, Miss Harriet Pierce; accompanist, Mrs. Charles Sampson.

After the entertainment there was general dancing by the children.

The ladies in charge of the festival were:

Chairman of Education Committee, Mrs. Charles R. Safford.

General Committee—Mrs. George W. Morton, Mrs. Wilson March, Mrs. Charles R. Safford.

Entertainment—Miss Eliza C. Sheahan, Miss Clara E. G. Thayer.

Candy—Mrs. Charles M. Bryant, Mrs. Joseph C. Morse, Sr., Mrs. Nathan G. Nickerson, Mrs. William O. Wellington, Mrs. Joseph A. Dasha, Mrs. A. L. Melcher, Mrs. George Badger, Mrs. Harry Read, Mrs. Edwin E. Davis, Miss M. L. Taber, Mrs. Frederick J. Peirce.

May Baskets—Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, chairman; Mrs. C. Theodore Hardwick, Mrs. J. F. Welch, Mrs. Otho Hayward, Mrs. John Christiansen, Mrs. Wilson Marsh.

Prize Contest in Sloyd—Mrs. William O. Wellington, Mrs. Charles E. Cherrington.

Prize Contest in Sewing—Mrs. William F. Cummings, Mrs. Zenas S. Arnold, Mrs. Edward E. Jameson.

Ice Cream—Mrs. Richard R. Freeman, Miss Margaret Thomas, Mrs. Grant Edgar, Miss Louise Randall, Miss Catherine Freeman.

Garden Seeds—Miss Mary Griffin, Miss Elizabeth Duran.

Tickets—Mrs. Wilson Marsh.

Water—Miss Annie H. Upton and Master Dwight Gearwar.

WEYMOUTH.

Mr. G. H. Baker has remembered his friends with souvenir postals from Los Angeles, California. He was at the Pacific coast while the festivities in honor of the battleships were in progress.

The Easter collection at the First Universalist church, Weymouth, amounting to $38 was sent to the Chelsea sufferers.

Mrs. Richard Loud entertained Mrs. Henry Crane of Quincy and Mr. and Mrs. Otis Smith on Friday, the 17th of April.

Mr. Frank Drown, our genial postmaster, has attended the Knights of Pythias Convention at Boston this week.

Arthur Davis of Washington street went to Lowell on Thursday to attend the Royal Arcanum meeting as a delegate from Weymouth Council.

Mrs. Arthur Davis of Washington street visited friends at Chelsea and viewed the ruins on Wednesday. Mr. Davis' mother's place was destroyed. His sister's house was left on one edge of the burnt district and his brother-in-law's home was saved on the other edge of the fire.

Mrs. J. F. Welch has entertained Mrs. Helen Fowle for three days the past week. Mrs. Fowle was well known in Weymouth where as Miss Helen Fiske she was a successful teacher in the North High school.

We regret to learn that Mrs. Leonora B. Collins of Front street is very very ill. Her son has come from Washington, D. C., where he is a student at the Electrical college. Her daughter Miss Grace Collins is with her. Mrs. Collins has made many friends since coming here from Vermont. She is a member of the Union Litrary Circle. A member of Unity Circle of King's Daughters and a regular attendant at Union church.

THE PHILERGIANS.

The talk of Mr. F. Schuyler Mathews on Wild Birds and their Music, was greatly enjoyed by those members of the Philergians who availed themselves of the privilege of attending last Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Mathews has made a study of this subject for many years, and knows exactly what may be expected of each class of birds in the way of tones, and can reproduce them for his audience so exactly that they seem to hear the cuckoo, thrush, the many sparrows, warblers, etc. Colored pictures of the birds were exhibited, so that the eye as well as the ear was introduced to the little songster.

GETTING TOGETHER

The City and Railroad Hope To Agree on Plans To Abolish Crossings

Although it was generally understood that there would be no hearing this morning, on the abolition of the grade crossings at Saville and Water streets, there was quite a number of persons present at City Hall.

The commission arrived at 10 o'clock and also counsel. The counsel for the railroad was not present.

Ex-Governor Bates, chairman of the commission, stated that the commission was ready to go on with the hearing.

City Solicitor McAnarney stated that after a conference with the railroad, the city desired to ask for a postponement. Representatives of the railroad and city were in conference, and it was hoped to agree upon some plan before the hearing went on. He would like a postponement for two or three weeks.

As there was no objection, the hearing was postponed until Monday, May 11.

Another Carload Sent to Chelsea

Again this morning the trolley freight car carried from Quincy another large consignment to Chelsea. It was the fourth sent by Quincy, since the fire of thirteen days ago. Penny collections were taken in two rooms at the Washington school yesterday in aid of the Quincy fund for Chelsea relief.

Grade V raised $3 and other grades $1.43.

The contribution of $76.50 by Quincy Hebrews toward the fund has received many words of commendation. They certainly responded nobly.

The contributions for the Chelsea relief fund paid over to R. F. Claflin treasurer of the fund now amounts to about $1,000. In addition to this the City Treasurer has nearly $150 that that has not as yet been forwarded to Mr. Claflin.

Today's contributions to the fund received by Mr. Claflin include $15 from the Houghs Neck associates, being an additional list as follows:

A. H. Dunham	$1.00
James Malone	1.00
William Norteman	1.00
George E. Bell	1.00
Peter Haley	1.00
J. E. Wall	1.00
D. J. Maloney	.50

In Memory of Dr. H. M. Willard

The program next Tuesday for the services at the Quincy Mansion school in memory of Dr. Horace Mann Willard, founder of the school, includes reading of the scriptures by the Rev. A. E. Clattenburg of St. Chrysostom's church, prayer by the Rev. E. D. Webber of the Wollaston Baptist church, addresses by Col. Anderson of Quincy, Prof. Jesse B. Thomas of Newton Centre, President Huntington of Boston University, Miss Converse of Yokohama, Japan; Dr. John A. Gordon of Quincy and the Rev. H. G. Megathlin of the Park and Downs church and benediction by the Rev. W. J. Heath of the Wollaston Methodist church.

The service will be held at 3 o'clock, Tuesday, April 28, in the school auditorium at Wollaston. All personal friends of the late Dr. Willard are invited to be present.

Dr. Willard died Aug 24, 1907, in his 66th year. He was born in Cantarbury, Conn., graduated at Brown University of Rhode Island, founded Vermont Academy at Saxton River, and came to Quincy in 1896, opening a school for young women which was a success from the start. He served Quincy in her City Council and was interested in city affairs in general.

Two Plays By Young People

A packed house greeted Mrs. Isabelle Davis' Dramatic club last evening at Colonial hall. Two plays were presented, "Blighted Buds" and "Mrs. Compton's Manager." Before and between the acts piano solos were given by Mr. J. D. Gourlie.

The cast for the first play was:

Mrs. Hypatia Harrington Hitchcock	Beatrice Morrison
Miss Drusilla Durham	Lucile Elwell
Angelina (Hypatia's daughter)	Ruth Packard
Katy (the servant)	Catharine Saville
Sir Roger O'Trammel of Baltynamnuel	Curtis Arnold
Prof. Palman of Penn.	William Nolan
John Smith (Agent)	Eliot Johnson
Pat (The gardener)	Brewster Walker

For "Mrs. Compton's Manager" the cast was:

Mrs. Helen Compton, a widow,	Blanche Morrison
Leonard Barring, her nephew,	Curtis Arnold
Ethel Durand, her cousin,	Minnie Hardwick
Elphron Bartray, a landscape gardener,	Alan Arnold
James Heaton, an architect,	James Claflin
Frederick Lowde, Bishop of Hoboken,	Brewster Walker
Margaret Roswell,	Ruth Penniman
Jackson, the butler,	John D. Gourlie
Marie Demargue, actress,	Ruth Packard
Mrs. McGillion, housekeeper,	Lucile Elwell
Watkin's farm hand,	Eliot Johnson

At an hour's notice owing to illness in the family of Miss Elwell, her part in the plays were taken by Miss Blanche Morrison and Miss Catherine Saville. The effective stage setting was from the well known house of Mr. W. G. Shaw.

Both plays were capitally well done, the actors being the recipients of frequent bursts of applause. Some remarkably good acting is done by these young people and the announcement that they are to give a play always attracts a large audience.

Mrs. Davis was surrounded after the play by those who wished to express their enjoyment of the performance, club members also being the recipient of many compliments all of which were merited.

Mr. Russell C. Low and Ambler Welch acted as ushers.

"Diamond" Talking Pony at Scenic

"Diamond," the wonderful talking pony, a cute little beast with almost human intelligence, is one of the special attractions at the Scenic for next week, and every boy and girl in Quincy as well as the grown-up folks, should not miss the opportunity of witnessing his clever feats upon the stage, as he is only here for one week. "Diamond" can add and subtract numbers as good as any person, and is also quite a musician. He will be exhibited daily on the streets, commencing Monday next. Don't miss him, and don't deny the children of the chance to see him perform. Next Saturday he will hold a reception for the children after the Matinee.

There will be new subjects in moving pictures, and illustrated songs will be sung by a well-known Quincy young who never lady fails to make good. The other acts on the big vaudeville bill include Laura Ellis, a dainty, fascinating soubrette, who sings songs that always are popular and up-to-date; R. Ben Johnson, polite entertainer; and Jim Bingham, the popular ventriloquist. Commencing next Thursday night, and hereafter, the policy of the Scenic will be to change two of the vaudeville acts every week, thus practically giving the public two distinct shows weekly, as the moving pictures and songs are now changed every Thursday night.

—A foggy day in London means that the residents are compelled to run up a gas bill of from $50,000 to $75,000 more than usual.

QUINCY LOCALS

The last Friday in the month was rather cool but pleasant.

An illustrated base ball column to day on one of the inside pages.

Dancing in Quincy Music Hall tonight. The first 25 ladies receive handsome roses.

The Metropolitan Park Commission ask for bids for a house at Rufe's Hummock to be moved away.

A Boston paper estimates that the granite strike at Barre resulted in a loss of a million and one half dollars.

A column "About Women" will be found on the inside pages. Also a story and the "Scrap Book" feature.

Hen thieves were about West Quincy last night and a number of hens were stolen from Edward Trask and Rufus Pierce.

Dr. E. N. Hardy recently gave his lecture on "The Oldtime Meeting House" before the Lexington Historical Society.

The Royal Defenders of West Quincy want ball games with nine under 13 years of age. Address Joseph Connelly, 120 Willard street.

Representative Coombs voted yesterday is favor of increase of salary for members of the Legislature, while Representative Hultman voted no. The order was advanced 89 to 74.

Hon. E. C. Bumpus attended yesterday the funeral of James Jeffrey Roche, the well known editor, author and United States consul at St. Cecilia's church, Boston.

The club house of the Quincy Yacht club will be opened for the season next Thursday evening. There will be an entertainment, smoke talk and a chowder. A good time is assured.

Crane Memorial Hall.

The Sanitary Dust Removing Co. of 6 Beacon street, Boston, is at work this week cleaning the books of the Thomas Crane Public Library by the vacuum process, after which the collection of 26,000 volumes is to be moved into the new stack room now ready for occupancy.

Men from Davenport's are at work upon the leather on the walls of the old building coloring, toning, putting up mouldings, etc.

After the removal of the temporary stacks, the new cork carpet will be laid, tables connected up with electric lights, and many pieces of new furniture to make an up-to-date equipped library. All this through the continued generosity of Mr. Albert Crane.

BRAINTREE.

Friday evening, a social gathering met at the G. A. R. hall consisting of members of the G. A. R. and its allied organizations. These meetings are held monthly to promote a more intimate social relation.

The pupils in the graduating class of the High school, who received the highest honors, are working hard to present interesting essays at the graduafions exercises in June.

The members of the Daughters of Rebekah met Thursday evening. Several candidates were initiated and an interesting meeting is reported.

Mrs. George Proctor of Somerville was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Perley Proctor of Franklin street Thursday.

Rev. C. F. H. Crathern, Dr. Bates and Master Charles Crathern enjoyed a walk with the Appalachian club, Monday.

The many friends of Alfred Fisher of Pittsburg, Pa., formerly of this town, will be pleased to learn he is being very successful in his new position in Pittsburg. He superintends a large welding machine, which welds all kinds of metal. Mr. Fisher has been there since August, when the plant was installed under his supervision. He is one of the many bright young men that have gone from the old town of Braintree to make their mark in life. We wish them all success.

E. G. McGill and J. L. Delano attended the Grand lodge session held in Boston, Wednesday and Thursday, as representatives of Monatiquot lodge, K. of P., of this town.

Died at the Massachusetts Homeopathic hospital, April 22d, George Burleigh Smart, son of Walter C. and Fannie Smart of Washington street, Braintree, aged 12 years. Funeral services will be held from the chapel of the First Congregational church, Saturday, at 2.30 P. M.

The Old Colony Driving club held its meeting on Tuesday evening in Pythian hall. Speeches were made and refreshments served.

Rev. F. A. Woodworth, formerly of Braintree, at the conference held recently in Barre, Vt., was appointed pastor of the Methodist society at Ludlow, Vt.

The operetta "Little Red Riding Hood" given in the vestry of All Souls church last night, under the direction of the music committee, was very well attended and proved a financial success. It was the unanimous opinion that the operetta was decidedly interesting and very well rendered.

The Union Literary Circle will meet on Tuesday, April 28 at the residence of Mrs. H. K. Gutterson Commercial street Weymouth. Papers by Mrs. Eleanor Holmes, Miss Arvella Smith, Mrs. Helen Dexter, Mr. C. B. Lund and Rev. F. B. Cressey.

The public meetings on grade crossings are becoming interesting, and we hope the citizens will harmonize soon on a plan. Next Thursday evening in Cochato hall at 7.30 o'clock there will be a public meeting called by the town committee. The citizens of precinct two should appreciate the place of meeting and attend.

The next meeting of the D. A. R. will be held on Monday, the 227th of April with Mrs. Fred Cate Washington street. Mrs. F. O. Wellington, will give a report of the social side of the national congress and Mrs. C. T. Crane will give a report of the business accomplished by the congress at Washington, D. C.

Mr. A. W. Donovan, president of the E. T. Wright Co., shoe manufacturers, Rockland, Mass., and President of the Boston Boot & Shoe club addressed the members of the Men's club at the South M. E. church last Wednesday evening on "Village Improvement." It is only to be regretted that every citizen of Braintree could not have been present to listen to his remarks. While Mr. Donovan makes no claims to oratory he certainly is an engaging speaker. His topic was extremely interesting. It would be of great advantage to the town if he could deliver the same address before every organization of any kind in Braintree.

The mothers of the children of the Noah Torrey school are invited to a mothers' meeting to be held in room eight at 3.30, April 30. It is hoped that many will take the opportunity to visit in the afternoon and remain to the meeting. Supt. J. C. Anthony will be present.

Friday morning a meeting was held in the South station, Boston, on the abolition of grade crossings in Braintree but there was a small attendance on account of extending the time to prepare the town's plans. A petition to not have the Braintree depot moved north towards School street had been signed by a large number of citizens of precinct two and it was thought best by the town committee to call a public meeting before presenting the town's plan to the commissioners. After some argument as to time and place of the next hearing it was slated for Friday, May 15 at 10.15 A. M., at the Town hall, Braintree. The location of the Braintree depot seems to be the important item for the next meeting.

The union service of Braintree churches will be held at the Town hall on Sunday evening, April 26, at 7.30, in the interest of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League. Mr. H. A. Keck of Boston University will give the address. Music by Cuff's orchestra. All are invited.

On Monday the ladies of the Monday club met for their annual election of officers. An especial collection for the Chelsea sufferers amounted to $26.07. The club will increase this sum $4.00 aud forward $30.00 for the relief of the homeless ones.

Mr. W. F. Rogers and Mr. E. W. Gerry have been making extensive improvement on Prospect avenue from their property to Fountain street by taking out stumps and building a roadway. Now, these gentlemen hope the town will help them out in keeping it in order.

Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, D.D., of Topeko, Kansas, author of "In His Steps," will speak under the auspices of the Boston Central Woman's Christian Temperance Union in Tremont Temple, Boston, on Sunday, April 26, at 3 P. M. Subject—"What prohibition has done for Kansas." Public most cordially invited.

BRIDE MADE A WIDOW

Weak Heart Causes Sudden Death of Duke De Chaulnes

MARRIED NEW YORK WOMAN

Wedding Had Romantic and Sensational Setting--Couple Had Just Returned From Honeymoon Tour and Planned Coming to America Soon

Paris, April 25.—In the presence of his bride of less than three months, the Duke of Chaulnes and of Picquigny and Marquis of Dangeau died suddenly from heart failure in his apartments in the Hotel Langham. The attending physicians officially gave the cause of death as embolism of the heart.

The duke and duchess, who was Miss Theodora Shonts, daughter of Theodore Shonts of New York, were married in New York Feb. 16 of this year. The wedding was a brilliant social function and the end of the brief honeymoon was sudden and tragic. Since the arrival of the couple here a month ago they lived at the Hotel Langham, taking an occasional automobile ride in the afternoon and in the evening dining with intimate friends or going to the theatre.

For years the duke had suffered from a weak heart and for some time he had frequent fainting spells. Several times since his arrival here he consulted a doctor in an effort to obtain relief from his ailment.

The duke and the duchess, both in the best of spirits, had returned from a drive and dined in their private apartments. An hour later the duke complained of feeling ill and retired. About 11 o'clock he was suddenly stricken, gasped for breath and immediately lost consciousness. The duchess was terror-stricken and screamed for aid. A maid who responded to her cry was hurriedly dispatched for a doctor, while the hotel management summoned another physician. The two doctors arrived simultaneously at the bedside of the sufferer and administered the most powerful of heart stimulants, but their efforts were vain.

The duchess was holding the duke in her arms when he expired. She was overcome by grief and could not be persuaded to leave the bedside of her head husband. She kept vigil there throughout the night.

Theodore Shonts was notified by cable of his daughter's bereavement and a message was received from him stating that he would take the first steamer leaving New York and come to Paris.

The refusal of the hotel authorities to give particulars concerning the death of the duke led to reports that there was some mystery surrounding it, but these were dissipated by a police physician who made an examination of the body in the presence of other physicians and officially certified that death was due to a natural cause and that there was no necessity for an autopsy.

The body of the duke was placed in a double oak coffin and this morning it was transfered to a crypt in the Church of St. Philippe du Roule, where it will remain pending arrangements for the funeral, which it is expected will not take place until after the arrival of Shonts from New York.

In accordance with traditions of the French nobility, the funeral will be a pretentious function and will attract to Paris the representatives of the most ancient families in France, with which the duke's family is allied.

No wedding of an American heiress with a man of royal lineage aroused greater interest than the de Chaulnes-Shonts wedding. The courtship of the dashing young duke, the opposition of the head of the Shonts family and the magnificent wedding in New York, all cast a most romantic and sensational setting about this international marriage.

The couple left directly after the wedding for a tour of France and the most romantic nooks to be found in southern Italy and Switzerland. Everywhere the couple were magnificently entertained and a retinue of servants as great as that of a royal couple attended the French noble and his American heiress. The couple recently returned to Paris, where they were being lavishly entertained. They planned to return to America early in May.

Will "Weed Out" Emigrants

London, April 25.—Canada has put a stop to the indiscriminate emigration to the Dominion by charitable organizations of the surplus population of English cities. The Canadian immigration commissioner in London will give his sanction, which is required by the steamship companies, for the emigration of only those whose fitness as settlers he is assured of.

Owensboro, Ky., April 25.—The Owensboro Savings Bank and Trust company has made application for the appointment of a receiver to take charge of the bank and all of its property. The bank is capitalized at $200,000 and has deposits of over $1,000,000.

Afghans Supporting Mohmands

London, April 25.—The government has been informed of the gravity of the Mohmand movement in India, but every confidence is felt that it soon will be suppressed. The worst aspect of the situation is seen in the apparent complicity of the Ameer of Afghan.

The Standard Syndicate.

By Annie Hinrichsen.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"Mr. Harringford wears a broad brimmed felt hat and a white lawn tie and dresses almost as well as if he had a good tailor. He wears his hair a la Samson before he met Delilah. Without it he couldn't make a speech. In solemn pauses he sweeps it off his noble brow. In frenzied moments he clutches it wildly, and fiery eloquence results. The distinguished young southern congressman has struck a happy medium between a sophomore and a Fourth of July orator. He has the profundity, the all wise, know it all of the college student and the cheap wit, stale stories, I-work-to-please-the-public manner of the Independence day speaker."

Mr. Harringford read the article several times. He was accustomed to reading about himself, but in this sketch was a personal ridicule which at once amused and stung him. It had been cut from a provincial paper by a clipping bureau. It was not signed, but under the heading "News From Washington" were the words "Copyright by the Standard Syndicate."

That night Mr. Harringford visited a barber and was properly shorn. A facetious young man intimated that Samson had met Delilah, and a battle followed. The facetious young man was badly beaten and the hot tempered congressman somewhat disfigured.

The bureau sent another clipping from the Standard syndicate's news, Washington.

"Mr. Harringford refuses to discuss his black eye, but a story is being told concerning the cause of it. There are several aspirants for Mr. Harringford's seat in congress, and he is making strenuous efforts to strengthen himself with the leaders of his party in his district, many of whom are old Confederate soldiers. At the Army and Navy club a few days ago Mr. Harringford confided to an ex-Confederate colonel his intention of introducing a bill pensioning the soldiers who fought under Jefferson Davis. The ex-Confederate colonel resented Mr. Harringford's proposed legislation as an insult to the south and proceeded to avenge the honor of his lost cause. Mr. Harringford's friends regret that in his eagerness to make a grand stand play he has shown so little political shrewdness."

The congressman swore picturesquely and called his secretary.

"Smith," he thundered, "wire the editor of that paper for the address of the Standard Syndicate and the name of the person who writes the 'News From Washington!'"

The editor's reply came: "Standard Syndicate, Washington, D. C., H. W. Carleton, president. Don't know who writes 'News From Washington.'"

The city directory did not contain the name of the Standard syndicate nor of H. W. Carleton, and at the postoffice the clerks did not know the address. The mail for the syndicate was placed in a lock box. The clerks did not know who called for it.

One morning the congressman read in the "News From Washington:" "Mr. Harringford is a most chivalrous gentleman. It is said that he has promised his fair constituents to introduce and secure the passage of a bill providing for the free distribution of hairpins and violet perfume. Will such a measure tend to curtail our supply of free government seeds? If so, we should give the matter serious consideration. A new issue may confront us and result in the formation of two new parties—the hairpin-perfume party and the seed party. We call the attention of statesmen and thinkers to this proposed bill of Mr. Harringford's."

As the wrathful congressman finished the article his secretary entered the room.

"I've found the Standard syndicate," he announced triumphantly. "Tracked them down at last."

Mr. Harringford picked up a riding whip.

"Where are they?"

"In the Cairo."

"Who are they?"

"I don't know. A girl—a stunner—came out of the postoffice as I was passing and walked up the street ahead of me. She had a handful of letters, and one of them dropped, address up, on the sidewalk. I picked it up, and the address was 'The Standard Syndicate.'

"I followed her, and she went to the Cairo. The elevator boy told me her name was Carleton and gave me the number of her suit. She's probably the daughter or sister of H. W. Carleton. The elevator boy didn't know anything about him."

Mr. Harringford went to the Cairo. From the elevator he walked rapidly down the corridor to the door of the Carleton suit. He pressed the electric button and took a tighter grip on his riding whip.

The door opened, and a girl in street dress stood before him.

"Miss Carleton?"

"Yes."

"Is Mr. Carleton in?"

She looked puzzled.

"Mr. Carleton?" she asked.

"Mr. H. W. Carleton, president of the Standard syndicate."

"No; he's not in."

"Where is he?"

"I don't know."

"Is he out of the city?"

"Yes."

"Who manages the Standard syndicate in his absence?"

She shook her head.

"Can you tell me anything about the company?"

"There is nothing to tell."

"Who is their Washington correspondent?"

She looked at the whip in his hand and laughed.

"If you will come when Mr. Carleton is in," she said, "he will tell you all you wish to know."

The friendliness in her voice dispelled his irritation.

"When will he be here?" he asked.

She hesitated a moment. "His habits are irregular. He may be here any time. He is never gone long."

"I wish very much indeed to see him." He was thinking he had never seen a more charming face. "I shall call again in a few days."

A week later Mr. Harringford called—without his whip—to see Mr. Carleton. The president was not in. Miss Carleton did not know when he would be, and Mr. Harringford, although his call was a long one, made few inquiries about the syndicate.

When next he called Mr. Carleton had left the city the day before. The next time he was expected home in a day or two. Then Mr. Harringford forgot to ask for him.

One afternoon Mr. Harringford rang several times at Miss Carleton's suit. There was no answer, and he opened the door and went in. He sat down and waited a few minutes. Then he walked restlessly about the room, looking at pictures and bric-a-brac.

In his wanderings he came to a table. On it were several long, bulky envelopes and a mimeograph. Each envelope bore in Miss Carleton's writing the address of a newspaper.

Beside the mimeograph lay the article from which the copies had been made. He read the heading: "News From Washington. Copyright by the Standard Syndicate."

There was a soft rustle behind him, but he did not turn.

"Mr. Harringford!" She walked around the table and stood opposite him. "Mr. Harringford!" Her voice trembled.

"You wrote this?" he asked coldly.

She nodded.

"You are the Washington correspondent of the Standard syndicate?"

"Yes."

"Are you H. W. Carleton?"

"Yes, and—and I'm worse than that. I'm the whole Standard syndicate."

The congressman stared at her.

"The whole Standard syndicate?" he repeated.

"The whole thing," she said miserably. "I'm the Washington correspondent, the president— I'm—I'm even the printers."

A little of the hardness left his face.

"Why did you not tell me?" he asked.

"Oh, I couldn't. At first it was great fun to deceive you and to keep you hunting H. W. Carleton. And when I knew you better I couldn't tell you I was the person who had written those contemptible things about you."

"How have you done this—a girl like you?"

"I came here as correspondent for a western paper, but the pay was small. I wrote to a number of provincial papers and asked them if they could use a series of weekly letters from Washington. I signed myself 'The Standard Syndicate, H. W. Carleton, President.' Several papers subscribed for the letters. Every week I wrote the 'News From Washington,' made the copies on the mimeograph and sent them to my papers. All the correspondents were puffing you, and I thought you were becoming a little spectacular and very conceited. After I knew you I was sorry and bitterly ashamed. I wanted to ask your forgiveness, but I was afraid you wouldn't"—

"Do you think I care for what you wrote about me?" he asked indignantly. "Is my vanity as great as that?"

"But I care—dreadfully. I have not written any more nasty things about you. I've praised you as much as the others have. But I couldn't tell you." Her voice broke, and her eyes were full of tears. "Don't be angry with me. Can't you forgive me?"

"I can—on conditions."

"What are they?"

"The Standard syndicate goes out of business and H. W. Carleton devotes her time to criticising me—but not on paper."

"Miss Carleton gathered up her envelopes and dropped them into the open fire and laid the mimeograph on them. Then she turned to Harringford and held out her hands.

"The Standard syndicate has gone out of business," she said.

The Earliest Hospitals.

Since the earliest times there have been some sort of places which were designed for hospital work, although at first they were little more than shelters or cheaply built almshouses. In the Roman camps there was a medical staff to look after the wounded.

Among the earliest hospitals on record is that said to have been founded by Valens in Caesarea 370-80 A. D. and the one built in Rome by Fabiola, a Roman lady, although, like most others of that and even later times, both institutions probably were almshouses as well.

The origin of our present hospitals is traced to the monastic arrangements for the care of the sick and indigent. Every monastery once housed the sick and convalescent.

Almost the earliest record of the building of a hospital in England is in the life of Lanfranc, archbishop of Canterbury, who in 1080 founded two, one for leprosy and one for ordinary diseases. In the eighteenth century London, between 1719 and 1747, established five public and five special hospitals. In Ireland, between 1726 and 1774, there were five public and three special ones established in Dublin, one in Cork, one in Limerick, and in 1797 one in Belfast.—Washington Post.

Italian Car, Driven by an American, Wins Briarcliff Race

OVER A DIFFICULT COURSE

Contest Declared Ended When Five Had Crossed the Line--Mishaps of Minor Nature--Foreign Cars Win Over American Production

Briarcliff, N. Y., April 25.—A streak of red, leaving behind a comet-like tail of blue smoke, shot past serried lines of cheering thousands and over the finish line at Briarcliff Manor and returned Frank L. Strang, an American, driving a 50-horse power Italian car, the winner of the Briarcliff trophy automobile race. The swift machine had covered the 259 miles of the serpentine course among the sloping hills in 5 hours, 14 minutes and 13 1-5 seconds, and it was in front of its competitors the entire contest.

The vapor from Strang's car had scarcely risen from the racing lane when Cedrino, also driving an Italian car, whizzed by the grand stand, taking second honors in the contest and covering the circuit in 5 hours, 21 minutes and 5 2-5 seconds. Cedrino made a mighty spurt at the last of the race and established a new record for the course—37 minutes 16 seconds for 32.46 miles.

Guy Vaughan, in a 30-horse power American machine, pressing Cedrino closely in the last lap, was third. Herbert Lyttle, in a 50-horse power American car, was fourth, and Paul Sartori, driving a 40-horse power Italian car, was fifth. The time of Vaughan was 5 hours, 28 minutes and 29 2-5 seconds, and that of Lyttle 5 hours, 29 minutes and 15 2-5 seconds. Sartori's time was 5 hours, 53 minutes and 43 3-5 seconds.

The judges declared the race ended when Sartori crossed the finish line. Three other autos were on the course, but the race was called to prevent accidents to the crowd, which numbered about 100,000 persons.

There were tremendous bursts of speed when the contestants entered upon the eighth and last lap. The starter flourished a green flag as the signal for the final circuit as Strang approached the judges' stand. Opening his lever to the highest speed clutch, Strang sent his red car over the course for the last time like a meteor and won by a comfortable margin.

Almost abreast as they swept by the judges' stand Cedrino and Vaughan began a spirited fight for second honors, and it was not until near the finish line that Cedrino darted to the fore and took the prize for the place.

There were several mishaps during the contest which compelled the withdrawal of several racers, but no one was injured.

It is estimated that 500,000 persons were scattered over the course. Early in the game a Simplex ran into a post, Watson driving, but no one was hurt. Later, Murphy, in a Maja, had a mishap. One of the front wheels of his car collapsed and he and his mechanician were thrown out. Neither was seriously hurt.

Barney Oldfield had a narrow escape, almost crashing into a special train half a mile from Kitchewan while going forty miles an hour.

Mulford, who drove the Lozier, had his leg hurt at Mt. Kisco, putting him out of the race. The Allan-Kingston car, driven by De Palma, was ditched, as was also the Thomas.

Lilley Not a Committee

Washington, April 25.—The special house committee investigating the Electric Boat company devoted its session yesterday to endeavoring to ascertain from Representative Lilley the grounds on which he based his charges against the company. Asked if he had tried to find out the facts he replied: "I did not constitute myself an investigating committee to go round and find out what the facts were. I introduced my resolution in order that these facts might be brought out."

Roy's Examination Begun

Paris, April 25.—For five hours yesterday Paul E. Roy, who is accused by his wife, known as Glacia Calla, of having murdered her brother, George A. Carkins, at Newington, N. H., last January, was under examination. Roy described at great length how his acquaintance with Miss Calla grew out of their mutual love for horses, of his falling in love with her, his marriage in Boston, and was ready to commence the story of the tragedy when the hearing was adjourned.

Little Improvement In Business

New York, April 25.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that lightweight wearing apparel is in better demand in response to more seasonable weather, but retail trade as a whole shows little alteration and the crops have not made sufficient progress to encourage normal preparation for future business in wholesale and jobbing departments.

Schooner Pulled Off Shoals

Chatham, Mass., April 25.—Schooner Abbie and Eva Hooper, which went aground on Handkerchief shoals, was floated last night by a tug after about two-thirds of her cargo of lumber had been jettisoned. The schooner was leaking slightly and was taken to Vineyard Haven in tow.

The Scrap Book

It Might Be Arranged.

"What!" said the mistress of the house. "You and John both want a day off at the same time! I can't spare you that way. You can go tomorrow, and John can take the next day."

"Well, you see, ma'am, we was arrangin' to get married, and I'm afraid it can't be done that way. But I'll inquire. Thank ye."

THE WAY TO GLORY.

Yea, let all good things await
Him who cares not to be great
But as he saves or serves the state.
Not once or twice in our rough island story
The path of duty was the way to glory.
He that walks it, only thirsting
For the right, and learns to deaden
Love of self, before his journey closes
He shall find the stubborn thistle bursting
Into glossy purples which outredden
All voluptuous garden roses.
Not once or twice in our fair island story
The path of duty was the way to glory.
He that, ever following her commands,
On, with toil of heart and knees and hands,
Through the long gorge to the far light, has won
His path upward and prevailed
Shall find the toppling crags of duty scaled
Are close upon the shining table lands
To which our God himself is moon and sun.

—Tennyson.

A Fair Retort.

A gentleman high school teacher was severely reprimanding one of his pupils for not having his algebra lessons better and stated that before George Washington was his age he was competent and able to take a compass and do surveying.

The pupil replied, "Yes, and before he was your age he was president of the United States."—Judge's Library.

All In the Family.

Dr. James B. Angell, the president of the University of Michigan, was invited to dinner at the Chinese legation in Washington some years ago.

The doctor sat at the right hand of the minister. The floor of the dining room was waxed and slippery and there were no rugs. He endeavored to move back his chair. It slipped and the dignified educator slid under the table.

He arose much confused, but not a Chinese said a word or gave any sign of having seen the accident. Ten minutes later his Chinese host tried to move back his chair, and he, too, slid under the table. He got up and resumed his seat, and none of the Chinese made a sign.

Then at regular intervals every Chinaman around the table slid out of his chair and under the table. The doctor thought they were making game of him and protested.

"My dear sir," said the host, "we are paying you the highest compliment we can. In order that you may not feel embarrassed over the accident we have each met with the same mishap, so we are all brothers together."

He Remembered.

Several young members of a Philadelphia family that spent the summer in the White mountains were exchanging reminiscences of their trip, when one of the girls exclaimed:

"Oh, Tom, do you remember that gorge in Jefferson?"

"Do I remember?" repeated Tom. "Sure! You mean the day we got there. It was the swellest dinner I ever had in my life. I was so hungry!"—Lippincott's.

Not All the Time, but—

A man saw a waiter in a restaurant spill a tureen of tomato soup over a young lady's white gown.

The young lady, instead of flying into a passion, smiled. She said it didn't matter. She continued to eat and to talk as though nothing had happened.

This so impressed the man that he got an introduction to the young lady, proposed to her at the end of a month or so and was accepted.

Some time after the marriage he spoke of the tomato soup accident.

"I shall never forget it," said the bride.

"Your conduct," said the man, "was admirable."

"I remember," she said, "that I did behave very well at that time, but I wish you could have seen the marks of my teeth on the bedpost that night!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Good Intentions.

John Rogers was station master at Coupar-Angus, on the Caledonian railway. He was a pious man. John was a member of the local Burns society and attended the annual dinner. He got home among the "wee sma' 'oors," undressed himself with difficulty and got down on his knees beside the bed, incoherently muttering.

"What's the maiter, John?" asked his better half. "Are ye no feelin' weel?"

"A'm feelin' a' richt, but A' canna mind a damned wird o' ma prayers."

Required No Eulogy.

Being twitted by comrades for his failure to win a laudatory sendoff in his retirement papers, General Miles tells the following story:

In the early days of the west an itinerant preacher, stopping for refreshment one day at the pioneer home of one of his parishioners, was served, among other things, with apple pie. It was not a good pie. The crust was heavy and sour, but the encomiums which that clergyman heaped upon it were great. The good wife knew that she had had bad luck with the baking, and as she was in reality an excellent cook she determined that the next time that preacher came her way he should have a pie that was faultless.

He told her when he was to return, and on that day she set before him an apple pie that was the real thing. He ate it; but, to her astonishment, vouchsafed not a word of commendation. This was more than the housewife would stand.

"Brother," she exclaimed, "when you were here last you ate an apple pie that wasn't more than half baked, and yet you praised it to the skies. Now you have eaten a pie that nobody needs to be ashamed of, but you haven't a word to say in its favor. I can't understand it."

"My good sister," replied the preacher, "that pie you served me a few days ago was sadly in need of praise, and I did my full duty in that direction, but this fine pie, bless your heart, does not require any eulogy."

What Caused the Tears.

"Why are you crying, darling?"

"Because my sister has been presented by her husband with a set of diamonds that cost $1,500."

"Why should that make you weep?"

"Because you will now have to spend such a lot of money when you can so ill afford it."

Courtship In the Cumberlands.

As I sat on the doorstep smoking with a Cumberland mountaineer one evening, writes a traveler, a young man about two and twenty came out of the woods and slowly approached us. He was barefooted and wore only shirt and trousers. The mountaineer was telling me about how he was kicked by a mule, but he broke off to salute:

"Howdy, Abe! What yo' all want around yere?"

"Dum got sunthin to say," replied the young man as he almost turned his back on us.

"Then shoot 'er off."

"Him's a stranger," said Abe as he jerked his head toward me.

"That don't count. Wanter borry the mewl?"

"Noap."

"Wanter borry the gun?"

"Noap."

"Say, Abe, mebbe yo'un ar' hard up and want the loan of a dollar or some bacon or meal?"

"Noap."

"Then what on airth do yo' want?"

"Wanter marry Linda."

"Wanter marry Linda, eh? Hev yo' coted her?"

"Yep."

"Hev yo' axed her?"

"Yep."

"Then why in thunder don't yo' marry her? And, stranger, that mewl he jess whirled on me and kicked with both feet and lifted me clean over the brush fence afore I knowed what was up!"

How to Live Long.

Worry less, work more; ride less, walk more; drink less, breathe more; eat less, chew more; preach less, practice more.

He Knew.

"I want some collars for my husband," said a lady in a department store, "but I am afraid I have forgotten the size."

"Thirteen and a half, ma'am?" suggested the clerk.

"That's it! How on earth did you know?"

"Gentlemen who let their wives buy their collars for 'em are almost always about that size, ma'am."—Everybody's.

The Making of a Journalist.

When Joseph B. McCullagh was editor of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat he was annoyed by a member of the staff who was continually late. But the young man always had an excuse—he overslept, they failed to call him, the cars were blocked, etc.

Finally McCullagh issued an order that no more excuses would be accepted and that unless the young man came in on time he was to be discharged.

On the very next day the loiterer was tardy again by forty-five minutes. He was sent to Mr. McCullagh.

"Well," said McCullagh, "you know what's going to happen to you."

"I suppose so, but I assure you it wasn't my fault."

"You've put in about every possible excuse, but before I fire you I would like to know, just for curiosity, what your excuse is."

"It was this way: I got up early, determined to get to the office in time. I went into a negro barber shop to be shaved. When the barber was half through a band came along, and he couldn't resist the impulse to follow it. It was almost an hour before he came back, and I had to wait for him."

"Young man," said McCullagh, chuckling, "I'll give you another chance. I want you to write fiction for the Sunday paper."

And Everybody Laughed.

The wife of an army officer who has been stationed in Cuba recently returned to Washington and was at luncheon at the White House. She was enthusiastic about the Pearl of the Antilles and told many picturesque stories of her sojourn there in which the president was deeply interested. "Oh, Mr. President, were you ever in Cuba? You certainly should go there!" she exclaimed.

And she wondered why everybody laughed.

Very Much In View.

"You were at Bar Harbor, I believe, in the summer?" asked the society woman of the actress.

"Yes," said the actress.

"And did you see much of my daughter there?"

"Rather! She wore a bathing suit in the morning, riding bloomers in the afternoon and low neck at night."

Bilious Troubles

Bile causes no end of trouble. Sick headaches, bilious attacks, jaundice, constipation and many distressing ailments arise from an excess of bile, or from obstruction of the bile duct. Inactivity, sedentary occupations and indiscretion in feeding and drinking are bile blunders that need to be guarded against. When the liver is disordered the best bile correctives are because they relieve the overworked liver, and gently stimulate it when it is sluggish. These pills control the flow of bile, restore its right consistency, and work for the immediate and lasting benefit of the stomach, bowels and blood. Whenever a furred tongue, dull, yellowish eyes, nausea, or headache indicate bilious conditions, use Beecham's Pills at once, to correct the bile and

BEECHAM'S PILLS

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The next meeting of the Whatsoever circle, King's Daughters, will be held April 27 at 7.45 with Miss Edith Perry Marion street.

Illustrated house plans were printed in the Daily Ledger yesterday, and other plans will appear from time to time, one day a week.

The Order of Eastern Star announce a two days fair for next week Monday and Tuesday afternoon and evenings. Whist, dancing and other attractions.

A memorial service in honor of the late Horace M. Willard will be held at his home Quincy Mansion school, on Tuesday, April 28th at 3 o'clock. All personal friends of Dr. Willard are invited.

The last of the half past four vesper services on Sundays at the All Souls' church, Braintree, will be held tomorrow. An especially fine musical program of organ, violin, cello and vocal selections has been arranged by Mrs. John F. Hunt, organist.

The W. C. T. U. having made a change in date of their meeting would like to impress the members with an urgent request to be present at Protection hall, Johnson building, at 2.15 Thursday, April 30. A full attendance is desired. The L. T. L. will meet on the same date at 4 P. M.

The faculty of the Quincy Mansion school has issued invitations to a service in memory of its beloved founder and principal, the late Horace M. Willard, on Tuesday the twenty-eighth at three o'clock. Dr. Willard's friends were many and there will be a large gathering at the service to honor his memory.

George W. Penniman, a native of Quincy and brother of Mrs. Arthur T. Merritt, was elected Grand Chancellor at the 29th annual convention of the grand lodge of Knights of Pythias held in Boston on Wednesday. More than 400 members were present. An appropriation of $11,000 was made to cover the running expenses of the grand lodge during the coming year.

Those who attended the Arts and Crafts meeting at the club house this week and saw the beautiful rugs done at Morgan Memorial, Boston, will be interested in the exhibition next Wednesday, in First Church chapel, when there will be displayed rugs which are sanitary, useful, beautiful and inexpensive. The chapel will be open from ten until five and tea will be served from three until five.

Brief Filed in The Assessor's Case

Asa P. French and George W. Abele, the counsel for Charles H. Johnson, have submitted to the Supreme Judicial court their brief in the case against William T. Shea, Mayor, et al. In summary the brief reads:

"Briefly stated, then, the petitioner's contentions are these: that he was appointed for a definite term created by a statute which contains no provision for his removal; that this statute is an independent act, not in its title nor in its text stated to be an amendment to any previous act establishing assessors for the city of Quincy,—in this case, the city charter; that, so far as it affects the charter, the force of the act under which he was appointed is to repeal, and take from that instrument, the whole subject-matter of assessors, and regulate it in accordance with a new and beneficent policy of the Commonwealth then in process of development, as evidenced by various special acts culminating in a general law to the same effect, and with the same significant omission of any power of removal; and that to hold differently will be at variance with the doctrine laid down in Attorney-General v. Stratton, quoted and cited supra, and will except the city of Quincy from the operation of salutary provisions of law regarding assessors, which are now generally applicable to these important public officers elsewhere throughout the Commonwealth."

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

Miss Walsh, telephone operator at the shipyard starts on her vacation Monday, which will be spent at Norfolk, Va. Guy Massey will act as telephone operator during the absence of Miss Walsh.

Eighteen bucket wheel forgings are being made and rough machined at the shipyard for the General Electric Company.

Schooner Henry L. Peckham has finished discharging her coal cargo and sailed.

Barge Harrisburg is now discharging hard coal at the company's coal wharf.

Six ingot jackets are being made in the sheet metal department.

Sir William Henry White, K. C. B., recognized the world over as one of the greatest living authorities on modern battleship construction and design, made a strong defence of the American navy against the attack of Henry Reuterdanl and others in an interview with a Herald reporter at Hotel Touraine, Boston. He paid a high tribute to American naval architects and American shipyards, and declared that these, aided by the accumulated experience of older nations and backed by American ingenuity, had produced a fleet of fighting ships that, next to the British fleet, was the greatest in the world.

SUNDAY: 12 TO 1—SHARP

Bethany Church, City Square

If YOU are a young man, and not associated with any other Quincy church, YOU are most cordially invited to come to our meeting.

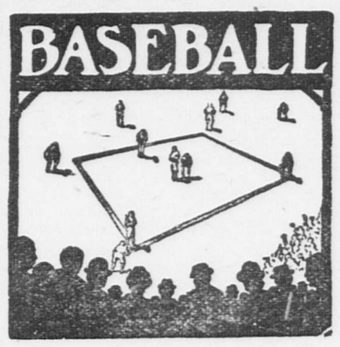
A warm welcome—Hearty singing—A helpful hour together.

MOUNTAIN PARTY.

On Monday, the holiday, a company of ten pedestrians enjoyed the climb up Mount Blue of the Blue Hill reservation. Under leadership of Mr. Charles Taylor of Weymouth Heights, an Appalachian, the party climed upon the eastern side and viewed the memorial bridge to Charles Elliot, thence up to the summit. Here lunch was eaten under the lee of the rocks while the light snow came gently down. Many other groups were observed at the top and on the slop of the hill.

Mr. Clayton of the Blue Hill station and Mr. Ferguson of the weather bureau and Mr. Wells also made the party welcome. When the scientific instruments had been inspected and the photographic plates wherein the atmosphere is taken showing its density or rarified state. The north star being the objective point taken each night.

Mr. Ferguson was very kind, having recognized in Mr. Francis Loud of M. I. T., a son of Professor Loud of Colorado Springs and gladly acknowledging Prof. Loud's good work as a scientific observer of the heavens, he left nothing undone to show his hospitality. The party left by the Canton avenue approach, feeling well repaid for their trip.



The Quincy High school base ball team went to Hyde Park yesterday and had the game well in hand at the end of the third innings with the score: Quincy, 8; Hyde Park 3; but the home team gained steadily and won 11 to 10. The score by innings:

Fair and Honest.

Barre, Vt., April 16, 1908.

Editor of the Daily Ledger: Will you be kind enough to give this short letter as much prominence through the columns of your paper as the article was given under the head of Manufacturers' dissatisfied.

Relative to this matter my only object is to offset what seems to be a reflection upon the action or attitude of one of Barre's most respected citizens namely William S. Alexander.

Without entering into the points under consideration by and between the Quincy Manufacturers and the Stone Cutters' Union and which were left to arbitration, will say that from personal knowledge and experience I find and take much pleasure in this word of defense of Mr. Alexander in saying that in whatever position he is placed in we have always found him to be fair, honest and impartial to the letter, with always a broad view of the matter in hand and a verdict, according to his best judgment.

His popularity in Barre is evidence of general satisfaction of his work here as one of the leading and most prominent business men for several years past. I feel you will heartily join with me in giving a man so worthy, his just due. That your readers may not be misled by the article as given in the Patriot which came to my notice.

Thanking you for this favor I remain,

Yours Very Truly,

W. W. Parry.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and trying the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

What will be looked upon by most of the patrons of Keith's theatre as the biggest event of a most eventful season is due to occur next week. It is nothing less than the commencement of a brief engagement by the greatest drawing card Boston vaudeville has ever known—Harry Houdini. He has invented several new stunts, the most startling of which consists of being confined in a mammoth can filled with water, necessitating his being submerged before the cover can be locked on. It is the most marvellous feat he has ever performed. The bill surrounding Houdini will be a most pleasing affair. It will include the La Scala Sextette, an organization of Italian operatic singers that has never been excelled in vaudeville.

BOSTON THEATRE.

At the Boston theatre next week the long promised production of "Shenandoah" for which preparations have been in progress for some months will be made. It is Manager Morison's purpose to make this presentation of the drama the most elaborate ever seen in this city, and stage director Snader has planned some novel realistic effects which will add greatly without doubt to the success of this production. The cast will introduce the entire strength of the company with many extra people including a large number of veterans who saw service in the late civil war. It is expected that Monday evening's performance will call out a large delegation of veterans as it is to be known as "Grand Army" night.

THE ORPHEUM.

For the closing bill at the Orpheum the management will make that of the week of April 27 one in which every number will be of distinctive merit. The big comedy feature will be Al Leach, the famous character comedian and his Three Rosebuds, presenting their most amusing and humorous sketch entitled "Examination Day" in which Mr. Leach takes the part of a school teacher, and three exceedingly good comedians are the scholars. This is the act in which Mr. Leach does his famous stair climing specialty, and there is nothing funnier in vaudeville today. Another important act is the Four Fords, unqestionably the best dancers on the American stage—two brothers and two sisters who do all kinds of steps and work in three or four scenes all strikingly beautiful and original in conception.

HOLLIS ST. THEATRE.

Robert Edeson, who has come to be regarded as a very great Boston favorite, will play his annual engagement in that city at the Hollis commencing next Monday evening, April 27. He will be seen this year in "Classmates" a play of West Point life by William C. deMille and Margaret Turnbull. Mr. deMille, it will be recalled wrote "Strongheart" in which Mr. Edeson scored such an unqualified success last season. "Classmates" was produced at the Hudson theatre, New York, last fall and enjoyed a highly prosperous engagement there of over four months. The piece is regarded as Mr. Edeson's greatest triumph. It gives him an opportunity to portray one of those fascinating military characters in which he finds such a prolific field for his fine ability. One scene of the play disclosing a South American jungle presents a great dramatic situation and is pictorially a thing of great beauty. In fact Henry B. Harris, under whose management Mr. Edeson is appearing, has staged the entire production in lavish fashion and has surrounded Mr. Edeson with a supporting company of unusual excellence. Mr. Edeson' engagement will be for two weeks only and he will play the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees. Considering his widespread popularity and the excellence of his present play he is assured a most cordial reception when he comes to the Hollis.

Superior Court.

Several Quincy cases have been before the Norfolk Superior criminal court the past week, and are reported by the Dedham Transcript as follows:

Giovanni Fraschetti, for a felonious assault on Maria De Mambro at Quincy, Jan. 21, 1908, was given two years in the house of correction.

Charles J. Stewart, who had previously pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering the store of Christina Booth at Quincy, Feb. 9, 1908, was allowed to go on probation.

James T. Heapy, for breaking and entering the shed of Wm. E. Badger at Quincy, Dec. 29, 1907, was given 10 months in the house of correction.

Morris R. Higgins, for an assault with a dangerous weapon, a revolver, on Charlotte Higgins, his wife, at Quincy, March 29, 1908, was sent to the house of correction for 15 months.

In the cases of Louis Kaughman and Dora Klagman, charged with a statutory offense at Quincy, Dec. 31, 1907, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

Albert Pardine of Brockton was found not guilty of a statutory offense at Quincy, Nov. 28, 1907.

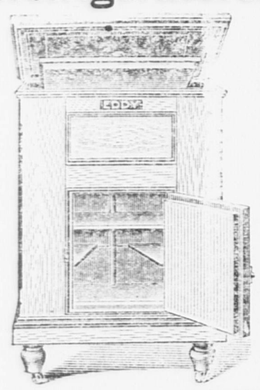
Eddy Refrigerators.



Ten thousand Eddy Refrigerators went up in smoke scarcely two months ago. That's going some. It also means ten thousand disappointed families for 1908 and a scarcity of Eddy agents. We are pleased to state however that we had our entire season's supply of Eddy Refrigerators, bought and safely stored in our own storehouse before this fire occurred.

We have for immediate delivery all sizes of the famous Eddy Refrigerators and Ice Chests which we sell as usual at factory prices. Our refrigerator stock also contains milk white tile lined refrigerators.

If you desire a strictly sanitary ice box that saves ice, is always sweet and clean, we have much that will interest you. A catalogue and price list for the asking. Cash or Easy payments.

Prize Winners At May Festival

Music hall was packed with Children Saturday afternoon at the annual May festival under the auspices of the Educational Committee of the Quincy Women's club. The children were allowed to make all the noise they desired, and they made the most of it.

A hurdy gurdy was present and when other parts of the entertainment were not in progress, furnished music. The entertainment was of a pleasing character, the dancing of Miss Barker and of the young ladies from Miss Corlew's class being greatly appreciated.

These young ladies were Miss Barbara Johnson, Miss Priscilla White, Miss Rebecca Bird, Miss Eleanor Jones, Miss Murial Robertson, Miss Anna Weston, Miss Mellicent Chapman, Miss Dorothy Sprague, Miss Muriel Warner and Miss Elsie Chapman.

The prizes for the sloyd work were awarded as follows:

First prizes of $2 each,—Thomas Barstow, glove box; Carl Bhelstedt, match desk.

Second prizes of $1.50 each,—Ralph Alden, sand mill; Harry Nelson, Acanthus; Harold Wheeler, bird house; Loyal Safford, towel roller.

Third prizes of 75 cents each,—Arthur Swanson, book case; Willett Safford, wall brackett; Raymond Frisk, writing tablet; Clarence O'Neill, mode of fisherman; William Jackson, ox bow; Albert Parker, stool.

Fourth prizes of 50 cents each,—George Rand, chair; Clarence J. Cassidy, gun; Gustaf Von Cullen, double runner; William Cranshaw, paddle.

The sewing prizes were awarded as follows:

First prizes of $1.50 each,—Irene Howes, Agnes Reardon.

Second prizes of $1.00 each,—Bertha Shultz, Amy Torrey, Adeline McDowell, Catherine White.

Third prizes of 50 cents each,—Lillie Ekstrand, Alice Gustafson, Julia Gustafson, Agnes Neeman, Helen Bishop, Annie McDowell.

Fourth prizes of 25 cents each,—Ethel DeYoung, Mary Myatt, Mary Goodhue, Ruth Leach.

The following assisted at the tables in addition to those published on Saturday:

Sloyd,—Mrs. Percy Holman.
Water,—Gordon Jameson.
Entertainment,—Miss Belle Wainwright.

Reception and Dance.

One of the most enjoyable evenings of the season was spent in Hibernian hall, on Saturday, when about three hundred friends of Joe Currie made him the recipient of a handsome gold signet ring, which was presented by Miss Mary E. Costere. The evening was spent in dancing and games, with plenty of good music, both vocal and instrumental. Solos were rendered by Messrs. J. Smallet, G. McKeen, P. Sullivan and B. Cavin. Dancing was enjoyed by all present, with Messrs. P. Sullivan, R. Booth, H. MacIntosh, and Misses. Mary Ward and Minnie Frazier at the piano. The floor was in charge of Mr. A. Taylor, assisted by Misses Ward and Mary Costa.

The guests of honor were Mr. Currie's mother, Mrs. M. J. Currie, Miss Agnes Colligan and Miss May Costello. There were friends present from South Boston, Brighton, Neponset, Braintree, Weymouth and Atlantic.

Beyond Scope Of Petition

Word comes from the State House that when the bill amending the so-called Pony Express act comes up today that it will be thrown out on account of a technicality.

The bill reported provides that an expressman refused a permit to transport liquor may appeal to the Railroad Commissioners.

Representative Nash claimed the bill was beyond the scope of the petition, as Miss Brown did not ask for the changes which were made, but for perfecting changes along temperance lines.

Speaker Cole will rule the point well taken, thus throwing out the bill as reported.

Runaway Boy From Brockton

A 9-year-old boy, who gave his name as Malcolm Taber, was brought to the police station Saturday night by some boys who found him wandering about the streets. The boy told the police his father was dead and that he came from some place in New Jersey. He said his mother was going to work in a shoe factory at Jamaica Plain.

The boy was well dressed. He wore a dark blue coat, corduroy trousers and black cap. He was taken to the Quincy Home for the night.

Sunday word was received from Brockton that the boy belonged there, and that his brother was coming after him. When the boy was told this he seemed uneasy and at the first opportunity he ran away from the home.

Sunday night Officer Bowton found the boy and sent him to the police station where he was taken care of until his brother arrived.

Silver Wedding At Wollaston

Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Collett of Wayland street, Wollaston, observed their silver wedding anniversary on Saturday evening, and their daughter and her husband, Mr and Mrs. William Ferguson celebrated their third anniversary.

Guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Durham of Somerville, who acted as groomsman and bridesmaid to Mr. and Mrs. Collett when they were married.

In the large gathering of friends who joined with Mr. and Mrs. Collett in the celebration were members of Oasis lodge, I. O. O. F., and Onward lodge of Odd Ladies of Somerville; John Hancock lodge I. O. O. F., of Wollaston; Reliance Rebekah lodge, I. O. O. F., of Neponset and Dorothy Q. lodge of Odd Ladies of Wollaston. In addition to these there were friends present from Carver, Bridgewater, Plymouth, South Braintree, Melrose, Action, Malden, Charlestown, Revere, Boston and Somerville.

One room of the house was set aside for the display of presents, which were handsome creations of the silversmith's art. Each of the Odd Fellows' organizations represented sent beautiful remembrances and other friends brought many testimonials. One of the presents received was a gift of 25 new half-dollars, and Dorothy Q. lodge of Odd Ladies of Wollaston sent a silver berry spoon and bread plate. The evening was spent in a most enjoyable manner with old friends, and each guest on leaving left heartfelt wishes that the silver years would turn to gold and that all would be present at the 50th anniversary. A wedding supper was served during the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Collett being attended by their groomsman and bridesmaid as they were 25 years ago.

Mr. Collett was born in Boston, but lived most of his life in Somerville. His wife was Miss Lydia W. Gammons, and was born in Tremont, but moved to Somerville when a child. They were married April 25, 1883, by Rev. George Whittaker of the Union-square M. E. church of Somerville. Five children were born to them, and of these four are living. They are Mrs. Dora A. Ferguson, Miss June S., Miss Beulah W. and Harry J. Collett.

A granddaughter, little Florence A. Ferguson of two years was present.

Mr. and Mrs. Collett were very prominent in Odd Fellows' circles in Somerville, and have been equally so in Wollaston since they came to live here seven years ago. Mr. Collett is a machinist, employed at the Tubular Rivet works.

Wholesale Exchange.

A large congregation greeted Rev. Thomas Simms of the First church of Braintree, his organist and choir, at Bethany church Sunday morning, when there was a novel and wholesale exchange of pastors, choirs and organists. The sermon by the visiting pastor was an Easter theme from St. Paul 3:1. The double quartette sang its Easter music including three cantatas. Dr. W. P. Pratt the organist also rendered the Festival March and the Grand Chorus. It was an interesting service. In the evening Bethany choir repeated its Easter music.

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

New moon April 30.

Friday will be May day.

It was a summer Sunday.

Sunrise at 4.45; sunset at 6.39.

No City Council meeting this week.

W. W. Mitchell goes to New York today on a few days' business trip.

The City Council Committee on Licenses will meet Tuesday evening.

The annual two days fair of the Eastern Star opens tonight in Electa hall.

Memorial day four weeks from Saturday.

Although two cars were run on most of the trips to Houghs Neck on Sunday, every car went crowded and more were needed.

The program planned by the Quincy Historical Society for tomorrow evening should be a very enjoyable one, as the papers will be short and of local interest—"Living pictures of Quincy's famous men and women."

Both sides of the railroad merger question will be presented tomorrow evening at the Congregational Club of Wollaston by men who have made the question a study. All business men interested are invited to the Congregational church at 7.45.

A Quincy dog strayed all the way to Canton last week and was brought back only to be killed, as he was suffering with the dread disease hydrophobia. This shows the necessity for keeping dogs at home, and the danger from taking in stray dogs. There should be a dog catcher for that duty. It would save many licensed dogs and possibly some human lives.

Edward Arnold, who made the elaborate floral electric car which graced the platform at the annual ball of the street railway employes at Music hall last week, is receiving many congratulations on his skill. The car was also on exhibition at the May festival on Saturday afternoon. The flowers used in the construction of the car were yellow daffodils, pansies and violets. The Easter lilies on the platform were also from his greenhouse.

The City Council does not meet until Monday, May 4. Meanwhile there is much speculation as to what the City Council will do in the matter of granting more permits to transport liquor. The general impression seems to be that no more permits will be granted this year, and that the number will be limited to those already granted, but there will probably be an effort made in behalf of some applicants.

—The London street merchants are put out of business on a foggy day, and their lost business amounts to $15,000.

We have the stock, tools, machinery, and "know how" to do your Optical work promptly and satisfactory. We repair the frames, grind lenses, match the broken ones or test the eye. C. F. Pettengill, 1391 Hancock street, Quincy.

CHARGE OF DYNAMITE

Damages Great Steel Bridge In Process of Construction

FALL RIVER IS SHAKEN UP

Forty-Five Pounds of Explosive Fired by Means of Long Fuse--Not the First Time Contractors Have Suffered--No Clue to the Perpetrators

Fall River, Mass., April 27.—The Bristol county $750,000 steel bridge, connecting Fall River and Somerset across the Taunton river at the north end of the town, which was to have been completed in two months, was blown up by a heavy charge of dynamite at 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning, causing a damage now estimated at $15,000, but which may amount to considerably more if it is found the foundations of the bridge have been disturbed.

The terrific explosion shook the entire north section of the city and broke more than 300 panes of glass in the houses in the vicinity. People were awakened by the shock and not knowing the cause or what might follow the first explosion rushed out of their homes into the streets, clad only in night garments, terribly frightened.

The bridge is being built at the expense of the county and the contractors, who began work a year or more ago, are Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins of Boston. The contractors employ only non-union workmen. The same firm has suffered three previous attempts to wreck bridges constructed by them at Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York.

An investigation by the police disclosed the fact that a charge of dynamite, estimated to have been about forty-five pounds, was placed on the granite pier nearest the Fall River shore, and fired by the use of a long fuse. To reach the pier the parties must have used a boat and climbed to the top. A loose boat was found below the bridge and is believed to have been the one used.

A heavy rain was falling at the time of the explosion, and so far as can be learned no one saw the men approaching the bridge or leaving it. The explosion displaced the heavy steel girders which span the piers and generally destroyed the framework of the bridge for fifty feet either side of the pier. The top of the pier was cracked and split and it may be found necessary to entirely replace the pier, which will greatly increase the loss and prevent the bridge being opened the coming summer, as was intended.

Beyond the fact that two strangers were seen about the bridge Saturday the police have little to work upon in apprehending the culprits. The men are being sought and if they cannot give a clear record for themselves will be held, pending further investigation.

Rejoicing of Catholics

New York, April 27.—Every Catholic church and the houses in the archdiocese of New York were in festal array yesterday and Catholic men, women and children gave thanks for the progress Catholicism has made in New York since it was formally established a hundred years ago. It was the beginning of the week of rejoicing in honor of a completion of a century of activity.

Socialist Convention Delegates

Boston, April 27.—As a result of the completion of the count of the vote for delegates to the national Socialist convention, to be held at Chicago May 10, the following were elected delegates-at-large from the state: J. F. Carey, F. H. Wentworth, A. F. Konikow, D. A. White, Eliot White, Patrick Mahoney, S. E. Putney, Matti Liatala, G. C. Cutting and A. E. Fenton.

Contract Needs Tinkering

Havana, April 27.—Despite the city council's approval of Governor Magoon's proposition for the payment of the Havana sewering work, the plans need so much overhauling to meet the changed conditions since 1901, when the contract was awarded, that it probably will be five months before the work begins.

Died In a Stateroom

Fall River, Mass., April 27.—The dead body of a man was found in a stateroom of steamer Puritan, from New York, when she arrived here. Tickets and cards in the pockets of the clothes seemed to indicate that the man was T. P. Shelter of Richmond Hill, L. I. The man died from natural causes.

Charges Against Mint Superintendent

Philadelphia, April 27.—The Central Labor union of this city adopted resolutions calling upon President Roosevelt to investigate charges that Superintendent Landis of the Philadelphia mint has violated the eight-hour law and the president's orders governing the observance of legal holidays.

Ice Leaving St. John River

Fredericton, N. B., April 27.—The ice bridges broke up in the St. John river yesterday and ran out. There is now open water from this city to St. John. What ice still remains is not likely to hold many hours longer.

King Manuel to Tour Provinces

Lisbon, April 27.—It is stated in the newspapers here that, after taking the oath of office before the cortes on May 6, King Manuel will make a tour of the provinces.

ACCOUNTS ARE SHORT

Clerk and Treasurer of Vermont Town Has Disappeared

Hardwick, Vt., April 27.—Following an investigation of the accounts of Mark E. Foster, town clerk and treasurer, who has been missing since April 19, the selectmen who have acted as auditors in the inquiry announce the discovery of apparent discrepancies amounting to between $5000 and $6000. Besides being town clerk and treasurer Foster is also cleak and treasurer of the village corporation and the graded school district.

Foster's whereabouts at present are unknown. He left here Sunday, April 19, with a team, saying that he was going to drive to Montpelier and would return the following day. Although Monday was the day set for the annual examination of the village accounts, he did not return, and discoveries alleged to have been made by the auditors at that time led to a further investigation.

Foster is about 40 years of age, and has lived here with his wife, three children and mother. He came from Woodbury, Vt., five years ago and has held his several offices for about three years.

Foster was bonded for $3000 with a fidelity company for his office as village treasurer, but no bond was carried on account of his other official positions.

Ocean Freight Business Dull

Boston, April 27.—In consequence of the continued dullness in ocean freights, inward and outward, the Leyland line has cut down its Boston sailings. After the sailing of the Bohemian for Liverpool next Wednesday there will not be another Leyland liner until May 18. The Devonian will lay up at Liverpool indefinitely. The Canadian is also at the English port, where she will be out of commission for two months. The Cestrian was withdrawn some months ago. It is rumored that the Cunard line intends to place the freighter Sylvania out of commission temporarily.

To Deport Contract Laborers

Boston, April 27.—Thirteen Spaniards and two other foreigners were brought to Boston from West Virginia by United States inspectors, and will be deported on the Saxonia when she sails May 4, it being charged they came to this country as contract laborers. A strong fight to keep the men in the country was made by influential parties. The decision was against the men and they will be deported, the Cunard line paying the passage home.

Three Weeks In a Trance

Concord, N. H., April 27.—Mrs. O. B. French of Bristol, a patient at the New Hampshire state hospital in this city, has just awakened from a three weeks' sleep. The hospital physicians have been greatly puzzled by her remarkable trance. Mrs. French, who is middle-aged, was absolutely unconscious all the time she was in the coma, and it was necessary for the attendants to feed her with a tube. She shows signs of complete recovery.

Dead Man Held Up by Arm

Warren, R. I., April 27.—Horatio N. Pond, aged 55, a pilot on an oyster steamer, was killed by a fall off the Staple Coal company wharf. When his body was found one arm was clasped in a death grip about a piling, keeping the man's head above water, though a fracture of the skull received in the fall caused death.

Guild Is Rapidly Recovering

Boston, April 27.—During the past week Governor Guild has forsaken a liquid diet for solid food. He now sits up in a chair for a considerable part of each day. Dr. Winslow says that he sees now no reason why Guild cannot take up his duties at the state house in a few weeks and then lead an active political life.

Burned to Death In His Home

Lancaster, N. H., April 27.—Patrick Gleason, aged 70 years, a Civil war veteran, who lived alone in a small house two miles out of the town, was burned to death in his home. The house caught fire from ashes which had been emptied into a box. Gleason left three sons, who reside in Lancaster.

Undertaker's Sudden Death

Beverly, Mass., April 27.—Freeborn W. Cressy, formerly mayor of Beverly, was found dead in his undertaking rooms last night by an employe. Heart trouble was the cause of death. He was born in Beverly in 1839. He served on the board of selectmen for many years under the town government.

Serious Brush Fires

Worcester, Mass., April 27.—Grass and brush fires in this city and other places in Worcester county kept the firemen busy for many hours to prevent the destruction of houses, and burned over a total area estimated at 1500 acres. The largest fire was in East Douglas and covered about 1000 acres.

Submarines Aboard Collier

Newport, R. I., April 27.—Naval collier Caesar sailed this morning, with the submarines Shark and Porpoise on board, for the New York navy yard to take on fittings for the submarines. The collier will then proceed to the Philippines, stopping at Suez and Singapore for coal.

Delegates Will Be Unpledged

Burlington, Vt., April 27.—Republican party leaders in Vermont are not anticipating that pledged or preference resolutions will be offered at the district and state conventions, which will be held this week for the selection of delegates to the national convention at Chicago.

"Ralston's for Mine"

That's what you'll say if you will look into the merits of the Ralston shoe—and after you've tried one pair you'll never have to be urged again.

You'll find that not only in style and dependability Ralstons have no superiors, even among five and six dollar shoes, but also that when it comes to fitting qualities Ralstons have no equals.

Ralston foot print lasts have marked a new epoch in shoe construction.

TURBINES FOR JAPAN

Being Loaded Today at the Fore River Shipyard, Quincy

Stowing two 12,000 horse-power turbine engines aboard the steamer Bisley at the Fore River Shipbuilding Yard at Quincy Point, in order that they may be delivered at the Japanese Navy Yard in Kure and there installed into the new cruiser Ibuki, is neither so difficult a task as some people might imagine, nor so easy as it might appear to the casual observer, watching operations in the Fore River yard, says the Boston Transcript. The Bisley, after a voyage across the Atlantic in ballast, under charter to load the turbines and other machinery parts for Japan, is berthed at the end of a channel running at right angles with the Fore River, and is now taking on the freight so precious to the growing navy of Mikado-land.

Beside her, on the open-air wharf, is a large proportion of the parts for the two engines for the Ibuki. They are of all sizes and shapes, between 200 and 250 in number and representing about 500 tons in dead weight. The parts are encased in wooden frames, each part numbered and marked in bold type whether for port or starboard, so that when it comes to setting up the engines in the cruiser there can be no mistake or confusion. One piece says, for instance: "Flange D, starboard; Gr. Wt. (gross weight) 23,940 (lbs.)," and thus it goes with the collection.

Towering above this mass of machinery, with a huge metallic arm extending over the steamer Bisley, is a with "arms and fingers" of steel to pick up each piece of machinery and deposit it into the warehouse-like holds of the Bisley. To watch the transference of parts for a few minutes is to breed an idea of the comparative ease with which the parts are handled, and to gain the impression that in about one day the entire mass of machinery on the wharf could easily be stowed away. But it is not so easy as it looks, and Captain F. H. Parker of the steamer estimates that not until about next Tuesday will the task of loading be completed.

The fact is that the stowing of the parts with reasonable surety that each will be intact and serviceable when discharged in the navy yard at Kure, after the vicissitudes of an ocean voyage of several thousands of miles, is both delicate and complex. Not a single part offers any strain upon the lifting powers of the gauntry and crane, for the largest piece of all, the shafting, weighs only seventeen tons, whereas the accredited lifting power of the crane is 125 tons; but it is the fact that a blow against one of the ship's iron stanchions or against the iron sides of the hatchways might break or weaken a casting that causes the work to progress with such care, and makes so deliberative the movements of the great crane, even when handling the smallest piece of the engine, though it looks, as Captain Parker expresses it, "like an elephant pushing a perambulator."

Before the loading began the

was mapped out by Captain Parker of the Bisley, agreed to by the officials of the yard and by K. Yamaguchi, representative of the firm of Mitsui & Co., of New York, the Japanese concern which is ostensibly the purchaser of the two turbines from the Fore River Company and which in turn sells them to the Japanese Government, and is responsible, with the steamship company, as the charter party, for the safe delivery of the parts in Kure. Mr. Yamaguchi arrived from New York Wednesday night, and was at the Fore River yard yesterday overlooking the work of loading. Another visitor during the day was John Wylde, a member of the firm of Patterson, Wylde & Co., local consignees of the steamer Bisley.

Captain Parker's plan was to give all of the heavy pieces floor space to themselves, so that no heavy part would rest upon another. The first pieces transferred from wharf to ship therefore, were the shaftings, twenty-eight feet in length and weighing seventeen tons each. These were lowered into hatch No. 2, forward, moved into their designated positions by the aid of rollers and an electric winch, the ship's property, and securely fastened. As fast as they are ready other heavy parts will go the same route, and after they have been securely installed the lighter parts will be set in place. Then the entire consignment will be welded firmly by the use of quantities of heavy lumber, so that under the most adverse conditions there will be no "give" to the mass, even when the steamer is rolling and pitching in the grasp of angry seas.

The work of loading is progressing with the greatest smoothness, according to Captain Parker, especially so because of the courteous and obliging nature of the Fore River officials and workmen. The Bisley's commander states that with more considerate treatment in any shipyard in the world. It is too often the case, he says, that vexations "red tape" and mometary loss to the commander of a ship, or the vessel owners, arises in foreign shipyards over the most trivial of circumstances, where the plan of loading is mapped out in advance and so strictly adhered to that even a call for one more brass screw than the specifications called for might be the occasion of all sorts of trouble. He spoke from experience, having seen much of shipyards as the result of his command of no less than five new steamers. The co-operative and helpful spirit of the Fore River people was shown at the very sart, he says, by the willingness with which they listened and acted upon his suggestion of providing heavier wooden framework for some of the parts which had been boxed up before the Bisley arrived.

An incident illustrative of the conscientious nature of one American workman engaged yesterday in helping install the machinery parts in the Bisley cropped up after he had "knocked off" for the noon hour. He had labored with zeal and great apparent interest in transferring the parts to the steamer, yet when he walked up the wharf with a companion he was heard to remark, in tones of disgust: "Yes, here we go sending them turbines to propel the very fighting machines that they'll want to come back and lick us with."

After her task of loading is completed at the Fore River yard, the Bisley will proceed to New York and load up other machinery parts for the Far East.

Two engines similar to those for the Ibuki will be ready for shipment from the same yard in August. They are now in course of construction and are intended for the Japanese battleship Aki.

MILK REGULATIONS

Need to Be Very Stringent to Prevent the Spread of Disease

Boston, April 27.—The epidemics of typhoid fever and other contagious diseases which are now sweeping over the city, it is charged, are directly due to the conditions appertaining to the milk business.

It is maintained that legislation controlling the production, transportation and handling of milk is not only urgent but imperative in order to conserve the health of the public.

Appreciating the serious character of the situation, a meeting of the Boston board of health was called yesterday and stringent regulations passed, so general in their scope that it is now believed the handling of milk, in this city at least, will in the future be changed.

There now remains the legislation needed to give authority for the regulation of the methods of the producers and the [illegible] of this most important article of food, and Dr. Harrington, secretary of the state board of health, declared that, with the support of the press, he believed the necessary legislation could be secured at this session of the general court.

Canadian Pacific Men May Strike

Winnipeg, Man., April 27.—The Canadian Pacific railway shops closed down Saturday night and will remain closed until the men agree to new terms proposed by the company after abrogating an agreement entered into a year ago. The present schedule will end on Thursday. Employes in the company's shops from Vancouver to St. John completed a federation last week and 10,000 men organized to resist the company's terms. A strike appears to be imminent.

In Memory of Grant

New York, April 27.—With simple ceremonies, the Grant peace memorial window was formally dedicated at Metropolitan temple in honor of General Ulysses S. Grant's love of peace. The ceremonies were attended by representatives from various Grand Army posts and members of General Grant's family. It was at Metropolitan temple that General Grant attended divine worship while residing in this city.

Children Resemble Weaker Parent

London, April 27.—Dr. Romme, the physiologist, has completed statistics which prove, he maintains, that a boy is born when the father is the weaker of the two parents and a girl when the mother is the weaker partner. Romme's statistics have caused widespread interest and discussion. He declares it to be a universal law of nature that the child resembles the weaker and not the stronger of its parents.

England Has Spring Blizzard

London, April 27.—A remarkable blizzard continued practically all over the United Kingdom throughout Friday night and Saturday until Saturday midnight. It was accompanied by a violent northerly gale and a low temperature, and in many places the snowdrifts are eight feet deep. Railway traffic has been seriously delayed and telegraph and telephone systems are completely disorganized.

Accident on Warship Missouri

Santa Barbara, Cal., April 27.—An accident to the engines of the Missouri occurred on the run of the fleet from Santa Monica to Santa Barbara. The high pressure cylinder of the port engine blew out and the engine room was quickly filled with the escaping steam. No one was injured. The Missouri came into port under the starboard engine alone.

Domestic Life Was Unhappy

New York, April 27.—Mrs. Mary C. Shelley, a well known vocal teacher, was found dead from the effects of illuminating gas in her apartments in this city. In a letter Mrs. Shelley said she had been constantly unhappy for the last two years because of family troubles and misunderstandings. She was 58 years old.

Chauffeur Gets Record Sentence

Berlin, April 27.—The record punishment for careless auto driving was meted out to Chauffeur Rudolph Vogt, who by his recklessness caused the death of his employer, Storm, the artist, while injuring two other people for life. Vogt got eighteen months in the penitentiary.

Thaw Writ Returnable May 4

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., April 27.—James G. Graham, attorney for Harry K. Thaw, appeared before Justice Morschauser in the supreme court here and obtained an amendment to the writ of habeas corpus issued in Thaw's behalf, making it returnable in this city on May 4.

Indiana County Wind-Swept

Providence, Ind., April 27.—A tornado which swept three townships of Johnson county demolished barns and houses, destroyed telephone and telegraph service and wrought damage estimated at $50,000. Only one person is known to be injured.

Thirty Deaths From Landslide

Montreal, April 27.—The little village of Notre Dame d'Salette, about eighteen miles from Buckingham, was half buried in a landslide. At least thirty lives are reported lost. There is neither telephone nor telegraph in Notre Dame.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Tuesday, April 28.
Sun rises—4:43; sets—6:40.
Moon rises—4:05 a. m.
High water—9:30 a. m.; 10 p. m.

There will be rain and thunderstorms in New England. It will be colder.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

Sailing orders have been received by Comander Burns T. Walling of the new scout cruiser Birmingham, which was turned over to the government by the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., fitting out at the Charlestown navy yard, and the ship will start on her first cruise Friday. After taking on a supply of ammunition at the naval magazine on Iona Island, N. Y., the ship will have a shakedown cruise which will end at Guantanamo, Cuba.

The United States scout cruiser Chester went into commission at the Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard April 25. The big cruiser went into the harbor at a lively clip, and despite here great length rounded Henderson's Point against the full force of the ebb tide without assistance and swung up to her place off the navy yard as easily as if she had been a yacht. It is expected that the Chester will remain at the navy yard some time, as there are alterations to be made and the ship is to be docked.

William L. Miller, general contractor and bridge builder, Boston and Brunswick, Ga., who recently had a large contract with the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., for constructing part of the railroad and steamship terminals which the Fore River company built at Brunswick, Ga., for the Brunswick S. S. Co., and the A. B. & A. R. R. Co., has just been awarded a contract by the City of Boston for building a sea wall on the new Northern avenue extension to South Boston. The contract calls for the building of a heavy granite and concrete sea wall 220 feet long, a dry rubble wall 175 feet long, and a timber bulkhead 185 feet in length. Incidental to the work there is considerable dredging to be done, and about 10,000 cubic yards of fill to make. The difficulties of this work lie in the great depth at which the concrete foundation is laid, this starting at grade minus 25, the wall at this depth is 23 feet wide and is carried up on a batter and at grade minus 1, is 15 feet wide. Upon this the granite superstructure is built up to the street level. The plans for the work are from the office of the City Engineer of Boston, and the work is to be completed by Oct. 15, 1908.

William Dinnie, formerly connected with the civil engineering department at the shipyard is now connected with William L. Miller and is in the South where Mr. Miller has large contracts.

EDITORIAL.

It looks good to see those young trees set out the whole length of Coddington street on both sides of the boulevard. More are to be planted this week and will be continued beyond the Mt. Wollaston cemetery. Before Coddington street was widened there were many beautiful elms on the street which were sacrificed. In a few years, if the 200 maples and elms live, Coddington and Sea streets will again be beautiful. There should be a permanent sidewalk from City Square to the Mt. Wolaston cemetery.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Minstrel Show At Houghs Neck

The first minstrel show of the Houghs Neck Associates was held Saturday evening at Brown's hall, and was attended by an audience that completely filled the hall. Mayor Shea was the guest of the association during the evening, and he came in for some good natured knocks on the part of the end men.

The circle was made up of both ladies and gentlemen forming a chorus where musical voices resounded in perfect harmony. The end men were particularly good. Their songs were of the popular kind, and they cracked no end of jokes. Most of these jokes were local and every one was a hit.

After the entertainment there was general dancing. This was the last social event of the season of the association which closed its first season in a blaze of glory.

Funeral of Miss Ahearn.

The funeral of Miss Catherine Ahearn, who died on Saturday, was held from the bome of her parents on Packard's lane this morning at 8.30, followed by services at St. John's church at 9 o'clock.

Requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. J. J. Casey. The burial was at St. Marys cemetery, the pall bearers being John Fitzgerald, S. V. Gerdman, Daniel Shea, Michael Shea, John Ryan and Timothy Foley.

The floral tribute included a pillow from father and mother; a standing cross from brothers and sister; a wreath of roses from employes of Daily Ledger office; a standing cross of Easter lilies and roses from S. V. Gerdman; a spray of lilies from Mrs. T. Lewis; a bouquet from Mrs. William Westland and the Misses Westland; a spray of Easter lilies from Mrs. Mary Thomas and the Misses Thomas.

Chelsea Sunday.

Rev. Edward A. Chase pastor of the Wolaston Congregational church, made a special appeal Sunday for the sufferers at Chelsea. Mr. Chase was born in Chelsea and brought up in the Central Congregational church, which was one of the buildings destroyed by the fire. He told of his early life in Chelsea and stated that the Central Congregational church had about 120 families that it was caring for. He enumerated a list of articles which he said were needed in Chelsea. A list of such articles had been forwarded to his parishioners previous to Sunday and they came prepared to contribute. Quite a large collection of the articles enumerated were collected, in addition to over $100 in cash. These will be forwarded to the Central Congregational church for distribution.

William W. Nichols, father of ex-Councilman Walter F. Nichols of Wollaston, died at the home of his daughter in Brookline on Saturday, aged 88 years. He was a member of the house of representatives in 1868, and during the Civil war had charge of the foundry department at the Charlestown navy yard.

Story Is "Unauthorized"

Washington, April 27.—"The story is wholly unauthorized," declared Secretary of War Taft when his attention was called to a dispatch stating that Thomas P. Egan of Cincinnati, in an interview, is quoted as saying positively that Taft would resign immediately if nominated at the Chicago convention, and that Governor Magoon of Cuba would succeed him as secretary of war. The secretary added that so far as he knew there was no foundation for the statement.

Panic on Elevated Train

New York, April 27.—Two hundred or more passengers on an elevated train were thrown into a panic last night when a fire broke out under a car and filled the train with smoke. The train was approaching the Seventy-Second street station and immediately the frightened passengers endeavored to escape to the station platform. Several passengers were cut by glass and one passenger was seriously injured. The fire was extinguished without much damage.

Express Rates Are Increased

The Quincy Expressmen's Association advertises a new schedule of prices in today's Ledger, which will go into effect Friday, May 1.

The expressmen state that owing to the increased cost of hay, grain, horses, labor, etc., together with the large territory that has to be covered it was found necessary to charge more for expressing.

Under the new schedule the price of trunks will be 50 cents, bags and suit cases, 25 cents, and general freight 25 cents per one hundred pounds. For delivery at Houghs Neck the rate will be 50 per cent additional.

Fines of $50 In Liquor Cases

The proprietors of the five West Quincy places raided by the police on Sunday, April 12, were fined $50 each in the district court this morning. One of the men, Ambrose Bertoni, paid his fine. The others who took an appeal were Umberto Sansentini, of 5 California avenue; John Cellini, of 3 California avenue; Donenico Donnetti, of 9 California avenue; and Luigi Serafini of 17 California avenue. Bertoni the man who paid his fine lived in the stone house at "The Rail."

Free Exhibition Tonight.

At 7.30 tonight there will be an exhibition at the Y. M. C. A. gym by the boys' class, including the Juniors and Advanced Juniors.

The program will include marching, wand, cane and flag drills, races, games, etc.

The Juniors are to have competitive marching and a drill, the winner to receive a silver cup donated by Mr. Bentley.

The Advanced Juniors will repeat the tumbling and pyramid work which took so well at the May festival on Saturday.

The exhibition is free to the public, and it is hoped that a large number of the parents and friends of the boys will see the work.

☞In response to the numerous requests of their friends, the Pine Tree State Association have arranged to give another dancing party, Tuesday, April 28, in Faxon Hall. Anything given under the auspices of this association is always sure to be successful, and a pleasure to all who attend.

Cottage Burned At Houghs Neck

The alarm from box 14 at 7.50 this morning was for a fire in the cottage of Elmer Chapman off Winthrop street, at Houghs Neck. The cottage wa a small one and was situated in a hollow a long distance from a hydrant. So rapidly did it burn that it was practically destroyed before the water reached it. The fire started from fat taking fire on the stove. Mr. Chapman was frying steak and while he was out of the room it took fire. In an instant, almost, the whole building was a mass of flames. The loss on the building and contents is estimated at $500.

The alarm from box 43 at 11.19 Saturday night was for a fire in the house of John McTierman at 16 Common street. The fire was in a couch in one of the rooms. Chief Williams states that the fire probably started from a careless smoker Mr. McTiernan, however, states that it was caused by a spark from the furnace. The loss was $75.

MILTON.

The weekly smoke talks of the Thursday Evening club have been resumed.

The watering carts have been put into service all over the town. Several of the streets will be oiled the same as last year.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Tremont Theatre.

Go and see "The Man of the Hour" at the Tremont Theatre. For a whole year in New York it gripped public interest. It is a message to the people. Its pertinent and timely truths are carried straight to the mind and conscience of the playgoer. While it is before him he is alike diverted and uplifted. When he comes away he has something to think about. And "The Man of the Hour" is neither dull preachy or morbid. It is aglow with as buoyant and infectious humor as George Broadhurst ever wrote into his merriest farces. There is a sensible, straight-forward, appealing love story—just such a love story as real men and women figure in, not the mawkish sentimentality that you find between average book covers. It is a real, vital, wholesome human play, and this is why more than 500,000 New Yorkers and 200,000 New Englanders have applauded it, and why the public from the Atlantic seaboard to San Francisco and the great North West have flocked to see it. There is scarcely a community in this country where the conditions portrayed do not exist to greater or less extent. There is no good citizen, man or woman, to whom its theme is not fascinating. "The Man of the Hour" in its 15th week here, looms up like a light house amid the fog of failures that has enveloped the stage since the present season began.

TODAY'S COURT.

Umberto Sansitini, John Cellini, Dunenico Donnetti, Lugi Serafini and Ambrose Bertoni were fined $50 each for violation of the liquor law at Quincy. Bertoni paid but the others appealed.

John Zirk and Thomas H Monahan were sentenced to three monthi in the house of correction for the larceny of sugar and flour from Fred H. Humphrey at Weymouth.

James Sullivan aud Michael J. McLaughlin were fined $10 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Harry W. Storer was fined $15 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Eugene O'Connor was fined $53 for having 53 smelts in his possession at Weymouth.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and trying the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. MANY INFLUENTIAL PEOPLE ADOPT NEW THEORY

Statements from Followers of Cooper Obtained Recently in Various Cities.

A number of statements from prominent people located in various cities where the widespread discussion over L. T. Cooper's new theory regarding the human stomach has recently waged, give an idea of the intense interest the young man has aroused during the past year. The statements are as follows:

Mr. C. D. Mitchell, of 2412 Avenue C, Birmingham, Ala., has this to say with regard to his belief in Cooper's medicine: "I have been troubled with indigestion and stomach trouble for the past year. I had heartburn, bloating after eating, gas on stomach and bowels, palpitation of the heart, pain in the lower part of my back, and various other symptoms, and was a victim of much distress. I tried many remedies, but received little or no benefit from them. I was advised to try the Cooper preparations, and did so. In one week's time I was improved wonderfully—the first relief I had been able to obtain. Mr. Cooper's medicine does all he claims for it."

Mr. J. O. Spradling, of 705 South Tejon Street, Colorado Springs, Colo., says: "I was troubled with indigestion for two years. It caused me a great deal of suffering and misery. I did not dare to eat meat at all, and everything I did eat soured on my stomach. I tried various remedies, but found no relief. Three months ago I started taking Cooper's New Discovery, and after using the contents of three bottles I was entirely cured. I can now eat and relish anything that my appetite craves. The New Discovery is truly a great stomach medicine."

Mr. Wm. Codier, of 408 Graves Street, Syracuse, N. Y., is very strong in his expression of belief in the new medicine, and has the following to say on the subject: "I have suffered from catarrh of the nose and throat for four years. It must have been communicated to my stomach, for all this time my stomach has given me a great deal of trouble, and caused me much pain and suffering. My stomach was often sour, and my food did not digest. I was bothered by a continual desire to spit, and there was a constant dropping of mucus into the throat.

"The first relief I have been able to obtain is from Cooper's New Discovery, which I have been taking for about a week. My catarrhal condition has been greatly improved and my stomach is almost well. Mr. Cooper's medicine has benefited me more than anything I have ever used."

These statements are from reliable citizens in various communities who have tried these celebrated medicines. We sell them and will gladly explain their nature to any one interested. —E. J. Murphy.

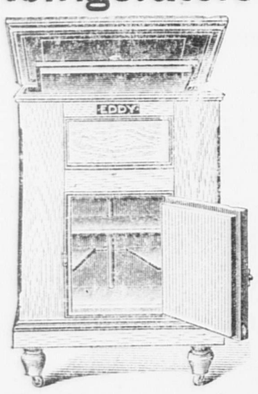
Eddy Refrigerators.



Ten thousand Eddy Refrigerators went up in smoke scarcely two months ago. That's going some. It also means ten thousand disappointed families for 1908 and a scarcity of Eddy agents. We are pleased to state however that we had our entire season's supply of Eddy Refrigerators, bought and safely stored in our own storehouse before this fire occurred.

We have for immediate delivery all sizes of the famous Eddy Refrigerators and Ice Chests which we sell as usual at factory prices. Our refrigerator stock also contains milk white tile lined refrigerators.

If you desire a strictly sanitary ice box that saves ice, is always sweet and clean, we have much that will interest you. A catalogue and price list for the asking. Cash or Easy payments.

ONE HALF

Quincy's Cost Of Abolishment Of Grade Crossing May Be Reduced

Perhaps Quincy will be called upon to pay but five per cent. of the cost of abolishing the grade crossings at Saville and Water streets.

The contest of the afternoon in the Legislature on Monday, says the Globe, came on the bill to provide that not more than 5 per cent. of the cost of grade crossing abolition should be assessed upon a city or town.

Representative Washburn of Worcester opposed the bill, urging that the present maximum of 10 per cent. was established only after careful study.

Mr. Dean of Wakefield defended the bill. He said he is convinced that no municipality should pay any part of the cost, as the railroad company alone is responsible for grade crossings and every abolition results in a permanent improvement in the roadbed of the railroad.

Mr. Parkhurst of Winchester held that municipalities should continue their payments which enable them to present their own plans for abolition.

Mr. Walker of Brookline also opposed the bill, pointing out that no city or town was sufficiently interested in the bill to appear before the committee in its favor.

Mr. McCann of Lynn said that had his city been notified of the hearing it would have been strongly represented in favor of the bill. Mr. Ferber of Boston thought such a bill would retard the abolition of grade crossings.

By a vote of 112 to 84, on a roll call, the bill was passed to be engrossed.

President Bowles To Testify Today

At the inquiry in Washington on Monday in the Lilley case, a dispatch to the Herald says, Martin Littleton argued against the requirement to produce the books of the Electric Boat Company. He said that there was not a line in the record which supported any charge made by Representative Lilley against that company. On the contrary, Mr. Littleton had admitted that he had no evidence and that the basis of all his charges were hearsay, idle gossip and rumor. As no evidence had been introduced to support the charges against the Electric company, Mr. Littleton said he could see no purpose to be served in asking that the private books of the company be laid bare.

It is expected that President Bowles of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company will testify Tuesday regarding the price of submarines.

Talking Pony Popular.

All of the children are completely carried away with Diamond, the talking pony who is holding a reception all this week at the Scenic theatre. He is certainly a beauty and there is no wonder that the children are enthusiastic over him. On Saturday afternoon he will hold a special matinee reception for the school children.

The bill this week is one of the best that has appeared this winter. First, there is Laura Ellis the sweet singing soubrette, R. Ben Johnson the rube trick violinist who performs wonderful feats on this difficult musical instrument, Jim Bingham, the ventriloquist, who has the power to throw his voice anywhere he desires, creating no end of laughter, and last but not least, the beautiful Quincy young lady in illustrated songs. Of course there are the usual moving pictures that are alyways pleasing. Several pictures are shown those of this week being exceptionally good. A change of pictures and illustrated songs is made every Monday and Thursday.

Many Attractions At Eastern Star Fair

The annual two days' festival and sale of the Order of the Eastern Star was opened Monday at Electa hall with a large attendance. Tables for the sale of various articles were arranged about the sides and end of the hall. These were very prettily decorated with crepe paper, and looked very attractive. Over in one corner was a fortune teller's booth, where a gypsy maid read the past and future of all who crossed her palm with the necessary coin. She was kept busy.

Across the corridor in Protection hall, refreshments and ice cream were served, and a pleasing musical entertainment was given.

The entertainment Monday evening included a piano duet by Miss Maud Craig and Mrs. Pratt; solo, "I love you," by Miss Ethel Dodge; piano solo, Miss Adelaide Spencer; solo, "The song that reached my heart," James Forest; solo, "Goodbye, sweetheart, goodbye," Miss Lottie Barnicoat. Dancing followed the entertainment.

Tonight will be Scotch night with Scotch songs by Crawford Eagleshem and James McKimmock, graphophone selections by Harry Louder, and dancing.

Those in charge of the various tables were:

SERIOUSLY INJURED

Bicyclist Injured In Collision With an Auto On Granite Street

John Ackerstrom of 130 Hayward street, East Braintree, a bicyclist, and Henry M. Faxon's automobile came in collision on Granite street, near the railroad bridge this morning and Mr. Ackerstrom who is a harness maker at 395 Granite street, was seriously injured.

The automobile, driven by David R. DeCoste, was going west Granite street at a moderate speed, and Mr. Ackerstrom riding a bicycle was coming towards City Square There was plenty of room for the two to pass each other. As the bicyclist reached a point nearly opposite J. F. Sheppard & Sons' coal office he evidently lost control of his wheel for he turned suddenly and rode directly in front of the automobile.

There was no time for Mr. DeCoste to stop his car which struck the bicycle. The rider was thrown off, and the car passed over him, but stopped almost immediately.

Calvin T. Dyer of the Street department, who was directly opposite ran to the man's assistance, and carried him to the sidewalk. He was bleeding profusely from a cut on the head, and another cut on his lip.

The police ambulance was called and Ackerstrom was removed to the City Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. Jones.

This noon he was conscious and resting comfortably, although it was said at the hospital that it could not be stated as yet how serious his injuries were.

No blame is attached to DeCoste, the driver of the automobile, the accident being caused by Ackerstrom getting nervous and losing control of his bicycle. One wheel of the bicycle was smashed.

Whist Tournament.

The Wollaston Whist club is to hold an afternoon and evening whist tournament at Odd Fellows' hall Saturday afternoon and evening. The afternoon game will be commenced at 3 o'clock. Street Railway Should Show Appreciation

Editors Daily Ledger:

In view of the planting of the young trees on Coddington boulevard, which in a few years will add immeasurably to the beauty of this fine road, permit me to comment up on the unsafe and unsightly condition of the street railway tracks between Woodward avenue and Valley street. It would certainly seem that if the management had the least pride in their road they would remedy this defect in their Hough Neck branch, which has existed for several years. It is not right that this beautiful street should be disfigured by this crooked straggling track.

Nor should it be forgotten that this street was widened at the expense of the city, and then appropriated by the railway, whose presence made the widening necessary, and who should have paid their fair share of the cost. The least the company should do, in return for the thousands spent by the city for their benefit upon Coddington street, is to cease to maintain thereon a stretch of track which would be objectionable and dangerous upon some antiquated horse car line in the woods. The cars pass over this stretch at very high speed, and very heavily loaded. An accident will certainly happen some day.

FRIDAY MAY 1

An Eventful Day In This City And Other Parts Of the State

Friday, May 1, may be as unlucky day for some, as the much-heralded Friday, the thirteenth, but it will mark the advance of the temperance cause.

Only four permits were granted by the City Council to expressmen to transport liquors, to take effect May 1, but it is understood that none of these have yet secured the signature of Mayor Shea.

Licenses of all kinds granted in 1907, also expire on May 1.

As usual all dogs must have a new license.

IN OTHER CITIES.

The Everett board of aldermen sprang a big surprise Monday evening, says the Journal, gave the thriving local pony express liquor business a clean knockout blow, and it took more than ten counts for the expressmen, who turned out in full force, to come to and realize that their pet business had gone up in smoke by the close margin of one vote. The petitions of a dozen or more peddlers were turned down at the start, as was expected, but when those of the regular expressmen also went on the same course there was something doing right off with the object that one of the four aldermen must be swung over to their side.

The license commissioners of Worcester decided on Monday to grant only eight druggist licenses. There were fifty applicants. Worcester becomes a no-license city.

Conditions governing the liquor traffic will be disturbed all over New England on May 1 yhen changes in the local option take effect. In Massachusetts alone 210 saloons and hotels now open for the sale of liquor must close their bars. These changes will take place in six cities and thirty-six towns. The 210 places constitute 10 per cent. of the total number now doing a liquor business.

In Vermont there will be 27 licensed towns instead of 92, and in New Hampshire all druggist licenses will be abolished.

A more radical upsetting of the liquor policy in Massachusetts has not occurred for fifteen years. Three of the largest manufacturing cities will be dry. One of these is Worcester, with a population of over 130,000, and is said will be the largest municipality in the country, if not in the world, under the no-license regime.

Lynn another large city will be dry for the first time for twelve years. Here the board of aldermen has voted not to grant any express permits.

Haverhill will also be a dry city for the first time since 1897.

It is estimated that 2,000 men are employed in the places which will have to close May 1.

ASSESSORS TO START.

Then on Friday the new Board of Assessors, Warren W. Adams of Ward One, J. W. Pratt of Ward Three and John A. Duggan of Ward Six, will start out to assess all the real estate and personal property in the city. Assistant Assessors who will take the polls have not yet been appointed.

In 1907 the assessors found property to the value of $27,169,055.00, of which $22,075,450.00 was real estate, and $5,093,905.00 personal estate, and $5,093,605.00 personal estate, $1,208,175.00, in 1906, and $1,546,340.00 in 1905, being the smallest increase in any year since 1896. Since 1888 being $9,757,- trebled in valuation, the increase 960 in that year, and for the 18- for 19 years $17,411,095.00. The assessors of 1907 found 9,159 polls against 9,239 in 1906. In 1906 the total tax lexy was $516,714.06, and in 1907 it was $553,548.38. It may go to $600,000.00 this year.

TWO SHIPS EACH YEAR

President Is Satisfied With the Present Naval Program

WE LEAD IN PROGRESSION

Had Building of Four Battleships Been Authorized at This Session, However, America Could Have Dictated Terms of Disarmament

Washington, April 28.—By an overwhelming vote, President Roosevelt's four battleship program failed in the senate, just as it did in the house. The amendment for four battleships was introduced by Senator Piles and the fight for its adoption was led by Senator Beveridge.

Twenty-three votes were cast for the increased program, the number largely being made up of recently elected senators. Fifty senators voted to support the house, and the recommendation of the senate naval committee, in favor of building only two battleships.

The debate on the battleship amendment lasted three days, to the exclusion of all other matters. It was begun by Beveridge with an eloquent appeal for the support of the president and a suggestion that the larger navy might be needed for war. Members of the committee upbraided the Indiana senator for this veiled hint of war with another country, and sought to make him admit that he meant Japan. At times the discussion came near becoming acrimonious, especially sharp exchanges occurring between Beveridge and Aldrich. The latter's references to Beveridge excited Senator Smith to protest against the senate chamber being "made a slaughter house for the young senator from Indiana."

It was developed by Senator Allison during the debate that there is a well-defined understanding among the senate leaders for the authorization of two battleships each year until the American navy is regarded as sufficient to meet any demands that may be made upon it.

As finally passed, the bill carries appropriations aggregating $123,115,659, and provides for the construction of two battleships and two colliers and the purchase of three additional colliers, the construction of submarines and other necessary craft, and increases the pay of officers and enlisted men, as well as increasing both the pay and the strength of the marine corps.

Two battleships a year is what President Roosevelt says he has accomplished by his fight for his naval program. Had he been victorious in having four such ships authorized at this session the United States could have dictated terms of disarmament to the nations of the world.

This statement, made last night, is understood to reveal the president's source of strength in the contest which has been waged so strenuously. Furthermore, two ships this year, with the promise of two ships a year to follow, which the president has accomplished as a bona fide stipulation on the part of the senate, means simply a program which will place the United States in the front rank of naval progression, but fails to place the country in the position of dictating a cessation of naval aggression.

That the president, on the whole, is pleased with the result of his efforts with congress on this subject was made manifest; that he firmly believes in the ability of the United States to dictate the naval policy of the world in the future by demonstration of its ability to overwhelmingly outstrip rival construction is equally manifest.

President Roosevelt wanted four battleships this year. He got two. With the two he obtained the promise that two more would be forthcoming each year. This means, considering the dimensions of the battleships which modern construction dictates, that the United States shall keep fully abreast of the naval armament of any other nation.

An Alleged Would-Be Assassin

Trinidad, Col., April 28.—Steve Toth said to be an anarchist and suspected of complicity in a plot to assassinate Emperor Francis Joseph, was arrested at Cokedale and taken to Denver to await extradition papers. He had been followed from Austria by an agent of the Austrian government, who caused his arrest. Toth admitted he was wanted in Austria, but denied that he was ever concerned in a plot to assassinate the emperor.

Japan Working For Korea's Good

Honolulu, April 28.—Bishop Harris of the Methodist church, in an interview here, said that in the occupation of Korea by the Japanese he saw the hand of providence working for the good of Korea. Local Koreans are greatly incensed and excited over his remarks, and it is feared by mission workers among the Koreans that Harris may be assassinated upon his arrival at San Francisco.

Death List Not Increased

London, April 28.—No more bodies have been recovered from the wrecked cruiser Gladiator, and the admiralty announces that the names of twenty-three already given complete the list of the missing. The St. Paul's cargo is being transferred to the Teutonic, prepatory to placing her in dry dock. American line officials are preparing a statement of the disaster.

BODY PACKED IN TRUNK

Woman Hacked With Axe and Her Skull Crushed In

Watertown, N. Y., April 28.—A most brutal murder was discovered late yesterday at Brownville, four miles west of this city. The victim was Mrs. Sarah Brennan, wife of Patrick Brennan, a papermaker, and a highly respected resident of the little place in which she had lived nearly all of the fifty-five years of her life.

The corpse of Mrs. Brennan, frightfully hacked with an axe and with the skull crushed in, was found tightly packed in a large trunk at her home. Near the trunk was a bloody axe. The police profess to have already solved the mystery of the woman's death.

According to the police the murder was done in a hotel formerly known as the Barton house. The motive, the officers say, was robbery. Pending further inquiry into the case the police have taken into custody James Farmer and his wife, who are neighbors of the Brennans.

The Brennan home, which was in the wife's name, was transferred on Oct. 1 last to Farmer for the consideration of $2100. Brennan claimed that he was not a party to the transfer and further that his wife denied to him that she executed such a deed. On Thursday last Mrs. Brennan disappeared, and the same day the Farmers sought possession of the Brennan home. When Brennan objected he was directed to the county clerk's office and on Saturday he examined the records and founded that a deed had been executed as Farmer stated.

Meantime Brennan had instituted an unsuccessful search for his wife. When he discovered that their home had been transferred he called upon the neighbors and a systematic hunt for the woman was begun. Every bit of the country about the village was gone over and hope of finding Mrs. Brennan had been almost abandoned when a further search of her own home was suggested. This was made so thoroughly as to result in the breaking open of the trunk in which the body was found.

Boss Bandit Dodged Volley

Paris, April 28.—A dispatch from Tangier says: The report of Raisuli's death is false. It is true that a band of Elkmes fired a volley at him from behind the bush, but Raisuli was not hit. The tribe had sworn vengeance against the bandit chief because, although they had been ravaged by the Imperial troops for sheltering Raisuli after the capture of Caid MacLean, he refused them any share of the ransom.

Sailors Stuck to Sinking Ship

Pensacola, Fla., April 28.—Schooners Cavalier and Maud Spurling collided at sea during a storm and the Spurling sank as she was entering this harbor after having sailed seventy-five miles from the scene of the accident. The Cavalier was not injured. The Maud Spurling was in a sinking condition when Pensacola light was sighted, but the crew remained aboard until she began to settle. All were saved.

Bostonian In Line For Honor

Rome, April 28.—The pope will hold a consistory in June, when he will create new cardinals. The general impression at the Vatican is that no American cardinal will be created for the present, but should another American cardinal be created at a later date Archbishop O'Connell of Boston would be the most likely to receive the honor.

Reduced Carfares For Cleveland

Cleveland, April 28.—Three-cent street car fares on all lines operating within the city of Cleveland became a possibility last night at the regular meeting of the city council when a "security grant" was passed to the Cleveland Railway company, a new corporation, which took over the consolidated properties of the old companies.

Dangers Opposing Our Progress

Houghton, Mich., April 28.—Governor Johnson of Minnesota delivered an address here last night. He declared that two dangers oppose the progress of this republic, the one being the tendency of the federal government to centralization of power, and the other the power of centralized and predatory wealth.

Suicide of Society Woman

Montclair, N. J., April 28.—Miss Lillian MacLea, aged 20, daughter of a dry goods merchant of New York, was found dead from gas asphyxiation in her room in her father's home, having committed suicide. It is said that Miss MacLea had shown signs of melancholy of late. The family is prominent socially.

Injunction Against Railway Strikers

Pensacola, Fla., April 28.—Federal Judge Sheppard has made permanent his temporary order restraining the striking street railway employes from interfering with the operation of street cars in this city. The cases against a number of strikebreakers were dismissed in court yesterday after a hearing.

Nine Fishing Vessels Lost

St. Pierre, Miq., April 28.—The fishing season of 1908 has opened disastrously for the French fishing fleet, and although the operations began only recently nine vessels have been sunk. So far as known here no lives have been lost this spring. Last season ten vessels foundered, 251 fishermen perishing.

NEWLY MADE GRAVES

They Are Scattered Throughout Tornado-Stricken District

DEATH LIST PLACED AT 350

People Who Are Unharmed Are Furnishing Relief to Unfortunate Survivors--Second Storm Causes Bad Scare In Several Stricken Towns

New Orleans, April 28.—With about 325 newly-made graves distributed broadcast over nearly the entire width of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama, the dead in Friday's tornadoes have been mostly cared for, and it is possible to say positively that the death list in these states will not exceed 350.

The few who may yet be added to the fatalities are possibly a score of the two hundred most seriously wounded in hospitals throughout these states. The remaining injured, numbering about 1000, are reported to be on the road to recovery.

The gravity of the situation centres in the problem of the living, namely, hunger and shelter. At least one stricken town is reported to have eaten literally its last meal and it is relying on charity for its supper.

Fortunately, the great territory over which the stricken districts are scattered has left an opportunity for the unharmed neighbors everywhere in these centres of want to furnish relief more quickly and effectively than would have been possible had the disaster been confined to one place.

Cities, little and big, on all sides of the tornado belt have made rapid preparations to ship supplies and money into the tornado district. New Orleans has started a money subscription and also shipped food to Amite, the worst damaged town in Louisiana.

Amite was the town which reported its food supply practically exhausted Monday, otherwise the little town is making rapid progress toward rehabilitation.

Purvis, Miss., is one of the few communities still reporting fresh lists of injured and dying, who were found in the outlying country, some of them in a desperate state from lack of care.

Amite, Purvis and several other stricken towns were badly frightened Sunday night by heavy winds, but the only fatalities reported in this second storm were near Selma, Ala., where four negroes perished.

Belated reports from Hattiesburg, Miss., indicate that the loss of life in that section is much larger than at first reported. At a turpentine camp between Epps and Purvis, twelve dead were found and fourteen injured. In the same vicinity three white women were seriously injured by falling limbs.

Hearst's Plea For Labor Vote

New York, April 28.—The county committee of New York of the new Independence party last night celebrated its second annual banquet. W. R. Hearst declared in a speech that "the labor committee of the national house of representatives is constituted and conducted to prevent the measures in which labor is interested from coming to a vote on the floor of the house and to relieve congressmen from the embarrassment of having to register a public vote on labor matters." He declared that citizens desirous of honest elections waste their votes when they vote for either one of the old parties.

Doings of Paper Combine

Washington, April 28.—Evidence tending to show that there has been unity of action among paper mills in the matter of fixing the price of paper, as well as an understanding that none of them shall sell to the customer of another; that contracts for paper cannot be obtained for a period longer than a year, and that the mills arbitrarily shut down or restricted their output, was presented before the select house committee which is investigating the price of print paper as affected by the tariff and the question of whether or not there is a combination in restraint of trade.

Emma Eames Sues Story

New York, April 28.—Emma Eames, the operatic star, has filed a complaint in the supreme court of New York against Julian Story, from whom she was divorced, to recover a large amount of personal property which she says belongs to her, although still retained by her former husband. She asks a judgment awarding her the goods or their value, which is estimated at $20,000.

Loss of Mail Bags Admitted

New York, April 28.—Chief Postoffice Inspector Mayer has confirmed the dispatch sent from London giving the information that two mail bags had been lost on their arrival at New York from Europe last March. One bag was directed to Brooklyn and the other was destined for St. Louis. The bags are reported to have contained $500,000 in securities and other valuables.

Remarkable Escape From Death

Philadelphia, April 28.—In a storm which passed over Lancaster county Jennie Martin, aged 29, was struck by lightning and was denuded, her clothing being torn to shreds. Her hair was burned off and her shoes were ripped from her feet, yet she was not severely injured. Her clothing, picked up near where she was struck, was cut as though with a knife.

Don't you want to try on a shoe that really fits like a glove? A shoe of graceful, beautiful lines, that feels perfectly comfortable on your foot and yet looks more attractive than any shoe you have worn?

If you do, we would be glad to show you the La France Shoe for Women—the shoe which has most successfully combined beauty and comfort.

These shoes are not expensive to buy, but they have no superior at any price—they are worn regularly by thousands of fastidious women to whom price is no object.

You may as well have your shoes "just right."

Message Is Held Up

Washington, April 28.—Conditions in both the senate and the house were such that the special message of the president, which was sent to congress yesterday, received but scant attention. The house was so tied up under its new rules that it could not officially receive the message, while the senate was in the midst of the consideration of the naval appropriation bill under the ten-minute rule when the document reached that body. Unlike the house, the senate permitted the formal presentation of the message, but by the time the naval bill had been disposed of the hour was so late that no attempt was made to read the document and the reading was postponed until today.

Anxious to Meet Burns

London, April 28.—Jack Johnson, the negro heavyweight pugilist, accompanied by his manager, arrived here from New York last evening. They immediately issued a challenge to Tommy Burns, the heavyweight champion, to fight anywhere for any purse acceptable to Burns. Johnson also offers to bet Burns $2500 that he will stop him in twenty rounds. In addition, he will concede to Burns two-thirds of any purse that is put up for the contest.

Far Out of Her Course

Hamilton, Bermuda, April 28.—The French steamer Breiz Huel, Dunkirk for New York, was towed into the port of St. George yesterday afternoon. She broke her rudder April 14, since when she has been reported several times from the Atlantic. One vessel, the Lucerna, even took her in tow, but was obliged to let her go because of heavy weather and the breaking of the tow line.

Twelve Persons Drowned

Helena, Ark., April 28.—The Marion, a sixty-five-ton boat, left Helena with members of a carnival company that had been playing here. The boat was struck by a storm and capsized. The sixty-two passengers and members of the crew climbed on top of the overturned boat. High waves swept many from their hold and twelve were drowned in sight of their helpless companions.

Cornell Racing Shells Wrecked

Ithaca, N. Y., April 28.—As a result of a smashup on Cayuga lake the Cornell Athletic association is several hundred dollars poorer, two of the best four-oar shells having been completely demolished. The four-oared crews were rowing in opposite directions and neither noticed the other approaching until their bows met. The crews had to swim ashore.

Shah's Gift to Roosevelt

Washington, April 28.—President Roosevelt was presented with a magnificent Turkish rug, the gift of the Sultan of Turkey, by the Turkish minister, Mehmed Ali Bey. The presentation took place at the White House. The rug, which is said to be of an exclusive design, is the product of the sultan's private factory, located near Constantinople.

Calls For a Second McKinley

Dublin, April 28.—Richard Croker aired some of his views regarding political conditions in the United States. "What America needs," Croker said in conclusion, "is a quiet president. The country wants a rest for a long time under some statesman like William McKinley."

Cardinal Dies In Church

Reggio Calabria, Italy, April 28.—While walking to the altar in the cathedral here to celebrate mass, Cardinal Gennaro Portanova, archbishop of the diocese, fell dead. Physicians give the cause of death as heart failure.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Club notes tomorrow.

Shipyard news on page three, and naval program of the United States on page two.

H. H. Blake from Medford has moved into one half of M. E. Cook's house, 899 Hancock street.

Harry Brown and family of Washington street, Braintree, have moved to Elm avenue, corner of Kemper street.

While in Washington last week lawyer George W. Abele was admitted a member of the bar of the United States Supreme court.

Ladies of Quincy are invited to send to the Daily Ledger their salad receipts, to be published on Friday. Receipts are now a regular Friday feature.

An appropriation of $20,000 was included in the sundry civil appropriation bill of Congress for the completion of the Federal building at Quincy.

A handkerchief with key tied to one corner was picked up Sunday near the City Hospital and left at this office.

Several members of Paul Revere post, G. A. R., in uniform, were among those who witnessed the military play of "Shenandoah" at the Boston theatre on Monday night.

The S. Agnes Parker circle, connected with Corps 103, have been making infant and children's clothing for the Chelsea sufferers. A box will be sent from G. A. R. hall today.

Mrs. Alfred Bean has returned to the home of her sister Mrs. William H. Gould after a serious operation at the Charlesgate hospital, and her many friends are glad to learn she is on the road to recovery.

The social attractions for this evening are numerous, including meeting of the Quincy Historical Society, ladies night of Men's club of Atlantic, April meeting of Wollaston Congregational club, fair of Eastern Star, two dances, etc.

Corps 103 has been well remembered in the department appointed aids. Special aid at Department headquarters, President Edith B. Wolfe. Aids, Annie G. Grignon, Kate A. Blaisdell, Elizabeth M. Farrell, and Alberta Hewson.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson of 4 President's avenue gave a family dinner and musicale on Sunday, April 26. Mrs. Frederic L. Flowers of Braintree and Mrs. John H. Roberts of Boston contributed the musical program with Mr. Wilson as accompanist.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Howe of Lynn were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Francis Fuller on Sunday at their new home No. 90 Safford street. Mr. Howe is a well known mechanical engineer in electrical work, having been connected with the General Electric Co. for a number of years. Mr. and Mrs. Fuller are now at home to all their friends.

All skeptics who declare that "the age of magic has passed away" are requested to witness a performance of the play of "Visi Versa" to be given in Christ Church parish house on the evenings of May 6 and 7, and they will be surprised to see what wonderful changes are brought about by the Indian Talisman in the hands of Mr. Bultitude.

Capt. Benj. King of Wollaston has been appointed curator of the birthplace of President John Quincy Adams by the Quincy Historical Society and assumed the position this week. He was formerly sexton of the Wollaston Congregational church, and is interested in historic Quincy, and should make a good man for the position.

The musical productions by pupils of the High school have surprised Quincy people in recent years, but nothing seems too difficult. Now it is announced that Rossini's Stabit Mater will be presented next Tuesday evening at Quincy Music hall. The High school chorus and orchestra will be assisted by a first class Boston quartet. Tickets are now on sale.

Miss Cole of Atlantic, entertained her numerous friends, Monday night, in celebration of her birthday. A very enjoyable evening was spent by friends hailing from Providence, Worcester, Pittsfield, Brockton and Quincy. Hiss Cole was the recipient of many valuable presents, most noticeable of which was a magnificent bracelet sent by her godmother, Mrs. Chaloner, of Strafford House, Sheffield, England.

MONEY TO GET MARRIED

Young Couple Tried to Raise It In a Dishonest Manner

Worcester, Mass., April 28.—Charged with the theft of jewelry and clothing of the value of nearly $1000 from the home of E. H. H. Smith of Bridgeport, Conn., Maria A. Gabbler, 19 years old, and Oscar F. Carlson, aged 25, are under arrest. Miss Gabbler is detained in this city, while Carlson is in the lockup in Woonsocket, R. I.

Miss Gabbler and Carlson came here yesterday and took out a marriage license at city hall, afterwards going to the residence of Rev. Matthew Esselstrom, pastor of the Finnish Baptist church, where they left their license, telling him that they would return on Wednesday to be married. Afterwards Carlson went to Woonsocket to get some clothing which he had left in his room there and the police, learning that he was accused of the Bridgeport theft, caused his arrest and that of the girl in this city. According to the Worcester police both the prisoners have confessed to the robbery.

Miss Gabbler was formerly employed at the residence of E. H. H. Smith, and it is alleged that while the family were absent last Friday the house was robbed. According to the police, Miss Gabbler said that she and her sweetheart committed the theft so that they could have something to get married on.

Young Lover Shot by Rival

Lewiston, Me., April 28.—Vital Rittia died in the central Maine general hospital here from a bullet wound received at Groveton, N. H., where he lived. Rittia was with Miss Jessie Brown, with whom he had been keeping company, when he was shot by another Italian. The assailant made his escape and has not yet been arrested. Miss Brown says Rittia's assailant was Joseph Garilloty, jealousy is thought to have been the cause of the shooting. Rittia was 19 years old, while Garilloty is about 23.

Killed by Angry Bull

Providence, April 28.—William L. McGuire, aged 36, died as the result of injuries sustained by being gored by a bull at Riverpoint. Maguire was employed at a stock farm and while attempting to enter an enclosure where the bull was confined the bull turned on him and gored him in the side, breaking several ribs and piercing his left lung. It was only after an exciting struggle with several men armed with pitchforks that the angry beast was brought under subjection.

Grant's Descendants at Banquet

Boston, April 28.—The presence of Major General Frederick D. Grant and Lieutenant U. S. Grant, son and grandson, respectively, of the famous Civil war leader and president, lent an additional interest to the annual "Grant night" of the Middlesex club last night. High eulogies were paid to General Grant, both as a general and as a president, and some of the speakers placed him as a president greater than Roosevelt.

Higher Wages Demanded

Boston, April 28.—Boston Bridge and Structural Iron Workers and Housesmiths' union voted last night that on May 1 every member employed by any firm which has not agreed to the union's desired 1908 wage scale would strike. The new schedule calls for 50 cents an hour for bridge and structural men and housesmiths, and 38 cents an hour for helpers and apprentices. This is an increase over the present terms.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and trying the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Check for $1000 Sent to Chelsea

This morning, R. F. Claflin, treasurer of the Quincy fund being collected for the relief of the Chelsea relief fund, forwarded a check for $1,000 to Lee, Higginson & Co., the Boston, treasurers of the fund. This is the first cash contribution sent by the Quincy committee, although several car loads of clothing, furniture, etc., have been forwarded.

Quincy has been congratulated upon the quality of the articles forwarded and the manner in which they were prepared for shipment which reflects great credit on Mr. Flynn who has charge of the receiving station.

Ward Three people come to the front today, the following having contributed $24 to Henry McGrath, the Ward Three chairman. Articles of clothing and furniture have also been left at the office of McGrath Bros. on Water street.

Exhibition By Y. M. C. A. Boys

The gallery at the Y. M. C. A. gym. was well filled with the parents and friends of the boys on Monday evening. About forty boys in the regulation red and grey gym. suit took part in the exhibition.

The program consisting of drills, maze run, games, races, apparatus work, tumbling and pyramids, was run off in a smooth and creditable manner.

Much credit is due the leader's squad for the way they handled their squads in the various events.

The competition for the Bentley cup was very keen. Proficiency in attendance and deportment during March and April, combined with marching and drilling in the exhibition were necessary to win the cup. The judges found it very difficult to decide between four boys: W. Hall, G. Jennings, P. Brown and E. Chase, but finally decided in favor of P. Brown whose attendance was 100 and his others marks high. Paul is to be congratulated on his fine work.

TODAY'S COURT.

James Bowers was fined $10, and Frank T. Stewart $3, for violation of the fish and game law at Braintree.

HALT IN PEACE PLANS

Efforts of United States Checked by Guatemalan Strife

ASSUMING A SERIOUS PHASE

Indication That Mexico Will Dispatch Troops to Frontier Worries Washington, as Entire Work of Recent Peace Conference May Be Undone

Washington, April 28.—Recent disturbances in Guatemala, made manifest by the attempt on the life of President Cabrera, are regarded here as likely to interfere with the peace mission to the five Central American republics which was to have been carried out by W. I. Buchanan, representing the American government, and Ambassador Creel, representing the Mexican government.

Upon Mexico will depend the carrying out of the peace mission. It is explained here that Mexico never has indicated her willingness to participate in such an undertaking, and it was with a view of having the matter presented first hand to that government that Buchanan was sent to the City of Mexico, where he now is, having gone there in company with Ambassador Creel from the Mexican state of Chihuahua.

To emphasize the desire felt by the American government that the recent peace conference held in this city should be cemented and the harmonizing influences continued, the cruiser Albany was dispatched from San Francisco to Salina Cruz, there to take aboard the commissioners should the trip be decided on, and to convey them to the different Central American capitals.

It was just as this trip was being considered by President Diaz that the Guatemalan situation was reported to have suddenly given indications of assuming serious importance. Should the long-existing tendency to friction between Guatemala and Mexico become active, it seems apparent that Mexico will not participate in the peace mission.

On the contrary, the reports from the Mexican capital indicate that troops may be dispatched to the Guatemalan frontier. This move is regarded with concern at the state department, as war at this time would tend to undo the entire work of the peace conference and leave the five republics again subject to the turbulent tendencies of the past. It is stated at the state department here that as yet the mission of Buchanan and Ambassador Creel has not been called off.

Troops Ordered to Return

Mexico City, April 28.—Batteries of mounted artillery which left Mexico City ostensibly for the Guatemalan border were ordered back to the capital and are again in this city.

Enrique C. Creel arrived yesterday and called on President Diaz and Minister of Foreign Affairs Mariscal. He stated that he has as yet received no orders to proceed to Central America in company with Special Commissioner Buchanan of the United States.

President Diaz called a special meeting of his cabinet yesterday, but nothing transpired to the public. It is generally believed that this extra cabinet session was called to discuss the Guatemalan crisis.

It is officially denied that Mexico will be a party to joint intervention in Central American affairs, though it is a known fact that Cabrera's actions and the chaos in Guatemala is causing great concern here. It is rumored that the mission of Buchanan and Creel may be indefinitely postponed.

The crisis in Guatemala follows an attempt to assassinate President Cabrera, the execution of eight cadets and several army officers for complicity in the conspiracy, and the temporary detention in Guatemala of Finance Minister Bustillos of Honduras, who was sent to Guatemala on a confidential mission.

Bustillos had completed his mission and attempted to embark from San Jose when the commandant of that port prevented him and informed him that his presence was desired in Guatemala City. He was under surveillance on the way to the capital and on arrival there took refuge in the Mexican legation. The Mexican charge d'affaires secured passports for him and Bustillos was then allowed to embark from San Jose.

Journey of Over 42,000 Miles

Washington, April 28.—A total of approximately 42,500 miles will have been covered by the Atlantic battleship fleet when it arrives at Hampton Roads on Feb. 22 next, according to estimates made by the naval officials. The longest lap of this distance is that from Honolulu to Auckland, 3850 miles.

$70,000 For Stock Exchange Seat

New York, April 28.—A seat on the New York Stock Exchange sold yesterday for $70,000. This was an advance of $5000 over the last previous sale, which was made late in March, and represents a gain of $19,000 since last November, when an exchange membership was sold for $51,000.

Charged With Embezzlement

New York, April 28.—On the arrival of steamer Coamo from Porto Rico a detective boarded the steamer and arrested a passenger named Hawkins on a charge of embezzlement from the government of Porto Rico.

"Ralston's for Mine"

That's what you'll say if you will look into the merits of the Ralston shoe—and after you've tried one pair you'll never have to be urged again.

You'll find that not only in style and dependability Ralstons have no superiors, even among five and six dollar shoes, but also that when it comes to fitting qualities Ralstons have no equals.

Ralston foot print lasts have marked a new epoch in shoe construction.

Let us show you why.

LADIES NIGHT

Banquet of Men's Club Society Event Of Atlantic

The Men's club of Atlantic gave a "Ladies' Night" in Music Hall on Tuesday evening that will be long remembered as one of the most successful functions ever given in Ward Six. The president, Frank Jenkins and the vice president, William F. Cummings, have bent every energy to make this first public entertainment finished in every detail, and with the aid of the secretary, Fred M. Burditt and the treasurer, William Arthur, the accomplished of that purpose exceeded all anticipation.

At 7 o'clock, E. F. Hicks of Charlestown served a banquet ranging from oysters to coffee and including the season's choicest viands, to which some hundred appreciative partakers sat down and feasted.

The banquet was served in the main hall and the long white tables with their many colored dainties spread between rows of prettily gowned women and men in evening clothes, made an attractive setting as all heads bowed during the invocation by Rev. Henry Albert Coolidge which preceded the rush of good fellowship and mirth that is attendant upon appetizing edibles.

Following the supper, President Jenkins made a few appropriate remarks. He was roundly applauded which was eloquent of his popularity.

An address followed by Hon. Charles H. Porter on "Reminiscences of the War." Mr. Porter was well primed on his subject and in his eloquence made his audience actually feel the stir of battle and hear the rush of feet and the stir of fife and drum.

Mrs. Edith Cary Page of Quincy rendered three brilliant solos, "Waltz song—Baccio" by Arditi; "Irish Folk Song" by Arthur Foote, and "A May Morning" by Denza. Mrs. Page is a favorite in the musical world and her charming voice endeared her to the audience.

Erastus Osgood, in his impersonations was popular to the extent of three and four encores. He is versatile and vastly amusing; a true comedian in his line of talent.

The trios by Mrs. Page, Miss Mabel Drew and Miss Bertha Carlson were splendidly rendered, and the selections were well suited to the three voices. Miss Helen Maria Lincoln was at the piano.

This opening Ladies' night was a charming diversion from anything that has ever been given in Atlantic, and as the president and vice president received the shower of congratulations that fell upon them from all sides they must have felt that their untiring energy had been well expened.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. William Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Burditt, Mr. and Mrs. William Arthur, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Thomas, Dr. and Mrs. Harry Kolseth, Rev. and Mrs. Henry A. Collidge, Mrs. Harry Read, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cherrington, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hobbs, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Sprague, F. V. Kolb, Louise S. Kolb, Dr. and Mrs. F. J. Peirce, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Von Emden, Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Colburn, Mrs. S. T. Willey, Gladys Willey, Clara Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Butler, Mrs. Nichols, Walter Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Sodergren, Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Bahe, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. French, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Green, Ruth Bean, Mr. and Mrs. T. P. DeWolfe, Mr. and Mrs. K. Palmer, Horace Jenkins, Martha Jenkins, F. Gordon Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Barker, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. White, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hadlock, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Buckley, Mr. and Mrs. William Lambert, Louis Coles, George Geekie, Mr. and Mrs. Elliot Greene, H. Whiting, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Elwell, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Newcomb Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Coombs, Laura E. Coles and Mrs. Annie Geekie.

Caught in Belting And Instantly killed

Angelo Cislaggi, aged about 18 years, was almost instantly killed Tuesday afternoon at the polishing mill of Reed & Vandrett on Vernon street. Cislaggi, who was a tool boy, attempted to replace a belt that had slipped from a pulley. His clothing was caught and he was whirled about the shafting until his clothing was torn from his body. He was then thrown between the shafting and the roof timbers and so firmly wedged in the small place that it was with difficulty he was removed. It was thought for a time it would be necessary to saw away the roof timbers. Almost every shred of clothing was torn from his body, and many bones crushed and broken. Death was almost instantaneous.

The Union and the Church.

James Duncan, first vice president of the American Federation of labor, and the Rev. A. Edwin Cattenburg, of Wollaston will address the meeting at the Washington Street church, Quincy Point, on Sunday evening, May 3, at 7 o'clock. These two interesting speakers are to explain what the Union and what the Church has done for the people. This is the first of a series of such services which will be of special interest and instruction to every wage-earner.

Assistant Assessors

Ward One—James P. Dunn.
Ward Two—Joseph A. Delory.
Ward Three—Leo J. McMaster.
Ward Four—Edward T. Monahan.
Ward Five—John T. Cain.
Ward Six—Jerald A. Sullivan.

They will meet at City Hall tonight for instruction.

A very successful dancing party was held at Faxon hall, Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Pine Tree club. Our party was very largely attended, and a good time was enjoyed. Thompson's orchestra furnished the music, and ice cream and cake were served during a brief intermission.

MEMORIAL SERVICES

Many Tributes To Doctor H. M. Willard By His Friends

A service in memory of Horace Mann Willard was held Tuesday afternoon in Livermore hall at the Quincy Mansion school. It was of an impressive nature, life-long friends and former pupils uniting in testifying to the worth of Dr. Willard, who died Aug. 24, 1907.

Rev. Edward Anderson presided, and among those present aside from the speakers were Joshua Crane of Taunton, John J. Loud of Weymouth, John L. Casey of Brookline, Prof. Bragdon of Lasell seminary, Mrs. Otto B. Cole, Mrs. W. B. Casrie, Miss A. A. Rogers, Mrs. Judith W. Smith, Mrs. George T. Perkins, Mrs. Wonde, Mrs. M. C. Hall, Mrs. W. E. Alden and Prof. Fay of Tufts college.

Col. Anderson in opening the exercises said that our hearts are in unison on an occasion like this, when we are called together in memory of a man who has been such a worker, and to endorse the work of Mrs. Willard and her corps of teachers.

After the singing of a hymn, Col. Anderson introduced Rev. A. E. Clattenberg who read the scripture lesson from the fifth chapter of St. John. This was followed by prayer by Rev. E. D. Webber, and singing.

Col. Anderson then read a number of letters from those who were unable to be present, all bearing testimony to the worth of Dr. Willard as a teacher, a man and a Christian. These letters came from all over the country, showing how wide had been his influence.

The first speaker was Prof. Poland of Brown University, who read a letter from Dr. G. L. Porter of Bridgeport, Ct. He also said that Dr. Willard's character impressed all that came in contact with him.

Rev. Dr. Huntington, of Boston University, spoke from an acquaintance with Mr. Willard of thirty-three years. The deeds he did, and the things, he said, were never out of his memory. He knew of no man that filled out more fully the typical teacher than did Horace Mann Willard. He was a cultured man never at loss for words. It was no effort for him to talk about religious experience, as it flowed from him like light from the sun An aunt of Dr. Willard, who is 97 years of age, at his passing says that she had a vision from him, and declares that he visited her that day. May it not be possible she did have such a visit.

Miss Clara A. Converse of Yokohama, Japan, a pupil of Dr. Willard, spoke of what he had done for her. She could not say in words what he had done in shaping her life. It was his genuineness, his sincerity in his life that impresses us. He put before us as a teacher truth and honesty as high ideals. Another element was the personal interest that he took in the individual. He seemed to look into our hearts and to know what was best for us. He gave us an inspiration for life. He was not only a teacher of mind but of heart. He urged us to be brave, to be strong, and to impress our sincerity upon all.

Dr. John A. Gordon of this city admired him for his fine personality. He impressed him as a man of noble character which became more and more manifest. To associate with him made us feel better. He never knew him to say an unkind word or do an unkind act. He gave much of his time to the advancement of city affairs and public works. He bore his last illness with wonderful patience. Here his true Christian spirit became more and more apparent.

Rev. H. G. Megathlin of the Park and Downs church spoke of him as a neighbor. He let his light so shine that his light fell on those near him. Those that knew him loved him. His personality was the influence that was felt the most strongly. He believed as a child and his child-like thought had its influence upon us. He was more than a school master. He was too great for any one church, or any one denomination. He had a responsibility for them all. He lived for the coming of the kingdom of God right here and in the whole world.

Col. Anderson said the school room was the modeling room of souls. The work he did you have in pictures of the real artist. His life work is but just begun. The work that he has done will continue to grow larger and larger until we cannot conceive of what will come out of his work and that of Mrs. Willard. No memory dies. It must bear that impression and give it out. These few hundred souls that have received it will give it out until we cannot dream of the outcome. This is not a time for weeping, but to feel proud that we have seen such a life and the glory of the work of these two lives.

The last speaker was Prof. Jesse B. Thomas of Newton Centre. Mr. Thomas said the most precious legacy is the influence that came to those who had a personal relationship with Dr. Willard in the school and the home. The Christian atmosphere that filled the place he was largely responsible for. The man's character is given by those who knew him best, and loved him best. He had a warm, open and true heart and was a friend without a flaw.

During the exercises several hymns were sung. The exercises closed with prayer by Rev. William J. Heath of Wollaston.

LIVING PICTURES

Notable People of Historic Quincy Presented to Historical Society

The members of the Quincy Historical Society are indebted to Mr. Emery L. Crane and Miss Georgianna Lane for a delightful program on Tuesday evening. Eight ladies and gentlemen prominent in the earlier history of Quincy were the subject of eight-minute papers, each being followed by a living picture, the subject very faithfully represented by young people of the society posed by Miss Lane. There was a large audience which filled the chapel.

Brooks Adams, Esq., the president, presided, and said the society was engaged in a serious business, not merely for entertainment, but for the instruction of the younger generations. The country must have roots that it may be built on a solid foundation. The society is fortunate in having among its members so many who are interested in historical research, as the meetings of the past had shown and the program of the evening would continue.

Emery L. Crane was then introduced, and outlined the program he had prepared, which included eight-minute papers, pictures and music as follows:

Col. John Quincy, paper by Mrs. Wilson Marsh, illustrated by Kathryn Crane.

John Hancock, paper by Miss Florence Faxon, illustrated by Allan Arnold.

Abigail Adams, paper by H. H. Schumacher, illustrated by Catherine Saville.

John Adams, paper by John R. Arnold, illustrated by Walter H. Soley.

Group of songs, Mrs. J. H. Slade accompanied by Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann.

Dorothy Hancock, original poem by Mrs. George G. Saville, illustrated by Beatrice Morrison.

John Wheelright, paper by Brooks Adams, illustrated by H. Houghton Schumacher.

Dorothy Q, Dr. Holmes' poem read by Mrs. Isabelle Davis, illustrated by Blanche Morrison.

Tutor Flynt, paper by Emery L. Crane, illustrated by Avord Sproul.

"America" sung by audience.

No attempt will be made to report at length the papers presented, because it is the intention of the Daily Ledger to publish each one in full at an early date. In the Saturday eight-page Ledger the very interesting research of Mrs. Marsh, relative to Col. John Quincy, for whom the city of Quincy was named, will appear, and perhaps two papers in different issues the following week. Mrs. Marsh has supplemented the recent address of Rev. D. M. Wilson with many facts which should be familiar to every resident of Quincy, concerning his birth

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE

Young Men's Christian Association

OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title ~ Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

Considerable moving at the close of this month.

The Granite City club will wind up its weekly whist tournaments tonight.

The next hearing by the commissioners on the abolition of grade crossings will be held Monday, May 11.

Miss Marie Carter of Cleveland, Ohio, is the guest for a week of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schulz of Biglow street.

Rev. A. R. Atwood spoke last week on the "Fresh Air Camp for Weymouth and Quincy," at the Weymouth Heights church.

Representative Hultman, who has been passing the winter in Boston, moved to his Quincy home on Washington street on Tuesday.

Thomas W. Lincoln, Jr., is having his house corner Washington street and Washingington court painted. Percy Holman is doing the job.

Lawns and gardens are receiving attention. Most people have pride enough in their homes, to make the front yard look as attractive and inviting as possible.

A resolve was reported in the Legislature on Tuesday appropriating $7,500 for dredging the channel at Wollaston beach, for which Representatives Hultman and Coombs have been working.

We have the stock, tools, machinery, and "know how" to do your Optical work promptly and satisfactory. We repair the frames, grind lenses, match the broken ones or test the eye. C. F. Pettengill, 1391 Hancock street, Quincy.

A BAY STATE NOVELTY

Chelsea Commission Bill Comes Before the Legislature

NON-RESIDENT SUGGESTION

Most of Fire Insurance Money Has Gone to Satisfy Claims of Mortgagees--Rumors of Fraud In Relief Work Appear to Be Unfounded

Boston, April 29.—The Chelsea commission bill is now looming up as one of the most unique propositions in the legislature. It has, after a warm discussion, been referred to the joint committees on cities and metropolitan affairs, which will give a hearing upon the matter.

Not only is the serious proposition to govern a Massachusetts city by commission a novelty, but the more remarkable suggestion came yesterday after the hearing before the committee on rules as to the admission of the bill, that the governor be given the right to appoint upon the commission citizens not residents of Chelsea.

Senator Hall, who went before the committee on rules, explained that the banks will not lend money to rebuild Chelsea under the present political conditions, and he said that of the $3,500,000 of insurance money more than three-fourths had gone to satisfy the claims of mortgagees.

Speaker Cole asked why the senate had referred the bill to the committee on metropolitan affairs rather than to the committee on cities. Hall answered that the petitioners favored such reference.

Representative Robinson of Chelsea and Representative Pierce of Revere favored the admission of the bill.

Ex-Representative Merritt of Chelsea started to say that jealousy among the committees should not be allowed to interfere with the admission of the bill, but he was stopped by Cole, who said:

"Never in the history of the legislature has a matter affecting a city charter been sent to any committee but that on cities. This establishes a precedent and an important one. It is not a question of jealousy between committees, nor has any been shown."

The relief work for the fire sufferers of Chelsea is now in first-class shape and progressing in rapid style. The haphazard manner of distributing goods to the needy, that was in operation for some days after the fire, has now been superseded by a system which not only expedites the work but prevents any fraud being perpetrated.

Rumors have been rife, almost since the relief work started, of great frauds being practiced. It was reported that many persons received more than they were entitled to, and that others who were not damaged by the fire were provided for.

It can be stated that no relief work of such tremendous proportions was ever carried on with any less waste. It is certain that several frauds were committed immediately after the conflagration, when the relief committee was working might and main to relieve sufferers as quickly as possible.

Several arrests have already been made and convictions secured. It is believed other arrests will follow as soon as the investigation committee can get the desired evidence. But these frauds have been rather few in numbers in comparison to the great work being carried on.

Celebration of Catholics

New York, April 29.—There was a notable gathering of Catholic hierarchy yesterday in St. Patrick's cathedral, where public thanksgiving was offered for the completion of a hundred years of Catholicity in New York. With two exceptions, every archbishop in the country was present, and all of the leading bishops and numerous heads of the various religious orders, with Cardinal Gibbons at their head. Mgr. Falconio, the apostolic delegate, represented the Vatican, and at the close of the ceremonies imparted the papal benediction.

No Criminal Negligence

Yarmouth, Eng., April 29.—A coroner's jury, after hearing the evidence of the captains of the American line steamship St. Paul and the cruiser Gladiator, respectively, which collided in the Solent on Saturday, and other witnesses, brought in a verdict declaring that nobody was criminally to blame for the loss of life. The question as to whether any one was actually to blame for the collision, however, will be minutely investigated at the court martial to be held on the loss of the Gladiator.

Senate Confirms Patterson

Washington, April 29.—The nomination of Joab N. Patterson to be pension agent at Concord, N. H., was confirmed by the senate. He was appointed after the senate declined to confirm Charles W. Fairbanks of Concord, whose nomination was said to be in the interest of Taft's candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination.

Fritzi Scheff May Get Divorce

New York, April 29.—Fritzi Scheff, the actress, is entitled to a decree of absolute divorce from Baron Von Bardelben, according to a report which has just been made by Referee Wise, who took testimony in the case. Justice McCall of the supreme court took the matter under advisement and reserved decision.

Must Produce Documents

New York, April 29.—After several days of fruitless effort to obtain certain books and papers needed in its investigation of the affairs of the Fibre and Manila Paper Manufacturers' association, the federal grand jury made a presentment directing the commitment for contempt of Secretary Campbell of the Dexter Sulphite company, President Outerson of the De Gras Paper company and Sales Agent Haupt of the Munissing Paper company. Campbell and Outerson were given until next Friday to produce the required documents. Judge Lacombe declined to act in Haupt's case, since it did not appear that Haupt was the legal custodian of the company's papers.

Naval Surgeon Dismissed

Washington, April 29.—Acting Assistant Surgeon Schwerin, attached to the torpedo destroyer flotilla on the recent trip from Hampton Roads to Magdalena bay, was found guilty by a court martial of charges against him and sentenced to dismissal from the navy. It was charged that Schwerin, then on the Whipple, neglected to attend a sick fireman on the Hull, but instead sent a hospital apprentice to him. The fireman afterwards died. It was also alleged that Schwerin's report conveyed the impression that he had personally attended the sick man. The navy department has approved the sentence of the court martial.

Gas Kills Six Italians

New York, April 29.—The bodies of six unknown Italians were found in a room on the third floor of a Greenwich street lodging house. The gas in the room was turned on. After the Italians had closed the door for the night they had nailed it shut from the inside and had fastened the window tight, evidently with the idea of preventing thieves from entering the room. One of the men had evidently turned out the light, but did not fully close the stop.

Work of the Senate

Washington, April 29.—The pension and the District of Columbia appropriation bills were passed by the senate yesterday. In addition, the special message of the president was read and another chapter of Senator Warner's speech on the Brownsville affray was heard. Several measures of minor importance, and the resolution of the house to give government aid to cyclone sufferers in the south were passed.

Secret Correspondence on Congo

Brussels, April 29.—Premier Schollaert, in reply to a question in the chamber of deputies, said that he was unable to make public the exchange of views which the Belgian government had had with the United States and Great Britain on the matter of the Congo Independent State without first obtaining the consent of those governments. The correspondence between them, he said, is still proceeding.

Steamer Hit Sunken Wreck

Halifax, April 29.—That steamer Deike Rickmer, towed in here by steamer St. Bride, broke her propellor by coming into contact with sunken wreckage was made known when a port warden survey was held on her. Along the port side can be seen marks where the wreckage scraped and where it was thrown up when the propellor struck it. Three blades of the propellor were snapped off.

CAME AS A SURPRISE

Special Message Was Not Expected From the President

HOUSE LEADERS OFFENDED

Got Impression That Chief Executive Would Let Congress Have Its Way--His Action Gives Minority Comfort and Fresh Courage

Washington, April 29.—Although nearly every member of the house had read the president's special message in the newspapers, a large number remained in their seats yesterday, carefully following the words of the reading clerk. When the portion of the message referring to the multi-millionaire "whose son is a fool and his daughter a foreign princess" was reached there was a storm of applause, equally prominent on both sides of the house.

The general talk about congress is to the effect that the president's message will not cause any change to be made in the tentative program to adjourn this session in about three weeks. For the last two or three days there has been more talk about May 28 than of May 15 as the quitting date.

This last message has tended to increase the resentment in congress against the White House. The legislative leaders supposed they had reached a working agreement with the president a week ago. Representative Watson, the "whip" of the house, who held several conferences with the president at the request of the speaker, got the impression that the chief executive was willing to let congress have its way and so reported to the speaker.

The tenor of that report was that, while the president still felt that his legislative program should be carried out, he realized that it could not be put through, and therefore, in the interest of party harmony, was willing to remain passive. But few senators or representatives had any intimation that another message was coming in. Each branch of the legislative body displayed its feelings by adjourning before the message had been read.

The Republicans of the house—the organization Republicans—are particularly offended because the message, they say, lends comfort to the minority, which has all along justified its filibuster on the assertion that the obstructive methods were being used as a weapon to compel the majority to enact the legislation demanded by the president.

"We were getting along splendidly," said the majority leader. "The filibuster showed signs of weakening, but now that the White House has thrown the minority another crumb we may expect Mr. Williams and his flock to take fresh courage."

The course of the president is approved by a few Republicans in senate and house who insist that congress should carry out the program the president has laid down.

The message of President Roosevelt was read to the senate immediately after the morning business had been disposed of. Many senators followed the reading from printed copies of the message.

Mother and Children Perished

Laporte, Ind., April 29.—The removal of four charred bodies, the blackened forms of three children huddled about that of the mother, as if for protection, the arrest of Ray Lamphere, formerly employed by Mrs. Belle Gunness, the victim, and the collapse of Lamphere at the jail, has caused great excitement here. Lamphere was infatuated with Mrs. Gunness, who was a beautiful woman. She declared that the man annoyed her, and filed proceedings to have him declared insane, but a jury found him sane. It is supposed that the Gunness home was fired because of malice.

Critical Period In Lisbon

Lisbon, April 29.—Great concern exists lest the reopening of parliament today may be the occasion of a fresh outrage. King Manuel, in accordance with the traditions, must go in state to the cortes to pronounce the opening. The city is full of troops and the entire route from the palace to the parliament house will be lined with soldiers. The king will travel in a closed carriage, surrounded by lancers.

Battleship Boiler Tube Exploded

Portsmouth, April 29.—The explosion of a boiler tube on the British battleship Britannia during a full speed trial injured four men severely and one slightly. The Britannia anchored late last night at Spithead. The injured were not brought ashore and no communication could be had with the battleship.

Divorce a Stumbling Block

Naples, April 29.—One of the Naples newspapers says that the reason Prince Hefe de Sagan and Mrs. Gould are going to Rome is that they may discuss at the Vatican the possibility of meeting the objections of the church to a marriage between them on account of the fact that Mrs. Gould has been divorced.

Ruef Jury Secured

San Francisco, April 29.—The jury to try Abraham Ruef was completed yesterday afternoon, after both sides had exhausted their peremptory challenges. The taking of testimony commenced today.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

Notice has been given at the shipyard that any employe can have for the taking away, scrap wood and shavings lying between the North Dakota and the fence back of Yules' restaurant, by making application at the hospital gate on Saturday, May 2, between the hours of 1 and 5 P. M. A watchman will be in atendance.

A new salt-water line will be installed in the yard.

One O. H. steel shaft is being forged and rough machined for J. W. Sederquist.

Two nickle-steel shafts are being made for the General Electric Co.

What is believed to be some of the wreckage of the steamer Portland, which foundered Nov. 27, 1898, was brought to the surface by the crew of the fishing schooner Teresa and Alice in their trawls while fishing off Highland Light, last Friday. The junk consisted of a line of copper wire connected with a switch, an anchor and considerable wreckage. The sailors say that they were on the site of the sunken steamer. The switch and copper were saved as a souvenir while the remainder of the wreckage was cast overboard.

It is announced from Paso Robles Hot Springs, Cal., that if Rear Admiral Evans continues to improve as rapidly as he has during the past two weeks he will join the fleet at Monterey and be in command when the ships pass through the Golden Gate.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts was one of the 23 senators who voted for the amendment to the naval appropriation bill urged by the President, for four battleships instead of two, while Senator Crane was one of the 50 who voted against it.

The contemplated additions to the fleet of the White Star Line are two boats considerably larger than the Adriatic. They are to be used in the SouthamptonNew York service, and eventually will replace the Majestic and the Teutonic. One of these will be a 1000-foot steamship, to be named the Olympic, and it is possible that the other will be of the same class.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never fails. Sold by C. D. Harlow & Co., Druggists.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The Houghs Neck Associates meet tonight in Pandora hall.

Miss Rena B. Grant of Rawson road is spending the week with her aunt, Mrs. Whiting, in Milford.

Two much news today for one paper. The report of the School Committee meeting and other news will appear tomorrow.

The Wollaston Congregational church is represented at the South Conference in Boston today by Rev. E. A. Chase, Supt. George H. Murray, Deacon J. W. Lovett, Eleanor Thompson and others.

A sale of rugs made at the Morgan Memorial from clothing and old carpets is being held in the chapel of the First church this afternoon for the benefit of the Morgan memorial and Hospital Aid Association of Quincy.

That one improvemens brings another is shown by the awakened interest in Coddington street. Last week a lot of trees were set out along the roadside, and this week the city is giving the street a cleaning up and defining the sidewalk edge. A great improvement.

Mrs. Morrison Capron of Wollaston Park entertained the Park Sewing club Tuesday afternoon. Industry was coupled with a musical entertainment, followed by the serving of refreshments. One of the most pleasing features of the afternoon was the rendition of two bass solos by an honorary member of the club who gave his talent gratuitously for the afternoon. Each member was taken home in an automobile. The next meeting will be on Friday, May 15, with Miss Ruth Bassett of Walker street.

Clothing Is Not Wanted

The Chelsea relief fund acknowledged by Lee, Higginson & Co. now amounts to $298,528.55. The two large contributions received Tuesday were from Boston Sympony orchestra concert of $2,728.50, and citizens of Quincy, $1000.

The contribution credited in Monday's Daily Ledger to the Wollaston Unitarian club should have been credited to the Wollaston Unitarian church, representing the amount collected at the services on Sunday.

Additional contributions received today for the Chelsea relief fund were by Treasurer Claflin:

C. F. Carlson	$2.00
Randolph Bainbridge	5.00

Word has been received from Chelsea that no more articles of clothing or furniture are needed at present.

Expressmen Ask Council to Reconsider

The Quincy Expressmens Association held a meeting Tuesday evening relative to the action of the City Council in refusing express permits to transport liquor. After some discussion it was voted to petition the City Council to reconsider its action on petitions of members of the association.

Off for Japan

The British steamer Bisley, which has been at the Fore River Ship Building Co. dock for the past few days, loading the turbine engines built for the Japan navy, sailed this morning. Work loading the massive prices of machinery was completed Tuesday night and the steamer got underway in good season this morning, passing through the draw of the Quincy Point bridge at 9 o'clock.

TODAY'S COURT.

Max Cigal was fined $5 for collecting junk without a license at Milton.

George A. Lord of Boston was fined $15, Sumner Hancock of Brockton, $15; John B. Rhodes of Rochester, $25; William J. Sharkey of Needham, $35; and Fred H. White of Cambridge, $25; for exceeding the automobile limit at Milton.

AMONG THE CLUBS

Next week Thursday the Shakespeare club of Atlantic holds its final meeting for the season. It will be devoted to business being the annual meeting, and arrangements will be made for next season's program of meetings.

The closing lecture in the course to mothers by Mrs. Florence Evans of Dorchester under the auspices of the Mothers' association, will be given tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock in Bethany chapel.

Monday afternoon May 4 the Junior Friday club meets with Mrs. Perry Lawton of Foster street, Miss Georgiana C. Lane in charge of the afternoon's program. The closing meeting of the season will be with Miss Lane, when officers will be elected, reports for the year given, etc.

The Friday club winds up its season of literary work this week with a business meeting on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George G. Saville. Previous to the meeting the program committee has arranged for an entertainment of music and living pictures, which will represent some of the old paintings made familiar by the season's study of Florence.

Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution meet on Monday afternoon May 4th at the birthplace of President John Adams, Members from Braintree will be in charge of the afternoon's entertainment and act as hostesses during the social hour. A pleasant meeting is anticipated. Members are asked to bring to this meeting, or send their contribution, for the Paul Revere room, asked for by the State Society.

Wollaston Alliance closes the season next Wednesday May 6th holding the annual business meeting at three o'clock in the vestry of the Unitarian church.

A pleasant meeting of the Mothers' association is planned for the May meeting on the sixth at Bethany chapel. Mrs. George L. Badger will conduct the devotional exercises, Mrs. Ross K. Whiton will be the soloist and the paper of the afternoon will be by Mrs. Isabelle Davis on "What is Education?" Tea will be served at four o'clock.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

On Tuesday afternoon was held the last regular meeting of the Quincy Women's club previous to the annual on May 12th. Mrs. George W. Morton, president, called the meeting to order. The usual report was given by the secretary. A letter was read from Mrs. Rufus P. Williams of Cambridge urging members to assist in getting through congress an appropriation for the suppression of tuberculosis in which the National Federation of Women's clubs was much interested. Joining the National Federation was discussed and it was decided to reconsider the vote at the annual meeting, hoping that members would in the meantime look into the matter thoroughly.

Announcement was made of a special meeting to be held at the club house next Tuesday afternoon, May 5, under the auspices of the Philanthropic committee. It would be a recognition meeting for helping club members to become better acquainted and each one attending is asked to wear her visiting card pinned to her dress. There will be music, an entertainment and refreshments. It would also be a thimble party and each one is asked to bring her thimble also material suitable for trimming hats. A hundred or more hats are to be trimmed and sent to Chelsea. It will be quite exciting to see who will trim the prettiest one. The hour is two o'clock and all club members are cordially invited, nay urged to be present and thus in a measure carry out Mr. Brackett's idea of neighborliness and social service.

Following the business session the usual short musical progam was given, Miss Ernestine Litchfield of Wollaston singing the following group of songs accompanied by Mrs. Charles Sampson at the piano: "A Bowl of Roses," by Robert Clarke, "Until you Came," by John W. Metcalf and "The Capture," by Edouard Lalo. Miss Litchfield has a pleasing contralto, with rich tones and depth. She sings easily and naturally and club members expressed their approval in hearty applause.

Mrs. George G. Saville chairman of the Art and Literature committee, introduced the speaker of the afternoon Miss Caroline Ticknor of Jamaica Plain, whose subject was "Literary London," and People she had known in London" She told of visits to the homes of well known writers, the names of DuMaurier, George Eliot, Charles Dickens, Jane Austin, Thackery, Ann Thackery Ritchie and Charlotte Bronte, all being interwoven in a delightful group of anecdotes. Miss Ticknor made the familiar writers almost a present reality with her word pictures of their homes, the rooms in which they lived and wrote, their desk or manuscript and library of books all touched upon reverently.

It was an interesting paper, well written and brightly told in a chatty conversational way which proved entertaining.

In closing the meeting Mrs. Morton said many members' voices were not heard at the meetings and possibly they might have some good suggestions to make for the good of the club. In the reception room was a "question box" where it was hoped members would put suggestions, which would be read and acted upon at future meetings.

An informal reception was given Miss Ticknor and the exchange department and Arts and Crafts rooms were visited.

QUINCY ALLIANCE.

About fifty ladies were present at the closing meeting of the Alliance on Monday afternoon in the parlor of First church. Mrs. George W. Norton presided conducting the devotional session and the business meeting.

Being the last meeting of the season there was considerable business to be transacted which lengthened the program. Monthly and annual reports were given by the recording secretary and treasurer. The corresponding secretary read appeals from the Chelsea Alliance, Morgan Memorial and National Alliance and various sums were voted, some of which were augmented by personal contributions by members. Miss Underwood reported for Morgan Memorial; Mrs. Nichols for Cheerful Letter; Mrs. Wilson Marsh, Alliance Library and Alliance Basket; Mrs. E. B. Marsh, Junior Alliance; Mrs. Henry Tirrell, music. Delegates were appointed to attend Alliance meetings in various places.

The musical part of the program consisted of songs by Miss Carrie Follett Spear, two groups being pleasingly rendered, Miss Spear accompanying herself on the piano.

A Tolstoi afternoon had been planned with a paper by Mrs. Wilson Marsh on "Tolstoi as a Social Reformer" and an informal talk by Mrs. Delano. Owing to the hour being late Mrs. Marsh gave way to Mrs. Delano, who read in Russian a letter of Tolstoi's written to her, and later Alliance members had the pleasure of seeing that and other letters in Mrs. Delano's possession. Mrs. Delano was charming and told many interesting things of Tolstoi. She impressed upon her listeners the fact that Tolstoi saw things from a Russian viewpoint not American which we must bear in mind in reading his works. She had translated many of them. Mrs. Marsh supplemented Mrs. Delano's talk with an extract from her paper. It is hoped to have Mrs. Marsh's paper in full next season.

During the social half hour tea was served, Miss Mary Holden and Miss Belle Nightingale pouring.

Neighboring

Friday club of Everett has decided not to hold its annual luncheon the members thinking it better that the money should go for relief of Chelsea.

The Whitman Woman's club which recently held its annual meeting is one of the most flourishing in the state. It started in 1907, with 100 members and has today 350 members, and a waiting list of 135. It was voted to give $50 to the biennial fund and also to contribute to Chelsea sufferers. A working committee of twenty was appointed to plan for the visiting nurse association which the club will organize in the fall.

The annual meeting of the Old Colony club of Weymouth was held April 23, and the election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Gordon Willis; vice presidents, Mrs. William A. Wagner, Mrs. Walter R. Field; recording secretary, Mrs. M. C. Easterbrook; corresponding secretary, Miss Charlotte Craibe; treasurer, Mrs. Fletcher Howe; directors, Mrs. Henry B. Reed, Mrs. Joshua Smith, Mrs. Frederick Quinn, Mrs. L. Maria Simpson, Miss Francis Wheeler; auditors, Mrs. David M. Crawford, Mrs. Wallace Harris; custodian, Mrs. Charles Gale.

Officers of the Monday Club of Weymouth were elected April 20, as follows: President, Rev. E. Lilliaa

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and trying the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Quincy, Nov. 21 tf

Outclassed By Everett High

Quincy High ran up against a tough proposition when they tackled Everett High at Merrymount Park on Tuesday. The game was fast, as far as Everett was concerned. Their fielding and hitting being of the finest order. For Quincy, the only redeeming feature was Keohane's work in the left garden. After chasing one fly into the infield he brought the crowd to their feet by getting after what looked like a homer and nailing it with one hand near the fence. Bates was substituted for O'Rouke in the last two innings and did good work.

The visitors made 11 safe hits while Quincy scored but 6.

The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Everett High	3	1	2	0	0	0	9	0	0	—15
Quincy High	0	1	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	— 2

Two-base hits—Buckley. Three-base hits—Duncan, Buckley. Base on balls—by Rosenthal, 4; O'Rouke, 3. Struck out—by Rosenthal, 4; O'Rouke, 2; Bates, 2. Double plays—Lanceny to Foster. Hit by pitched ball—Foster. Umpire—Tupper. Time 2 hours.

The John Hancock base team defeated the Coddington Tuesday afternoon 10 to 3. The game was played on the Ward Three playground.

Tuesday afternoon the Cranch Hills defeated the 4th grade of the Cranch school by the score of 14 to 9.

Congregational Men's Club

The annual meeting of the Wollaston Congregational club was held Tuesday evening, and marked the close of the most successful year of the club, thanks to President Hill and the other officers.

An excellent supper was served at 6.30 including hot tomato soup, fricaseed chicken, mashed potato, boiled peas, biscuits, custard pie and coffee.

The report of Secretary Besse showed a membership of 50, being a gain of 10. The average attendance has been from 40 to 50. The treasurer reported receipts of $141.90 for the year, and a small balance in the treasury.

The nominating committee reported, and upon ballot all their nominees were elected as follows:

President—Chester Hogue.
Vice President—Charles L. Seavey.
Secretary—Leon F. Besse.
Treasurer—Fred L. Eastman.
Chairman Benevolence Committee—Chester M. Godfrey.
Public Improvement Committee—H. T. Whitman and Edward S. Tenney.

Guests of the evening were President H. O. Cassidy of the Wollaston Methodist club, Representative Hultman and the speakers.

The discussion of the evening was the merger of the Boston & Maine railroad with the New York, New Haven & Hartford. Both sides of the question were presented, the affirmative by Rodman W. Peabody and the remonstrance by Norman H. White, the Brookline representative.

Representative Hultman and others asked numerous questions of the speakers, and the general tone of the questions evidently were to bring out the fact that while the merger was a purely business issue it was being used freely as a political football.

Mr. Peabody opened the question, the summary of his remarks being that New England, up in the corner of the continent cannot be of the commercial importance to the country which the south and west are, and, therefore must protect itself by opening its doors to the northwest. Mr. White said it is not a question of stocks, and where they are, but whether or not the state shall stand idly by and let men do as they please. Shall we be bled by any single corporation, and it is a good thing? Not a single organization has spoken in favor of the merger. The railroad would not increase facilities, in fact it has been proven in other cases that facilities would decrease.

and college life, his public service as moderator of the town, representative to the General Court for 40 years, speaker for many years, military life, care of the Ponkapoag Indians, and his sturdy common sense. The pictures shown was taken in childhood. It was greeted with applause.

Quincy is proud to be known as the birthplace of John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, and those present felt that they knew more of his life after the fine paper by Miss Faxon, who sketched his early life, his inheritance of wealth his courtship of Dorothy Q and marriage, his public service as the first Governor of Massachusetts under the Constitution, and at the time Quincy was incorporated. The picture shown was a very good reproduction.

Mr. Schumacker's paper abounded in quotations from letters written by Mrs. Abigail Adams, and told of her courage, fortitude and trials, and later how she graced the courts of England. But she was happier in her own home, and a woman of refined taste. The living picture shown was also very good.

The critical paper of the evening was by Mr. Arnold on President John Adams. He told where Mr. Adams suffered in history but also told of his achievements. His friends should make more prominent his achievements that he maintain his proper place in history. The living picture of Mr. Adams was thought by many as the best of the evening.

It is always a pleasure to hear Mrs. Slade sing, and her group of songs met with favor.

Mrs. Saville told of Dorothy Hancock in verse, and it was a delight to hear of her charm of manners and of her matrimonal ventures, and other incidents of life as presented. The living picture was faithful.

Brooks Adams said he would have liked an hour or more to tell of John Wheelwright, the first minister of this parish. He was one of the most remarkable men of his time, and a man of great physical strength. He told of his marriages, his banishment, and the struggle at that time for control of the colony. He was the first great liberal of Massachusetts. A good picture was shown.

The reading of Dr. Holmes' poem of Dorothy Q. by Mrs. Davis was one of the gems of the evening, and her daughter faithfully represented the character in the picture.

Mr. Crane was just the one to present the life of Tutor Flynt, "the lucky dog." He quoted some of his humor and told of his eccentricities. The living picture was a good one.

The singing of "America" by the audience closed the delightful evening.

Quincy Woman Trustee for Life

The annual meeting of the corporation known as the National Society of United States Daughters of 1812 was held last week at the Riggs House in Washington, D. C., the president, Mrs. Flora Adams Darling, presiding, and is reported by the Transcript as follows. The minutes of the meeting of the organization of the corporation under the charter granted by Congress on Feb. 25, 1901) at Washington on April 16-19, 1907, also the by-laws of the corporation were read and approved.

Mrs. Edward Roby gave a full and complete statement of the misapprehension of the legal facts in the case, which has caused the General Society, U. S. D. 1812, working under a charter granted in Ohio in 1892, to illegally assume the name of National Society. A legal opinion from Colonel Asa Bird Gardiner was read, giving the legal status of the matter, and confirming Mrs. Roby's statements. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and approved.

Forty-seven ladies were then made members of the new corporation and the election of officers then followed, resulting as follows: President, Mrs. William Tod Helmuth of New York; vice president, Mrs. E. W. Clark; treasurer, Mrs. Bates; recording secretary, Mrs. Nelson V. Titus; registrar, Mrs. A. J. Witherell.

It was voted unanimously that, for their services rendered in the organization of the corporation and preservation of the charter, Mrs. William Tod Helmuth, Mrs. Edward Roby and Mrs. Nelson V. Titus be made charter trustees for life, with a seat on the national executive board and with a voice and vote in all the affairs of the corporation.

A tribute to the memory of the late vice president of the corporation, Mrs. Leroy Sunderland Smith, was offered by the secretary, Mrs. Titus, and a picture of Mrs. Smith, decorated with flowers, was placed upon the table of the presiding officer. All rose to pay a silent tribute to her memory. Suitable resolutions of sympathy with the family of Mrs. Smith were then passed.

Discussion followed as to the future work of the corporation and the hope was expressed that all members of other State societies of the Daughters of 1812, who have been working under a misapprehension of the legal facts of the case, will write for information about the corporation, which will be gladly furnished by the recording secretary and charter trustee, Mrs. Nelson V. Titus, Atlantic post office, Quincy, Mass.

Spring Meeting.

The Old Colony Association of Universalists met Wednesday with the society at Norwell. The weather proved fine. It was an enthusiastic and helpful meeting, 113 being present. It was voted to send the collection, amounting to twenty dollars to Rev. R. Perry Bush, pastor of Universalist church in Chelsea, who has opened his home and is doing everything possible to relieve the suffering of the worthy. Dr. Bush was a Chelsea boy and knows the city thoroughly.

Those attending the meeting from All Souls church, Braintree, were Mrs. W. R. Drake, Mrs. Eben Prescott and Mr. Alfred Southworth.

QUINCY SPONSOR

Miss Randall Christens the Lightship No. 92 At Fore River

Lightship, No. 922, the last of the three of this class of vessels being built at the Fore River Ship Building Co., for the Lighthouse board, was successfully launched this morning.

The launch was a private one and was witnessed by few outside of the officials directly interested, and a number of the young ladies of the office force. One of these young ladies, Miss Ethel Randall of Quincy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Randall, had the honor of being the vessel's sponsor, and she successfully carried out her part of the launch.

Miss Randall stood on a platform erected about the bow of the vessel, surrounded by a number of her coworkers, and at the signal she smashed a bottle of Mumm's Extra Dry over the steel bow, and gave the lightship her number.

The vessel slid gracefully down the ways and was soon riding in her native element.

Miss Randall was heartily congratulated by her fellow clerks after the launch.

At Odds at Concord.

The Union of Manchester, N. H., says the Concord granite workers are breaking many precedents in their fight to secure the adoption of a new wage schedule May 1, to continue in force until May 1, 1910. Heretofore the Concord granite employes, presumably because of their small numbers, have followed meekly in the wake of the larger organizations in Barre, Milford and Quincy, where the schedule is adopted biennally in March.

This year, however, the action of the unions in the other cities has not been copied here, and as a result the members o fthe Manufacturers' association and the committee of the unions have been utterly unable to reach an agreement. If a settlement cannot be obtained by Friday, when the contract now in force expires, the local union men will go out on strike.

For three hours Wednesday afternoon a committee of the Quarrymen's union was in conference with the committee of the manufacturers and the proceedings were far from amicable. Subsequently a more or less stormy meeting of the union occurred and a new proposition will be offered the manufacturers by the union men at a conference Thursday afternoon.

Wednesday also the stone cutters' committee waited upon the manufacturers with their proposition, and as usual it was impossible to come to a satisfactory conclusion. The employers appeared willing to grant a reasonable increase in wages, but attempts to approach a "happy medium" were futile.

His Home Was His Attraction

Dr. E. N. Hardy of Bethany church conducted the funeral service of Charles O. Hayden of 541 South street, Quincy Point, on Tuesday, and mentioned in his remarks an interesting fact, substantiated by relatives, that Mr. Hayden was born, lived all his life and died in the same house away from which he never spent more than a half dozen nights in more than fifty years. But Mr. Hayden did not have to go West to see great changes. He had an unobstructed view of the great Fore River shipyard, and saw the battleships Vermont, Rhode Island and New Jersey fitted out for their cruise around the world, also other warships and steamships, and several of those submarines which are attracting attention everywhere. Quincy Point from a sparsely settled community has become thickly settled and is rapidly increasing in population and importance. Quincy people do not have to go abroad to see changes.

WHIST TOURNAMENT.

One of the largest parties of the season was present Wednesday evening at the weekly whist tournament at the rooms of the Granite City club. It was intended to make this the last whist night of the season, but in response to a popular demand the whist nights will be continued for a few weeks longer. Quite a few visitors were present, and some good scores made. It remained for President Tilden and John W. Bell, however, to carry off the honors. After the play, strawberries, ice cream, cake and cocoa were served.

On Friday evening the club will be the guests of Manager Donovan at the Scenic theatre. Seats have been reserved for the club members. A special interesting bill will be presented.

FOR YOUR SUNDAY DINNER
try the following delightful desert:
1-2 cup English Walnut meats.
1-2 doz. figs, cut up fine.
1 10c. package JELL-O, any flavor.
Dissolve the JELL-O in a pint of boiling water. When cool and just commencing to thicken stir in the figs and nuts. Serve with Whipped Cream. Delicious. The walnuts, figs and JELL-O can be bought at any good grocery. This makes enough dessert for a large family and is very economical.

HALF TIME

Shorter Hours For Young School Children Is Proposed

A regular meeting of the School Committee was held Tuesday evening Mr. Miller being the only absent member.

The resignations of Miss Annie R. Black of the John Hancock school and Miss Jane E. Avery of the High school were accepted.

PHYSICAL TRAINING.

It was decided to employ a supervisor of physical training after the first of next September. The man selected will be one who is qualified to take charge of the gymnasium at the High school and to lay out and supervise a thorough course for the elemetary schools including playground work. The purpose of the committee is to do some such work in the schools of this city as recently provided in the schools of Boston.

HALF TIME CLASSES.

It was voted to authorize the superintendent to provide for half-time classes in the first or first and second grades in those districts in which parents desire it. Many requests have been received for such an arrangement, the purpose being to make the session for children of the primary grade about two hours a day and to reduce the number of pupils in attendance at one time.

The average number of children in the first grade is 50. This plan will give a teacher twenty-five in the morning and twenty-five in the afternoon. At the same time it will give the children more time to play in the open air and sunlight, which is believed to be of far more value to children of that age than anything they could get in the school room.

The plan proposed by the board will allow those districts which desire the half time to have it, but will not force it upon districts which do not desire it. Each case will be settled according to the prevailing wishes of the parents.

FINANCES.

It was voted to expend the income of the Rock Island fund in the purchase of reference books for the High school library.

The expenditures of the department to date were reported as follows:

	Appropriation.	Expended.	Balance.
Salaries	$106,930.00	$41,354.91	$65,575.09
Janitors	9,050.00	3,016.56	6,033.44
Sundries	10,000.00	4,043.05	5,956.95
Rents	360.00	120.00	240.00
Fuel	7,000.00	2,857.90	4,142.10
Transportation	1,000.00	446.00	554.00
Evening Schools	1,500.00	———	1,500.00
Totals	$135,840.00	$51,838.42	$84,001.58

Sale of Rugs.

A sale of rugs for the benefit of the Morgan Memorial and Hospital Aid Association was held Wednesday afternoon at the First church chapel. There was a large variety of rugs, all made at the Morgan Memorial, from clothing and old carpets.

They were handwove and very serviceable. In addition to these there were aprons, home-made cake and candy on sale.

The ladies in charge of the sale were Mrs. Joseph C. Morse, Mrs. Thomas Fenno, Mrs. E. G. Pratt, Mrs. W. M. Chase, Miss Amey Newcomb and Mrs. Relief Floyd.

Tea was served during the afternoon by Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann. There was quite a good attendance of ladies and a number of rugs were sold.

Work for Assessors.

The newly appointed assistant assessors met at City Hall on Wednesday evening, and were instructed as to their duties upon which they will start tomorrow morning. They will take the polls, horses, cows, etc. The Board of Assessors also start on their yearly rounds to assess real and personal estate, and will begin their labors in Quincy Point district. The work of Assessing the city must be completed during the month of May.

Express Rates Agitate Houghs Neck

Nearly all the members of the Houghs Neck Associates attended the special meeting held Wednesday night in Pandora hall. The chairman of the meeting was Henry W. French.

The first business was to appoint a finance committee consisting of five members, one from each district. A ways and means committee was then appointed.

The report of the treasurer showed that the minstrel show was a success financially.

The most important business of the meeting was the report of the coal and express committee. Archibald F. Baird, chairman of the committee read a letter from a Quincy Coal dealer stating that they had considered the demands of the committee that waited upon them, and came to the conclusion that their demands were fair and would grant the same. Houghs Neck objected to paying 25 cents additional for carting coal from Quincy.

Mr. Baird then made his report of progress of the express committee. He said, the express companies of Quincy have formed a league, and the other day advertised a list of new prices at the bottom of this list was this sentence. Deliveries to Houghs Neck 50 per cent. additional. I hope that we will not stand for this.

Motion was then made, and carried, that the matter be laid on the table. A special meeting was called for May 13th to take action on the express charges.

The members voted to entertain the participants in the minstrel show with a supper next week.

The membership of the association is increasing very rapidly. There are at present 112 members.

Vice Versa.

To dramatize a popular novel, has been in vogue for the past few years. The Prisoner of Zenda, Trillby and Sherlock Holmes have in turn delighted theater goers all over the world, as they watched the stirring scenes from their favorite book enacted on the stage. On April 9, 1883, the popular story "Vice Versa" by F. Anstey, was first performed at the Gaiety theatre, London, Eng., and secured an emphatic success. This is the play which the followers of Sir Galahad of Christ church are to present on the evenings of May 6 and 7. For many weeks rehearsals have been in progress, under the direction of Erastus Osgood, who several years acted the leading part himself, and and later was the stage manager and coach when the play was produced by the students of Lehigh University and the High school at Littleton, N. H., and other occasions. Mr. Osgood assures us that he never had a more capable company than the one he has been drilling in Quincy, so a brilliant production of the little comedy may be expected.

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

Class of 1909 reception at Woodward Institute tomorrow evening.

Leroy Atwood of Ashland visited friends in Norfolk Downs on Sunday.

Miss Delia Hobbs of Medford is visiting her aunt, Miss Hobbs of Calumet street.

The Pioneer Whist club met Wednesday evening with Mrs. Charles Treadway of Billings road.

Mrs. Doane is visiting her son and daughter Mr. and Mrs. Harry Doane, of Bromfield steeet.

Most of the houses advertised in the Daily Ledger this month have been rented quickly, so that the list today is small.

The club house of the Quincy Yacht club will be formally opened for the season tonight with a smoke talk, entertainment and chowder.

The Fore River Express Co. advertises that no advance will be made in prices. The location of call boxes and timetable to Boston are also advertised.

The latest receipts for making "toffee" (according to the formula prescribed in the play of Vice Versa) is "sugar, butter, a frying pan and an old gentleman."

Rt. Wor. Herbert F. French, D. D. G. M. of the 24th Masonic district, will make an informal visit to Wollaston lodge at the next communication. He has an important message.

Tickets for the annual concert of the Quincy High school are on sale by pupils of the school, which may be exchanged for reserved seats at the drug stores of C. C. Hearn and S. F. Copeland.

The fad of playing cribbage, which has been recently taken up by the Theta Sigma club, is causing a good deal of discussion among many of the Park and Downs people. Much interest is being displayed in the contest by outsiders.

Harold Bryant of Beach street returned Saturday from a week's trip to Washington. He as a member of the Pierian club of Harvard college, went to Washington with thirty other young men, who gave several concerts. They report a fine, jolly time.

On and after Thursday, April, 30, at 4 P. M., the L. T. L. will meet in Protection hall. Parents are invited to attend to hear the children's entertainment and the charming and helpful talk to the children by the leader, Mrs. Isabelle Davis. W. C. T. U. hold their meeting at 2.15 same afternoon; all invited.

Saturday Game.

On Saturday at 3 P. M. at Merrymount Park the fast Waltham Athletic team will play Makaria and a good game is promised. The batteries are Larner and Eschelbach for the Athletics, Tupper and Smith for Makaria. Harry Kolseth will be the umpire.

We have the stock, tools, machinery, and "know how" to do your Optical work promptly and satisfactory. We repair the frames, grind lenses, match the broken ones or test the eye. C. F. Pettengill, 1391 Hancock street, Quincy.

NO WAGE REDUCTION

Boston and Maine Railroad Will Continue Present Schedule

Boston, April 30.—In a conference with the chairmen and representatives of the system boards of the various brotherhoods of employes of the Boston and Maine railroad, President Tuttle informed the men that there would not be any reduction of wages on the road for this season and probably not for this year.

Recently Tuttle called upon the men to vote upon accepting a 10 percent reduction in wages, to take effect July 1, as the road was obliged to reduce expenses and wished the men to take voluntary action in the matter. The men returned a vote against such reduction.

President Tuttle thanked the men for their frank expression and stated that no reduction would be put into force on the road until the men had been given the right to discuss the matter and take similar vote again.

General Superintendent Lee stated that today there are 40,000 more idle cars in the country than when the reduction was asked for, but the summer season was approaching and the business of the next six months would be the basis upon which the road would decide as to whether or not to continue the present wage schedule without change.

Dartmouth Interested In Buffaloes

Hanover, N. H., April 30.—The close association in history of the American Indian with the American bison, or buffalo, has led the students of Dartmouth college, which was founded for the education of Indians, to take an unusual interest in the efforts to preserve the remaining specimens of the buffalo in this country, with the result that a fund will undoubtedly be raised at the college to purchase a herd of buffalo for the federal preserves.

New Wage Assignment Measure

Boston, April 30.—A bill which passed the senate yesterday provides that a married man cannot assign his wages without the consent of his wife. Wives who have been waiting for the weekly pay envelope only to find that they have a predecessor in the shape of a loan company with a prior claim will now hold the upper hand, and this feature of the bill is bound to have a great effect on the wage assignment business.

Great Shrinkage In Figures

Boston, April 30.—The estate of the late Edward H. Dunn, the leather merchant of this city and long president of the corporation of Boston university, was estimated when he died at various amounts ranging from one-half million to a full million. Yesterday the executors filed in the probate court an accounting, showing the entire value of the estate to be $206,000, of which they had paid out $201,000.

Veto on Salary Increase

Boston, April 30.—Acting Governor Draper sent to the Massachusetts legislature a veto of the bill to increase the salary of the secretary of the licensing board of the city of Boston, on the ground that, in view of the condition of Boston's finances, it is "unwise for the state government to do anything which will result in increased expenditure for the city of Boston, which is not absolutely necessary."

New Bedford School Wins Drill

Boston, April 30.—The New Bedford high school won the annual interscholastic drill at the South armory. New Bedford scored thirteen points, Chelsea and Wakefield tied for second place with eight points and Gloucester was third, with seven points. Fourteen schools competed. In the individual drill H. W. Smith of New Bedford won first place.

Pair of Jailbreakers Caught

Claremont, N. H., April 30.—After an exciting chase over the tops of freight cars in the railroad yard here last night, two prisoners who escaped Tuesday evening from jail at Woodstock, Vt., were recaptured. They are Ephraim Guyette, aged 18, and Cleveland Russell, 19. The former is charged with burglary and larceny, while the latter was held for criminal assault.

Students Want Sports Retained

Cambridge, Mass., April 30.—Meetings were held last night by the several classes to discuss the petition drawn up by the Harvard students, protesting against the curtailment of athletic sports by the faculty. The president of each class urged the students to add their signatures to the petition. The total number of signers now number 825.

Robbers Got Stalled In Mire

Newport, Vt., April 30.—Caught firmly in the mire of Clyde river swamp, Joseph Mielluner and George Wilber were pulled out by officers who had pursued them and taken to Farnham, P. Q., to answer to a burglary charge. In trying to dispose of their plunder the men became stalled in the swamp.

Was Long Awaiting Identification

Boston, April 30.—The body of a man who on March 20 committed suicide by shooting himself in a West End hotel, and which has been at the North Grove street morgue since that time awaiting identification, was last night identified as Arthur Wright, aged 26, of North Chelmsford.

Charged With Larceny of $3500

Boston, April 30.—George E. Keeler of Worcester was arrested here last night, charged with the larceny of $3500 from Susan P. Moulton of Everett by false pretences. It is alleged that the money was obtained through business deals in which the parties were interested.

MANUEL WINS SYMPATHY

Practical Recommendations For His Parliament to Consider

Lisbon, April 30.—King Manuel's address to the cortes was apathetic, and at the same time a practical and vigorous discourse calculated to win over the sympathies of the people. He touched upon the tragedy of Feb. 1, when his father and his brother were shot down, with delicacy and tact, referring to the "cruel disappearance of my father and brother."

Continuing, he called upon the country to concentrate all its energies in a supreme effort to attain the realization of the destinies of Portugal. He recommended a revision of the constitution, the re-establishment of individual rights, a new electoral law fixing the rights of suffrage, a revision of the decrees promulgated by ex-Premier Franco, and more rigid and careful methods of finance whereby the country could be placed on a more economical footing.

At the conclusion of the king's speech the members of the cortes broke out into cries of "Long live the king!" which were taken up and re-echoed by the others present.

While journeying to and from the buildings of parliament, King Manuel was respectfully greeted by the people.

Bluejackets Were Ignored

Santa Barbara, Cal., April 30.—After a stay of five days in this port, the Atlantic fleet of battleships sailed this morning for Monterey, the next scheduled stopping place on the long itinerary. The visit to Santa Barbara has been replete with social functions in honor of the officers, but the stay of the enlisted men here has not been an entirely happy one. No special entertainment was arranged for them and they received no official attention of any sort.

Bishop's Life Was Threatened

San Francisco, April 30.—Warned that a number of Koreans in San Francisco were preparing to assassinate Bishop Harris on his arrival from the Orient, a number of federal attaches and policemen met steamer Korea on its entrance to the harbor and, placing Harris on a revenue cutter, took him to Oakland. The action of the government officers was in response to a request from Washington.

Typesetting by Wireless

London, April 30.—That he has already perfected an invention by which he can set type in an ordinary linotype machine in Paris by wireless waves thrown from London, was the surprising statement made at the Hotel Cecil by Hans Kundsen, the Danish inventor, famous for his achievements with liquid air, after giving the first public demonstration of long-distance wireless photography.

Contest Over Receivership

New York, April 30.—The question as to the right of Arthur L. Peck to act as a receiver for the firm of T. A. McIntyre & Co., brokers, will come up for consideration Monday before Judge Hough. The claim was made by Attorney Ernst, representing Receiver Burlingham, that Peck, who is now acting as co-receiver for the firm, had an open account with the firm.

Catholics Continue Celebration

New York, April 30.—At noon yesterday the liturgical part of the celebration of the Catholic centenary was practically closed with the singing of a grand Te Deum by 6500 children gathered in St. Patrick's cathedral to observe Children's day, and last night the laity began its celebration with a public meeting at Carnegie music hall.

Interested In Telegraphers

Washington, April 30.—Representative Smith (Mich.) introduced a resolution directing the secretary of commerce and labor to institute an investigation into the Western Union Telegraph company and the Postal Telegraph Cable company, as to the wages paid and the working condition of the employes of these companies.

Fewer Laborers, More Police

Boston, April 30.—Two records for the suspension and employment of laborers in the city of Boston were created yesterday, when Mayor Hibbard ordered the suspension of 187 men from the city's payrolls for thirty days and Police Commissioner O'Meara assigned seventy-seven new patrolmen to duty.

Steamer Destroyed by Fire

Guayaquil, Ecuador, April 30.—The Ecuadorian cruiser Cotapaxi arrived here with the crew of steamer Cacique, which was totally destroyed by fire off Santa Elena point. The fire originated through an explosion of naphtha and all efforts to save the vessel proved unavailing. No lives were lost.

Lower Wages In Quebec Mills

Montreal, April 30.—Notices have been posted in the cotton mills of this city and also at other points where mills are operated by local companies of a cut of 10 percent in wages, to take place on May 1. The companies say the cut is necessary in order to meet foreign competition.

McCarter Wins Excelsior Race

Jamaica, L. I., April 30.—McCarter, second choice, won the Excelsior handicap, about $10,000, one mile and a sixteenth, here, defeating the favorite, Jack Atkin, by a neck, with Rifleman third. Jack Atkin cut a hot pace to the stretch.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Friday, May 1.

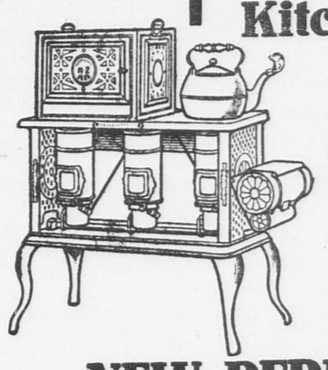
Keep the Kitchen Cool



Why swelter over a glowing range in a stuffy kitchen, when a new Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove will do the family cooking without raising the temperature enough to be noticeable?

By putting a "New Perfection" in and allowing the range fire to go out, you may make this summer's kitchen work not only bearable, but actually a pleasure. The produces an intense heat under the kettle or in the oven, but does not radiate heat in all directions as a coal range does—hence is used with comfort on the hottest summer day. Made in three sizes, and warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

NEW PERFECTION

The Rayo Lamp comes as near lamp perfection as it's possible to get. Gives a clear, bright light that reaches the farthest corner of a good sized living-room. Well made throughout of nickeled brass; perfectly safe and very ornamental. Warranted in every particular. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

Old Coughs

Keep in close touch with your family doctor. No medicine was ever made that could take his place. Trust him at all times.

Old coughs, desperate coughs, rasping coughs, extremely perilous coughs, coughs that shake the whole body. It takes a strong medicine, a doctor's medicine, to master such coughs. A great many people rely on Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

"Ralston's for Mine"

That's what you'll say if you will look into the merits of the Ralston shoe—and after you've tried one pair you'll never have to be urged again.

You'll find that not only in style and dependability Ralstons have no superiors, even among five and six dollar shoes, but also that when it comes to fitting qualities Ralstons have no equals.

Ralston foot print lasts have marked a new epoch in shoe construction.

Let us show you why.

RAP AT PROHIBITION

Missouri Congressman Sees Naught but Evil In It

BARTHOLDT'S IRE AROUSED

Regards Attempt to "Crack the Whip" Over Congress as a Danger Signal--Tells What Opponents May Do If Government Inquiry Comes

Washington, April 30.- A spirited attack on prohibition was made yesterday by Representative Bartholdt of Missouri before the house committee on the district of Columbia, which has under consideration the Sims bill providing for prohibition in the district.

"Prohibition is a devilish device to nail the human family more securely to the cross of king alcohol," he declared. He also declared that the professional prohibitionists corralled women and children, and that they had "cracked the whip over state legislators.

"Now," he continued, "they are trying to crack the whip over the congress of the United States. But this attempt we must regard not as a command, but as a danger signal. Above all things we must remember that prohibition does not succeed in its purpose and that it does nothing but promote lawless drunkenness."

Mr. Bartholdt intimated that if the prohibitionists kept up their crusade the opponents of the movement may do some crusading themselves.

"If this thing goes on," he said, "if these prohibitionists open the Pandora's box of government inquiry and prohibition, we may go still farther than even they intended. We may investigate whether or not many American homes are deserted because the wives and mothers spend their time on the streets and on the hustings agitating for prohibition. We may try to ascertain whether or not many of the so-called temperance drinks which are consumed by American women in sickening quantities are alcoholic and do endless harm."

Mr. Bartholdt said that outside of insanity there is only one other state of mind which cannot be reached by the force of reason, and that state is fanaticism.

"The pipe dream of these people," he continued, "is bound to be followed by a rude awakening. The realization will surely come that legislation is always a failure in this line." He claimed that prohibition was parading "in the respectability borrowed from the garments of a church movement;" that its advocates ascribed to the "demon" all the failings of youth, all our ills, all the matrimonial troubles of the world, and ridiculed such ideas.

A disregard for the Constitution was another charge made by Bartholdt against the prohibition leaders. "They are willing to spit on the Constitution," he said, "in order to carry their point." He told the committee that its members would be called patriots by posterity "for refusing to tear down our constitutional liberties without duly considering the matter," and said that this was the most important subject now before congress.

Railway Men May Strike

Pittsburg, April 30.—Pittsburg is threatened with a strike of conductors and motormen on all of the local traction lines, as well as upon a number of interurban lines entering the city. The men are voting upon a proposition regarded as the ultimatum of the Philadelphia company, controlling all of the lines, after futile negotiations covering more than two months, regarding a proposed reduction of wages of 1 cent an hour. The men insist that for all except the older employes the reduction is greater.

Why Ice Case Was Withdrawn

New York, April 30.—Special Deputy Attorney General Osborne, in the supreme court, declared that the reason the case of the American Ice company was withdrawn from the January special grand jury was that several members of the jury were financially interested in the company. Osborne's statement was made in opposing a motion of the company for permission to examine the minutes of the grand jury.

Getting Rid of Criminals

Washington, April 30.—In the round-up of anarchists of foreign birth by the authorities of various large cities of the country, working in co-operation with the United States immigration officials, a good many foreigners with criminal records in their own country have been discovered, and where the facts warrant the action they are being deported from America.

No Strike In Kanawha Field

Charleston, W. Va., April 30.—The joint scale committee of the miners and operators of the Kanawha field reached an agreement last night after three days of conference. The scale of 1906 continues in effect, as does the bi-monthly payday. Eight thousand miners will continue work.

Says Father Is Rich

Los Angeles, Cal., April 30.—Jay W. Crawford, who says he is the son of a wealthy Boston attorney, was arraigned on a charge of issuing an alleged worthless check for $2150 in payment for an automobile which he had purchased. He is in jail in default of bail.

Summer Plans Of the Y. M. C. A.

Several plans are being discussed by the Y. M. C. A. for the warm weather though none have been finally settled upon. Some want a summer camp, where a lot of boys could live under canvas for two or four weeks. Schemes for a supervised playground with equipment of swings, teters, sand gardens, base ball, and other games, is approved by some. Raising flowers and vegetables in prize gardens is also being talked over quite favorably.

These plans will soon be settled upon and the best one pushed to success. In the meantime there are two boys' base ball teams which will play each week. The outdoor running track and basket ball court in the rear of the gym will be put in shape, and outdoor sports will be enjoyed.

Cross country running is beginning to spring into favor. Almost any night parties of young men may be seen running through the quiet streets about the park.

A dual meet with Milton has been arranged for May 30 with races for boys 12-14 and 14-16. The senior events will be 100 and 229, yard dashes, mile run, running high and broad jumps, shot put and relay race.

It will be the aim of the association to keep things lively every month during the summer.

The Cotton Mill South.

Twenty cents in stamps or otherwise sent to the Boston Evening Transcript Boston, Mass., will secure for anyone interested the series of articles started Saturday, April 25, in that paper on "The Cotton Mill South." These will appear regularly each Saturday and Wednesday in five articles. They are by the Rev. P. H Goldsmith, D. D., minister of the First Church of Salem, Mass . the first church in New England) who is a Southerner by birth, a Northerner by residence. This is an exceptional opportunity to get this series from a man of high standing and character whose viewpoint on this interesting theme is singularly excellent.

Little Wanderers as Guests

The New England Home for Little Wanderers, located at 202 West Newton street, Boston, has in its charge about 250 children. The home has accepted an invitation from the "Fresh Air Camp Association of Quincy and Weymouth and on July 8 and July 22, the children of the home will be guests of the association at their camp in North Weymouth. Other such organizations and day nurseries, etc., will be freely and gladly welcomed to the camp. Applications should be made to Charles H. Johnson secretary of the association.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and trying the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

A committee is at work in Salem to raise a fund to purchase a gift for the scout cruiser Salem built at the Fore River works in Quincy. Mayor Hurley is the chairman of the committee.

An order has been issued by the Navy Department to Commander J. L. Gow to continue duty at the works of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company at Quincy.

Two four-inch by five-inch spare oil pumps are being made at the shipyard for the U. S. S. Salem.

Chase Parker & Co. are having some defective taps repaired at the shipyard.

Charles Clapp is having some work done for a propeller shaft.

Three turbine shafts are being annealed and oil tempered for the General Electric Company.

It is quite likely that the Mare Island navy yard will be abandoned in the near future, if Congress acts on the advice given by Representative Lilley. The investigation of navy yards by a commission appointed by the President, with a view to their abandonment, has been urged by Representative Lilley of Connecticut Mr. Lilley has offered a joint resolution providing for the appointment of this commission so as to eliminate the "waste of public moneys in the maintenance of the same." The navy yards mentioned in his resolution were taken up separately and discussed by Mr. Lilley.

The Mare Island yard, he said, has cost the government $17,000,000. It has a stone drydock which cost $1,-175,000, "but the secretary of the navy states that this drydock will not permit the docking of a battleship And not only is this true, but a battleship cannot get to the yard. Although Rear Admiral Endicott, then chief of the bureau of yards and docks, ten years ago practically recommended the abandonment of this yard, since that time $728,866 has been spent in dredging alone and $5,124,712 has been appropriated and spent on the yard."

The naval collier Cesar sailed from Newport, R. I., Wednesday for Manila, by way of the Suez Canal. She has on board the submarines Shark and Porpoise.

Engineer J. F. Paige will be in charge of setting up the turbine engines which left the works Wednesday aboard the S. S. Bisley when they reach the Kure naval dock yard Japan. He will leave here with his assistants in time to reach Japan before the S. S. Bisley arrives there. Charles F. Briggs, acting as guarantee engineer will assist Mr. Paige.

WORK FOR QUINCY.

Two battleships a year of the Delaware class and a continuous program has proven a very satisfactory outcome of the contest in the Senate between those favoring two battleships and those fighting for four, says a Washington dispatch to the Boston Transcript. Navy men were jubilant at the announced program of the Senate and in the House. At the Navy Department the outcome is regarded as highly satisfactory. Particularly is there satisfaction at the change in the bill made by the Senate under which an appropriation is carried with the authorization of the two ships in the bill this year. This enables the work of construction to proceed almost immediately and makes a difference in the time of completion of approximately one year.

As soon as the bill is out of conference and approved plans will be made for beginning the work of construction of the battleships and other additions to the navy for which the bill provides. One of the ships will be built in a navy yard and the other by contract.

During the contest for and against additional battleships, the fact that the bill authorizes other substantial increases in the fighting force was partly lost sight of because it was uncontested. As passed by both houses, the bill authorizes besides the two battleships ten torpedo-boat destroyers, two colliers of fourteen knots' speed to be built, and the purchase of three already completed by the Fore River Company, and ready for service, and eight submarines. Ten million dollars was added in the Senate for the construction.

$500 Reward.

FOR Evidence that will convict any person or persons of damaging the property of its members, the Granite Manufacturers' Association of Quincy. Mass., will pay Five Hundred Dollars—($500.00.)

EDITORIAL.

The new Naval bill just passed by Congress means more work for the Quincy shipyard. Possibly another battleship like the North Dakota, now building, to be awarded soon by contract; possibly two or more torpedo boat destroyers; perhaps a collier for the government, and three for the Massachusetts Steamship Comany to replace those bought by the government; and surely several submarine boats. The large appropriation by Congress will certainly make things hum at the plant of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, and means prosperity for the "City of Presidents" for the next few years.

Newspaper men were much interested in the three-column letter of Ralph Bergengren in the Boston Transcript telling why the Boston Hippodrome was a failure, and why it cut short its engagement. He says in part:

"To acount for the failure of the Boston Hippodrome one must needs add together a large number of managerial errors—so many of them, in fact, that the success of such an enterprise, wisely conducted, is still as problematical as ever. The success of the first night was perhaps the very reason why the succeeding nights went from bad to worse, until at last there remained only a splendid remnant of the original company, and the circus came to an abrupt and pathetic termination.

"To boom a certain number of special performances the management had unfortunately argued that it was enlisting a wide popular interest and especially a general newspaper interest. It forgot—or at least appeared to forget—that it was engineering a circus, and that newspaper mention of circuses is advertising, and that advertising of this kind is a commodity that newspapers do not enjoy giving away without knowing it. Therefore a newspaper is naturally suspicious of a circus that appears in the guise of a news item about a fraternal society or an educational institution. It is all the more suspicious when the circus claims to be a highly capitalized enterprise.

"From its very inception, therefore, the Hippodrome created an atmosphere of distrust and apprehension that included first the press then the public, and finally the performers."

Many make similar mistakes when they expect newspapers, to whose success they do not contribute, to boom their enterprises. They say to the newspaper man—"its news;" but news is not the only thing a newspaper wants; it must have a balance on the right side of the ledger. The Hippodrome refused to do any advertising in the Quincy papers, therefore the newspapers blue pencilled the Hippodrome. When the Granite City Club visited the Hippodrome the Daily Ledger just mentioned the fact without a word of praise for the show, although two pages of copy were handed in about it. It was so on other ocasions. There were many times when a good word might have been printed for the Hippodrome, but it was cut out. So it is with entertainments given in Quincy. Where managers take all their printing to job offices they cannot expect free advertising from the newspapers, and they miss an opportunity to increase their receipts.

Mrs. Albert W. Campbell of Rochester, N. H., who was Miss Alice E. Townsend, for many years a clerk in the City Treasure's office at City Hall, is in town the guest of friends.

J. Walter Hamilton, born in Quincy, dropped dead at his home in Newton on Wednesday. He was 51 years of age and for the past 30 years has conducted a fish business at T wharf, Boston.

The Norfolk Superior court has reduced the big fine imposed on Patrick Haniford of Weymouth, found guilty in the Quincy court of having 1,017 smelts in his possession. The court thought $20 enough, substituting that fine for the $1,017.

The Guild supper at the parish house of Christ church on Wednesday evening was well attended and a social occasion. Salads and cold meats were served under the direction of Mrs. H. E. Ricker the president. Pleasing solos were rendered by Mrs. James H. Slade and Mr. Beal.

Miss Katie Sullivan was surprised by a crowd of her friends Tuesday evening at her home on John street, Atlantic, During the evening she was presented a handsome token that she will remember for a long time. Songs were rendered and refreshments served. Friends were present from Roxbury, Atlantic, Wollaston, Norfolk Downs, Neponset and Quincy.

The quaint picture of Col. John Quincy, the first in the group of living pictures shown at First Church chapel, Tuesday evening by the Quincy Historical society, hangs in the parlor at the presidential mansion on Adams street, and the reproduction was fine. The pictures where shown in a setting which looked like a room in colonial times, with old time furniture and candlesticks and on the wall was a large gilt frame, in which were posed the living pictures, which were so well posed and copied it was hard to believe they were not the original paintings.

Express Permits Signed by Mayor

The thirteen permits to transport liquor granted by the City Council last year expire at midnight tonight, and it will be illegal for any of these thirteen to transport liquor tomorrow without a permit.

Up to the present time the City Council of 1908 have granted but four permits. These were to William B. Gerry of Atlantic, Nicholas T. Murphy of West Quincy, Bruce & Myatt and Abbott & Miller of Quincy.

These four were passed at the last meeting of the City Council, after a prolonged debate, and sent to the Mayor for his approval or disapproval.

This morning Mayor Shea affixed his signature to the four orders, so that these four may continue to transport liquors. It is thought no more will be granted.

The thirteen Quincy expressmen who had permits last year follow, those marked with a star having been granted permits this year: *Abbott & Miller, Boston & Quincy, *Bruce & Myatt, Boston & Houghs Neck Steamboat Co., *W. B. Gerry, John Callahan, Gerdman & Lilja, C. L. Hazelton, H. H. Lowe, Maria Monti, *Nicholas T. Murphy, John J. Maloney and New York & Boston Dispatch.

WYNOT—GILES.

A pretty home wedding of the week was that of Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. A. R. Giles, 60 Trafford street, Quincy Adams, when her daughter, Marion R. Giles became the wife of Austin E. Wynot, son of Ekanah Wynot of Braintree. Rev. N. J. Sproul of the First Presbyterian church officiated, the ceremony being performed at eight o'clock, the bride being given in marriage by her brother James B. Giles.

The couple were attended by a maid of honor, Miss Anna R. Giles, sister of the bride, and the best man Wilburn F. Wynot, brother of the groom. The ushers were: James B. Giles, William R. Giles and Malcolm McLeod all of Quincy.

A white princess gown trimmed with Irish lace, was most becoming to the bride. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was also in white, wearing a silk muslin, trimmed with val lace and Dresden ribbon. The maid of honor was the recipient of a gold ring set with garnets.

During the reception from eight until twelve a wedding supper was served. Miss Mary McLeod and Miss Ruella Wynot assisted the newly wedded couple in receiving.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Wynot will make their home in Braintree on Stedman avenue.

OLMSTED—CRAFT.

At the home of Mrs. C. A. Richardson, 111 West Elm avenue, Wollaston Park, was united in marriage on Wednesday evening, her sister, Miss Harriet Adelaide Craft of Roxbury, and Mr. Frederick Arthur Olmsted of Roslindale. The house was decorated with palms, asparagus vine and cut flowers artistically arranged.

The ceremony was solemnized at quarter past eight, the officiating clergyman being Rev. W. W. Bustard of the Dudley Street Baptist church, Roxbury. Lloyd T. Buell of Copperhill, Tenn., was best man and the bride was attended by Miss Effie L. Cooley of Roxbury.

An informal reception was held immediately after the ceremony, the bride's mother Mrs. Elizabeth T. Craft, and the groom's mother, Mrs. L. H. Olmsted, assisting in receiving.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white peau de soie, trimmed with filet lace, and she carried a large shower bouquet of white sweet peas. Her only ornament was a string of gold beads, a gift of the groom. The maid of honor was in pink, wearing a lace trimmed gown of silk Eoline and carrying a bouquet of pink roses.

The railroad commissioners, bridge engineers and inspectors of the board of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad passed through Quincy on Wednesday, in a special car on the annual inspection of the company's lines. They went to Provincetown and will return today through West Quincy. There will be three days' inspection weekly until May 15.

Will be Difficult To Fill Vacancy

That Joseph A. Goodhue was held in high esteem by the Quincy Y. M. C. A. was shown in the action of the directors on Wednesday evening. The letter of resignation of Mr. Goodhue was read, business interests in his family requiring his attention, and the following resolution in the form of a letter to Mr. Goodhue was adopted:

"At our regular director's meeting, April 29, your letter was read,—wherein you tendered your resignation as superintendent of boys' work in our association. You may be sure that the letter again brought forth the renewal of most kindly and unanimous expressions of regard for your ability and success in leading boys in pleasant as well as in good and helpful ways. We know that your wide experience, tact in contact with boys, and wise counsel with adults, cannot be easily duplicated, and that we have no easy task before us, to find a worthy successor.

"We trust the business duties to which you have been so unexpectedly, yet naturally called will yield gratifying returns; and we feel sure that your home city or town will be the better through your manly Christian Citizenship. We reluctantly accept your resignation. Hoping you will retain a close interest in our association, be assured of our most cordial hopes for great success in your new field."

Today's Court.

Edward E. Wood was arraigned for assault on his wife at Weymouth. Case continued on Probation until July 1 on payment of costs.

Harry Bowers was fined $10 for having ten smelts in his possession at Braintree.

Convention Delegates Chosen by Vermont Republicans

TARIFF REVISION FAVORED

Should Be Along the Lines of Protection--More Elastic Currency Wanted --Names of Roosevelt, Taft and Hughes Greeted With Cheers

Burlington, Vt., April 30.—The Vermont delegation to the Reublican national convention was completed by the state convention and the eight representatives of the Green Mountain state at Chicago will not be bound by instructions in favor of presidential candidates. The delegates chosen were:

W. P. Dillingham of Montpelier, Fletcher D. Proctor of Proctor, Frank L. Greene of St. Albans and Allen M. Fletcher of Cavendish. The alternates selected were: J. B. H. Adams of Fairhaven, R. M. McCuen of Vergennes, R. D. Godfrey of Bennington and John R. Mead of Randolph.

The platform, which was adopted unanimously, endorses the administration of President Roosevelt, the Republican national policies, urges congressional action in favor of a more elastic currency and declares in favor of a revision of some of the tariff schedules, "keeping ever in mind the principles of protection."

An unsuccessful effort was made to add a plank favoring "the continuance of President Roosevelt's policies either under his guidance or under that of those in full sympathy," but the resolution was tabled without a debate.

Chairman Dana, in his address to the convention, referred to President Roosevelt, Secretary Taft and Governor Hughes, and as he mentioned each name there was much cheering and applause. The convention was one of the largest held for many years.

DEMOCRATS IN HARMONY

Connecticut Delegates to Denver Unhampered by Instructions

New Haven, April 30.—The Democratic state convention, at a most harmonious session, chose its delegation to the national convention, and the representation will go to Denver without being bound by instructions in favor of any presidential candidate.

The only delay in the business of the convention was caused by the committee on resolutions, before whom a resolution was presented on the matter of instructing the delegates for Bryan. The resolution was voted down.

The following platform was unanimously adopted:

"We the delegates of the Democracy of the state of Connecticut in convention assembled, reaffirm our allegiance to those principles of government enunciated and expounded by the great Democratic statesmen, Thomas Jefferson, Grover Cleveland and William J. Bryan.

"We believe in a strict construction of the Constitution, the preservation of the integrity of the three departments of the government, home rule and local self-government, and calling for equitable revision of the tariff with special privileges to none, and we assert that in this time of commercial depression, consequent upon twelve years of Republican misrule, the best welfare of all people can be secured only by returning to Democratic principles."

After the adoption of the platform the convention adjourned.

Knox Named For Presidency

Harrisburg, April 30.—Within an hour after the Republican state convention had adjourned the certificates of nomination of Superior Court Judge Porter and the delegates-at-large, alternates-at-large and electors-at-large were filed in the state department at the capitol. The convention cheered references to President Roosevelt and Governor Stuart and gave prolonged applause when Senator Knox was endorsed for the presidency.

Mississippians In a Wrangle

Jackson, Miss., April 30.—The Republican state convention here proved rather tumultuous, a lively fisticuff preceding the opening of the session. The outcome was the holding of two conventions, one faction selecting delegates known to be favorable to the policies of President Roosevelt, while the other wing instructed their delegates to vote for Foraker for the presidential nomination.

Non-Committal Resolutions

Birmingham, Ala., April 30.—The Republican state convention of the anti-administration faction of the party was held here and nominated candidates for all state offices to be filled at the November election and selected four delegates-at-large to the national convention at Chicago. The resolutions as adopted are entirely non-committal as to candidates for the presidential nomination.

West Virginians Favor Taft

Parkersburg, W. Va., April 30.—The Republican state delegate convention selected delegates-at-large to the national convention at Chicago, nominated three candidates for judges of the supreme court, and adopted a resolution recognizing William H. Taft "as the logical successor of Theodore Roosevelt in the presidency of the United States."

May Be a Taft Contest

Portland, Me., April 30.—In spite of the fact that the four delegates-at-large to the national convention at Chicago to be selected at the Republican state convention in this city this afternoon have practically been decided upon, there is some uncertainty in the situation. The only contest considered possible may result from an effort of the Taft men to put through a resolution endorsing their favorite, though not instructing the delegates-at-large in any way. There is some opposition to even this mild Taft move and it may not meet with the approval of the committee on resolutions.

Pastor Entertains Choir and Teachers

Rev. John J. Coan, pastor of St. John's church, entertained the choir, Sunday school teachers, ushers and Sanctuary society on Wednesday evening at Hibernian hall. During the first part of the evening there was a banquet, the menu being a tempting one, served by Caterer La Croix. During the evening there was singing by the choir, and an interchange of greetings between the pastor and his guests. Rev. Fr. Coan also had a few words of welcome for his guests. All in all it was an evening of rare enjoyment.

Trees Appreciated.

Editors Daily Ledger:

Going to Houghs Neck Sunday as did several hundred others who took advantage of the warm day, I was surprised and pleased to see Coddington and Sea streets lined on either side with young trees. It impressed me that it made both streets look better, even though the trees are not yet leaved out. There was an air of interest and improvement about it.

In the twenty-five years I have lived in Qnincy nothing to my mind has been a greater civic improvement, for it has seemed to me the tendency has been to cut down rather than plant. When the work of planting is finished with unbroken rows from City Square to Mt. Wollaston farm it will be a good work accomplished. I presume the trees have not all arrived yet from the nursery as the chain is broken in front of the Library and at Spear street.

If as I learn, the planting of these trees is the work of the Quincy Women's club, I say, long may the Quincy Women's club be with us and the trees grow and flourish so that in future years they may look to their work with pride.
